16 For thy power is the beginning of justice: and for this that thou art Lord of all, thou makest thyself to spare all. 17 For thou shewest power, which art not thought to be absolute in power, and thou convincest the boldness of them, that know thee not. 18 But thou dominatour of power, judgest with tranquility, and with great reverence disposest of us: for (c) it is in thy power when thou wilt, to be able.

(c) God's power being Almighty is only limited by his will.

19 And thou hast taught thy people by such works, that they must be just and gentle, and hast made thy children of good hope: because judging thou givest in sins place of repentance. 20 For if thou didst punish the enemies of thy servants, and that deserved to die, with so great consideration, giving time and place, whereby they might be changed from their wickedness: 21 with what diligence hast thou judged thy children, to whose parents thou gavest oaths and covenants of good promises? 22 Therefore when thou givest us discipline, thou scourgest our enemies very many ways, that judging we may think upon thy goodness: and when we are judged, we may hope for thy mercy. 23 Wherefore to them also, which in their life have lived foolishly & unjustly, thou hast given great torments by the same things, which they did worship. 24 [1] For they wandered long in the way of error, esteeming for gods those things, that in beasts (d) are superfluous, living after the manner of senseless infants.

[1] Rom. 1. v. 23. (d) Serpents, bats, moles, & like beasts, which seem not only superfluous in the world, but also hurtful, yet were esteemed as gods.

25 For this cause thou hast given judgement on them as on senseless children to be in derision. 26 But they that were not amended by scorns and reprehensions, have tried the worthy judgment of God. 27 For in what things they suffering took indignation, by those whom they thought gods, when seeing they were destroyed in them, him, whom in time past they denied that they knew, they acknowledged the true God: (e) for the which cause the end also of their condemnation shall come upon them.

(e) Knowing him to be the only true God, by whom they saw their false gods destroyed, yet they did not serve him as God.

CHAPTER XIII.

Men following their phantasies knew not God by his creatures, but honoured the creatures for gods. 10. Most sottishly also worshipped things fashioned by men's hands, as gods.

But all men be vain, in whom there is not the knowledge of God: and of these good things which are seen they could not understand him (a) that is, neither attending to the works have they agnised who was the workman: [1]

(a) God's most proper name is HE WHICH IS. Exo. 3. v. 14. [1] Rom. 1.

2 [1] but either the fire, or the wind, or the swift air, or a circle of stars, or exceeding much water, or the sun and moon, they thought to be gods, rulers of the world.

[1] Deut. 4.

3 With whose beauty if being delighted they thought them gods: let them know how much the Lord of them is more beautiful than they. For the author of beauty made all those things. 4 Or if they marveled at their virtue, & operations, let them understand by them, that he which made these, is stronger than they: 5 for by the greatness of the beauty, and of the creature, the Creator of them may be seen, to be known thereby.
6 But notwithstanding there is yet in these less complaint. For they also perhaps err, seeking God, and desirous to find him. 7 For whereas they converse in his works, they inquire: & they are persuaded that the things be good which are seen. 8 But again neither ought these to be pardoned. 9 For if they could know so much, that they were able to estimate the world: how did they not more easily find the Lord thereof? 10 But they are unhappy, & their hope is among the dead, who have called (b) the works of men's hands gods, gold & silver, the invention of art, and the similitudes of beasts, or an unprofitable stone the work of an old hand. [1]

(b) Seeing no creature how excellent soever, is or may be esteemed a God, it is more foolish to think, an Image, or statua, or any thing framed by man's hands can be God. [1] Isa. 4.

11 Or if an artificer a carpenter, cut straight timber out of the wood, & pare off all the bark thereof cunningly, and using his art diligently frameth a vessel profitable for the common use of this life, [1]

[1] Ier. 10.

12 and useth the chips of that work to dress his meat: 13 and maketh that which is left thereof, which is for no uses, but being a crooked piece of wood, and full of knobs, carveth it diligently in the hollowness thereof, and by the skill of his art fashioneth it, and maketh it like to the image of a man, 14 or compareth it to some beast, straking it over with red, and with painting making the colour thereof ruddy, and layeth a colour over every spot that is in it: 15 and maketh a worthy habitation for it, and setting it in a wall, and fastening it with iron 16 lest perhaps it fall, providing for it, knowing that it cannot help itself: for it is an image, and it needeth help. 17 And concerning his substance, & his children, & for marriage, making a vow he seeketh to it. He is not ashamed to speak with him, that is without soul: 18 and for health certes he beseecheth the weak, and for life asketh the dead, and for help invocateth him that is unprofitable: 19 and for a journey asketh him, that cannot walk: and for getting, and for working, and for the event of all things he asketh him, that in all is unprofitable.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XIII.

◦God is the beginning of all things, absolute and independing.

1. They could not understand him, that is.] Philosophers discussing the nature of many creatures, saw that every creature proceeded of some other thing, & so there must needs be one beginning of all, ◦ absolute of it-self, neither proceeding nor depending of another, nor a limited substance. As the thing that is a man, is not a beast; an oxe is not a horse &c. and telling what any thing is, we exclude thereby that it is not other things, but saying without addition, HE WHICH IS, we shew the beginning of all, in no sort limited: and this is God. Whom some Philosophers, by such discourse found, & knew in general, & sometimes confessed, but did not honour him as God, and therefore were inexcusable, as S. Paul concludeth against them. Rom. 1.

CHAPTER XIV.

Foolish men intending to sail, honour wooden idols, in regard of the profit they receive by ships: 6. by which some were saved in the general deluge. 8. Idols, and idol-makers are cursed. 12. They were not from the beginning, 15. but were devised for memory of the dead, and worshipped with divine honour. 22. So men forgetting God, proceeded in idolatry, with other abominable and cruel enormities.

Again another thinking to sail, and beginning to make a journey through the fierce waves, invocateth wood (a) more frail than the wood that carrieth him.

(a) Great madness to invocate a wooden idol more base & commonly more corruptible than the wood of a ship.

2 For covetousness of getting invented it, and the craftsman by his wisdom framed it. 3 But thy providence, o Father, doth govern: because thou hast given a way even in the sea, and among the waves a most sure path, 4 shewing that thou art able to save out of all things, yea (b) if a man go to the sea without art.

(b) As the Israelites went through the red sea.

5 But that thy works might not be void of wisdom: for this cause also men commit their lives even to a little wood, and passing over the sea are delivered by ship. 6 But from the beginning also when the proud giants perished, the hope of the world flying to a ship, rendered to the world seed of nativity, which was governed by thy hand. 7 For (c) blessed is the wood, by the which (d) justice is made.

(c) The author prophetically alludeth to the wood of the Cross, on which our Saviour redeemed mankind. (d) From whose death proceedeth man's justification.

8 But the idol that is made by hands, cursed is both it, and he that made it: because he indeed wrought it: and the same being frail, was called God. 9 But to God the impious and his impiety are odious alike. 10 For that which is made, with him that made it, shall suffer torments. 11 For this cause also in the idol of the nations there shall be no respect: because the creatures of God were made to hatred, and for tentation to the souls of men, and for a snare to the feet of the unwise. 12 For the beginning (e) of fornication is the devising of idols: and the inventing of them is the corruption of life.

(e) Invention of Idols brought men to spiritual fornications, & corruption of manners.

13 For neither were they from the beginning, neither shall they be for ever. 14 For this vanity of men came into the world: and therefore there is found a short end of them. 15 For the father being sorrowful with bitter mourning, made unto himself the image of his son quickly taken away: and him, that then was a dead man, now (f) he began to worship as God, and appointed holy things and sacrifices among his servants.

(f) This first idolatry was only privately exercised by the father and his servants at their master's commandment, by which occasion public idolatry came into the world, wicked custom in time prevailing.

16 (g) Afterward by succession of time, the wicked custom prevailing, this error was kept as a law, and things graven were worshipped by the commandment of Tyrants.

(g) ↓

17 And those, whom openly men could not honour, for that they were far off, their figure being brought from a far, they made an evident image of the king, whom they would honour: that by their carefulness they might honour as present, him that was absent. 18 And to the worshipping of these, the excellent diligence also of the artificer, holp them forward, that were ignorant. 19 For he willing to please him that entertained him, laboured by his art to fashion the similitude in better sort. 20 And the multitude of men carried away by the beauty of the work, him that a little before had been honoured as a man, now they esteemed for a God. 21 And this was the deceiving of man's life: because men serving either affection, or kings, gave the name that is not communicable, to stones and wood. (g)

(g) The name God in the proper signification, cannot be given to any creature.

22 And it was not sufficient that they erred about the knowledge of God, but also living in a great battle of ignorance, so many and so great evils they call peace. 23 For (h) either sacrificing their children, or making obscure sacrifices, or having watches full of madness,

(h) Many enormous crimes proceed from idolatry.

24 they now neither keep life, nor marriage clean, but one killeth another by envy, or playing the adulterer maketh him sorrowful: 25 and all things are mingled together, blood, manslaughter, theft and fiction, corruption and infidelity, trouble and perjury, disquieting of the good, 26 forgetfulness of God, inquination of souls, immutation of nativity, inconstancy of marriage, disorder of adultery, and unchasteness. 27 For the worship of idols not to be named, is the cause of all evil, and the beginning and end. 28 For either when they rejoice, they are mad: or certes prophesy false things, or live unjustly, or quickly forswear themselves. 29 For whilst they trust in idols, which are without soul, swearing amiss they hope not to be hurt. 30 (i) Two evil things therefore shall happen to them worthily, because they have thought evil of God, attending to idols, and have sworn unjustly, in guile contemning justice.

(i) Two sorts of perjury: swearing by false gods, and swearing untruths.

31 For it is not the power of them that are sworn by, but the punishment of them that sin goeth always through the transgression of the unjust.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XIV.

[1] Calvin falsely chargeth this book with error.

[2] Gen. 31.

[3] Images of false gods are rightly called idols.

[4] Idolatry began by worshipping images of dead men with divine honour.

[5] Private idolatry was before public.

15. The father made unto himself the image of his son.] [1] Calvin here chargeth this book with error, in affirming that idolatry began by superstitiously honouring images of the dead. Against which he allegeth that Laban's idols, [2] and others more ancient, were before any images of dead men were honoured. But he argueth upon a false ground. For Laban's idols were images, as the Hebrew word Theraphim signifieth, and is so translated in the English Bibles (1552. and 1577.) but because they were images of false gods, and for that Laban called them his gods, a later Bible (1603.) translateth it better, idols, [3] as the Latin and Greek have idola. It is also certain that Ninus King of the Assirians, long before Laban, yea before Abraham, set up the image of his Father Belus (otherwise called Jupiter) to be publicly honoured by the people, as S. Cyril sheweth li. 3. in Iulianum, near the end, and S. Ambrose, or another grave Author writeth the same in cap. 1. ad Romanos. Likewise S. Cyprian li. de Idolorum vanitate. S. Chrysostom. hom. 87. in Matth. and Egesippus apud S. Ieronym. li. de Viris Illustrib. testify, that the making of men's images in memory of the dead, was the occasion and beginning of idolatry, according as this place reporteth, that a Father sorrowing for the death of his son made an image in his memory, [4] & began to worship him as a god, causing his servants also to honour his dead son, with rites and sacrifices. Which private idolatry was absolutely the first, that is recorded in holy Scripture, or any other good author. And the first public is counted by most authors that of Ninus, worshipping the image of his father Belus with divine honour, who also pardoned all offenders, how enormous soever their crimes were, that fled unto that image. Which allurement together with so great a King's authority, drew innumerable to public idolatry. Whereupon S. Jerome noteth (in cap. 2. Osee) that Ninus became so great and glorious, as to make his father to be honoured as a god. [5]

CHAPTER XV.

The wise gratefully praise the sweetness and mercy of God, by whom they are delivered from idolatry: 6. detesting the makers & worshippers of idols.

But o thou our God art sweet and true, patient, and disposing all things in mercy. 2 For if we sin, we are thine, knowing thy greatness: and if we sin not, we know that we are counted with thee. 3 For to know thee, is absolute justice: and to know justice, and thy power, is the root of immortality. 4 For men's invention of evil art hath not brought us into error, nor the shadow of a picture being a labour without fruit, a shape graven by diverse colours, 5 the sight whereof giveth concupiscence to the senseless, and he loveth the shape without life of a dead image. 6 The lovers of evils are worthy to have their hope in such things, both they that make them, and that love, and that worship them. 7 Yea and the potter pressing soft earth, with labour fashioneth every vessel to our uses, and of the same clay maketh the vessels that are clean to use, and in like manner them, that are contrary to these: but what the use of these vessels is, the potter is judge. 8 And with vain labour he (a) fashioneth a god of the same clay: he which a little before was made of earth, and a little after returneth back whence he was taken, being exacted the debt of the life which he had.

(a) Of the diverse sorts of idols and idolaters see our brief Annotation upon the 113. Psal.

9 But his care is, not because he shall labour, nor because he hath a short life, but he contendeth with gold-smiths and silver-smiths: yea and he imitateth the copper-smiths, and counteth it a glory, because he maketh vain things. 10 For his heart is ashes, and his hope vain earth, and his life viler than clay: 11 because he was ignorant who made him, and who inspired into him the soul which worketh, & who breathed into him the vital spirit. 12 Yea and (b) they esteemed our life to be a pastime, and the conversation of life made for a gain, & that we must get every way even of evil.

(b) Idolaters having forsaken and forgot the only true God, become as Atheists, making their temporal gain of false gods.

13 For he knoweth that he offendeth above all men, which of the matter of earth fashioneth frail vessels, and sculptiles. 14 For all the unwise and unhappy above measure of the soul, proud (c) are the enemies of thy people, and rule over them:

(c) And so waxing insolent, contemn and persecute the servants of God.

15 because they have esteemed all the idols of the nations for gods, which neither have use of eyes to see, nor nostrils to take breath, nor ears to hear, nor fingers of the hands to handle, yea and their feet are slow to walk. 16 For a man made them: and he that borrowed breath, the same fashioned them. For no man can make God like to himself. 17 For whereas himself is mortal, he maketh a dead thing with his wicked hands. For he is better than they, whom he worshippeth, because he indeed lived, though he were mortal, but they never. 18 But (d) they worship also most miserable beasts: for the senseless things compared to these, are worse than they.

(d) Some idolaters worshipped brute beasts for gods, as being better than senseless images: but all are abominable.

19 Yea neither by sight can any man see good of these beasts, But they have fled from the praise of God, and from his blessing.

CHAPTER XVI.

God plaguing the Aegyptians for idolatry, and cruelty, delivered the Israelites. 5. Chastised them also, but again shewed them mercy; 20. and fed them with Manna.

For (a) these things, and (b) by the like to these, they have worthily suffered torments, and were destroyed by a multitude of beasts.

(a) The Aegyptians were plagued for their idolatry. (b) And that by beasts, because they worshipped beasts for gods: and by death of their first-begotten, for their cruelty against God's people.

2 For the which torments thou didst well dispose of thy people, to whom thou gavest the desire of their delectation, a new taste, preparing them the quail for meat: 3 that they indeed coveting meat, because of those things which were shewed and sent them, might be turned away even from necessary concupiscence. But they in short time being made needy, tasted a new meat. 4 For it behoved that without excuse destruction should come upon them exercising tyranny: (c) but to these only to shew how their enemies were destroyed.

(c) God punished his own people as a father, for their amendment.

5 For when the cruel wrath of beasts came upon them, they were destroyed with the bitings of perverse serpents. 6 Howbeit thy wrath endured not for ever, but for chastisement they were troubled a short time, having a sign of salvation for the remembrance of the commandment of thy law. 7 For he that turned to it, (d) was not healed by that which he saw, but by thee

the Saviour of all:

(d) The brazen serpent not by any virtue inherent, but as a sign of God's favour, was the means of curing the people. Num. 21.

8 and in this thou didst shew to our enemies, that thou art he which deliverest from all evil. 9 For the bitings of locusts and flies killed them, and their was found no remedy for their life: because they were worthy to be destroyed by such things. 10 But neither the teeth of venomous dragons overcame thy children: for thy mercy coming healed them. 11 For in memory of thy words they were examined, & were quickly saved, lest falling into deep oblivion they might not use thy help. 12 For neither herb, nor plaster healed them, but thy word, o Lord, which healeth all things. 13 For it is thou, o Lord, that hast power of life and death, and bringest down to the gates of death, and fetchest again: 14 but man certes killeth by malice, and when the spirit is gone forth, it shall not return, neither shall he call back the soul that is received: 15 but it is unpossible to escape thy hand. 16 For the impious denying to know thee, have been scourged by the strength of thine arm, suffering persecution by strange waters, and hail, and rain, and consumed by fire. 17 For that which was marvelous in water, which extinguisheth all things, (e) fire more prevailed: for the world is revenger of the just.

(e) With the plague of hail there was also fire mixed, Exo. 9. v. 24. which destroyed the profitable cattle:

18 For a certain time, the fire was mitigated, that (f) the beasts which were sent to the impious might not be burnt, but that they seeing might know that by God's judgment they suffer punishment.

(f) But burnt not other beasts, that plagued the Aegyptians.

19 And at a certain time the fire above his power burnt (g) in water on every side, that it might destroy the nation of a wicked land.

(g) Hail did not extinguish the fire, by God's power above nature.

20 For the which things thou didst nourish thy people with the meat of Angels, and bread prepared thou gavest them from heaven without labour, having in it all delectation, and the sweetness of all taste. 21 (h) For thy substance did shew thy sweetness which thou hast toward thy children, and serving every man's will, it was turned to that, that every man would.

(h) See the miracles of Manna. Annot. Exod. 16.

22 Yea snow and ice sustained the force of fire, and melted not: that they might know that fire burning in hail, and lightening in rain destroyed the fruits of the enemies. 23 And this again, that the just might be nourished, it forgat also his own strength. 24 For the creature serving thee the Creator, is fierce into torment against the unjust: and is made more gentle to do good for them, that trust in thee. 25 For this cause even then being transformed into all things, they served thy grace the nurse of all, at their will that desired thee: 26 that thy children might know, whom thou lovedst o Lord, that not the fruits of nativity do feed men, but thy word preserveth them, that believe in thee. 27 For that which could not be destroyed by fire, forthwith being (i) heated with a little beam of the sun did melt:

(i) He speaketh again of Manna.

28 that it might be known to all men, that we ought to prevent the sun to bless thee, and at the rising of light to adore thee. 29 For the (k) faith of the ungrateful shall melt as winter ice, & shall perish as unprofitable water.

(k) The vain imagination of the wicked, that himself shall be saved, will fail him.

CHAPTER XVII.

Horrible darkness falling in Aegypt, 19. the rest of the world had ordinary light.

For thy judgements, o Lord, are great, & thy words inexplicable, for this cause the souls lacking discipline have erred. 2 For whilst the wicked are persuaded that they can rule over the holy nation: fettered with the bands of darkness and (a) long night, shut up under roofs, they have lien fugitives from the everlasting providence. [1]

(a) Literally the Aegyptians had darkness three days together. Exo. 10. v. 22. [1] Exo. 1. & 10.

3 [1] And whilst they think that they lie hid in obscure sins, they were dispersed by the dark covert of oblivion, being horribly afraid and disturbed with exceeding admiration.

[1] Morally they & other gentiles were in darkness without faith in God, till Christ's Resurrection the third day.

4 For neither did the den that contained them, keep them without fear: because the sound coming down troubled them, and sorrowful visions appearing to them, put them in fear. 5 And no force certes of the fire could give them light, neither could the clear flames of the stars lighten that horrible night. 6 But there appeared to them sudden fire full of fear: and being strucken with the fear of that face, which was not seen, they esteemed the things that were seen to be worse. 7 and there were added derisions of the magical art, and contumelious rebuke of the glory of their wisdom. 8 For they which promised that they would expel fears and perturbations from the languishing soul, these with derision languished full of fear. 9 For although none of the monsters disturbed them: being moved with the passing by of beasts, and hissing of serpents, they perished trembling: and denying that they saw the air which by no means any man could avoid. 10 For whereas wickedness is fearful, it giveth testimony of condemnation: for (b) a troubled conscience doth always presume cruel things.

(b) A troubled conscience is a great torment.

11 For fear is nothing else but a betraying of the aids of cogitation. 12 And whilst inwardly there is less expectation, the greater doth he count the ignorance of that cause which maketh the torment. 13 But they that during the night indeed impotent, and coming upon them from the lowest and highest hell, slept the same sleep, 14 were sometime molested with the fear of monsters, sometime failed by passing away of the soul: for sudden fear and unlooked for came upon them. 15 Moreover if any of them had fallen down, he was kept shut up in prison without iron. 16 For if one were a husbandman, or if a shepherd, or worker of the labours in the field were suddenly taken, he sustained necessity inevitable. 17 For with one chain of darkness they were all tied together. Whether it were the hissing wind, or among the thick boughs of trees the sweet sound of birds, or the force of water running downward exceedingly, 18 or the mighty sound of rocks tumbled headlong, or the running of playing beasts, that were not seen, or the mighty noise of roaring beasts, or an Echo resounding from the highest mountains: they made them swoon for fear. 19 For (c) all the world was illuminated with a clear light, & none was hindered in their works.

(c) This signified the conversion of all nations to Christ.

20 But over them only was laid an heavy night, the image of darkness, which was to come upon them. They therefore were unto themselves more heavy than the darkness.

CHAPTER XVIII.

In the Aegyptian darkness the Israelites saw clearly, and were not seen of their enemies. 5. For the Aegyptians' cruelty against the Hebrews' infants, all their own first-born were slain, and their whole army drowned in the red sea. 20. But fire devouring the rebellious in Core's schism, was quenched by Aaron's intercession.

But to thy (a) saints there was very great light, and their voice indeed they heard, but figure they saw not. And because themselves also did not suffer by the same things, they magnified thee:

(a) The Church is called holy, because it professeth holiness, and hath always some holy men, & without the Church there is no sanctity.

2 and they that before had been hurt, because they were not hurt, gave thanks: and that there might be a difference, they asked a gift. 3 For the which cause they had a burning pillar of fire for a guide of the unknown way, and thou gavest them the sun without hurt of a good harbour. 4 They indeed worthy to lack light, and to suffer the prison of darkness, which kept thy children shut up, by whom the uncorrupt light of the law began to be given to the world. 5 When they decreed to kill the infants of the just: and (b) one child being laid forth, and delivered, thou to the reproving of them, didst take away a multitude of children, and destroyedst them together in the mighty water.

(b) When the Aegyptians drowned the Hebrews' children, Moyses was saved, and reserved to guide the Israelites, when the Aegyptians were drowned.

6 For that night was known before of our fathers, that they knowing indeed what oaths they had credited, might be of better comfort. 7 And by thy people indeed the health of the just was received, but destruction by the unjust. 8 For as thou didst hurt the adversaries: so us also thou didst magnify, provoking us. 9 For the just children of the good sacrificed secretly, and disposed the law of justice in concord: that the just should receive both good & evil alike, singing now the praises of the fathers. 10 But there sounded a disagreeing voice of the enemies, and a lamentable mourning was heard for the bewailed infants. 11 And the servant with the master was afflicted with like punishment, and a man of the vulgar sort suffered the like things to the king. 12 All therefore alike by one name of death had dead ones innumerable. For neither did the living suffice to bury them: because in one moment, that which was the nobler nation of them, was destroyed. 13 For concerning all things being incredulous because of the enchantments, but then first when there was destruction of the first-begotten, they promised to be the people of God. 14 (c) For when quiet silence contained all things, and the night was in the mid-way of her course,

(c) A prophecy of Christ, coming into this world, when there was temporal peace, but extreme darkness of ignorance.

15 thy omnipotent word sallying out of heaven from the royal seats, lighted as a severe conqueror upon the midst of the land of destruction, 16 a sharp sword carrying thy unfeigned commandment, and standing filled all with death, and reached even to heaven standing on the earth. 17 Then incontinent the visions of naughty dreams troubled them, and fears unlooked for came upon them. 18 And one here^ another there cast forth half alive, shewed for what cause of death he died. 19 For the visions that troubled them, forewarned these things, that they might not perish as ignorant why they suffered evils. 20 But then (d) there touched the just also a tentation of death, and a disturbance of the multitude was made in the wilderness: but thy wrath did not long continue. [1]

(d) Another example of difference in God's punishing his people for their amendment, and of the obstinate unto their ruin. Exo. 14. v. 28. Num. 16. v. 46. [1] Num. 16.

21 For a man without blame hastening to pray for the people, bringing forth the shield of his ministry, prayer, and by incense alleging supplication, resisted the wrath, and made an end of the necessity, shewing that he is thy servant. 22 And he overcame the multitudes, not in strength of body, nor with might of armour, but with a word subdued he him that vexed him, rehearsing the oaths of the parents, and the testament. 23 For when they were now fallen dead by heaps one upon another, he stood between, and cut off the violence, and separated that way which leadeth to the living. 24 For in the vesture down to the foot, which he had, was all the world: and the glorious things of the fathers were graven in the four jewels of stones, & thy magnificence was written in the diadem of his head. 25 And to these he that destroyed gave peace, & these did he fear: for the proof only of wrath was sufficient.

CHAPTER XIX.

Aegyptians persecuting the Hebrews were drowned, 10. having been plagued before with flies and frogs. 11. Quails were given to the people of Israel. 13. The barbarous not receiving, or evil intreating God's people, were strucken with blindness. 17. And all creatures serve God in punishing the impious and rewarding the godly.

But upon the impious even to the later end there came wrath without mercy. For (a) he foreknew also the things that should come unto them:

(a) God foreseeing the Aegyptians' malice, permitted them to persecute his people, but was no way the cause nor author of their sin.

2 [1] because when they had permitted that they should depart, and had sent them away with great diligence, they repenting pursued them.

[1] Exo. 14.

3 For having as yet mourning between their hands, and lamenting at the graves of the dead, they took to themselves another cogitation of folly: and whom by entreating they had cast forth, them they pursued as fugitives: 4 for worthy necessity brought them to this end: and they lost the remembrance of those things which had chanced, that punishment might fulfill the things that wanted to the torments: 5 and that thy people certes might pass through marvelously, but they might find a new death. 6 For every creature according to his kind was fashioned again from the beginning, serving thy precepts, that thy children might be kept without hurt. 7 For a cloud overshadowed their camp, and out of the water which was before, there appeared dry land, and in the red sea a way without impediment, and of the great depth a springing field: 8 through the which all the nation passed, which was protected with thy hand, seeing thy marvelous things and wonders. 9 For even as horses they fed on meat, and as lambs they rejoiced, magnifying thee o Lord, which didst deliver them. 10 For they were mindful of those things, which had been done in their sojourning, how for the nation of beasts the earth brought forth flies, & for fishes the river yielded a multitude of frogs. 11 And last of all they saw a new creature of birds, when allured by concupiscence they desired meats of deliciousness. 12 [1] For in comfort of their desire, there came up to them the quail from the sea: and vexations came upon the sinners, not without those arguments, which were made before by the force of lightnings: for they suffered justly according to their wickedness.

[1] Exo. 16.

13 For they instituted a more detestable inhospitality: (b) some certes received not the unknown strangers, and other-some brought the good strangers into servitude.

(b) The Amorrheites refused to grant them passage. Num. 21. v. 21. The Aegyptians brought them into servitude. Exo. 1.

14 And not only these things, but indeed there was another respect also of them: for they against their will received the strangers. 15 But they that received them with gladness, did afflict them with most cruel sorrows, that used the same rights: 16 but they were strucken with blindness: as they in the doors of the just, when they were covered with sudden darkness, every man sought the passage of his door. 17 For whilst the (c) elements are turned in themselves, as in an instrument the sound of the quality is changed, and all keep their sound: wherefore it may be certainly judged by the very sight.

18 For the things of the field were turned into things of the water: and what soever were swimming things passed into the land. 19 [1] The fire had force in water above his power, and the water forgot her quenching nature.

[1] Exo. 9. v. 24.

20 On the contrary the flames vexed not the flesh of corruptible beasts walking therewith, neither did they melt that good meat, which was easily dissolved even as ice. For in all things thou didst magnify thy people o Lord, and didst honour them, and didst not despise them, at all time, and in every place assisting them. [1]

THE ARGUMENT OF ECCLESIASTICUS.

In what sense this Book is sometimes called Salomon's, we have shewed in the argument before the Book of wisdom. As likewise that it is Canonical Scripture. ◦Whereto we might add more testimonies of ancient Fathers: as S. Clement of Alexandria, li. 1. c. 8. Paedagogi, Origen ho. 8. in Number. & ho. 1. in Ezech. S. Cyprian de opere & eleemos. S. Athanasius in Synopsi, & lib. de Virginitate, S. Basil in regul. disput. resp. 104. S. Gregory Nazianzen Orat. 2. advers. Iulian. S. Epiphanius haer. 76. & in Ancorato, S. Hilary, in Psal. 144. S. Ambrose de bono mortis. c. 8. & Ser. 22. in Psal. 118. S. Chrysostom ho. 33. ad populum Antioch. S. Augustin lib. 2. cap. 8. Doct. Christ. & lib. 17. cap. 20. de Civit. S. Gregory the Great in Psal. 50. and many others expressly cite this book as holy Scripture. But chiefly we rely upon the authority of the Church defining that it is Canonical.

◦Particular testimonies that this book is holy Scripture.

[1] It was written by Iesus the son of Sirach in Hebrew, about the time of Simon Iustus otherwise called Priscus: and translated into Greek by the Author's Nephew, as the same Translator testifieth in his Prologue, but expresseth not his own name. It is called Ecclesiasticus, which signifieth a Collector or Gatherer, as a common title of every ordinary Preacher, instructing and exhorting the multitude gathered to a sermon: with difference from Ecclesiastes, [2] which signifieth The Preacher, as a greater title of the chief or principal Preacher of any Church, City, or Province, and agreeth most eminently to Christ our Saviour: who preached, and sendeth Preachers to the whole world. And for the excellent contents it may also rightly be called Panaretos, [3] that is, a Receptacle or store-house of all virtues, for the instruction of all in general, to cooperate with God's grace in this life, and so inherit eternal glory. [4] In forty and three whole chapters, are mixtly the commendations and precepts of all sorts of virtues; sometimes in particular, but more often under the general names of wisdom and Justice. In the other eight chapters are recited many excellent examples of most renowned holy men: with praises and thanks to God.

THE PROLOGUE UPON ECCLESIASTICUS OF IESUS THE SON OF SIRACH.

The knowledge of many and great things hath been shewed us by the Law and the Prophets, and others that followed them: in which we ought [1] to praise Israel for doctrine & wisdom: because not only they in speaking must needs be cunning, but strangers also both learning & writing may become most learned. My grandfather Jesus, after he gave himself more amply to the diligence of reading the Law and the Prophets, and other Books that were delivered us from our fathers; himself also would write some of those things, which pertain to doctrine and wisdom: that such as are desirous to learn, and to be made cunning in the same things, may more and more be attend in mind, and be confirmed to the life that is according to the law. I exhort you therefore to come with benevolence, and read with attend study, and to pardon us for those things, wherein we seeming to follow the image of wisdom, may fail in the composition of words: for the Hebrew words also [2] fail when they shall be translated to another tongue. And not only these, but the Law also it-self, and the Prophets, and the rest of other books, have no small difference, when they are spoken within themselves. For in the eight and thirtieth year, in the time of Ptolomee Evergetes the King, after I came into Aegypt, and when I had been there much time, I found there books left, of no small nor contemptible doctrine. Therefore myself also thought it good and necessary to add some diligence and labour to interpret this book: and with much watching I brought forth this doctrine in space of time, that men may learn those things which teach them, that will apply their mind, how they ought to order their manners, them that purpose to lead their life according to the Law of our Lord.

[1] (a) By reason of a more perfect law the people of Israel were more renowned than any other nation in the world. Deut. 4.

[2] (b) Translations into other languages hardly express the sense of the original tongue.

ECCLESIASTICUS.

CHAPTER I.

Wisdom proceedeth from God, appeareth in his creatures. 10. and is given in competent measure to all that fear God, 16. it bringeth all virtues, 27. excludeth all vices, 33. and is to be sought in simplicity of heart. [1]

[1] The 1. part.
Praises and precepts of wisdom.

All wisdom is of our Lord God, & hath been always with him, & is before all time. 2 The sand of the sea, & the drops of rain, & the days of the world, (a) who hath numbered? The height of heaven, and breadth of the earth, & profundity of the depth, who hath measured?

(a) Man's wisdom is not able to comprehend the works of God.

3 The wisdom of God that goeth before all things, who hath searched out? 4 Wisdom was created before all things, & the understanding of prudence from everlasting. 5 A fountain of wisdom the word of God on high, and the entrance thereof everlasting commandments. 6 The root of wisdom to whom hath it been revealed, & the subtilties thereof who hath known? 7 The discipline of wisdom to whom hath it been revealed and made manifest, and the multiplication of her entrance who hath understood. 8 There is one most high Creator omnipotent, and mighty King, and to be feared exceedingly, sitting upon his throne & the God of dominion. 9 He created her in the Holy Ghost, and hath seen, and numbered, and measured her. 10 And he hath poured her out upon all his works, and upon all flesh according to his gift, and hath given her to them that fear him. 11 The fear of our Lord is (b) glory, and gloriation, and joy, and a crown of exultation.

(b) Eternal glory is the fruit of the fear of our Lord: not that this one virtue sufficeth, but it is the beginning, grounded in true faith, and bringeth forth other virtues, divine gifts with the fruits of the Holy Ghost, & a joyful crown in the end.

12 The fear of our Lord shall delight the heart, and shall give joy, and gladness, and length of days. 13 With him that feareth our Lord it shall be well in the later end, and in the day of his death he shall be blessed. 14 The love of God is honourable wisdom. 15 But they to whom she shall appear in vision, they love her in the vision, and in the agnizing of her great works. 16 The fear of our Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and was created with the faithful in the womb, and goeth with the elect women, and is known with the just & faithful. 17 [1] The fear of our Lord is religiosity of knowledge.

18 Religiosity shall keep and justify the heart, shall give joy and gladness. 19 With him that feareth our Lord it shall be well, and in the days of his consummation he shall be blessed. 20 The fullness of wisdom is to fear God, and fullness is of the fruits thereof. 21 All her house she shall fill with her generations, and the store-houses with her treasures. 22 A crown of wisdom, the fear of our Lord, replenishing peace, and the fruit of salvation: 23 and hath seen, and numbered her: but both are the gifts of God. 24 Wisdom shall distribute knowledge, and understanding of prudence: and exalteth the glory of them that hold it. 25 The root of wisdom is to fear our Lord: for the boughs thereof are of long time. 26 in the treasures of wisdom is understanding, & religiosity of knowledge: but to sinners wisdom is abomination. 27 The fear of our Lord expelleth sin: 28 for he that is without fear, cannot be justified: for the anger of his animosity, is his subversion. 29 Until a time the patient shall sustain, and after shall be rewarded of joyfulness. 30 A good understanding will hide his words until a time, and the lips of many shall shew forth his understanding. 31 In the treasures of wisdom is signification of discipline: 32 But the worship of God (c) is abomination to a sinner.

(c) Men drowned in sin think the service of God a most tedious & loathsome thing.

33 Son, coveting wisdom, keep justice, & God will give her to thee. 34 For the fear of our Lord is wisdom and discipline: and that which well pleaseth him, 35 is faith, and meekness, and he will fill his treasures. 36 Be not incredulous to the fear of our Lord: and come not to him with a double heart. 37 Be not an hypocrite in the sight of men, and be not scandalized in thy lips. 38 Attend to them, lest perhaps thou fall, and bring dishonour to thy soul, 39 and God reveal thy secrets, and in the midst of the synagogue cast thee down: 40 because thou camest to our Lord wickedly, & thy heart is full of guile and deceit.

CHAPTER II.

Whosoever will serve God must have justice, fear of God, and patience, 6. with confidence in God. 14. Dissemblers, incredulous, and impatient shall be miserable: 18. but the godly shall receive more grace.

Son, coming to the service of God, stand in justice, and in fear, & prepare thy soul to tentation. 2 Repress thy heart, & sustain: incline thine ear, & receive the words of understanding, (a) and make no haste in the time of [1] obduction.

(a) Desire not to die that thou mayst thereby be covered from worldly miseries, for that is a desperate desire, but have patience in this life that thou mayst find rest in God.

3 Sustain the sustentations of God: be joined to God, and sustain, that thy life may increase in the later end. 4 All that shall be applied to thee, receive: and in sorrow sustain, and in thy humiliation have patience: 5 for gold and silver are tried in the fire, but acceptable men in the furnace of humiliation. 6 Believe God, and he will recover thee: and direct thy way, and hope in him. Keep his fear, and grow old therein. 7 Ye that fear our Lord, expect his mercy: & decline not from him, lest ye fall. 8 Ye that fear our Lord, believe him, & your reward shall not be void. 9 Ye that fear our Lord^ hope in him: and mercy shall come to you for your delectation. 10 Ye that fear our Lord, love him, & your hearts shall be illuminated. 11 Children behold the nations of men: and know ye that none hath hoped in our Lord, and hath been confounded. 12 For who hath continued in his commandment, and hath been forsaken? Or who hath invocated him, and he despised him? 13 Because God is pitiful and merciful, and will forgive sins in the day of tribulation: and he is protector to all that seek him in truth. 14 (b) Woe to them of a double heart, & to wicked lips, and to the hands that do evil, and to the sinner that goeth on the earth two ways.

(b) As virtues are to be rewarded: so all sins shall be punished.
Namely external pretence of holiness, with secret evil intention. Distrust in God. Impatience, and the like.

15 Woe to them that be dissolute of heart, which believe not God: and therefore they shall not be protected of him. 16 Woe be to them, that have lost patience, and that have forsaken the right ways, and have declined into perverse ways. 17 And what will they do, when our Lord shall begin to look on them? 18 They that fear our Lord, will not be incredulous to his word: and they that love him, will keep his way. 19 They that fear our Lord, will seek after the things that are well pleasing to him: and they that love him, shall be filled with his law. 20 They that fear our Lord, will prepare their hearts, and in his sight will sanctify their souls. 21 They that fear our Lord, keep his commandments, and will have patience even until his visitation, 22 saying: If we do not penance, we shall fall into the hands of our Lord, and not into the hands of men. 23 For according to his greatness, so also his mercy is with him.

CHAPTER III.

Honour of parents procureth God's blessing, 11. dishonouring them his curse. 19. Meekness and modesty avail much: but curiosity to know secret mysteries is dangerous. 27. A charitable, sincere, and docile heart, 33. with works of mercy merit reward.

The children of wisdom are the Church of the just: and their (a) nation, obedience and love.

(a) The progeny of God's children bring forth the fruit of obedience and love.

2 (b) Hear your father's judgement o children, and so do that you may be saved.

(b) Honour and estimation of parents is the chiefest obligation that man hath towards his neighbour, & the first after his duty to God.

3 For God hath honoured the father in the children: and inquiring of the mother's judgement, hath confirmed it upon the children. 4 He that loveth God, praying shall obtain for sins, and shall refrain himself from them, and shall be heard in the prayer of days. 5 And as he that gathereth treasure, so he also that honoureth his mother. 6 He that honoureth his father, shall have joy in children, and in the day of his prayer he shall be heard. 7 He that honoureth his father, shall live the longer life: & he that obeyeth the father, shall refresh the mother. 8 He that feareth our Lord honoureth his parents, and as his lords he will serve them that begat him. [1]

[1] Exo. 20. Deut. 5.

9 In work and word, & all patience honour thy father, 10 that blessing may come upon thee from him, & his blessing may remain in the later end. [1]

[1] Gen. 27. & 49.

11 The father's blessing establisheth the houses of the children: but the mother's curse rooteth up the foundation. 12 Glory not in the contumely of thy father: for his confusion is no glory to thee. 13 For the glory of a man is by the honour of his father, and the father without honour is the dishonour of the son. 14 Son receive the old age of thy father, and make him not sorrowful in his life: 15 and if he fail in understanding, pardon him, and despise him not in thy strength: for the alms to the father shall not be in oblivion. 16 For good shall be restored thee (c) for the sin of thy mother,

(c) Alms given, or prayer made, or sacrifice offered for parents, doth merit reward at God's hand.

20 The (d) greater thou art, humble thyself in all things, and thou shalt find grace before God:

(d) All greatness in men proceeding from God, bindeth them so much the more to humility, which virtue God most specially loveth: that so they may shew gratitude for his benefits.

21 because the might of God only is great, and he is honoured of the humble. 22 [1] Seek not things higher than thyself, and search not things stronger than thy hability: but the things that God hath commanded thee, think on them always, and in many of his works be not curious.

23 For it is not necessary for thee, to see with thine eyes those things that are hid. 24 In superfluous things search not many ways, and in many of his works thou shalt not be curious. 25 For very many things are shewed to thee above the understanding of men. 26 Many also have their suspicion supplanted, and have held their senses in vanity. 27 A hard heart shall fare ill in the later end, and he (e) that loveth danger, shall perish in it.

(e) Those that dare live in sinful state, tempting God even to the last hour, commonly perish therein.

28 A heart that goeth two ways, shall not have success, and the perverse of heart shall be scandalized in them. 29 A wicked heart shall be laden with sorrows, and the sinner will add to commit sin. 30 To the synagogue of the proud there shall be no health: for the shrub of sin shall be rooted up in them, and it shall not be perceived. 31 The heart of the wise is understood in wisdom, and a good ear will hear wisdom with all desire. 32 A wise heart, and that which hath understanding will abstain it-self from sins, and in the works of justice shall have success. 33 [1] Water quencheth burning fire, and alms resisteth sins:

[1] Dan. 4. v. 24.

34 and God is the beholder of him that rendereth grace: he remembereth him afterward, and in the time of his fall he shall find a sure stay.

CHAPTER IV.

An exhortation to practise works of mercy, 12. with commendation of wisdom: 23. (& observing due times) not to omit for any fear, or shamefastness, to say the truth, 34. also to be diligent, meek, and liberal.

Son defraud not the alms of the poor, and turn not away thine eyes from the poor. 2 Despise not the hungry soul: and exasperate not the poor in his poverty. 3 Afflict not the heart of the needy, & defer not the gift to him that is in distress. 4 Reject not the petition of him that is afflicted: and turn not away thy face from the needy. 5 From the poor turn not away thine eyes for anger: and (a) leave not to them that ask of thee, to curse thee behind thy back.

(a) Give not occasion by thy hard dealing with the poor, that they curse thee.

6 For the prayer of him that curseth thee in the bitterness of his soul (b) shall be heard: and he that made him, will hear him.

(b) For if thou give cause, God who is their protector, will revenge them against thee.

7 Make thyself affable to the congregation of the poor, and to the ancient humble thy soul, and to a great man bow thy head. 8 Bow down thine ear to the poor without sadness, and render thy debt, and answer him peaceable words in mildness. 9 Deliver him that suffereth injury out of the hand of the proud: and be not faint-hearted in thy soul. 10 In judging be merciful to pupils as a father, & as an husband to their mother: 11 and thou shalt be as the obedient son of the Highest, and he will have mercy on thee more than a mother. 12 Wisdom inspireth life to her children, and receiveth them that seek after her, and will go before them in the way of justice. 13 And he that loveth her, loveth life: and they that shall watch to her, shall embrace her sweetness. 14 They that shall hold her, shall inherit life: and whither-soever he shall enter, God will bless him. 15 They that serve her, shall be servants to the holy: and them that love her God loveth. 16 He that heareth her, shall judge nations: and he that beholdeth her, shall remain confident. 17 If he believe her, he shall inherit her, and her (c) creatures shall be in confirmation:

(c) They that follow wisdom shall be safe.

18 because in tentation she walketh with him, and first of all she chooseth him. 19 Fear, and dread, and probation she will bring upon him: and she will torment him in the tribulation of her doctrine, till she try him in her cogitations and credit his soul. 20 And she will establish him, and make a direct way unto him, and rejoice him, 21 and will disclose her secrets to him, and will heap upon him as treasures knowledge & understanding of justice. 22 But if he go amiss, she will forsake him, and deliver him into the hands of his enemy. 23 Son observe time, and avoid from evil. 24 For thy soul be not ashamed to say the truth. 25 For there is (d) shame that bringeth sin, & there is (e) shame that bringeth glory and grace.

(d) Through shamefastness to yield unto sin, or not to reprove sin, is vicious. (e) But to be ashamed, and to abhor sin is very good and necessary.

26 Accept no face against thine own face, nor against thy soul a lie. 27 Reverence not thy neighbour in his offence: 28 nor keep in a word in time of salvation. Hide not thy wisdom in the beauty thereof. 29 For by the tongue wisdom is discerned: and understanding, and knowledge, and doctrine by the word of the wise, and steadfastness in the works of justice. 30 (f) Do not gainsay the word of truth by any means: and be ashamed of the lie of thine unskillfulness.

(f) All men are bound to say the truth at convenient times, v. 23.
And ever bound to avoid untruths.

31 Be not ashamed to confess thy sins, and submit not thyself to every man for sin. 32 Resist not against the face of the mighty, neither labour against the stream of the river. 33 For (g) justice contend for thy soul, and unto death strive for justice, and God will overthrow thine enemies for thee.

(g) Every one is bound rather to loose his life, than to do against justice, or to deny the truth.

34 Be not hasty in thy tongue: and unprofitable and remiss in thy works. 35 Be not as a lion in thy house, overthrowing them of thy household, and oppressing them that are subject to thee. 36 Let not thine hand be stretched out to receive, and closed to give.

CHAPTER V.

Let not riches, youth, nor strength hold thee in sin: 5. but do penance for sins remitted, and add not sin upon sin. 6. Neither presume to sin, because God is merciful. 10. Be not covetous, nor unconstant. 13. Be meek in learning, and careful in teaching. 16. not a batemaker, nor double tongued.

Attend not to unjust possessions, and say not: I have sufficient livelihood: for it shall nothing profit in the time of vengeance & affliction. 2 Follow not in (a) thy strength the concupiscence of thy heart:

(a) After that sin is forgiven there remaineth oftentimes punishment for satisfaction.

3 [1] and say not: How mighty am I? And who shall bring me under for my facts? For God revenging will revenge.

[1] Though thou be so potent, that no man can hinder thy evil designment; yet do it not, because God will punish it.

4 Say not: I have sinned, and what sorrowful thing hath chanced to me? For the Highest is a patient rewarder. 5 Of sin forgiven be not without fear, neither add thou sin upon sin. 6 And say not: The mercy of our Lord is great, he will have mercy on the multitude of my sins. 7 For mercy and wrath quickly approach from God, and his wrath looketh upon sinners. 8 Slack not to be converted to our Lord, and defer not from day to day. 9 For his wrath shall come suddenly: and in the time of vengeance he will destroy thee. 10 Be not careful in unjust riches: for they shall not profit thee in the day of [1] obduction and vengeance.

11 Toss not thyself into every wind, and go not into every way: for so every sinner is proved by a double tongue. 12 (b) Be steadfast in the way of our Lord, & in the truth of thy understanding, and in knowledge, and let the (c) word of peace and justice accompany thee.

(b) Constancy in good purpose meriteth (c) the promised peace, and just reward.

13 Be mild to hear the word, thou mayst understand, and with wisdom utter thou a true answer. 14 If thou have understanding, answer thy neighbour: but if not, let thine hand be upon thy mouth, lest thou be taken in an unskillful word, and be confounded. 15 Honour and glory in the word of the wise, but the tongue of the unwise is his subversion. 16 Be not called a whisperer, and be not taken in thy tongue, & confounded. 17 For upon a thief is confusion & repentance, and a very evil condemnation upon the double tongued, but to the whisperer hatred, and enmity, and contumely. 18 Justify thou the little one, and the great alike.

CHAPTER VI.

Reproach, envy, and ferocity hinder from loving our neighbour, 5. sweetness nourisheth it. 6. A trusty friend is much worth. 8. Seek and keep wisdom, with all diligence. 35. Frequent the company of the wise: and meditate in God's law.

Be not for a friend made an enemy to thy neighbour: for the evil man shall inherit reproach and contumely, and every sinner envious and double tongued. 2 Extol not thyself in the cogitation of thy soul as it were a bull: lest perhaps thy strength be quashed, 3 and it eat thy leaves, and destroy thy fruits, and thou be left as a dry tree in the wilderness. 4 For a wicked soul shall destroy him that hath it, and it giveth him to be a joy to his enemies, and shall lead him into the lot of the impious.

5 (a) A sweet word multiplieth friends, & appeaseth enemies, and a gracious tongue in a good man aboundeth.

(a) So Gedeon pacified the Ephraimites; that were incensed against him. Iudic. 8.

6 Let there be many at peace with thee, and let one of a thousand be thy counseller. 7 If thou possess a friend, in tentation possess him, and not easily credit him. 8 For he is a friend according to his own time, and will not abide in the day of tribulation 9 And there is a friend that is turned to enmity: and there is a friend that will disclose hatred, and reproaches.

10 And there is a friend companion at the table, and he will not abide in the day of necessity. 11 A friend if he continue steadfast, shall be to thee as an equal, and in them of thy household shall deal confidently: 12 if he humble himself against thee, and hide himself from thy face, thou shalt have friendship of one accord for good. 13 Be separated from thine enemies, & take heed of thy friends. 14 A faithful friend, is a strong protection: and he that hath found him, hath found a treasure. 15 To a faithful friend there is no comparison, and there is no poise of gold and silver able to countervail the goodness of his fidelity. 16 A faithful friend, is the medicine of life & immortality: & they that fear our Lord, shall find him. 17 He that feareth God, shall likewise have good friendship: because according to him shall his friend be. 18 Son, from thy youth receive doctrine, and even to thy hoar hairs thou shalt find wisdom. 19 As he that ploweth, and that soweth, go to her, and expect her good fruits. 20 For in her work thou shalt labour a little, and shalt quickly eat of her generation. 21 How exceeding sharp is wisdom to the unlearned men, and the unwise will not continue in her. 22 As the virtue of a stone she shall be a probation in them, and they will not stay to cast her forth. 23 For (b) the wisdom of doctrine is according to her name, and she is not manifest to many, but to whom she is known, she continueth even to the sight of God.

(b) Many prefer learning before piety, which S. Augustin reproveth, preferring the godly before the learned that are less virtuous: The unlearned rise (saith he) and take the Kingdom of heaven, and we with our learning without heart, lo how we tumble in the durt. li. 8. c. 8. Confess.

24 Hear my son, and take counsel of understanding, and cast not away my counsel. 25 Thrust thy foot into her fetters, and thy neck into her chains. 26 Put under thy shoulder, and carry her, and be not weary of her bands. 27 With all thy mind go to her, and with all thy strength keep her ways. 28 Search her out, and she shall be made manifest to thee, and having obtained her, forsake her not: 29 For in the later end, thou shalt find rest in her, and she shall be turned unto delectation. 30 And her fetters shall be to thee for a protection of strength, and foundation of power, & her chains for a stole of glory: 31 For the beauty of life is in her, and her bands are a healthful binding. 32 Thou shalt put on her a stole of glory, and as a crown of gratulation thou shalt set her upon thee. 33 Son, if thou attend to me, thou shalt learn: and if thou wilt apply thy mind, thou shalt be wise. 34 If thou wilt incline thine ear, thou shalt receive doctrine: and if thou love to hear, thou shalt be wise. 35 Stand in the multitude of wise ancients, and be joined to their wisdom from thy heart, that thou mayst hear all the narration of God, and the praise may not escape thee. 36 And if thou see a wise man, watch after him, and let thy foot wear the steps of his doors. 37 Have thy cogitation in the precepts of God, and in his commandments most of all be daily conversant: and he will give thee heart, and the desire of wisdom shall be given thee.

CHAPTER VII.

Fly from all evil things, 4. as ambition, presumption, scandal, pusillanimity, lying, and babbling. 16. Husbandry of the ground, 21. a good wife, and good servants are to be cherished, keep children in discipline. 29. Honour parents, and elders, 36. & pity the poor. 40. Memory of the last things preserveth from sin.

Do (a) not evils, and they shall not apprehend thee.

(a) Whatsoever any soweth that he shall reap, and the wicked shall eat the fruits of his own works.

2 [1]Depart from the wicked, & evil shall fail from thee.

[1] Iob. 9.

3 [1]Son, sow not evils in the furrows of justice, & thou shalt not reap them sevenfold.

[1] Ps. 142.

4 [1]Seek not of the Lord chief principality, nor of the king the chair of honour.

[1] Eccl. 7.

5 Justify not thy-self before God, because he is the knower of the heart: and before the king desire not to seem wise. 6 (b) Seek not to be made a judge, unless thou be able by power to break iniquities: lest perhaps thou fear the face of the mighty, and put a scandal in thine equity.

(b) Great prudence and fortitude are required in all Judges spiritual and temporal.

7 Sin not against the multitude of a city, neither thrust thy-self into the people, 8 nor bind together double sins: for neither in one shalt thou be free from punishment. 9 Be not faint-hearted in thy mind: 10 despise not to pray, and to give alms. 11 Say not: In the multitude of my gifts God will have respect, and when I offer to God most high, he will receive my gifts. 12 Laugh not a man to scorn in the bitterness of his soul: for there is that humbleth and exalteth, God the overseer of all. 13 Plow not a lie against thy brother: neither do thou likewise against thy friend. 14 Be not willing to make any lie: for the custom thereof is not good. 15 Be not full of words in a multitude of ancients, and (c) iterate not a word in thy speech.

(c) In hell are two punishments: fire burning, and the worm of conscience vexing the soul, & both are eternal.

16 Hate not laborious works, and husbandry created of the Highest. 17 Count not thyself in the multitude of men without discipline. 18 Be mindful of wrath, because it will not slack. 19 Humble thy spirit very much: because the vengeance of the flesh of the impious, is fire and the worm. 20 Do not prevaricate against thy friend deferring money, nor despise thy dearest brother for gold. 21 Depart not from a wise and good woman, which thou hast gotten in the fear of our Lord: for the grace of her bashfulness is above gold. 22 [1]Hurt not the servant that worketh in truth, nor the hired man that giveth his soul.

23 Let a wise servant be beloved of thee as thy soul, defraud him not of liberty, nor leave him needy.

24 Hast thou cattle? Look well to them: and if they be profitable, let them continue with thee. 25 Hast thou children? Instruct them, & bow them from their childhood. 26 Hast thou daughters? Keep their body, and shew not thy countenance merry towards them. 27 Bestow thy daughter, and thou shalt do a great work, and give her to a wise man. 28 If thou have a wife according to thy soul, cast her not off: and to her that is hateful commit not thyself. With thy whole heart 29 [1]honour thy father, and forget not the groanings of thy mother:

[1] Tob. 4.

30 remember that thou hadst not been born but by them: and recompense them, as they also thee. 31 In all thy soul fear our Lord, and sanctify his Priests.[1]

[1] Deu. 12.

32 With all thy strength love him that made thee: & forsake not his ministers. 33 Honour God with all thy soul, and honour the Priests, and purge thyself with the arms. 34 [1]Give them the portion, as it is commanded thee, of the first fruits and purgation: and of thy negligence purge thyself with few.

[1] Levit. 2. Num. 18.

35 The gift of thine arms and the sacrifice of sanctification thou shalt offer to our Lord, and the first of holy things: 36 and to the poor stretch out thine hand, that thy propitiation may be perfected, and thy blessing. 37 The grace of a gift is in the sight of all the living, (d)and from the dead stay not grace.

(d) Works of mercy are also profitable to the dead, as prayer, alms, and sacrifice for souls in purgatory.

38 [1]Want not in consolation to them that weep, and walk with them that mourn.

[1] Rom. 12. v. 15.

39 Be not loath to visit the sick: for by these things thou shalt be confirmed in love. 40 In all thy works (e)remember thy later ends, and thou wilt not sin for ever.

(e) A most especial preservative from sin.

CHAPTER VIII.

Contend not with a man of power, rich, full of tongue, or very ignorant. 6. Despise not the penitent, nor old folk. 8. Rejoice not at an enemy's death. 9. Learn of the elder, 13. Observe discretion in admonishing, lending, and in being surety. 17. Reprove not Judges. 18. Converse not with the furious, foolish, nor with strangers.

Strive not with a mighty man, lest perhaps thou fall into his hands. 2 Contend not with a rich man, lest perhaps he make an action against thee. 3 For (a)gold and silver hath destroyed many, and hath reached even to the heart of kings, and hath turned them.

(a) Bribery sometimes corrupteth Kings, much more other inferior Judges. And therefore it is better to suffer damage than to contend by law against the rich.

4 Strive not with a man full of tongue, & thou shalt not heap sticks upon his fire. 5 Communicate not with the ignorant man, lest he speak ill of thy progeny. 6 [1]Despise not a man that turneth himself from sin, nor upbraid him therewith: remember that we are all in state to be blamed.

[1] Gal. 6.

7 Despise not a man in his old age: for we also shall become old. 8 Rejoice not of thine enemy dead: knowing that we do all die, & would not that others should joy thereat. 9 Despise not the narration of wise ancients, and in their proverbs be thou conversant. 10 For of them thou shalt learn wisdom, and doctrine of understanding, and to serve great men without blame. 11 Let not the narration of the ancients escape thee: for they learned of their fathers: 12 because of them thou shalt learn understanding, and in time of necessity to give answer. 13 Kindle not the coals of sinners rebuking them, and be not kindled with the flame of the fire of their sins.[1]

[1] Prov. 26.

14 Stand not against the face of a contumelious person, lest he sit as a spy in wait for thy mouth.

15 Lend not to a man mightier than thyself, and if thou doest lend, count it as lost. 16 Be not surety above thy power: and if thou be surety, think as if thou were to pay it. 17 Judge not against a judge: because he judgeth according to that which is just. 18 With the audacious go not on the way, lest perhaps he burden thee with his evils: for he goeth according to his own will, and thou shalt perish together with his folly.
19 [1]With an angry man make no brawl, and with the audacious go not into the desert: because blood is as nothing before him, and where there is no help, he will overthrow thee.

[1] Prov. 22. v. 24.

20 Confer no counsel (b) with fools, for they cannot love but such things as please them.

(b) In all consultations confer with the skillful; for the blind cannot judge of colours, the deaf of music, the sick of taste: nor worldly men of spiritual things.

21 Before a stranger do no matter of counsel: for thou knowest not what he will bring forth. 22 Make not thy heart manifest to every man: lest perhaps he repay thee false kindness, and speak reproachfully to thee.

CHAPTER IX.

Great prudence is required in conversation between men and women. 14. Esteem old friends. 16. Emulate not sinners. 18. Avoid the company of malicious. 21. Consult with the prudent, having God ever before thine eyes.

Be (a) not jealous over the wife of thy bosom, lest she shew upon thee the malice of wicked doctrine.

(a) Seeing jealousy between man & wife is dangerous, much more unnecessary conversation between other men and women, especially probable occasions of sin must be avoided.

2 Give not to a woman the power of thy soul, lest she go in thy strength, and thou be confounded. 3 Look not upon a woman that is desirous of many: lest perhaps thou fall into her snares. 4 With her that is a dancer be not daily conversant, nor hear her, lest perhaps thou perish in her efficacy.[1]

[1] Prov. 5.

5 Behold not a virgin, lest perhaps thou be scandalized in her beauty. 6 Give not thy soul to harlots in any point: lest thou destroy thyself, and thine inheritance. 7 Look not round about in the ways of the city, nor wander up and down in the streets thereof. 8 Turn away thy face from a trimmed woman, and gaze not about upon another's beauty. 9 By the beauty of a woman many have perished: and hereby concupiscence is inflamed as a fire. 10 Every woman, that is an harlot, shall be trodden upon as dung in the way. 11 Many having admired the beauty of another man's wife, have become reprobate, for her communication burneth as fire. 12 Sit not at all with another man's wife, nor repose upon the bed with her: 13 and strive not with her at the wine, lest perhaps thy heart decline toward her, & with thy blood thou fall into perdition. 14 (b) Forsake not an old friend: for the new will not be like to him.

(b) Constancy in good things, namely in friendship, is very necessary.

15 A new friend, is as new wine: it shall wax old, and thou shalt drink it with sweetness. 16 (c) Do not zealously desire the glory and the riches of a sinner: for thou knowest not what his subversion shall be.

(c) A sinner that prospereth is like to a summer flower in the field, that is quickly cut down, and withereth.

17 Let not the injury of the unjust please thee, knowing that even to hell the impious shall not please. 18 Be far from the man that hath power to kill, and thou shalt not suspect the fear of death. 19 And if thou come to him, commit nothing, lest perhaps he take away thy life. 20 Know it to be communication with death; because thou shalt go in the midst of snares, and shalt walk upon the weapons of the sorrowful. 21 According to thy power beware thee of thy neighbour, and treat with the wise and prudent. 22 Let just men be thy guests, and let thy gloriation be in the fear of God, 23 and let the cogitation of God be in thy understanding, & all thine enarration in the precepts of the Highest. 24 Works shall be praised in the hands of artificers, and the Prince of the people in the wisdom of his speech, but the word of the ancients in the sense. 25 A man full of tongue is terrible in his city, and he that is rash in his word shall be odious.

CHAPTER X.

Wise superiors are very necessary, because the multitude follow their example. 6. Remit and forget injuries, detest pride, injustice, contumely, and avarice. 12. Life is short. 14. Pride is the root of all sins. 23. Just poverty is better than sinful riches. 31. Meekness and modesty are necessary in all men.

A [1] wise judge shall judge his people, and the principality of the wise shall be stable.

[1] Pro. 29.

2 (a) According to the judge of the people, so also are his ministers: and what manner of man the ruler of a city is, such also are the inhabitants therein.

(a) Example of rulers is of great efficacy.

3 An unwise king shall destroy his people: and cities shall be inhabited by the understanding of the prudent. 4 The power of the earth is in the hand of God, and he will raise up a profitable ruler for a time over it. 5 The prosperity of man is in the hand of God, & upon the face of the scribe he will put his honour. 6 Any injury of thy neighbour remember not, and do nothing by works of injury. 7 [1] Pride is odious before God and men: and all the iniquity of the nations is execrable.

[1] Dan. 4.

8 A (b) kingdom is translated from nation unto nation, because of injustices, and injuries, and contumelies, and diverse deceits.

(b) The causes of translating Kingdoms, & dominions.

9 But (c) nothing is more wicked than the covetous man. Why is earth and ashes proud?

(c) Covetousness is the root of all evils, 1. Tim. 6. in that for lucre many fall into all sorts of sins, even into schism and heresy. erring from the faith. ibid. v. 10.

10 Nothing is more wicked than to love money. For he hath his soul also to sell: because in his life he hath cast forth his most inward things: 11 All power is of short life. Long sickness grieveth the Physician. 12 Short sickness the Physician cutteth off at the first: so also the king is today, & tomorrow he shall die. 13 For when a man shall die, he shall inherit serpents, and beasts, and worms. 14 The beginning of the pride of man, is to apostatate from God: 15 because his heart is departed from him that made him, for (d) pride is the beginning of all sin: he that holdeth it, shall be filled with curses, & it shall subvert him in the end.

(d) Nevertheless pride is the beginning of all sin, as this text expressly testifieth: and the reason is, for that man's inordinate self-love is the cause of declining from God's commandments: & they which run on in that course, cast themselves headlong into the depth of all mischief, and of eternal misery.

16 Therefore hath our Lord dishonoured the congregations of the evil, & hath destroyed them even to the end. 17 God hath destroyed the seats of proud Princes, and hath made the meek sit in their stead. 18 God hath made the roots of the proud nations to wither, and hath planted the humble of the nations themselves. 19 Our Lord hath subverted the lands of the gentiles, and hath destroyed them even to the foundation. 20 He hath made of them to wither, and hath destroyed them, and hath made the memory of them to cease from the earth. 21 God hath destroyed the memory of the proud, and hath left the memory of them that are humble in understanding. 22 Pride was not created to men: nor wrath to the nation of women. 23 That seed of men shall be honoured, which feareth God: but that seed shall be dishonoured, which transgresseth the commandments of our Lord. 24 In the midst of brethren their ruler shall be in honour: and they that fear our Lord, shall be in his eyes. 25 The glory of the rich, of the honourable, and of the poor, is the fear of God: 26 Despise not the just man that is poor, and magnify not the sinful man that is rich. 27 The great one, and the judge, and the mighty is in honour, and there is none greater than he that feareth God. 28 [1]Free men will serve a servant that is wise: and a man that is prudent and hath discipline will not murmur being rebuked, and the ignorant shall not be honoured.

[1] Prov. 12.

31 Son in mildness keep thy soul, and give him honour according to his desert. 32 Him that sinneth against his own soul who shall justify? And who shall honour him that dishonoureth his own soul? 33 The poor man is glorified by his discipline and fear: & there is a man that is honoured for his substance. 34 But he that is glorified in poverty, how much more in substance? And he that is glorified in substance, let him fear poverty.

CHAPTER XI.

Wisdom by humility meriteth exaltation. 7. Judge not before examination. 16. Trust not in riches. 14. God sendeth both prosperity and adversity, for the good of his servants. 31. Take heed of the deceitful.

The (a)wisdom of the humble shall exalt his head, & shall make him sit in the midst of great men.

(a) A wiseman humbling himself by penance, as Daniel did, or being unjustly humbled by others, as Ioseph was, shall be exalted by God.

2 Praise not a man in his beauty, neither despise a man by his look. 3 The bee is small among fowls, and her fruit hath the beginning of sweetness. 4 In apparel do not glory at any time, nor be extolled in the day of thine honour, because the works of the Highest only be marvelous, and his works are glorious, and secret, and not seen. 5 Many tyrants have sit in the throne, and he whom no man would think hath worn the crown. 6 Many mighty men have been greatly oppressed, and the glorious have been delivered into the hands of others. 7 Before thou inquire, blame no man: and when thou hast inquired, chasten justly. 8 (b)Before thou hear, answer not a word, and in the midst (c)of ancients add not to speak.

(b) Expect the end of another man's speech, before you begin to answer. (c) Expect also if any that is elder, or better able will answer first.

9 [1]Strive not for that thing, which doth not molest thee: and consist not in the judgement of sinners.

[1] Deu. 13.

10 Son let not thy doings be in many things: and if thou be rich, thou shalt not be free from sin: for if thou pursue, thou shalt not attain: and if thou run before, thou shalt not escape. 11 There is one that laboureth, and hasteneth, and is a sorrowful impious man, and so much the more he shall not abound. 12 [1]There is a lither man that wanteth recovery, more failing in strength, and abounding in poverty:

[1] Iob. 42.

13 and the eye of God hath respected him in good, and hath erected him from his low estate, and hath exalted his head: and many have marveled at him, and have honoured God. 14 Good things and evil, life and death, poverty and honesty are of God. 15 Wisdom and discipline, and the knowledge of the law are with God. Love, and the ways of good things are with him. 16 (d)Error & darkness are created with sinners: and they that rejoice in evils, wax old in evil.

(d) One punishment of sin is blindness of heart, especially where is no remorse of conscience.

17 The gift of God is permanent to the just, and his prospering shall have success for ever. 18 There is that is enriched by doing sparingly, and this is the portion of his reward, 19 in that he saith: I have found me rest, and now I will eat of my goods alone: 20 and he knoweth not that time passeth, & death approacheth, and he must leave all to others, and shall die. 21 Stand in thy covenant, and commune therein, and grow old in the work of thy commandments. 22 Abide not in the works of sinners. But trust in God, and tarry in thy place. 23 For it is easy in the eyes of God suddenly to enrich the poor man. 24 The blessing of God hasteneth to the reward of the just, and in a swift hour his prospering fructifieth. 25 Say not: What need I, and what good shall I have by this? 26 Say not: I am sufficient for myself: and what shall I be made worse by this? 27 (e) In the day of good things be not unmindful of evils: and in the day of evils be not unmindful of good things:

(e) In prosperity is fear, and in adversity hope of change.

28 because it is easy before God in the day of death to reward every one according to his ways. 29 The malice of an hour maketh oblivion of great voluptuousness, and in the end of a man in the disclosing of his works. 30 Before death praise no man, because a man is known in his children. 31 Bring not every man into thine house: for there be many trains of the deceitful man. 32 For as the stomachs belch of stinking breaths, and as the partridge is brought in to the cage, and as the doe into the snare: so also the heart of the proud, and as a watch-man that seeth the fall of his neighbour. 33 For turning good things into evil he lieth in wait, and on the elect he will lay a blot. 34 For of one spark fire is increased, and of a deceitful man blood is increased: and a sinful man lieth in wait for blood. 35 Take heed of thyself of the pestiferous person, for he forgeth evils: lest perhaps he bring upon thee derision for ever. 36 Admit a stranger to thee, and he shall overthrow thee in an hurlwind, & shall make thee an alien from thine own.

CHAPTER XII.

Use benevolence towards good men. 10. Trust not enemies over-much.

If thou wilt do good, (a) know to whom thou doest it, and there shall be much thank in thy good deeds.

(a) It is rather cruelty than mercy to nourish a wicked man persisting in sin: for so he runneth still into more wickedness, and into eternal damnation:

2 Do good to the just, and thou shalt find great reward: and if not of him, assuredly of our Lord. 3 For it is not well with him, that is ever occupied in evil things, and that giveth not alms: because the Highest both hateth sinners, and hath mercy on them (b) that are penitent.

(b) but the penitent is to be comforted and assisted.

4 Give to the merciful, and receive not the sinner: both to the impious & to sinners he will repay vengeance, keeping them unto the day of vengeance. 5 Give to the good, and receive not a sinner. 6 Do good to the humble, and give not to the impious: prohibit to give him bread, lest therein he be mightier than thou: 7 for thou shalt find double evils in all the good, whatsoever thou shalt do to him: because the Highest hateth sinners, and will repay vengeance to the impious. 8 A friend shall not be known in prosperity, and an enemy shall not be hid in adversity. 9 In the prosperity of a man, his enemies are in sorrow, and in affliction a friend is known.

10 (b) Credit not thine enemy for ever: for as a brass pot his wickedness rusteth:

(b) Every one is bound to love his enemy of charity; but in prudence it behoveth not to credit him. According to our Saviour's rule: Be wise as serpents and simple as doves. Mat. 10.

11 and if humbling himself he go crouching, be advised in thy mind, and beware of him. 12 Place him not by thee, neither let him sit on thy right hand, lest perhaps turning into thy place, he seek after thy seat: and at the last thou know my words, and be pricked in my sayings. 13 Who will have pity upon the enchanter striking of a serpent, or of any that come near to beasts? So also he that keepeth company with a wicked man, and is wrapped in his sins. 14 For one hour he will tarry with thee: but if thou decline, he will not abide it. 15 In his lips the enemy speaketh sweetly, and in his heart he lieth in wait, that he may overthrow thee into the pit. 16 In his eyes the enemy weepeth: and if he may find a time, he will not be satisfied with blood: 17 and if evils happen to thee, thou shalt find him there first. 18 In his eyes the enemy weepeth, and as it were helping thee, he will undermine thy feet. 19 He will shake his head, and clap his hand, and whispering many things he will change his countenance.

CHAPTER XIII.

Conversation with the proud, rich, and potent is dangerous. 9. Rely upon God's help. 11. Beware of pusillanimity, & of presumption. 19. A mean is necessary, and the company of equals is most secure.

He[1] that toucheth pitch, shall be defiled with it: and he that communicateth with the proud, shall put on pride.

[1] Deut. 7.

2 (a) He shall take a burden upon him that communicateth with one more honourable than himself. And be not companion with one richer than thyself.

(a) He that converseth with a greater man than himself (except it be with virtuous) is forced often to suffer much, and to yield to many inconveniences.

3 What society shall the cauldron have with the earthen pot? For when they shall knock one against the other, it shall be broken. 4 The rich man hath done unjustly, and he will fume: but the poor man being hurt will hold his peace. 5 If thou give, he will take thee: and if thou have not, he will forsake thee. 6 If thou have, he will live with thee, and will empty thee, and he will not be sorry for thee. 7 If thou be necessary for him, he will supplant thee, and smiling will put thee in hope, telling thee good things, and will say: What wantest thou? 8 And he will confound thee in his meats, till he empty thee twice & thrice, and at the last he will mock thee: and afterward seeing he will forsake thee, and will shake his head at thee.
9 Humble thyself to God, and expect his hands.
10 Take heed lest seduced into folly thou be humbled.
11 (b) Be not humble in thy wisdom, lest humbled thou be seduced into folly.

(b) Pusillanimity in a superior maketh him omit his duty, & commit errors, fearing to do that pertaineth to his office, & which his authority requireth.

12 Being called of the mightier, depart: for by this he will call thee the more. 13 Be not importune, lest thou be rejected: & be not far from him, lest thou go into oblivion. 14 Stay not to speak fellow-like with him: neither credit his many words. For by much talk he will prove thee, and smiling will examine thee of thy secrets. 15 His cruel mind will keep thy words: and he will not spare for malice, and for bands. 16 Take heed to thyself, and attend diligently to thine hearing: because thou walkest with thy subversion. 17 But hearing those things see as it were in sleep, and thou shalt watch. 18 Love God all thy life, and invocate him for thy salvation. 19 Every beast loveth the like to it-self: so also every man the nearest to himself. 20 All flesh will march with the like to it-self, & every man will associate himself to his like. 21 If the wolf shall at any time communicate with the lamb, so the sinner with the just. 22 What fellowship hath an holy man with a dog, or what part hath the rich with the poor?
23 The wild ass in the desert is the lion's prey: so the poor are also the pastures of the rich. 24 And as humility is abomination to the proud: so also the poor man is the execration of the rich. 25 The rich man being moved is confirmed by his friends: but the humble when he is fallen, shall be thrust out even of his familiars. 26 To the rich deceived there are many recoverers: he hath spoken proud words, and they have justified him. 27 The humble was deceived, he moreover is rebuked also: he hath spoken wisely, and place was not given unto him. 28 (c) The rich man spake, and all held their peace, and they will carry his word even to the clouds.

(c) Acception of persons hindereth many good counsels: & promoteth many evil things.

29 The poor man spake and they say: Who is this? And if he stumble, they will overthrow him.

30 Substance is good, to him that hath no sin in his conscience: and poverty is most wicked in the mouth of the impious. 31 The heart of a man altereth his countenance, either into good, or into evil. 32 The token of a good heart, and a good countenance thou shalt hardly find, and with labour.

CHAPTER XIV.

Offence of the tongue is a frequent and dangerous sin. 3. Riches are hurtful to a covetous, and to an envious mind. 11. Works of mercy necessary. 22. and perseverance in wisdom.

Blessed[1] is the man that hath not offended in a word out of his mouth, and is not pricked with the sorrow of sin.

2 Happy is he, that hath not had heaviness of his mind, and hath not fallen from his hope. 3 Substance is without reason to the covetous man and niggard, and for the spiteful envious man to what purpose is gold? 4 He that heapeth together from his heart unjustly, gathereth for others, and in his goods another will keep riot. 5 He that is wicked to himself, to what other man will he be good? And he shall have no pleasure in his goods. 6 (d) He that envieth himself, nothing is worse than he, and this is the reward of his malice:

(d) He that cannot afford nourishment to his own body by such means as he hath, sinneth against God, abusing his benefits against himself whom he unjustly afflicteth, and against his neighbour whom he scandalizeth.

7 and if he do good, he doth it ignorantly, and not willing: and at the last he manifesteth his malice. 8 The eye of the envious is wicked, and turneth away his face, and despiseth his own soul. 9 [1] The eye of the covetous man insatiable in a portion of iniquity, will not be satisfied till he consume his own soul withering it.

[1] Prov. 27. v. 20.

10 An evil eye is towards evil things: & he shall have his fill of bread, needy & in heaviness shall he be at his table. 11 Son if thou have it, do good to thyself, and offer to God worthy oblations. 12 Be mindful that death slacked not, and that (e) the covenant of hell hath been shewed thee: for the covenant of this world shall die the death.

(e) In the old testament all descended into some part of hell.

13 Before death do good to thy friend, and according to thine ability stretching out thy hand, give to the poor. 14 Be not defrauded of thy good day, and let not a little portion of a good gift over-pass thee. 15 Shalt thou not leave to others thy sorrows, & labours in the division of the lot? 16 Give and take, and justify thy soul. 17 Before thy death work justice: for in hell there cannot meat be found. 18 [1] All flesh shall wax old as grass, and as the leaf fructifying on a green tree.

[1] Isa. 40. v. 7.

19 Some grow, and some are shaken off: so the generation of flesh and blood, one is ended, and another is born. 20 All corruptible work shall fail in the end: and he that worketh it shall go therewith. 21 And (f) every excellent work shall be justified: and he that worketh it, shall be honoured therein.

(f) There shall be particular reward of every good work.

22 Blessed is the man that shall continue in wisdom, and that shall meditate in his justice, and in understanding shall consider the providence of God. 23 He that considereth her ways in his heart, and hath understanding in her secrets, going after her as a searcher, and consisting in her ways: 24 He that looketh through her windows, and heareth in her gates: 25 He that resteth by her house, & in her walls fastening a stake will set up his cottage beside her hands: and good things shall rest in his cottage for ever. 26 He shall set his children under her covering, and shall abide under her boughs: 27 he shall be protected under her covering from the heat, and shall rest in her glory.

CHAPTER XV.

The fruits of fearing God: 7. which fools and liars reap not, but the wise only. 11. God is no way author of sin, 14. but sinners themselves are the Authors, abusing their freewill.

He that feareth God, shall do good things, and he that hath (a) justice shall apprehend her,

(a) Whosoever shall resolve with himself to live justly, shall be sure to have grace, for God preventeth our weakness and so continueth to help all that accept his grace.

2 and she will meet him as an honourable mother, & a wife from virginity she will receive him. 3 She shall feed him with the bread of life and understanding, and give him the water of wholesome wisdom to drink: and she shall be made sure in him, and he shall not be bowed: 4 and she shall hold him fast, and he shall not be confounded: and she shall exalt him before his neighbours, 5 and in the midst of the Church she shall open his mouth, and shall fill him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding, and shall clothe him with a stole of glory. 6 Joy & exultation she shall heap upon him, & shall make him inherit an everlasting name. 7 Foolish men shall not apprehend her, & wise men shall meet her, foolish men shall not see her: for she is far from pride and deceit. 8 Lying men shall not be mindful of her: and true men shall be found in her, and shall have success, even to the beholding of God. 9 (b) Praise is not comely in the mouth of a sinner:

(b) He doth injury to God, & to his word, that preacheth well and liveth evil.

10 because wisdom proceeded from God. For praise shall be with the wisdom of God, & shall abound in a faithful mouth, & the dominatour will give praise to it. 11 Say not: (c) It is by God, that she is absent: for do not thou the things that he hateth.

(c) Beza saith God ordained Adam's fall, but to a good end: and that God justly decreed that which men unjustly have done. in refut. 2. calumniae, ad Castel. But this holy Scripture teacheth the contrary, that God gave man both free-will, and sufficient grace, that he might if he would have kept his precepts. The same is also clearly taught. Deut. 7. 11. 30. and other places.

12 Say not: He hath made me err: for impious men are not necessary for him. 13 Our Lord hateth all abomination of error, and it shall not be amiable to them, that fear him. 14 [1] God from the beginning made man, and left him in the hand of his own counsel.

15 He added his commandments and precepts. 16 [1] If thou will keep the commandment, and keep acceptable fidelity for ever, they shall preserve thee.

[1] Mat. 19. v. 17.

17 He hath set before thee water and fire: to which thou wilt, stretch forth thine hand. 18 Before man there is life and death, good and evil: what pleaseth him shall be given him: [1]

[1] Ier. 2. v. 8.

19 Because the wisdom of God is much, and he is strong in might, seeing all men without intermission. 20 The eyes of our Lord are towards them that fear him, and he knoweth all the work of man. 21 He hath commanded no man to do impiously, and he hath given no man space to sin: 22 for he desireth not a multitude of faithless and unprofitable children.

CHAPTER XVI.

A few good children, yea none at all, are better than many wicked. 9. God's wrath falleth upon the evil, and his mercy on the good. 14. Works of mercy merit great reward. 15. Nothing is hid from God, 20. but many things from men.

Rejoice not in impious children, if they be multiplied: neither be delighted upon them, if the fear of God be not in them. 2 Credit not their life, and respect not their labours. 3 For better is one fearing God, than a thousand impious children. 4 And it is more profitable to die without children, rather than to leave impious children. 5 By one wise a country shall be inhabited, and the tribe of the impious shall be made desolate. 6 Many such things hath mine eye seen, and mine ear hath heard things of more force than these. 7 In the synagogue of sinners (a) a fire shall flame, and in an incredulous nation wrath shall wax hot.

(a) Fire of concupiscence, if it be not overcome in this life, will procure the fire of God's wrath, which shall never be extinguished.

8 [1] The old giants did not obtain for their sins, who were destroyed trusting to their own strength:

[1] Gen. 6.

9 and he spared not the peregrination of Lot, and he detested them for the pride of their word. 10 He had not pity on them, destroying the whole nation, and extolling themselves in their sins. 11 And as the six hundred thousand foot men, [1] which were gathered together in the hardness of their heart: and if one had been stiff necked, it is marvel if he had been unpunished.

[1] Num. 26.

12 For there is mercy and wrath with him. Mighty exoration, & pouring out wrath: 13 according to his mercy, so his chastisement judgeth a man according to his works. 14 The sinner shall not escape in robbery, and the sufferance of him that doth mercy shall not slack. 15 All mercy shall make a place to every man according to (b) [1] the merit of his works, & according to the understanding of his peregrination.

(b) Even a dish of cold water given in alms shall be rewarded. Mat. 10. [1] Rom. 2. v. 6.

16 Say not: I shall be hid from God, and from on high who shall remember me? 17 In a great people I shall not be known: for what is my soul among so innumerable creatures? 18 Behold heaven, and the heavens of heavens, the depth, and all the earth, & the things that are in them, in his sight shall be moved, 19 the mountains together, and the little hills, & the foundations of the earth: & when God shall behold them, they shall be shaken with trembling. 20 And in all these things the heart is senseless: and every heart is understood of him: 21 and his ways who doth understand, and the storm, which neither the eye of man shall see? 22 For many of his works are in secrets: but the works of his justice who shall declare? Or who shall sustain? For the testament is far from some, and the examination of all is in consummation. 23 He that is less of heart, thinketh vain things: and the unwise, and erring man, thinketh foolish things. 24 Hear me my son, and learn the discipline of understanding, and attend to my words in thy heart, 25 and I will speak discipline in equity, and will search to declare wisdom: and to my words attend in thy heart, and I speak in equity of spirit the virtues, that God hath put upon his works from the beginning, and in truth I shew forth his knowledge. 26 In the judgement of God are his works from the beginning, and from the institution of them he distinguished their parts, and their beginnings in their nations. 27 He adorned their works for ever, neither have they hungered, nor laboured, and they have not ceased from their works. 28 Every one shall not vex his neighbour for ever. 29 Be not incredulous to his word. 30 After this God looked upon the earth, & filled it with his good things. 31 And (c) the soul of every living thing shall shew before the face thereof, and into it again is their return.

(c) Reasonable souls (if they follow reason) and all sensible souls do (in their manner) praise the providence of God, in using all creatures to that end for which they were created.

CHAPTER XVII.

God creating man to his own image, gave him gifts, 9. and precepts: 14. chose the Israelites for his peculiar people. 18. Works of mercy are commended to all men. 20. Repentance to sinners. 28. Mercy is offered to all.

God created man of the earth, and after his own image he made him. 2 And again he turned him into it, and conformable to himself clothed him (a) with strength.

(a) Man at first received original justice, by losing whereof we all fell into original sin.

3 He gave him a number of days and time, and gave him power of those things that are upon the earth. 4 He put his fear over all flesh, and he had dominion of beasts and fowls. 5 He created of him an helper like to himself: he gave them counsel, and tongue, and eyes, & ears, and heart to devise: and he filled them with the discipline of understanding. 6 He created in them the knowledge of the spirit, he filled their heart with understanding, and evil and good he shewed them. 7 He set his eye upon their hearts to shew them the great things of his works: 8 that they might praise the name of sanctification: & glory in his marvelous works, that they might declare the glorious things of his works. 9 He added (b) discipline unto them, and made them inherit the law of life.

(b) God gave a precept to man to be observed for exercise of his obedience, & so to be rewarded, and under pain of punishment if he transgressed. Gen. 2.

10 He made an everlasting testament with them, & he shewed them justice and his judgements. 11 And their eye saw the glorious things of his honour, & their ears heard the honour of his voice, and he said to them: Beware of every unjust thing. 12 And he gave them commandment every one concerning his neighbour. 13 Their ways are before him always, they are not hid from his eyes. 14 Over every nation he appointed a ruler. 15 And Israel was made the manifest portion of God. [1]

16 And all their works as the sun in the sight of God: and his eyes without intermission looking on their ways. 17 The testaments were not hid by their iniquity, and all their iniquities are in the sight of God. 18 The alms of a man is as a seal with him, and shall preserve the grace of a man as the apple of the eye: 19 And afterward he shall arise, and shall render them reward, to every one upon their head, and shall turn into the inner parts of the earth. 20 But to the penitent he hath given the way of justice, and he hath confirmed them that fail to sustain, and hath appointed to them the lot of truth. 21 Turn to our Lord, and forsake thy sins: 22 pray before the face of our Lord, and diminish offences. 23 Return to our Lord, & turn away from thine injustice, and hate exceedingly abomination: 24 and know the justices and judgments of God, and (c) stand in the lot of thy purpose, and (d) of prayer of the most high God.

(c) Perseverance in virtue to the end is necessary, which none can merit. (d) But must still pray for it.

25 Go into the parts of the holy world, with the living, and them that give praise to God. 26 Tarry not in the error of the impious, before death confess. From the dead as nothing, confession perisheth. 27 Thou shalt confess living, alive and in health thou shalt confess, and shalt praise God, and shalt glory in his mercies. 28 How great is the mercy of our Lord, and his propitiation to them that turn to him! 29 For all things cannot be in men, because the son of man is not immortal, and they have delighted in the vanity of malice. 30 What is brighter than the sun? & it shall fail. Or what more wicked than that which flesh and blood hath invented? And this shall be reproved. 31 He beholdeth the power of the height of heaven: and all men be earth and ashes.

CHAPTER XVIII.

God's wonderful works exceed man's capacity. 7. Our weakness is strengthened by grace, 15. whereto man must cooperate, 19. by purging his conscience, 22. by prayer, 24. by meditating God's judgements, 30. and by mortifying his own concupiscence.

He that liveth for ever, created all things (a) together. God only shall be justified, and remaineth an invincible King for ever.

(a) All creatures according to their substantial form in general, were created together, though they were afterwards formed in particular kinds, as they are distinctly recited in Genesis, with the order & ornaments of the world. S. Aug. li. 4. c. 33. & 34. de Gen. ad litter. Where he expressly affirmeth that this Scripture was written by inspiration of the same spirit of truth, whereby Genesis was written.

2 Who is sufficient to declare his works? 3 For who shall search out his glorious things? 4 and who shall shew forth the power of his greatness? Or who shall add to declare his mercy? 5 It is not possible to diminish, nor add, neither is it possible to find the glorious works of God: 6 When a man, shall have done, then shall he begin: and when he shall rest, he shall work. 7 What is man: and what is his grace? And what is his good, or what his evil? 8 The number of the days of men at the most an hundred years:[1] as drops of the water of the sea they are reputed: and as the gravel stone of the sand, so a few years in the day of eternity.

9 For this cause God is patient toward them, and poureth out his mercy upon them. 10 He hath seen the presumption of their heart that it is naught, and hath known their subversion that it is evil. 11 Therefore hath he fulfilled his propitiation toward them, and hath shewed them the way of equity. 12 Man's compassion is touching his neighbour: but the mercy of God is upon all flesh. 13 He that hath mercy, teacheth and instructeth, as a pastor his flock. 14 He hath mercy on him that receiveth the doctrine of compassion, and he that hasteneth in his judgements. 15 Son in good deeds give no blame, & in every gift give not the sadness of an evil word. 16 Shall not the dew cool heat? So also a word better than a gift. 17 Is not a word above a good gift? But both are with a justified man. 18 A fool will upbraid bitterly: and the gift of one untaught maketh the eyes to dry away. 19 Before judgment prepare thee justice, and before thou speak^ learn. 20 Before sickness take medicine, [1] and before judgement examine thyself, and in the sight of God thou shalt find propitiation.

[1] 1. Cor. 11.

21 Before sickness humble thyself, and in time of infirmity shew thy conversation. 22 Be not hindered (b) [1] to pray always, & fear not to be justified even to death, because the reward of God abideth for ever.

(b) They pray always that pray at certain convenient times. And still have intention so to frequent the same exercise all their life. S. Aug. Epist. 121. c. 9. ad Probam.[1] Luc. 18. 1.
1. Thes. 5.

23 Before prayer prepare thy soul: and be not as a man that tempteth God. 24 Remember the wrath in the day of consummation, and the time of reward in conversation of the face. 25 Remember poverty in the time of aboundance, & the necessities of poverty in the day of riches. 26 From morning unto evening time shall be changed, & all these are sown in the eyes of God. 27 A wise man in all things will fear, and in the days of offences will beware of sloth. 28 Every subtile man knoweth wisdom, and to him that findeth her he will give praise. 29 The wise in words, and they also have done wisely: and have understood truth and justice, and have rained proverbs & judgments. 30 Go not after thy concupiscences, and turn away from thy will. 31 If thou give to thy soul her concupiscences, she will make thee a joy to thy enemies. 32 Be not delighted in multitudes, nor in few: for their concertation is continual. 33 Be not poor in contention of borrowing, and thou hast nothing in thy purse: for thou shalt be envious to thine own life.

CHAPTER XIX.

An admonition against drunkenness, luxury, 4. light suspicion, 7. and detraction. 13. Friendly correption is necessary, 23. and sincere humility. 27. Exterior carriage is a sign of internal disposition.

A workman that is a drunkard shall not be rich: and he (a) that contemneth small things, shall fall by little and little.

(a) The best remedy against great sins is to avoid small ones, and not to contemn the least, but diligently to amend all.

2 [1]Wine and women make wisemen to apostatate, and shall reprove the prudent:

[1]3. Reg. 11.

[1]Ios. 22.

5 He that rejoiceth in iniquity, shall be reprehended, and he that hateth chastisement shall be diminished of life: and he that hateth babbling, extinguisheth malice. 6 He that sinneth against his own soul, shall repent: and he that is delighted in naughtiness, shall be reprehended. 7 Iterate not a wicked and hard word, and thou shalt not be lessened. 8 To friend and foe tell not thy mind: and if thou have sin (b) disclose it not.

(b) That this document pertaineth to common conversation with worldly men, appeareth by the next verse. But to reveal secret sins to a spiritual father in sacramental confession, is necessary, wholesome, and secure.
It is also very commendable and most lawful in holy religious Societies, where they willingly for their own spiritual good submit themselves to such a godly rule.

9 For he will hear thee, and will watch thee, and as it were defending the sin he will hate thee, and so will he be present with thee always. 10 Hast thou heard a word against thy neighbour? Let it die together in thee, trusting that it will not burst thee. 11 At the presence of a word the fool travaileth, as the groaning of the childbirth of an infant. 12 An arrow stickt in the thigh of flesh: so is a word in the heart of a fool.

13 [1]Rebuke a friend, lest perhaps he hath not understood, and say: I did it not: or if he did it, that he do it not again.

[1]Levit. 19. Mat. 18.

14 Rebuke thy neighbour, lest perhaps he said it not: and if he said it, lest perhaps he iterate it. 15 Rebuke thy friend: for there is often a fault committed. 16 And believe not every word. There is that offendeth with the tongue, but not from his heart. 17 [1]For who is there that hath not offended in his tongue? Rebuke thy neighbour before thou threaten.

[1]Iac. 3.

18 And give place to the fear of the Highest: because the fear of God is all wisdom, and to fear God is in it, & the disposition of the law is in all wisdom. 19 And the discipline of wickedness is not wisdom: and the cogitation of sinners is not prudence. 20 There is wickedness, and in it execration: and there is a fool that hath less wisdom. 21 Better is a man that hath less wisdom and lacketh understanding, in fear, than he that aboundeth in understanding and transgresseth the law of the Highest. 22 There is an assured subtility, & the same wicked. 23 And there is that uttereth an exact word telling the truth. There is that (c) wickedly humbleth himself, and his inner parts be full of deceit:

(c) False pretence of piety is hypocrisy.

24 and there is a just man (d) that submitteth himself overmuch of great humility: and there is a just one (e) that boweth his face, and feigneth himself not to see that which is unknown:

(d) And in a Superior, to open his own secret fault to his subjects, is pusillanimity. (e) Discretion avoideth both: by concealing and revealing faults as reason directeth and justice requireth.

25 and if he be forbidden to sin for imbecility of power, if he shall find a time to do evil, he will do evil. 26 A man is known by the sight, and a wiseman is known by the shew of his face. 27 The clothing of the body, and the laughing of the teeth, and the going of the man tell of him. 28 There is a lying chastisement in the anger of a contumelious person: and there is a judgement, that is not allowed to be good: and there is that holdeth his peace, and he is wise.

CHAPTER XX.

Correction ought to be without passion of anger. 5. Much discretion is required in speech and in silence. 14. Also in giving, 20. & promising, 29. and in uttering knowledge, where and when it behoveth.

How good a thing is it to rebuke, rather than to be angry, and not to hinder him that confesseth in prayer! 2 The concupiscence of an eunuch shall deflower a young-maid: 3 [1]so he that by violence doth unjust judgement.

4 How good a thing is it (a)being rebuked to shew repentance! For so thou shalt avoid willful sin.

(a) He that taketh reprehension in good part when he is faulty meriteth pardon, and when he is not faulty he satisfieth for his other sins and meriteth reward.

5 There is that holdeth his peace, which is found wise: and there is that is odious, he which is malapert to speak. 6 There is that holdeth his peace having not understanding to speak: and there is that holdeth his peace, knowing the time of fit opportunity. 7 A wise man will hold his peace until a time: but a wanton, and the unwise will not observe time. 8 He that useth many words, shall hurt his own soul: & he that taketh authority to himself unjustly, shall be hated. 9 There is proceeding in evils to a man without discipline, and there is finding to loss. 10 There is a gift, that is not profitable: and there is a gift, the reward whereof is double. 11 There is debasing because of glory: and there is that from humility shall lift up the head. 12 There is that redeemeth many things for a small price, and restoreth the same seven-fold. 13 A man wise in words shall make himself beloved: but the graces of fools shall be poured out. 14 The gift of the unwise shall not be profitable for thee: for his eyes are (b)seven-fold.

(b) His intention is full of guile that flattereth by shew of love and of praise, but he will detract so much the more, & in the end reproach when he may get probable advantage against thee.

15 He will give few things, and upbraid many: and the opening of his mouth is an inflammation. 16 Today a man lendeth, and tomorrow he asketh it again: such a man is odious. 17 A fool shall have no friend, and there shall be not thank to his goods. 18 For they that eat his bread, are of a false tongue. How often, and how many will laugh him to scorn? 19 For he doth not distribute with right understanding, that which was to be had: in like manner also that which was not to be had. 20 The slipping of a false tongue, as he that falleth on the pavement: so the falls of the evil shall come hastily. 21 A man without grace is as a vain fable, it shall be continual in the mouth of them that are without discipline. 22 A parable out of a fool's mouth shall be rejected: for he doth not speak it in his time. 23 There is that is forbid to sin for poverty, and in his rest he shall be pricked. 24 There is that will destroy his soul for shamefastness, and by an unwise person he will destroy it: and by acception of person he will destroy himself. 25 There is that for shamefastness promiseth to his friend, and hath gotten an enemy of him for naught. 26 Lying is a wicked reproach in a man, and in the mouth of men without discipline it shall be continually. 27 Better is a thief, than the continual custom of a lying man, but both shall inherit perdition. 28 The manners of lying men are without honour: and their confusion is with them without intermission. 29 A wise man in his words shall utter himself, and a prudent man shall please great persons. 30 [1]He that tilleth his land, shall make an high heap of corn: and who so worketh justice, he shall be exalted: and he that pleaseth great men, shall avoid iniquity.

31 [1]Presents & gifts blind the eyes of judges, and as one dumb in the mouth turneth away their chastisements.

[1] Exo. 23. Deu. 16.

32 (c) Wisdom hid, and treasure not seen: what profit is there in both?

(c) Wisdom is to be shewed in words and deeds when it may profit others.

33 (d) Better is he that concealeth his foolishness, than the man that hideth his wisdom.

(d) To conceal faults, so they be amended, is most convenient.

CHAPTER XXI.

An invective against sin in general, 5. and diverse in particular.

Son hast thou sinned? Do so no more: but for the old also pray that they may be forgiven thee. 2 (a) As from the face of a serpent fly from sins: and if thou approach to them they will receive thee.

(a) As a serpent deceitfully approacheth & stingeth the body, so all sins inveigle and hurt the soul.

3 The teeth of a lion the teeth thereof, killing the souls of men. 4 All iniquity is as a two-edged sword, there is no remedy for the wound thereof. 5 Brawling and injuries shall bring the substance to nothing: and the house that is very rich, shall be made nothing by pride: so the substance of the proud shall be rooted out. 6 The prayer of the poor out of the mouth shall come to his ears, and judgement shall come for him speedily. 7 He that hateth chastisement, is (b) the trace of a sinner: and he that feareth God, (c) will turn to his own heart.

(b) It is a sign that he is guilty, who contemneth friendly admonition. (c) He that truly feareth God will diligently examine his own acts & defects when he is warned.

8 The mighty in a bold tongue is known a far off, and a wiseman knoweth himself to fall by him. 9 He that buildeth his house at other men's charges, is as he that gathereth his stones (d) in the winter.

(d) As walls of stone built in the frost, so riches or good name unjustly gotten will not continue long.

10 The synagogue of sinners is as tow gathered together, and their consummation a flame of fire.

11 The way of sinners is paved with stones, & in their end, hell, & darkness, and pains. 12 He that keepeth justice, shall contain the understanding thereof.

13 The consummation of the fear of God wisdom and understanding. 14 He shall not be taught, that is not wise in good. 15 But there is wisdom that aboundeth in evil: and there is no understanding where bitterness is. 16 The knowledge of the wise shall abound as an inundation, and his counsel is permanent as a fountain of life. 17 The heart of a fool is as a broken vessel, and all wisdom it shall not hold. 18 A man of knowledge will praise what soever wise word he shall hear, and will apply it to himself: the riotous man hath heard it, and it shall displease him, and he will cast it behind his back. 19 The (e) narration of a fool is as a burden in the way: for in (f) the lips of the wise shall grace be found.

(e) Senseless or bad talk is tedious to all good men. (f) Words that may edify are grateful to all godly ears.

20 The mouth of the prudent is sought in the Church, and they will think upon his words in their hearts.

21 As a house destroyed, so is wisdom to a fool: & the knowledge of the unwise inexplicable words.

22 Fetters on the feet, doctrine to a fool, and as manacles upon the right hand. 23 A fool in laughter exalteth his voice, but a wise man will scarce laugh secretly. 24 Doctrine to the prudent is a golden ornament, and as it were a bracelet on the right arm.

25 The foot of a fool goeth easily into his neighbour's house: & a cunning man will be abashed at the person of the mighty. 26 A fool will look from the window into the house: but he nurtured will stand without.

27 It is the folly of a man to harken by the door: and a wiseman will be grieved with the contumely. 28 The lips of the unwise shall tell foolish things: but the words of the wise shall be pondered in balance. 29 The heart of fools is in their mouth: and the mouth of wisemen is in their heart. 30 Whilst (g) the impious curseth the devil, he curseth his own soul.

(g) Wicked men condemning the devil or any other wicked, do indeed condemn themselves. And to them agreeth that sentence of our Saviour: By thine own mouth I judge thee, naughty servant. Luc. 19.

31 The whisperer shall defile his soul, and shall be hated in all: and he that shall abide with him, shall be odious: the still man and wise shall be honoured.

CHAPTER XXII.

Another admonition against sloth, 3. dissolute children, 6. and mirth out of season. 7. Fools are hardly corrected, 10. more to be bewailed than the dead. 14. Much talk doth not profit them. 24. Offend not, nor fear not a friend. 33. Keep always guard of thy tongue.

The sluggard is stoned (a) with a dirty stone, & all men will speak of his disgrace.

(a) Contempt & ignominy is the worldly punishment of the slothful, besides his eternal damnation at the day of judgement. Mat. 25. v. 30.

2 The sluggard is stoned with the dung of oxen: and every one that shall touch him, will shake his hands. 3 The confusion of the father is of a son without discipline: and the daughter shall be made of less account. 4 A wise daughter is an inheritance to her husband: for she that confoundeth, is made a contumely to her father. 5 She that is bold shameth father and husband, and shall not be inferior to the impious: but of them both she shall be dishonoured. 6 Music in mourning is a tale out of time: scourges and doctrine are at all time wisdom. 7 He that teacheth a fool, is as he that glueth together a pot-sherd. 8 He that telleth a word to him that heareth not, is as he that raiseth up a man sleeping out of an heavy sleep. 9 He speaketh with him that sleepeth, which uttereth wisdom to a fool: and in the end of the narration he saith: Who is this? 10 Weep upon the dead, for his light hath failed: and weep upon (b) a fool, for he faileth in understanding.

(b) In this and other places is not understood a fool that by defect of natural wit is ignorant, or an idiot, but he that is void of grace, full of malice, and wickedness.

11 Weep a little upon the dead, because he is at rest. 12 [1] For the wicked life of the very wicked, above the death of a fool.

[1] For the wicked life of such a one is worse than his death. v. 12.

13 [1] The mourning of the dead is seven days: but of a fool and of the impious, all the days of their life.

[1] Gen. 50. Pro. 27.

14 Speak not much with a fool, and go not with the unwise. 15 Keep thyself from him, that thou have no molestation, and thou shalt not be defiled with his sin. 16 Turn aside from him, and thou shalt find rest, and shall not be wearied with his folly. 17 What shall be heavier than lead? And what other name hath it but fool? 18 It is easier to bear sand and salt, and a mass of iron, than an unwise man, and a fool, and impious. [1]

[1] Pro. 27.

19 A frame of wood bound together in the foundation of a building, shall not be dissolved: so also the heart confirmed in the cogitation of counsel. 20 The cogitation of the wise at all time, yea by fear shall not be depraved. 21 As stakes in high places, and plasterings laid without cost, shall not abide against the face of the wind: 22 so also a fearful heart in the cogitation of a fool shall not resist against the violence of fear. 23 As a trembling heart in the cogitation of a fool, all time will not fear, so also he that continueth always in the precepts of God. 24 He that pricketh the eye, bringeth forth tears: and he that pricketh the heart, bringeth forth feeling. 25 He that casteth a stone at fowls, and shall throw them down: so he that speaketh reproachfully to his friend, dissolveth friendship. 26 (c) Although thou drawest a sword at a friend, despair not: for there is returning to a friend.

(c) A true friend will not be lost for temporal damage nor danger.

27 If thou open a sad mouth, fear not: for there is agreement: (d) except taunt, and reproach, and pride, and revealing of secret, and a treacherous wound: in all these things a friend will fly away.

(d) But the vices of derision, reproach, and the like violate all friendship with wise and good men.

28 Possess fidelity with a friend in his poverty, that in his goods also thou mayst rejoice. 29 In the time of his tribulation continue faithful to him, that in his inheritance also thou mayst be heir with him.

30 Before the fire the vapour of the chimney, and the smoke of the fire riseth on high: so also before blood evil words, and contumelies, & threats. 31 I will not be ashamed to salute a friend, from his face I will not hide myself: and if there chance evils to me by him, I will bear it. 32 Every one that shall hear, will beware of him. 33 Who will give a guard to my mouth, and a sure seal upon my lips, that I fall not by them, and my tongue destroy me? [1]

CHAPTER XXIII.

A prayer against pride, 6. gluttony, and luxury. 7. Beware of offending in speech, 9. especially of unlawful swearing, 15. blasphemy, 17. irreverent and reproachful words. 21. Also of avarice, 24. fornication, and adultery, 30. all which God seeth, and will severely punish. 33. With other sins that follow thereof.

O Lord father, and dominatour of my life, (a) leave me not in their counsel: nor suffer me to fall in them.

(a) Man being weak and the enemy subtle & strong, he is not able to resist tentations without God's special grace, for which the wiseman therefore prayeth, instructing all by his example to do the same.

2 Who layeth on stripes in my cogitation, and in my heart the doctrine of wisdom, and in their ignorances they spare me not, and their offences appear not, 3 and my ignorances increase not, and my offences be multiplied, and my sins abound, and I fall in the sight of mine adversaries, & mine enemy rejoice? 4 O Lord father, and God of my life, leave me not in their cogitation. 5 Haughtiness of mine eyes give me not, and all desire turn away from me. 6 Take from me the concupiscences of the belly, and let not the concupiscences of copulation take hold of me, and give me not over to a shameless and foolish mind. 7 O children hear (b) the doctrine of the mouth: and he that will keep it, shall not perish by his lips, nor be scandalized in most wicked works.

(b) Precepts how to govern the mouth, and tongue.

8 A sinner is taught in his vanity, and the proud and the evil speaker shall be scandalized in them. 9 Let not thy mouth be accustomed (c) to swearing: [1] for there be many falls in it.

(c) Against rash, untrue, & unlawful swearing. Iere. 4. [1] Mat. 5.

10 But let not the naming of God be usual in thy mouth, and meddle not with the names of Saints, because thou shalt not scape free from them. 11 For as a servant daily examined, lacketh not the mark thereof: so every one that sweareth, and nameth, shall not be wholly purged from sin. 12 A man that sweareth much shall be filled with iniquity, and plague shall not depart from his house. 13 And if he frustrate it, his sin shall be upon him: and if he dissemble, he offendeth double: 14 and if he swear in vain, he shall not be justified: for his house shall be filled with retribution. 15 There is another (d) contrary speech, also to death, be it not found in the inheritance of Jacob.

(d) In oaths God is called to witness as he that cannot lie, but blasphemy attributeth that to God which pertaineth not to him or attributeth to some creature that which only belongeth to God, and so is a contrary sin to unlawful swearing. Both are mortal sins.

16 For of the merciful all those things shall be taken away, and they will not wallow in sins. 17 Let not thy mouth be accustomed to (e) unuttered speech: for there is in it a word of sin.

(e) Admonition against sins, of the tongue.

18 (f) Remember thy father and thy mother, for thou sittest in the midst of great men:

(f) Reproach to parents, and other neighbours.

19 lest perhaps God forget thee in their sight, & being besotted with thy daily custom, thou suffer reproach, & hadst better not have been born, and curse the day of thy nativity. 20 A man accustomed to the words of reproach, will not be instructed in all his days. 21 Two sorts abound in sins, and the third bringeth wrath and perdition. 22 An (g) hot soul as a burning fire will not be quenched, till it swallow somewhat.

(g) Against covetousness.

23 and a wicked man in the mouth of his flesh will not cease till he kindle a fire. 24 To a man that is (h) a fornicator all bread is sweet, he will not be weary transgressing unto the end.

(h) Fornication.

25 Every man that passeth (i) beyond his own bed, contemning against his own soul, and saying: Who seeth me?

(i) Adultery.

26 [1] Darkness compasseth me, and the walls cover me, and no man beholdeth me: whom do I fear? The Highest will not be mindful of my sins.

[1] Isa. 26.

27 And he understandeth not that his eye seeth all things, for that such fear of man expelleth from him the fear of God, & the eyes of men fearing him: 28 and he knoweth not that the eyes of our Lord are much more brighter than the sun, beholding round about all the ways of man, and the bottom of the depth, and the hearts of men, looking into the hidden parts. 29 For all things were known unto our Lord God, before they were created: so also after it is perfected he beholdeth all things. 30 (k) [1] Revenge shall be taken on this man in the streets of the city, and as an horse-colt he shall be chased: and where he expected not, he shall be apprehended.

(k) Seeing carnal adultery is severely punished, much more spiritual: as schism, heresy, and apostasy from Catholic Religion. [1] Lev. 20. Deu. 22.

31 And he shall be in dishonour with all men, for that he understood not the fear of our Lord. 32 So every woman also that forsaketh her husband, & getteth inheritance by marriage of another. 33 For first she hath been unfaithful in the law of the Highest: and secondly she hath sinned against her husband: thirdly she hath fornicated in adultery, and hath gotten her children of another man. 34 This woman shall be brought into the Church, and upon her children there shall be examination. 35 Her children shall not take root, & her boughs shall not yield fruit. 36 She shall leave her memory to be cursed, and her dishonour shall not be wiped out. 37 And they that are left shall know, that nothing is better than the fear of God: and nothing sweeter, than to have regard to the commandments of our Lord. 38 It is great glory to follow our Lord: for length of days shall be taken of him.

CHAPTER XXIV.

True and laudable wisdom 5. proceeding from God, 6. shineth in his works: 12. especially in his Church, where she bringeth forth all virtues. 26. She inviteth all unto her, 44. and lighteneth her followers with splendor of doctrine.

Wisdom shall praise (a) her soul, & shall be honoured in God, and shall glory in the midst of her people,

(a) Divine wisdom, the Second Person of the B. Trinity, begotten, not created, praiseth itself. According to the phrase of speech. Iere. 51. v. 14. The Lord of hosts hath sworn by his soul, that is, by himself.

2 and shall open her mouth in the churches of the Highest, and shall glory in the sight of his power,

3 and in the midst of her people she shall be exalted, and in the holy assembly she shall be admired, 4 and in the multitude of the elect she shall have praise, and among the blessed she shall be blessed, saying: 5 I came forth from the mouth of the Highest, the first begotten before all creatures. 6 I made that in the heavens, there should rise light that faileth not, and as a cloud I covered all the earth. 7 I dwelt in the highest places, and my throne is in the pillar of a cloud. 8 I alone have gone round about the compass of heaven, and have penetrated into the bottom of the depth, and have walked in the waves of the sea, 9 and stood in all the earth: and in all people. 10 and in every nation I have had the primacy: 11 and I have by strength trodden down the hearts of all the excellent, and the base; and in all these things (b) I sought rest, & I shall abide in the inheritance of our Lord.

(b) God offereth his grace, but forceth not any to accept it.

12 Then the creator of all commanded, and said to me: & he that (c) created me, rested in my tabernacle,

(c) Creation is not here taken in the strict signification, but for divine production, in that God the Father by understanding begetteth God the Son. As likewise the Father and the Son by love produce the Holy Ghost.

13 and he said to me: Inhabit (d) in Jacob, and inherit in Israel, and take root in mine elect.

(d) in the Church only is effectual grace.

14 From the beginning and before the worlds was I created, and unto the world to come I shall not cease, and in the holy habitation I have ministered before him. 15 And so in Sion was I established, and in the sanctified city likewise I rested, and my power was in Jerusalem. 16 And I took root in an honourable people, and in the portion of my God his inheritance, and my abiding is in the full assembly of saints. 17 I am exalted as a cedar in Libanus, and as a cypress tree in mount Sion. 18 As a palm tree in Cades am I exalted, and as a rose plant in Jericho: 19 As a fair olive tree in the fields, and as a plane tree by the water in the streets am I exalted. 20 I gave an odour as cinnamon, & aromatical balm: as chosen myrrh have I given the sweetness of odour: 21 and as storax, and galbanum, and onyx, and aloes, and as Libanus not cut, have I perfumed mine habitation, and mine odour is as balm not mingled. 22 I have spread out my boughs as the terebinth, and my boughs are of honour & grace. 23 I as a vine have fructified sweetness of odour: and my flowers are fruit of honour and honesty. 24 I am the mother of beautiful love, and of fear, and of knowledge, and of holy hope. 25 In me is all grace of way and truth, in me all hope of life and virtue.

26 Pass to me all ye that desire me, and be filled of my generations. 27 [1] For my spirit is sweet above honey, and mine inheritance above honey and the honey comb.

28 My memory is unto generations of worlds.

29 They that (e) eat me, shall yet hunger: and they that drink me, shall yet thirst.

(e) The more grace any hath, the more he desireth and receiveth.

30 He that heareth me, shall not be confounded: and they that work in me, shall not sin. 31 They that explicate me, shall have life everlasting. 32 All these things are the book of life, and the testament of the Highest, & the knowledge of truth. 33 Moyses commanded a law in the precepts of justices, and an inheritance to the house of Jacob, and the promises to Israel. 34 He appointed to David his servant for to raise up a king of him most strong, and sitting in the throne of honour (f) for ever.

(f) In David's progeny God preserved the kingly state till the captivity: and the estimation of the royal blood unto Christ. But in all this David was a figure of Christ, who sitteth in the Throne of honour absolutely for ever.

35 Who filleth wisdom as Phison, and as Tigris in the days of new fruits. 36 Who replenisheth understanding as Euphrates, who multiplieth it as Jordan in the time of harvest. [1]

37 Who sendeth discipline as the light, and assisting as Gehon in the day of vintage. 38 Who first hath perfect knowledge of it, & a weaker shall not search it out. 39 For her cogitation shall abound above the sea, and her counsels above the great depth. 40 I wisdom have poured out rivers. 41 I as a sluse of a mighty water out of the river, I as the river Dioryx, & as a water conduit I came out of paradise. 42 I said: I will water my garden of plants, and will inebriate the fruit of my meadow. 43 And behold my sluse was made aboundant, and my river came near to a sea. 44 Because I illuminated doctrine to all as the morning light, & I will declare it far. 45 I will penetrate all the inferior parts of the earth, and will behold all that sleep, and will illuminate all that hope in our Lord. 46 I will yet pour out doctrine as prophecy, and will leave it to them that seek wisdom, and will not cease unto their progenies even to the holy age. 47 See ye that I have not laboured for myself only, but for all that seek out the truth.

CHAPTER XXV.

Concord between brethren, neighbours, and man and wife, much pleaseth God. 3. A poor man proud, a rich man a liar, and an old man doting in carnal, or worldly things, are very hateful. 9. He that seeth his children good; and his enemies overthrown; hath a good wife; offendeth not in speech; consenteth not to sin; hath a true friend; teacheth good doctrine; hath sacred; and human knowledge; hath undoubtedly nine happy things: but to fear God containeth 14. and excelleth all. 17. A wicked woman (heresy) is very detestable, 30. and most untolerable, if she have supreme dominion.

In three things my spirit is pleased, which are approved before God, and men: 2 (a) The concord of brethren, and the love of neighbours, and man and wife well agreeing together.

(a) Three very commendable things.

3 Three sorts my soul hateth, and I am greatly grieved at their life: 4 (b) A poor man proud: & a rich man a liar: an old man a fool, and doting.

(b) Other three detestable.

5 The things that thou hast not gathered in thy youth, how shalt thou find them in thy old age? 6 How beautiful is judgement for a gray head, and for ancients to know counsel! 7 How beautiful is wisdom for the aged, & understanding glorious, and counsel! 8 Much cunning is the crown of old men, and the fear of God is their glory. 9 (c) Nine things not to be imagined of the heart have I magnified, and the tenth I will tell unto men with my tongue:

(c) Nine happy things in this life.

10 A man that hath joy in his children; living and seeing the subversion of his enemies. 11 Blessed is he that dwelleth with a wise woman; [1] & that hath not offended with his tongue; and that hath not served such as are unworthy of him.

[1] Iac. 3.

12 Blessed is he that findeth a true friend; and that declareth justice to an ear that heareth. 13 How great is he, that findeth wisdom and knowledge; but he is not above him (d) that feareth our Lord.

(d) All happiness in this life is grounded in the fear of God.

14 The fear of God hath set it-self above all things: 15 blessed is the man, to whom is given to have the fear of God: he that holdeth it, to whom shall he be resembled? 16 The fear of God is the beginning of his love: and the beginning of faith is to be fast joined unto it. 17 The heaviness of the heart is all plague: & all malice, (e) the wickedness of a woman.

(e) The description of heresy under the figure of a wicked woman: whose malice is secretly covered under pretence of truth and piety.

24 The wickedness of a woman changeth her face: and darkeneth her countenance as a bear: and will shew it as a sack. In the midst of her neighbours, 25 her husband groaned, and hearing he sighed a little. 26 All malice is short to the malice of a woman, the lot of sinners fall upon her. 27 As the going up a gravelly way in the feet of the aged, so a woman full of tongue to a quiet man. 28 Look not upon a woman's beauty, and desire not a woman for beauty. 29 A woman's anger, and impudency, and confusion is great. 30 A woman (f) if she have superiority, is contrary to her husband.

(f) Lay-head-ship in spiritual causes is so unreasonable and absurd, that few heretics will endure it.

31 An humbled heart, and heavy countenance, and plague of heart, is a wicked woman. 32 Feeble hands, and disjointed knees, a woman that doth not make her husband happy. 33 From woman came the beginning of sin, and by her we do all die. 34 Give not issue to thy water, no not a little: nor to a wicked woman leave to go forth. 35 If she walk not at thine hand, she will confound thee in the sight of thine enemies. 36 Cut her off from thy flesh, lest she always abuse thee.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The praises of a good woman. 5. The betraying of a city, mutiny of people, and false accusation are terrible, but a jealous woman is more grievous. 10. Diverse ill qualities of a bad woman. 16. More commendations of a good woman. 25. A doleful thing to see a valiant warrior wanting livelihood, a wise man not regarded, and greatest grief to see a just man become wicked. 28. A man full of business hardly careth for his soul: and an Inn-keeper often sinneth in words.

The husband of a good wife is happy: for the number of his years is (a) double.

(a) An unquiet life depriveth a man of much comfort: and therefore continual peace is as double life.

2 A strong woman delighteth her husband, and shall accomplish the years of his life in peace. 3 A good woman is a good portion, in the good portion of them that fear God shall she be given to a man for good deeds: 4 And the heart of rich and poor is good, at all time their countenance is merry. 5 Of three things my heart hath been afraid, and at the fourth my face hath trembled: 6 The betraying of a city, and a gathering together of the people: 7 false calumny, all more grievous than death. 8 A jealous woman is the sorrow and mourning of the heart. 9 In a jealous woman is a scourge of the tongue, communicating with all. 10 As (b) a yoke of oxen that is moved, so also a wicked woman: he that holdeth her, is as he that taketh hold of a scorpion.

(b) As when oxen move, the yoke on their necks doth move withal: so a wicked woman (to wit heresy) cannot rest, nor let others rest quiet.

11 A woman given to drunkenness is great anger: & her contumely and turpitude shall not be hid. 12 The fornication of a woman shall be known in the lifting up of her eyes, and in her eye-lids. 13 On thy daughter that turneth not away herself, set sure watch: lest occasion found she abuse herself. 14 Take heed of the impudency of her eyes, and marvel not if she contemn thee. 15 As a wayfaring man that thirsteth, will she open her mouth to the fountain, and will drink of every water that is next, & will sit against every hedge, and open her quiver against every arrow, until she fail. 16 (c) The grace of a diligent woman shall delight her husband, and shall fat his bones.

(c) The Catholic faith is the ground of all virtues.

17 Her discipline is the gift of God. 18 A wise and still woman, there is no exchange for a soul instructed. 19 A holy, and shamefast woman, is grace upon grace. 20 And all weight is not worthy a continent soul. 21 As the sun rising to the world in the highest places of God, so is the beauty of a good woman for an ornament of her house. 22 A lamp shining upon the holy candlestick, & the beauty of the face upon stayed age. 23 Pillars of gold upon feet of silver, and stable feet upon the soles of a stayed woman. 24 Eternal foundations upon a sound rock, and the commandments of God in the heart of a holy woman.

25 At two things my heart is grieved, and at the third anger is come upon me: 26 A man of war decaying by poverty: and a wise man contemned: 27 and he that transgresseth from justice to sin, God hath prepared him to the sword. 28 Two sorts have appeared unto me hard and dangerous, a merchant is hardly rid of negligence: and (d) a viteler shall not be justified from the sins of the lips.

(d) Those that keep inns or ale-houses are always talking, as willing to please all, but in much talk wanteth not sin. Pro. 10. v. 19.

CHAPTER XXVII.

For want and desire of riches many commit sin, 4. from which the fear of God preserveth. 6. Tentation proveth who is just, 12. constant, and modest. 17. Friends are bound to secrecy 25. and fidelity.

Through [1] poverty many have offended: and he that seeketh to be made rich, turneth away his eye.

2 As a stake is fastened in the midst of stones compact together, so also in the midst of selling and buying, sin shall be straitened. 3 Sin shall be destroyed with the sinner. 4 If thou hold not thyself instantly in the fear of our Lord, (a) thy house shall quickly be subverted.

(a) The soul is kept in good state by fearing God.

5 As in the shaking of a sieve the dust will remain: so (b) the perplexity of a man in his cogitation.

(b) After that sin is purged there remain relics in the soul, as dust in a sieve when the chaff is cast out, till it be more purged or washed. Psal. 50. v. 4.

6 [1] The furnace trieth the potter's vessels, and the tentation of tribulation just men.

[1] Prov. 27.

7 As the husbandry about a tree sheweth the fruit thereof, so a word out of the thought of the heart of man. 8 Praise not a man before full discourse, for this is the trial of men. 9 If thou follow justice, thou shalt apprehend it: and shalt put it on as a long robe of honour, and thou shalt dwell with it: and it shall protect thee for ever, and in the day of acknowledging thou shalt find steadfastness. 10 The fowls flock together to their like: and truth shall return to them that work it. 11 The lion always lieth in wait for a prey: so sins for them that work iniquities. 12 A holy man continueth in wisdom (c) as the sun: for a fool is changed as (d) the moon.

(c) Whether the sun shineth forth or not, it is always light: so is a wise man always virtuous, whether it appear outwardly or no. (d) A fool, or wicked man, hath no light of virtue in himself (like the moon) but sometimes seemeth to have more light, sometimes less, sometimes none at all. S. Bernard.

13 In the midst of the unwise keep the word till his time: but in the midst of deep considerers be continually. 14 The narration of sinners is odious, & their laughter is in the delights of sin. 15 Speech that sweareth much shall make the hair of the head to stand upright: and his lack of reverence is the stopping of the ears. 16 Shedding of blood is in the brawling of the proud: and their cursing is a grievous hearing. 17 He that discloseth the secret of a friend loseth credit, and he shall not find a friend to his mind. 18 Love thy neighbour, and be joined with him in fidelity. 19 But if thou discover his secrets, thou shalt not pursue after him. 20 For as a man that loseth his friend, so also he that loseth the friendship of his neighbour. 21 And as he that letteth a bird go out of his hand, so hast thou left thy neighbour, & shalt not take him. 22 Follow him not, because he is far absent, for he is fled, as a doe out of the snare: because his soul is wounded. 23 Thou canst no more bind him, and of a curse there is reconciliation: 24 but to disclose the secrets of a friend, is the desperation of an unhappy soul. 25 [1] He that winketh with the eye, forgeth wicked things, and no man will cast him off:

26 in the sight of thine eyes he will sweeten his mouth, and will be in admiration upon thy words: but at the last he will pervert his mouth, and in thy words he will lay a scandal. 27 I have heard many things, & have not esteemed them equal to him, and our Lord will hate him. 28 He that (e) casteth a stone on high, it will fall upon his head: & (f) the deceitful stroke will divide the wounds of the deceitful.

(e) He that expressly doth injury to another is justly punished also in this world. (f) How secretly so ever any hurteth another, he woundeth his own conscience, and cannot escape God's judgement.

29 [1] He that diggeth a pit, shall fall into it: and he that setteth a stone for his neighbour, shall stumble on it: & he that layeth a snare for another, shall perish in it.

[1] Pro. 26. Eccl. 10.

30 To a man that doth most wicked counsel, it shall be turned upon himself, and he shall not know from whence it cometh to him. 31 Derision & reproach of the proud, and vengeance as a lion shall lie in wait for him. 32 They shall perish in a snare that are delighted with the fall of the just: and sorrow shall consume them before they die. 33 Anger and fury, both are execrable, and the sinful man shall be subject to them.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Abstain from revenge, 8. and strife, 15. from making debate, 28. from hearing, and speaking evil.

He (a) that will be revenged, shall find revenge of our Lord, and keeping he will keep his sin.

(a) He that seeketh revenge contrary to the course of justice, or of evil intention or of rancor of mind, sinneth grievously.

2 (b) [1] Forgive thy neighbour hurting thee: & then shall thy sins be loosed to thee when thou prayest.

(b) Charity requireth that we remit injuries with three conditions, if the offender be truly penitent, if the remission of punishment be not against justice, nor against necessary discipline. [1] Deu. 32, 35. Mat. 6, 14. & 11, 25. Rom. 12, 19.

3 Man to man reserveth anger, and doth he seek remedy of God? 4 He hath not mercy on a man like unto himself, and doth he entreat for his own sins? 5 Himself whereas he is flesh, reserveth anger, and doth he ask propitiation of God? Who by prayer shall obtain for his sin? 6 Remember the last things, & cease to be at enmity: 7 for consumption and death are imminent in his commandments. 8 Remember the fear of God, and be not angry with thy neighbour. 9 Remember the testament of the High, & contemn the ignorance of thy neighbour. 10 Refrain thyself from strife, and thou shalt diminish thy sins: 11 for an angry man kindleth strife, and a sinful man will trouble his friends, and in the midst of them that are at peace he will cast in enmity. 12 [1] For according to the wood of the forest, so the fire burneth: and according to the power of a man, so shall his anger be, and according to his substance he will increase his anger.

13 Hasty contention kindleth a fire: & hasty strife sheddeth blood: and an ill testifying tongue bringeth death. 14 If thou blow upon a spark, it will burn as a fire: and if thou spit thereon, it shall be quenched: both proceed out of the mouth. 15 The whisperer & double tongued is accurst: for he hath troubled many that were at peace. 16 A (c) third tongue hath moved many, and dispersed them from nation into nation.

(c) Undiscreet report to one what another hath said, is often cause of much discontentment and of dissension.

17 It hath destroyed the walled cities of the rich, and hath digged down the houses of great men. 18 It hath cut the forces of peoples, and undone strong nations. 19 A third tongue hath cast out many women, and deprived them of their labours. 20 He that regardeth it, shall not have rest, neither shall he have a friend in whom he may repose. 21 The stroke of a whip maketh a blue mark: but the stroke of the tongue will break the bones. 22 Many have fallen by the edge of the sword, but not so as they that have perished by their tongue. 23 Blessed is he that is covered from a wicked tongue, that hath not passed into the anger thereof, and that hath not drawn the yoke thereof, and hath not been tied in the bands thereof: 24 for the yoke of it is a yoke of iron: and the band of it is a band of brass. 25 The death of it, is a most wicked death: and hell is more profitable than it. 26 The continuance of it shall not be permanent, but it shall obtain the ways of the unjust: and it shall not burn the just in the flame thereof. 27 They that forsake God, shall fall into it, and it shall burn in them, and shall not be quenched, and it shall be sent in upon them as a lion, and as a leopard it shall hurt them. 28 (d) Hedge thine ears with thorns, and hear not a wicked tongue, and make doors to thy mouth, and locks.

(d) To hear detraction is as bad as to speak it.

29 Lay together thy silver, and make balance to thy words, and right bridles to thy mouth: 30 and take heed lest perhaps thou slip in thy tongue, & fall in the sight of the enemies, that lie in wait for thee, and thy fall be uncurable unto death.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Lend charitably, 3. and restore faithfully. 10. For the fault of ill debters, omit not to help the honest. 12. Rather give alms where need is. 19. Be thankful for suretyship. 28. Live frugally. 32. Go not a guesting for delicate cheer.

He that (a) lendeth to his neighbour, doth mercy: and he that prevaileth with hand, keepeth the commandments.

(a) Lending is a work of mercy, & a kind of alms. To repay that is borrowed is a work of justice, wittingly not to restore is as bad as theft.

2 Lend to thy neighbour in the time of his necessity, and (a) again repay thy neighbour in his time.

3 Confirm thy word, and do faithfully with him: & thou shalt find at all time, that which is necessary for thee. 4 Many have esteemed a thing lent as a thing found, and have given molestation to them that did help them. 5 Till they receive, they kiss the hands of the lender, and in promises they humble their voice: 6 and in the time of repaying they will ask a time, and will speak words of tediousness and murmurings, and will make the time an excuse: 7 and if he be able to pay, he will resist, he will pay scarce half of the whole, and will account it as a thing found: 8 but if not, he will defraud him of his money, and possess him an enemy without cause: 9 and will repay him reproaches and curses, and for honour and benefit will repay him contumely. 10 Many have not lent, not because of wickedness, but they were afraid to be defrauded without cause. 11 But yet upon the humble be stronger of mind, & for alms defer him not. 12 Because of the commandment receive the poor: and because of his poverty, send him not away empty. 13 [1] Lose money for thy brother and thy friend: and hide it not under a stone unto perdition.

[1] Exo. 22. Deu. 14.

14 Put thy treasure in the precepts of the Highest, (b) & it shall profit thee more than gold.

(b) Great fruit of works of mercy.

15 Shut up alms in the heart of the poor, and the same shall obtain for thee against all evil. 16 [1] The alms a man giveth is as a purse with him: it will conserve his grace as the ball of the eye.

[1] Tob. 4.

17 And furthermore will raise up and render reward to every one upon their heads. 18 Above the shield of the mighty, & above the spear, it shall fight against thine enemy. 19 A good man becometh surety for his neighbour: and he that hath lost shame, will leave him to himself. 20 Forget not the kindness of a surety: for he hath given his life for thee. 21 The sinner and unclean person flyeth from his surety. 22 A sinner counteth the goods of his surety to himself: and unthankful in mind, will forsake him that delivered him. 23 A man is surety for his neighbour: and when he hath lost shame, he shall be forsaken of him. 24 Naughty suretyship hath undone many that were in good case, and hath tossed them as a wave of the sea. 25 Whurling round about, it hath made mighty men to remove, and they have wandered in strange nations. 26 A sinner that transgresseth the commandment of our Lord, shall fall into naughty suretyship: and he that endeavoureth to do many things, shall fall into judgement. 27 Recover thy neighbour according to thy power, and (c) take heed to thyself that thou fall not.

(c) Prudence requireth that by helping another, thou doest not overthrow thyself.

28 The beginning of man's life water & bread, and garment, and house covering his turpitude. 29 Better is the poor man's fare under a roof of boards, than sumptuous cheer in a strange place without a house.

30 Let the least thing please thee in stead of a great, and thou shalt not hear the reproach of peregrination. 31 It is a naughty life to change lodging from house to house: and where he shall lodge, he shall not deal boldly, nor open his mouth. 32 He shall lodge, and feed, and make the unthankful drink, and beside these things he shall hear bitter words. 33 Pass thou stranger & furnish the table, & with the things thou hast in thy hand, feed the rest. 34 Depart from the presence of the honour of my friends: for the necessity of my house my brother is to be lodged with me. 35 These things be grievous to a man that hath understanding: rebuke for the house, and the reproach of the lender.

CHAPTER XXX.

Chastisement of children is necessary, and indulgence very dangerous. 14. Health is better than riches. 17. A troublesome life is worse than death. 22. Be not pensive but cheerful in mind.

He [1] that loveth his son, doth accustom him to stripes, that he may rejoice in his later end, and not grope after the doors of his neighbours.

[1] Pro. 13. & 23.

2 He that teacheth his son, shall be praised in him, & in the midst of them of his household he shall glory in him. 3 He that teacheth his son, doth cast the enemy into emulation, and in the midst of his friends he shall glory in him. 4 [1] His father is dead, & he is as it were not dead: for he hath left behind him the like to himself.

[1] Deut. 6.

5 In his life he saw and rejoiced in him: in his death he was not made sorry, neither was he confounded before the enemies. 6 For he left a defender of his house against the enemies, & one that should render thank to his friends. 7 (a) For the souls of his sons he will bind up his wounds, & at every voice his bowels shall be troubled.

(a) The eldest son being heir to his father, is to have special care of the other children, even to the adventuring of his own hurt for their lives.

8 An untamed horse becometh stubborn, and a dissolute child will become heady. 9 Pamper thy son, and he will make thee afraid: play with him, and he will make thee sorrowful. 10 Laugh not with him, lest thou be sorry, and at the last (b) thy teeth shall be on edge.

(b) Teeth on edge or gnashing of teeth, is a part of hell pains. Mat 8. & 13. & sometimes beginneth in this life.

11 Give him not power in his youth, and contemn not his cogitations. 12 Curb his neck in youth, and knock his sides whilst he is a child, lest perhaps he be hardened, and believe thee not, and he shall be sorrow of mind to thee. 13 Teach thy son, and work in him, that thou offend not in his dishonesty. 14 Better is a poor man whole and strong of force, than a rich man weak and scourged with misery. 15 The (c) health of the soul in holiness of justice, is better than all gold and silver: and a sound body, than infinite revenues.

(c) Piety is above riches and honour.

16 There is no riches above the riches of the health of the body: and there is no delight above the joy of the heart. 17 Better is death than a bitter life: and everlasting rest, than continual sickness. 18 Good things hid in a mouth that is shut, are as messes of meats set about a grave. 19 What shall sacrifice profit an idol? For neither shall he eat, nor smell: [1]

[1] Deu. 14.

20 so he that is chased away of our Lord, beareth the rewards of iniquity: 21 seeing with his eyes, & groaning, as an eunuch embracing a virgin and sighing. 22 (d) Give not heaviness to thy soul, & afflict not thyself in thy counsel. [1]

(d) Suffer not unnecessary pensiveness to afflict thy mind, through pusillanimity. [1] Pro. 12. 15. & 17.

23 Joyfulness of the heart, this is the life of a man, and a treasure without defect of holiness: and the joy of a man is long life. 24 Have mercy on thine own soul, (e) pleasing God, and refrain: and comfort thy heart in his holiness: and expel sorrow far from thee.

(e) But rely wholly upon God's will and providence, resigning thy will unto his.

25 For sorrow hath killed many, and there is no profit in it. 26 Envy and anger diminish the days, and thought will bring old age before the time. 27 A magnifical heart is good in banquets: for his banquets are made diligently.

CHAPTER XXXI.

By seeking virtue, and labouring for necessaries, the flesh is subdued to the spirit. 8. Moderate riches are best, 12. with temperance in diet, especially in drinking.

Watching (a) after honesty shall pine the flesh, & the thought thereof (b) taketh away sleep.

(a) They that employ all their study to get virtues, shall be more free from tentations of the flesh. (b) And from drowsiness of mind: whereupon S. Ierom admonisheth: Love the studies of holy Scriptures, and thou wilt not love the vices of the flesh. Epist. ad Rusticum Monach.

2 The thought of foreknowledge turneth away the understanding, & grievous infirmity maketh a sober soul. 3 The rich man hath laboured in gathering of substance together, & in his rest he shall be replenished with his goods. 4 The poor man hath laboured in the diminishing of his living, and in the end he is made poor. 5 He that loveth gold shall not be justified: & he that followeth after corruption, shall be replenished of it. 6 Many have been given into falls for gold, and their perdition hath come by the beauty thereof. 7 The gold of them that sacrifice is a wood of offence: woe to them, that follow after it, and every unwise man shall perish in it. 8 Blessed is the rich man that is found without spot: and that hath not gone after gold, nor hoped in money and treasures. 9 Who is this? & we will praise him, for he hath done marvelous things in his life. 10 Who is proved therein, & perfect, shall have eternal glory. He that (c) could transgress, & hath not transgressed: and do evils, and hath not done:

(c) It is in man's freewill to transgress, & therefore they are happy, that through God's grace do not break his commandments.

11 therefore are his good things established in our Lord, & all the church of saints shall declare his alms. 12 Art thou set at a great table? Open not thy jaw thereupon first. 13 Say not this: There be many things which are upon it. 14 Remember that a naughty eye is evil. 15 What is created worse than the eye? Therefore shall it weep at every face. When it shall see, 16 stretch not out thy hand first, & so contaminated with envy thou be ashamed. 17 Be not oppressed in a feast. 18 Understand by thyself what thy neighbour's things are. 19 Use as a frugal man those things, that are set before thee: lest thou be hated when thou eatest much. [1]

20 Leave off first for manner's sake, and exceed not, lest thou perhaps offend. 21 And if thou be set in the midst of many, stretch not forth thy hand before them: neither do thou first ask to drink. 22 How sufficient is a little wine for a man well taught, and in sleeping thou shalt not be pained with it, and thou shalt feel no grief. 23 Watching, & choler, & torment to an unsatiable man: 24 sleep of health is in a man of spare diet: he shall sleep until morning, and his soul with him shall be delighted. 25 And if thou hast been forced

29 In (d) naughty bread the city will murmur, and the testimony of the naughtiness thereof is true.

(d) As bread is the chief sustenance of the body, so doctrine is of the mind, which being good nourisheth, & if it be bad corrupteth them that receive it.

30 Provoke not them that love wine: for wine hath destroyed very many. 31 Fire trieth hard iron: so wine drunken in drunkenness shall rebuke the hearts of the proud. 32 Equal life to all men, wine in sobriety: if thou drink it moderately, thou shalt be sober. 33 What is his life that is diminished with wine? 34 What defraudeth life? Death. 35 Wine was created for joyfulness, and not for drunkenness from the beginning.[1]

[1] Prov. 31. Psa. 103.

36 Wine drunken moderately is the joy of the soul and the heart. 37 Sober drinking is health to soul and body. 38 Much wine drunken maketh provocation, & wrath, & many ruins. 39 Much wine drunken is bitterness of the soul. 40 The courageousness of drunkenness is offence of the unwise, lessening the strength, and making wounds. 41 In a banquet of wine rebuke not thy neighbour: and despise him not in his mirth. 42 Speak not to him words of reproach: and press him not in demanding again.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Superiors must rule with meekness, 4. teaching those wisdom that are capable thereof. 7. Be moderate in music, and in wine. 9. Let young men be diligent to hear, and sparing to speak 13. especially before their betters. 15. Be always well occupied. 17. Serve, and fear God. 21. Admit correction, 24. do nothing without counsel.

Have they made thee Ruler? (a) Be not extolled: be among them as one of them.

(a) Humility is necessary in all, but most especially in men of authority. The greatest art in this life is to contemn vain glory in height of authority. S. Greg. de cura pastorali.

2 Have care of them, and so sit thou still, and all thy care being dispatched, repose. 3 That thou mayst rejoice for their sakes, & receive a crown as an ornament of grace, and obtain the dignity of the contribution. 4 Speak thou that art elder: for it becometh thee, 5 the first word to him that loveth with knowledge, & hinder not music. 6 Where there is no hearing, pour not out speech, and extol not thyself out of time in thy wisdom. 7 A little pearl of the carbuncle in an ornament of gold, and the comparison of musicians in a banquet of wine. 8 As a signet of the emerald is in the working of gold: so the melody of music is joyful and moderate wine. 9 Hear holding thy peace, & for thy reverence good grace shall come to thee. 10 Young man speak in thine own cause scarcely. 11 If thou be asked twice, let thine answer have an head. 12 In many things be as it were ignorant, and hear holding thy peace and withal asking. 13 In the midst of great men presume not: & where ancients are, speak not much. 14 before hail there shall go lightning: & grace shall go before shamefastness, & for thy reverence good grace shall come to thee. 15 And at the hour of rising slack not thyself: but run before first into thy house, and there withdraw thyself, and there play, 16 and do thy conceits, and not in sins and proud word. 17 And above all these things bless our Lord that made thee, & that doth replenish thee with all his goods. 18 He that feareth our Lord, shall receive his doctrine: and they that will watch after him, shall find blessing. 19 He that seeketh the law shall be replenished with it: and he that doth deceitfully, shall be scandalized by it. 20 They that fear our Lord, shall find just judgement, and shall kindle justices as light. 21 A sinful man will fly reprehension, and according to his will, will find excuse. 22 A man of counsel will not destroy understanding, an alien and proud man will not dread fear: 23 Yea after he hath done with fear without counsel, he shall be controlled even by his own pursuits. 24 Son (b) do nothing without counsel, and after the fact thou shalt not repent.

(b) God directeth men's resolutions, and actions, when they use the means of consultation, as he hath appointed: for when two or three are gathered in his name, he is in midst of them. Mat. 18.

25 Go not in the way of ruin, and thou shalt not stumble at stones: commit not thyself to a laborious way, lest thou set a scandal to thy soul. 26 And beware of thy children, and take heed of them of thy household. 27 In all thy work believe thy soul (c) by faith: for this is the keeping of the commandments.

(c) Do not against thy conscience.

28 He that believeth God attendeth to the commandments: and he that trusteth in him, shall not be lessened.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Fear of God defendeth from all adversaries. 5. Folly is unconstant. 8. God disposeth all to the best. 13. Man is in God's hand, as clay in the potter's. 20. Superiors, must keep their authority, and their subjects in discipline.

To him that feareth our Lord evils shall not happen, but in tentation God will keep him, and deliver him from evils. 2 A wise man hateth not the commandments and justices, and he shall not be shaken as a ship in a storm. 3 A man of understanding believeth the law of God, and the law is sure to him. 4 He that repeateth an interrogation, shall better prepare his answer, and so shall be heard, and shall keep discipline. 5 (a) The heart of a fool is as a wheel of a cart: & his cogitation as a turning axletree.

(a) Men led with passions run from one vice into another without ceasing. Especially heretics run into many errors. Against which S. Paul prescribeth this rule: It is best that the heart be established with grace. Heb. 13. v. 9.

6 A stallion horse neigheth under every one that sitteth upon him, so a friend that is a scorner. 7 Why doth one day excel another, and one light another, and one year another year of the sun? 8 By the knowledge of our Lord they were separated, the sun being made, and keeping the precept. 9 And he changed times, and the festival days thereof, and in the same they celebrated the festival days at an hour. 10 Of them God exalted and magnified, and of them he put into the number of days. And all men are of the ground, and of the earth, from whence Adam was created. 11 In the multitude of the discipline of our Lord he separated them, and changed their ways. 12 Of them he blessed, and exalted: and of them he sanctified, and applied to himself: and of them he cursed and humbled, and converted them from their separation. 13 [1] As potter's clay is in his hand, to fashion and dispose it.

[1] Rom. 9.

14 All his ways according to his disposition: so man in the hand of him, and he will render to him according to his judgement. 15 Against evil is good, and against death life: so also against a just man a sinner. And so look upon all the works of the Highest. Two against two, and one against one. 16 And I awaked last, and as he that gathereth berries after the grape gatherers. 17 In the blessing of God I also have hoped: and as he that gathereth grapes, have I filled the wine press. 18 See that I have not laboured for myself only, but for all that seek out discipline.

19 Hear me ye great men, and all peoples, and ye rulers of the Church harken with your ears. 20 To son and wife, brother and friend, give not power over thee in thy life: and give not thy possession to another: lest perhaps thou repent thee, and thou entreat for them. 21 Whilst thou art yet alive and takest breath, all flesh shall not change thee. 22 For it is better that thy children ask of thee, than that thou look toward the hands of thy children. 23 In all thy works be exquisite. 24 Give no stain to thy glory. In the day of the consummation of the days of thy life, and in the time of thy decease distribute thine inheritance. 25 Fodder, and wand, and burden for an ass: bread, and discipline, and work for a servant. 26 He worketh in discipline, and seeketh to rest: release him his hands, and he seeketh liberty. 27 The yoke and the rein bend a stiff neck, and continual works do bow a servant. 28 For a malicious servant torment & fetters, send him into work, that he be not idle. 29 For idleness hath taught much naughtiness. 30 Set him to work: for so it becometh him. And if he be not obedient, bow him with fetters, and exceed not over all flesh: but without judgement do no grievous thing. 31 If thou have a faithful servant, let him be unto thee as thy soul: as a brother so entreat him: because in the blood of thy soul thou hast gotten him. 32 If thou hurt him unjustly, he will run away: 33 if rising up he depart, thou knowest not whom to ask, and what way to seek him.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Trust not vain dreams, soothsayings, nor lies. 9. Much good is got by experience 14. and more by fearing God. 21. God rejecteth the oblations of the wicked: 24. Defrauding the poor is like to manslaughter. 28. Destroy not that another buildeth. 30. Repentance without amendment is nothing worth.

Vain hope & lying is to a foolish man: & (a) dreams extol the unwise.

(a) Vain dreams are not to be regarded: but some are good, & from God. Gen. 37. 40. 41. Dan. 2. 4. Mat. 1.

2 As he that apprehendeth a shadow, and pursueth the wind: so is he also that attendeth to lying visions. 3 According to this is the vision of dreams: as a man's similitude before the face of a man. 4 Of the unclean what shall be made clean? And of a liar what truth shall be said? 5 Divination of error, and lying soothsayings, and the dreams of them that do evil, are vanity. 6 And as a woman that travaileth, thy heart suffereth phantasies: unless it be a vision sent forth from the Highest, set not thy heart upon them. 7 For dreams have made many to err, and they that hoped in them have failed. 8 (b) The word of the law shall be fulfilled without lying, and (c) wisdom in the mouth of the faithful shall be made plain.

(b) Whatsoever is written in holy Scripture is undoubtedly true: and no jot of the law shall perish. (c) God also provideth that always there be some which truly explicate his law.

9 He that hath not been proved, what knoweth he? A man expert in many things, shall think many things: and he that hath learned many things, shall declare understanding. 10 He that is not tried, knoweth few things: and he that hath been in many things, multiplieth wickedness. 11 He that hath not been proved, what manner of things knoweth he? He that is deceived, shall abound with wickedness. 12 I have seen many things in wandering to and fro, and very many fashions of words. 13 Sometimes I have been in danger unto death for these things, and I was delivered by the grace of God. 14 The spirit of them that fear God is sought, & at his sight shall be blessed. 15 For their hope is on him that saveth them, and the eyes of God upon them that love him. 16 He that feareth our Lord shall tremble at nothing, and shall not dread: because he is his hope. 17 His soul is blessed that feareth our Lord. 18 To whom doth he look, and who is his strength? 19 [1] The eyes of our Lord are upon them that fear him, a protector of might, a stay of strength, a cover from the heat, and shadow for the noon time,

[1] Psal. 32.

20 a saving from offence, and help from falling, exalting the soul, and illuminating the eyes, giving health, and life, and blessing. 21 [1] The oblation of him that immolateth of an unjust thing is spotted, and the scornings of the unjust are not acceptable.

[1] Pro. 21. v. 27.

22 Our Lord is only theirs that expect him in the way

[1] Prov. 15. v. 8.

23 The Highest alloweth not the gifts of the wicked: neither hath he regard to the oblations of the unjust, neither will he be made propitious for sins by the multitude of their sacrifices. 24 He that offereth sacrifice of poor men's substance, is as he that sacrificeth the son in the presence of his father. 25 The bread of the needy, is the life of the poor: he that defraudeth it, is a man of blood. 26 He that taketh away bread in sweat, is as he that killeth his neighbour.[1]

[1] Levi. 19.

27 He that sheddeth blood, and that defraudeth the hired man, are brethren. 28 (d) One building, and another destroying: what profit have they but the labour?

(d) He that destroyeth that another buildeth, bringeth two men's labours to nothing.

29 One praying, and another cursing: whether's voice will God hear? 30 He that is washed from the dead, (e) and toucheth him again, what doth his washing profit?

(e) Recidivation into sin maketh the former repentance frustrate. Mat. 18. v. 33.

31 so a man that fasteth in his sins: and doing the same again, what doth he profit in humbling himself? Who will hear his prayer?

CHAPTER XXXV.

Observation of the commandments, 4. and sacrifice of the just please God, 12. not the sacrifice of the wicked. 14. God protecteth the poor and desolate, 19. heareth the prayer of the humble, and rendereth to all as they deserve.

He (a)[1] that keepeth the law, multiplieth oblation.

(a) sacrifices of penance, Psa. 50. of justice Psal. 4. and of praise, Psal. 49. are better than external sacrifices.
[1] 1. Reg. 15. v. 22. Ier. 7.

2 It is an wholesome sacrifice to attend to the commandments, and to depart from all iniquity. 3 And to offer propitiation by sacrifice for injustices, and to retire from injustice is prayer for sins. 4 He who offereth the flour of wheat, shall give thanks: and he that is merciful offereth sacrifice. 5 To depart from iniquity is a thing that pleaseth our Lord well, and to depart from injustice is an entreating for sins.
6 (b)[1] Thou shalt not appear before the sight of our Lord empty.

(b) Nevertheless external sacrifice is also necessary.[1]
Exo. 23. & 34. Deu. 16.

7 For all these things are done because of the commandment of God. 8 The oblation of the just maketh a fat altar, and is an odour of sweetness in the sight of the Highest. 9 The sacrifice of the just is acceptable, and our Lord will not forget the memory thereof. 10 Render glory to God with a good mind: and diminish not the first fruits of thine hands. 11 In every gift make thy countenance cheerful, and in joyfulness sanctify thy tithes.[1]

[1] 2. Cor. 9. Tob. 4.

12 Give to the Highest according to his gift, and with a good eye do according to the ability of thine hands: 13 because our Lord is a rewarder, and will repay thee (c) seven times so much.

(c) Oftentimes so much. As Prov. 24. Seven times shall the just fall, & shall rise again.

14 [1] Offer not wicked gifts, for he will not receive them.

[1] Levit. 22. Deu. 15.

15 And look not upon an unjust sacrifice, because our Lord is judge, and there is not with him the glory of person. 16 [1] Our Lord will not accept person against the poor, and he will hear the prayer of him that is hurt.

[1] 2. Paral. 19. Rom. 2. Act. 10.

17 He will not despise the prayers of the pupil: nor the widow, if she pour out speech of mourning. 18 Do not the widow's tears run down the cheek, & her exclamation upon him that causeth them to run?

19 For from the cheek they go up even to heaven, and our Lord the hearer will not be delighted in them.
20 He that adoreth God in delectation, shall be received, & his petition shall approach even to the clouds. 21 The prayer of him that humbleth himself, shall penetrate the clouds: and till it approach he will not be comforted: and he will not depart till the Highest behold. 22 And our Lord will not be long, but will judge the just, and will do judgement: and the strongest will not have patience in them, that he may crush their back: 23 and he will repay vengeance to the Gentiles, till he take away the multitude of the proud: & break the sceptres of the unjust, 24 till he reward men according to their doings: and according to the works of Adam, and according to his presumption. 25 till he judge the judgement of his people, and shall delight the just with his mercy:
26 The mercy of God is beautiful in the time of tribulation, as a cloud of rain in the time of drought.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

A prayer for conversion of all nations: 14. and for conservation of the Israelites. 20. Discretion is necessary in all actions, and desires.

Have mercy upon us o God of all, and respect us, and shew us the light of thy mercies:
2 and send in thy fear upon (a) the nations, that have not sought after thee, that they may know that there is no God but thou, and that they may shew forth thy glorious things.

(a) This prayer implieth also a prophecy of the conversion of the Gentiles, as the like very often in the Psalms. 58. 64. 65. &c.

3 Lift up thy hand over the strange Nations, that they may see thy might. 4 For as in their sight thou art sanctified in us, so in our sight thou shalt be magnified in them, 5 that they may know thee, as we also have known, that there is no God beside thee o Lord.
6 Renew signs, and change marvels. 7 Glorify thy hand, and thy right arm. 8 Raise up fury, and pour out wrath. 9 Take away the adversary, and afflict the enemy. 10 Hasten the time, and remember the end, that they may declare thy marvels. 11 Let him that is saved be devoured in the wrath of flame: and let them that evil entreat thy people, find perdition. 12 Break the head of Princes of the enemies, that say: There is none other beside us. 13 Gather together all the tribes of Jacob: and let them know that there is no God but thou, that they may declare thy great works: & thou shalt inherit them as from the beginning. 14 Have mercy on thy people, upon which thy name is invocated: and upon Israel, whom thou hast made equal to thy first begotten. [1]

[1] Exo. 4.

15 Have mercy on the city of thy sanctification Jerusalem, the city of thy rest. 16 Replenish Sion with thy words that cannot be uttered, & thy people with thy glory. 17 Give the testimony to them that are thy creatures from the beginning, and raise up the prophecies, which the former prophets spake in thy name. 18 Give reward to them that patiently expect thee, that thy prophets may be found faithful: and hear the prayers of thy servants, 19 [1] according to Aaron's benediction of thy people, and direct us into the way of justice, and let all know that inhabit the earth, that thou art God the beholder of the worlds.

[1] Num. 6.

20 The (b) belly will eat all meat, and one meat is better than another meat.

(b) As there is difference of meats:

21 The jaws taste venison, & (c) the wise heart lying words,

(c) so there ought to be discretion in words, in choosing a wife, & in all actions, and desires.

22 A perverse heart will give sorrow, and a cunning man will resist it. 23 Some woman will receive every man: and one daughter is better than another daughter. 24 The beauty of a woman cheereth the face of her husband, and increaseth the desire above all man's concupiscence. 25 If there be a tongue of curing, there is also a mitigating and of mercy: her husband is not according to the sons of men. 26 He that possesseth a good woman beginneth riches: she is an help like unto him, & a pillar as (d) rest.

(d) In concord small things increase, by discord all things go to havoc.

27 Where there is no hedge, the possession shall be spoiled: and where there is no wife, he mourneth wanting. 28 Who doth credit him that hath no nest, and turning aside wheresoever it waxeth dark, as a robber girded, leaping from city to city.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Beware of a friend, & love a sure friend. 7. Consult with the wise, trusty, 15. and virtuous, 19. especially relying upon God. 21. The tongue is cause of much good, or much evil. 30. Be temperate in diet.

Every friend will say: I also have joined friendship: (a) but there is a friend, in name only a friend. Doth there not sorrow remain even to death?

(a) As friendship is a most necessary thing in human life; so feigned friendship is most dangerous.

2 But a companion and friend will be turned to enmity. 3 O most wicked presumption, whence wast thou created to cover the dry land with malice, and with the deceitfulness thereof? 4 A companion is pleasant with his friend in delectations, and in the time of tribulation he will be an adversary. 5 A companion is sorry with his friend for his belly's sake, and he will take a shield against the enemy. 6 Forget not thy friend in thy mind, and be not unmindful of him in thy riches. 7 Consult not with him which betrayeth, and hide thy counsel from them that envy thee. 8 Every counseller uttereth counsel, but there is a counseller in himself. 9 From such a counseller keep thy soul. First know what his necessity is: for he will devise to his own mind: 10 lest perhaps he thrust a sharp stake into the ground and say to thee: 11 Thy way is good; and stand over against thee to see what will befall thee. 12 With an irreligious man treat not of holiness, & with the unjust of justice, and with a woman of the thing whereof she is jealous: with a fearful man of war, with a merchant of traffic, with a buyer of selling, with an envious man of giving thanks, 13 with the impious of piety, with the unhonest of honesty, with the field labourer of all work, 14 with him that worketh by the year of the ending of the year, with a slothful servant of much working: attend not to these in all counsel. 15 But be continual with a holy man, whomsoever thou shalt know to observe the fear of God, 16 whose soul is according to thine own soul: and who when thou shalt stumble in the dark, will be sorry for thee. 17 And establish with thyself an heart of good counsel: for there is none other thing more worth to thee than it. 18 The soul of a holy man uttereth sometime true things, more than seven watchmen that sit in a high place to watch. 19 And in all these (b) beseech the Highest, that he direct thy way in truth.

(b) Man is bound to use all prudent endeavour, & withal most especially to pray for God's direction.

20 Before all works let a true word go before thee, and stable counsel before every act. 21 A wicked word shall change the heart: out of which, rise four parts, good, and evil, life, and death: and the tongue is a continual ruler of them. There is a subtile man teacher of many, & to his own soul he is unprofitable. 22 A cunning man hath taught many, and is sweet to his own soul. 23 He that speaketh sophistically, is odious: in every thing he shall be defrauded. 24 Grace is not given him of our Lord: for he is defrauded of all wisdom. 25 There is a wise man, wise to his own soul: and the fruit of his understanding is laudable. 26 A wise man teacheth his people, and the fruits of his understanding are faithful. 27 A wise man shall be filled with blessings, and they that see will praise him. 28 The life of a man is in the number of days: but the days (c) of Israel are innumerable.

(c) The days of the Blessed in heaven, who see God, are eternal.

29 A wise man in the people shall inherit honour, and his name shall live for ever. 30 Son in thy life (d) prove thy soul: & if it be wicked, give it not power:[1]

(d) The same which S. Paul admonisheth (1. Cor. 11.) let every one prove himself, by examining & rectifying his conscience.[1] 1. Cor. 6.

31 for all things are not expedient for all, and every kind pleaseth not every soul. 32 Be not greedy in all feasting, and pour not out thyself upon all meat: 33 for in many meats there shall be infirmity, and greediness shall approach even to choler. 34 Because of surfeit many have died: but he that is abstinent, shall add life.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

God hath ordained corporal, 9. and spiritual medicines. 16. Use moderate, not excessive sorrow for the dead. 26. Tradesmen and artificers are necessary, much more spiritual pastors.

Honour the physician (a) for necessity: for the Highest hath created him.

(a) Man's body naturally needeth sustenance, & sometimes physic, and so doth his soul; which as it is more excellent, so it ought to be more regarded.

2 For all medicine is of God, & it shall receive gift of the king. 3 The knowledge of the physician shall exalt his head, and in the sight of great men he shall be praised. 4 The Highest hath created medicines of the earth, and a wise man will not abhor them.

5 [1]Was not bitter water made sweet by wood?

[1] Exo. 15.

6 The virtue of these things is come to the knowledge of men, and the Highest hath given knowledge to men, for to be honoured in his marvelous things. 7 Curing with these things he shall mitigate pain, and the apothecary shall make confections of sweetness, and shall make ointments of health, and his works shall not be consummated. 8 For the peace of God is upon the face of the earth. 9 Son (b)[1]in thine infirmity contemn not thyself, but pray our Lord, and he will cure thee.

(b) Spiritual infirmity requireth spiritual physic.[1] Isa. 38.

10 Turn away from sin, and direct thy hands, and from all offence cleanse thy heart. 11 Give sweetness and a memorial of fine flour, and make a fat oblation, and give place to the physician. 12 For our Lord created him: and let him not depart from thee, because his works be necessary. 13 For there is a time when thou mayst fall into their hands: 14 and they shall beseech our Lord, that he direct their rest, and healing; for their conversation. 15 He that sinneth in his sight, that made him, shall fall into the hands of the physician. 16 Son, upon the dead shed tears, and begin to weep as having suffered doleful things, and according to judgement cover his body, and neglect not his burial. 17 But (c)[1]for detraction bear bitterly the mourning of him one day, and be comforted for the heaviness,

(c) To avoid evil speech, shew that thou art truly sorry for the death of thy friend. But moderate thy sorrow, lest it hurt thyself.[1] Pro. 15. & 17.

18 and make mourning according to his desert one day, or two, because of detraction. 19 For by heaviness death hasteneth, and it covereth the strength, and sorrow of the heart boweth the neck. 20 In abstraction sorrow is permanent: and the substance of the poor is according to his heart. 21 Give not thine heart into heaviness, but expel it from thee: and remember the latter ends, 22 and forget not: for neither is there return, and him thou shalt profit nothing, and thou shalt hurt thyself. 23 Be mindful of my judgement: for thine also must be so: to me yesterday, and to thee today.[1]

24 In the repose of the dead make the memory of him to rest, and comfort him in the departing of his spirit.

25 (d)The wisdom of a scribe in the time of vacancy: and he that is less in action, shall receive wisdom.

(d) When pastors have leisure from preaching, they may then profit others by writing. So S. Paul, not only preached, but also writ. So likewise the Doctors of the Church and other holy Fathers.

26 With what wisdom shall he be replenished, that holdeth the plough, and glorieth in the goad, driveth oxen with the prickle, and converseth in their works, and his talk is in the breed of bulls? 27 He will give his heart to turn up furrows, and his watching in the feeding of kine. 28 So every craftsman and workmaster that passeth the night as the day, that maketh graven seals, and his continual diligence varieth the picture: he will give his heart to the similitude of the picture, and his watching will perfect the work. 29 So the ironsmith sitting by the anvil and considering the work of iron. The vapour of the fire will parch his flesh, and he striveth in the heat of the furnace: 30 The noise of the hammer reneweth his ear, and his eye is against the similitude of the vessel. 31 He will give his heart to the finishing of the works, and his watching will polish to perfection. 32 So the potter sitting at his work, turning the wheel with his feet, who is always set in carefulness for his work, and all his working is in number: 33 With his arm he will fashion the clay, and before his feet he will bend his strength: 34 He will give his heart to finish the varnishing thereof, and his watching will make clean the furnace. 35 All these have hoped in their hands, and every one is wise in his own art. 36 Without these a city is not built. 37 And they shall not inhabit, nor walk therein, and they shall not leap high into the congregation. 38 Upon the judge's seat they shall not sit, and the ordinance of judgement they shall not understand, neither shall they declare discipline and judgement, and in parables they shall not be found: 39 but they shall confirm the creature of the world, and their prayer shall be in the work of their art, applying their soul, & searching in the law of the Highest.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Godly knowledge, 16. purity of soul, 20. humble conceit of ourselves, 27. and consideration of eternal reward, are good dispositions to spiritual contemplation.

The (a) wise man will search out the wisdom of all the ancients, and will be occupied in the prophets.

(a) Besides active life commended in the former chap. it is necessary that virtuous men use also meditation & contemplation. Unto which four dispositions are requisite, described in this chap.

2 He will keep the narration of famous men, and will enter withal into the subtilties of parables. 3 He will search out the hidden senses of proverbs, and will converse in the secrets of parables. 4 In the midst of great men he will minister, and in the sight of the president he shall appear. 5 He shall pass into the land of strange nations: for he shall try good and evil in men. 6 He will give his heart to watch early unto our Lord, that made him, and he will pray in the sight of the Highest. 7 He will open his mouth in prayer, and will entreat for his sins. 8 For if it shall please our great Lord, he will fill him with [1] the spirit of understanding:

(b) True knowledge of holy Mysteries: without the which meditation will be erroneous.

9 and he will pour forth the words of his wisdom as showers, and in prayer will confess to our Lord. 10 And he will direct his counsel, and discipline, and in his secrets he will consult. 11 He will open the discipline of his doctrine, & will glory in the law of the testament of our Lord. 12 Many will praise his wisdom, and it shall not be abolished for ever. 13 The memory of him shall not depart, and his name shall be required from generation to generation. 14 Nations shall declare his wisdom, & the Church will shew forth his praise. 15 If he continue, he shall leave a name more than a thousand: and if he rest, it shall profit him. 16 I will yet consult that I may declare: For as with fury I am replenished. 17 In voice he saith: Hear me ye divine fruits, and as the rose planted upon the rivers of waters fructify ye. 18 As Libanus [1]have ye the odours of sweetness.

(c) Purity of soul free from grievous sins, and endowed with virtues.

19 Flourish ye flowers, as the lily, and give forth an odour, and bring forth leaves in grace, and praise with song, and bless our Lord in his works. 20 [1]Give magnificence to his name, and confess unto him in the voice of your lips, and in songs of the lips, and harps, & thus shall ye say in confession:

(d) Humility is especially required in contemplative persons.

21 [1]All the works of our Lord are exceeding good.

22 [1]At his word the water stood as an heap: and at the word of his mouth as it were receptacles of waters:

[1]Exo. 14.

23 because in his commandment placability is made, and there is no diminishing of his salvation. 24 The works of all flesh are before him, and there is nothing hid from his eyes. 25 From world to world he beholdeth, and nothing is marvelous in his sight. 26 It is not to be said: What is this, or what is that? For all things shall be sought in their time. 27 [1]His blessing hath overflowed as a stream.

[1]4.
(e) Hope of eternal reward comforteth, & encourageth the servants of God.

28 [1]And as a flood hath watered the dry land, so his wrath shall inherit the nations, that have not sought him:

[1]Gen. 7.

29 even as he turned waters into drought, & the earth was made dry: and his ways are direct to the ways of them: so to sinners stumbling blocks in his wrath. 30 Good things were created for the good from the beginning, so for the wicked, good things and evil. 31 (f)The beginning of the thing necessary for the life of men, water, fire, and iron, salt, milk, and bread of flour, and honey, and the cluster of grape, and oil, & clothing.

(f) In the mean time God giveth necessaries for this life. Which the good use rightly to their merit, & the wicked use evil to their damnation.

32 All these shall be converted to saints into good, so also to the impious and to sinners into evil. 33 There are spirits, that were created (g)for vengeance, and in their fury they have confirmed their torments:

(g) Devils were created in state of grace, & of their own will fell from God, & consequently were punished.

34 in the time of consummation they shall pour out strength: and they shall accomplish the fury of him, that made them. 35 Fire, hail, famine, and death, all these were created for vengeance: 36 the teeth of beasts, and scorpions, and serpents, and sword revenging the impious unto destruction. 37 In his commandments they shall make merry, and on the earth they shall be prepared when need is, and in their times they shall not pretermit a word. 38 Therefore from the beginning I was confirmed, and I have consulted, and thought, and left written. 39 All the works of our Lord are good, & he will give every work in his hour. 40 It is not to be said: This is worse than that: for all shall be approved in their time. 41 And now with all heart and mouth praise ye, and bless the name of our Lord.

CHAPTER XL.

The first matter of spiritual meditation may be man's misery, contracted by original sin, 4. and increased by actual, 17. relieved by God's grace: 22. which giveth many benefits, 27. man adding his voluntary cooperation.

Great travail is created to all men, and an heavy yoke upon the children of Adam, from (a)the day of their coming forth of their mother's womb, until the day of their burying, into the mother of all.

[1] Gen. 7.

11 [1]All things that are of the earth, shall turn into the earth, and all waters shall return into the sea.

[1] Eccle. 1.

12 All bribing, and iniquity shall be clean taken away, and fidelity shall stand for ever. 13 The riches of the unjust shall be dried up as a river, and they shall sound as great thunder in rain. 14 In opening his hands he shall rejoice: so transgressors shall pine away in consumption. 15 The nephews of the impious shall not multiply boughs, nor unclean roots sound upon the top of a rock. 16 Over all water greenness, and at the brink of the river it shall be plucked up before all grass. 17 Grace is as paradise in blessings, and mercy remaineth for ever. 18 The life of a workman that is sufficient for himself shall be sweet, and in it thou shalt find a treasure. 19 Children, and building of a city shall confirm the name, and an unspotted woman shall be counted above this. 20 Wine and music make a joyful heart: and the love of wisdom is above both. 21 Shalms, and Psaltery make sweet melody, and a sweet tongue is above both. 22 Thine eye will desire grace and beauty, and (b) green sown fields are above this.

(b) The society of Christ's Church flourishing in all virtues excelleth the benefits of the old Testament.

23 A friend and companion meeting together in time, & above them both is a woman with her husband. 24 Brethren are an help in the time of tribulation, and mercy shall deliver more than they. 25 Gold & silver are the establishing of the feet: and counsel is well accepted above them both. 26 Riches & strength exalt the heart, and above these is the fear of our Lord. 27 There is no diminution in the fear of our Lord, and in it there is no need to seek for help. 28 The fear of our Lord is as a paradise of blessing, and they have covered it above all glory. 29 Son in thy lifetime (c) want not: for it is better to die than to want.

(c) Every one is bound to labour that he want not necessaries.

30 A man that looketh toward another man's table, his life is as no life, thinking how to live, for he feedeth his soul with another man's meats. 31 But a man nurtured and taught, will look to himself. 32 Poverty will be sweet in the mouth of the unwise, and in his belly a fire will burn.

CHAPTER XLI.

Another matter of meditation is death: 8. Whereof sin is the cause. 15. Care of a good fame is necessary. 19. Let shamefastness be a bridle to avoid fornication, 22. iniquity, 24. theft, and other sins.

O Death how bitter is thy memory to a man that hath peace in his riches: 2 to a man that is at rest, and whose ways are prosperous in all things, and that is yet able to take meat! 3 O death, thy judgement is good to a needy man, and him that is diminished in strength, 4 and faileth in age, and that is careful of all things, and to the incredulous, that loseth patience! 5 Fear not the judgement of death. Remember what things have been before thee, and what come after thee: this is the judgement from our Lord to all flesh: 6 and what shall come upon thee by the good pleasure of the Highest? Whether it be ten, or an hundred, or a thousand years. 7 For in hell there is no (a) accusing of life.

(a) It is to no purpose after death to accuse the shortness, or length of life, pretending the same to have been cause of sin. For God doth all justly, yea and for the best, if men would so use his benefits.

8 The children of sinners become children of abominations, and they that converse near the houses of the impious. 9 The inheritance of the children of sinners shall perish, and with their seed shall be continuance of reproach. 10 The children complain of an impious father, because for him they are in reproach. 11 Woe to you ye impious men, which have forsaken the law of our Lord the Highest. 12 And if ye be born, ye shall be born in malediction: and if ye die, in malediction shall be your portion. 13 All things that are of the earth, shall return into the earth: so the impious from malediction to perdition. 14 The mourning of men is in their body, but the name of the impious shall be clean wiped out. 15 Have care of a good name: for this shall be more permanent to thee than a thousand treasures precious and great.

16 There is a number of the days of a good life: but a good name shall continue for ever. 17 Children, keep ye discipline in peace. For wisdom hid, and treasure not seen, what profit is there in them both? 18 Better is the man that hideth his folly, than the man that hideth his wisdom. 19 But yet (b) have reverence to these things, which proceed from my mouth.

(b) It behoveth children, and scholers to esteem that which their elders teach:

20 For it is not good to observe all shamefastness: & (c) all things do not please all men in opinion.

(c) though the same doth not seem reasonable in their own opinion.

21 Be ashamed before father & before mother, of fornication: and before the president and before the mighty, of lying: 22 before the Prince, and before the judge, of offence: before the synagogue and the people, of iniquity: 23 before companion and friend, of injustice: and before the place where thou dwellest, 24 of theft, of the truth of God, and his testament: of leaning on the bread, and of reproof for the thing given and taken: 25 before them that salute thee, of silence: of beholding a woman that is an harlot: and of turning away thy countenance from thy kinsman. 26 Turn not away thy face from thy neighbour, & of taking away part & not restoring. 27 Behold not another man's wife, and search not his handmaid, neither stand by her bed. [1]

[1] Mat. 5. v. 28.

28 Before friends, of opprobrious words: and when thou hast given, upbraid not.

CHAPTER XLII.

Further admonition to avoid sins in words, and deeds: 6. with care that others offend not by our negligence. 15. Another matter of meditation is God's excellency appearing in his works.

Repeat not the word (a) which thou hast heard, neither reveal thou of a secret word, & thou shalt indeed be without confusion, and shalt find grace in the sight of all men: be not ashamed for all these things, and accept not person thereby to sin. [1]

(a) It is not lawful to reveal that, which we justly promise to conceal. [1] Levit. 19. Deu. 1. 16. Pro. 24. Iacob. 2.

2 Of the law of the Highest, and his testament, and of judgement to justify the impious, 3 of the word of companions and wayfaring men, and of the giving of the inheritance of friends, 4 of the equality of balance and weights, of the getting of many things and few, 5 of the corruption of buying, and of merchants, and of much discipline of thy children, and to make bloody the side of a wicked servant. 6 Over a naughty woman a seal is good. 7 Where there are many hands, shut up, and what soever thou shalt deliver, number, and weigh it: and write every thing given and received. 8 Of the discipline of the unwise and foolish, and of ancients, that are judged of young men: and thou shalt be well instructed in all things, and approved in the sight of all the living. 9 A daughter is the secret watch of the father, and the care of her taketh away sleep, lest perhaps in her youth she become past age, & abiding with an husband she become odious: 10 lest at any time she be corrupted in her virginity, and in her father's house she be found with child: lest perhaps abiding with her husband she transgress, or at the least become barren. 11 Over a dissolute daughter keep sure watch: lest at any time she make thee come into reproach with thine enemies, because of detraction in the city, and the objection of the people, and she confound thee in the multitude of the people. 12 Look not on every body for beauty sake: & among women tarry not. 13 For out of garments cometh forth the moth, and from a woman the iniquity of a man. 14 For (b) better is the iniquity of a man, than a woman doing a good turn, and a woman shaming unto reproach.

(b) There is less danger in conversing familiarly with a wicked man, than with a friendly woman.

In which conversation, much prudence is required, as is before admonished. chap. 9.

15 I therefore will be mindful of the works of our Lord, and I will shew forth which I have seen. By the words of our Lord are his works. 16 The sun illuminating hath looked throughout all, and full of the glory of our Lord is his work. 17 Hath not our Lord made the saints to declare all his marvelous things, which our Lord the omnipotent confirmed to be established in his glory? 18 He hath searched out the depth, and the heart of men: & in their subtility he hath considered. 19 For our Lord hath known all knowledge, and hath beheld the sign of age, declaring what things are past, and what are to come, revealing (c) the tokens of secret things.

(c) The excellency of God, which cannot be seen with mortal eye (Exo. 33.) is proposed to our meditation in his works. The like in, Iob. 38. 39. 40. 41. and in many places of holy Scripture.

20 No cogitation escapeth him, and no word hideth itself from him. 21 The glorious works of his wisdom he hath beautified: who is before the world & world without end, neither is there added, 22 nor diminished, and he needeth not any man's counsel. 23 How are all his works to be desired, and which is as it were a spark to consider! 24 All these live, and remain for ever, and in all necessity all things obey him. 25 All things double, one against one, and he hath made nothing to want. 26 He hath confirmed the good things of every one. And who shall be filled seeing his glory?

CHAPTER XLIII.

God's incomparable excellency appeareth in the heavens, 2. in the sun, 6. moon, 9. other stars, 12. rainbow, 14. snow, 15. clouds, 16. hail, 17. wind, 18. thunder, 21. frost, 22. crystal, 24. dew, 26. the sea, and innumerable things therein. 29. No man is able to praise God sufficiently.

The firmament of height is his beauty, the beauty of heaven is in the vision of glory. 2 The (a) sun in sight declaring at his coming forth, a marvelous instrument, the work of the Highest.

(a) Of all senseless creatures, yea & of sensible also, that have not reason, the sun is most excellent. Of which all corporal creatures receive their light: & by whose influence all generation of creatures proceedeth: whereof is this Maxim in Philosophy, that The sun and man beget a man. And Aristotel calleth the sun the father of men and of gods.

li. 2. de anima. But the faithful know it is a creature inferior to man, in respect of his reasonable soul, and in them both & in all other creatures, acknowledge super-excellent & infinite Majesty in God.

(b) Which also appeareth even in the least creatures, whose natural substances & qualities, with other accidents, the more any man considereth the more he shall admire God, the only Creator of all.

3 At noon it burneth the earth, and who can abide in the presence of the heat thereof: keeping a furnace in the works of heat: 4 the sun three times so much burning the mountains, casting out fiery beams, and shining with his beams blindeth the eyes. 5 Great is our Lord that made it, and by his words it hath hastened his course. 6 And the moon in all in her time, is the shewing of season and the sign of age.
7 By the moon is the sign of a festival day, a light that diminisheth in consummation. 8 The month is according to her name, increasing marvelously in consummation. 9 An instrument of the camp on high, shining gloriously in the firmament of heaven. 10 The glory of the stars is the beauty of heaven, our Lord illuminating the world on high. 11 In the words of the holy one they shall stand to judgement, and shall not fail in their watches. 12 See the bow, and bless him that made it: it is very beautiful in his brightness. 13 It hath compassed heaven in the circuit of his glory, the hands of the Highest have opened it. 14 But by his commandment he hath hastened snow, & he hasteth to send forth the lightnings of his judgement.
15 Therefore are the treasures opened, & the clouds fly forth as birds. 16 By his greatness he hath set the clouds, & the hailstones are broken. 17 In his sight the mountains shall be moved, & at his will the south wind hath blown. 18 The noise of his thunder shall beat the earth, the tempest of the northwind, and the gathering together of wind: 19 and as the bird lighting down to sit, he scattereth snow, and the falling thereof, is as the locust diving downward. 20 (b) The eye shall admire the beauty of the whiteness thereof, and the heart quaketh at the shower thereof.
21 He shall pour out frost upon the earth as salt: and when it freezeth, it shall be made as the tops of a thistle. 22 The cold north wind blew, & of water there froze crystal, upon all gathering together of waters it shall rest, & as a breast plate it shall put itself upon the waters. 23 And it shall devour the mountains, & burn the desert, & extinguish that which is green as fire.
24 The remedy of all is in the hasty coming of a cloud, and a dew meeting it by the heat that cometh, shall make it quail. 25 At his word the wind was still, and with his thought he appeased the depth, and our Lord planted Islands therein. 26 They that sail on the sea, tell the perils thereof: & hearing with our ears we shall marvel. 27 There are goodly works, & marvelous: diverse kinds of beasts, & of all cattle, & the creature of mighty beasts. 28 Through him is the end of their journey confirmed, and by his word all things are set in order. 29 We shall say many things, & shall fail in words; but the sum of our words is, He is in all.
30 Glorifying him how far shall we be able? For the omnipotent himself is above all his works. 31 Our Lord is terrible, & exceeding great, & his might is marvelous. 32 Glorifying our Lord as much as ever you can, he shall yet surpass, and his magnificence is marvelous. 33 Blessing our Lord, exalt him as much as you can: for he is greater than all praise. 34 Exalting him be ye replenished with strength. Labour not: for you shall not comprehend. 35 Who shall see him, and shall declare him? And who shall magnify him as he is from the beginning? 36 Many things hid are greater than these: for we have seen few of his works. 37 But our Lord made all things, and to them that live piously he hath given wisdom.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Praises of holy fathers in general: 16. and in particular of Enoch, 17. Noe, 20. Abraham, 24. Isaac, and Jacob.[1]

[1] The 2. part.
Examples and praises of holy men: with praise & thanks to God.

Let us praise glorious men, and our fathers in their generation. 2 Much glory hath our Lord made by his magnificence from the beginning of the world. 3 Ruling in their (a) dominions, men great for force, and endued with their wisdom, declaring in the prophets the dignity of prophets,

(a) Virtuous men are rightly called Lords, and Princes; so the children of Heth said to Abraham. My Lord, thou art a prince of God among us. Gen. 23.

4 and ruling in the people that was present, and by the virtue of wisdom most holy words to the peoples. 5 In their skill seeking out musical melodies, & uttering songs of scriptures. 6 Rich men in force studying beautifulness: living at peace in their houses. 7 All these in the generations of their nation have obtained glory, and in their days are praised. 8 They that were born of them have left a name to tell their praises: 9 and there are some of whom there is no memory: they are perished, as they that never were; & are born, as not born at all, & their children with them. 10 But they are men of mercy, whose godly deeds have not failed: 11 good things continue with their seed, 12 their nephews are an holy inheritance, and their seed hath stood in the testaments: 13 and their children because of them abide for ever: their seed and their glory shall not be forsaken. 14 Their bodies are buried in peace, and their name liveth unto generation and generation. 15 (b) Let peoples tell their wisdom, and the Church declare their praise.

(b) Enoch shall preach penance in the time of Antichrist.

16 Henoch pleased God, and was translated into paradise, that he may give repentance to the nations. 17 Noe was found (c) [1] perfect, just, and in the time of wrath he was made a reconciliation.

(c) Noe was perfect. [1] Gen. 5. Gen. 6. Gen. 9.

18 Therefore was there a remnant left to the earth, when the flood was made. 19 The testaments of the world were made with him, that all flesh should no more be destroyed with the flood. 20 Abraham the great (d) [1] father of the multitude of the nations, and there was not found the like to him in glory, who kept the law of the Highest, and was in covenant with him.

(d) Abraham father of all the believers in Christ. [1] Gen. 12.

21 In his flesh he made the covenant to stand, and in tentation he was found faithful. 22 [1] Therefore by an oath he gave him glory in his nation, that he should increase as an heap of earth,

23 and that he would exalt his seed as the stars, and they should inherit from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth. 24 And he did in like manner in Isaac for Abraham his father. 25 Our Lord gave him the (e) blessing of all nations, and confirmed his covenant upon the head of Jacob.

(e) Isaac and Jacob were blessed in Abraham.

26 He knew him in his blessings, and gave him an inheritance, & divided him his portion in twelve tribes. 27 And he preserved unto him men of mercy, and found grace in the eyes of all flesh.

CHAPTER XLV.

Praises of Moyses, 7. Aaron, 16. and his priestly progeny. 22. Against whom Core with his complices rebelling, were destroyed.

Moyses [1] beloved of God, and men: whose memory is in benediction.

[1] Exo. 3.

2 He made him like in the glory of saints, and magnified him in the fear of his enemies. And with his words he appeased monsters. 3 He glorified him in the sight of kings, and gave him commandment before his people, & shewed him his glory. 4 In his faith and meekness he made him holy, and chose him of all flesh. 5 [1] For he heard him, and his voice, and brought him into a cloud.

[1] Num. 21.

6 And he gave him precepts (a) face to face, and a law of life and discipline, to teach Jacob his testament, and Israel his judgements.

(a) Moyses saw God's works more clearly than other Prophets, yet saw not his substance, as is noted Exod. 33.

7 He exalted Aaron his brother high, and like to himself of the tribe of Levi. [1]

[1] Exo. 28.

8 He established unto him (b) an everlasting testament, and gave him the Priesthood of the nation, and made him blessed in glory,

(b) Aaron's priesthood continued so long as Moyses' law: that was till Christ. And now the priesthood according to the order of Melchisedech continueth to the end of the world.

9 and he girded him about with a girdle, and put upon him a robe of glory, and crowned him in furniture of power. 10 Garments to the feet, and breeches, and an Ephod he put upon him, and compassed him with little bells of gold very many round about, 11 to give a sound in his going, to make sound heard in the temple for a memory to the children of his nation. 12 An holy robe, of gold, and hyacinth, and purple, a woven work, of a wiseman, endued with judgement and truth: 13 Of twisted scarlet the work of an artificer, with precious stones figured in the closure of gold, and graven by the work of a lapidary for a memorial, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. 14 A crown of gold upon his mitre graven with a seal of holiness, and the glory of honour: a work of power, & the adorned desires of the eyes. 15 There were none such so fair before him, even from the beginning. 16 No stranger was clothed with them, but only his children alone, and his nephews for ever. 17 [1] His sacrifices were consumed with fire every day.

[1] Lev. 8.

18 Moyses filled his hands, & anointed him with holy oil. 19 It was made unto him for an everlasting testament, and to his seed as the days of heaven, to do the function of Priesthood, and to have praise and to glorify his people in his name. 20 He chose him of all that lived, to offer sacrifice to God, incense, and good odour, for a memorial to pacify for his people: 21 and he gave them power in his precepts, in the testaments of his judgements, to teach Jacob his testimonies, and in his law to give light to Israel. 22 [1] Because strangers stood against him, and for envy men compassed him about in the desert, they that were with Dathan and Abiron, and the congregation of Core in anger.

[1] Num. 16.

23 Our Lord God saw, and it please him not, and they were consumed in the violence of wrath. 24 He did prodigious things unto them, and consumed them in flame of fire. 25 And he added glory to Aaron, and gave him an inheritance, and divided unto him the first fruits of the increase of the earth. 26 He prepared them bread in the first unto satiety: for the sacrifices also of our Lord they shall eat, which he gave to him, and to his seed. 27 But (c) he shall not inherit the nations in the land, and he hath no part in the nation: for himself is his portion & inheritance.

(c) The tribe of Levi had not a portion of inheritance separate from the rest, but had tithes, first fruits, and oblations for their temporal provision.

28 [1] Phinees the son of Eleazar is the third in glory, in imitating him in the fear of our Lord:

[1] Nu. 25.

29 and to stand in the reverence of the nation: in the goodness and alacrity of his soul he pacified God for Israel. 30 Therefore did he establish unto him a covenant of peace, to be the Prince of the holies, and to his nation, that the dignity of Priesthood should be to him and to his seed for ever. 31 And the testament to (d) David king, the son of Jesse of the tribe of Juda, and inheritance to him and to his seed, that he might give wisdom into our heart to judge his nation in justice, that their good things might not be abolished, & their glory in their nation he made everlasting.

(d) King David gave special assistance to the Priests, and greatly advanced God's service 1. Paral. 23. &c.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Praises of Josue, 9. Caleb, 13. the Judges of Israel, 16. Namely of Samuel Judge and Prophet.

Strong in battle was Jesus the son of Nave, (a) successor of Moyses among the prophets, who was great according to his name,

(a) Iosue succeeded in the temporal government: for the spiritual pertained to the successors of Aaron. Num. 27.

2 most great in the salvation of God's elect, to overthrow the enemies rising up, that he might get the inheritance of Israel. 3 What glory obtained he in lifting up his hands, and casting swords against the cities? 4 Who before him did so resist? For our Lord himself brought the enemies. 5 [1]Whether was not the sun hindered in his anger, and one day was made as two?

[1] Iosue 10.

6 He invocated the mighty sovereign in assaulting of the enemies on every side, and the great and holy God heard him in hail-stones of exceeding great force. 7 He made violent assault against the nation of his enemies, and in the going down he destroyed the adversaries, 8 that the nations might know his might, that it is not easy to fight against God. And he followed at the back of the mighty. 9 [1]And in the days of Moyses did mercy, and (b) Caleb the son of Jephone, did stand against the enemy, and stayed the nation from sins, and appeased the murmuring of malice.

[1] Nu. 14. (b) Only Iosue and Caleb remained of those which came out of Aegypt, all the rest died in the desert; and their children entered into Chanaan. Num. 14.

10 And they two being appointed, were delivered out of danger from among the number of six hundred thousand foot men, to bring them into their inheritance, into the land that yieldeth milk and honey. 11 [1]And our Lord gave strength to Caleb himself, and his strength continued even until old age, so that he went up into the high place of the land, & his seed obtained inheritance.

12 That all the children of Israel might see, that it is good to obey the holy God. 13 And (c) all the judges by their name, whose heart was not corrupted: which were not turned away from our Lord,

(c) Though some of the Judges were sometimes great sinners, yet they were finally just, & for their good acts much renowned.

14 that their memory might be blessed, and their bones spring out of their place,[1]

15 and their name continue for ever, the glory of the holy men remaining unto their children. 16 The beloved of our Lord his God^ Samuel the prophet of our Lord, renewed the empire, and (d) anointed princes in his nation.

(d) Samuel anointed Saul and David Kings.

17 By the law of our Lord he judged the congregation, and the God of Jacob saw, and in his fidelity was proved a prophet. 18 And he was known faithful in his words, because he saw the God of light: 19 and invocated our Lord Omnipotent, in assaulting the enemies besetting him on every side, in the oblation of an immaculate lamb. 20 [1]And our Lord thundered from heaven, and in great sound he made his voice heard,

[1] 1. Reg. 7.

21 and he discomfited the Princes of the Tyrians, and all the dukes of the Philisthiims: 22 [1]and before the time of the end of his life, and the world, he gave testimony before our Lord, and his Christ, money and what soever besides unto the very shoes he took not of all flesh, and no man accused him.

[1] 1. Reg. 12.

23 And after this he slept, and (e) [1]he notified to the king, and shewed him the end of his life, and he exalted his voice out of the earth in prophecy, to take clean away the impiety of the nation.

(e) If Samuel himself had not appeared, (but some other spirit) it could not have been noted in his praises. See. 1. Reg. 28.[1] 1. Reg. 28.

CHAPTER XLVII.

Praises of Nathan, 2. David, 14. and Salomon, in whose progeny (21. notwithstanding his fall) 27. the royal sceptre remained for David's sake, though for his and his people's sins ten tribes were cut off, and fell into schism.

After [1] these things arose Nathan the Prophet in the days of David.

2 And as the fat separated from the flesh, so was David from the children of Israel. 3 [1] He played with lions as it were with lambs: and with bears he did in like manner as with lambs of sheep in his youth.

[1] 1. Reg. 17.

4 [1] Did not he kill the giant, & took away reproach from his nation?

[1] Ibidem.

5 In lifting up his hand, with a stone of the sling he overthrew the boasting of Goliath: 6 for he invocated our Lord the omnipotent, and he gave in his right hand, to take away the man strong in battle, and to exalt the horn of his nation. 7 [1] So in ten thousand did he glorify him, and praised him in the blessings of our Lord, in offering to him a crown of glory:

[1] 1. Reg. 18.

8 for he destroyed the enemies on every side, and rooted out the Philisthiims the adversaries even until this present day: he brake their horn for ever. 9 In every work he gave confession to the Holy one, and to the Highest, in the word of glory. 10 From (a) all his heart he praised our Lord, & loved God, that made him, and gave him might against his enemies:

(a) Amongst all the renowned acts of David his pure and sincere heart most pleased God.

11 [1] and he made singers to stand before the altar, and by their sound he made sweet tunes.

[1] 1. Par. 25.

12 And in the solemnities he gave honour, and adorned the times even to the end of his life, that they should praise the holy name of our Lord, and magnify the holiness of God in the morning. 13 [1] Our Lord purged his sins, and exalted his horn for ever: and he gave him a testament of the kingdom, and the seat of glory in Israel.

[1] 2. Reg. 12.

14 After him arose a wise son, and for (b) him did he overthrow all the might of the enemies.

(b) For David's sake God gave wisdom to Salomon, and peace in his kingdom.

15 [1] Salomon reigned in days of peace, to whom God subdued all his enemies, that he might build an house in his name, & prepare holiness for ever: as (c) [2] thou art instructed in thy youth.

[1] 3. Reg. 3. (c) By Apostrophe the author turneth his speech to Salomon. [2] 3. Reg. 4.

16 And thou art replenished as a river with wisdom, and thy soul discovered the earth. 17 And thou didst multiply dark sayings in comparisons: thy name was bruited to the islands far off, and thou wast beloved in thy peace. 18 The lands marveled at the songs and proverbs, and comparisons, and interpretations, 19 and at the name of our Lord God, whose name is, God of Israel. 20 Thou didst gather gold as copper, and filledst silver as lead, [1]

21 and bowedst thy thighs to women: thou hast had power on thy body. 22 Thou (d) [1] hast made a blot in thy glory, & profaned thy seed to bring wrath to thy children, & thy folly to be kindled,

23 to make the Kingdom divided, and a stubborn kingdom to reign of Ephraim. 24 [1] But God will not leave his mercy, and he will not corrupt, nor abolish his own works, neither will he destroy from the stock the nephews of his elect: and he will not corrupt the seed of him, that loveth our Lord.

[1] Psa. 88. v. 34.

25 But he gave a remnant to Jacob, and to David of the same stock. 26 And Salomon had an end with his fathers. 27 And he left after him of his seed, the folly of the nation, 28 [1] and Roboam having little wisdom, who turned away the nation by his counsel,

[1] 3. Reg. 12.

29 and Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, and made a way of sinning to Ephraim, and their sins did abound very many. 30 They removed them away from their land very far. 31 And he sought all iniquities, till there came defense unto them, and he rid them from all sins.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

Praises of Elias, 13. Eliseus, 19. Ezechias, 23. and Isaias.

And there arose Elias the prophet, as it were fire, and his word burnt as a little torch. 2 [1]Who brought famine upon them, and they provoking him in their envy were made few, for they could not abide the precepts of our Lord.

3 By the word of our Lord he stayed heaven, and he brought down fire from heaven (a) thrice.

(a) Elias procured fire from heaven to burn his sacrifice, 3. Reg. 18. and twice more to burn an hundred men which persecuted him. 4. Reg. 1.

4 So was Elias magnified in his marvelous works. And who can so glory like unto thee? 5 Who didst raise up the dead from hell, from the lot of death, in the word of our Lord God. 6 Who didst cast down kings to destruction, and didst easily break their might, and the glorious from their bed. 7 Who hearest judgement in Sina, and in Horeb judgements of defence. 8 [1]Who anointest kings to repentance, and makest Prophets successors after thee.

9 [1]Who wast received in a whirlwind of fire, in a chariot of fiery horses.

[1] 4. Reg. 2.

10 Who art written in the judgements of times, to appease the wrath of our Lord, to reconcile the heart of the father to the son, and to restore the tribes of Jacob. 11 Blessed are they that saw thee, and were honoured in thy friendship. 12 For we live by life only, but after death our name shall not be such. 13 Elias was indeed hid in the whirlwind, & his spirit was complete in Eliseus: in his days he feared not the Prince, and no man overcame him by might.

14 Neither did any word overcome him, and his body (b) [1]prophesied being dead.

(b) The miracle wrought by his dead body shewed that he was an holy Prophet. 4. Reg. 13. See the miracles of Elias, & Eliseus. To. 1. pag. 940. [1] 4. Reg. 13.

15 In his life he did wonders, and in death he wrought marvelous things. 16 In all these things the people repented not, and they departed not from their sins, till they were cast out of their land, and were dispersed into all the earth 17 And there was left a very small nation, and a Prince in the house of David. 18 Some of them did that which pleased God: but others committed many sins. 19 Ezechias fenced his city, and brought in water into the midst thereof, and digged a rock with iron, and built a well for water. [1]

20 In his days came up Sennacherib, and sent Rabsaces, and lifted up his hand against them, and put forth his hand upon Sion, and became proud by his mightiness. [1]

[1] 4. Reg. 18.

21 Then were their hearts and hands moved: and they were in sorrow as travailing women. 22 And they invocated our merciful Lord, and spreading their hands, they lifted them up to heaven, and the holy Lord God (c) quickly heard their voice.

(c) Prayer prevailed, when forces were not sufficient. See. 4. Reg. 19.

23 He was not mindful of their sins, neither did he give them to their enemies, but purged them by the hand of Isaie the holy Prophet. [1]

[1] 4. Reg. 19.

24 [1]He overthrew the camp of the Assyrians, and the Angel of our Lord destroyed them.

[1] Isa. 37.

25 For Ezechias did that which pleased God, and went strongly in the way of David his father, which Isaie commanded him, the great prophet, and faithful in the sight of God. 26 [1]In his days the sun returned backward, & added life to the king.

[1] 4. Reg. 20. Isa. 38.

27 By a great spirit he saw the last things, and comforted the mourners in Sion. 28 For ever he shewed the things to come, & secret things before they came to pass.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XLVIII.

[1] Not only this book but also other holy scriptures witness that Elias shall return and preach before the end of the world. S. Chrysostom, Aretas, and other Doctors testify the same. See. Annot. Gen. 5.

[2] Mal. 4.

[5] Apoc. 11.

10. Who art written.] [1]Amongst other quarrels, Protestants except against the authentical authority of this book, because the Author saith, that Enoch and Elias shall come again, to appease the wrath of our Lord, to reconcile the father to the son, and to restore the tribes of Jacob. But that this is no just exception, is clear by other holy Scriptures, where the same uniform doctrine of the whole Church is no less evident, than in this book. For God himself saith the same also by the mouth of his Prophet Malachie: [2]Behold I will send you Elias the Prophet, before the day of our Lord come, the great and dreadful. Christ also saith: Elias indeed shall come, and restore all things. [3] Whereupon S. Chrysostom, after he hath shewed how terrible Antichrist shall be,[4] by reason of his temporal power, cruelty, and wicked laws, he addeth: Fear thou not: He shall only have force in the reprobate, that perish. For then also Elias shall come, to fortify the faithful. Likewise the words in the Apocalypse:[5] I will give to my two witnesses, & they shall Prophesy a thousand two hundred & three score days, were ever invariably understood by tradition, from the first preachers of Christ (as the ancient writer Aretas testifieth) that Enoch and Elias shall come, & admonish all, not to give credit to the deceitful wonders of Antichrist: and that they shall travail in this testimony the space of three years and a half. For 1260 days come very near to that space of time.

CHAPTER XLIX.

Praises of Josias, who (like to David, and Ezechias) took away occasions of idolatry. 8. Praises of Jeremy, 10. Ezechiel, 12. and the twelve Prophets. 13. Also of Zorobabel, Jesus the son of Josedech, Nehemias, Enoch, Joseph, Seth, Sem, and Adam.

The [1] memory of Josias is according to the confection of perfume made by the work of an apothecary.

[1] 4. Reg. 22.

2 His remembrance shall be sweet as honey in every mouth, & as music in a banquet of wine. 3 [1]He was directed by God into the repentance of the nation, and he took away the abominations of impiety.

[1] 2. Par. 34.

4 [1]And he governed his heart toward our Lord, and in the days of sinners he strengthened piety.

[1] 4. Reg. 13.

5 Except David, and Ezechias, and Josias, (a) all committed sin.

(a) Many other Kings of Juda refrained always from committing idolatry, but these three destroyed all places of idolatry in their kingdom, which the others did not.

6 For the kings of Juda forsook the law of the Highest, and contemned the fear of God. 7 For they gave their kingdom to others and their glory to a strange nation. 8 [1]They burnt the chosen city of holiness, & made the ways thereof desolate in the hand of Jeremie.

[1] 4. Reg. 25.

9 For they evil entreated him, who was consecrated a prophet from his mother's womb,[1] to overthrow, & pluck up, and destroy, and to build again, and renew.

[1] Iere. 1.

10 [1]Ezechiel who saw the sight of glory, which he shewed him in the chariot of Cherubs.

[1] Ezec. 1.

11 For he made mention of the enemies in rain, to do good unto them, that have shewed right ways. 12 And the bones of the twelve prophets well may they spring out of their place: for they have strengthened Jacob, and have redeemed themselves in the fidelity of power. 13 [1]How may we magnify Zorobabel? For he also was as a signet on the right hand,

[1] Agge. 2.

14 [1]and so Jesus the son of Josedec: who in their days built the house, and erected the holy temple to our Lord, prepared to everlasting glory.

[1] 1. Esd. 3.
3. Esd. 5. Zach. 3.

15 [1]And Nehemias in the memory of much time, who erected us our walls overthrown, and set up the gates and locks, who built our houses.

[1] 2. Esd. 2.

16 No man hath been born in the earth like to Henoch: for (b)[1]he also was taken up from the earth.

(b) See the Annotation. ch. 38.[1] Gen. 5.

17 [1]Neither as Joseph, who was a man born Prince of his brethren, the stay of the nation, the ruler of his brethren, the stay of the people:

[1] Gen. 39. 40 &c.

18 and his bones were visited, and after death (c) they prophesied.

(c) Ioseph prophesying that the people should depart from Aegypt, willed them to carry his bones with them. Gen. 50. So by carrying his bones they professed, that he had truly prophesied.

19 Seth, and Sem obtained glory with men: and above every soul, in the beginning Adam.

CHAPTER L.

Praises of Simon the High Priest. 27. Detestation of certain persecuting adversaries. 29. With conclusion that the observers of this doctrine shall be wise and happy.

Simon (a)[1]the son of Onias, the high priest, who in his life held up the house, and in his days strengthened the temple.

(a) This Simon called Iustus, and Priscus, was high Priest when this book was written (in the time of Ptolomie the first, King of Aegypt) a very holy man, and dead before it was translated into Greek about the time of Ptolomie the third called Evergetes, near 300. years before Christ.[1] Iosephus lib. 12. Antiq.

2 The height also of the temple was founded by him, the double building and high walls of the temple. 3 In his days the wells of waters flowed out, and they were filled as the sea above measure. 4 Who had care of his nation, and delivered it from perdition. 5 Who prevailed to amplify the city, who obtained glory in conversing with the nation: and amplified the entrance of the house, and the court. 6 As the morning star in the midst of a cloud, and as the full moon he shineth in his days. 7 And as the sun shining, so did he shine in the temple of God. 8 As the rainbow that shineth among the clouds of glory, and as a flower of roses in the days of the spring, and as the lilies that are in the passage of water, and as frankincense smelling in summer days. 9 As fire glistering, and frankincense burning in the fire. 10 As a massy vessel of gold, adorned with every precious stone. 11 As an olive tree budding, and a cypress tree advancing itself on high, when he took the robe of glory, and was revested to the consummation of strength. 12 In going up to the holy altar, he made the vesture of holiness, glory. 13 And in receiving the portions out of the hand of the Priests, himself also standing by the altar. About him was the ring of his brethren: and as the cedar plant in mount Libanus, 14 so stood they about him as boughs of the palm tree, & all the children of Aaron in their glory. 15 And the oblation of our Lord in their hands, before all the synagogue of Israel: and executing the consummation on the altar, to amplify the oblation of the high King, 16 he stretched forth his hand in [1]oblation of moist sacrifice, and offered of the blood of the grape.

17 He poured out on the foundation of the altar a divine odour to the high Prince. 18 Then cried out the children of Aaron, they sounded with beaten trumpets, and made a great voice to be heard for a remembrance before God. 19 Then all the people together made haste, and fell on their face upon the earth, to adore our Lord their God, and to make prayers to God Omnipotent the Highest. 20 And the singers amplified in their voices, and in the great house the sound was increased full of sweetness. 21 And the people in prayer desired our Lord the Highest, until the honour of our Lord was perfected, and they finished their office. 22 [1]Then coming down, he lifted up his hands over all the congregation of the children of Israel, to give glory to God from his lips, and to glory in his name,

[1] Num. 6. v. 23.

23 and he repeated his prayer, willing to shew the power of God. 24 And now pray ye the God of all, who hath done great things in all the land, who hath increased our days from our mother's womb, and hath done with us according to his mercy: 25 give he unto us joyfulness of heart everlasting: 26 that Israel may believe that the mercy of God is with us, to deliver us in his days. 27 Two nations my soul hateth: and the third is (b)no nation, which I hate:

(b) Three nations; the Idumeans, Philistiims, and Samaritanes, did most persecute the Israelites: the Samaritanes were no one pure nation, but mixt of Assirians and Jews: and so here called no nation.

28 they that sit in mount Seir, and the Philisthiims, and the (c)foolish people that dwell in Sichem.

(c) They are also called a foolish people, because they knowing true religion, mixed idolatry therewith, according to diverse sects, as appeareth 4. Reg. 17. v. 29.

29 Jesus the son of Sirach, a man of Jerusalem, wrote the doctrine of wisdom and discipline in this book, who renewed wisdom from his heart. 30 Blessed is he, that converseth in these good things: and he that layeth them in his heart, shall be wise always. 31 For if he do them, he shall be able to do all things: because his steps are in the light of God.

CHAPTER LI.

The Author rendereth praises and thanks to God; 18. and inviteth others to do the same, by his own example, 31. and by earnest exhortation.

The prayer of Jesus the son of Sirach. (a)I will confess to thee o Lord King, and will praise thee God my Savior.

(a) Where we are not able to render recompence to benefactors; especially to God, we are the more bound to acknowledge his many great benefits, altogether undeserved by us.

2 I will confess to thy name: because thou art become my helper and protector, 3 & hast delivered my body from perdition, from the snare of an unjust tongue, and from the lips of them that work lying, and in the sight of them that stood up^ thou art become my helper. 4 And thou hast delivered me according to the multitude of the mercy of thy name from them that did roar, prepared to devour, 5 out of the hands of them that seek my soul, and from the gates of tribulations which have compassed me: 6 from the oppression of the flame, which hath compassed me, and in the midst of fire I was not burnt. 7 From the depth of the belly of hell, and from a defiled tongue, and from the word of lying, from a wicked king, and from an unjust tongue: 8 my soul shall praise our Lord even to death, 9 and my life was approaching to hell beneath. 10 They have compassed me on every side, & there was none that would help. I looked toward the help of men, & there was none. 11 I remembered thy mercy o Lord, and thy operation, which are from the beginning of the world. 12 Because thou deliverest them that patiently expect thee o Lord, and savest them out of the hands of the nations 13 Thou hast exalted my habitation upon the earth, and I have prayed for death to pass away. 14 I have invocated our Lord the father of my Lord, that he leave me not in the day of my tribulation, and in the time of the proud without help. 15 I will praise thy name continually, and will collaud it in confession, and my prayer was heard. 16 And thou hast delivered me from perdition, and hast rescued me from the wicked time. 17 Therefore will I confess, & say praise to thee, and bless the name of our Lord. 18 When I was yet (b) young, before I erred, I sought for wisdom openly in my prayer.

(b) When senses are most ripe, and the soul most free from great sins, is the aptest time to serve God, & to get all virtues, and true knowledge. Eccle. 12.

19 Before the temple I prayed for it, and unto the later end I will seek after it, and it shall flourish as the grape timely ripe, 20 my heart hath rejoiced in it, my foot hath walked the right way, from my youth I searched after it. 21 I bowed mine ear a little, and received it. 22 I found much wisdom in myself, & I have much profited therein. 23 To him that giveth me wisdom, will I give glory. 24 For I have consulted to do it: I have had a zeal to good, and shall not be confounded. 25 My soul hath wrestled in it, and in doing it I was confirmed. 26 I stretched forth my hands on high, & I lamented foolishness. 27 I directed my soul to wisdom, and in knowledge I found it. 28 I possessed with it an heart from the beginning: for this cause I shall not be forsaken. 29 My belly was troubled in seeking it: therefore shall I possess a good possession. 30 Our Lord hath given me a tongue for my reward: and with the same I will praise him. 31 Approach unto me ye unlearned, and gather yourselves together into the house of discipline. 32 Why slack ye yet? And what say you herein? Your souls are exceeding thirsty. 33 I have opened my mouth, and have spoken: Buy it for you without silver, 34 and submit your neck to the yoke, and let your soul receive discipline: for it is very near to find it. 35 See with your eyes that I have laboured a little, and have found much rest to myself. 36 Take ye discipline (c) in a great sum of silver, and possess aboundance of gold in it.

(c) In stead of riches labour to get wisdom for it is much better than all gold & silver.

37 Let your soul rejoice in his mercy, and you shall not be confounded in praise. 38 Work your work (d) before the time, and he will give you your reward in his time.

(d) Merit is in this life, and reward in the next.

The end of the Sapiential Books.

THE FOURTH PART OF THE OLD TESTAMENT CONTAINING PROPHETICAL BOOKS.

The argument of Prophetical books in general.

[1] God's special benefit of sending Prophets to the people.

[2] The function of Prophets, to exhort to repentance, with hope of God's mercy by Christ.

[3] Four greater Prophets, and twelve lesser were authors of the prophetical books following. Baruch's book being inserted in Jeremie's.

[4] Prophecies are called visions, for their certainty.

[5] Light of prophecy is next to the light of glory, and more clear than the light of faith.

[1] Amongst many great benefits, which God bestowed upon his peculiar people in the old Testament, one principal, and very excellent was, that besides their ordinary Pastors, and governers in spiritual causes, the Priests of Aaron's progeny, and other clergy men of the same tribe of Levi, in Hierarchical subordination of one chief, with other superiors and subjects, disposed in sacred functions; he also gave them other extraordinary Prophets of sundry tribes, as admonitors and guides, to reduce them from errors of sin, into the right way of virtue. [2] Which office the same Prophets performed, as well by threatening the offenders with God's wrath, and punishment, as by exhorting them to repentance, and so to trust in God's assured mercy, that he would give them better times, and relief from their miseries. But most especially these holy Prophets did foresee, and foretell the happy times of Grace in the New Testament. The coming of Messias, Christ our Redeemer and Saviour: With the mysteries of his Incarnation, Birth, Passion, Death, Resurrection, Ascension, Coming of the Holy Ghost, Foundation, Propagation, perpetual Stability of his Church; and finally the General Judgement, Eternal Glory of the blessed, and Everlasting pain of the damned. For albeit they preached and prophesied many things, properly and immediately pertaining to the particular state, and people of the Jews, and other nations, where they conversed, yet the principal sum of all the prophetical books, is of Christ and his Church. Yea all the old Testament is a general prophecy, and foreshewing of the New. Which (as we noted in the beginning) is contained, and lieth hid in the old. Nevertheless speaking more distinctly of the proper arguments, or contents of the four parts of the old Testament, the former three more peculiarly set forth the Law, the History, and Sapiential precepts: and this last part chiefly containeth Prophecies of things to come. Of which the greatest part is now come to pass, or daily fulfilled, and the rest shall likewise be performed in due time. So now in order after the Legal, Historical, and Sapiential books, follow the Prophetical: and are these, according to the names of the Prophets that writ them. [3] Isaie, Jeremy with Baruch, Ezechiel, and Daniel, commonly called the greater Prophets: and the twelve lesser are Osee, Joel, Amos, Abdias, Ionas, Micheas, Nahum, Abacuc, Sophonias, Aggeus, Zacharie and Malachie. Who were all singularly inspired, and governed in their preachings and writings, by the Holy Ghost, that they could not err. Yea they were so illuminated in their understanding, that they clearly saw that, which they uttered. And therefore their Prophecies are called Visions, [4] for the assured infallibility of truth, which they avouch. For as nothing is more certain in vulgar knowledge than that, which we see with our corporal eyes, and therefore of all witnesses the eye witness is esteemed the surest: and as in all natural knowledge, that is most certain, which is seen by discourse of reason: so in supernatural knowledge nothing is more assured than that, which is seen by supernatural light. Whereof there be three sorts: the light of Faith, of Prophecy, and of Glory. [5] All three certain, and undoubted; but most clear and manifest is the vision by light of glory: whereby God is seen in himself, and all things in him, that pertain to the state of every glorious Saint. Next thereto is the vision by light of prophecy, wherewith God illuminateth the understanding of the Prophet by a special, extraordinary, and transitory light of grace, that either he clearly seeth the revealed truths, or at least perfectly knoweth, that he is moved by the Holy Ghost, though he understand not all, that the Holy Ghost intendeth; and so when, and where it is God's will, he uttereth the same, for instruction of others. The last, which is also certain, but more obscure, is the supernatural knowledge, which all Catholic Christians have by light of faith, assuredly believing all things which God revealeth by his Church.

Concerning therefore this excellent divine gift of Prophecy, granted to few, for the benefit of all God's servants, we are here to inform the vulgar reader, that whereas these prophecies are for most part hard to be understood, [1] and as S. Peter teacheth, not known by private interpretation, but must be interpreted by the same Spirit, wherewith they were written, [2] our purpose is not to explicate them, nor yet to produce large explications of the godly learned Fathers, but rather fewer and briefer notes than heretofore, and for the rest we remit the more learned and studious readers, according to their capacities, to search the same, in the commentaries of ancient and late Expositers: wishing others to content themselves, with the more easy parts of holy Scriptures, and other godly books, and daily instructions of spiritual teachers. And such as do also read these, may observe with us, these (amongst other) special causes of the hardness of the Prophets. One cause is the frequent interruptions of sentences, [3] with sudden change from one person, or matter to another, without apparent coherence. Which S. Jerom noteth in sundry places. [4] As Isaie. 7. after that the Prophet hath severely reprehended king Achab, for his distrust of God's assistance against his temporal enemies (v. 13.) in the next words he prophesieth, that a Virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, Christ our Saviour, and the like in other places. [5] Another cause is, that the Prophets speak things of some persons, which are to be fulfilled in others, either of their progeny, or prefigured by them. As the prophecy of the Jews and Gentiles, comprised in the history of Esau & Jacob. Likewise that which Jacob prophesied (Gen. 49.) of Simeon and Levi, not fulfilled in themselves, [6] but in the Scribes, and Priests descending of their flock. [7] Also much of that which David seemeth to speak of Salomon, Psal. 88. can only be understood of Christ. Other examples will occur in the Prophets ensuing. Briefly, for we cannot here express all the causes in few words, prophecies are often times uttered in figurative speeches, [8] and often not in words, but in facts; [9] other times so mixed with histories, and temporal things with spiritual, again some things pertaining to the old Testament, so joined with mysteries of the new, and the like, that most hard it is to discern, nay not possible without special revelation, or instruction of others to know, to what purpose or thing every part pertaineth, or is to be applied: for some things are spoken only of the history, some things of mysteries, many things of both. [10] And the reason why the Holy Ghost doth so utter these prophecies is noted by S. Jerom (in Nahum. 3.) that the proud and malicious enemies of Religion may not understand them: [11] lest (saith he) a holy thing should be given to dogs, pearls cast to swine, most sacred mysteries laid open before profane persons. S. Gregory also allegeth another reason (ho. 17. in Ezech.) that occasion of humility may be given us by those things, which are hidden in holy Scriptures. And increase also of merit by believing more than we understand, because faith hath not merit, where reason giveth experiment.

[4] S. Ierom. in c. 2. & 3. Nahum.

[5] S. Chry. ho. 8. in Math. 2.

[6] That which is spoken of certain persons is meant of others.

[11] Why God would have them obscure.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE PROPHECY OF ISAIE.

[1] Isaie the son of Amos, and nephew (as S. Jerome insinuateth) [2] to king Amasias, prophesied in the times of Ozias, Joathan, Achaz, Ezechias, and in the beginning of Manasses, Kings of Juda; in all above three score years, and was cruelly put to death, sawed into parts by commandment of Manasses. He is commonly called the Evangelical Prophet, [3] for his ample and particular speeches of Christ, [4] more large and more plain than in any other of the old Prophets. [5] His style is high and eloquent, according to his liberal education being of the royal blood. For so it pleaseth the Holy Ghost, to utter his divine prophecies diversely according to the qualities, and conditions of the persons, by whom he speaketh: by Isaie in a lofty, and by Amos in a mean style:

[1] Isaie of noble lineage, and a Martyr, prophesied along time.

[2] Prefat. ad Paul. & Eust.

[3] Is called the Evangelical Prophet.

[4] S. Iere. Epist. ad Paulin. Et in com. Isa. S. Aug. li. 18. c. 27. civit. & lib. 9. c. 5. confess. Heb. 1.

[5] He writ in a high style.

[6] Lived in the Kingdom of Juda.

as a musician soundeth the same song, by a simple pipe, & by a cornet, trumpet or other musical instrument. Which S. Paul also witnesseth, saying: Diversely and by diverse means, God spake to the fathers in the Prophets. Isaie therefore conversing in the kingdom of Juda, [6] especially in the Emperial and Metropolitan city of Jerusalem, preached & prophesied many things pertaining to the Tribes of Juda and Benjamin, as also to the tribe of Levi. Which after the schism of Jeroboam, repaired in manner all to the kingdom of Juda, where God was rightly served. He prophesied also of the ten Tribes, the kingdom of Israel: & of the future captivities of them both, and of the reduction of Juda. Also he prophesied of other nations, and peoples, with whom the Jews had either enmity, or friendly conversation: and of all the world. But most especially of the coming of Christ, to redeem, and deliver mankind from captivity of sin.

[1] The contents, divided into two general parts.

[5] 3.

[6] 4.

[7] 5.

[8] 6.

[10] 8.

[1] The whole prophecy containeth two general parts. First more principally the Prophet admonisheth, and threateneth the people, that they shall be punished for their manifold sins in the 39. former chapters. In the other 27. he comforteth them, signifying that God of his mercy, will after chastisement, & their repentance, deliver them from their adversaries. Yet so that each part participateth of the principal contents with the other. More particularly the whole book may be divided into eight parts. [2] In the twelve first chapters, [3] the Prophet admonisheth all sorts in the kingdom of Juda, of their ingratitude towards God, with many other sins and of just punishment, but mixt with consolation of God's mercy, and thanksgiving for the same. In eleven chapters following, [4] he directeth his speech to other Nations, adversaries to the Jews. [5] In four more he extendeth his admonitions to all the world, still intermixing some consolations. [6] In other four he reprehendeth both the kingdoms, of Israel and Juda, for seeking help of strange nations. [7] In the next eight chapters he prophesieth of diverse dangers imminent to the kingdom of Juda, of their captivity in Babylon, of God's benignity delivering them, & very much in every part of Christ, and his Church. [8] Then in five chapters he prophesieth very particularly of the comfortable delivery from sin by Christ. [9] In other four from temporal captivity by Cyrus King of Assirians. [10] And finally in the last eighteen chapters, he prophesieth largely of the perfect delivery by Christ, conversion of all Nations, rejection of the Jews, till near the end of the world, when they shall also return to Christ.

THE PROPHECY OF ISAIE.

CHAPTER I.

Isaie prophesying in the days of four Kings of Juda, 2. admonisheth both Princes and people of their ingratitude, and other sins against God: 7. for which they shall be led captive. 11. Neither shall sacrifices, nor prayers save them. 16. except they cleanse their souls from sins. 20. Which they not doing shall be severely punished. 26. Whereby the relics shall be purged, and the Church shall flourish. [1]

[1] The first part.

The Kingdom of Juda shall be captive in Babylon, for their ingratitude towards God, and other sins.

The vision of Isaie the son of (a) Amos, which he saw concerning Juda and Jerusalem in the days of Ozias, Joathan, Achaz, and Ezechias, kings of Juda.

(a) Not Amos the third of the less prophets, for this name is written in other letters in Hebrew: but one of the royal blood as S. Ierom. testifieth.

2 Hear ye heavens, & give ear o earth, because our Lord hath spoken. I have brought up children, and exalted them: but they have despised me. 3 The oxe hath known his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel hath not known me, and my people hath not understood. 4 Woe to the sinful nation, the people laden with grievous iniquity, the wicked seed, ungracious children: they have forsaken our Lord, they have blasphemed the holy one of Israel, they are revolted backwards. 5 For what shall I strike you any more, which add prevarication? (b) Every head is sick, & every heart in heaviness.

(b) Prince, Priest, and people are all sick of ingratitude against God, & other iniquities.

6 From the sole of the foot unto the top of the head, there is no health therein: wound, and wail, and swelling stroke: it is not bound up, nor cured with medicine, nor mollified with oil. 7 Your land is desolate, your cities burnt with fire: your country strangers devour before your face, and it shall be made desolate as in the spoil of enemies. 8 And (c) the daughter of Sion shall be left as a vineyard, and as a cottage in a place of cucumbers, and as a city that is wasted.

(c) Jerusalem defaced and destroyed.

9 (d) Unless the Lord of hosts had left us seed, we had been as Sodom, and we should be like to Gomorrha. [1]

(d) God continually preserveth some holy seed, that his Church never faileth. [1] Rom. 9.

10 Hear the word of our Lord ye Princes of Sodom, give ear to the law of our God ye people of Gomorrha. 11 To what purpose do you offer me the multitude of your victims, saith our Lord? I am full, the holocaust of rams, and the fat of fatlings, and the blood of calves, and lambs, and buck goats I have not desired. 12 When you should have come before my sight, who sought for these things at your hands, that you should walk in my courts? 13 Offer sacrifice no more in vain: incense is abomination to me. The New moon, and the Sabbath, and other festivities I will not abide, your assemblies are wicked. 14 My soul hateth your Calends, and your solemnities: they are become tedious to me, I have laboured in sustaining. 15 And when you shall stretch forth your hands, I will turn away mine eyes from you: & when you shall multiply prayer, I will not hear: for your hands are full of blood. 16 Wash you, be clean, take away the evil of your cogitations from mine eyes: cease to do perversely, 17 Learn to do good: seek judgement, succour the oppressed, judge for the pupil, defend the widow. 18 And come, and accuse me, saith our Lord: if your sins shall be as scarlet, they shall be made white as snow: and if they be red as vermilion, they shall be white as wool. 19 If you be willing, and will hear me, you shall eat the good things of the earth. 20 But if you will not, and will provoke me to wrath: the sword shall devour you, because the mouth of our Lord hath spoken. 21 How is the faithful city full of judgement (e) become an harlot? Justice hath dwelled in it, but now mankillers.

(e) Much wickedness reigned in Jerusalem before their captivity in Babylon; but much more at Christ's passion, when they persecuted him even to the Cross: and his disciples, and all Christians, till their city was taken by the Romans, and the whole nation dispersed.

22 Thy silver is turned into dross: thy wine is mingled with water. 23 Thy princes are unfaithful, companions of thieves: all love gifts, follow rewards. They judge not for the pupil: and the widow's cause goeth not in to them. 24 For this cause saith our Lord the God of hosts the mighty one of Israel: Alas! I will comfort myself upon mine adversaries: and will be revenged of mine enemies. 25 And I will turn mine hand to thee, and I will boil out thy dross till it be pure, & will take away all thy tin. 26 And I will restore (f) thy judges as they have been before, and thy counsellers as of old. After these things thou shalt be called the just, a faithful city.

(f) The Rabbins understand those Judges and Priests that governed the people after their delivery from captivity: but S. Ierom expoundeth this and the like places of the Apostles, and their successors.

27 Sion shall be redeemed in judgement, and they shall bring her back in justice. 28 And he shall destroy the wicked and the sinners together: and they that have forsaken our Lord, shall be consumed. 29 For they shall be confounded for the idols, to which they have sacrificed: and you shall be ashamed of the gardens, which you chose. 30 When you shall be as an oak the leaves falling off, and as a garden without water. 31 And your strength shall be as the ashes of tow, and your work as a spark: and both shall be set on fire together, and there shall be none to quench it.

CHAPTER II.

All nations shall come to the Church of Christ; which shall begin in Jerusalem. 6. And the Jews shall be rejected for their idolatry, avarice, and other sins 11. Proud men shall be humbled, & God's glory shall increase, 18. Idolatry shall be destroyed.

The word that Isaie the son of Amos saw upon Juda and Jerusalem. 2 And in the (a) later days the mountain of the house of our Lord shall be prepared, in the top of mountains, and it shall be elevated above the little hills: and all nations shall flow unto it.

(a) It is not only certain, but also evident that the prophet speaketh here, and in innumerable other places, of the Church of Christ, which is the city set upon a mountain, Mat. 5. unto which all nations are gathered, and all the time of the new Testament is called the last hour, 1. Ioan. 2. because no time shall follow after this, but all eternity.

3 And many peoples shall go, & shall say, come and let us go up to the mount of our Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob, and he will teach us his ways, and we shall walk in his paths: because the law shall come forth from Sion, and the word of our Lord from Jerusalem. 4 And he shall judge the Gentiles, and rebuke many peoples: and they shall turn their swords into coulters, and their spears into sithes: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they be exercised any more to battle. 5 House of Jacob come ye and let us walk in the light of our Lord. 6 For thou hast (b) rejected thy people, the house of Jacob: because they are filled as in times past, and have had soothsayers as the Philisthiims, and have struck fast to strange children.

(b) The Jews were rejected after Christ's death: before which they were still conserved: though often severely punished. And so now the Church of Christ shall never be rejected.

7 The land is replenished with silver and gold: and there is no end to their treasures. 8 And their land is replenished with horses: and their chariots are innumerable. And their land is full of idols: they have adored the work of their hands, which their fingers made. 9 And man bowed himself, and man was humbled: therefore forgive them not. 10 Enter thou into the rock, and be hid in a pit, in the ground from the face of the fear of our Lord, & from the glory of his majesty. 11 The lofty eyes of man are humbled, and the height of men shall be made to stoop: & our Lord only shall be exalted in that day. 12 Because the day of the Lord of hosts shall be upon all the proud and lofty, and upon every one that is arrogant, and he shall be humbled. 13 And upon all the cedars of Libanus high & elevated, & upon all the oaks of Basan. 14 And upon all the high mountains, and upon all little hills elevated. 15 And upon every high tower, and every fenced wall. 16 And upon all the ships of Tharsis, and upon all that is fair to behold. 17 And the loftiness of men shall be bowed, and the height of men shall be humbled, and our Lord only shall be exalted in that day. 18 And idols shall (c) utterly be destroyed.

(c) It is most absurd, and contrary to this and other Scriptures, that Protestants feign of great idolatry in the Christian world, for a thousand or more years together, professing Christ's name & Religion, and yet continually committing (as these new masters imagine) gross idolatry.

19 And they shall enter into the caves of rocks, and into the pits of the earth from the face of the fear of our Lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he shall rise up to strike the earth. 20 In that day shall a man cast away the idols of his silver, and the idols of his gold, which he had made him to adore, moles and bats. 21 And he shall go into the clefts of rocks, and into the caves of stones from the face of the fear of our Lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he shall rise up to strike the earth. 22 Cease therefore from the man, whose spirit is in his nostrils, because he is reputed high.

CHAPTER III.

The Jews shall be deprived of wise men, 4. and be subject to childish and effeminate governers 8. for their grievous sins. 16. The proud, curious, and lascivious attire of their women, 24. shall be turned into ignominy and sorrow.

For behold the dominatour the Lord of hosts (a) shall take away from Jerusalem, and from Juda the valiant & the strong, all strength of bread, and all strength of water.

(a) This was fulfilled first in the captivity of Babylon, and more notoriously after Christ's passion, in the destruction of Ierusalem, and dispersion of the Jews, even to this day: and yet forward, till near the end of this world.

2 The strong, and the man of war, the judge, and the prophet, and soothsayer, and the ancient. 3 The prince over fifty, and the honourable of countenance, and the counseller, and the wise of workmasters, and the skillful of mystical speech. 4 And I will give children to be their princes, and the effeminate shall rule over them. 5 And the people shall rush violently, man against man, and every one against his neighbour: the child shall make tumult against the ancient, and the base against the noble. 6 For a man shall take hold of his brother, one of the house of his father: Thou hast a garment, be thou our prince, and let this ruin be under thy hand. 7 He shall answer in that day, saying: I am no physician, & in my house there is no bread, nor garment: do not appoint me prince of the people.

8 For Jerusalem is gone to ruin, and Juda is fallen: because their tongue & their inventions were against our Lord, to provoke the eyes of his majesty. 9 The knowledge of their face hath answered them: and they have proclaimed their sin as Sodom, neither have they hid it: woe to their soul, because evils are rendered to them. 10 Say to the just that it is well, because he shall eat the fruit of his inventions. 11 Woe to the impious unto evil: for the reward of his hands shall be made to him. 12 My people their exactors have spoiled, & women have ruled over them. My people, (b) they that call thee blessed, the same deceive thee, & dissipate the way of thy steps.

(b) An Ecclesiastical preacher must not flatter the people. He must move tears (saith S. Ierom) not laughter.

13 Our Lord standeth to judge, & he standeth to judge peoples. [1]

14 Our Lord shall come to judgement with the ancients of his people, and his princes: for you have devoured the vineyard, and the spoil of the poor is in your house. 15 Why do you consume my people, and grind the faces of the poor, saith our Lord the God of hosts? 16 And our Lord said: for that (c) the daughters of Sion are haughty, and have walked with stretched out neck, and went with twinglings of eyes, and clapped their hands, walked on their feet, and jetted in a set pace.

(c) By the metaphor of women, S. Ierom. understandeth the cities of Jury, of which Jerusalem was the head, and Sion the chief place thereof, all which were defaced by the Babylonians, but more fully destroyed by Titus and Vespasian, forty years after Christ's passion.

17 Our Lord shall make bald the crown of the daughters of Sion, and our Lord shall discover their hair. 18 In that day shall our Lord take away the ornament of shoes, and little moons. 19 And chains, and ouches, and bracelets, and bonnets. 20 And the shedding combs, and slops, and tablets, and sweet balls, and earlets. 21 And rings, and pearls hanging on the forehead. 22 And changes of apparel, and short cloaks, and the fine linen, and needles, 23 and looking glasses, and lawns, and headbands, and bongraces. 24 And for sweet savour there shall be stink, and for a girdle a cord, and for frizzled hair baldness, and for stomacher haircloth. 25 Thy fairest men also shall fall by the sword, and thy strong ones in battle. 26 And her gates shall lament and mourn, and she shall sit desolate on the ground.

CHAPTER IV.

After the destruction of the Jews, many women shall seek to marry with one man. 2. But the relics, repenting of their sins shall return to God, 5. and flourish under his protection.

And (a) seven women shall take hold of one man in that day, saying: We will eat our own bread, and be covered with our garments: only let thy name be called upon us, take away our reproach.

(a) After the reduction of heathenish or heretical people to Catholic religion, there will be great want of spiritual pastors.

2 In that day the bud of our Lord shall be in magnificence, and glory, and the fruit of the earth high, and exultation to them, that shall be saved of Israel. 3 And it shall be: Every one that shall be left in Sion, and (b) shall remain in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, every one that is written in life in Jerusalem.

(b) Not all the Jews that escaped temporal death in the destruction of Jerusalem, but those only shall be eternally saved, that believing shall be baptized and live well.

4 If our Lord shall cleanse the filth of the daughters of Sion, and shall wash the blood of Jerusalem out of the midst thereof in the spirit of judgement, and spirit of heat. 5 And our Lord shall create upon every place of mount Sion, and where he is invocated, a cloud by day, and smoke, and the brightness of flaming fire in the night: for upon all glory protection. 6 And there shall be a tabernacle for a place of shadow in the day from the heat, and for security, and covert from the whirlwind, and from rain.

CHAPTER V.

Under the figure of a barren vineyard, is prophesied the rejection of the Jews, 7. for their sins of avarice, 11. intemperance, & other wickedness, 18. one iniquity drawing another, 20. judging good to be evil, and evil good. 25. For which the Gentiles of diverse nations shall afflict them.

I will sing to my beloved (a) the canticle of my cousin concerning his vineyard.[1] A vineyard was made to my beloved in horn, the son of oil.

(a) Isaie of the tribe of Juda here prophesieth the doleful song which Christ uttered over Jerusalem, foreseeing & foretelling their destruction. Luc. 19. v. 41.[1]Mat. 21.

2 And he hedged it, and chose stones out of it, and planted it elect, and built a tower in the midst thereof, and set up a press therein: and looked that it should yield grapes, and it yielded wild grapes. 3 Now therefore ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and men of Juda, judge between me and my vineyard. 4 What is there that I ought to do more to my vineyard, and have not done to it? Whether that I looked, it should yield grapes, and it hath yielded wild grapes? 5 And now I will shew you what I will do to my vineyard. (b) I will take away the hedge thereof, and it shall be into spoil: I will throw down the wall thereof, and it shall be to be trodden upon.

(b) All this sheweth that God only subtracting his protection, no man nor people is able to stand; of whose ruin God is not the author, but only permitteth that they fall into sins, and so into other miseries.

6 And I will lay it waste: it shall not be pruned, and it shall not be digged: and briers and thorns shall overgrow it: and I will command the clouds that they rain no shower upon it. 7 For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts, is the house of Israel: and the man of Juda, his delectable bud: & I looked that it should do judgement, and behold iniquity: and justice, and behold clamour. 8 Woe to you that join house to house, and lay field to field, even to the end of the place: why shall you alone dwell in the midst of the earth? 9 These things are in my ears, saith the Lord of hosts: unless many great and fair houses become desolate, without an inhabiter. 10 For ten acres of the vineyards shall yield one little flagon, and thirty bushels of seed shall yield three bushels. 11 Woe to you that rise up early to follow drunkenness, & to drink even until evening, that you may be inflamed with wine. 12 Harp, and viol, & timbrel, and shalm, & wine in your feasts: and (c) the work of our Lord you regard not, nor consider the works of his hands.

(c) An admonition to celebrate festival days with holy religious exercises, and not to follow drunkenness nor other wicked or vain things.

13 Therefore is my people led away captive, because they had not knowledge, and their nobles died with famine, and the multitude thereof dried away with thirst. 14 Therefore hath hell dilated his soul, and opened his mouth without any limit: and their strong ones, and their people, and their high and glorious ones shall descend into it. 15 And man shall be bowed, and man shall be humbled, and the eyes of the lofty shall be brought low. 16 And the Lord of hosts shall be exalted in judgement, and the holy God shall be sanctified in justice. 17 And the lambs shall feed according to their order, and strangers shall eat the deserts turned into fruitfulness. 18 Woe to you that draw iniquity in cords of vanity, & sin as the link of a wain. 19 Which say: let him make haste, & let his work come quickly, that we may see it: & let the counsel of the holy one of Israel come, and we shall know it. 20 Woe unto you that call evil good; & good evil: putting darkness light, and light darkness: putting bitter for sweet, & sweet for bitter. 21 Woe to you that are wise in your own eyes, and prudent before yourselves. [1]

22 Woe to you that are mighty to drink wine, & stout men in drunkenness. 23 Which justify the impious for gifts, and take away the justice of the just from them. 24 For this, even as the tongue of fire devoureth stubble, and the heat of the flame burneth it up: so shall their root be as ashes, and their bud shall rise up as dust, for they have cast away the law of the Lord of hosts, and have blasphemed the word of the holy one of Israel. 25 Therefore is the fury of our Lord wrath against his people, and he hath stretched out his hand upon them, & strucken them: and the mountains were troubled, and their carcasses were made as dung in the midst of the streets. In all these things his fury is not turned away, (d) but yet is his hand stretched forth.

(d) Grievous sins must be grievously punished. Such as was the sin of the Jews persecuting Christ.

26 And he shall lift up a sign in the nations a far, and shall whistle to him of the ends of the earth: and behold he shall come in haste speedily. 27 There is none that fainteth, nor that laboureth in them, he will not slumber, nor sleep, neither shall the girdle of his reins be loosed, neither shall the latchet of his shoe be broken. 28 His arrows sharp, and all his bows bent. The hoofs of his horses as the flint, & his wheels as the violence of a tempest. 29 His roaring as a lion's, he shall roar as lions' whelps: and he will gnash, and hold the prey, and clasp it, and there shall be none to pluck it away. 30 And it shall sound upon him in that day, as the sound of the sea: we shall look towards the earth, and behold darkness of tribulation, and the light is darkened in the mist thereof.

CHAPTER VI.

The Prophet after a glorious vision, 5. lamenteth his former silence; 6. his lips being purified by an Angel with a hot coal, 8. he is willingly sent, & so prophesieth that the people's heart will be hardened; their cities shall be destroyed, but good relics shall be conserved.

In the year that king Ozias died, I saw our Lord sitting upon an high throne and elevated: and those things that were under him filled the temple.[1]

[1] 4. Reg. 15. 2. Par. 26.

2 Seraphims stood upon the same: six wings to one, and six wings to the other: with two they covered his face, and with two (a) they covered his feet, and with two they flew.

(a) Neither Isaie, nor Moyses, nor any other mortal man did ever see God in himself, but only shadowed. Yet the wicked calumniously accused, condemned, and put Isaie to cruel death, upon pretence of blasphemy, for saying that he saw God. Which he otherwise said not, but covered by the wings of the Seraphims. Origen in hunc locum, & S. Ierom Tradi. Hebraicis in Paral.

3 And they cried one to another, and said: Holy, holy, holy, the Lord God of hosts, all the earth is full of his glory.[1]

[1] Apo. 4. Rom. 11.

4 And the lintels of the doors were moved at the voice of him that cried, & the house was filled with smoke. 5 And I said: Woe is me because I have held my peace, because I am a man of polluted lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people that hath polluted lips, and the King the Lord of hosts I have seen with mine eyes. 6 And one of the Seraphims flew to me, & in his hand an hot coal, which he had taken with tongs from the altar. 7 And he touched my mouth, and said: Behold this hath touched thy lips, and thine iniquity shall be taken away, & thy sin shall be cleansed.

8 And I heard the voice of our Lord saying: Whom (b) shall I send? And who shall go for us? And I said: Lo I am here, send me.

(b) Isaie was not only an Evangelical but also an Apostolical prophet, with whom God here treateth and proceedeth, as with an Apostle, saying: Whom shall I send? and the prophet answering: Send me, God sent him, saying: Go &c. S. Ierom in Prooemio Isaie.

9 And he said: Go, and thou shalt say to this people: Hear ye that hear, and understand not: and see the vision, & know it not.[1]

[1] Mat. 21.

10 Blind the heart of this people, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes: lest perhaps they may see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted and I heal them. 11 And I said: How long Lord? And he said: Until the cities be made desolate without inhabiter, and the houses without man, and the land shall be left desert. 12 And our Lord shall make men go far off, and he shall be multiplied that was left in the midst of the earth. 13 And yet there shall be tithing in it, and she shall be converted, and shall be to the shew as a terebinth, and as an oak, that spreadeth his boughs: that which shall stand in it, shall be an holy seed.

CHAPTER VII.

Jerusalem being besieged 3. the Prophet telleth the King, that the enemies shall not prevail (8. but the Kingdom of Israel shall be destroyed) 10. giveth for a sign that a Virgin shall conceive and bear a Son: 17. prophesieth also the captivity, and desolation of the Kingdom of Juda.

And it came to pass (a) in the days of Achaz the son of Joathan, the son of Ozias king of Juda, there came up Rasin the king of Syria, and Phacee the son of Romelia the king of Israel, to Jerusalem to fight against it: and they could not overcome it.[1]

(a) Before this the kings of Syria and of Israel had taken King Achaz in battle, and carried away great spoils, 2. Paral. 28. But presuming, to do the like again, God suffered them not to prevail. Mystically this signified that heretics of diverse sects conspire together, to impugn the Catholic Church. Which they do much afflict, and terrify, but can never overthrow it. S. Ierom in hunc locum.[1] 4. Reg. 16.

2 And they told the house of David, saying: Syria hath rested upon Ephraim, and his heart was moved, and the heart of his people, as the trees of the woods are moved at the face of the wind. 3 And our Lord said to Isaie: Go forth to meet Achaz, thou, and Jasub thy son that is left, to the conduit of the upper pool, in the way of the Fuller's field. 4 And thou shalt say to him: See thou be still: fear not, and let not thine heart be afraid of the two tails of these smoking firebrands, in the wrath of the fury of Rasin the king of Syria, and of the son of Romelia. 5 For that Syria hath taken counsel against thee, unto the evil of Ephraim, and the son of Romelia, saying: 6 Let us go up to Juda, and raise it up, and pluck it away to us, and make the son of Tabeel king in the midst thereof. 7 Thus saith our Lord God: It shall not stand, & this shall not be. 8 But the head of Syria Damascus, & the head of Damascus, Rasin: and yet threescore and five years, and Ephraim shall cease to be a people: 9 And the head of Ephraim Samaria, and the head of Samaria the son of Romelia. If you will not believe, you shall not be permanent.

10 And our Lord added to speak to Achaz, saying. 11 Ask a sign for thee of the Lord thy God unto the depth of hell, or unto the height above. 12 And Achaz said: I will not ask, and (b) I will not tempt our Lord.

(b) Though Achaz was very wicked and committed idolatry, 4. Reg. 16. 2. Par. 28. yet he believed in God Almighty, knowing that he ought not to tempt him.

13 And he said: Hear ye therefore o house of David: Is it a small thing for you, to be grievous to men, that you are grievous to my God also? 14 Therefore shall our Lord himself (c) give you a sign. Behold a Virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, & his name shall be called Emmanuel.

(c) Upon occasion of God's mercy provised without man's desert, which King Achaz hardly believed, to confirm the same with a far greater example, God inspired the Prophet also to foreshew the greater mystery of Christ's Incarnation, his conception & birth of a virgin, for the redemption of all mankind.

15 He shall eat butter and honey, that he may know to refuse evil, and choose the good. 16 For before the child know to refuse evil, and choose good, the land which thou doest detest shall be forsaken of the face of her two kings. 17 Our Lord will bring upon thee, & upon thy people, and upon the house of thy father, days that came not since the days of the separation of Ephraim from Juda, with the king of the Assyrians. 18 And it shall be in that day: our Lord shall hiss to the fly, that is in the uttermost part of the rivers of Aegypt, and to the bee, that is in the land of Assur. 19 And they shall come, and shall rest all in the torrents of valleys, and in the caves of rocks, and in all shrub places, and in all holes. [1]

20 In that day our Lord shall shave with a razor, hired by them, that are beyond the river, by the king of the Assyrians, the head, and the hairs of the feet, and the whole beard. 21 And it shall be in that day: a man shall nourish a young cow, and two ewes. 22 And for the aboundance of milk he shall eat butter: for butter and honey shall every one eat, that shall be left in the midst of the land. 23 And it shall be in that day: every place where there shall be a thousand vines, for a thousand pieces of silver, they shall be into thorns and briers. 24 With arrows & bow they shall go in thither: for briers and thorns shall be in all the land. 25 And all mountains, that shall be weeded with a weeding hook, the terror of thorns and briers shall not come thither, and it shall be for the oxe to feed on, and cattle to tread upon.

CHAPTER VIII.

Under the figure of a new name, Christ's birth of a virgin is again prophesied, 4. but first the Kingdoms of Syria and Israel shall be destroyed: and Juda sore afflicted: 8. yet conserved with loss of many. 16. Which is a mystery hidden from the Jews. 21. Great evils hang over them, that depart from the law.

And our Lord said to me: Take thee (a) a great book, & write in it with the pen of man. Take away the spoils speedily, quickly take preys.

(a) The mystery here prophesied is of so great importance, as would require a very great book for full explication thereof.

2 And I took to me faithful witnesses, Urias the Priest, & Zacharias the son of Barachias. 3 And I went to the Prophetess, and she conceived, and bare a son. And our Lord said to me: Call his name, (b) Hasten to take away the spoils: make haste to take preys.

(b) Christ the Son of God and a Virgin's child quickly taketh the prey from the devil, who before possessed almost all the world.

4 For before the child know to call his father and his mother, the strength of Damascus shall be taken away, and the spoils of Samaria before the king of the Assyrians. 5 And our Lord added yet to speak unto me, saying: 6 For that (c) this people hath cast away the waters of Siloe, that run with silence, and rather taken Rasin, and the son of Romelia:

(c) The Prophet speaketh of the ten tribes, which joined forces with the king of Syria against Jerusalem, but themselves were first brought into captivity by the Assyrians, God protecting Jerusalem for that time, and long after.

7 for this cause behold our Lord will bring upon them the waters of the river strong and many, the king of the Assyrians, and all his glory: and he will ascend over all their rivers, and will flow over all their banks. 8 And will go through Juda, overflowing, and passing through shall come even to the neck. And the stretching out of his wings shall fill the breadth of thy land o Emmanuel. 9 Gather ye together o peoples, and be overcome, and hear all ye lands far off: Take courage, and be overcome, gird yourselves, & be overcome. 10 Take counsel and it shall be defeated: speak a word, and it shall not be done: because God is with us. 11 For thus saith our Lord to me: As in a strong arm he hath taught me, that I should not walk in the way of this people, saying: 12 Say not, Conspiracy: for all things that this people speaketh, is conspiracy: and fear ye not their fear, neither dread ye. 13 The Lord of hosts him sanctify ye: be he your dread, and he your terror. 14 And he shall be a sanctification to you. But for a stone of offence, and for a rock of scandal to the two houses of Israel, for a snare & a ruin to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [1]

15 And very many of them shall stumble and fall, and shall be broken in pieces, and shall be snared, and taken. 16 Bind the testimony, seal the law in my disciples. 17 And I will expect our Lord, who hath hid his face from the house of Jacob, and I will wait for him. 18 Behold I and my children, whom our Lord hath given me for a sign, and for a wonder in Israel from the Lord of hosts, which dwelleth in mount Sion. 19 And when they shall say to you: Ask of Pythons, and of diviners, which whisper in their enchantments: shall not the people ask vision of their God, for the living of the dead? 20 To the law rather, and to the testimony. As if they speak not according to this word, they shall not have the morning light. 21 And he shall pass by it, shall fall, and be hungry: and when he shall be hungry, he will be angry, and curse his king, and his God, and (d) will look upwards.

(d) Whether they seek to God in their extreme distress, not sincerely, but coacted, or seek worldly help, they shall not escape misery.

22 And he will look to the earth, and behold tribulation and darkness, dissolution and distress, and mist persecuting, and he cannot fly away from his distress.

CHAPTER IX.

Theglath Phalasar carrieth some Israelites captive, and Salmanasar many more, in figure of a few disciples converted to Christ in Galilee, and all Jewry, but many more in the whole world. 7. Whose Empire shall be great, and durable: 8. but the Jews' glory, especially of the ten tribes, shall be obscured, for their pride, hypocrisy, and other sins.

At (a) the first time was the land of Zabulon alleviated, and the land of Nephthali: and at (b) the last was aggravated the way of the sea beyond Jordan of Galilee of the Gentiles. [1]

(a) S. Matthew expoundeth this prophecy of Christ, first preaching in Galilee.
Where his disciples believed in him & followed him. (b) But after his passion few Jews believed in him, in comparison of the Gentiles. [1] Mat. 4.

2 The people that walked in darkness, hath seen great light: to them that dwelt in the country of the shadow of death, light is risen. 3 Thou hast multiplied the nation, & not magnified the joy. They shall rejoice before thee, as they that rejoice in harvest, as conquerors rejoice after a prey is taken, when they divide the spoils. 4 For the yoke of their burden, and the rod of their shoulder, and the sceptre of their exactor thou hast overcome, as in the day of Madian. [1]

[1] Iudic. 7.

5 Because all violent taking of prey with tumult, and garment mingled with blood, shall be to be burnt, and food for the fire. 6 For (c) A LITTLE CHILD IS BORN TO US, [1] and a son is given to us, and his principality is made upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called, Marvelous, Counseller, God, Strong, Father of the world to come, the Prince of peace:

(c) He that is great, yea omnipotent God, is born a little one in this world, and without violence conquereth & ruleth all the world. [1] Luc. 2.

7 His empire shall be multiplied, and there shall be no end of peace: he shall sit upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom: that he may confirm it, and strengthen it in judgement and justice, from this time & for ever: the zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this.
8 Our Lord hath sent a word into Jacob, and it is fallen in Israel. 9 And all the people of Ephraim shall know, & the inhabitants of Samaria, saying in pride & greatness of heart: 10 Bricks are fallen, but we will build with square stones: they have cut down sycamores, but we will change them into cedars.
11 And our Lord shall lift up the enemies of Rasin over him, and shall turn his enemies into tumult.
12 Syria from the East, and the Philisthims from the West: and they shall devour Israel with full mouth. In all these things his (d) fury is not turned away, but his hand is yet stretched forth.

(d) God punishing sinners, and they not repenting, his just fury still increaseth: punishing eternally all those that never repent.

13 And the people is not returned to him, who hath strucken them, and have not sought after the Lord of hosts. 14 And our Lord shall destroy from Israel the head & the tail, the perverter and restrainer in one day. 15 The aged and honourable, he is the head, & the prophet that teacheth a lie, he is the tail. 16 And they that call this people blessed, seducing them: and that are called blessed, shall be thrown headlong. 17 For this cause our Lord shall not rejoice upon their young men: and on their pupils and widows he shall not have mercy: because every one is an hypocrite & wicked, and every mouth hath spoken folly. In all these things his fury is not turned away, but his hand is yet stretched forth. 18 For impiety is kindled as a fire, it shall devour brier & thorn: & it shall be kindled in the thicket of the forest, and it shall be wrapped up together in the pride of smoke. 19 In the wrath of the Lord of hosts the earth is troubled, and the people shall be food for the fire: man shall not spare his brother.
20 And he shall decline to the right hand, and shall be hungry: and shall eat on the left hand, and shall not be filled: every one shall eat the flesh of his arm: Manasses Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasses, they together against Juda. 21 (e) In all these things his fury is not turned away, but his hand is yet stretched forth.

(e) Where is no repentance, there can be no remission. As v. 12. 17. & ch. 10. v. 4. &c.

CHAPTER X.

Makers of wicked laws are cursed. 3. For which the Israelites shall be afflicted by the Assirians. 5. The Assirians overthrown by extraordinary means sent from God: 21. and the Jews delivered from imminent danger: with diverse mysteries of Christ intermixed.

Woe to them that make (a) wicked laws: and writing, have written injustice.

(a) Whereas good laws are the stability of the commonwealth, wicked are the ruin thereof. Such as Jeroboam made forbidding to go to Jerusalem and setting up golden calves in Bethel and Dan: causing the people to serve them as the gods of Israel. 3. Reg. 12. v. 16. Such also as the Scribes and Pharisees made devising wicked traditions, contrary to God's commandments. Mat. 15. v. 5.

2 That they might oppress the poor in judgement, & do violence to the cause of the humble of my people: that widows might be their prey, and they might spoil pupils. 3 What will you do in the day, of visitation & of calamity coming from far? To whose help will ye fly? And where will ye leave your glory? 4 That you be not bowed under the bond, and fall with the slain? In all these things his fury is not turned away, but his hand is yet stretched forth. 5 Woe to Assur, he is the rod of my fury, & the staff: mine indignation is in their hands. 6 I will send him to (b) a deceitful nation, & will give him commandment against the people of my fury, that he take away spoils, and catch the prey, and put them to be trodden upon, as the mire of the streets.

(b) The Jews are called a deceitful nation because they broke their promise made to God, that they would serve him and keep his commandments. Exo. 19. v. 8.

7 But he shall not so think, and his heart shall not esteem it so: but his heart shall be set to destroy, and to the destruction of no few nations. 8 For he shall say: 9 Are not my princes with all kings? Is not as Charcamis, so Calano: and as Arphad, so Emath? Is not as Damascus, so Samaria? 10 Even as my hand hath found the kingdoms of the idol, so also their idols of Jerusalem, & of Samaria. 11 Shall I not as I have done to Samaria and her idols so do to Jerusalem and her idols? 12 And it shall be: [1] when the Lord shall have accomplished all his works in mount Sion, and in Jerusalem, I will visit over the fruit of the magnifical heart of the king of Assur, and over the glory of the haughtiness of his eyes.

13 For he hath said: In the strength of mine own hand have I done it, and in mine own wisdom have I understood: and I have taken away the borders of peoples, and have spoiled their princes, and have pulled down as a mighty man, them that sat on high. 14 And my hand hath found the strength of peoples as a nest: and as eggs be gathered that are left, so have I gathered together all the earth: and there was none that moved wing, and opened mouth, and once muttered. 15 Shall (c) the axe glory against him, that cutteth with it? Or shall the saw exalt itself against him, by whom it is drawn? As if a rod should lift up itself against him, that lifteth it up, and a staff exalt itself, which is certes but wood.

(c) Sennacherib not by his own power, but as God's instrument & minister afflicted the Israelites. Nevertheless he persecuted them of his own free will, which God used for the punishment of his people. In general therefore evil men are like to instruments without sense, but differ in that men's actions are voluntary, & unreasonable, and senseless creatures have no will at all, but only natural aptness, and inclination.

16 For this cause the Dominatour the Lord of hosts shall send leanness in his fat ones: and under his glory shall burn as it were the burning of fire kindled. 17 And the light of Israel shall be in fire, and the Holy one thereof in flame: and his thorn shall be kindled, and be devoured, and the briers in one day. 18 And the glory of his forest, and of his carmelus shall be consumed, from the soul even to the flesh, and he shall be a fugitive for fear. 19 And the remains of the wood of his forest, for the fewness shall be numbered, and a child shall write them. 20 And it shall be in that day, the residue of Israel, and they that shall escape of the house of Jacob, shall not add to lean upon him, that striketh them: but they shall lean upon our Lord the holy one of Israel in truth. 21 The remnant shall be converted, the remnant I say of Jacob, to the strong God. 22 For if thy people o Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, the remnant thereof shall be converted, consummation abridged shall make justice overflow. 23 For our Lord the God of hosts shall make consummation, and abridgment in the midst of all the earth. 24 For this cause, thus saith our Lord the God of hosts: O my people inhabiter of Sion, be not afraid of Assur: he shall strike thee with his rod, and shall lift up his staff over thee in the way of Aegypt. 25 For yet a little, and a very little, & mine indignation and fury upon their wickedness shall be consummate.[1]

26 And the Lord of hosts shall raise up a scourge upon him, according to the plague of Madian in the Rock Oreb, and his rod upon the sea, and he shall lift it up in the way of Aegypt. 27 And it shall be in that day: his burden shall be taken away from off thy shoulder, and his yoke from off thy neck, and the yoke shall putrefy at the face of oil. 28 He shall come into (d) Aiath, he shall pass into Magron: at Machmas he shall commend his vessels.

(d) By these places Sennacherib passed with his army from Aegypt to Jerusalem.

29 They have passed in haste, Gaba is our seat: Rama was astonished, Gabaath of Saul fled. 30 Neigh with thy voice o daughter of Gallim, attend Laisa, seely poor Anathoth. 31 Medemena is removed: Ye inhabitants of Gabin take courage. 32 Yet there is day, to stand in Nobe: he shall shake his hand over the mountain of the daughter of Sion, the little hill of Jerusalem. 33 Behold the dominatour the Lord of hosts shall break the little flagon in terror, and the high of stature shall be cut down, and the lofty shall be humbled. 34 And the thick places of the forest shall be overthrown with iron, and Libanus with the high ones shall fall.

CHAPTER XI.

Christ born of the stock of Jesse, replenished with seven gifts of the Holy Ghost, 4. shall have a spiritual Kingdom, most just and potent. 10. whereto all nations will repair.

And a (a) rod shall come forth of the root of Jesse,[1] and a (b) flower shall rise up out of his root.

(a) The Blessed Virgin.[1] Act. 13. (b) Christ our Saviour replenished with the seven gifts of the Holy Ghost, of whose infinite plenitude his servants participate as it pleaseth his divine spirit to impart.

2 And the Spirit of our Lord shall rest upon him: the spirit of wisdom, and understanding, the spirit of counsel, and strength, the spirit of knowledge, and piety, 3 and the spirit of the fear of our Lord shall replenish him. He shall not judge according to the sight of the eyes, nor rebuke according to the hearing of the ears. 4 But he shall judge the poor in justice, & shall rebuke in equity for the mild of the earth: and he shall strike the earth with the rod of his mouth,[1] and with the spirit of his lips he shall kill the impious.

5 And justice shall be the girdle of his loins: and faith the girdle of his reins. 6 The wolf shall dwell with the lamb: and the leopard shall lie with the kid, the calf, and lion, and sheep shall abide together, a little child shall lead them. 7 The calf, and the bear shall feed: their young ones shall rest together: and the lion shall eat straw as it were an oxe. 8 And the infant from the breast shall be delighted upon the hole of the asp: and he that is weaned, shall thrust his hand into the hole of the cockatrice. 9 They shall not hurt, and they shall not kill in all my holy mountain, because the earth is replenished with the knowledge of our Lord, as the covering waters of the sea. 10 In that day the root of Jesse,[1] that standeth for a sign of peoples, him the nations shall beseech, and (c) his sepulchre shall be glorious.

[1] Rom. 15. (c) Christ after his death, which to the world was ignominious, would be gloriously buried, by very honourable persons, Ioseph and Nicodemus, with aboundance of most precious spices, wrapped in fine linen, and laid in a new monument: to shew that the glory of the just beginneth from their death: where the glory of the wicked endeth. Christ's sepulchre still also remaineth glorious, honoured even by the Turks: much more by Catholic Christians.

11 And it shall be in that day: our Lord shall put to his hand the second time to possess the remnant of his people, which shall be left of the Assyrians, and of Aegypt, and of Phethros, and of Aethiopia, and of Aelam, and of Sennaar, and of Emath, and of the islands of the sea. 12 And he shall lift up a sign unto the nations, and shall assemble together the fugitives of Israel, and shall gather the dispersed of Juda from the four quarters of the earth. 13 And the emulation of Ephraim shall be taken away, and the enemies of Juda shall perish: Ephraim shall not envy Juda, & Juda shall not fight against Ephraim. 14 And they shall fly upon the shoulders of the Philisthims by the sea, they together shall spoil the children of the East: Idumea, and Moab the precept of their hand, and the children of Ammon shall be obedient. 15 And our Lord shall make desolate the tongue of the sea of Aegypt, and shall lift up his hand over the river in the strength of his spirit: and he shall strike him in his seven streams, so that they may pass through it with shoes. 16 And there shall be a way to the remnant of my people, which shall be left of the Assyrians: as there was to Israel in the day, that he came up out of the Land of Aegypt.

CHAPTER XII.

A Canticle of thanks for the benefits of Christ.

And thou shalt say in that day: I will confess to thee o Lord, because thou wast angry with me: thy fury is turned away, and thou hast comforted me. 2 (a) Behold God is my saviour, I will do confidently, and will not fear: because our Lord is my strength, and my praise, & he is become my salvation. [1]

(a) The Jews gave thanks for their delivery from captivity of Babylon; & much more the Church of Christ rendereth thanks for her delivery from all sins. [1] Exo. 15. Psal. 117.

3 You shall draw waters in joy out of the saviour's fountains. 4 And you shall say in that day: Confess ye to our Lord, and invocate his name: make his inventions known among the peoples: remember that his name is high. 5 Sing ye to our Lord, because he hath done magnifically: shew this forth in all the earth. 6 Rejoice, and praise o habitation of Sion: because great in the midst of thee, is the holy one of Israel.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Prophet foretelleth the calamity, and ruin of Babylon. [1]

[1] The 2. part.
Ten prophetical comminations against so Many peoples.

The [1] burden of Babylon, which Isaie the son of Amos saw.

[1] The 1. against Babylon.
(a) Nemrod began the Kingdom of Babylon (Gen. 10.) his son Belus did much augment it: & his son Ninus brought it to be a very great Empire, & Monarchy. But at last, after 1240. years, it was overcome by Cyrus King of Persia.

2 Upon the dark mountain lift up a sign, exalt the voice, lift up the hand, & let the dukes enter the gates.

3 I have commanded my (b) sanctified, and have called my strong ones in my wrath, them that rejoice in my glory.

(b) Medes and Persians were called sanctified, in that they were the ministers of God's justice, in the ruin of Babylon: which the Prophet foretelling calleth it The burden of Babylon.

4 The voice of a multitude in the mountains, as it were of many peoples, a voice of the sound of kings, nations gathered together: The Lord of hosts hath commanded the host of battle. 5 Coming from a country far off, from the end of heaven: our Lord, & the instruments of his fury, to destroy the whole land. 6 Howl ye, because the day of our Lord is near: it shall come as destruction from our Lord. 7 For this cause shall all hands be dissolved, and every heart of man shall melt; 8 and be broken. Gripings and pains shall hold them, they shall be in pain as she that travaileth. Every one shall be astonied at his neighbour, their countenances as faces burnt.

9 Behold the day of our Lord shall come, cruel, & full of indignation, & of wrath, & fury to bring the land to a wilderness, and to destroy the sinners thereof out of it. 10 Because the stars of heaven, and their brightness shall not display their light: the sun is darkened in his rising, and the moon shall not shine in her light.[1]

[1] Eze. 32. Ioel. 3. Mat. 24. Mar. 23. Luc. 21.

11 And I will visit over the evils of the world, and against the impious their iniquity, and I will make the pride of infidels to cease, & will humble the arrogancy of the strong. 12 A man shall be more precious than gold, & (c) man than pure fine gold.

(c) After the slaughter there shall be so few Babylonians, or Chaldeans left alive, that one man shall be more rare and precious than much fine gold.

13 For this I shall trouble heaven: and the earth shall be moved out of her place, for the indignation of the Lord of hosts, & for the day of the wrath of his fury.
14 And it shall be as a young doe flying, & as a sheep: & there shall be none to gather them together: every man shall turn to his own people, and every one shall fly to his own land. 15 Every one that shall be found, shall be slain: and every one that shall come to aid, shall fall by the sword. 16 Their infants shall be dashed in pieces before their eyes:[1] their houses shall be spoiled, and their wives shall be ravished.

[1] Ps. 136.

17 Behold I will raise upon them the Medes, which shall not seek silver, nor desire gold. 18 But with arrows they shall kill the little ones, and shall have no pity upon the sucklings of the womb, and upon the children their eye shall not spare. 19 And that Babylon glorious in kingdoms, noble in the pride of the Chaldees, shall be even as our Lord subverted Sodom and Gomorrha.[1]

[1] Gen. 19.

20 It shall not be inhabited for ever, & it (d) shall not be founded unto generation & generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch his tents there, nor shepherds rest there.

(d) Another city was built by the same name, but much less, & in another place of Chaldea.

21 But beasts shall rest there, and their houses shall be filled with dragons, and ostriches shall dwell there, and Satyrs shall dance there: 22 And the Syrach owls shall answer there in the houses thereof, and mermaids in the temples of pleasure.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Jews shall be released from the captivity of Babylon. 12. Nabuchodonosor most proud and mighty, shall be thrown into extreme misery. 24. In the mean time the Assirians besieging Jerusalem shall be defeated. 28. Neither shall the Philistims prevail against the Jews, as they presume.

It (a) is near that the time thereof shall come, and the days thereof shall not be prolonged. For our Lord will have mercy on Jacob, and will yet choose out of Israel, and will make them rest upon their own ground: the stranger shall be joined to them, & shall stick to the house of Jacob.

(a) Isaie prophesied the destruction of Babylon above 100. years before the Jews were carried thither captive, and their captivity endured 70. years.
Which was released by Cyrus, after he had overcome the Babylonians. Yet this space of near 200. years, is counted a short time in respect of so great a Monarchy as this was, which had now continued above a thousand years, from the time of Ninus, yea was begun by Nemrod. Gen. 10.

2 And peoples shall hold them, and bring them into their place, and the house of Israel shall possess them upon the land of our Lord for servants and handmaids: and they shall lead captive those that had taken them, & shall subdue their exactors. 3 And it shall be in that day, when God shall give thee rest from thy labour, and from thy vexation, and from the sore servitude, which thou didst serve before. 4 Thou shalt take this parable against the king of Babylon, and shalt say: How hath the exactor ceased, the tribute rested: 5 Our Lord hath broken the staff of the impious, the rod of the rulers, 6 that did beat peoples in indignation with uncurable wound, subduing nations in fury, persecuting cruelly. 7 All earth is quiet and still, is glad & hath rejoiced. 8 The fir trees also have rejoiced over thee, and the cedars of Libanus: since thou hast slept, there hath none come up to hew us. 9 Hell beneath is troubled to meet thy coming, it hath raised up the giants for thee. All the princes of the earth are risen up from their thrones, all the princes of nations. 10 All shall answer, and say to thee: Thou also art wounded even as we, made like unto us. 11 Thy pride is drawn down to hell, thy carcass is fallen: under thee shall the moth be strawed, and worms shall be thy covering. 12 (b) How art thou fallen from heaven Lucifer, which didst rise in the morning? Art thou fallen to the earth, that didst wound nations?

(b) As Lucifer the greatest devil, so Nabuchodonosor King of Babylon fell through pride into extreme misery.

13 Which didst say in thy heart: I will ascend into heaven, above the stars of God will I exalt my throne, I will sit in the mount of the testament, in the sides of the North. 14 I will ascend above the height of the clouds, I will be like to the Highest. 15 But yet thou shalt be drawn down to hell, into the depth of the lake. 16 They that shall see thee, shall turn toward thee, & behold thee: Is this the man that troubled the earth, that shaked kingdoms, 17 that made the world a desert, & destroyed the cities thereof, opened not the prison to his prisoners? 18 All the kings of the nations every one have slept in glory, each man in his own house. 19 But thou art cast forth out of thy sepulchre, as an unprofitable branch polluted, and wrapped up with them that were slain by the sword, and are gone down to the foundations of the lake, as a rotten carcass. 20 Thou shalt not keep company with them, neither in burial, for thou hast destroyed thy land, thou hast slain thy people: the seed of the wicked shall not be named for ever. 21 Prepare his children to slaughter in the iniquity of their fathers: they shall not rise up, nor inherit the land, nor fill the world with cities. 22 And I will rise over them, saith the Lord of hosts: & I will destroy the name of Babylon, and the remains, and bud, and progeny: saith our Lord. 23 And I will make it the possession of the hedgehog, & matrices of waters, & I will sweep it with besom wearing it, saith the Lord of hosts. 24 The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying: If it shall not be, as I have thought: and so fall out, as I have in mind consulted: 25 That I (c) destroy the Assyrian in my land, and in my mountains tread upon him: and his yoke shall be taken away from them, and his burden taken off from their shoulder.

26 This is the counsel, that I have devised upon all the earth, and this is the hand stretched forth upon all nations. 27 For the Lord of hosts hath decreed, and who can weaken it? And his hand is stretched out: and who shall turn it away? 28 (d) In the year, that king Achaz died, was this burden made. [1]

(d) The second commination is against the Philistians. [1] 4. Reg. 16.

29 Rejoice not thou whole Philistaea, that (e) the rod of thy striker is broken in pieces: for from the root of the serpent shall issue forth a cockatrice, and his seed swallowing the bird.

(e) Though Achaz was dead whom the Philistims feared, yet Ezechias a better King did afflict them more than the other had done. 4. Reg. 18. v. 8. Much more Ozias. 2. Par. 26.

30 And the first born of the poor shall be fed, & the poor shall rest confidently: and I will make thy root to perish in famine, & will kill thy remnant. 31 Howl thou gate, cry out o city: all Philisthaea is thrown down: for a smoke shall come from (f) the North, and there is none that shall escape his troop.

(f) From Jerusalem which is situated on the north of Philistaea.

32 And what shall be answered to the messengers of nations? That our Lord hath founded Sion, and the poor of his people shall hope in him.

CHAPTER XV.

Unexpected ruin shall fall upon the Moabites: 5. Whereof the Prophet hath compassion.

The burden (a) of Moab. Because Ar-Moab was wasted in the night, (b) he hath held his peace: because the wall of Moab is destroyed in the night, he hath held his peace.

(a) The third commination was against the Moabites. (b) Destruction made in the night, prevented that they feared not the imminent danger, but so much the more they were afflicted, being suddenly oppressed with extreme misery.

2 The house is gone up, & Dibon to the high places to mourn upon Nabo, and upon Medaba shall Moab howl: on all the heads thereof baldness, [1] and every beard shall be shaven.

[1] Ier. 44. Ezech. 7.

3 In the high ways thereof they are girded with sackcloth: upon the roofs thereof, and in the streets thereof all howling, goeth down to weep. 4 Hesebon shall cry, & Eleale, their voice is heard even to Jasa. For this shall the well appointed of Moab howl, his soul shall howl to himself. 5 (c) My heart shall cry to Moab, the bars thereof unto Segor an heifer astonishing: for by the ascent of Luith he shall go up weeping: & in the way of Oronaim they shall lift up a cry of contrition.

(c) Misery, even of enemies, moveth a charitable heart to compassion. So the Prophet lamenteth the Moabites' affliction.

6 For the waters of Nemrim shall be made desolate, because the grass is withered, the spring is faded, all greenness is perished. 7 According to the greatness of the work, is also their visitation: they shall lead them to the torrent of willows. 8 Because the cry shall go round about the border of Moab: unto Gallim the howling thereof, and unto the Pit-Elim the cry thereof. 9 Because the waters of Dibon are replenished with blood: for I will put additions upon Dibon: the lion for them that shall fly of Moab, and for the remnant of the land.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Prophet prayeth for and prophesieth Christ's coming: 6. adding more of the affliction of the Moabites for their pride.

Send forth o Lord (a) the lamb the dominatour of the earth, from the (b) Rock of the desert, to the mount of the daughter of Sion.

(a) In the great misery of the Moabites, the Prophet saw one special cause of consolation, that Christ the lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world, should be born of their lineage, by one of their progeny: (b) Of Ruth a Moabites, who was married to Booz, and so was David's great grand mother. Ruth 4. See the argument of Ruth.

2 And he shall be as a bird flying, and the young flying out of the nest, so shall the daughters of Moab be in the passage of Arnon. 3 Take counsel, gather a council: set thy shadow in the midday as it were night: hide them that fly, and them that wander bewray not. 4 My fugitives shall dwell with thee: Moab be thou their covert from the face of the destroyer: for the dust is ended, the wretch is come to naught: he hath failed, that trod down the earth. 5 And a throne shall be prepared in mercy, and there shall sit upon it, in truth in the tabernacle of David, he that judgeth & seeketh judgement, and quickly rendereth that which is just. 6 We have heard the pride of Moab, he is proud exceedingly: his pride and his arrogancy, and his indignation is more than his strength. 7 Therefore shall Moab howl: to Moab, all shall howl: to them that rejoice upon the walls of baked brick, tell ye their plagues. 8 Because the suburbs of Hesebon are desolate, and the vineyard of Sabama the lords of the Nations have cut off: the branches thereof have reached to Jazer: they wandered in the desert, the branches thereof are left, they passed over the sea. 9 For this I will lament in the weeping of Jazer the vineyard of Sabama: I will inebriate thee with my tear o Hesebon, and Eleale: because the voice of the treaders is rusht in upon thy vintage, and upon thy harvest. 10 And gladness and joy shall be taken away from Carmelus, and it shall not rejoice nor make jubilation in vineyards. He shall not tread wine in the press that was wont to tread: the voice of the treaders I have taken away. 11 For this my belly shall sound as an harp to Moab, & my bowels to the wall of baked brick. 12 And it shall be: when it shall appear that Moab hath laboured for his excelses, he shall go into his sanctuaries to pray, & shall not prevail. 13 This is the word, that our Lord spake to Moab from that time: 14 and now our Lord hath spoken saying: (c) In three years, as the years of an hired servant, the glory of Moab shall be taken away upon all the multitude of people, and it shall be left little & small, not much.

(c) The wars against Moab continued three years, In which it was brought into servitude.

CHAPTER XVII.

Damascus with other Syrians shall be afflicted, 4. likewise the ten tribes of Israel. 7. of which some few persons will return to God. 12. And finally their enemies the Assirians shall be overthrown. [1]

[1] The fourth Prophetical commination was against the Syrians.

The burden of Damascus. Behold Damascus shall cease to be a city, and shall be as an heap of stones in ruin. 2 The forsaken cities of Aroer shall be for flocks, and they shall rest there, and there shall be none to terrify them. 3 And aid shall cease from Ephraim, and the kingdom from Damascus: and the remnant of Syria shall be as the glory of the children of Israel: saith the Lord of hosts. 4 And it shall be in that day: the glory of Jacob shall be diminished, and the fatness of his flesh shall become lean. 5 And it shall be as one gathering in harvest that which remaineth, and his arm shall gather the ears of corn: and it shall be as he that seeketh ears in the vale of Raphaim. 6 And the fruit thereof shall be left, as it were a cluster of grapes in it, and as the shaking of the olive tree, of two or three olives in the top of a bough, or four or five in the tops thereof, saith our Lord the God of Israel. 7 In that day man shall incline himself to his maker, and his eyes shall look to the holy one of Israel. 8 And he shall not incline to the altars, which his hands made: and the things that his fingers wrought he shall not regard, as groves and temples. 9 [1] In that day the cities of his strength shall be left, as the ploughs and the corn that were left before the face of the children of Israel, and thou shalt be desolate.

10 Because thou hast forgotten God thy saviour, and hast not remembered thy strong helper: therefore shalt thou plant a faithful plant, & shalt sow a strange seed. 11 In the day of thy planting shall be the wild grape, & in the morning thy seed shall flourish: the harvest is taken away in the day of inheritance, and he shall be vehemently sorry. 12 Woe to (a) the multitude of many peoples, being as the multitude of the sounding sea: & the tumult of multitudes, as the sound of many waters.

(a) After that the Assirians had afflicted the Israelites, and their confederates, themselves were also afflicted.

13 Peoples shall sound as the sound of waters overflowing, and he shall rebuke him, and shall fly far off: and he shall be violently taken away as the dust of the mountains at the face of the wind, and as a whirlwind before a tempest. 14 In the eventide, and behold trouble: in the morning, and he shall not be. This is the portion of them, that have wasted us, & the lot of them that spoiled us.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Aegyptians, for alluring the two tribes to their confederacy, shall be afflicted, 7. and the Jews' return to more sincere service of God.

Woe [1] to the land the cymbal of wings, which is beyond the rivers of Aethiopia,

[1] The fifth was against the Aethiopians and Aegyptians.

2 which sendeth legates into the sea, and in the vessels of [1] bulrushes upon the waters. Go ye swift (a) angels to a nation shaken a sunder, and torn in pieces: to a terrible people, after which there is none other: to a nation expecting and trodden under foot, whose land the floods have spoiled:

[1] Or paper boats. (a) The Aegyptians bid their messengers go swiftly, & tell the Jews that they shall have present help according as they require & expect.

3 (b) All ye inhabitants of the world, which abide in the earth, where the sign shall be lifted up in the mountains, you shall see, and shall hear the sound of the trumpet:

(b) But the Prophet sheweth that the Aegyptians themselves shall be overthrown by the Assirians

4 because thus saith our Lord to me: I will rest, and consider in my place, as the noon light is clear, and as a cloud of dew in the day of harvest. 5 For before harvest it hath wholly flourished, and unripe perfection shall spring forth, and the boughs thereof shall be cut off with hooks: and the things that are left, shall be cut off, and shaken out. 6 And they shall be left together to the birds of the mountains, and beasts of the earth: and the fowls shall be upon it the whole summer, and all the beasts of the earth shall winter upon it. 7 In that time shall a gift be brought to the Lord of hosts, of a people plucked asunder and rent in pieces: of a terrible people, after which there hath been none other, of a nation expecting and trodden under foot, whose land the floods have spoiled, to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, mount Sion.

CHAPTER XIX.

Further description of the Aegyptians' punishment, 17. with their conversion to Christ in the new Testament.

The burden of Aegypt. Behold (a) our Lord will ascend upon a swift cloud, and will enter into Aegypt, and the idols of Aegypt shall be moved at his presence, & the heart of Aegypt shall melt in the midst thereof.

(a) When our B. Saviour was carried in his infancy by his mother into Aegypt the idols of that country lost their power. And the inhabitants were specially blessed, & afterwards very many believed in Christ, and sincerely served him.

2 And I will make the Aegyptians to run together against the Aegyptians: and a man shall fight against his brother, & every man against his friend, city against city, kingdom against kingdom. 3 And the spirit of Aegypt shall be broken in the bowels thereof, & I will overthrow their counsel headlong: and they shall ask their idols, & their diviners, and Pythons, and Soothsayers. 4 And I will deliver Aegypt into the hand of cruel masters, and a strong king shall rule over them, saith our Lord the God of hosts. 5 And the water of the sea shall be dried up, & the river shall be made desolate, and dry. 6 And the rivers shall fail: the rivers of the rampiers shall be diminished, & dried up. The reed and bulrush shall wither: 7 the channel of the river shall be spoiled of his fountain, & all sown corn field that is watered shall be dried up, it shall wither, and shall not be. 8 And the fishers shall lament, & all that cast angle into the river shall mourn, and they that spread net upon the face of the water shall pine away. 9 They shall be confounded that wrought twisting flax, combing and weaving fine things. 10 And the watered places thereof shall be dry, all they that made pools to take fishes. 11 The Princes of Tanis are fools, the wise counsellers of Pharao have given unwise counsel: how say ye unto Pharao: I am the son of the wise, the son of the ancient kings?

12 Where are now thy wise men? Let them tell thee, & shew what the Lord of hosts hath thought concerning Aegypt. 13 The Princes of Tanis are become fools, the Princes of Memphis are withered away, they have deceived Aegypt, the corner of the peoples thereof. 14 Our Lord hath mingled in the midst thereof the spirit of gladness: and they have made Aegypt to err in every work thereof, as he erreth that is drunk and vomiteth. 15 And Aegypt shall have no work, to make the head and the tail, the perverter and restrainer. 16 In that day Aegypt shall be as women, & they shall be astonished, & shall be afraid at the face of the moving of the hand of the Lord of hosts, which he shall move over it. 17 And the land of Juda shall be a fear to Aegypt: every one that shall remember it, shall quake at the face of the counsel of the Lord of hosts, which he hath thought concerning it. 18 In that day there shall be five cities in the land of Aegypt, speaking the tongue of Chanaan, and swearing by the Lord of hosts: one shall be called the city of the sun. 19 In that day there shall be (b) an altar of our Lord in the midst of the land of Aegypt, and a title of our Lord by the border thereof:

(b) Both Jews and Christians understand this prophecy of the conversion of the Aegyptians to Christ. But the Jews expect it as yet to come, we know that it is already fulfilled, at least in part. For there were sometimes many Christians in that country, yea many most excellent Saints. S. Paul. S. Antony. S. Hilarion, and innumerable others.

20 it shall be for a sign, and for a testimony to the Lord of hosts in the land of Aegypt. For they shall cry to our Lord at the presence of the afflicter, and he shall send them a saviour and defender to deliver them. 21 And our Lord shall be known of Aegypt, & the Aegyptians shall know our Lord in that day, and shall worship him in hosts and in gifts: and they shall vow vows to our Lord, and pay them. 22 And our Lord shall smite Aegypt with a stroke, and heal it, and they shall return to our Lord, and he shall be pacified towards them, and heal them. 23 In that day there shall be a way from Aegypt to the Assyrians, and the Assyrian shall enter into Aegypt, and the Aegyptians to the Assyrians, & the Aegyptians shall serve Assur. 24 In that day shall Israel be a third to the Aegyptian and the Assyrian: a blessing in the midst of the earth, 25 which the Lord of hosts hath blessed, saying: Blessed be my people of Aegypt, and the work of my hands to the Assyrian: but Israel is mine inheritance.

CHAPTER XX.

The ignominious captivity of Aegyptians and Aethiopians is again foreshewed by the Prophet going naked. 5. whereat the Jews are astonished and afraid, seeing their confederates so confounded.

In the year that Tharthan entered into Azotus, when Sargon the king of the Assyrians had sent him, and he had fought against Azotus, and had taken it: 2 at that time our Lord spake in the hand of Isaie the son of Amos, saying: Go, and loose the sackcloth from off thy loins, and take off thy shoes from thy feet. And he did so (a) going naked, and barefoot.

(a) The holy Prophet, of noble blood, was not disobedient, nor ashamed to go naked, because nothing is more honest than to obey God's commandment. S. Ierom in hunc locum.

3 And our Lord said: As my servant Isaie hath walked, naked and barefoot, it shall be a sign and a wonder of three years upon Aegypt, and upon Aethiopia, 4 so shall the king of the Assyrians lead the captivity of Aegypt, and the transmigration of Aethiopia, young and old, naked and unshod, their buttocks uncovered to the ignominy of Aegypt. 5 And they shall fear, & be ashamed of Aethiopia their hope, and of Aegypt their glory. 6 And the inhabitant of this isle shall say in that day: Lo this was our hope, to whom we fled for help, that they should deliver us from the face of the king of the Assyrians: and how shall we be able to escape?

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XX.

6. Lo this was our hope.] God to shew the vanity of all hope, that is reposed in men, or in worldly things, layeth the marvelous and miserable mutations of temporal great Kingdoms before the eyes of his people. That we may see, and admire his merciful providence, and our own folly, when we trust in the help of ourselves, or of other men, [1] who cannot defend themselves from ruin and ignominy: and much less can they save us, or we ourselves. As these examples make manifest. The Kingdom of Israel (or ten tribes) trusted in Damascus, which could not defend itself, but was overthrown. [2] The Kingdom of Juda (or two tribes) trusted in Aegypt. The Aegyptians trusted in the Ethiopians, and both were overthrown by the Assirians. The Assirians glorying in their victories and triumphs, attributing all to their own strength, were overcome by the Babylonians. The Babylonians, likewise insolent and proud, were oppressed by the Medes and Persians. The Medes and Persians were subdued by Alexander the great. Who was shortly taken away in his youth by poison; and his great Monarchy divided amongst his servants. And so other peoples, and Kingdoms, much more particular persons and families are turned like a wheel. And therefore our only refuge must be to God, in whom is all true hope, help, safety, and happiness, temporal and eternal.

[1] God's providence in punishing all that trust in men & not in him.

[2] Examples of mutations in Kingdoms.

CHAPTER XXI.

The destruction of Babylon by the Medes and Persians is again prophesied. 11. The like of the Idumeans, 13. and of Arabians.

The [1] burden of the desert sea. As whirlwinds come from the South, it cometh from the desert, from an horrible land.

[1] The sixth commination was against the Assirians, and specially the Babylonians.

2 A sore vision was told me: he that is incredulous doth unfaithfully: & he that is a spoiler, wasteth. Come up Aelam, besiege o Mede: I have made all the mourning thereof to cease. 3 Therefore are my loins filled with sorrow, anguish hath possessed me, as the anguish of a woman that travaileth: I fell down when I heard it, I was troubled when I saw it. 4 Mine heart failed, darkness made me astonished: Babylon my beloved is made a miracle unto me. 5 Lay the table, look about in the watch tower the eaters and drinkers: arise ye Princes, take shield. 6 For thus hath our Lord said to me: Go, and set a watchman: and what soever he shall see, let him tell. 7 And he saw a chariot of two horsemen, a rider upon an (a) ass, and a rider upon a camel: and he beheld them diligently with much looking.

(a) Cyrus King of the Persians a people of small power, & of the Medes, of great strength.

8 And a lion cried: I am upon the watch tower of our Lord, standing continually by day: and I am upon my watch, standing whole nights. 9 Behold this man cometh, the rider upon the chariot of two horsemen, and he answered and said: Fallen, fallen is Babylon, and all the sculptiles of the gods thereof are broken to the ground. [1]

[1] Iere. 51. Apoc. 14.

10 O my threshing, and children of my floor, the things that I have heard of the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, I have shewed unto you. 11 (b) The burden of Duma cryeth to me out of Seir: Watchman what of the night? Watchman what of the night?

(b) The seventh prophetical commination was against the Idumeans.

12 The watchman said: morning is come and night: if you seek, seek: return, come. 13 (c) The burden in Arabia. In the forest at even you shall sleep, in the paths of Dedanim.

(c) The eighth against the Ismaelites.

14 Meeting the thirsty bring water, you that inhabit the land of the South, with bread meet him that flyeth. 15 For they are fled from the face of the swords, from the face of the sword hanging over, from the face of the bow bent, from the face of a grievous battle. 16 Because thus saith our Lord to me: Yet in one year, as in the year of an hired man, and all the glory of Cedar shall be taken away. 17 And the remnant of the number of the strong archers of the children of Cedar shall be diminished: for our Lord the God of Israel hath spoken it.

CHAPTER XXII.

For the sins especially of chief officers, Sion and the temple shall be destroyed. 15. Sobna a wicked ruler shall be removed, 20. and Eliacim put in his place.

The (a) burden of the (b) vale of vision. What aileth thee, that thou art also wholly gone up into the house tops?

(a) The ninth against the chief rulers of Jerusalem. (b) Sion situated on a hill, and often called a mountain, is here called a vale, for the afflicted state wherein it was in the captivity.

2 full of clamour, a populous city, rejoicing: thy slain are not slain by the sword, nor dead in battle. 3 All thy Princes are fled together, and are bound hard: all that were found, are bound together, they are fled far off. 4 Therefore have I said: Depart from me, I will weep bitterly: labour not to comfort me, for the destruction of the daughter of my people. 5 For it is a day of slaughter, and conculcation, and weepings to our Lord the God of hosts, in the vale of visitation, searching the wall, and magnifical upon the mountain. 6 And Aelam took quiver, chariot of the horseman, and the shield hath made the wall naked. 7 And thy principal valleys shall be full of chariots, and the horsemen shall place themselves in the gate. 8 And the covering of Juda shall be discovered, and thou shalt see in that day the armoury of the house of the forest. 9 And you shall see the breaches of the city of David, because they are multiplied: and you have gathered together the waters of the lower pool, 10 and have numbered the houses of Jerusalem, and destroyed houses to fortify the wall. 11 And you have made a lake between the two walls to the water of the old pool: & you looked not up to him that made it, and the worker thereof long before you saw not. 12 And our Lord the God of hosts shall call in that day to weeping, and to mourning, to baldness, and to girdle of sackcloth: 13 and behold joy and gladness, to kill calves, and to slay rams, to eat flesh, and to drink wine: Let us eat and drink: for tomorrow we shall die. 14 And the voice of the Lord of hosts was revealed in mine ears: If this iniquity shall be forgiven you until you die, saith our Lord the God of hosts. 15 Thus saith our Lord the God of hosts: Go, get thee in to him, that dwelleth in the tabernacle, to (c) Sobna the provost of the temple, and thou shalt say to him:

(c) This Sobna had some office about the Temple, but by crafty intrusion and unjust usurpation, rather than by lawful induction, was very covetous & ambitious: & so by God's judgement fell into misery.

16 What doest thou here, or as if thou were somebody here? Because thou hast cut thee out a sepulchre here, thou hast cut out a memorial diligently in an high place, a tabernacle for thee in a rock. 17 Behold our Lord will cause thee to be carried away, as a cock is carried, and he will lift thee up as a garment. 18 Crowning he will crown thee with tribulation, he will cast thee as a ball into a broad and large country: there shalt thou die, and there shall the chariot of thy glory be, the ignominy of the house of thy Lord. 19 And I will expel thee from thy standing, and depose thee from thy ministry. 20 And it shall be in that day: I will call my servant Eliacim the son of Helcias, 21 and will clothe him with thy coat, and will strengthen him with thy girdle, and will give thy power into his hand: and he shall be as a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, & to the house of Juda. 22 And I will give the key of the house of David upon his shoulder: and he shall open, and there shall be none to shut: and he shall shut, and there shall be none to open. 23 And I will fasten him as a pin in a sure place, and he shall be for a throne of glory to the house of his father. 24 And they shall hang upon him all the glory of his father's house, diverse kinds of vessels, every little vessel, from vessels of cups even to every instrument of music. 25 In that day saith the Lord of hosts, shall the pin be taken away, that was fastened in the sure place: and that which hung thereon, shall be broken, and fall, and perish, because our Lord hath spoken.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The destruction of Tyrus by the Chaldees, 15. and reparation thereof after seventy years.

The [1] burden of Tyre. Howl ye ships of the sea, because the house is destroyed, from whence they were wont to come: from the land of Cethim it is revealed to them.

[1] The tenth commination was against the Tyrians.

2 Hold your peace ye that dwell in (a) the isle: the traffickers of Sidon passing over the sea, have replenished thee.

(a) Tyrus was an island, as Ezechiel also describeth it (ch. 27.) in the entrance, yea situated in the heart of the sea: but not far distant, for king Alexander filled up that passage of water and made it continent.

3 The seed of Nilus in many waters, the harvest of the river was her fruits: & she was made the traffic of the nations. 4 Be ashamed Sidon, for the sea saith, the strength of the sea, saying: I have not travailed, and I have not brought forth, and I have not nourished young men, nor brought virgins to their growth. 5 When it shall be heard in Aegypt, they will be sorry when they shall hear of Tyre: 6 Pass over the seas, howl ye that dwell in the isle. 7 Is not this your city, which gloried from ancient days in her antiquity? Her feet shall lead her afar to sojourn. 8 Who hath thought this against Tyre, that was some time crowned, whose merchants were princes, her chapmen the nobles of the earth? 9 The Lord of hosts hath thought it, that he might pluck down the pride of all glory, and bring all the glorious of the earth to ignominy. 10 Pass thy land as a river, o daughter of the sea, thou hast a girdle no more. 11 He hath stretched forth his hand upon the sea, he hath troubled kingdoms: Our Lord hath given commandment against Chanaan, to destroy the strong thereof, 12 and he said: Thou shalt add no more to glory, o Virgin daughter of Sidon sustaining calumny: rising up sail over to Cethim, there also thou shalt have no rest. 13 Behold the land of the Chaldees was not such a people, Assur founded it: they led away the strong thereof into captivity, they undermined the houses thereof, they brought it to ruin. 14 Howl ye ships of the sea, because your strength is destroyed. 15 And it shall be in that day: thou shalt be in oblivion o Tyre, (b) seventy years, as the days of one king: but after seventy years, there shall be to Tyre as it were the song of an harlot.

(b) The Tyrians rejoiced in the Jews' captivity, & therefore God punished them with like captivity of 70. years.

16 Take an harp, go about the city thou harlot forgotten: sing well, multiply song, that there may be remembrance of thee. 17 And it shall be after seventy years: our Lord will visit Tyre, and will bring her back again to her merchandise: and she shall fornicate again with all the kingdoms of the earth, upon the face of the earth. 18 And the marts, and rewards shall be sanctified to our Lord: they shall not be kept in store, nor laid up: because her merchandise shall be for them, that shall dwell before our Lord, that they may eat unto satiety, and be clothed unto continuance.

CHAPTER XXIV.

All this world shall be destroyed, 7. whereof many signs shall come before, 18. and general judgement shall follow.

Behold [1] our Lord shall dissipate the earth, and make it naked, and afflict the face thereof, and disperse the inhabitants thereof. [2]

[1] The third part.
Prophecies pertaining to the whole world. [2] Osee. 4.

2 And (a) as the people, so shall the priest be: & as the servant, so his master: as the handmaid, so her mistress: as the buyer, so he that selleth: as the lender, so he that borroweth: as he that asketh his due, so he that oweth.

(a) Diversity of states which is now in the world, shall cease at the general judgement, and all men shall receive according to their deserts.

3 With dissipation shall the earth be dissipated, & with spoil it shall be spoiled: for our Lord hath spoken this word. 4 The earth hath mourned, & fallen away, and is weakened: the world is fallen away, the height of the people of the earth is weakened. 5 And the earth is infected by the inhabitants thereof: because they have transgressed the laws, changed right, dissipated the everlasting covenant. 6 For this cause shall malediction devour the earth, & the inhabitants thereof shall sin: and therefore the dwellers therein (b) shall be mad, & few men shall be left.

(b) Near the end of the world, many forgetting the law of God, & nature, will rage in extreme fury against others, persecuting & murdering one another, especially the wicked afflicting the good: which our Saviour describeth (Mat. 24.) saying: Nation shall rise against nation. You shall be odious to all nations for my sake. Iniquity shall abound, &c.

7 The vintage hath mourned, the wine is weakened, all have sighed that rejoiced in heart. 8 The joy of timbrels hath ceased, the sound of them that rejoice is left off, the sweetness of the harp is silent. 9 They shall not drink wine with song: the drink shall be bitter to them that drink it. 10 The city of vanity is broken down, every house is shut, no man goeth in. 11 There shall be crying for the wine in the streets: all mirth is left: the joy of the earth is carried away. 12 Desolation is left in the city, & calamity shall oppress the gates. 13 Because these things shall be in the midst of the earth, in the midst of peoples, in like manner as if a few olives, which are remaining, should be shaken out of the olive tree; and grapes, when the vintage is ended. 14 These shall lift up their voice, and praise: when our Lord shall be glorified, they shall make a joyful noise from the sea. 15 For this cause in doctrines glorify our Lord: (c) in the isles of the sea the name of our Lord the God of Israel.

(c) This joyful propagation of God's glory and name, is either understood to be prophesied of the Church in general, which is as an island of the whole world: or properly and particularly (amongst other gentiles) of islands converted to Christ: as great Brittany & others.

16 From the ends of the earth we have heard praises, the glory of the just one. And I said: My secret to me, my secret to me, woe is me: the prevaricators have prevaricated, and by the prevarication of transgressors they have prevaricated. 17 Fear, and pit, and snare upon thee, that art inhabiter of the earth. [1]

18 And it shall be: He that shall fly from the voice of fear, shall fall into the pit: and he that shall rid himself out of the pit, shall be held in the snare: because the floodgates from on high are opened, and the foundations of the earth shall be shaken. 19 With breaking shall the earth be broken, with bruising shall the earth be bruised, with moving shall the earth be moved, 20 with shaking shall the earth be shaken as a drunken man, and shall be taken away as the tabernacle of one night: and the iniquity thereof shall be heavy upon it, and it shall fall, and not add to rise again. 21 And it shall be: In that day our Lord will visit upon the host of heaven on high, and upon the kings of the earth, that are upon the earth. 22 And they shall be gathered together as the gathering of a bundle into the lake, and shall be shut there in prison: and after many days they shall be visited. 23 And the moon shall be confounded, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Sion, and in Jerusalem, & shall be glorified in the sight of his ancients.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Prophet giveth thanks to God for his marvelous works, 7. and great benefits, in lightening many with faith, washing away their sins, and giving grace and eternal glory.

O Lord thou art my God. I will exalt thee, and confess to thy name: because thou hast done marvelous things, the old cogitations faithful, (a) Amen.

(a) The Prophet and faithful people confessing God's benefits, and perfect performance of whatsoever he promiseth, or determineth, conforming their desires to his pleasure, say Amen, as well in prosperity, when he delivereth and blesseth them, as in adversity, when he punisheth:
by the destruction of Jerusalem, which is here prophesied, and the like.

2 Because thou hast brought the city into a heap, the strong city into ruin, the house of strangers: that it be no city, & that it be not built for ever. 3 For this shall strong people praise thee, the city of strong nations shall fear thee. 4 Because thou art become a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his tribulation: an hope against the whirlwind, a shadow against the heat. For the spirit of the strong is as a whirlwind beating against a wall. 5 As heat in thirst, shalt thou humble the tumult of strangers: and as with heat under a burning cloud thou shalt make the branch of the strong to wither. 6 And the Lord of hosts shall make to (b) all peoples in this mount, a feast of fat things, a feast of vintage, of fat things full of marrow, of vintage purified from the dregs.

(b) After the rejection of the Jews all Gentiles shall be converted to Christ.

7 And he shall in this mount throw down headlong the face of the bond, tied together upon all peoples, and the web that he hath begun upon all nations. 8 He shall cast death down headlong for ever:[1] and our Lord God shall take away tear from all face, and the reproach of his people he shall take away out of the whole earth: because our Lord hath spoken it.

[1] Apo. 7. & 21.

9 And he shall say in that day: Lo this is our God, we have expected him, and he will save us: this is our Lord, we have patiently waited for him, we shall rejoice and be joyful in his salvation. 10 Because the hand of our Lord shall rest in this mount: and Moab shall be threshed under him, as straw is broken with the wain. 11 And he shall stretch forth his hands under him, as he that swimmeth stretcheth forth to swim: and he shall humble his glory with dashing of his hands. 12 And the munitions of thy high walls shall fall, and be humbled, & shall be plucked down to the ground even to the dust.

CHAPTER XXVI.

A Canticle of thanks for changing the old Synagogue into the Church of Christ: which hath more light of true faith, 12. and more patience in tribulations: 19. which in the general resurrection shall be made manifest.

In (a) that day shall this song be sung in the land of Juda. (b) Sion the city of our strength, a Saviour therein shall be put (c) a wall and bulwark.

(a) In the time of grace given by Christ his whole Church singeth this and other like canticles of praises. (b) Other peoples have their peculiar proper cities: Babylon, Damascus, Tyrus, Sidon, &c. but all Christians have one city, the Catholic Church, signified by Sion. (c) Fenced with wall and bulwark, or faith & good works.
S. Jerom here noteth that the sense of this Canticle is hard, by reason of often and sudden interlocutions of diverse persons consisting in questions and answers. To whose learned commentaries we remit the studious readers.

2 Open ye the gates, and let the just nation enter in, that keepeth truth. 3 The old error is gone: thou wilt keep peace: peace, because we have hoped in thee. 4 You have hoped in our Lord in worlds everlasting, in our Lord God strong for ever. 5 Because he will bow down them that dwell on high, the high city he will abase. He will abase it even to the ground, he will pluck it down even to the dust. 6 The foot shall tread it down, the feet of the poor, the steps of the needy. 7 The path of the just is right, the path of the just is right to walk in. 8 And in the path of thy judgements, o Lord, we have patiently expected thee: thy name, and thy memorial are in the desire of the soul. 9 My soul hath desired thee in the night: yea and with my spirit in my heart I will watch to thee in the morning. When thou shalt do thy judgements in the earth, the inhabitants of the world shall learn justice. 10 Let us have mercy on the impious, and he will not learn justice: in the land of the holy he hath done wicked things, and he shall not see the glory of our Lord. 11 Lord thy hand be exalted, and let them not see: let the envious people see, and be confounded: and let fire devour thine enemies. 12 Lord thou wilt give peace to us: for all our works thou hast wrought to us. 13 O Lord our God, there have lords besides thee possessed us, only in thee let us remember thy name. 14 Let not the dead live, let not the giants rise again: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, & hast destroyed all their memory. 15 Thou hast been favourable to the nation, o Lord, thou hast been favourable to the nation: wast thou glorified? Thou hast made all the ends of the earth far off. 16 Lord in distress they have sought after thee, in tribulation of murmur thy doctrine was to them. 17 As she that conceiveth, when she draweth near to be delivered, being sorrowful cryeth in her pains: so are we become at thy presence, o Lord. 18 We have conceived, and as it were travailed, and brought forth the spirit: salvations we have not done in the earth, therefore the inhabitants of the earth have not fallen. 19 Thy (d) dead shall live, my slain shall rise again: awake, and praise ye that dwell in the dust: because (e) the dew of the light is thy dew, & (f) the land of the giants thou shalt pluck down into ruin.

(d) A prophecy of the general resurrection of all men. (e) Some in glory (f) Some in misery.

20 Go my people, enter into thy chambers, shut thy doors upon thee, be hid a little for a moment, till the indignation pass. 21 For behold our Lord will come out of his place, to visit the iniquity of the inhabitant of the earth against him:[1] and the earth shall reveal her blood, and shall cover her slain no more.

CHAPTER XXVII.

God comforteth the faithful, promising to destroy the wicked. 3. Christ's coming is again prophesied, with propagation of his Gospel, and conversion of all nations.

In that day our Lord will visit with his sore, and great, and strong sword upon Leviathan (a) the serpent, the bar, & upon Leviathan the crooked serpent, and shall kill the whale that is in the sea.[1]

(a) Tyrants are called serpents for their subtle poisonful malice, and bars, because they hold men fast inclosed in bondage. And for the same reasons the devil is called a serpent, and a bar. [1] Iob. 40.

2 In that day the vineyard of pure wine shall sing to it. 3 I^ the Lord that keep it, I will suddenly drink to it: lest perhaps there be visitation against it, night and day I keep it. 4 There is no indignation in me: who will give me to be thorn and brier in battle: to go upon it, to set it on fire together? 5 Or rather shall he hold my strength, shall he make peace with me, shall he make peace with me? 6 They that go in with violence to Jacob, Israel shall flourish and spring, and they shall fill the face of the world with seed. 7 Hath he striken him according to his stroke that struck him? Or as he killed his slain, is he killed? 8 In measure against measure, when it shall be cast off, thou shalt judge it.

He hath meditated in his hard spirit during the day of heat. 9 Therefore upon this shall the iniquity be forgiven to the house of Jacob: and this is all the fruit, that the sin thereof be taken away, when he shall have laid all the stones of the altar, as stones of ashes broken, the groves & temples shall not stand. 10 For the defensed city shall be desolate, the beautiful city shall be forsaken, and shall be left as a desert, there shall the calf feed, and there he shall lie, and shall consume the tops thereof. 11 The harvests thereof shall be destroyed in drought, women coming and teaching it: for it is not a wise people, therefore shall not he that made it, have mercy on it: and he that formed it, shall not spare it. 12 And it shall be, in that day our Lord will strike from the channel of the river, even to the torrent of Aegypt, and you shall be gathered together one and one o children of Israel. 13 And it shall be: In that day a sound shall be made with a great trumpet, and they that were lost, shall come from the land of the Assyrians, and that were cast out, from the land of Aegypt, and shall adore our Lord in the holy mount in Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Tribulations are threatened to the ten tribes of Israel, for their pride, and voluptuousness (5. God still protecting some who serve him sincerely) 7. and for contempt of Religion. 16. But God will lay a sure foundation in Sion. 20. Will punish the wicked, 24. and comfort the good.

Woe [1] to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of (a) Ephraim, and to the flower falling down from the glory of his exultation, which were in the top of the most fat valley, erring by wine.

[1] The fourth part.
Prophetical admonitions to both the Kingdoms of Israel & Juda. (a) By Ephraim is understood the Kingdom of Israel, whose first King Jeroboam was of that tribe.

2 Behold our Lord is valiant and strong, as the violence of hail: a whirlwind breaking, the violence of many waters overflowing, & sent forth upon a large ground. 3 The crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephraim shall be trodden under feet. 4 And the flower of the glory of his exultation, which is upon the top of the valley of fat ones, shall be falling as a timely fruit before the ripeness of autumn: which when he that seeth it shall behold, as soon as he taketh it in his hand, he will devour it. 5 (b) In that day the Lord of hosts shall be a crown of glory, and (c) a garland of exultation to the residue of his people:

(b) After that the ten tribes were carried captives (4. Reg. 17.) God delivered the two tribes out of imminent danger. (4. Reg. 18. 19.) (c) giving peace to their people:

6 and (d) a spirit of judgement to him that sitteth in judgement, and (e) strength to them that return out of battle to the gate.

(d) spirit of judgement to King Ezechias: (e) and victory to the soldiers.

7 But these also have been ignorant, because of wine, and by drunkenness have erred: the priest and the prophet have been ignorant because of drunkenness, they are swallowed up with wine, they have erred in drunkenness, they have not known him that seeth, they have been ignorant of judgement. 8 For all tables were filled with vomiting and filth, so that there was no more place. 9 Whom shall he teach knowledge? And whom shall he make to understand the thing heard? Them that are weaned from the milk, that are plucked away from the breasts. 10 For command recommand, command recommand; expect reexpect, expect reexpect; a little there, a little there. 11 For in the speech of lip, & in another tongue he will speak to his people. 12 To whom he said: This is my rest, refresh the weary, and this is my refreshing: & they would not hear. 13 And the word of our Lord shall be to them, (f) command recommand, command, recommand; expect reexpect, expect, reexpect, a little there, a little there: that they may go, and fall backward, and be destroyed, and snared, and taken.

(f) Because Isaias & other holy Prophets often & much urged, not only the people, but also priests (which had rule over the people) to keep God's commandments, and to expect his mercy and goodness, they scornfully repeat the same words, deriding such exhortations & desperately giving themselves to all wickedness, as if they neither feared death nor hell. v. 15.

14 For this cause hear the word of our Lord ye scornful men, which rule over my people that is in Jerusalem. 15 For you have said: We have strucken a league with death, & with hell we have made a covenant. The scourge overflowing when it shall pass, shall not come upon us: because we have made lying our hope, & with lying we are protected. 16 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will send in the foundations of Sion a stone, an approved stone, a corner stone, precious, founded in the foundation. He that believeth, let him not make haste. [1]

[1] Mat. 21. v. 42. Act. 4. 1. Pet. 2. Rom. 9.

17 And I will put judgement in weight, and justice in measure: and hail shall overthrow the hope of lying: and waters shall overflow the protection. 18 And your league with death shall be abolished, & your covenant with hell shall not stand: when the scourge overflowing shall pass, you shall be trodden down of it. 19 Whensoever it shall pass through, it shall take you away: because in the morning early it shall pass through in the day and in the night, and vexation alone shall give understanding in the hearing. 20 For the bed is straitened, so that one must fall out, & a short mantle cannot cover both. 21 For our Lord shall stand as in the mount of divisions: as in the valley, which is in Gabaon, shall he be angry: that he may do his work, his strange work: that he may work, his work is strange from him. [1]

[1] 2. Reg. 5. 1. Par. 14. Iosue 10.

22 And now mock not, lest perhaps your bonds be tied strait. For I have heard of our Lord the God of hosts consummation and abridgment upon all the earth. 23 Harken with your ears, and hear my voice, attend, & hear my speech. 24 Will (g) the ploughman plow all the day to sow, will he cut & harrow his ground?

(g) As husbandmen dispose their works in order: so God sometimes worketh miracles, sometimes giveth benefits, sometimes sendeth afflictions:

25 Will he not when he hath made even the face thereof, sprinkle cummin, and place the wheat by order, and the barley, and millet, and vetch, in their bonds? 26 And his God will instruct him in judgement: he will teach him. 27 For (h) gith shall not be threshed with instruments that have teeth, neither shall the wain wheel turn about upon cummin: but gith shall be beaten out with a rod, and cummin with a staff.

(h) and greater to some than to others.

28 But bread corn shall be broken small: (i) but the thresher shall not thresh it for ever, neither shall the wain wheel vex it, nor break it with the teeth thereof.

(i) But none are continually afflicted without intermission.

29 And this is come forth from our Lord the God of hosts, that he might make his counsel marvelous, and magnify justice.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Prophet bewaileth the Jews' destruction, 9. for their blind obstinacy; 17. prophesying the Gentiles' conversion.

Woe to (a) Ariel, Ariel the city, which David overcame: year is added to year: the solemnities are at an end. [1]

(a) Ari signifieth a lion, El, God: So Jerusalem called the lion of God, to wit a strong city, is threatened with destruction, which happened first by the Babylonians, 4. Reg. 25. again more miserable by Titus & Vespasian, 40. years after Christ's death. [1] 2. Reg. 5. 1. Par. 11.

2 And I will make a [1] trench about Ariel, and it shall be sorrowful and mourning, and it shall be to me as Ariel.

[1] Luc. 19.

3 And I will compass as a sphere round about thee, and will cast a rampier against thee, and place munitions to besiege thee. 4 Thou shalt be humbled, thou shalt speak out of the earth, and out of the ground thy speech shall be heard: and thy voice shall be out of the earth as the Python's, and out of the ground thy speech shall mutter. 5 And the multitude of them that fan thee shall be as small dust: and as isles passing away, the multitude of them, that have prevailed against thee. 6 And it shall be suddenly forthwith. It shall be visited of the Lord of hosts in thunder, and earth quake, and with great voice of whirlwind and tempest, and with flame of devouring fire. 7 And the multitude of all nations, that have fought against Ariel, shall be as the dream of a vision in the night, and all that have warred, and besieged, and prevailed against it. 8 And as he that is hungry dreameth, and eateth, but when he is awake, his soul is empty: and as he that is thirsty dreameth, & drinketh, and after he is awake, faint as yet thirsteth, & his soul is empty: so shall the multitude be of all the Gentiles, that have fought against mount Sion. 9 Be astonied, and marvel, waver, & stagger: be ye drunk, & not of wine: be moved, & not of drunkenness. 10 Because our Lord hath mingled unto you the spirit of drowsiness, he will shut your eyes, he will cover your prophets & princes, that see visions. 11 And the vision of all shall be unto you as the words of a book sealed: which when they shall give to him that knoweth letters, they shall say: Read this; and he shall answer: (b) I cannot, for it is sealed.

(b) Scribes and Pharisees pretending knowledge of Scriptures, cannot read Christ in the Prophets, because these Books are sealed (or locked) & they have not the key. Apoc. 3.

12 And the book shall be given to one that knoweth not letters, and it shall be said to him: Read; and he shall answer: (c) I know not letters.

(c) The Gentiles could not read Christ in these books, because they knew not letters of the holy Scriptures. S. Ierom Prooemio. in Isaiam.

13 And our Lord said: [1] Because this people approacheth with their mouth, and with their lips glorifieth me, but their heart is far from me, and they have feared me by the commandment and doctrines of men:

[1] Mat. 15. Mar. 7.

14 therefore behold I will add to make admiration to this people, by a great and wonderful miracle: for wisdom shall perish from their wise men, and the understanding of their prudent shall be hid.

15 [1] Woe unto you that are deep of heart, to hide your counsel from our Lord: whose works are in darkness, and they say: Who seeth us, and who knoweth us?

[1] 1. Cor. 1.

16 [1] This your cogitation is perverse: as if the clay should think against the potter, and the work should say to the maker thereof: Thou madest me not: or the thing formed should say to the fashioner thereof: Thou understandest not.

[1] Eccli. 29.

17 Shall not yet within a little while, and in a short time, Libanus be turned into Charmel: and Charmel reputed for a forest? 18 And in that day the deaf shall hear the words of the book, and out of the darkness and mist the eyes of the blind shall see. 19 And the meek shall add joyfulness in our Lord, and the poor men shall rejoice in the holy one of Israel. 20 Because he hath failed that did prevail, the scorner is consumed, and they are all cut down that watched upon iniquity: 21 that made men sin in word, and supplanted him that reproved them in the gate, and declined in vain from the just. 22 For this cause, thus saith our Lord to the house of Jacob, he that redeemed Abraham: Jacob shall not now be confounded, neither shall now his countenance be ashamed: 23 but when he shall see his children, the works of mine hands, in the midst of him sanctifying my name, and they shall sanctify the holy one of Jacob, and shall preach the God of Israel, 24 and they that err in spirit, shall know understanding, and the mutterers shall learn the law.

CHAPTER XXX.

The Jews are blamed for seeking counsel and help of the Aegyptians. 18. But if they repent, they shall find relief, and spiritual riches of the soul. 27. God's judgement will be strict: 33. and hell is most horrible.

Woe (a) unto [1] renegade children, saith our Lord, that you would take counsel, and not of me: and would begin a web, and not by my spirit, that you might add sin upon sin:

(a) You that trust in your own counsels and forces, or in other men's, and not in God, shall find the miserable event of your folly, as is before noted. chap. 20. [1] Apostatae. or, deniers.

2 which walk to go down into Aegypt, and have not asked my mouth, hoping for help in the strength of Pharao, and having confidence in the shadow of Aegypt. 3 And the strength of Pharao shall be a confusion to you, and the confidence in the shadow of Aegypt an ignominy. 4 For thy Princes were in Tanis, & thy messengers came even to Hanes. 5 All were confounded upon the people, that could not profit them: they were no help, nor to any profit, but to confusion & to reproach. 6 The burden of the beasts of the South. In a land of tribulation & distress, the lioness, & the lion of them, the viper & the flying basiliscus carrying their riches upon the shoulders of beasts, & their treasures upon the bunch of camels, to a people that cannot be able to profit them. 7 For Aegypt shall help in vain, and to no purpose: therefore have I cried upon this: It is pride only, cease.

8 (b) Now therefore going in write to her upon box, and draw it diligently in a book, and it shall be in the latter day for a testimony for ever.

(b) Either Isaias was commanded to write this which should be fulfilled many years after; or else he speaketh prophetically to Jeremy, near 200. years before he prophesied; signifying that he should then write it, as indeed he did. Iere. 41. &c.

9 For it is a people provoking to wrath, & lying children, children that will not hear the law of God. 10 Which say to the seers: See not: & to them that behold: Behold us not those things that are right: Speak unto us pleasant things, see errors unto us. 11 Take from me the way, turn away the path from me, let the holy one of Israel cease from our face. 12 Therefore thus saith the holy one of Israel: For that you have rejected this word, and have hoped in calumny and tumult, and have leaned thereupon: 13 therefore shall this iniquity be unto you as a breach that falleth, and is found lacking in an high wall, because suddenly, whilst it is not hoped, shall come the destruction thereof. 14 And it shall be broken small, as the potter's vessel is broken with mighty breaking: and there shall not a shred be found of the fragments thereof, wherein a little fire may be carried from the burning, or a little water be drawn out of the pit. 15 Because thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: If you return and be quiet, you shall be saved: in silence and in hope shall your strength be. And you would not: 16 and you have said: No, but we will fly to horses: therefore shall you fly. And we will mount upon swift ones: therefore shall they be swifter, that shall persecute you. 17 A thousand men at the face of the terror of one, and at the face of the terror of five shall you fly, till you be left as the mast of a ship in the top of a mountain, and as a sign upon a little hill. 18 Therefore our Lord expecteth that he may have mercy on you: and therefore shall he be exalted sparing you: because our Lord is the God of judgement: blessed are all they that expect him. 19 For the people of Sion shall dwell in Jerusalem: weeping thou shalt not weep, pitying he will pity thee: at the voice of thy cry as soon as he shall hear, he will answer thee. [1]

[1] Ps. 51.

20 And our Lord will give you strait bread, & short water: and will not make thy doctor to fly away from thee any more: and thine eyes shall see thy master. 21 And thine ears shall hear the word of him, that behind thy back admonisheth thee: This is the way, walk in it: and decline ye not neither to the right hand, nor to the left. 22 And thou shalt contaminate the plates of the sculptiles of thy silver, & the garment of the molten of thy gold, and shalt scatter them as the uncleanness of a menstruous woman. Thou shalt say to it: Get thee hence. 23 And rain shall be given to thy seed, wheresoever thou shalt sow in the land: and the bread of the corn of the land shall be most plentiful, and fat. The lamb in that day shall feed at large in thy possession: 24 and thine oxen, as the ass colts, that till the ground, shall eat mingled provender as it was fanned in the floor. 25 And there shall be upon every high mountain, and upon every little hill elevated, rivers of running waters in the day of the killing of many when the towers shall fall. 26 And (c) the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day when our Lord shall bind up the wound of his people, and shall heal the stroke of their wound.

(c) This clarity in sun and moon shall be after the general resurrection.

27 Behold the name of our Lord cometh from far, his (d) burning fury, and heavy to bear: his lips are filled with indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire.

(d) Christ will exercise his severe justice in the general judgement, when he shall bid the damned go into everlasting fire. Mat. 25.

28 His spirit as a torrent overflowing even to the midst of the neck, to destroy the nations to nothing, and the bridle of error, that was in the jaws of peoples. 29 There shall be a song unto you as the night of a sanctified solemnity, and joy of heart as he that goeth with a shalm, to enter into the mount of our Lord to the strong one of Israel. 30 And our Lord shall make the glory of his voice to be heard, and shall shew the terror of his arm, in threatening of fury, and flame of devouring fire: he shall dash to pieces in whirlwind, and in hail stone. 31 For at the voice of our Lord shall Assur fear being strucken with the rod. 32 And the passage of the rod shall never cease, which our Lord shall make to rest upon him in (e) timbrels and harps, and in principal battles he shall overthrow them.

(e) It often appeareth that when evil men seem most secure, they fall into sudden calamities.

33 For [1] Topheth is prepared since yesterday, prepared of the king, deep, and wide. The nourishments thereof, fire and much wood: the breath of our Lord as a torrent of brimstone kindling it.

[1] Hell.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Prophet further bewaileth the Jews' calamity, into which they shall fall for their confederacy with the Aegyptians. 5. Yet God will protect Jerusalem: 8. and overthrow Sennacherib.

Woe to them that go down into Aegypt for help, hoping in horses, and having confidence upon chariots, [1] because they be many: and upon horsemen, because they be very strong: and have (a) not trusted upon the holy one of Israel, & have not sought after our Lord.

[1] Iere. 42. (a) Both this Prophet, and afterwards Jeremy admonished the Jews not to trust in the Aegyptians, but they contemning this admonition shewed in their deeds that they distrusted God, not believing nor obeying his Prophets: and for the same were at last punished.

2 But he that is the wise one hath brought evil, and hath not taken away his words: & he will rise up against the house of the wicked, and against the aid of them that work iniquity. 3 Aegypt, a man, and not God: and their horses, flesh, and not spirit: and our Lord shall bow down his hand, and the helper shall fall, and he that is holpen shall fall, and they shall all be confounded together. 4 Because thus saith our Lord to me: As if a lion should roar, and the lion's whelp upon his prey, and when a multitude of shepherds shall come against him, he will not fear at their voice, and of their multitude he will not be afraid: so shall the Lord of hosts descend (b) to fight upon mount Sion, and upon the little hill thereof.

(b) In the mean time God destroyed the army of Sennacherib besieging Jerusalem. 4. Reg. 19. But they forgot this and many other examples of God's power and love.

5 As birds that fly, so will the Lord of hosts protect Jerusalem, protecting and delivering, passing and saving. 6 Return as you revolted deeply, o children of Israel. 7 For in that day man shall cast away the idols of his silver, and the idols of his gold, which your hands have made you into sin.[1]

8 And Assur shall fall by the sword not of man, and the sword not of man shall devour him, and he shall fly not at the face of the sword: & his young men shall be tributaries: 9 and his strength shall pass away at the terror, & his princes flying shall be afraid: our Lord hath said it: whose fire is in Sion, & his furnace in Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Prophet comforteth the Jews, foreshewing that their King Ezechias will rule well, and prosper, but most especially prophesieth of Christ. 9. That they shall be rejected for persecuting him, 15. and his Church shall prosper.

Behold[1] the king shall reign in justice, & the princes shall rule in judgement.

[1] The fifth part.

Of the captivity, and relaxation of the Kingdom of Juda: with other afflictions and comforts; but especially of Christ and his Church.

2 And a man shall be as he that is hid from the wind, and hideth himself from a tempest, as rivers of waters in drought, and the shadow of a rock that standeth out in a desert ground. 3 The eyes of them that see, shall not be dim, and the ears of them that hear, shall harken diligently. 4 And the heart of fools shall understand knowledge, and the tongue (a) of mafflers shall speak readily and plain.

(a) Albeit many things in this and other places pertain first and literally to the old testament: yet all are in figure, & some things have no other literal sense but of the new testament. As this Prophecy of maffling, or unperfect tongues, to speak readily, is fulfilled in the Church of Christ; plainly and distinctly confessing all Mysteries of Catholic faith & religion: and the like, which cannot be verified in the Jewish people.

5 He that is unwise shall no more be called prince: neither shall the deceitful be called the greater man: 6 for the fool shall speak foolish things, & his heart shall do iniquity, that he may work simulation, and speak to our Lord deceitfully, & make empty the soul of the hungry, and take away drink from the thirsty. 7 The vessels of the deceitful are most wicked: for he hath framed devices to undo the meek, with the word of lying, when the poor man spake judgement. 8 But the prince will think these things, that are worthy of a prince, & he shall stand above the dukes. 9 Ye [1] rich women arise, and hear my voice: ye confident daughters give ear to my speech.

10 For after days & a year you shall be troubled that have confidence: for the vintage is at the end, the gathering will no more come. 11 Be astonied ye rich women, be troubled ye confident: strip you, and be confounded, gird your loins. 12 Mourn upon your breasts, upon the country worthy to be destroyed, upon the fruitful vineyard. 13 Upon the ground of my people shall thorns & briers come up: how much more upon all the houses of joy, of the city rejoicing? 14 For the house is forsaken, the multitude of the city is left, darkness and palpableness are made upon the dens for ever. 15 The joy of wild asses the pastures of flocks, until the spirit be poured out upon us from on high: and the desert shall be as charmel, and charmel shall be reputed for a forest. 16 And judgement shall dwell in the wilderness, and justice shall sit in charmel. 17 And the work of justice shall be peace, and the service of justice silence, and security for ever. 18 And my people shall sit in the beauty of peace, & in the tabernacles of confidence, and in wealthy rest. 19 But hail in falling upon the forest, and the city shall be humbled with lowness. 20 Blessed are ye, that sow upon all waters, sending in the foot of the oxe and the ass.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XXXII.

1. The King shall reign.] Some expound this whole passage of Ezechias, or Josias kings of Juda, and of the chief Princes under them: but so great effects, as be here prophesied, were not fully verified in them, ◦but as in figure only of a more excellent King, and his principal servants, that should follow afterwards. For albeit these were very good Kings, and had good and wise counsellers, & governers under them: yet they had not that perfect judgement, nor performed that complete justice, whereby the subjects enjoyed such peace, rest, safety, and consolation, as be here described, by the metaphors, and similitudes of men hid from wind, safe from tempest, refreshed with waters in their heat, and shadowed by a rock from the burning sun in the desert, with the like. And therefore S. Jerome, and other Christian Doctors understand it of Christ, who hath most perfect judgement and justice; and of his Apostles, and other Pastors of his Church who by unction of the Holy Ghost, participate more aboundantly of Christ's grace, than did the priests, & other rulers in the old testament. And so Christian people receive these benefits of peace, rest, protection, refreshing in soul, & conscience, & other spiritual comforts in Christ, by the mysteries of the new Testament, which the faithful of the old Testament could not receive by their Kings & Princes, nor by priests and prophets of that time. The same we might deduce of innumerable other places of this & other Prophets: but it is not our purpose to explicate much in this Edition.

◦This & many other prophecies pertain to the old testament as in figure, alluding to the history, but principally to Christ, and his Church.

1. Reign in justice: and rule in judgement.] [1]Here also to avoid prolixity, we may once note that these words: Judgement, and Justice,[2] have a far other higher and more excellent signification in holy Scriptures (where they most frequently occur) than in profane writings, and natural or moral philosophical discourses. For Philosophers, such as Plato and Aristotle, could reach no further than to natural reason, which they called right judgement: and to moral equity, which in general they named justice. But the Holy Ghost by these words revealeth most high spiritual mysteries, known by faith, most comfortable to men's souls, relieving and refreshing the consciences of penitents in this life, & replenishing the just with unspeakable gladness in eternal glory. [3]Therefore in the sense usual in holy Scriptures, Judgement is the act of the mind, or understanding, discerning what is right, just, & agreeing to reason: And Justice is the rectitude of the will, doing conformably to right direction of the mind, or understanding. And so these words are applied to signify both God's, and just men's actions. As that which God mercifully decreed in eternity, and promised after the fall of man, to do for mankind, as convenient for his Divine Power, Wisdom, Justice, Mercy, & Goodness; with all the means which he ordained for effecting the same, is called his Judgement; and the performing and accomplishment thereof, so far as is of his part, is called his Justice. Also that which any man discusseth, discerneth, and determineth in his understanding, as right, or reasonable in supernatural things, is called his spiritual judgement; and that which he doth of his freewill according to the same right judgement, is called his justice. So in this place the Prophet foresheweth, that Christ our King will reign in justice, that is, perform and fulfil all that he, as God with the Father & the Holy Ghost, decreed for Redemption, Justification and Salvation of men.[4] And the princes, his Apostles and other Pastors, shall rule in judgement: that is, discern and judge, what is right and good for themselves, and the people in respect of their souls, and eternal salvation.

[2] What the words, Judgement and Justice, signify.

[3] Definition of Judgement and Justice as they are used in the holy Scriptures. Both applied to God's and men's actions.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Sennacherib besieging and threatening Jerusalem, shall be overthrown by Angels. 13. that both wicked arrogant infidels may feel the hand of God, and faithful sinners repenting after great terror be comforted.

Woe to thee (a) that spoilest, shalt not thyself also be spoiled? And that despisest shall not thyself also be despised? When thou shalt have ended spoiling, thou shalt be spoiled: when being wearied thou shalt cease to contemn, thou shalt be contemned.

(a) Sennacherib spoiled all the kingdom of Israel, and all Juda saving Jerusalem, which he also besieged, reproaching and despising God: but himself was therefore spoiled, and despised.

2 Lord have mercy upon us: for we have expected thee: be our arm in the morning, and our salvation in the time of our tribulation. 3 At the voice of the Angel the peoples fled, and at thy exaltation the nations are dispersed. 4 And your spoils shall be gathered together as the locust is gathered, as when the ditches shall be full thereof. 5 Our Lord is magnified, because he hath dwelt on high: he hath filled Sion with judgement, & justice. 6 And there shall be (b) saith in thy times: riches of salvation, wisdom & knowledge: the fear of our Lord, that is his treasure.

(b) Fidelity in performing promises of good things temporal and spiritual.

7 Behold they that see shall cry without: (c) the angels of peace shall weep bitterly.

(c) Messengers sent to procure peace shall mourn, because they cannot obtain it.

8 The ways are dissipated, the passenger by the path hath ceased, the covenant is made frustrate, he hath rejected the cities, he hath not esteemed the men. 9 The land hath mourned, & languished: Libanus is confounded, & become foul, and Saron is made as a desert: and Basan is shaken, & Carmel. 10 Now will I rise up, saith our Lord: now will I be exalted, now will I be lifted up. 11 You shall conceive heat, you shall bring forth stubble: your spirit as fire shall devour you. 12 And the peoples shall be as ashes of a great fire, thorns gathered together shall be burned with fire. 13 Hear ye that are far off, what things I have done, and ye that are near, know my strength. 14 The sinners are terrified in Sion, trembling hath possessed the hypocrites. Which of you can dwell with devouring fire? Which of you shall dwell with everlasting heats? 15 He that walketh in justices, and speaketh truth, that casteth away avarice of oppression, and shaketh his hands from all gift, that stoppeth his ears lest he hear blood, [1] and shutteth his eyes that he may see no evil.

16 This man shall dwell on high, the munitions of rocks shall be his highness: bread is given to him, his waters are faithful. 17 His eyes shall see the king in his beauty, they shall see the land far off. 18 Thy heart shall meditate fear: where is the learned? Where is he that pondereth the words of the law? [1] Where the teacher of little ones?

[1] 1. Cor. 1.

19 The unwise people thou shalt not see, the people of profound speech: so that thou canst not understand the eloquence of his tongue, in whom there is no wisdom. 20 Look upon Sion the city of our solemnity: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem, a rich habitation, a tabernacle (d) that cannot be transferred: neither shall the nails thereof be taken away for ever, and all the cords thereof shall not be broken:

(d) Both prophecies & histories testify that terrene Jerusalem was subject to destruction, and was destroyed, and therefore this is necessarily to be understood of the Church of Christ, against which hell gates shall never prevail.

21 because only there our Lord is magnifical: a place of floods, rivers most broad and wide: no ship of rowers shall pass by it, neither shall the great galley pass thereby. 22 For the Lord is our judge, the Lord is our law maker, the Lord is our King: he will save us. 23 Thy cords are loosed, and they shall not prevail: thy mast shall be so, that thou canst not spread the sign. Then shall the spoils of many preys be divided: the lame shall take the spoil. 24 Neither shall the neighbour say: I am feeble. The people that dwelleth therein, iniquity shall be taken away from them.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A Prophecy of the destruction of the whole world, at the day of Judgement, 5. and in particular of Idumea, 9. & Jerusalem, as figures thereof.

Come (a) near ye Gentiles, and hear, and ye (b) peoples attend: let the earth hear, & the fullness thereof, the round world, and every spring thereof.

(a) God willeth as well gentiles that were far off, to come near, (b) as also the Jews that were his peculiar people, all to attend, that he will destroy this whole world, before the general Judgement.

2 Because the indignation of our Lord is upon all Gentiles, and fury upon all their hosts: he hath killed them, & given them into slaughter. 3 Their slain shall be cast forth, and out of their carcasses shall rise a stink: the mountains shall melt with their blood. 4 And all the host of the heavens shall melt away, and the heavens shall be folded together as a book: and all their host shall fall away as the leaf falleth from the vine, & from the fig tree. 5 Because my sword is inebriated in heaven: behold it shall descend upon Idumaea, and upon the peoples of my slaughter to judgement. 6 The sword of our Lord is filled with blood, it is fatted of the blood of lambs and buckgoats, of the blood of rams full of marrow: for the victim of our Lord is in (c) Bosra, & a great slaughter in the land of Edom.

(c) No defence of strong places (signified by Bosra) shall save any men from destruction in the day of Judgement.

7 And the unicorns shall come down with them, & the bulls with the mighty: their land shall be drunk with blood, & their ground with the fatness of fat ones. 8 Because it is the day of the revenge of our Lord, the year of retributions of the judgement (d) of Sion.

(d) In the mean time, as a figure thereof, Sion shall be destroyed: and therefore the metaphorical destruction following, rather pertaineth to the state of the damned in the next world than to the afflicted in this life.

9 And the torrents thereof shall be turned into pitch, and the ground thereof into brimstone: and the land thereof shall be into burning pitch. 10 Night and day it shall not be quenched, the smoke thereof shall go up for ever: from generation unto generation it shall be desolate, there shall none pass by it world without end. 11 The onocrotalus, and hedgehog shall possess it: & the ibis, and the raven shall dwell in it: & a measure shall be stretched out upon it, to bring it to nothing, and a plum line unto desolation. 12 The nobles thereof shall not be there: they shall call rather upon the king, and all the princes thereof shall be as nothing. 13 And thorns and nettles shall grow up in the houses thereof, & the thistles in the munitions thereof: and it shall be the couch of dragons, and the pasture of ostriches. 14 And spirits shall meet the onocentaurus, and the satyr shall cry one to the other, there hath the lamia lien, and found herself rest. 15 There hath the hedgehog had an hole, and brought up whelps, and digged round about, and cherished them in the shadow thereof: thither are the kites gathered together, one to another. 16 Search ye diligently in the book of our Lord, and read: one of them hath not wanted, one hath not sought for the other, because that which proceedeth out of my mouth, he hath commanded, and his spirit the same hath gathered them. 17 And he hath cast them a lot, and his hand hath divided it unto them by measure: they shall possess it for ever, in generation and generation they shall dwell therein.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Gentiles converted to Christ shall much rejoice, 5. being comforted and confirmed by his miracles, much more by his internal grace, which bringeth to life everlasting.

The (a) desert and the land without passage shall be glad, and the wilderness shall rejoice, & shall flourish as the lily.

(a) An evident prophecy of the conversion of Gentiles. In whom the Church shall continually spring & flourish.

2 Springing it shall spring, & shall rejoice joyful and praising: the glory of Libanus is given to it, the beauty of Carmel, & Saron, they shall see the glory of our Lord, and the beauty of our God. 3 Encourage ye the loose hands, and strengthen the weak knees. 4 Say to the faint hearted: Take courage, and fear not: behold your God shall bring revenge of retribution: God himself will come and will save you. 5 Then shall (b) the eyes of the blind be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be open. [1]

(b) Christ leaving all logical arguments, proved himself to be Messias by his works: If ye believe not me (saith our B. Saviour) believe my works. Ioan. 10. v. 38. [1] Mat. 15. Mar. 7. Luc. 7.

6 Then shall the lame leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall be opened: because waters are cut out in the desert, and torrents in the wilderness. 7 And that which was dry land, shall be as a pool, and the thirsty ground as fountains of waters. In the dens wherein dragons dwelt before, shall spring up the greenness of reed and bulrush. 8 And a path and a way shall be there, and it shall be called the holy way: the polluted shall not pass by it, and this shall be unto you a direct way, so that fools cannot err by it. 9 The lion shall not be there, and the naughty beast shall not go up by it, nor be found there: and they shall walk that shall be delivered. 10 And the redeemed of our Lord shall be converted, and shall come into Sion with praise, and everlasting joy shall be upon their head: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and mourning shall fly away.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Sennacherib king of Assirians having taken other cities in Jury, besiegeth and threateneth Jerusalem; 4. reproacheth king Ezechias; 7. blasphemeth God; 13. and terrifieth the people.

And it came to pass (a) in the fourteenth year of king Ezechias, Sennacherib king of the Assyrians came up against all the fenced cities of Juda, and took them. [1]

(a) That which the Prophet had foretold by way of prophecy, now he recordeth by way of history, & therefore these four next chapters are inserted in the fourth book of kings. ch. 18. 19. and 20. almost in the same words, & an abridgement thereof 2. Paral. 32. [1] 4. Reg. 18. 2. Par. 31.

2 And the king of the Assyrians sent Rabsaces from Lachis to Jerusalem, to king Ezechias with a great army, and he stood by the water conduit of the upper pool in the way of the fuller's field. 3 And there came out to him Eliacim the son of Helcias, who was over the house, and Sobna the scribe, and Joahe the son of Asaph the commenter. 4 And Rabsaces said to them: Tell Ezechias: Thus saith the great king, the king of the Assyrians: What is this confidence, whereupon thou dost trust? 5 or by what counsel or force art thou disposed to rebel? Upon whom hast thou confidence, that thou art revolted from me? 6 Lo thou dost trust upon this broken staff of reed, upon Aegypt: upon which if a man lean, it will enter into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharao the king of Aegypt to all that trust in him. 7 But if thou wilt answer me: We trust in our Lord God: is it not he (b) whose excelses and altars Ezechias hath taken away, and he said to Juda and Jerusalem: Before this altar shall you adore?

(b) Such is the blindness, and malice of infidels, that they confound things done to destroy idolatry, as if the same were against God.

8 And now deliver thyself to my lord the king of the Assyrians, and I will give thee two thousand horses, neither shall thou be able of thyself to give riders for them. 9 And how wilt thou abide the face of the judge of one place, of the lesser servants of my lord? But if thou trust in Aegypt, in chariots and in horsemen: 10 and now am I come up without the Lord unto this land to destroy it? The Lord saith to me: Go up against this land, and destroy it. 11 And Eliacim, and Sobna, and Joahe said to Rabsaces: Speak to thy servants in the Syrian tongue: for we understand it: speak not to us in the Jews' language in the ears of the people, that is upon the wall. 12 And Rabsaces said to them: Why, did my lord send me to thy lord and to thee, to speak all these words; and not rather to the men, that sit on the wall; that they may eat their own dung, and drink the urine of their feet with you? 13 And Rabsaces stood, and cried with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and said: Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyrians. 14 Thus saith the king: Let not Ezechias seduce you, for he shall not be able to deliver you. 15 And let not Ezechias give you confidence upon the Lord, saying: Our Lord delivering will deliver us, this city shall not be given into the hand of the king of Assyrians. 16 Hear not Ezechias: for thus saith the king of Assyrians, do (c) a blessing with me, and come forth to me, and eat ye every man of his own vineyard, and every man of his own figtree, and drink ye every man the water of his own cistern, (c) Do that is profitable for you. 4. Reg. 18. v. 31.

17 till I come and take you away to a land, that is as your own, a land of corn and of wine, a land of bread and vineyards. 18 Neither let Ezechias trouble you, saying: Our Lord will deliver us. Why, have the gods of the nations delivered every one their land out of the hand of the king of Assyrians? 19 Where is the god of Emath, and Arphad? Where is the god of Sepharvaim? Have they delivered (d) Samaria out of my hand?

(d) Many in Samaria served false gods which could not defend them: others served God almighty who for their good suffered them to be afflicted.

20 Who is there of all the gods of these lands, which hath delivered their land out of my hand, that the Lord can deliver Jerusalem out of my hand? 21 And they held their peace, and answered him not a word. For the king had commanded, saying: Answer him not.

22 And Eliacim the son of Helcias, that was over the house, and Sobna the scribe, and Joahe the son of Asaph the commenter, went in to Ezechias their garments rent, and told him the words of Rabsaces.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

King Ezechias requesteth the prayers of Isaie the Prophet, 6. who assureth the King of God's help. (8. In the mean time the enemies threatening and blaspheming, 14. King Ezechias prayeth.) 21. God promiseth to protect Jerusalem: 30. and by an Angel killeth in one night an hundred eighty five thousand Assirians. 37. Their King returneth to Ninive and is slain by his own sons.

And it came to pass, when king Ezechias had heard it, he (a) rent his garments, and was wrapped in (b) sack cloth, and entered into the house of our Lord. [1]

(a) Renting or cutting of garments was a ceremony, to shew internal sorrow. (b) And sackcloth was an habit of penitents for sins. [1] 4. Reg. 19. 2. Par. 32.

2 And he sent Eliacim which was over the house, and Sobna the scribe and the ancients of the priests covered with sackcloths to Isaie, the son of Amos the Prophet. 3 and they said to him: Thus saith Ezechias: This day is a day of tribulation and of rebuke, and of blasphemy: because the children are come even to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth. 4 If by any means our Lord thy God will hear the words of Rabsaces, whom the king of Assyrians his lord hath sent to blaspheme the living God, and to upbraid with words which our Lord thy God hath heard: lift up prayer therefore for the remnant that are left. 5 And the servants of Ezechias came to Isaie. 6 And Isaie said to them: Thus shall you say to your master: Thus saith our Lord: Fear not at the face of the words, which thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of the Assyrians have blasphemed me. 7 Behold, I will give him a spirit, and he shall hear a message, and shall return to his country, and I will make him fall by the sword in his own country. 8 And Rabsaces returned, and found the king of Assyrians fighting against Lobna. For he heard that he was departed from Lachis, 9 and he heard of Tharaca the king of Aethiopia, them that said: He is come forth to fight against thee. Which when he had heard, he sent messengers to Ezechias, saying: 10 Thus shall you say to Ezechias the king of Juda, speaking: Let not thy God deceive thee, in whom thou hast confidence, saying: Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the king of the Assyrians. 11 Lo thou hast heard all things the kings of the Assyrians have done to all countries, which they have subverted, & canst thou be delivered? 12 Why, have the gods of the nations delivered them, whom my fathers have subverted, Gozam, and Haram, and Reseph, and the children of Eden, that were in Thalassar? 13 (c) Where is the king of Emath, and the king of Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Ana, & Ava?

(c) That which happened to all these infidel Kings, fell also upon Sennacherib King of Assyrians shortly after he had thus bragged, or rather greater ruin and misery. v. 36. & 38.

14 And Ezechias took the letters of the hand of the messengers, & read them, and went up into the house of our Lord, and Ezechias laid them open before our Lord. 15 And Ezechias prayed to our Lord, saying: 16 O Lord of hosts God of Israel, which sittest upon the Cherubs, thou art the only God of all the kingdoms of the earth, thou hast made heaven and earth. 17 Incline o Lord thine ear, & hear: open o Lord thine eyes, and see, and hear all the words of Sennacherib, which he hath sent to blaspheme the living God. 18 For in very deed, o Lord, the kings of the Assyrians have made lands desolate, and the countries of the same. 19 And they have given their gods to fire: for they were not gods, but the works of men's hands, wood and stone: & they brake them in pieces. 20 And now, o Lord our God, save us out of his hand: and let all the kingdoms of the earth know, that thou only art the Lord. 21 And Isaie the son of Amos sent to Ezechias, saying: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: For the things that thou prayed me concerning Sennacherib the king of Assyrians: 22 this is the word which our Lord hath spoken upon him: The virgin daughter of Sion hath despised thee, and scorned thee: the daughter of Jerusalem hath wagged the head after thee. 23 Whom hast thou upbraided, and whom hast thou blasphemed, and upon whom hast thou exalted voice, and lifted up the height of thine eyes? To the holy one of Israel. 24 By the hand of thy servants thou hast upbraided our Lord, & hast said: In the multitude of my chariots have I climbed the height of mountains, the tops of Libanus: & I will cut down the high cedars thereof, & the chosen fir trees thereof, and will enter to the top of the height thereof, to the forest of his Carmel. 25 I have digged, and drunken the water, and have dried up with the step of my foot all the rivers of the rampiers. 26 Why, hast thou not heard, what I have done to him of old? From ancient days have I formed it: and now I have brought it to effect: and it is made to the rooting out of little hills bickering together, and of fenced cities. 27 The inhabitants of them with shortened hand have trembled, and are confounded: they are become as hay of the field, and grass of the pasture ground, and herb of the housetops which hath withered before it was ripe. 28 I have known thy habitation, and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy madness against me. 29 When thou didst rage against me, thy pride ascended into mine ears: therefore I will put a ring in thy nostrils, and a bit in thy lips, and will bring thee back into the way, by which thou camest. 30 (d) But to thee this shall be a sign: eat this year the things that grow to themselves, and in the second year eat fruits: but in the third year sow & reap, & plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.

(d) He turneth his speech to Ezechias.

31 And that which shall be saved of the house of Juda, and which is left, shall take root downward, and shall bear fruit upward: 32 because out of Jerusalem there shall a remnant go forth, and salvation from mount Sion: the zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this. 33 Therefore thus saith our Lord concerning the king of the Assyrians: He shall not enter this city, and he shall not shoot arrow there, and shield shall not occupy it, and he shall not cast rampier about it: 34 In the way that he came, by the same he shall return, and into this city he shall not enter, saith our Lord. 35 And I will protect this city, that I may save it for mine own sake, and for David's sake my servant. 36 [1]And the Angel of our Lord came forth, and struck in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred eighty five thousand. And they arose in the morning, and behold, all were carcasses of dead men.

37 And he went out, and departed, and Sennacherib the king of the Assyrians returned, and dwelt in Ninive. 38 And it came to pass, when he adored in the temple of Nesroch his god, Adramelech & Sarasar his sons struck him with the sword: and they fled into the land of Ararat, & Asarhaddon his son reigned for him.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. XXXVII.

35. For David's sake.] We have here a manifest example that the merits of Saints departed forth of this world, [1] do profit the living: God protecting Jerusalem not only for his own, but also for his servant David's sake. Against which plain sense, Protestants denying merits and prayers of Saints, seem to have no better evasion, than this silly shift, feigned without warrant of holy Scripture, or ancient Father: to interpret these words, For David's sake, to signify for God's promise sake made to David [2]. But if they be demanded, where and when God promised to David, that he would protect and save the city of Jerusalem from sacking by enemies, or from ruin, they can never shew it. God made David conqueror of Jerusalem, extirpating there the Jebusites, who until his time kept the tower of Sion (2. Reg. 5. v. 7) & protected the same city all his time, and long after. [3] And in certain particular dangers, promised to Achaz a wicked King (Isaie. 7.) and to this good King Ezechias here (& 4. Reg. 19.) that he would save and deliver Jerusalem, from the particular distresses wherein it was at those times: but he promised not this to king David. Neither did God make a general promise to protect that city perpetually. For if he had so promised, it should not have been subdued, brought into captivity, & defaced as it was by the Babylonians. And therefore this gloss of Protestants is built upon false ground. [4] And the words are as manifest, [5] as if the kings Majesty should say: I will protect the city of London, that I may save it for mine own sake, and such my former subjects sake, that have faithfully heretofore served their Kings. Or if he should say: I will protect such a nobleman's chief Manor place for mine own sake, & for such his progenitor's sake, who served me loyally. Whereby is plainly signified, that the king doth this favour not only for his own sake, but also for the merits of some that lived there, and deserved well before. [6]Neither do we produce this similitude to prove that is in controversy, but to explain the Catholic doctrine, apparent by this text, and approved by the ancient Fathers, and the whole Church of God.

[1] Merits of Saints do profit the living. The Protestants' evasion.

[2] Bible 1603.

[3] God promised to protect the city of Jerusalem from certain dangers. but not perpetually.

[4] The Protestants' gloss is ill grounded.

[5] 4. Reg. 25.

[6] This similitude doth not prove but explain the truth otherwise proved.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Ezechias being sick, and advertised by the prophet that he shall then die, by prayer obtaineth prolongation of life: 6. with promise of victory, confirmed by a sign. 9. For which he rendereth thanks to God with a Canticle of praise.

In [a] those days Ezechias was sick even to death: and Isaie the son of Amos the Prophet, went in unto him, and said to him: Thus saith our Lord: Take order with thy house, for [b] thou shalt die, and shalt not live. [1]

(a) After the Assyrians were slain, King Ezechias was visited with a dangerous sickness, to keep him in the fear of God, lest much joy should bring him into oblivion of his duty. (b) It was first revealed to the Prophet that the King's sickness was deadly. [1] 4. Reg. 20. 2. Par. 32.

2 And Ezechias turned his face to the wall, & prayed to our Lord, 3 and said: I beseech thee Lord, remember I pray thee how I have walked before thee in truth, and in a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thine eyes. And Ezechias wept with great weeping.

4 And the word of our Lord was made to Isaie, saying: 5 Go, & tell Ezechias: Thus saith our Lord the God of David thy father: I have heard thy prayer, and seen thy tears: Lo (c) I will add upon thy days fifteen years:

(c) Secondly that God would add 15. years to his life: which could not be said, to be added, except his life according to natural causes had been at an end. S. Aug. li. 6. c. 17. de Gen. ad lit.

6 and out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians will I deliver thee, and this city, & will protect it.

7 And this shall be a sign to thee from our Lord that our Lord will do this word, which he hath spoken:

8 Behold I will make the shadow of the lines return, by the which it is now gone down in the dial of Achaz in the sun, back-ward ten lines. And the sun returned ten lines by the degrees whereby it was gone down.

9 The scripture of Ezechias the king of Juda, when he had been sick, & was recovered of his infirmity. 10 I have said: (d) In the midst of my days shall I go to the gates of hell. I have sought the residue of my years.

(d) In this Canticle the King reciteth his afflictions of mind, for that he should part out of this world, in the flower of his age.

11 I have said: I shall not see our Lord God in the land of the living. I shall behold man no more, and the inhabiter of rest. 12 My (e) generation is taken away; and is wrapped together from me, as the tent of shepherds: My life is cut off, as by a weaver; whilst I yet began he cut me off: from morning until night thou wilt make an end of me.

(e) And without children for Manasses was born three years after being 12. years old when he began to reign. 4. Reg. 21.

13 I hoped until morning, as a lion so hath he broken all my bones: From morning until evening thou wilt make an end of me. 14 As a young swallow so will I cry. I will meditate as a dove: Mine eyes are weakened, looking on high: Lord I suffer violence, answer for me.

15 What shall I say, or what shall he answer me, whereas himself hath done it? 16 I will recount to thee all my years in the bitterness of my soul. Lord if man's life be such, and the life of my spirit in such things, thou shalt chasten me, and shalt quicken me.

17 Behold in peace is my bitterness most bitter: But thou hast delivered my soul that it should not perish, thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back. 18 Because hell shall not confess to thee, neither shall death praise thee: they that go down into the lake, shall not expect thy truth. 19 The living the living he shall confess to thee, as I also this day: the father shall make thy truth known to the children. 20 O Lord save me, and we shall sing our Psalms, all the days of our life in the house of our Lord. 21 And Isaie commanded (f) that they should take a lump of figs, & plaster it upon the wound, and he should be healed.

(f) The Prophet ordained this medicine:

22 And Ezechias said: (g) What shall be the sign that I shall go up into the house of our Lord?

(g) and the King also demanded a sign before he sang the Canticle.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

The King of Babylon sent legates to visit King Ezechias, and congratulate his recovery of health. 2. He sheweth them all his riches, 5. for which Isaie reprehendeth him: and prophesieth that the Babylonians will spoil Jerusalem.

At that time Merodach Baladan the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters & gifts to Ezechias: for he had heard that he had been sick, and was recovered,[1]

2 And Ezechias (a) rejoiced upon them, and he shewed them the storehouse of aromatical spices, & of silver, and of gold, and of sweet-odours and of the best ointment, and all the store houses of his furniture, and all things that were found in his treasures. There was not any thing, which Ezechias shewed them not in his house, and in all his dominion.

(a) In this honorable embassage Ezechias rejoiced immoderately and unwisely shewed his treasures, which therefore the Prophet reprehended. And upon this occasion prophesied that the Babylonians should carry away all that treasure, and his children into captivity.

3 But Isaie the Prophet went in to Ezechias the king, and said to him: What said these men, and from whence came they to thee? And Ezechias said: from a far country they came to me, from Babylon. 4 And he said: What saw they in thy house? And Ezechias said: All things that are in my house have they seen, there was not any thing, which I have not shewed them in my treasures. 5 And Isaie said to Ezechias: Hear the word of the Lord of hosts. 6 Behold the days shall come: and all things that are in thy house, and that thy fathers have laid up for treasure until this day, shall be taken away into Babylon: there shall not any thing be left, saith our Lord. 7 And of thy children, which shall come forth of thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon. 8 And Ezechias said to Isaie: The word of our Lord which he hath spoken is good. And he said: (b) Only be there peace and truth in my days.

(b) Not for want of affection towards his posterity, but seeing he durst not request more, he prayed for peace in his own days.

CHAPTER XL.

The Prophet comforteth the people with Christ's coming to remit sins. 3. Before whom S. John Baptist shall preach penance. 6. Sheweth man's imbecility, 9. God's Majesty, 18. the vanity of idols: 27. & fall of them that fear not God.

Be[1] (a) comforted, be comforted my people, saith your God.

[1] The sixth part.

Of the delivery from sin by Christ. (a) The Prophet alludeth to the comfort of the Jews, when they should be delivered from captivity of Babylon: but principally prophesieth of man's delivery from sin by Christ.

2 Speak to the heart of Jerusalem, and call to her: because her malice is accomplished, her iniquity is forgiven: she hath received of the hand of our Lord double for all her sins.[1]

[1] Mat. 3. Mar. 1. Luc. 3. Ioan. 1.

3 (b) The voice of one crying in the desert: Prepare the way of our Lord, make straight the paths of our God in the wilderness.

(b) An evident prophecy of S. John Baptist.

4 Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and little hill shall be humbled, and crooked things shall become straight, and rough ways, plain. 5 And the glory of our Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh together shall see, the mouth of our Lord hath spoken. 6 The voice of one saying: Cry. And I said: What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the glory thereof as the flower of the field.[1]

1. Pet. 1

7 The grass is withered, and the flower is fallen, because the spirit of our Lord hath blown on it. Indeed the people is grass: 8 the grass is withered, and the flower is fallen: but the word of our Lord abideth for ever. 9 (c) Upon an high [1] mountain get thee up, thou that evangelizest to Sion: exalt the voice in strength, which evangelizest to Jerusalem: exalt it, fear not. Say to the cities of Juda: Behold your God:

(c) This is also manifest of Christ's preaching in the mountain: & of his Apostles, and Apostolical preachers. [1] Mat. 5.

10 behold our Lord God shall come in strength, & his arm shall have dominion: behold his reward is with him, and his work before him. 11 As a shepherd shall he feed his flock: in his arm shall he gather together the lambs, and in his bosom shall he lift them up, and them with young himself shall carry. [1]

[1] Ioan. 10.

12 (d) Who hath measured the waters with his fist, and pondered the heavens with a span? Who hath poised with three fingers the huge greatness of the earth, & weighed the mountains in weight, and the little hills in balance?

(d) God's power and benevolence in creating & governing all this world, is a sign that he both can and will bestow these great benefits of grace upon all nations.

13 [1] Who hath holpen the spirit of our Lord? Or who hath been his counseller, & shewed to him?

1. Cor. 2.

14 With whom hath he taken counsel, and who hath instructed him, and taught him the path of justice, and taught him knowledge, and shewed him the way of prudence? 15 Behold the Gentiles are as a drop of a bucket, and are reputed as [1] the moment of a balance: behold the islands are as a little dust.

[1] * least dust, or atomus.

16 And Libanus shall not suffice to kindle the fire, and the beasts thereof shall not be sufficient for holocaust. 17 All nations as if they were not, so are they before him, and they are reputed of him as nothing, and a vain thing. 18 To whom then have you made God like? Or what image will you set to him? [1]

[1] Act. 17.

19 Hath the artificer cast a sculptile? or hath the goldsmith figured it with gold, or the silversmith with plates of silver? 20 Strong wood, and that which will not putrefy hath he chosen: the wise artificer seeketh how he may set up a sculptile which may not be moved. 21 Why, (e) do you not know: why, have you not heard? Why, hath it not been told you from the beginning? Have you not understood the foundations of the earth?

(e) From the beginning the law of nature, afterwards the law of Moyses taught that he which made the world is God.

22 He that sitteth upon the compass of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as locusts: he that stretcheth out the heavens as nothing, and spreadeth them as a tent to dwell in. 23 He that maketh (f) the searchers of secrets as if they were not, that hath made the judges of the earth as a vain thing:

(f) Wisest Philosophers know nothing, neither can consist but by him.

[1] Psa. 146.

27 Why sayest thou Jacob, and speakest thou Israel: My way is hid from our Lord, and my judgement is passed over of my God? 28 Why knowest thou not, or hast thou not heard? Our Lord is God everlasting, which hath created the ends of the earth: he shall not fail, nor labour, neither is there searching out of his wisdom. 29 Which giveth strength to the weary: and to them that are not, multiplieth force and strength. 30 Children shall faint, and labour, and youngmen shall fall by infirmity. 31 But they that hope in our Lord shall change their strength, they shall take wings as eagles, they shall run and not labour, they shall walk and not faint.

CHAPTER XLI.

God pleading against idolaters, sheweth his power and goodness by his benefits bestowed upon the Jews; 17. with promise of perpetual protection: 21. whereas their vain idols can no way profit them.

Let (a) the islands hold their peace before me, and the Gentiles change their strength: let them come near, & then speak, let us approach to judgement together.

(a) God's expostulation with Islands, & other Gentiles living in idolatry, which implieth a prophecy of their conversion to Christ, pertaineth amongst others very particularly to our great Britainy, the greatest & most renowned Island of Europe. See D. Bristow. Mot. 11.

2 Who hath raised the just from the East, hath called him that he should follow him? He shall give the Gentiles in his sight, & he shall obtain kings: he shall give them as it were dust to his sword, as stubble taken violently with the wind, to his bow. 3 He shall pursue them, he shall pass in peace, there shall no path appear after his feet. 4 Who hath wrought and done these things, calling the generations from the beginning? I^ the Lord, the first and the last I am.[1]

[1] Apo. 1. & 22.

5 The islands have seen, and have been afraid, the ends of the earth have been astonied, they have approached, and come near. 6 Every one shall help his neighbour, and shall say to his brother: Be strong. 7 The coppersmith striking with the hammer encouraged him that forged at that time, saying: It is good for soldering: and he strengthened it with nails, that it should not be moved. 8 And thou Israel my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend: 9 in whom I have taken thee from the ends of the earth, and from the far parts thereof have called thee, and said to thee: Thou art my servant, I have chosen thee, & have not cast thee away. 10 Fear not, because I am with thee: decline not, because I am thy God: I have strengthened thee, and have holpen thee, and the right hand of my just one hath sustained thee. 11 Behold all that fight against thee shall be confounded and ashamed, they shall be as if they were not, and the men shall perish that gainsay thee. 12 Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find, the men thy rebels: they shall be as if they were not: and as consumption the men that war against thee. 13 Because I am the Lord thy God, taking thy hand, and saying to thee: Fear not, I have holpen thee. 14 Fear not thou (b) worm of Jacob, ye that are dead of Israel: I have holpen thee, saith our Lord: and thy redeemer the holy one of Israel.

(b) You that are as abjects contemned, & as dead men in the world, fear not, because Christ hath care to protect, & to reward you.

15 I have made thee as a new threshing wain, having teeth like a saw: thou shalt thresh the mountains, and break them in pieces: and shalt make the little hills as dust. 16 Thou shalt fan them, and the wind shall take them away, & the whirlwind shall disperse them: and thou shalt rejoice in the Lord, in the holy one of Israel thou shalt be joyful. 17 The needy and the poor seek for waters, and there are none: their tongue hath been dry with thirst. I^ the Lord will hear them, I^ the God of Israel will not forsake them. 18 I will open rivers in the high hills, and fountains in the midst of plain fields: I will make the desert into pools of waters, and the land not passable into rivers of waters. 19 I will give into the wilderness the cedar, and the thorn, and the myrtle and the olive tree: I will set in the desert the fir tree, the elm, and the box tree together. 20 That they may see, and know, and recount, and understand together, that the hand of the Lord hath done this, and the holy one of Israel hath created it. 21 Make your judgement approach, saith the Lord: bring hither, if perhaps you have any thing, said the King of Jacob. 22 (c) Let them come, and tell us what things soever are to come: tell the former things what they have been: and we will set our heart, and shall know the later ends of them, and tell us the things that are to come.

(c) Only God, and those to whom he revealeth, can tell things to come, and therefore idols cannot foreshew what shall be, neither could tell beforehand things that are already come to pass.

23 Shew what things are to come hereafter, and we shall know that ye are gods. Do ye also good or evil, if you can: & let us speak & see together. 24 Behold, you are of nothing, and your work of that which is not: he is abomination that hath chosen you. 25 I have raised up from the North, and he shall come from the rising of the sun: he shall call upon my name, and shall bring the magistrates as mire, and as the plasterer treading clay. 26 Who hath shewed from the beginning, that we may know: and from the beginning that we may say: Art thou just? There is neither that sheweth, nor telleth before, nor heareth your words. 27 The first shall say to Sion: Lo I am present, and to Jerusalem: I will give an evangelist. 28 And I saw, and neither of these was there any that would consult, and being asked would answer a word. 29 Behold all are unjust, and their works vain: their idols are wind and vanity.

CHAPTER XLII.

God the Father is well pleased with his Son: 6. whom he sendeth into this world to teach justice, whereby men are justified. 11. Many Gentiles shall be converted. 25. Jews and other obstinate infidels shall be severely punished.

Behold (a) my servant, I will receive him: mine elect, my soul hath pleased it-self in him:[1] I have given my spirit upon him, he shall bring forth judgement to the Gentiles.

(a) Christ according to his humanity is the servant of God, by whom all other servants are redeemed, none else being able to satisfy for themselves, much less for others. [1] Mat. 17.

2 He shall not cry, nor accept person, neither shall his voice be heard abroad.[1]

[1] Mat. 12.

3 The bruised reed he shall not break, and smoking flax he shall not quench: he shall bring forth judgement in truth. 4 He shall not be sad, nor turbulent, till he set judgement in the earth: and the islands shall expect his law. 5 Thus saith the Lord God that created the heavens, and stretched them out: that established the earth, and the things that spring thereof: that giveth breath to the people, that is upon it, and spirit to them that tread thereupon. 6 I^ the Lord have called thee in justice, and taken thy hand, & preserved thee. And I have given thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles. 7 That thou mightest open the eyes of the blind, and bring forth the prisoner out of prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house. 8 I^ the Lord, this is my name: I will not give my glory to another, and my praise to graven things. 9 The things that were first, lo they are come: new things also I do shew: before they come forth, I will make you hear them. 10 Sing ye to the Lord a new song, his praise is from the ends of the earth: ye that go down to the sea, and you the fullness thereof: ye islands, and inhabitants of the same. 11 Let the desert be exalted and the cities thereof: Cedar shall dwell in houses: ye inhabitants of the Rock, give praise, they shall cry from the top of the mountains. 12 They shall give glory to the Lord, and shall declare his praise in the islands. 13 The Lord shall go forth as a strong man, as a man of war shall he raise up zeal: he shall shout and cry: over his enemies he shall be strengthened. 14 I have always held my peace, I have kept silence, I have been patient, I will speak as a travailing woman: I will dissipate, and swallow up together. 15 I will make (b) mountains and little hills desolate, and will make all their grass to wither: and I will turn rivers into islands, and will dry up the standing pools.

(b) Such haughty and covetous minds as expect their Messias to be a worldly and warlike conquerer, that will advance his followers to kingdoms or princedoms, and to abundance of temporal riches, shall be frustrate of their vain hopes. Whereas Christ our Saviour both by example and doctrine teacheth the contrary, willing his followers to learn of him to be poor in spirit, meek & humble in heart, and their reward shall be great in heaven, not in earth; they shall be happy not in external, but in eternal glory.

16 And I will lead the blind into the way, which they know not: and in the paths, which they have been ignorant of I will make them walk: I will make darkness before them to be light, and crooked things straight: these words have I done to them, and have not forsaken them. 17 They are turned backward: let them be confounded with confusion, that trust in graven thing, that say to the framed thing, ye are our gods. 18 Hear ye deaf, and ye blind behold to see. 19 Who is blind, but my servant? And deaf, but he to whom I have sent my messengers? Who is blind, but he that is sold? And who is blind, but the servant of the Lord? 20 Thou that seest many things, wilt thou not keep them? Thou that hast ears open, wilt thou not hear? 21 And the Lord hath been willing to sanctify him, and to magnify the law, and extol it.

22 But the same people is spoiled, & wasted: all are the snare of youngmen, and they are hid in the houses of prisons: they are made a prey, neither is there to deliver them: a spoil, neither is there that saith: Restore. 23 Who is there among you that will hear this, attend and harken for things to come? 24 Who hath given Jacob into spoil, and Israel to the wasters? Hath not our Lord himself, to whom we have sinned? And they would not walk in his ways, and they have not heard his law. 25 And he hath poured out upon them, the indignation of his fury, & a strong battle, and hath burnt him round about, and he knew not: and set him on fire, and he understood not.

CHAPTER XLIII.

God comforteth his Church, promising ever to protect the same: 11. blameth the Jews, expostulating their ingratitude.

And now thus saith our Lord that (a) created thee, o Jacob, & formed thee, o Israel: Fear not, because I have redeemed thee, and called thee by the name: thou art mine.

(a) Christ calleth and endueth sinners with grace, without any precedent good work or desire in them, even as he createth of nothing.

2 When thou (b) shalt pass through the waters, I will be with thee, and the floods shall not cover thee: when thou shalt walk in fire, thou shalt not be burnt, and the flame shall not burn in thee:

(b) In all tribulations & persecutions Christ protecteth his servants, not suffering them to be tempted further than they may resist if they will. Whereby the Church still remaineth incontaminate, and shall never be destroyed.

3 Because I am the Lord thy God the holy one of Israel thy saviour, I have given Aegypt thy propitiation, Aethiopia and Saba for thee. 4 Since thou becamest honourable in mine eyes, and glorious: I have loved thee, & I will give men for thee, and peoples for thy soul. 5 Fear not, because I am with thee: from the East will I bring thy seed, and from the West I will gather thee. 6 I will say to the North: Give: and to the South: Hinder not: bring my sons from a far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth. 7 And every one that invocateth my name, for my glory have I created him, formed him, and made him. 8 Bring forth the blind people, and having eyes: the deaf, and he that hath ears. 9 All the nations are assembled together, and the tribes are gathered: which of you can shew this & shall make us hear the former things? Let them give their witnesses, and be justified, and hear, and say: In very deed. 10 You are my witnesses, saith our Lord, and my servants whom I have chosen: that you may know, and believe me, and understand that I myself am. Before me there hath no God been formed, & after me there shall not be. 11 I am, I am the Lord, and there is no saviour beside me. 12 I have shewed, and have saved: I have made it heard, and there hath been no strange one among you. You are my witnesses, saith our Lord, and I^ God. 13 And from the beginning I myself, and there is not that can deliver out of my hand: I will work, and who shall turn it away? 14 (c) Thus saith the Lord your redeemer, the holy one of Israel: For your sake have I sent forth into Babylon, and have plucked down all the bars, & Chaldees glorying in their ships.

(c) God made Cyrus conqueror of Babylon, not for his own sake, but for Israel, that he might release their captivity. For God perpetually disposeth of Kingdoms for the good of his Church.

15 I^ the Lord your holy one, that created Israel your king. 16 Thus saith our Lord, that gave a way in the sea, and a path in the vehement waters. 17 Which brought forth the chariot & the horse, the arm and the strong: they slept together, neither shall they rise again: they are broken as flax, and are extinct.
18 Remember not former things, and look not on things of old.[1]

[1] 2. Cor. 5.
Apo. 21.

19 Behold I make new things, and now they shall spring forth, verily you shall know them: I will make a way in the desert, and rivers in the place not haunted.
20 The beast of the field shall glorify me, the dragons and the ostriches: because I have given waters in the desert: rivers in the place not haunted, that I might give drink to my people, to mine elect. 21 This people have I formed for myself, they shall tell my praise.
22 Thou hast not invocated me, o Jacob, neither hast thou laboured in me, o Israel. 23 Thou hast not offered me the ram of thine holocaust, and with thy victims thou hast not glorified me: I have not made thee to serve in oblation, nor put thee to pain in frankincense.
24 Thou hast not bought me sweet cane for silver, and with the fat of thy victims thou hast not inebriated me. But thou hast made me to serve with thy sins, thou hast put me to pain with thine iniquities. 25 I am, I am he that take clean away thine iniquities for mine own sake, and I will not remember thy sins. 26 Bring me into remembrance, & let us be judged together: tell if thou have any thing, that thou mayst be justified.
27 (d) Thy first father sinned, and thy (e) interpreters have transgressed against me.

(d) The sin of Adam contaminating all mankind was not purged by any: (e) All Patriarchs, Priests, Prophets, & all others sinning, till Christ the innocent lamb came to take away the sin of the world.

28 And I have profaned the holy princes, I have given Jacob to destruction, & Israel to reproach.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Christ foundeth and establisheth his Church: 6. Inveigheth against idolaters: 26. and promiseth deliverance from the captivity of Babylon.

And now hear, o Jacob my servant, and Israel whom I have chosen. 2 Thus saith the Lord that made and formed thee, the helper (a) from the womb: fear not o my servant Jacob, and thou most righteous whom I have chosen.

(a) God's election preventeth man's good endeavour for without grace none could return to God.

3 For I will pour out waters upon the thirsty ground, and streams upon the dry land: I will pour out my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thy stock.[1]

4 And they shall spring the herbs as willows beside the waters running by. 5 This man shall say: I am our Lord's: and another man shall call in the name of Jacob, and this will write with his hand, To the Lord: and in the name of Israel he shall be resembled.
6 Thus saith our Lord the King of Israel; and the redeemer thereof the Lord of hosts: I am (b) the first, and I^ the last,[1] and beside me there is no God.

(b) Idolaters are foolish in leaving God, who is eternal and to trust in idols that neither can shew what was from the beginning, nor prophesy things to come.[1] Apo. 1. & 22.

7 Who is like to me? Let him call and declare: and let him expound me the order, since I appointed the ancient people: the things to come, and that shall be hereafter let them shew unto them. 8 Fear ye not, neither be ye troubled, from that time I have made thee to hear, and have declared: you are my witnesses. Is there a God beside me, and a maker, whom I have not known? 9 All the makers of an idol are nothing, and their best beloved things shall not profit them. (c) Themselves are their witnesses, that they do not see, nor understand, that they may be confounded.

(c) All that is here said of the vanity of idols & foolish impiety of idolaters, may be referred (saith S. Ierom in this place) unto heresy, and heretics, who artificially devise the fictions of their own doctrines and lying: and adore the things which they know were feigned by themselves; neither are so content, but draw the simple to embrace and adore the same inventions. A little after he sheweth, that the Catholic Church of Christ shall be ever free from such idolatry: quite contrary to Protestants' assertion that the Church should have fallen & been in idolatry many hundred years together.

10 Who hath formed a god, and molten a sculptile profitable to nothing? 11 Behold, all the partakers thereof shall be confounded: for the makers are of men: they shall all assemble, they shall stand and fear, and shall be confounded together. 12 The iron-smith hath wrought with the file, with coals, & with hammers he hath formed it, & hath wrought in the arm of his strength: he shall hunger and faint, he shall not drink water, and shall become weary.[1]

13 The carpenter hath stretched out a rule, he hath formed it with a plain: he hath made it with corners, and hath fashioned it round with the compass: and he hath made the image of a man, as it were a beautiful man dwelling in a house. 14 He hath cut down cedars, taken the elm tree, & the oak that stood among the trees of the forest: he hath planted the pine tree, which the rain nourished. 15 And it was made a fire for men: he took of them, and was warmed: and kindled them, & baked bread: but of the rest he wrought a god, & adored: he made a sculptile, and bowed down before it. 16 Half he burnt with fire, and of the half^ broiled he flesh & eat it: he sod pottage, and was filled, and was warmed, and said: Aha, I am warm, I have seen the fire. 17 But the rest thereof he made a god, and a sculptile to himself, he boweth before it, and beseecheth, saying: Deliver me, because thou art my God. 18 They have not known, nor understood: for they have forgotten, that their eyes could not see, and that they could not understand with their heart.

19 They do not recount in their mind, nor know, nor feel, that they should say: Half thereof I have burnt with fire, and I have baked bread upon the coals thereof: I have broiled flesh, & have eaten, and of the rest thereof shall I make an idol? Shall I fall down before the stock of a tree? 20 Part thereof is ashes; an unwise heart adored it, & he will not save his soul, nor say: Perhaps there is a lie in my right hand.

21 Remember these things, o Jacob, and Israel, because thou art my servant. I have formed thee, thou art my servant, o Israel, forget me not. 22 I have clean taken away thine iniquities as a cloud, & thy sins as a mist: return to me because I have redeemed thee.

23 Praise ye, o heavens, because the Lord hath done mercy: make jubilation ye ends of the earth: ye mountains sound praise, thou forest & every tree thereof, because the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and Israel shall be glorified. 24 Thus saith our Lord thy redeemer, & thy maker, from the womb: I am the Lord, that make all things, that alone stretch out the heavens, that establish the earth, and none with me.

25 That make the signs of diviners void, and turn the soothsayers into fury. That turn the wise backward, and that make their knowledge foolish. 26 That raiseth up the word of his servant, and accomplisheth the counsel of his messengers, which say (d) to Jerusalem: Thou shalt be inhabited; & to the cities of Juda: You shall be built, and I will raise up the deserts thereof.

(d) In all this prophecy of the Church of Christ the Prophet alludeth to the history of Jerusalem destroyed by the Chaldees, and re-edified by permission of Cyrus, & Darius, in the times of Aggeus, & Zacharias.

27 Which say to the depth: Be thou desolate, and thy rivers I will dry up. 28 Who say to Cyrus: Thou art my pastor, and thou shalt accomplish all my will. Who say to Jerusalem: Thou shalt be built; and to the temple: Thou shalt be formed.

CHAPTER XLV.

Cyrus by God's providence overcoming Babylon, will deliver the Jews from captivity. 4. Yet is reprehended because he acknowledgeth not God. 8. Upon which occasion the Prophet foresheweth the coming of Christ; 14. in figure of whom he addeth more of Cyrus: 18. and avoucheth that there is but one true God. [1]

[1] The 7. part.
The delivery of the Jews from Babylon by Cyrus King of Medes and Persians, now also of Assyrians.

Thus saith the Lord to my (a) christ Cyrus, whose right hand I have taken to subdue the Gentiles before his face, and to turn the backs of kings, and to open the doors before him, and the gates shall not be shut.

(a) Because all Kings that reign among the Jews were anointed with oil, Cyrus is called Christ, though he was not ordained with this ceremony of anointing.

2 I will go before thee, and will humble the glorious of the earth: I will break the brazen gates, and will burst the iron bars. 3 And I will give thee hidden treasures, and mysteries of secrets: that thou mayst know that I am the Lord, which call thy name, the God of Israel. 4 For my servant Jacob, and Israel mine elect, and I have called thee (b) by thy name: I have resembled thee, and (c) thou hast not known me. [1]

(b) S. Ierom noteth here out of Iosephus (l. 11. Antiq.) that Cyrus finding his name long before prophesied by Isaias, became very benevolous to the Jews, loving them as the familiar servants of God. (c) But though he knew and professed one God, & no other (1. Esd. 1.) yet he was not converted in all points of religion, neither served God according to that general knowledge he had, & so knew not God rightly. [1] 2. Par. 26.

5 I^ the Lord, & there is none else: beside me there is no God: I girded thee, and thou hast not known me: 6 that they which are from the rising of the sun, and which are from the west may know, that there is none beside me, I^ the Lord, and there is none other, 7 that form light, and create darkness, make peace, and create evil: I^ the Lord that do all these things.

8 (d) Drop dew ye heavens from above, and let the clouds rain the just: be the earth opened, & bud forth a saviour: & let justice spring up withal: I^ the Lord have created him.

(d) The Prophet in the former prophecy contemplating Christ as in a figure, now elevated more in spirit, prophesieth of Christ only, who built his Church upon a sure rock. Not of Cyrus, who being advanced by God, yet perfectly knew not God, v. 4. nor of Zorobabel, who did not release the people from captivity, but together with others was released, neither had the title of a King, but lived in subjection to other Kings. S. Ierom in hunc locum.

9 [1] Woe to him that gainsayeth his maker, a sherd of the earthen pots: shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it: What makest thou, & thy work is without hands?

Jere. 18.

10 Woe to him that saith to his father: Why doest thou beget? And to the woman: Why doest thou travail? 11 Thus saith our Lord the holy one of Israel, the maker thereof: Ask me things to come: concerning my children & the work of my hands command you me. 12 I made the earth: & man upon the same I have created: my hands stretched forth the heavens, and I have commanded all their host. 13 I have raised him up to justice, & will direct all his ways: he shall build my city, & dismiss my captivity: not for price, nor for gifts, saith our Lord the God of hosts. 14 Thus saith our Lord: The labour of Aegypt, and the merchandise of Aethiopia, and of Sabaim the high men shall pass to thee, & shall be thine: they shall walk after thee, they shall go bound with manacles: & they shall adore thee, & shall beseech thee: Only in thee is God, and there is no God beside thee. 15 Verily thou art God hidden, the God of Israel a saviour. 16 They are all confounded, and ashamed: the forgers of errors are gone together into confusion. 17 Israel is saved in our Lord with eternal salvation: you shall not be confounded, and you shall not be ashamed for ever and ever.

18 Because thus saith our Lord that created the heavens, the very God that formed the earth, and made it, the very maker thereof: he did not create it in vain: to be inhabited he formed it. I^ the Lord, and there is none other. 19 I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth: I have not said to the seed of Jacob: Seek me in vain. I^ the Lord that speak justice, that declare right things. 20 Gather ye together, and come, and approach together ye that are saved of the Gentiles: they have been ignorant that lift up the wood of their graven work, and ask of a god that saveth not. 21 Declare ye, and come, and consult together: who hath made this to be heard from the beginning, from that time foretold this? Have not I^ the Lord, and there is no God besides but I? A just God, and that saveth^ there is none beside me. 22 Be converted to me, and you shall be saved all ye ends of the earth: because I am God, and there is none other. 23 I have sworn by myself, the word of justice shall proceed out of my mouth, and shall not return, because every knee shall be bowed to me, and every tongue shall swear. [1]

24 Therefore in our Lord, shall he say, are my justices and empire: they shall come to him, and all that resist him, shall be confounded. 25 In our Lord shall all the seed of Israel be justified and praised.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Bel, Nabo, and other idols shall be destroyed, 3. where upon the Jews are admonished to return from sin, to God's true service. 12. And salvation is promised by Christ.

Bel is broken, (a) Nabo is destroyed: their idols are made to beasts & cattle, your burdens of heavy weight even unto weariness.

(a) Bel or Belus, called also Saturnus, was of such estimation, that they offered to him in sacrifice not only men that were taken captives, but also their own sons. Nabo, otherwise called Dagon, was an especial idol amongst the Philistiims. 1. Reg. 5.

2 They have melted away, and are broken together: they could not save him that carried them, & their soul shall go into captivity. 3 Hear me, o house of Jacob, all the remnant of the house of Israel, which are carried of my womb, are borne up of my matrice. 4 Even unto old age I am the same, and unto hoar hairs I will carry: I have made, & I will bear: I will carry, and will save. 5 Whereto have you resembled me, and made me equal, and compared me, and made me like? 6 You that contribute gold out of the bag, and weigh silver with balance: hiring a goldsmith to make a god: and they fall down and adore. [1]

[1] Rom. 6.

7 They bear him on their shoulders carrying, and setting him in his place, and he shall stand, and shall not move out of his place. Yea when they shall cry also unto him, he shall not hear: from tribulation he shall not save them. 8 Remember this, and be confounded: return ye transgressors to the heart. 9 Remember the former world, because I am God, and there is no God beside, neither is there the like to me. 10 Which shew the last thing from the beginning, and from the beginning the things that as yet were not done, saying: My counsel shall stand, & all my will shall be done: 11 Which call (b) a bird from the east, and from a far country, the man of mine own will, and I have spoken, and will bring it: I have created, and will do it.

(b) Not Cyrus (saith S. Ierom) but Christ the Orient star, prophesied by Balaam, Num. 24. whom the Sages came to adore from the East. Mat. 2.

12 Hear me ye hard hearted, which are far from justice. 13 I have made my justice near, it shall not be far off, and my salvation shall not tarry. I will give salvation in Sion, and my glory to Israel.

CHAPTER XLVII.

The destruction of Babylon is further prophesied, for their pride, 8. arrogancy, 10. and sorcery.

Come down, sit in the dust (a) o Virgin daughter of Babylon, sit on the ground: there is no throne for the daughter of the Chaldees, because thou shalt no more be called nice and tender.

(a) Babylon not hitherto overcome at last was brought to misery and destruction.

2 Take a mill, and grind meal: make bare thy turpitude, discover the shoulder, uncover the thighs, pass the rivers. 3 Thine ignominy shall be discovered, and thy reproach shall be seen: I will take vengeance, and no man shall resist me.[1]

[1] Nahum 3.

4 Our redeemer, the Lord of hosts is his name, the holy one of Israel. 5 Sit holding thy peace, and enter into darkness, o daughter of the Chaldees: because thou shalt no more be called the lady of kingdoms. 6 I was angry against my people, I (b) have contaminated mine inheritance, and have given them into thy hand: thou hast not shewed mercies to them: upon the ancient thou hast made thy yoke exceeding heavy.

(b) God's people contaminating themselves with sin, were suffered to fall into ignominious captivity; but God giveth them grace of repentance, & then severely punisheth their unmerciful afflicters & persecuters.

7 And thou hast said: I will be a lady for ever: thou hast not put these things upon thy heart, neither hast thou remembered thy later end. 8 And now hear these things thou that art delicate, and dwellest confidently, that sayest in thy heart: I am, and there is none else beside me: I shall not sit a widow, and I shall not know barrenness.[1]

[1] Apoc. 8.

9 These two things shall come to thee suddenly in one day, barrenness and widowhood. All things are come upon thee, because of the multitude of thy sorceries, and for the vehement hardness of thine enchanters.[1]

[1] Infra. 5.

10 And thou hast confidence in thy malice, and hast said: There is none that seeth me. Thy wisdom, and thy knowledge, this hath deceived thee. And thou hast said in thy heart: I am, and beside me there is none other. 11 Evil shall come upon thee, and thou shalt not know the rising thereof: and calamity shall fall violently upon thee, which thou canst not expiate: misery shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know. 12 Stand with thine enchanters, and with the multitude of thy sorceries, in which thou hast travailed from thy youth, if perhaps it may profit thee any thing, or if thou mayst become stronger. 13 Thou hast failed in the multitude of thy counsels: let the astrologers of the heaven stand and save thee, which did contemplate the stars, and count the months, that by them they might tell things that shall come to thee. 14 Behold they are become as stubble, fire hath burnt them, they shall not deliver their soul from the hand of the flame: there are no coals, wherewith they may be warmed, nor fire, that they may sit thereat. 15 So are the things become unto thee, in whatsoever thou hast travailed: thy merchants from thy youth, every one hath erred in his own way, there is none that can save thee.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The Prophet inveigheth against the Jews' vain boasting of the name of Israel, not having true virtues. 3. Only God, not idols, foresheweth things to come: 9. for his own name's sake, conserveth his people, 16. inviteth them to repent, and to be grateful for his benefits.

Hear ye these things o house of Jacob, which are called by the name of Israel, and are come out of (a) the waters of Juda, which swear in the name of our Lord, and are mindful of the God of Israel not in truth, nor in justice.

(a) By waters in the Hebrew phrase is here understood the fountain, or spring, the Prophet speaking to those that were of the tribe of Juda: who especially challenged the preeminences and blessings of Israel the Patriarch, but had not his virtues of fortitude, and internal sight of God, signified by the name Israel.

2 For they are called of the holy city, and are established upon the God of Israel: the Lord of hosts is his name. 3 The former things of old I have declared, & they proceeded out of my mouth, and I have made them to be heard: Suddenly I have wrought, and they came. 4 For I knew that thou art stubborn, and thy neck is an iron sinew, and thy forehead of brass. 5 I foretold thee of old: before they came I told thee, lest perhaps thou shouldst say: My idols have done these things, & my sculptiles & moltens have commanded these things. 6 See all the things which thou hast heard: but have you declared them? I have made thee know new things of old, and the things are kept which thou knowest not: 7 now they are created, and not of old: and before the day, and thou heardest them not, lest perhaps thou mightest say: Behold I knew them. 8 Thou hast neither heard, nor known, neither was thine ear opened of old. For I know that transgressing thou wilt transgress, and I have called thee a transgressor from the womb. 9 (b) For my name's sake I will make my fury far off: and for my praise I will bridle thee, that thou perish not.

(b) God spareth & conserveth his people, not for their merits but of his mercy, shewing his benignity that they may repent if they will.

10 Behold I have fined thee, but not as silver, I have chosen thee in the furnace of poverty. 11 For myself, for myself will I do it, that I be not blasphemed: and I will not give my glory to another. 12 Hear me, o Jacob, and thou Israel whom I call: I^ the same, I^ the first, & I^ the last. 13 My hand also hath founded the earth, and my right hand hath measured the heavens: I shall call them, & they shall stand together. 14 Assemble ye together all you, & hear: which of them hath shewed these things? The Lord hath loved him, he will do his will in Babylon, and his arm in the Chaldees. 15 I, even I have spoken, and called him: I have brought him, and his way is directed. 16 Come ye to me, and hear this: I have not spoken in secret from the beginning, from the time before it was done I was there, and now the Lord God hath sent me, and his spirit. 17 Thus saith our Lord thy Redeemer, the holy one of Israel: I^ the Lord thy God that teach thee profitable things, that govern thee in the way that thou walkest. 18 I would thou hadst attended to my commandments: thy peace had been as a flood, and thy justice as the waves of the sea. 19 And thy seed had been as the sand, and the stock of thy womb as the gravel stones thereof: his name had not perished, neither had it been destroyed from before my face. 20 Come forth out of Babylon, fly from the Chaldees, shew it forth in the voice of exultation: make this to be heard, and speak it out even to the ends of the earth. Say: Our Lord hath redeemed his servant Jacob. [1]

[1] Iere. 21.

21 They thirsted not in the desert, when he brought them forth: water out of the rock he brought forth to them, and he clove the rocks, and there flowed waters. [1]

Nu. 20.

22 There is (d) no peace to the impious, saith our Lord.

(d) These promises of reconciliation to God, and of peace, pertain to the penitent, not to the obstinate in impiety.

CHAPTER XLIX.

Christ shall lead the Gentiles to salvation, even of the islands and uttermost parts of the world. 10. By him the faithful shall receive much grace, 14. and comfort. 18. The Church still increasing, 21. admiring her own felicity, 25. and the destruction of her enemies. [1]

[1] The 8. part.
All nations shall be converted to Christ: some Jews in the primitive Church, and many near the end of the world.

Hear ye islands, and attend ye peoples (a) from a far. The Lord hath called me from the womb, from my mother's belly he hath been mindful of my name.

(a) This word from afar, & the like doth convince (saith S. Ierom) that the Prophet speaketh of all nations to be converted to Christ. And as this Prophet hath already spoken much of Christ and his Church, so henceforth more especially he sheweth himself rather an Evangelist, or an Apostle, than only a Prophet: which S. Ierom testifieth of him. Epist. ad Paulin.

2 And he hath made my mouth as a sharp sword: in the shadow of his hand he hath protected me, & hath made me as a chosen arrow in his quiver he hath hidden me. 3 And he said to me: Thou art my servant Israel, because in thee will I glory. 4 And I said: I have laboured in vain, without cause, and in vain have I spent my strength: therefore my judgement is with the Lord, and my work with my God. 5 And now saith the Lord, that formed me from the womb to be his servant, that I may reduce Jacob unto him, and Israel will not be gathered together: and I am glorified in the eyes of the Lord, and my God is made my strength.

6 [1]And he said: It is a small thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to convert the dregs of Israel. Behold, I have given thee to be the light of the Gentiles, that thou mayst be salvation even to the farthest part of the earth.

[1] Act. 13.

7 Thus saith our Lord the redeemer of Israel, the holy one thereof, to the contemptible soul, to the nation that is abhorred, to the servant of lords: kings shall see, & princes shall rise, & adore for our Lord's sake, because he is faithful, & for the holy one of Israel who hath chosen thee. 8 [1]Thus saith our Lord: In time acceptable I have heard thee, and in the day of salvation I have holpen thee: and I have kept thee, and given thee to be a covenant of the people, that thou mightest raise up the land, and possess the inheritances dissipated.

[1] 2. Cor. 6.

9 That thou mightest say to them, that are bound: Come forth, & to them that are in darkness: Be ye discovered. Upon the ways shall they feed, & their pastures shall be in all plains. 10 They shall not hunger nor thirst, & heat and sun shall not strike them: because he that is merciful to them shall govern them, and all the fountains of waters shall give them drink.[1]

[1] Apoc. 7.

11 And I will make all my mountains to be a way, & my paths shall be exalted. 12 Behold these shall come from far, & behold they from the North and the sea, and these from the South country. 13 Ye heavens praise, and earth rejoice, ye mountains give praise with jubilation, because our Lord hath comforted his people, and will have mercy on his poor ones. 14 And (b) Sion said: Our Lord hath forsaken me, & our Lord hath forgotten me.

(b) The Church of the old testament lamenteth that she seemeth to be forsaken, in respect of the many great benefits bestowed on the Church of Christ.

15 Why, (c) can a woman forget her infant, that she will not have pity on the son of her womb? And if she should forget, yet will not I forget thee.

(c) But God answereth that he cannot, & will not forget, nor forsake his Church which indeed is all one in the old and new testament, only differing in state, and therefore that which he doth to her in the new testament, pertaineth to the whole Church in general of all times & all places.

16 Behold, I have written thee in my hands, thy walls are before mine eyes always. 17 Thy builders are come: they that destroy thee and dissipate thee shall go out of thee. 18 [1]Lift up thine eyes round about, and see, all these are gathered together, they are come to thee: I live, saith our Lord, for thou shalt be clothed with all these as with an ornament, and as a bride thou shalt put them about thee.

[1] Isa. 60.

19 Because thy deserts, and thy solitary places, & the land of thy ruin, shall now be strait by reason of the inhabitants, & they shall be chased far away that swallowed thee up. 20 As yet shall the children of thy barrenness say in thine ears: The place is strait for me, make me space to dwell. 21 And thou shalt say in thy heart: Who hath begot me these? I am barren & not bearing, led into transmigration, & captive: & these who hath brought up? I destitute & alone: & these where were they? 22 Thus saith our Lord God: behold I will lift up my hand to the Gentiles, & to the peoples I will exalt my sign. And they shall carry thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters upon their shoulders. 23 And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, & queens thy nurses: with countenance cast down toward the ground they shall adore thee, & they shall lick up the dust of thy feet. And thou shalt know that I am the Lord, upon whom they shall not be confounded that expect him. 24 Shall a prey be taken from the strong? Or can that which was caught of the mighty be saved? 25 Because thus saith our Lord: Yea verily, even the captivity shall be taken away from the strong: and that which was taken by the mighty, shall be saved. But those that have judged thee, will I judge, and thy children I will save. 26 And I will feed thine enemies with their own flesh: & as with new wine, so shall they be imbrued with their own blood: and all flesh shall know, that I am the Lord that save thee, & thy redeemer the mighty one of Jacob.

CHAPTER L.

The Synagogue shall be divorced for her iniquities. 4. Christ will omit no ordinary means but for her sake will endure ignominious afflictions. 10. All which she contemning shall perish.

Thus saith our Lord: What is this (a) bill of the divorce of our mother, wherewith I have dismissed her? Or who is (b) my creditor, to whom I sold you? Lo you are sold (c) for your wicked deeds, I have dismist your mother.

(a) God divorced not the Synagogue from him of hardness of heart. (b) Neither delivered her for payment, as though he were in debt to any creditor. (c) But her own revolt, and iniquities separated her from Christ.

2 Because I came, and there was not a man: I called, and there was none that would hear. Why, is mine hand abridged and made a little one, that I cannot redeem? Or is there no strength in me to deliver? Behold, in my rebuke I will make the sea desert, I will turn the floods into dry land: the fishes shall rot without water, and shall die for thirst. [1]

[1] Isa. 59. Num. 11.

3 I will clothe the heavens with darkness, and will make sackcloth their covering. 4 The Lord hath given me (d) a learned tongue, that I may know to stay him up that is weary, with a word: he stirreth up in the morning, in the morning he stirreth up mine ear, that I may hear him as a master.

(d) Skill of tongue how to speak, & discretion when & where, was given to Isaias, ch. 6. v. 6. Much more (saith S. Ierom) to Christ: who spake in his life, was silent in his passion, and now speaketh by his Apostles, and other pastors.

5 The Lord God hath opened mine ear, & I do not gainsay? I am not gone backward. 6 I have given my body to the strikers, & my cheeks to the pluckers: I have not turned away my face from the rebukers & spitters. [1]

[1] Mat. 26.

7 The Lord God is mine helper, therefore am I not confounded: therefore have I set my face, as a most hard rock, and I know that I shall not be confounded. 8 [1] He is near that justifieth me, who shall gainsay me? Let us stand together. Who is mine adversary? Let him come to me.

[1] Rom. 8.

9 Behold the Lord God my helper: who is he that shall condemn me? Lo they shall all be destroyed as a garment, the moth shall eat them. 10 Which of you feareth our Lord, heareth the voice of his servant, who hath walked in darkness, and hath no light? Let him hope in the name of our Lord, & lean upon his God. 11 Lo all you do kindle a fire, are compassed with flames, walk in the light of your fire, and in the flames which you have kindled: of my hand is this done to you, you shall sleep in sorrows.

CHAPTER LI.

God encourageth Sion to trust in his promised comfort, by example of Abraham. 3. For the spiritual Sion, the Church of Christ, shall receive much grace by his Evangelical law. 12. And her children shall not fear persecution, nor be overcome: 23. but her enemies shall fail.

Hear me ye that follow that which is just, and that seek our Lord: attend to (a) the rock whence you are hewn out, & to the cave of the lake from the which you are cut out.

(a) In the next verse the rock & cave are explicated to signify Abraham and Sara, who are proposed for examples to be imitated, being so noble progenitors of the Jews. S. Paul exhorteth his country men, and in them all Christians, the like in spiritual progenitors, that first plant Catholic Religion in any place saying: Remember your Prelates which have spoken the word of God to you: Heb. 13.

2 Attend to Abraham your father, and to Sara that bare you: because I called him alone, and blessed him, & multiplied him. 3 Our Lord therefore will comfort Sion, and will comfort all the ruins thereof: and he will make her desert as delicacies, and her wilderness as the garden of our Lord. Joy and gladness shall be found in it, giving of thanks, and voice of praise.

4 Attend unto me, o my people, and my tribe hear ye me: because a law shall proceed from me, and my judgement shall rest to be a light of the peoples. 5 My just one is nigh at hand, my saviour is gone forth, and mine arms shall judge peoples: the islands shall expect me, & shall patiently wait for mine arm. 6 Lift up your eyes into heaven, and look down to the earth beneath: because the heavens shall melt as smoke, and the earth shall be worn away as a garment, and like to these things shall the inhabitants thereof perish: but my salvation shall be for ever, and my justice shall not fail.

7 Hear me ye that know that which is just, my people which have my law in their heart: [1] fear ye not the reproach of men, and be not afraid of their blasphemies.

[1] Ps. 36.

8 For as a garment so shall the worm eat them: and as wool, so shall the moth devour them, but my salvation shall be for ever, and my justice unto generations of generations. 9 Arise, arise, put on strength o arm of our Lord: arise as in the old days, in the generations of worlds. (b) Hast not thou strucken the proud, & wounded the dragon?

(b) As God destroyed Pharao the proud dragon in the sea, which he dried up for his people to pass, so he will overthrow the devil, & deliver captives from sin & tyranny.

10 [1] Hast not thou dried the sea, the water of the vehement, which madest the depth of the sea a way, that the delivered might pass.

[1] Exo. 14.

11 And now they that are redeemed of our Lord shall return, and shall come into Sion praying, and joy everlasting upon their heads, they shall possess joy and gladness, sorrow and mourning shall fly away.

12 I, even I myself will comfort you: who art thou that thou shouldest be afraid of a mortal man, and of the son of man, which as grass so shall wither?

13 And thou hast forgotten our Lord thy maker, which stretched out the heavens, and founded the earth: and thou hast been afraid continually all the day at the face of his fury, which afflicted thee, and had prepared to destroy: where is now the fury of the affliction? 14 He shall quickly come going to open, and he shall not kill unto utter destruction, neither shall his bread fail. 15 But I am the Lord thy God which trouble the sea, and the waves thereof do swell, the Lord of hosts is my name. 16 [1] I have put my words in thy mouth, and in the shadow of my hand I have protected thee, that thou mightest plant the heavens, and found the earth, & mightest say to Sion: Thou art my people.

17 Be lifted up, be lifted up, arise Jerusalem, which hast drunken of the hand of our Lord the cup of his wrath: even to the bottom of the cup of drowsiness hast thou drunk, even to the dregs. 18 There is none that can uphold her of all the children that she hath born: and there is none that taketh her by the hand of all the children, that she hath brought up.

19 [1] There are two things which have happened to thee: who shall be sorry for thee? (b) Spoil, and destruction, and famine, and the sword, who shall comfort thee?

[1] Isa. 47. (b) Spoil & destruction shall happen by famine & sword.

20 Thy children are thrown forth, they have slept in the head of all ways, as the oryx that is snared: full of the indignation of our Lord, of the rebuke of thy God. 21 Therefore hear this poor little one, and drunken not of wine. 22 Thus saith thy dominatour our Lord, and thy God, who hath fought for his people: Behold I have taken out of thy hand the cup of drowsiness, the bottom of the cup of mine indignation, thou shalt not add to drink it any more. 23 And I will put it in their hand, that have humbled thee, and have said to thy soul: Bow down, that we may pass over: and thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as a way to them that pass over?

CHAPTER LII.

The prophet alluding to the delivery of Sion and Jerusalem from the Babylonical captivity, stirreth up the Church of Christ, to rejoice for the delivery from sin, 7. which Christ's Apostles preached: 10. with great fruit in all nations.

Arise, arise, put on thy strength o Sion, put on the garments of thy glory o Jerusalem the city of the holy one: because the uncircumcised, and unclean shall add no more to pass by thee. 2 Be shaken out of the dust, arise, sit up Jerusalem: loose the bonds of thy neck, o captive daughter of Sion. 3 Because thus saith our Lord: You (a) were sold for nought, and (b) without silver you shall be redeemed.

(a) The Jews had not wronged the Babylonians, neither had mankind sinned against the devil, but both had offended God. (b) Who of his bounty payed man's ransom: which no other man was able to pay.

4 Because thus saith our Lord God: My people went down into Aegypt at the beginning to be a sojourner there:[1] and Assur without any cause did oppress them.

[1] Gen. 46.

5 And now what have I here? Saith our Lord: because my people is taken away for nought. Their rulers do unjustly, saith our Lord, and continually all the day my name is blasphemed.[1]

Ezec. 36.

6 For this cause shall my people know my name in that day: because I myself that spake, lo am present. 7 How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that evangelizeth & preacheth peace: of him that telleth good, preaching health, that saith to Sion: Thy God shall reign. 8 The voice of thy watchmen, they have lifted up their voice, they shall praise together: because eye to eye they shall see when our Lord shall convert Sion. 9 Rejoice, & praise together ye deserts of Jerusalem: because our Lord hath comforted his people: he hath redeemed Jerusalem. 10 Our Lord hath prepared his holy arm in the sight of all the Gentiles: and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God. 11 (c) Depart, depart, go ye out from thence, touch not a polluted thing: go out of the midst of her, be cleansed ye that carry the vessels of our Lord.

(c) Communication with infidels in spiritual things is in no case lawful, as S. Paul sheweth by this text. 2. Cor. 6. v. 17.

12 Because you shall not go out in tumult, neither with flight shall you make haste: for our Lord will go before you, and the God of Israel will gather you together. 13 Behold my servant shall understand, he shall be exalted, and shall be lifted up, and shall be exceeding high. 14 As many have been astonished upon thee, so shall his look among men be inglorious, and his form among the sons of men. 15 He shall sprinkle many nations, kings shall shut their mouth upon him: because they to whom it was not told of him, have seen: and they that heard not have beheld.

CHAPTER LIII.

All will not believe Christ's Gospel to whom it shall be preached: 2. as the mystery of his ignominious death for all men's sins: 7. which he will suffer most meekly: 10. for which his name shall be glorified in all places.

Who (a) hath believed our hearing? And the arm of our Lord to whom is it revealed?

(a) That many hearing the truth preached do not believe it, is by their obstinate freewill, because they do not obey the Gospel. Ro. 10. v. 16. when their understanding directeth them that it is not disagreeable to reason.

2 And he shall come up as a young spring before him, and as a root from a thirsty ground: there is no beauty in him, nor comeliness, and we have seen him, and there was no sightliness, and we were desirous of him. 3 Despised, and most abject of men, a man of sorrows, and knowing infirmity: and his look as it were hid and despised, whereupon neither have we esteemed him. 4 He surely hath born our infirmities, and our sorrows he hath carried: and we have thought him as it were a leper, & strucken of God, and humbled. 5 But he was wounded for our iniquities, he was broken for our sins: the discipline of our peace upon him, and with the wail of his stripe we are healed. 6 All we have strayed as sheep, every one hath declined into his own way: and our Lord hath put upon him the iniquity of all us. 7 He was offered because himself would, and opened not his mouth: as a sheep to slaughter shall he be led, and as a lamb before his shearer, he shall be dumb, & shall not open his mouth: 8 from distress and from judgement he was taken up: who shall declare his generation? Because he is cut out of the land of the living, for the wickedness of my people have I strucken him. 9 And he (b) shall give the impious for his burial, and (c) the rich for his death: because he hath not done iniquity, neither was there guile in his mouth.

(b) Our Saviour died and was buried where the wicked were commonly punished: (c) Yet was buried richly & honourably by Ioseph of Aremathia & Nicodemus.

10 And our Lord would break him in infirmity. If he shall put away his soul for sin, he shall see seed of long age, and the will of our Lord shall be directed in his hand. 11 For that his soul hath laboured, he shall see and be filled: in his knowledge the same my just servant shall justify many, and he shall bear their iniquities. 12 Therefore will I distribute unto him very many, and he shall divide the spoils of the strong, for that he hath delivered his soul unto death, and was reputed with the wicked: and he hath borne the sins of many, and hath prayed for the transgressors.

CHAPTER LIV.

Gentiles who were barren shall multiply in the Church of Christ: 10. from which God's mercy shall never be separated.

Praise (a) o barren woman which bearest not: sing praise, and make joyful noise, which didst not bear: because many are the children of the desolate, more than of her that hath a husband, [1] saith our Lord.

(a) In the old testament Gentiles were barren bringing no fruit to God, but in the new testament they are fruitful, & the Jews are barren, till the latter end of the world, when they also shall be fruitful again. [1] Gal. 4.

2 Enlarge the place of thy tent, and stretch out the skins of thy tabernacles, spare not: make long thy cords, and fasten thy nails. 3 For thou shalt penetrate to the right hand, and to the left: and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, & shall inhabit the desolate cities. 4 Fear not, because thou shall not be confounded, nor blush: for thou shalt not be ashamed, because thou shalt forget the confusion of thy youth, and the reproach of thy widowhood thou shalt remember no more. 5 Because he shall rule over thee that made thee, the Lord of hosts is his name: & thy redeemer the holy one of Israel, [1] shall be called the God of all the earth.

[1] Luc. 1.

6 For as a woman forsaken & mourning in spirit hath our Lord called thee, & as a wife cast off from her youth, hath thy God said: 7 For a moment, a little while have I forsaken thee, & in great mercies will I gather thee. 8 In a moment of indignation have I hid my face a little while from thee, & in mercy everlasting have I had mercy on thee, said thy redeemer our Lord. 9 As in the days of Noe is this thing to me,[1] to whom I sware, that I would no more bring in the waters of Noe upon the earth: (b) so have I sworn not to be angry with thee, and not to rebuke thee.

[1] Gen. 9. (b) As it is assured that the world shall never be drowned again with water, so it is, that the Church of Christ shall never be suppressed.

10 For (c) the mountains shall be moved, & the little hills shall tremble; but my mercy shall not depart from thee, & the covenant of my peace shall not be moved, said our Lord thy miseratour.

(c) Another assurance, that mountains & hills shall rather be moved, yea some mountains shall be removed, but the Church shall be always firm and perpetual.

11 Poor little one shaken with tempest, without all comfort, behold I will lay thy stones in order, & will found thee in sapphires, 12 & I will put the jasper stone for thy munitions: & thy gates into graven stones, all thy borders into stones worthy to be desired. 13 [1] All thy children taught of our Lord: & a multitude of peace to thy children.

14 And in justice thou shalt be founded: depart far from calumny, because thou shalt not fear: and from dread, because it shall not approach to thee.

15 Behold, the borderer shall come, which was not with me, thy stranger sometime shall be joined to thee. 16 Behold, I have created the smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, & bringeth forth a vessel for his work, & I created the killer to destroy. 17 Every vessel that is made against thee, shall not prosper: and every tongue resisting thee in judgement, thou shalt judge. This is the inheritance of the servants of our Lord, and their justice with me, saith our Lord.

CHAPTER LV.

God promiseth aboundance of spiritual graces to the faithful, 4. that shall believe in Christ of all nations, 7. and sincerely serve him.

All ye (a) that thirst come to the waters:[1] and you that have no silver, make haste, buy, & eat: come, buy without silver, and without any exchange wine and milk.

(a) Grace is offered to all, but those only are justified, and replenished with more grace and spiritual gifts, that cooperate, doing that which in them lieth, desiring & thirsting justice, for such (saith our Saviour) shall have their fill. Mat. 5. v. 6. [1] Apo. 22.

2 Why bestow you silver not for bread, & your labour not for satiety? Hearing hear ye me, and eat that which is good, and your soul shall be delighted in fatness. 3 Incline your ear, & come to me: hear, and your soul shall live, and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, the faithful mercies of David.[1]

4 Behold I have given him for a witness to the peoples, for a Prince and master to the Gentiles. 5 Behold thou shalt call the nation, which thou knowest not: and the nations that knew not thee shall run to thee, because of the Lord thy God, and the holy one of Israel: because he hath glorified thee. 6 Seek ye our Lord whilst he may be found, invocate him, whilst he is near. 7 (b) Let the impious forsake his way, and the unjust man his cogitations, and return to our Lord, and he will have mercy on him: and to our God, because he is bountiful to forgive.

(b) The beginning of God's service is to forsake the way of wickedness.

8 For my cogitations are not your cogitations: nor your ways my ways, saith our Lord. 9 (c) For as the heavens are exalted above the earth, so are my ways exalted above your ways, & my cogitations above your cogitations.

(c) The ways of God's service, and of serving this world, are so opposite and contrary, that it is unpossible to walk in them both at once. No man can serve these two masters, God and this world. We must therefore so use this world, that we may serve God, and inherit heaven.

10 And as the shower cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth no more thither, but inebriateth the earth, and watereth it, and maketh it to spring, and giveth seed to the sower, and bread to him that eateth: 11 so shall my word be, which shall proceed from my mouth: it shall not return to me void, but it shall do what things soever I would, and shall prosper in these things for which I sent it. 12 Because you shall go forth in joy, and in peace shall you be conducted, the mountains and the little hills shall sing praise before you, and all the woods of the country shall clap the hand. 13 For the shrub, shall come up the fir tree, and for the nettle, shall grow the myrtle tree: and our Lord shall be named for an everlasting sign, that shall not be taken away.

CHAPTER LVI.

God inviteth all men in thought and deed to keep his law: promiseth blessing and reward to those that profess and keep perpetual chastity, 9. and reproveth evil Pastors.

Thus saith our Lord: keep ye (a) judgement, and do justice:[1] because my salvation is near to come, and my justice to be revealed.

(a) Judgement is a right resolution to do God's will, and justice is the perfect performance thereof, as before is noted, cha. 32.[1] Sap. 1.

2 Blessed is the man that doth this thing, and the son of man that shall apprehend this, keeping the Sabbath that he pollute it not, keeping his hands that he do no evil. 3 And let not the son of the stranger, that cleaveth to our Lord, say: By separation the Lord will divide me from his people. 4 And let not the eunuch say: Behold I am a dry tree. Because thus saith our Lord to the eunuchs: They that shall keep my (b) Sabbaths, and (c) shall choose the things that I would, and shall hold my covenant.

(b) Under the name of Sabbath is understood the observation of all the law. (c) Those that of free election choose good things not commanded, deserve greater reward.

5 I will give unto them in my house, and within my walls a place, and a name better than sons and daughters, an everlasting name will I give them, which shall not perish. 6 And the children of the stranger that cleave to the Lord, to worship him, & to love his name, to be his servants: every one that keepeth the Sabbath^ not to pollute it, and that holdeth my covenant. 7 [1]I will bring them into my holy mount, & will make them joyful in the house of my prayer: their holocausts, and their victims shall please me upon mine altar: because my house shall be called the house of prayer to all peoples.

[1] Mat. 21. Mat. 11. Luc. 19.

8 Saith our Lord God that gathereth the dispersed of Israel: As yet will I gather unto it, the gathered together thereof. 9 (d) All ye beasts of the field come to devour, all ye beasts of the forest.

(d) The Prophet foreseeing in spirit the careless negligence of some Pastors, of just zeal & charity inveigheth against them: warning them of their grievous punishment.

10 His watchmen all blind have been ignorant: dumb dogs not able to bark, seeing vain things, sleeping and loving dreams. 11 And most impudent dogs, they have known no satiety: the pastors themselves have been ignorant of understanding: all have declined into their own way, every one to his own avarice,[1] from the highest even to the last.

12 Come, let us take wine, and be filled with drunkenness, and it shall be as today, so also tomorrow, and much more.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. LVI.

4. Let not the Eunuch say: I am a dry tree.] To be barren without children was ignominious amongst the Jews in the old testament,[1] because God having then chosen that only nation for his peculiar people, the conservation & increase of his Church depended much upon their multiplication. [2]But seeing the Church of Christ in the new testament should be gathered & consist of all Nations: the Prophet here foresheweth, that Christian Eunuchs living virgins, or continent, should not be ignoble or inglorious, but more glorious and have a better name than (God's other servants) sons and daughters: an everlasting name which shall not perish: because keeping God's precepts (such as was the Sabbath) they also of their free election, choose this state of life to keep perpetual chastity, more than is commanded. Against which plain sense of the text, Protestants oppose their own glosses. Peter Martyr (li. de caelibatu & votis Monasticis) saith, God preferreth not Eunuchs before others that keep the law, but only before them that transgress the law. Which commentary is faulty in two respects.[3] For God here calleth them not transgressors, but his sons and daughters, before whom he preferreth holy Eunuchs: neither speaketh of such as shall be excluded from good place or good name, but of such as shall enjoy both; and saith these Eunuchs shall have a better place, & better name; that is, more renown, and greater reward. Other Protestants expound this better name, to signify, that such Eunuchs shall be called after (or according to) God's people, and be of the same religion[4]: which importeth no excellency at all, in place or name, as the text expresseth: nay scarce equality with other servants of God. Lastly they add (lest perhaps this former sense satisfy not the reader) yea under Christ (say the) the dignity of the faithful, shall be greater than the Jews were at that time. As though the comparison made in this place, were to signify the general difference between God's servants before and since Christ, and not particularly between Eunuchs, and such as have children. How much more meet therefore is it, to see and embrace the explications of the ancient holy Fathers?[5] Who uniformly understand & expound this prophecy, of such as vow perpetual chastity in the Church of Christ, preferring that state before Marriage? S. Basi. (li. de virginitate) amongst other reasons and testimonies, bringeth this place in proof of the excellency of virginity, that the reward thereof shall be, that for a human name, God will give to virgins the name of immortal Angels, which shall not fail, that they shall possess a special place in heaven, not only the glory of Angels, but an excellent dignity amongst Angels. S. Cyril of Alexandria in his commentaries upon Isaie: sheweth by this doctrine, that the rewards of continency are (eximia) excellent, and exceeding great; so that such as be continent in body, do also keep all God's commandments. S. Jerome in his commentaries proveth that virginity, or perpetual chastity is a singular good work of supererogation, not of precept but of Evangelical counsel, by the word elegerit, shall choose the things which God would, rather than which he condescending to man's weakness alloweth. Such an Eunuch (saith he) elegit quae Dominus voluit, ut plus offerat quam praeceptum est, hath chosen the things which our Lord would, to offer more than is commanded. And such an Eunuch (keeping also God's commandments) shall have locum optimum, a chief good place in God's house, where be many mansions, he shall be made a tower of our Lord, be placed in Sacerdotali gradu, Priestly degree, & in stead of carnal children shall have many spiritual children. Thus S. Jerome. The like we might cite of a.[6] S. Ambrose in exhort. ad Virg. b.[7] S. Augustine, l. de sancta virginitate. c. 24. & 25. c.[8] S. Gregory. 3. p. Pastorali c. 29. &c. & others so expounding this prophecy.

[1] Exo. 23. Deu. 7.

[2] Issue of children was a blessing of the old Testament, Virginity is a greater blessing in the Church of Christ.

[3] Protestants' expositions of this place not true.

[4] Bible 1603.

[5] The ancient fathers understand this prophecy of vowed chastity. Preferring it before Marriage.

[6] (a) Ipsi sunt qui habent in coelo praemia caeteris prestantiora.

[7] (b) Gloriam propriam excellentemque nec erit quid commune cum multis.

[8] (c) In aeterna mansione filijs preferuntur.

CHAPTER LVII.

The Prophet lamenteth that men regard not when the just die; 3. reprehendeth those that scorn the godly; 5. and commit horrible idolatry, 11. forgetting God: 14. who useth all benignity to recall them; 20. but they contemn him.

The just (a) perisheth, and there is none that considereth in his heart, & men of mercy are (b) gathered away, because there is none that understandeth; for (c) at the face of malice, is the just gathered away.

(a) Just men dying seem to the wicked to perish. (b) But they are gathered to the happy society of other blessed souls. (c) And commonly God so taketh away the just, when he will punish the wicked people, that they may not in this world see the general calamity of others.

2 Let peace come, let him rest in his bed that hath walked in his direction. 3 But come you hither ye children of the witch, the seed of the adulterer, and of the harlot. 4 Upon whom have you jested? Upon whom have you opened your mouth awide, and thrust out the tongue? Are not you wicked children, a lying seed? 5 Which take comfort in the gods under every thick green tree, immolating your little ones in the torrents, under the high rocks? 6 In the parts of the torrent is thy part, this is thy lot: and thou hast poured out libament to them, thou hast offered sacrifice, shall I not take indignation of these things? 7 Upon an high and lofty mountain thou hast laid thy bed, and hast gone up thither to immolate hosts. 8 And behind the door, and behind the post thou hast set thy memorial: because thou hast discovered thyself near me, and hast received an adulterer, thou hast enlarged thy bed, and made a covenant with them: thou hast loved their couch with open hand. 9 And thou hast adorned thyself with royal ointment, and hast multiplied the gay paintings. Thou didst send thy legates far off, & wast humbled even to hell. 10 In the multitude of thy way thou hast laboured; thou saidst not: I will rest: thou hast found life of thine own hand, therefore thou hast not asked. 11 For whom, with careful reverence, hast thou feared, whereas thou hast lied, & hast not been mindful of me, nor thought on me in thy heart? Because I am holding my peace, and as it were not seeing, and thou hast forgotten me. 12 I will declare thy justice, and thy works shall not profit thee. 13 When thou shalt cry, let thy gathered together deliver thee, and the wind shall take them all away, a soft blast shall bear them away: But he that hath confidence in me, shall inherit the land, & shall possess my holy mount. 14 And I will say: Make a way, give passage, turn out of the path, take away stumbling blocks out of the way of my people. [1]

[1] Isa. 62. v. 10.

15 Because thus saith the High & Eminent, that inhabiteth eternity: and his name is holy, dwelling in the high, and holy place, and with a contrite & humble spirit: that he may revive the spirit of the humble, and revive the heart of the contrite. 16 For I will not contend for ever, neither will I be wrath unto the end: because (c) the spirit shall proceed from my face, and breathings I will make.

(c) To the humble & contrite penitents God sheweth all benignity, and granteth wished good things: as prosperous winds to sea-faring travelers, & the like.

17 For the iniquity of his avarice I was angry, and have strucken him: I have hid my face from thee, and have taken indignation: and he hath gone wandering in the way of his own heart. 18 I saw his ways, and have healed him, and reduced him, and have restored consolations unto him, and to them that mourn for him. 19 I have created the fruit of the lips peace, peace to him that is far off, & that is near, saith our Lord, and I have healed him. 20 But the impious are as it were the raging sea, which cannot be quiet, and the waves thereof overflow unto conculcation and mire.

21 (d) There is no peace to the impious, saith our Lord God. [1]

(d) Those that persist obstinate can have no remission. [1] Isa. 48. v. 22.

CHAPTER LVIII.

God commandeth the Prophet to cry unto the sinful people vehemently, and incessantly, to keep the law, not only in shew and pretence, but sincerely, leaving their own wills, and seeking God's will: 9. so they shall receive their good desires, and reward of well doing.

Cry, (a) cease not, as a trumpet exalt thy voice, and tell my people their wicked doings, and the house of Jacob their sins.

(a) Many sinners are so fast asleep in their wickedness, that they cannot, or rather will not hear ordinary admonitions: to such therefore God's Preachers must cry, and not cease to cry, as with a loud trumpet exalt their voice, opportunely, importunely with all patience, & longamity, till they make the deaf to hear, to believe the truth, and the dumb to speak, that is, to profess virtue in word & deed. Mar. 7.

2 For me indeed they seek from day to day, and they will know my ways, as a nation that hath done justice, and hath not forsaken the judgement of their God: they ask of me the judgements of justice: they will approach to God. 3 Why have we fasted, and thou hast not regarded: have we humbled our souls, and thou hast not known? Behold in the day of your fast your own will is found, and you exact of all your debters. 4 Behold you fast to debates and contentions, and strike with the fist impiously. Do not fast as until this day, that your cry may be heard on high. 5 Is this such a fast, [1] as I have chosen: for a man by the day to afflict his soul? Is this it, to wind his head about like a circle, and to spread sack-cloth and ashes? Wilt thou call this a fast, and a day acceptable to the Lord?

[1] Zach. 7.

6 Is not this rather the fast that I have chosen? Dissolve the bands of impiety, loose the bundles that overload, dismiss them free that are broken, and break in sunder every burden. 7 Break thy bread to the hungry & the needy, [1] & harborless bring in into thy house: when thou shalt see the naked cover him, and despise not thy flesh.

[1] Eze. 18. Mat. 25.

8 Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thy health shall sooner arise, & thy justice shall go before thy face, and the glory of our Lord shall embrace thee. 9 Then shalt thou invocate, and our Lord will hear: thou shalt cry, and he will say: Lo here I am. If thou wilt take away the chain out of the midst of thee, & cease to stretch out the finger, & to speak that which profiteth not. 10 When thou shalt pour out thy soul to the hungry, and shalt fill the afflicted soul, thy light shall arise up in darkness, & thy darkness shall be as the noon day. 11 And our Lord will give thee rest always, & will fill thy soul with brightness, and deliver thy bones, and thou shalt be as a watered garden, and as a fountain of waters, whose waters shall not fail. 12 [1] And the deserts of the worlds shall be builded in thee, thou shalt raise up the foundations of generation and generation: and thou shalt be called the builder of the hedges, turning the paths into rest.

[1] Isa. 61.

13 If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy will in my holy day, and call the Sabbath delicate, and the holy of our Lord glorious, and glorify him, whilst thou doest not thine own ways, & thy will be not found, to speak a word: 14 Then shalt thou be delighted upon the Lord, & I will lift thee up above the heights of the earth, & will feed thee with the inheritance of Jacob thy father. For the mouth of the Lord hath spoken.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. LVIII.

5. Is this such a fast, as I have chosen?] Fasting is so often & clearly commended in holy Scriptures, that Protestants (though not greatly affected thereto) confess it to be a good thing of it-self, [1]

but in diverse respects detract much from it:[2] denying it to be an act of religion, but only of bodily mortification: neither do all generally allow of prescript times, nor of abstinence from flesh those days, which they think good to fast: and those which do abstain from flesh, say they do it not for religion, but for the ordinance of civil policy. For which opinion they allege out of this and other places (Jere. 14. v. 12. Zacha. 7. v. 5.) that such affliction is not the fast, which God hath chosen. But if they would consider the coherence of the text, they should find the contrary. For albeit fasting alone without amendment of evil manners, & without other good works, doth not appease God's wrath, nor is agreeable to God's will, yet being joined with contrition of heart, and sincere piety, doth then greatly please him. And therefore our Lord God here (saith S. Jerome) lest he might seem to reprove fasting,[3] which himself had commanded, teacheth how it behoveth to fast:[4] Non enim querit Deus affictionem solam, & humiliationem animae per iniuriam corporis, ut instar circuli torqueat corpus, & colla submittat, ac tristis incedat: &c. Sed ut cum istis haec faciat quae sequuntur. For God seeketh not only affliction, and humiliation of the soul by injury of the body; that one should writhe his body about like a circle, hold down his neck, and go pensive, &c. But that with these things, he do those which follow:[5] to wit, Dissolve the bands of impiety, and the rest, as in the text. Whereupon this Doctor discourseth at large, shewing that it profiteth not to carry an empty belly, and do those things that displease God. But fasting from meat, so that fasting from sin (by declining from evil, and doing good deeds) be joined withal: then (saith he) thy fasting will be acceptable: For then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thy health shall sooner arise, and thy justice shall go before thy face, and the glory of our Lord shall embrace thee. Further declaring the great profit thereof by examples:[6] that by fasting Daniel, the man of desires knew things to come: the Ninivites pacified the wrath of God. Elias and Moyses by forty days hunger were filled with the familiarity of God:[7] And our Lord himself fasted so many days in the wilderness, ut nobis solennes ieiuniorum dies relinqueret, to leave unto us the solemn days of fasts.

[2] Protestants detract from the praise & profit of fasting.

[3] This scripture reproveth not fasting but admonisheth to fast especially from sin.

CHAPTER LIX.

Sins do separate men from God: 3. as manslaughter, theft, and lying, with contempt of judgement and justice. 12. Men are otherwise judged just or unjust in the world, than indeed they are before God: 16. who seeth and judgeth all rightly.

Behold the hand of our Lord is not abridged that he cannot save, neither is his ear made heavy that it cannot hear.[1]

[1] Num. 11. Isa. 40.

2 (a) But your iniquities have divided between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you that he would not hear.

(a) No defect is in God's power nor will, that he delivereth not the faithful from afflictions, but their sins are the impediment; for which he punisheth them, that they may repent, & then he will deliver them, v. 20.

3 For your hands are polluted with blood and your fingers with iniquity: your lips have spoken lie, and your tongue speaketh iniquity. 4 There is none that doth invocate justice, neither is there any that judgeth truly: but they trust in things of nothing, and speak vanities: they have conceived labour, and brought forth iniquity.[1]

[1] Iob. 15.

5 They have broken the eggs of asps, & have woven the spider's webs: he that shall eat of their eggs, shall die: and that which is nourished, shall be hatched into a cockatrice. 6 Their webs shall not be for clothing, neither shall they be covered with their works: their works are unprofitable works, and the work of iniquity is in their hands. 7 [1] Their feet run to evil, & hasten to shed innocent blood: their cogitations are unprofitable cogitations: waste & destruction are in their ways.

8 They have not known the way of peace, and there is no judgement in their steps: their paths are become crooked to them: every one that treadeth in them, knoweth not peace. 9 For this cause is judgement far from us, & justice shall not apprehend us. We expected light, and behold darkness: brightness, & we have walked in darkness. 10 We have groped as blind men for the wall, and as without eyes have feeled: we have stumbled at noon day as in darkness, in dark places as the dead. 11 We all shall roar as bears, and as mourning doves we shall lament. We have expected judgement, and there is none: salvation, and it is far from us. 12 For our iniquities are multiplied before thee and our sins have answered to us: because our wicked doings are with us, & our iniquities we have known, 13 to sin and lie against our Lord: and we were turned away so that we went not after our God, that we spake calumny and transgression: we conceived, and spake from the heart words of lying. 14 And judgement was turned backward, and justice stood far off: because truth hath fallen down in the street, and equity could not enter in. 15 And truth grew into oblivion: and he that departed from evil, lay open to the prey: and our Lord saw, and it appeared evil in his eyes, because there is no judgement. 16 And he saw that there is not a man: & he was astonished, because there is none to oppose himself: and (b) his own arm saved to himself, and his justice it-self confirmed him.

(b) No pure man being able to redeem, and deliver mankind from captivity of sin, God became man to accomplish this work.

17 He is clothed with justice as with a breastplate, and is an helmet of salvation on his head: he is clothed with garments of revenge, and is covered as with a mantle of zeal. [1]

[1] Ephes. 6. 1. Thes. 5.

18 As unto revenge as it were unto retribution of indignation to his adversaries, and recompense to his enemies: he will repay the like to the islands. 19 And they of the West shall fear the name of our Lord: and they of the rising of the sun, his glory: when he shall come as a violent stream, which the spirit of our Lord driveth: 20 [1] and there shall come a redeemer to Sion, and to them, that return from iniquity in Jacob, saith our Lord.

[1] Rom. 11.

21 This is my covenant with them, saith our Lord: (c) My spirit that is in thee, and my words that I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, and out of the mouth of thy seed, & out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith our Lord, from this present and for ever.

(c) The Church hath still the spirit of truth, and therefore can never err.

CHAPTER LX.

In the Church of Christ shall the light of true faith, and sincere charity: 8. which shall be spread in all nations, and continue all times: 15. replenished with many joyful graces, 18. and eternal glory.

Arise, (a) be illuminated Jerusalem: because thy light is come, & the glory of our Lord is risen upon thee:

(a) God preventing with grace, every one must cooperate by gratefully accepting this benefit, and so dispose himself to justification.

2 Because lo darkness shall cover the earth, & a mist the peoples: but (b) upon thee shall our Lord arise, and his glory shall be seen upon thee.

(b) Only those that come into the Church receive the light of true faith, all others are in darkness.

3 And the Gentiles shall walk in thy light, and kings in the brightness of thy rising. [1]

[1] Isa. 49.

4 Lift up thine eyes round about & see, all these are gathered together, they are come to thee: thy sons shall come from a far, & thy daughters shall rise from the side. 5 Then shalt thou see, & abound, & thy heart shall marvel and be enlarged, when the multitude of the sea shall be converted to thee, the strength of Gentiles shall come to thee. 6 The inundation of camels shall cover thee, (c) the dromedaries of Madian and Epha: all of Saba shall come, bringing gold and frankincense: and shewing forth praise to our Lord.

(c) This prophecy began to be fulfilled when the 3. Sages came on swift beasts to adore Christ, and offered gifts. Mat. 2.

7 All the cattle of Cedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nabaioth shall minister to thee: they shall be offered upon my placable altar, and I will glorify the house of my majesty. 8 Who are these, that fly as clouds, and as doves to their windows? 9 For (d) the islands expect me, and the ships of the sea in the beginning, that I may bring thy sons from a far: their silver, & their gold with them, to the name of the Lord thy God, and to the holy one of Israel, because he hath glorified thee.

(d) This is fulfilled in great Brittany, Ireland, & other islands, as Tertullian, Origen, & S. Beda prove against the Jews: and S. Chrysostom against the Gentiles.

10 And the children of strangers shall build thy walls, and their kings shall minister to thee: for in mine indignation have I strucken thee, and in my reconciliation have I had mercy upon thee. 11 And thy gates shall be open continually: day and night they shall not be shut, [1] that (e) the strength of the Gentiles may be brought to thee, and their kings may be brought.

[1] Apoc. 21. v. 25. (e) This was accomplished when the Roman Emperors, & other Monarchs & nations received the faith of Christ.

12 For the nation & the kingdom that shall not serve thee, shall perish: & the Gentiles shall be wasted with desolation. 13 (f) The glory of Libanus shall come to thee, the fir-tree, & box-tree, and pine-tree together, to adorn the place of my sanctification, and the place of my feet I will glorify.

(f) S. Ierom compelled (as he saith) to leave the historical sense, because it is not convenient to say, The walls & foundation of Jerusalem were adorned with precious stones, and the temple, which should be most glorious, was made of wood; expoundeth this place of excellent men. The holy most eloquent man Cyprian the Martyr, and the Confessor of our time Hilarius do they not seem to thee the high trees that have built the Church of God?

[1] Apoc. 22. v. 23.

19 Thou shalt have the sun no more to shine by day, neither shall the brightness of the moon lighten thee: but the Lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, and thy God for thy glory. [1]

[1] Apoc. 22. v. 5.

20 Thy sun shall go down no more, and thy moon shall not be diminished: because the Lord shall be unto thee for an everlasting light, & the days of thy mourning shall be ended. 21 And thy people all just, for ever shall inherit the land, the bud of my planting, the work of mine hand to glorify. 22 The least shall be into a thousand, and the little one into a most strong nation: I^ the Lord in the time thereof will suddenly do it.

CHAPTER LXI.

Christ announceth himself to be sent from heaven to teach the truth, to heal and pardon the penitent, to comfort the desolate, and strengthen the weak: 4. whose Apostles shall constantly preach justice in all the world. 10. And his Church shall rejoice.

The spirit of the Lord upon me, because the Lord (a) hath anointed me: to preach to the mild he sent me, that I should heal the contrite of heart, and preach indulgence to the captives, and deliverance to them that are shut up. [1]

(a) Our Saviour was not, neither needed to be visibly anointed, as Aaron, David, & others were; but invisibly by God, with oil of gladness, above all others. Ps. 44. v. 8. with the Holy Ghost, and with power. Act. 10. v. 39. of whose fullness all others receive. Ioan. 1. v. 16. [1] Luc. 4. v. 18.

2 That I should preach the placable year to the Lord, & the day of vengeance of our God: that I might comfort all that mourn; 3 that I might appoint to the mourners of Sion, & give them a crown for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, a mantle of praise for the spirit of sorrowfulness: and they shall be called in it the strong of justice, planting of the Lord to glorify. 4 And they shall build the deserts from the beginning of the world, and shall erect the old ruins; and shall repair the desolate cities, that were dissipated in generation and generation. 5 And aliens shall stand, and feed your cattle: and the children shall be your husbandmen, and dressers of the vines. 6 And you shall be called the Priests of the Lord: to you it shall be said: The ministers of our God: you shall eat the strength of the Gentiles, and in their glory you shall be proud. 7 For your (b) double confusion & shame, (c) they shall praise their part: for this cause shall they receive double in their land, everlasting joy shall be to them.

(b) It was a grief and sorrow to the Apostles & first Preachers of Christ's Gospel, that both the Jews departed from God, & Gentiles still followed idolatry, but shortly after, many were converted. (c) And preferred their own happy lot before all other Jews & Gentiles.

8 Because I am the Lord that love judgement, & hate robbery in holocaust: and I will give their work in truth, and make a perpetual covenant with them. 9 And they shall know their seed in the Gentiles, and their bud in the midst of peoples, all that shall see them, shall know them, that these are the seed which the Lord hath blessed. 10 Rejoicing I will rejoice in our Lord, and my soul shall be joyful in my God: because he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation: and with the garment of justice he hath compassed me, as a bridegroom decked with a crown, and as a bride adorned with her jewels. 11 For as the earth bringeth forth her spring, and as the garden shooteth forth his seed: so shall our Lord God make justice to spring forth, and praise before all the Gentiles.

CHAPTER LXII.

The Prophet avoucheth that he will not cease from preaching Christ: 4. to whom all nations shall be converted: 8. & whose Church shall continue for ever.

For Sion (a) I will not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem, I will not rest, till her just one come forth as brightness, & her Saviour be kindled as a lamp.

(a) True Preachers and Pastors cease not from preaching the truth, for any threats, terror, or torment. But say with this Prophet: For Sion (that is, for the good of the Church) I will not cease &c. & with S. Paul. The word of God is not tied. 2. Tim. 2.

2 And the Gentiles shall see thy just one, and all kings thy noble one: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of our Lord shall name. 3 And thou shalt be a crown of glory in the hand of our Lord, & the diadem of a kingdom in the hand of thy God. 4 Thou shalt no more be called, Forsaken: & thy land shall no more be called, Desolate: But thou shalt be called, My will in her, and thy land inhabited, because it hath well pleased our Lord in thee: & thy land shall be inhabited. 5 For the young man shall dwell with the virgin, and thy children shall dwell in thee. And the bridegroom shall rejoice upon the bride, & thy God shall rejoice upon thee. 6 (b) Upon thy walls, Jerusalem, I have appointed watch-men, all the day, and all the night, for ever they shall not hold their peace. You that remember our Lord, hold not your peace,

(b) The Church of Christ is perpetually visible in her watch-men, the Pastors & Governers thereof.

7 & give not silence to him, until he establish, and until he make Jerusalem the praise in the earth. 8 Our Lord hath sworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength: If I shall give thy wheat any more to be meat for thine enemies: and if the strange children shall drink thy wine, wherein thou hast laboured. 9 Because they that shall gather it together, shall eat it, and shall praise the Lord: and they that carry it together, shall drink it in my holy courts. 10 Pass ye, pass ye through the gates, prepare a way for the people, make the journey plain, & pick up the stones, & lift up the sign to the peoples. 11 Behold our Lord hath made heard in the ends of the earth, tell the daughter of Sion: [1] Behold thy Saviour cometh: behold his reward is with him, and his work before him.

[1] Mat 21. Zach. 9.

12 And they shall call them, The holy people, the redeemed of our Lord. But thou shalt be called, A city sought for, and not Forsaken.

CHAPTER LXIII.

Christ is described as a Victorious conqueror, ascending into heaven with triumph, embrued with blood. 7. For all whose benefits the Prophet rendereth thanks: 10. expostulating the people's ingratitude, that provoked God to wrath.

Who (a) is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bosra, this beautiful one in his robe, going in the multitude of his strength? I that speak justice, and am a defender to save.

(a) S. Dionyse, Hierar. caelest. c. 7. supposeth this to be the question of the highest order to Angels, admiring Christ's beauty to be so excellent, notwithstanding that he is imbrued with blood ascending from Edom (which signifieth terrestrial) from Bosra (a walled city overthrown) that is, from Jerusalem into heaven, with triumph after a bloody victory.

2 Why then is thy clothing red, and thy garments as theirs that tread in the wine-press? [1]

[1] Apoc. 19. v. 13.

3 I have trodden the press alone, and of the Gentiles there is not a man with me: I have trodden them in my fury, and have trodden them down in my wrath: & their blood is sprinkled upon my garments, & I have stained all my raiment. 4 For the day of revenge is in my heart, the year of my redemption is come. 5 I looked about, & there was none to help: I sought, and there was none to aid: and mine arm hath saved, and mine indignation it-self hath holpen me. 6 And I have trodden down the peoples in my fury, and have inebriated them in mine indignation, and have drawn their strength down to the ground. 7 I will remember the mercies of our Lord, the praise of our Lord for all things, that our Lord hath rendered to us, and for the multitude of the good things to the house of Israel, which he hath given them according to his indulgence, and according to the multitude of his mercies. 8 And he said: But yet is my people, children that deny not: and he is become their saviour. 9 In all their tribulation he was not troubled, and (b) the Angel of his face saved them: in his love, and in his indulgence he redeemed them, and bare them, and lifted them up all the days of the world.

(b) The Angel guardian of the Church, which standeth before the face of God; Christ testifying that also the particular guardians do always see the face of his Father. Mat. 18.

10 But they provoked to wrath, and afflicted the spirit of his holy one: and he was turned to be their enemy, and he conquered them. 11 And he remembered the days of the world of Moyses, and of his people:[1] Where is he that brought them out of the sea, with the Pastors of his flock? Where is he that put in the midst of him the spirit of his holy one?

[1] Exo. 14.

12 He that brought out Moyses to the right hand by the arm of his majesty: that divided the waters before them, that he might make to himself an everlasting name. 13 He that brought them out through the depths, as an horse in the desert that stumbled not. 14 As the beast that goeth down in the plain field, the spirit of our Lord was their conductor: so didst thou bring thy people that thou mightest make thee a name of glory. 15 Attend from heaven, [1]and look from thy holy habitation, & of thy glory: where is thy zeal, and thy strength, the multitude of thy bowels, and of thy mercies? They have held back themselves toward me.

16 For thou art our father, and Abraham hath not known us, and Israel hath been ignorant of us: thou, o Lord, art our father, our Redeemer, from the beginning is thy name. 17 (c) Why hast thou made us err, o Lord, from thy ways: hast thou hardened our heart, that we feared not thee? Return for thy servants, the tribes of thine inheritance.

(c) God is never the cause of error or hardness of heart: but by indulgence not punishing, sinners harden their own hearts. so S. Ierom.

18 As nothing have they possessed thy holy people: our enemies have trodden down thy sanctification. 19 We are become as in the beginning, when thou didst not rule over us, neither was thy name invocated upon us.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. LXIII.

16. Abraham hath not known us.] The faithful people considering their own great, frequent, & inveterate sins, with the extreme calamities whereinto they were fallen for the same, supposed that their progenitor Abraham (whom God had particularly called out of his country) & Jacob (of whose twelve sons the whole nation was propagated) did no longer acknowledge them for their children, [1] because they had so grievously offended God, & were not worthy of any favour. All which notwithstanding, yet they hoped in God's incomparable mercy, that his divine goodness, being Creator of all, who had elected them for his peculiar people, brought them out of Egypt, and often delivered them from sundry afflictions, would again reduce them from captivity, and as their merciful father, remit their sins, and relieve their miseries: though Abraham, Jacob, and other Patriarchs had justly rejected them as lost children. This being the proper literal sense of this place, according to S. Jerome, and other ancient Doctors' explication, it maketh nothing at all for the old and new heresy of Vigilantius, & Luther, denying that Saints in another life do know what is done in this world. For albeit the Patriarchs in zeal of justice, did not acknowledge their carnal posterity (because of their great sins) for their children, yet they knew their state,[2] as S. Augustine (li. de cura pro mortuis)[3] interpreting this, and other places of holy Scripture, teacheth, partly by relation of such as passed from hence to them; partly by holy Angels; and especially by divine inspirations. As it is clear that Abraham knew the state of poor Lazarus, & of the rich glutton,[4] describing what each of them had deserved, and consequently received. Much more both the old Patriarchs, and all other Saints, in eternal glory know each other, though never seen nor known before in this world, as S. Gregory teacheth:li. 4. c. 33. Dialog. The glorified Saints see also in God that which pertaineth to their clients, that pray unto them in earth, so far as God doth ordain, more clearly by light of glory, than Prophets see by light of prophecy:[5] as S. Augustine teacheth.[6] But touching the manner, he saith it exceeded the reach of his understanding, how Martyrs do help

[1] The Jews supposed that for their sins the Patriarchs did not acknowledge them for their children.
Yet hoped that God of his mercy would relieve them in distress.

[4] Luc. 16.

[5] Saints in glory see more clearly than Prophets in this life.

[6] li. 22. c. 20. civi. cura pro mort. c. 16.

[7] That Saints know, & help mortal men's necessity is certain:

but the manner how, is obscure.

those, who, it is certain, are holpen by them. So discoursing at large of the uncertain manner, sheweth that there is no doubt at all of the thing itself, that Saints in heaven do know mortal men's necessities, hear their prayers, and help them by their intercession and merits. [7] Which he confirmeth also. li. 20. c. 21. cont. Faust. Tract. 8. in Ioan. Ser. 5. de Sanctis. Likewise, S. Jerome against Vigilantius, S. Gregory. *li. 3. CHAPTER LXIV.

The Jews in captivity pray to God for release: 4. acknowledging his former great benefits, and their own sins, flying now to his mercy.

Would God thou (a) wouldest break the heavens asunder, and wouldst descend: at thy presence the mountains should melt away.

(a) The good people, with Priests and Prophets of the old Testament most fervently desired Christ's coming.

2 As the burning of fire would they melt, the waters would burn with fire, that thy name might be made known to thine enemies: at thy presence the nations should be troubled. 3 When thou shalt do marvelous things, we shall not sustain: thou art descended, and at thy presence the mountains are melted. 4 From the beginning of the world they have not heard, nor received with the ears: the eye hath not seen, o God, beside thee, what things thou hast prepared for them that expect thee. [1]

5 Thou hast met him that rejoiceth, and doth justice: in thy ways they shall remember thee: behold thou art angry, (b) and we have sinned: we have been always in them, (c) and we shall be saved.

(b) And, signifieth for, as Gen. 14. v. 8. And the English Bibles translate for, in this place, though the Hebrew text hath vau, that is, and. But we with S. Ierom and other ancient Fathers follow the authentical Latin: which hath, et in this place, & enim in the other. (c) Likewise the same particle and signifieth yet, as if he had said: yet we shall be saved.

[1] Psal. 78.

10 The city of thy holy one is made desert, Sion is made desert, Jerusalem is become desolate. 11 The house of our sanctification, and of our glory, where our fathers praised thee, is turned into the burning of fire, and all our things worthy to be desired are turned into ruins. 12 Wilt thou upon these things contain thyself, o Lord, wilt thou hold thy peace, and afflict us vehemently?

CHAPTER LXV.

The Gentiles shall seek and find Christ, 2. whom the Jews will persecute; and shall be rejected, only a few relics reserved. 13. So the Church shall multiply, and abound in graces.

They (a) have sought me that before asked not, they have found that sought me not, I said: Behold me, behold me, to a Gentility that did not invocate my name. [1]

(a) This cannot be meant of the Jews, but necessarily of the Gentiles. [1] Ro. 10.

2 I have spread forth mine hands all the day to (b) an incredulous people, which goeth in a way not good after their own cogitations.

(b) But this is evidently spoken of the Jews: and so S. Paul testifieth of both these places. Rom. 10. v. 20. 21.

3 A people that provoke me to anger before my face always: that immolate in gardens, and sacrifice upon bricks. 4 That dwell in sepulchres, and sleep in temples of idols: that eat swine's flesh, and profane potage in their vessels. 5 That say: Depart from me, approach not to me, because thou art unclean: these shall be smoke in my fury, a fire burning all the day. 6 Behold it is written before me: I will not hold my peace, but I will render and repay into their bosom 7 your iniquities, and the iniquities of your fathers together, saith our Lord, that have sacrificed upon the mountains, and upon the little hills have reproached me, & I will remeasure their first work in their bosom. 8 Thus saith our Lord: As if a berry be found in a cluster, and it be said: Destroy it not, because it is a blessing: so will I do for my servants' sake, that I destroy not the whole. 9 And I will bring forth seed out of Jacob, & out of Juda a possessor of my mountains: & mine elect shall inherit it, and my servants shall inhabit there. 10 And the champion countries shall be into folds of flocks, and the valley of Achor for the couch of herds, unto my people that have sought after me. 11 And you, that have forsaken the Lord, that have forgotten my holy mount, that set a table to Fortune, and offer libaments upon it. 12 I will number you in the sword, and you shall all fall by slaughter: because I called, and you have not answered: I spake, and you have not heard, and you did evil in mine eyes: and you (c) have chosen the things, that I would not. [1]

(c) Nothing can be more plainly uttered than is here the doctrine of man's freewill. [1] Prov. 1. Iere. 7.

13 (d) For this cause thus saith our Lord God: Behold my servants shall eat, and you shall be hungry: behold my servants shall drink, and you shall be thirsty.

(d) Likewise of reward & punishment of good and evil works.

14 Behold my servants shall rejoice, and you shall be confounded: behold my servants shall praise for joyfulness of heart: and you shall cry for sorrow of heart, and for contrition of spirit you shall howl. 15 And you shall leave your name (e) for an [1] oath to mine elect: and the Lord God shall kill thee, and will call his servants by (f) another name.

(e) The name of Jews shall be execrable. [1] * Oath of execration. (f) And God's servants shall be called Christians.

16 In which he that is blessed upon the earth, shall be blessed in God, Amen: & he that sweareth in the earth, shall swear by God Amen: because the former distresses are forgotten, & because they are hid from mine eyes. 17 [1] For behold I create new (g) heavens, & a new earth: & the former things shall not be in memory, & they shall not ascend upon the heart.

[1] Apo. 21. (g) After the general Resurrection the heavens and earth shall be altered in qualities, not in substance.

18 But you shall be glad & rejoice for ever in these things, which I create: because lo I create Jerusalem exultation, and the people thereof joy. 19 And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and be glad in my people, and there shall no more be heard in it the voice of weeping, and the voice of crying. 20 There shall no more be a child of days, & an old man that shall not fill up his days, because the child of an hundred years shall die, and the sinner of an hundred years shall be accurst. 21 And they shall build cities, and inhabit: and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruits thereof. 22 They shall not build, and another shall dwell: they shall not plant, & another shall eat: for according to the days of the tree, shall be the days of my people, and they shall make old the works of their hands. 23 Mine elect shall not labour in vain, nor engender in conturbation: because it is the seed of the blessed of the Lord, and their posterity with them. 24 [1] And it shall be, before they call, I will hear: as they are yet speaking, I will hear.

[1] Psal. 31.

25 The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, the lion and the oxe (h) shall eat straw: & to the serpent dust shall be his bread: they shall not hurt, nor kill in all my holy mountain, saith our Lord.

(h) The greatest and proudest Gentiles being converted to Christ, do humble themselves to the simple manners of Christians, to penance, fasting, praying, and all works of mortification.

CHAPTER LXVI.

God who filleth heaven and earth, will dwell in the heart of the humble. 3. For the sins of the Jews Jerusalem shall be destroyed. 5. The faith of Christ shall be propagated by the preaching of the Apostles. 15. And Christ coming to judge, 19. all shall receive according to their deserts.

Thus saith our Lord: Heaven is my seat, and the earth my foot stool: (a) what is this house that you will build to me? And what is this place of my rest? [1]

(a) A prophecy that the Temple shall cease: [1] Act. 7. v. 49.

2 My hand hath made all these things, & all these things have been done, saith our Lord. But to whom shall I have respect, but to the poor little one, & the contrite of spirit, and him that trembleth at my words?

3 He that (b) immolateth an oxe, is as he that should slay a man: he that killeth a sheep in sacrifice, as he that should brain a dog: he that offereth oblation, as he that should offer swine's blood: he that remembereth frankincense, as he that should bless an idol. All these things have they chosen in their ways, and in their abominations their soul is delighted.

(b) and sacrifices of the old Testament shall become unlawful.

4 Wherefore I also will choose their delusions: and the things that they feared, I will bring to them: because I called, and there was none that would answer: I have spoken, and they heard not: & they have done evil in mine eyes, and have chosen the things that I would not. [1]

[1] Prov. 24. Iere. 7. v. 13.

5 Hear the word of our Lord, ye that tremble at his word: your brethren that hate you, and reject you for my name sake, have said: Let the Lord be glorified, & we shall see in your joy: but they shall be confounded.

6 A voice of people from the city, (c) a voice from the temple, the voice of our Lord repaying retribution to his enemies.

(c) Iosephus expoundeth this of the Angel's voice uttered in the temple before the destruction, saying: Migremus hinc: Let us depart from hence. S. Ierome confirmeth the same by the words of the Psalm. 54. I saw contradiction in the city.

7 Before she travailed, she brought forth, before her time came to be delivered, she brought forth a man child. 8 Who ever heard such a thing? & who hath seen the like to this? Why, shall the earth travail in one day? Or shall a nation be brought forth together, because Sion hath travailed, & brought forth her children? 9 Shall not I (d) that make others to bring forth children, myself bring forth, saith the Lord? Shall I, that give generation to others, be barren, saith the Lord thy God?

(d) God giveth natural power to all living creatures of generation: but himself bringeth forth children of his Church.

10 Rejoice with Jerusalem, & be joyful in her all ye that love her: be glad with her in gladness all ye, that mourn upon her, 11 that you may suck, & be filled of the breast of her consolation: that you may milk, & flow with delights in all manner of her glory.

12 Because thus saith our Lord: Behold I will decline upon her as it were a flood of peace, and as a torrent overflowing the glory of the Gentiles, which you shall suck: at the breasts, you shall be carried, & upon the knees they shall speak you fair. 13 As if the mother would speak one fair, so will I comfort you, & in Jerusalem you shall be comforted. 14 You shall see, & your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall spring as an herb, and the hand of our Lord shall be known to his servants, & he shall be wrath with his enemies.

15 Because lo our Lord (e) will come in fire, & his chariots as a whirlwind, to render his fury in indignation, & his rebuking in flame of fire:

(e) Immediately before Christ come to judge, this whole world shall be destroyed by fire.

16 because our Lord shall judge in fire, & in his sword to all flesh, and the slain of our Lord shall be multiplied, 17 they that were sanctified, & thought themselves clean in the gardens behind the gate within, they that did eat swine's flesh, and abomination, and the mouse: they shall be confounded, saith our Lord. 18 But I know their works, and their cogitations: I come that I may gather together, with all nations and tongues: and they shall come and shall see my glory. 19 And I will put (f) a sign in them, and I will send of them, that shall be saved, to the Gentiles into the sea, into Afrike, & Lydia, them that hold the arrow: into Italy, and Greece; to the islands far off, to them that have not heard of me, and have not seen my glory. And they shall shew forth my glory to the Gentiles:

(f) Christ ascending to his Father left the sign of (Thau Ezech. 9.) the cross, unto us, or put it in our foreheads, that we may freely say: the light of thy countenance is signed upon us. S. Ierom in hunc locum.

20 and (g) they shall bring all your brethren of all nations a gift to our Lord, upon horses, and in chariots, & in horse-litters, & on mules, and in coaches, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith our Lord, as if the children of Israel should bring in a gift in a clean vessel into the house of our Lord.

(g) Men of all nations shall be brought into the Church by the ministry of particular Angels. S. Iero. ibid.

21 And I will take of them to be Priests, & Levites, saith our Lord. 22 Because as new heavens, and a new earth, [1] which I make to stand before me, saith our Lord: so shall your seed stand, and your name.

[1] Apo. 21.

23 And there shall be month after month, and sabbath after sabbath: (h) all flesh shall come to adore before my face, saith our Lord.

(h) General resurrection of all men.

24 And they shall go out, and see the carcasses of the men, that have transgressed against me: their worm shall not die, and their fire shall not be quenched: [1] and they shall be even unto satiety of sight to all flesh.

[1] Mar. 9. v. 44.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. LXVI.

1. Heaven is my seat.] Lest any should interpret these prophetical promises (as the Jews do) only of the restoration, & re-edification of Jerusalem and the Temple, the Prophet here sheweth that albeit God sanctified the temple, and granted many benefits to those that served him therein, yet his proper seat is not in any material temple or terrestrial place, but in heaven. ◦And therefore Temples and Churches are indeed ordained for faithful people to serve him in, & to signify, that as these places are more holy, than ordinary houses, so heaven is infinitely more glorious than any earthly palace: yet God is not contained in any place, but exceedeth all. To which purpose S. Steven (Act. 7.) allegeth and urgeth this place: and also S. Paul. Act. 17. that God dwelleth not, or is not concluded in temples, neither needeth them for his own use, but is rightly served in them, by those that lift up their minds to him, as dwelling in heaven, & replenishing all places.

◦As God was served more specially in the temple, so he is now in Churches, but is in all places. See Act. 7. v. 48.

21. I will take of them to be Priests.] In the Law of Moyses Priests and Levites were all of one Tribe, by succession of natural kindred, not by election; but the law being changed, necessarily also Priesthood is changed. And Bishops, Priests, Deacons, and other Clergy men, are taken, and ordained not by nearness of blood, but by election,◦ according to their merits of virtues.

◦Clergymen in the old law succeeded by blood, in the new by election.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE BOOKS OF JEREMY.

[1] The sum of Jeremy's life.
[2] 4. Reg. 23. 24.
[3] cha. 44. v. 8.
[4] He wrote two Books & one Epistle.
[5] The contents of his books.
[6] Epi. ad Paulin.
[7] His Prophecy is divided into five parts.
[8] ch. 1.
[9] 13.
[10] 21.
[12] 40.

[1] JEREMY the son of Helcias, Priest and Prophet, being sanctified in his mother's womb, began to prophesy as yet a child, in Juda; in the thirteenth year of the reign of king Josias; [2] continued the rest of his time, which was nineteen years more; and the eleven years of Joakim (wherein are counted the three months of Joachaz, and other three of Jechonias, otherwise called Ioachin) and eleven years of Sedecias; in all forty one years; before he went into Aegypt, [3] where he also prophesied, and finally was stoned to death by the people, in the city of Taphnis. His whole work containeth two distinct Books, besides an Epistle, [4] which followeth after the Prophecy of Baruch. The former book is called his Prophecy, the other his Lamentations. S. Jerom comprehendeth the sum of all briefly, saying: [5] Jeremy connecteth a nutty (or watching) rod, and a pot boiling hot, from the face of the north, the leopard spoiled of his colours; and the fourfold Alphabet in diverse meters. [6] Signifying, that God will correct his people with a rod, in his hot fury, from the north, to wit, by the king of Babylon, for their pertinacity in sundry kinds of sins. All which the Prophet lamenteth with his doleful verse of diverse meter. [7] The Prophecy may be divided into five parts. [8] First, he sheweth the conditions and qualities of himself, with the manner of his mission: then God's great clemency in recalling the people from sin, denouncing dangers imminent for their obstinacy: in the twelve first chapters. [9] Secondly, in the eight chapters following by diverse Metaphorical, and other figurative descriptions, he declareth the ingratitude, & other sins of the people, threatening punishment, for which they persecute him. [10] Thirdly, in other eight chapters, he reprehendeth the inhabitants of Jerusalem, especially the King, evil Priests, and false prophets, some being already carried into captivity: for which free preaching, he is again persecuted. [11] Fourthly in the next eleven chapters, he mixteth consolations & threats, especially the destruction of Jerusalem, captivity of king and people, and their release after seventy years. [12] Fifthly, in the other thirteen chapters, he prophesieth the destruction of the Jews, that go into Aegypt: and of sundry nations for their idolatry, and for their cruelty against the Jews. In every part interposeth many prophecies of Christ, and his Church: besides the mystical sense included in the historical.

THE PROPHECY OF JEREMY.

CHAPTER I.

Jeremy Prophesied in the times of Josias, Joakim, and Sedecias Kings of Juda: 5. being sanctified in his mother's womb, is sent in his tender age to Prophesy 11. the destruction of Jerusalem, 17. God giving him courage against his persecutors. [1]

[1] The first part.
God's clemency inviteth to repentance, & his justice punisheth obstinate sinners.

The words of Jeremy the son of [1]Helcias, of the Priests that were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin.

[1] * 4. Reg. 22. v. 8.

2 The word of our Lord which was made to him in the days of Josias the son of Amon king of Juda, in the thirteenth year of his kingdom. 3 And the word was made in the days of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda, unto the end of the eleventh year of Sedecias the son of Josias king of Juda, (a) even unto the transmigration of Jerusalem, in the fifth month.

(a) He Prophesied also in banishment (ch. 44.) in Aegypt.

4 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 5 Before I formed thee in the womb, I knew thee: and (b) before thou camest forth of the matrice, I sanctified thee, and a Prophet in the Gentiles I gave thee.

(b) Jeremy had five special prerogatives: He was sanctified in his mother's womb; a Priest, a Prophet; a perpetual virgin; & a Martyr.

6 And I said: A a a, o Lord God: Behold I cannot speak, because I am a child. 7 And our Lord said unto me: Say not: I am a child: for to all things, to which I shall send thee, thou shalt go: and all things whatsoever I shall command thee, thou shalt speak. 8 Be not afraid of their face: because I am with thee, to deliver thee, saith our Lord. 9 And our Lord put forth his hand, and touched my mouth: & our Lord said to me: Behold I have given my words in thy mouth:[1]

[1] Isa. 51. v. 16. & 59. v. 21.

10 Behold I have appointed thee this day over (c) the Gentiles, and over kingdoms, that thou mayst pluck up, and destroy, and waste, and dissipate, and build, and plant.

(c) He prophesied not only of the Jews but also of the Gentiles.

11 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: What seest thou Jeremy? And I said: I see a rod [1] watching.

[1] or a nutty rod.

12 And our Lord said to me? Well hast thou seen; because I (d) will watch upon my word to do it.

(d) God is watchful to perform his word: and a nutty rod (as the 70. translate) that is, his Law is outwardly hard and bitter, like a nut shell, but sweet & pleasant, as the kernel when the shell is broken. S. Theodoret.

13 And the word of our Lord was made to me the second time, saying: What seest thou? And I said: I see a pot boiling hot, and the face thereof from the face of the North. 14 And our Lord said unto me: From the North shall evil be opened upon all the inhabitants of the land. 15 Because lo I will call together all the kindreds of the kingdoms of the North, saith our Lord: and they shall come, and shall set every one his throne in the entering of the gates of Jerusalem, and upon all the walls thereof round about, and upon all the cities of Juda. 16 And I will speak my judgements with them, touching all the wickedness of them that have forsaken me, and have offered to strange gods, and have adored the work of their own hands.

17 Thou therefore gird thy loins, & rise, and speak to them all things that I command thee. Be not afraid of their face: for I will make thee not to fear their countenance. 18 For I have given thee this day to be as a fenced city, and as an iron pillar, and as a brazen wall over all the land of the kings of Juda, to the Princes thereof, & to the Priests, and to the people of the land. 19 And they shall fight against thee, and shall (e) not prevail: because I am with thee, saith our Lord, to deliver thee.

(e) God promised not peace in his life, but victory in his death.

CHAPTER II.

God expostulateth with the Jews, 6. that they regard not his great benefits. 8. Some Priests, and (pretended) Prophets serving false gods, 23. and denying their fault, 25. are obstinate in idolatry: 36. for which they shall be confounded.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Go, and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, saying: Thus saith our Lord: I have remembered thee, pitying (a) thy youth, and the charity of thy despousing, when thou didst follow me in the desert, in a land that is not sown.

(a) God multiplied Israel in Aegypt, & delivered them from servitude.

3 Israel (b) is holy to our Lord, the first fruits of his fruits: all they that do devour it do sin: evil shall come upon them, saith our Lord.

(b) Not of any desert, but of God's mere grace Israel was preferred before other nations.

4 Hear ye the word of our Lord, o house of Jacob, and all ye kindreds of the house of Israel: 5 thus saith our Lord: What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they have made themselves far from me, [1] and have walked after vanity, and are become vain?

[1] Mich. 6. v. 3.

6 And they have not said: Where is our Lord, that made us come up out of the land of Aegypt, that led us through the desert, through a land inhabitable and without way, through a land of thirst, & the image of death, through a land, wherein no man walked, nor any man dwelt? 7 And I brought you into the land of (c) Carmel, that you might eat the fruit thereof, and the best things thereof: and being entered in, you have contaminated my land, & made mine inheritance an abomination.

(c) Into a fruitful land.

8 The Priests have not said: Where is our Lord? And they that held the law knew me not: and the Pastors have transgressed against me, and the Prophets have prophesied in Baal, and have followed idols.

9 Therefore will I yet contend in judgement with you, saith our Lord, and I will plead with your children.

10 Pass ye to the isles of Cethim, and see: and send into Cedar, and consider earnestly, & see if there hath the like thing been done. 11 If a nation hath changed their gods, & surely they are not gods: but my people hath changed their glory into an idol. 12 Be astonished, o heavens, upon this, and o gates thereof be ye desolate exceedingly, saith our Lord. 13 For (d) two evils hath my people done, Me they have forsaken the fountain of living water, & have digged to themselves cisterns: broken cisterns, that are not able to hold waters.

(d) God commanding two things, to fly from evil & to do good: the Jews contrarywise left God and served idols.

14 Why, is Israel a bondman, or a servant born in the house? Why then is he become a prey? 15 The lions have roared upon him, & have given their voice, they have made his land a wilderness: his cities are burnt up, & there is none to dwell in them. 16 The children also of Memphis and Taphnes have deflowered thee, even to the crown of the head. 17 Is not this done to thee, because thou didst forsake the Lord thy God at that time, when he led thee by the way? 18 And now what wilt thou in the way of Aegypt, to drink the troubled water? And what hast thou to do with the way of the Assyrians, to drink the waters of the river? 19 Thy malice shall reprove thee, and thine apostasy shall rebuke thee. Know thou, & see that it is an evil & a bitter thing for thee, to have left the Lord thy God, & that my fear is not with thee, saith our Lord the God of hosts. 20 From the beginning thou hast broken my yoke, thou hast burst my bonds, & thou saidst: I will not serve. For on every little high hill, & under every green thick tree thou wast laid down as an harlot. [1]

[1] Isa. 5.

21 But I planted thee an elect vineyard, (e) all true seed: how then art thou turned unto me into that which is depraved, o strange vineyard? [1]

(e) God created all things good, planted his Church in justice and sanctity, & no evil proceeded from him. [1] Mat. 21. v. 33.

22 If thou shalt wash thyself with nitre, and multiply to thyself the herb borith, thou art spotted in thine iniquity before me, saith our Lord God. 23 How sayst thou: I am not polluted, I have not walked after Baalim? See thy ways in the valley, know what thou hast done: a swift courser that rideth his ways. 24 The wild Ass accustomed to the wilderness in the desire of his soul, hath drawn the wind of his love: none shall turn her away: all that seek her shall not fail: in her monthly flowers they shall find her. 25 Stay thy foot from nakedness, and thy throat from thirst. And thou saidst: I have despaired, no, I will not do it: for I have loved strangers, and I will walk after them. 26 As the thief is confounded when he is taken, so is the house of Israel confounded, they and their kings, the princes and priests, and their prophets, 27 saying to wood: Thou art my father: and to stone: Thou hast begotten me: they have turned the back to me, & not the face: [1] and in the time of their affliction they will say: Arise, and deliver us.

[1] Iere. 32. v. 33.

28 Where are the gods, whom thou hast made to thee? Let them arise and deliver thee in the time of thine affliction: [1] for according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, o Juda.

[1] Iere. 11. v. 13.

29 What will you contend with me in judgement? You have all forsaken me, saith our Lord. 30 (f) In vain have I strucken your children, they have not received discipline: your sword hath devoured your Prophets, as a wasting lion is your generation.

(f) God's intention when he punisheth, is to move sinners to repentance: afflicting them in this life, that they may escape eternal damnation.

31 See ye the word of our Lord: why, am I become a wilderness to Israel, or a lateward springing land? Why then hath my people said: We have revolted, we will no more come to thee? 32 Will a Virgin forget her ornament, or a bride the stomacher of her breast? But my people hath forgotten me innumerable days.

33 Why dost thou endeavour to shew thy way good to seek love, which moreover also hast taught thy malices to be thy ways. 34 And in thy wings is found the blood of the souls of the poor and innocents? Not in ditches have I found them, but in all places, which before I have mentioned. 35 And thou hast said: I am without sin and innocent: and therefore let thy fury be turned away from me. Behold, I will contend with thee in judgement, because thou hast said: I have not sinned. 36 How vile art thou become exceedingly, iterating thy ways! And thou shalt be confounded of Aegypt, as thou art confounded of Assur. 37 For from hence also thou shalt go, & thy hands shall be upon thy head: because the Lord hath destroyed thy confidence, and thou shalt have nothing prosperous therein.

CHAPTER III.

Idolaters (and other sinners) are invited to repent, with promise of remission: 6. but neither the kingdom of Israel nor Juda will return. 14. God still calling, some Jews, and many Gentiles come to Christ.

It is commonly said: If a man put away his wife, and she departing from him marry another man, will he return to her any more? Shall not that woman be polluted and contaminated? (a) But thou hast committed fornication with many lovers: nevertheless return unto me, saith our Lord, and I will receive thee.

(a) No idolatry nor other sin whatsoever can be so great, but God will remit it, if the sinner be penitent.

2 Lift up thine eyes direct, and see where thou hast not been polluted: thou didst sit in the ways, expecting them as a robber in the wilderness: and thou hast polluted the land in thy fornications, and in thy malices. 3 For which thing the drops of rain were kept back, and there was no lateward shower: thou hadst an harlot's forehead, thou wouldest not blush.

4 Therefore at the least from henceforth call me: Thou art my father, the guide of my virginity. 5 Why, wilt thou be angry for ever, or wilt thou persevere unto the end? Lo, thou hast spoken, and hast done evils, and hast prevailed. 6 And our Lord said to me in the days of Josias the king: Hast thou seen what things the revolter (b) Israel hath done? She hath gone of herself upon every high mountain, and under every thick green tree and hath fornicated there.

(b) The ten tribes.

7 And I said, when she had done all these things:

Return to me, & she returned not. And (c) Juda her transgressing sister saw,

(c) The two tribes.

8 because the rebel Israel had played the harlot, I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce: and Juda her transgressing sister was not afraid, but went and played the harlot also herself. 9 And with the facility of her fornication she contaminated the land, played the harlot with stone & wood. 10 And in all these things Juda her transgressing sister hath not returned to me in her whole heart, but in falsehood, saith our Lord. 11 And our Lord said to me: The rebellious Israel hath justified her soul, (d) in comparison of the transgressor Juda.

(d) The kingdom of Juda receiving more benefits was more faulty than the kingdom of Israel, but neither of them excusable.

12 Go, and cry these words against the North, and thou shalt say: Return, o rebellious Israel, saith our Lord, and I will not turn away my face from you: because I am holy, saith our Lord, and I will not be angry for ever. 13 But yet know thou thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the Lord thy God: and thou hast dispersed thy ways to strangers under every thick green tree, and hast not heard my voice, saith our Lord. 14 Return, o ye revolting children, saith our Lord: because I am your husband: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a kindred, and will bring you into Sion. 15 And I will give you Pastors according to my heart, and they shall feed you with knowledge and doctrine. 16 And when you shall be multiplied and increase in the land in those days, saith our Lord, they shall say no more: The Ark of the Testament of our Lord: neither shall it ascend upon their heart, neither shall they be mindful thereof, neither shall it be visited, neither shall that be done any more. 17 In that time Jerusalem shall be called the throne of our Lord: & (e) all Gentiles shall be gathered together to it, in the name of our Lord into Jerusalem, & they shall not walk after the perversity of their most wicked heart.

(e) After the captivity many Jews returned to God, but especially this prophecy is fulfilled in the Gentiles since Christ.

18 In those days the house of Juda shall go to the house of Israel, & (f) they shall come together from the land of the North to the land which I gave to your fathers.

(f) The kingdom of Israel being in captivity long before Juda, at last they were released all together. S. Theodoret in hunc locum.

19 But I said: How shall I make thee as children, and give thee a land worthy to be desired, the goodly inheritance of the hosts of the Gentiles? And I said: Thou shalt call me father, & shalt not cease to walk after me. 20 But as if a woman should contemn her lover, so hath the house of Israel contemned me, saith our Lord. 21 A voice was heard in the ways, weeping & howling of the children of Israel: because they have made their way unjust, they have forgotten our Lord their God. 22 Return ye revolting children, & I will heal your revoltings. Behold we come to thee: for thou art the Lord our God. 23 In very deed the little hills were liars, and the multitude of the mountains: verily in the Lord our God is the salvation of Israel.
24 Confusion hath eaten the labour of our fathers from our youth, their flocks, and their herds, their sons and their daughters 25 We shall sleep in our confusion, and our ignominy shall cover us, because we have sinned to the Lord our God, we and our fathers from our youth even to this day: and we have not heard the voice of the Lord our God.

CHAPTER IV.

An admonition to sincere repentance, and circumcision of the heart: 5. with threats of grievous punishment to those, that persist in sin. 19. which the Prophet foreseeing lamenteth the vastation of the land: 27. yet mixt with consolation, that it shall not be utterly ruined.

If thou wilt return, o Israel, saith our Lord, return to me: if thou wilt take away thy stumbling blocks from my face, thou shalt not be moved. 2 And thou shalt swear: (a) Our Lord liveth, in truth, & in judgement, and in justice: and the Gentiles shall bless him, & shall praise him.

(a) An oath is an act of religion, & lawful, so it be made by God Almighty, not by false gods, and with other three conditions: in truth, not falsely: in judgement, with due consideration not rashly: and in justice, in matters that is just, and of importance.

3 For thus saith our Lord to the man of Juda, and to Jerusalem: Make unto you new fallow ground, [1] & sow not upon thorns:

[1] Osee. 10.

4 be circumcised to our Lord, and take away the prepuces of your hearts, ye men of Juda, and inhabitants of Jerusalem: lest perhaps mine indignation go forth as fire, and be kindled, & there be none that can quench it: because of the malice of your cogitations. 5 Declare ye in Juda, and make it heard in Jerusalem: speak, and sound with the trumpet in the land: cry strongly, and say: Assemble yourselves, & let us enter into the fenced cities, 6 lift up the sign in Sion. Take courage, stand not, because I do bring evil from the North, & great destruction. 7 The Lion is come up out of his den, and the robber of the Gentiles hath lifted up himself: he is come forth out of his place, that he may make thy land as a wilderness: thy cities shall be wasted, remaining without an inhabiter. 8 For this gird yourselves with cloths of hair, mourn and howl: because the wrath of the fury of our Lord is not turned away from us. 9 And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord: The heart of the king shall perish, & the heart of the Princes: and the Priests shall be astonished, and the Prophets shall be amazed. 10 And I said: Alas, alas, alas, o Lord God, hast thou then deceived this people & Jerusalem, saying: You shall have peace: and behold the sword hath come even to the soul? 11 At that time it shall be said to this people, & to Jerusalem: A burning wind in the ways, that are in the desert of the way of the daughter of my people, not to fan and to purge. 12 A full spirit from these shall come to me: and now I will speak my judgement with them. 13 Behold he shall come in a cloud, and his chariots as a tempest: his horses are swifter than eagles: woe unto us, because we are destroyed.

14 Wash thy heart from malice, o Jerusalem, that thou mayst be saved: how long shall hurtful cogitations abide in thee? 15 For a voice of one declaring from Dan, and notifying the idol from mount Ephraim. 16 Say ye to the Gentiles: lo it is heard in Jerusalem, that there come keepers from a far country, and sound their voice upon the cities of Juda. 17 They are set upon her round about, as the keepers of fields: because she hath provoked me to wrath, saith our Lord. 18 Thy ways and thy cogitations have done these things to thee: this thy malice, because it is bitter, because it hath touched thy heart. [1]

[1] Sap. 1.

19 My belly, my belly acheth, the senses of my heart are troubled in me, I will not hold my peace, because my soul hath heard the voice of the trumpet, the cry of battle. 20 Destruction is called upon destruction, and all the earth is wasted: my tents are wasted quickly, suddenly my skins. 21 How long shall I see one that flyeth away, shall I hear the voice of the trumpet? 22 Because my foolish people have not known me: they are unwise children, and without wit: they are (b) wise to do evils, but to do well they have not known.

(b) If they were indeed natural fools they should be excused.

23 I beheld the earth, and lo it was void, and a thing of nothing: and the heavens, & there was no light in them. 24 I saw the mountains, and lo they were moved: and all the little hills were troubled. 25 I beheld, and there was not a man: and every fowl of the air was departed. 26 I looked, and behold Carmel made desert: and all the cities thereof were destroyed at the face of our Lord, and at the face of the wrath of his fury. 27 For thus saith our Lord: All the land shall be desolate, (c) but yet I will not make a consummation.

(c) God's providence never suffereth the Church to be destroyed.

28 The earth shall mourn, and the heavens shall lament from above: because I have spoken, I have purposed, and it hath not repented me, neither am I turned away from it. 29 At the voice of the horseman, and the archer, all the city is fled: they have entered into high places, and have climbed the rocks: all the cities are forsaken, and there dwelleth not a man in them. 30 But thou being wasted, what wilt thou do? When thou shalt clothe thyself in scarlet, when thou shalt be adorned with golden jewels, and shalt paint thine eyes with stibic stone, thou shalt be trimmed in vain: thy lovers have contemned thee, they will seek thy life. 31 For I have heard the voice as of a travailing woman, anguishes as of a woman in labour of child. The voice of the daughter of Sion, amongst them that die, and stretch forth their hands: woe is me, because my soul hath fainted for them that are slain.

CHAPTER V.

All sorts of higher and lower degrees transgress God's law: 9. and shall be punished.

Go round about the ways of Jerusalem, and look, and consider, & seek in the streets thereof, whether you can find a man that doth judgements, and seeketh fidelity: and I will be propitious unto him. 2 Yea if they say: Our Lord liveth (a) this also they will swear falsely.

(a) Except all requisite conditions be observed in an oath, it is unlawful: as when one sweareth by God Almighty but untruly, or rashly, or to do an unlawful thing, it is perjury.

3 O Lord thine eyes regard fidelity: thou hast strucken them, and they were not sorry: thou hast broken them, and they have refused to receive discipline: they have hardened their faces more than the rock, and they would not return. 4 But I said: Perhaps they are poor and foolish, not knowing the way of the Lord, the judgement of their God. 5 I will go therefore to the great men, and will speak to them: for they have known the way of their Lord: and behold these altogether have more broken the yoke, have burst the bonds. 6 Therefore hath (b) the lion out of the wood strucken them, (c) the wolf in the evening hath wasted them, (d) the leopard watching upon their cities: every one of them that shall come forth, shall be taken, because their prevarications, are multiplied, their revoltings are strengthened.

(b) By the lion, the Prophet seemeth to understand Nabuchodonosor. (c) By the wolf Nabuzardan. (d) By the leopard Alexander the Great, or Antiochus Epiphanes.

7 Whereupon can I be propitious to thee? Thy children have forsaken me, and swear by them, that are not gods: I filled them, and they committed adultery, and did riotously in the harlot's house. 8 They are become as amorous horses, and stallions: every one neighed at his neighbour's wife: [1]

[1] Eze. 22.

9 Why, shall I not visit upon these things, saith our Lord? And on such a nation shall not my soul take revenge? 10 Scale the walls thereof, and dissipate them, but make not a consummation: take away the branches thereof, because they are not the Lord's. 11 For by prevarication hath the house of Israel prevaricated against me, and the house of Juda, saith our Lord. 12 They have denied our Lord, and said: It is not he: neither shall the evil come upon us: we shall not see sword and famine. 13 The Prophets have spoken into the wind, and there was no answer in them: these things therefore shall happen to them. 14 Thus saith our Lord the God of hosts: Because you have spoken this word: behold, I give my words in thy mouth as fire, & this people as sticks, & it shall devour them. 15 Behold I will bring upon you a nation from a far, o house of Israel, saith our Lord: a strong nation, an ancient nation, a nation whose tongue thou shalt not know, nor understand what it speaketh. 16 The quiver thereof is as an open sepulchre, they are all strong. 17 And it shall eat thy corn, and thy bread: it shall devour thy sons, and thy daughters: it shall eat thy flock, and thy herds: it shall eat thy vineyard, and thy fig: and it shall destroy thy fenced cities, wherein thou hast confidence, with the sword. 18 But yet in those days, saith our Lord, I (e) will not bring you into consummation.

(e) As before v. 10. & ch. 4. v. 27.

19 And if you shall say: Why hath the Lord our God done all these things to us? Thou shalt say to them: As you have forsaken me, and served a strange god in your own land, so shall you serve strange ones in a land not your own. 20 Declare ye this to the house of Jacob, and make it heard in Juda, saying: 21 Hear thou foolish people, that hast no heart, which having eyes, seest not: and ears, and hearest not. 22 Me then will you not fear, saith our Lord: and at my presence will ye not be sorry? Who have set the sand a limit for the sea, an everlasting precept, that shall not pass, and they shall be moved, and shall not prevail: and the waves thereof shall swell, and shall not pass over it. 23 But to this people their heart is become incredulous and exasperating, they are revolted and departed. 24 And they have not said in their heart: Let us fear the Lord our God, who giveth us the timely and lateward rain in due season: who preserveth the fullness of the yearly harvest unto us. 25 Your iniquities have turned away these things, and your sins have stayed good from you. 26 Because there are found impious men in my people, that lie in wait as fowlers setting snares & traps to take men. 27 As a net full of birds, so their houses are full of guile: therefore are they magnified, and enriched. 28 They are made gross and fat: and have transgressed my words most wickedly. [1]The cause of the widow they have not judged, the cause of the pupil they have not directed, and the judgement of the poor they have not judged.

[1] Isa 1. Zach. 7.

29 (f) Shall I not visit upon these things, Saith our Lord? Or upon such a nation shall not my soul take revenge?

(f) It is against God's just judgement to omit such things unpunished. v. 9. & ch. 9. v. 9.

30 Astonishment and marvelous things are done in the land. 31 The Prophets prophesied a lie, and the Priests clapped with their hands: and my people hath loved such things: what shall be done therefore in the later end thereof?

CHAPTER VI.

Jerusalem shall be destroyed for transgressing God's law: 8. and contemning admonitions. 16. Yet God admonisheth again the Jews, and they contemning, 18. he calleth the Gentiles, and rejecteth the Jews.

Take courage ye children of Benjamin in the midst of Jerusalem, and in Thecua sound with the trumpet, and over Bethacarem lift up the standard: because there is evil seen from the North, and great destruction. 2 I have resembled the daughter of Sion to a beautiful and delicate woman. 3 To her shall (a) Pastors come, and their flocks: they have pitcht tents in her round about: every one shall feed them that are under his hand.

(a) Captains are called Pastors, because they feed and govern their soldiers.

4 Sanctify ye battle upon her: arise, and let us go up in the midday: woe unto us, because the day is declined, because the shadows of the evening are waxen longer. 5 Arise, and let us go up in the night, and destroy her houses. 6 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts: Hew down her wood, cast a trench about Jerusalem: this is the city of visitation, all oppression is in the midst thereof. 7 As a cistern maketh cold the water thereof, so hath she made cold her malice: iniquity and spoil shall be heard in her, infirmity and plague always before me. 8 Be thou taught Jerusalem, lest perhaps my soul depart from thee, lest perhaps I make thee a desert land not habitable. 9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Even to one cluster shall they gather as in a vineyard the remains of Israel, turn back thy hand, as the grape gatherer to the basket. 10 To whom shall I speak? And whom shall I contest, that he may hear? Behold, their ears are uncircumcised, and they cannot hear: behold the word of our Lord is become unto them as a reproach: and they will not receive it. 11 Therefore am I full of the fury of our Lord, I have laboured sustaining: pour out upon the little one without, and upon the counsel of the young men together: for man with woman shall be taken, the ancient with him that is full of days. 12 And their houses shall pass to others, their lands and wives together: because I will extend my hand upon the inhabitants of the land, saith our Lord. 13 For from the lesser even to the greater, all study avarice:[1] and from the Prophets even to the Priest, all commit guile.

[1] Isa. 56.

14 And they cured the destruction of the daughter of my people with ignominy, saying: Peace, peace: and there was not peace. 15 They were confounded, because they did abomination: yea rather they were not confounded with confusion, and they knew not how to blush, for the which thing, they shall fall among them that fall: in the time of their visitation, they shall fall down, saith our Lord. 16 Thus saith our Lord: [1]Stand ye upon the ways, and see, and ask of the old paths, which is the good way, and walk ye in it: and you shall find refreshing for your souls. And they said: We will not walk.

[1] Mat. 11.

17 And I appointed watchmen over you. Hear ye the voice of the trumpet. And they said: We will not hear. 18 (b) Therefore hear ye, o Gentiles, and thou congregation know, what great things I will do to them.

(b) After all the Prophets of the old testament, Christ himself, and lastly his Apostles, called the Jews, who still contemning, the Gentiles are called, & they hear & obey. Mat. 10. v. 5. Act. 13. v. 46.

19 Hear o earth: Behold I will bring evils upon this people, the fruits of their cogitations: because they have not heard my words, and they have cast off my law. 20 To what purpose bring you me frankincense from Saba, and the sweet smelling cane from a far country? [1]Your holocausts are not acceptable, and your victims have not pleased me.

[1] Isa. 1.

21 Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will bring ruin upon this people, and the fathers with the children shall fall in them together, neighbour and neighbour, and they shall perish. 22 Thus saith our Lord: Behold there cometh a people from the land of the (c)North, and a great nation shall arise up from the ends of the earth.

(c) That is from Babylon, which is northward from Jerusalem.

23 It shall take arrow and shield: it is cruel, and will have no mercy. The voice thereof shall sound as the sea: and they shall mount upon horses, prepared as a man to battle, against thee, o daughter of Sion. 24 We have heard the fame thereof, our hands are dissolved: tribulation hath caught us, sorrows as a woman in travail. 25 Go not out of the fields, and walk not in the way: because the sword of the enemy is fear round about. 26 Be girded with sackcloth, o daughter of my people, and be sprinkled with ashes: make thee a bitter lamentation as the mourning of the only-begotten, because the destroyer shall suddenly come upon us. 27 I have set thee a strong prover in my people: and thou shalt know, and prove their way. 28 All these Princes are declining, walking deceitfully, brass and iron: they are all corrupted. 29 The bellows have failed, the lead is consumed in the fire, the founder hath melted in vain: for their malices are not consumed. 30 Call ye them reprobate silver, because our Lord hath rejected them.

CHAPTER VII.

God promiseth to dwell with those that walk right ways: 8. otherwise the material temple will not save them: 16. neither the prayers of the Prophet shall help them, persisting in their sins: 21. nor sacrifice, but obedience to God's law.

The word, that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: 2 Stand in the gate of the house of the Lord, and preach there this word, and say: Hear ye the word of our Lord all Juda, which go in by these gates, to adore our Lord. 3 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Make your ways good, and your studies: and I will dwell with you in this place. 4 Trust not in words of lying, saying: (a) The temple of our Lord, the temple of our Lord, it is the temple of our Lord.

(a) The Jews presumed that God would never suffer his Temple to be destroyed; they thought also that external sacrifices without internal repentance should take away their sins; but for their impenitence they & their sacrifices are rejected, and the temple destroyed.

5 For if you shall well direct your ways, and your studies: if you shall do judgement between a man and his neighbour, 6 to the stranger, and to the pupil, and to the widow shall do no oppression, nor shed innocent blood in this place, and walk not after strange gods to your own evil: 7 I will dwell with you in this place: in the land, which I gave to your fathers from the beginning and for ever. 8 Behold you trust to yourselves in words of lying: which shall not profit you: 9 to steal, to murder, to commit adultery, to swear falsely, to offer to Baalim, and to go after strange gods, which you know not. 10 And you have come, and stood before me in this house, in which my name is invocated, and have said: We are delivered because we have done all these abominations. 11 Why, is this house then wherein my name is invocated, in your eyes become a den of thieves? [1] I, even I am: I have seen, saith our Lord.

[1] Mat. 21.

12 Go ye to (b) my place in Silo, [1] where my name dwelt from the beginning: and see what I have done to it for the malice of my people Israel:

(b) It is true that God sanctified the tabernacle in Silo, and afterwards the temple in Jerusalem: but if the people be not sanctified, he is not tied to the place. [1] Ios. 18. Iud. 18. 1. Reg. 3.

13 and now because you have done all these works, saith our Lord: and I have spoken to you early rising, and speaking, & you have not heard: and I have called you, and you have not answered: [1]

14 I will do to this house, wherein my name is invocated, & wherein you have confidence: and to the place which I have given you and your fathers, as I did to Silo. 15 And I will cast you away from my face, as I have cast away all your brethren, (c) the whole seed of Ephraim.

(c) The Kingdom of ten tribes.

16 Thou therefore pray not for this people, neither take unto thee praise and prayer for them, and resist me not: because I will not hear thee. 17 Seest thou not what these do in the cities of Juda, and in the street of Jerusalem? 18 The children gather the sticks, & the fathers kindle the fire, & the women temper the dough to make cakes unto the queen of heaven, and to offer libaments unto strange gods, and to provoke me to wrath. 19 Why do they provoke me to wrath? Saith our Lord: and not themselves to the confusion of their own countenance? 20 Therefore this saith our Lord God: Behold my fury, and my indignation is poured upon this place, upon men, and upon beasts, and upon the wood of the country, and upon the fruits of the land, and it shall be kindled, and shall not be quenched. 21 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Add your holocausts to your victims, and eat ye the flesh. 22 Because I spake not with your fathers, and I (d) commanded them not in the day, that I brought them out of the land of Aegypt, touching the word of holocausts and victims.

(d) God gave his perfect law comprised in the ten commandments: which alone being kept will suffice: and afterwards added ceremonial precepts, to exercise the people in external sacrifices of beasts and other corporal things to be offered to himself, as well to keep them from idolatry, as to lead them thereby to internal virtues, and to signify Mysteries of the new testament. As is noted. Levit. 1.

23 But this word I commanded them, saying: Hear ye my voice, and I will be your God, and you shall be my people: and walk ye in all the way, that I have commanded you, that it may be well with you. 24 And they heard not, nor inclined their ear: but have gone in their pleasures, and in the perversity of their wicked heart: and have been made backward and not forward, 25 from the day that their fathers came out of the land of Aegypt, even to this day. And I have sent to you all my servants the Prophets by day, rising early, and sending. 26 And they have not heard me, nor inclined their ear: but they have hardened their neck, and have wrought worse than their fathers. 27 And thou shalt speak unto them all these words, and they will not hear thee: and thou shalt call them, and they will not answer thee. 28 And thou shalt say to them: This is the nation which hath not heard the voice of the Lord their God, nor received discipline: faith is perished, and is taken away out of their mouth. 29 Poll thy hair, and cast it away, and take lamentation on high: because our Lord hath cast off, and hath left the generation of his fury, 30 because the children of Juda have done evil in mine eyes, saith our Lord. They have put their stumbling blocks in the house, wherein my name is invocated, that they might pollute it: 31 and they have built the excelses of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Ennom, that they might burn their sons, and their daughters with fire: which things I commanded not, nor thought in my heart.

32 Therefore lo the days shall come, saith our Lord, and it shall no more be said: Topheth, and the valley of the son of Ennom: but the valley of slaughter: and they shall bury in Topheth because there is no place.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Babylonians spoiling Jerusalem will cast the bones of Kings, Priests, Prophets, and others out of their sepulchres, and most cruelly afflict the living: 5. God so permitting, because they would not repent, when the true Prophets admonished them so to do. 18. All which the Prophet foreseeing lamenteth.

At that time, saith our Lord, (a) they will cast out the bones of the kings of Juda, and the bones of the Princes thereof, and the bones of Priests, and the bones of the Prophets, and the bones of them that inhabit Jerusalem, out of their sepulchres.

(a) Persecutors spoil the shrines of Kings & other principal persons, of cruelty, & also of avarice if they be richly adorned.

2 And they shall spread them abroad in the sun, and the moon, and all the host of heaven, which they have loved, and which they have served, & after which they have walked, and which they have sought, and adored: they shall not be gathered, and they shall not be buried: they shall be as a dunghill upon the face of the earth. 3 And they shall choose rather death than life, all that shall be remaining of this wicked kindred in all places, which are left, to the which I have cast them out, saith the Lord of hosts. 4 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord: Shall not he that falleth rise again? And he that is turned away, shall he not turn again? 5 Why then is this people in Jerusalem turned away with a contentious revolting? They have apprehended lying, and would not return. 6 I attended, and harkened: no man speaketh that which is good, there is none that doth penance for his sin, saying: What have I done? They are all turned to their own course, as an horse going with violence to battle.

7 The kite in the heaven hath known her time: the turtle, and the swallow, and the stork have observed the time of their coming: but my people have not known the judgement of the Lord. 8 How say you: We are wise, and the law of our Lord is with us? In very deed the lying pen of the Scribes hath wrought lying.

9 The wise are confounded, they are terrified and taken: for they (b) have cast away the word of our Lord, and there is no wisdom in them.

(b) Those that profess knowledge of the law, & observe it not in works, have not true wisdom.

10 Therefore will I give their women to strangers, their fields to inheritors: because from the least even to the greatest all follow avarice: from the Prophet even to the Priest all make lies. 11 And they healed the destruction of the daughter of my people to ignominy, saying: Peace, peace, when there was not peace.
12 They are confounded, because they have done abomination: yea rather they are not confounded with confusion, and they have not known how to blush: therefore shall they fall among them that fall, in the time of their visitation they shall fall, saith our Lord.
13 Gathering I will gather them together, saith our Lord, there is no grape in the vines, and there are no figs on the figtree, the leaf is fallen down: and I have given them the things that are passed. 14 Why do we sit? Come together and let us enter into the fenced city, and let us be silent there: because the Lord our God hath made us to be silent, and hath given us water of gall for drink: for we have sinned to our Lord.
15 We expected peace and there was no good: a time of medicine and behold fear. 16 From Dan was the snoring noise of his horses heard, with the voice of the neighings of his fighting horses all the land was moved: and they came and devoured the land, and the fullness thereof: the city & the inhabitants thereof.
17 For behold I will send you (c) serpents basilisks, for which there is no enchantment: and they shall bite you, saith our Lord.

(c) As serpents cannot be hindered by enchantments from hurting men, no more can the furious Chaldees be dissuaded by any speech from killing, spoiling, and ransacking the Israelites.

18 My sorrow is above sorrow, my heart mourning within me. 19 Behold the voice of the daughter of my people from a far country: Is not our Lord in Sion: or is not her king in her? Why then have they provoked me to wrath in their sculptiles, & in strange vanities?
20 The harvest is past, summer is ended: and we are not saved. 21 For the affliction of the daughter of my people I am afflicted, and made sorrowful, astonishment hath taken me. 22 Is there no rosin in Galaad? Or is there no physician there? Why then is not the wound of the daughter of my people closed?

CHAPTER IX.

The prophet lamenteth the future calamity of the people, and their false dealing each with others: 12. willing all to consider that their wickedness is the cause of their misery, 17. and to mourn, 23. and return to God: 25. who otherwise will punish both Gentiles, and Jews not circumcised in heart.

Who (a) will give water to my head, and to mine eyes a fountain of tears? And I will weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people.

(a) Not a few tears, but a fountain, or river is scarce sufficient to lament the slaughter of...

2 Who will give me in the wilderness an inn of wayfaring men, and I will forsake my people, and depart from them? Because they are all adulterers, an assembly of transgressors. 3 And they have bent their tongue, as a bow of lying and not of truth: they have taken courage in the land, because they have proceeded from evil to evil, and me they have not known, saith our Lord. 4 Let every man take heed to himself of his neighbour, and in every brother of his, let him not have affiance: because every brother supplanting will supplant, and every friend will walk deceitfully. 5 And man shall scorn his brother, and they will not speak truth: for they have taught their tongue to speak lies: they have laboured to do unjustly. 6 Thine inhabitation is in the midst of deceit: in deceit they have refused to know me, saith our Lord. 7 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will melt, and will try them: for what else shall I do at the face of the daughter of my people? 8 There tongue is a wandering arrow, it hath spoken guile: [1] in his mouth he hath spoken peace with his friend, and secretly he layeth wait for him.

9 Shall I not visit upon these things, saith our Lord? Or upon such a nation shall not my soul be revenged?
10 Upon the mountains I will take up weeping and lamentation, & upon the beautiful places of the desert, mourning: because they are burnt, for that there is not a man that passeth through: and they have not heard the voice of the owner: from the fowl of the air unto the beasts they are gone away & departed. 11 And I will make Jerusalem to be heaps of sand, and dens of dragons: and I will give the cities of Juda into desolation, because there is not an inhabiter. 12 Who is a wise man, that can understand this, & to whom the word of the mouth of our Lord may be made, that he may declare this, why the earth hath perished, and is burnt as a desert, because there is none that passeth through? 13 And our Lord said: Because they have forsaken my law, which I gave them, and have not heard my voice, & have not walked in it. 14 And they have gone after the perversity of their own heart, and after Baalim, which they learned of their fathers.
15 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will feed this people with wormwood, and give them water of gall to drink. 16 And I will disperse them in the Nations, which they & their fathers have not known: & I will send the sword after them, (b) till they be consumed.

(b) After the destruction of Jerusalem, most of the people, especially the richer sort, were carried into captivity; others were persecuted till they were consumed, that is, even to death & destruction. But not all the nation consumed, for he prophesied the contrary, ch. 4. v. 27. & ch. 5. v. 10. & 18. And after 70. years the relics were released, and returned into Jewry, many also remained still there. As is evident in the books of Esdras.

17 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Consider & call ye lamenting women, & let them come: & send to them that are wise, and let them make haste: 18 let them hasten & take up a lamentation upon us: let our eyes shed tears, & our eye-lids run down with waters. 19 Because a voice of lamentation is heard from Sion: How are we wasted and confounded exceedingly? Because we have left the land, because our tabernacles are cast down. 20 Hear therefore ye women the word of our Lord: and let your ears take the word of his mouth: and teach your daughters lamentation: & every one her neighbour mourning: 21 because death is come up through our windows, it is entered into our houses, to destroy the children from without, the young men out of the streets. 22 Speak: Thus saith our Lord: and the carcass of man shall fall as dung upon the face of the country, and as a grass behind the back of the mower, and there is none to gather it. 23 Thus saith our Lord: Let not the wiseman glory in his wisdom, & let not the strong man glory in his strength, & let not the rich man glory in his riches: [1]

2. Cor. 10.

24 but he that glorieth, let him glory in this, to understand & know me, because I am the Lord that do mercy and judgement, & justice in the earth: for these things please me, saith our Lord. 25 Behold, the days come, saith our Lord; & I will visit upon every one that hath the prepuce circumcised. 26 upon (c) Aegypt, and upon Juda, & upon Edom, and upon the children of Ammon, & upon Moab, & upon all that have their hair polled, dwelling in the desert: because all nations have the prepuce, but all the house of Israel are uncircumcised in the heart.

(c) These nations are also circumcised in flesh, but neither they nor the Jews are circumcised in heart which argueth them of hypocrisy.

CHAPTER X.

Influence of stars, nor imagined power of idols, is not to be feared, but God only whose Majesty is infinite, and idols have no power at all. 19. Jerusalem lamenteth, 24. and prayeth God to pardon and protect his own people.

Hear ye the word, which our Lord hath spoken concerning you, o house of Israel. 2 Thus saith our Lord: According to the ways of the Gentiles learn not: and (a) of the signs of heaven, which the heathen fear, be not afraid:

(a) Heathenish idolaters thought there was divine power in the planets, and other stars. But the faithful know that they are the creatures of God, made for the benefit of men, not that men should serve or fear them.

3 Because the laws of the people are vain: because the work of the hand of the artificer hath cut a tree out of the forest with an axe: 4 with silver & gold he hath decked it: with nails and hammers he hath compacted it, that it fall not asunder. 5 They are framed after the similitude of a palm tree, & shall not speak: being carried they shall be removed, because (b) they are not able to go. Therefore fear them not, because they can neither do ill nor well.

(b) Of other idols made of wood, silver, gold, and the like, it is more easy to see the vanity.

6 [1] There is not the like unto thee o Lord: thou art great, and great is thy name in strength. [2]

[1] Mich. 7. [2] Apoc. 15.

7 Who shall not fear thee o King of Nations? For thine is the glory: among all the wise of the Gentiles, & in all their kingdoms there is none like unto thee. 8 They shall be proved altogether unwise & foolish: the doctrine of their vanity is wood. 9 Silver wrapped up is brought from Tharsis, and gold from Ophaz: the work of the artificer, & the hands of the coppersmith: hyacinth and purple are their clothing: all these things are the work of artificers. 10 But our Lord is the true God: he is the living God, and the King everlasting: at his indignation the earth shall be moved: and the Gentiles shall not sustain his threatening. 11 Thus then you shall say to them: The gods that made not heaven and earth, let them perish from off the earth, and from these places, that are under heaven. 12 He that maketh the earth in his strength, prepareth the world in his wisdom, & with his prudence stretcheth out the heavens. 13 At his voice he giveth a multitude of waters in the heaven, [1] & lifteth up the clouds from the ends of the earth: he maketh lightnings into rain, & bringeth forth the wind out of his treasures.

[1] Ps. 134.

14 Every man is become a fool for knowledge, every crafts-man is confounded in the sculptile: because it is false that he hath melted, and there is no spirit in them. 15 They are vain things, and a work worthy to be laughed at: in the time of their visitation they shall perish. 16 The portion of Jacob is not like to these: for it is he that formed all things: and Israel is the rod of his inheritance: the Lord of hosts is his name.

17 Gather thy confusion out of the land, thou that dwellest in besiege. 18 Because thus saith our Lord: Behold I will cast forth far off the inhabitants of the land at this time: & I will afflict them, so that they may not be found. 19 Woe is me for my destruction, my plague is very sore. But I said. Truly this is mine infirmity, and I will bear it. 20 My tabernacle is wasted, all my cords are broken in sunder: my children are gone out from me, and are not: there is none to stretch out my tent any more, & to set up my curtains.

21 Because the Pastors have done foolishly, & have not sought our Lord: therefore have they not understood, and all their flock is dispersed. 22 Lo the voice of a bruit cometh, a great commotion from the land of the North: to make the cities of Juda a desert, and an habitation of dragons. 23 I know Lord, that (c) man's way is not his own: neither is it in a man to walk, and to direct his steps.

(c) Man cannot do any good thing without God's help, nor any evil without his permission: neither of which destroyeth freewill. As in the present example Nabuchodonosor could not afflict the Jews but by God's permission.

24 [1] Correct me o Lord, but yet in judgement: and not in thy fury, lest perhaps thou bring me to nothing.

[1] Psal. 6.

25 Pour out thine indignation upon the Gentiles, that have not known thee, and upon the Provinces, that have not invocated thy name: [1] because they have eaten Jacob, and devoured him, and consumed him, and have dissipated his glory.

[1] Psal. 78.

CHAPTER XI.

The Prophet being commanded to preach the observation of God's covenant is not heard. 9. The people follow their fathers' example, adoring idols: 11. and shall therefore be severely punished, neither shall their idols, nor prayers of the just profit them. 15. their malice against Christ is described, 20. and the revenge thereof.

The word that was made from our Lord to Jeremy, saying: 2 Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, 3 and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Cursed is the man that shall not hear the words of this covenant, 4 which I (a) commanded your fathers in the day, that I brought them out of the Land of Aegypt, out of the iron furnace, saying: Hear ye my voice, and do all things, that I command you: and you shall be my people, and I will be your God.

(a) Not for the privileges of kindred (being the children of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob) nor for suffering circumcision, nor for the rest of the Sabbath, but for obedience (in keeping the covenant & precepts) our Lord is the God of Israel, & Israel his people, S. Ierom.

5 That I may raise up the oath, which I sware to your fathers, that I would give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as is this day. And I answered, and said: Amen Lord. 6 And our Lord said to me: Cry aloud all these words in the cities of Juda, and without Jerusalem, saying: Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them: 7 because contesting I did contest your fathers in the day, that I brought them out of the Land of Aegypt even to this day: arising early I contested, and said: Hear ye my voice: 8 and they heard not, nor inclined their ear: but went every one in the perversity of his own wicked heart: and I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, and they did not. 9 And our Lord said to me: Conspiracy is found in the men of Juda, and in the inhabitants of the men of Jerusalem. 10 They are returned to the former iniquities of their fathers, which would not hear my words: and these therefore have gone after strange gods, to serve them: the house of Israel, and the house of Juda hath made void my covenant, which I made with their fathers. 11 For which thing thus saith our Lord: Behold I will bring in evils upon them, out of which they shall not be able to go forth: and they shall cry to me, and I will not hear them. 12 And the cities of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall go, and cry to the gods, unto whom they sacrificed, and they shall not save them in the time of their affliction. 13 For according to the number of thy cities were thy gods o Juda: and according to the number of the ways of Jerusalem thou didst set altars of confusion, altars to sacrifice to Baalim.

(b) Ch. 7. v. 16. ch. 14. v. 11.

15 What is it, that my beloved hath in my house done much wickedness? Shall (c) the holy flesh take away from thee thy malices: in which thou hast boasted?

(c) Flesh offered in sacrifice is holy, but profiteth not those that are obstinate in sin.

16 The Lord hath called thy name, a plentiful olive tree, fair, fruitful, beautiful: at the voice of a word, a great fire flamed up in it, and the shrubs thereof are burnt. 17 And the Lord of hosts that planted thee, hath spoken evil upon thee: for the evils of the house of Israel, and of the house of Juda, which they have done to themselves, to provoke me, in offering to Baalim.

18 (d) But thou Lord hast shewed me, and I have known: thou hast shewed me their studies.

(d) By consent of all Churches (saith S. Ierome) this is spoken of Christ.

19 And I as a mild lamb, that is carried to a victim: and I (e) knew not that they devised counsels against me, saying: Let us cast wood on his bread, & rase him out of the land of the living, and let his name be mentioned no more.

(e) Who so bore himself, as if he had not known when the Jews condemned him in their councel. For otherwise he knew, and foretold, that he should be betrayed & crucified Mat. 20. v. 18. 19. & ch. 26. v. 2.

20 But thou o Lord of Sabaoth, which judgest justly, & provest the reins & the hearts, let me see thy revenge of them: for to thee I have revealed my cause. 21 Therefore thus saith the Lord to the men of Anathoth, which seek thy life, and say: Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of our Lord, and thou shalt not die in our hands. 22 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will visit upon them: their young men shall die by the sword, their sons and their daughters shall die in famine. 23 And there shall be (f) no remains of them: for I will bring in evil upon the men of Anathoth, the year of their visitation.

(f) He speaketh only of the wicked, for still some relics remain. Isa. 10. Ier. 4. Ro. 9.

CHAPTER XII.

It seemeth strange that the wicked prosper. 5. The Jews heretofore afflicted by weaker enemies, shall be more oppressed by the Babylonians. 10. Evil Pastors shall be punished, 14. and foreign enemies destroyed.

Thou indeed o Lord art just, if I dispute with thee, but yet I will speak just things to thee: (a) Why doth the way of the impious prosper: why is it well with all that transgress, and do wickedly? [1]

(a) Prophets, & other holy men, not ignorant nor doubtful of God's providence, speak sometimes in the person of the weak, as desirous to know why God suffereth the wicked to prosper in this world, and the godly to be afflicted. Iob. 21. v. 7. David Psal. 72. v. 2. 3. Abacuc. 1. v. 3. [1] Iob. 21. Abac. 1.

2 Thou hast planted them, and they have taken root: they prosper and bring forth fruit: thou art nigh to their mouth, and far from their reins. 3 And thou Lord hast known me, thou hast seen me, and proved my heart with thee: gather them together as a flock to the victim, and [1] sanctify them in the day of slaughter.

[1] Segregate.

4 How long shall the land mourn, and the herb of every field be withered for malice of the inhabitants therein? Beast is consumed, and fowl: because they have said: He shall not see our later ends. 5 If running with foot-men thou hast laboured: how canst thou contend with horses? And whereas in a land of peace thou hast been secure, what wilt thou do in the pride of Jordan? 6 For even thy brethren, and the house of thy father, they also have fought against thee, and have cried after thee with full voice: believe them not when they shall speak good things unto thee. 7 I have forsaken my house, I have left mine inheritance: I have given my beloved soul into the hand of her enemies. 8 Mine inheritance is become unto me as a lion in the wood: it hath uttered a voice against me, therefore have I hated it. 9 Why, is mine inheritance unto me as a bird of diverse colours? Is it as a bird dyed throughout? Come, assemble yourselves all ye beasts of the land, make haste to devour. 10 Many pastors have destroyed my vineyard, they have trodden down my portion: they have made my portion that was worthy to be desired, into a desert of desolation. 11 They have laid it into dissipation, and it hath mourned upon me. With desolation is all the land made desolate: because there is none that considereth in the heart. 12 Upon all the ways of the desert the wasters are come, because the sword of our Lord shall devour from one end of the land to the other end thereof: there is no peace to all flesh. 13 They have sown wheat, and reaped thorns: they have taken an inheritance, & it shall not profit them: you shall be ashamed of your fruits, for the wrath of the fury of our Lord. 14 Thus saith the Lord against all my most wicked neighbours: (b) which touch the inheritance that I have distributed to my people of Israel: Behold I will pluck them out of their land, and the house of Juda I will pluck out of the midst of them.

(b) After that the children are chastised, the rod is to be burned.

15 And when I shall have plucked them out, I will return, and have mercy on them: and will bring them back, every man to his inheritance, and every man into his land. 16 And it shall be: if being taught they will learn the ways of my people, that they swear in my name: Our Lord liveth, as they have taught my people to swear by Baal: they shall be built in the midst of my people. 17 But if they will not hear, I will pluck out that nation with plucking up and with destruction, saith our Lord.

CHAPTER XIII.

By a girdle first used and after left off, 8. is prefigured the rejection of the Jews: 12. till God's mercy recalleth them. 17. The Prophet lamenting their obstinacy, 22. sheweth that their sin is the cause of their misery.[1]

[1] The 2. part.
The people's ingratitude sinning against God, and persecuting the Prophet.

Thus saith our Lord to me: Go, and get thee (a) a girdle of linen, and thou shalt put it about thy loins, and shalt not put it into water.

(a) Prophecies uttered in facts have more force to persuade, than only words. And therefore the Prophets by God's commandment use both these ways. Heb. 1.

2 And I got a girdle according to the word of our Lord, and put it about my loins. 3 And the word of our Lord was made to me the second time, saying: 4 Take the girdle, which thou hast gotten, which is about thy loins, and rising go to Euphrates, and hide it there in an hole of the rock. 5 And I went, and hid it in Euphrates, as our Lord had commanded me. 6 And it came to pass after many days, our Lord said to me: Arise, go to Euphrates: and take from thence the girdle, which I commanded thee that thou shouldst hide it there. 7 And I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle out of the place, where I had hid it: and behold the girdle was rotten, so that it was fit for no use. 8 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 9 Thus saith our Lord: so will I make the pride of Juda, and the great pride of Jerusalem. 10 This most wicked people, which will not hear my words, and walk in the perversity of their heart: & have gone after strange gods to serve them, and to adore them: and they shall be as this girdle, which is fit for no use. 11 For as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man, so have I fast joined to me all the house of Israel, and all the house of Juda, saith our Lord: that they might be my people, and name, and praise, and glory: & they heard not. 12 Thou shalt say therefore unto them this word: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: (b) Every bottle shall be filled with wine. And they shall say to thee: Why, are we ignorant that every bottle shall be filled with wine?

(b) Another prophetical similitude, to signify that the Jews shall be perplex, not knowing what to do in extreme distress: as senseless men overcome with much wine.

13 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, & the kings that of the stock of David sit upon his throne, & the Priests, & the Prophets, & all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with drunkenness. 14 And I will disperse them every man from his brother, and the fathers and sons together, saith our Lord: I will not spare, and I will not yield: neither will I have mercy not to destroy them. 15 Hear ye, and give ear. Be not elevated, because our Lord hath spoken. 16 Give ye glory to our Lord your God, before it wax dark, and before your feet stumble at the dark mountains: you shall look for light, and he will turn it into the shadow of death, & into darkness. 17 But if you will not hear this, in secret my soul shall weep because of the pride: weeping it shall weep, and mine eye shall drop tears, because the flock of our Lord is taken.[1]

[1] Lam. 1.

18 Say to the king, and to her that ruleth: Be humbled, sit down: because the crown of your glory is come down from your head. 19 The cities of the South are shut, and there is none that may open them: all Juda is transported with a perfect transmigration. 20 Lift up your eyes and see, you that come from the North, where is the flock that is given thee, thy noble cattle? 21 What wilt thou say when he shall visit thee?

For thou hast taught them against thee, and instructed them against thine own head: shall not sorrows apprehend thee, as a woman in travail? 22 And if thou shalt say in thy heart: why are these things come unto me? For the multitude of thine iniquity, thy more shamely parts are discovered: the soles of thy feet are polluted. 23 (c) If the Aethiopian can change his skin, or the leopard his spots: you also can do well, when you have learned evil.

(c) Custom is as it were another nature, hard to be altered: yet God's grace raiseth some inveterate sinners to true repentance, but this is rare. And of themselves without grace no sinners can rise nor repent.

24 And I will scatter them as stubble, which is violently taken with the wind in the desert. 25 This is thy lot, and portion of thy measure from me, saith our Lord, because thou hast forgotten me, and hast trusted in lying. 26 Wherefore I have also made bare thy thighs against thy face, and thine ignominy hath appeared, 27 thine adulteries, and thy neighing, the wickedness of thy fornication: upon the little hills in the field I have seen thine abominations. Woe to thee Jerusalem, thou wilt not be made clean after me: how long yet?

CHAPTER XIV.

Jury shall be afflicted with drought and famine. 11. Neither shall the Prophet's prayer, nor their fasts, nor sacrifices avail them. 14. False-Prophets shall perish with the seduced people. 17. Jeremy lamenting exhorteth them to repentance.

The word of our Lord that was made to Jeremy concerning the words (a) of the drought.

(a) The Jews suffered famine & thirst by reason of drought, for their sins, which also signifieth deprivation of God's grace for their former wickedness.

2 Jury hath mourned, and the gates thereof are fallen down, and are obscured on the earth, and the cry of Jerusalem is come up. 3 The greater men have sent their inferiors to the water: they came to draw, they found no water, they carried back their vessels empty: they were confounded and afflicted, and covered their heads. 4 For the waste of the land, because there came no rain upon the earth, the husbandmen were confounded, they covered their heads. 5 For the hind also brought forth in the field, and left it: because there was no grass. 6 And the wild asses stood upon the rocks, they drew wind as dragons, their eyes failed, because there was no grass. 7 If our iniquities have answered us: Lord do for thy name's sake, because our revoltings are many, to thee we have sinned. 8 O expectation of Israel, the saviour thereof in the time of tribulation: why wilt thou be as a sojourner in the land, and as a wayfaring man turning in to lodge? 9 Why wilt thou be as a wandering man, as the (b) strong that cannot save? But thou o Lord art in us, and thy name is invocated upon us, forsake us not.

(b) As one that braggeth, and esteemeth himself strong.

10 Thus saith our Lord to his people, which hath loved to move their feet, and have not rested, and hath not pleased our Lord: Now will he remember their iniquities, and visit their sins. 11 And our Lord said to me: Pray not for this people to good. 12 When they shall fast I will not hear their prayers: and if they shall offer holocausts and victims, I will not receive them: because with sword, and famine, and pestilence I will consume them. 13 And I said: A a a, O Lord God^ (c) the Prophets say to them: You shall not see the sword, and there shall be no famine among you, but he will give you true peace in this place.

(c) False Prophets seducing the people, cannot excuse them from sin. For when the blind leadeth the blind, both fall into the pit.

14 And our Lord said to me: The Prophets prophesy falsely in my name: I sent them not, and I commanded them not, neither have I spoken unto them: lying vision, and deceitful divination, guilefulness, and the seduction of their own heart they prophesy unto you. 15 Therefore thus saith our Lord of the Prophets, that prophesy in my name, whom I sent not, that say: There shall not be sword, and famine in this land: In sword and famine shall those Prophets be consumed.

16 And the peoples to whom they prophesy, shall be cast forth in the ways of Jerusalem through famine and sword, and there shall be none to bury them; they & their wives, their sons & their daughters, and I will pour out their evil upon them.[1]

[1] Lam. 1. & 2.

17 And thou shalt say this word unto them: Let mine eyes shed tears night & day, & not cease, because the (d) virgin daughter of my people is afflicted with great affliction, with a very sore plague exceedingly.

(d) Not withstanding there were very many grievous sinners, yet in respect of the just the Church is a virgin.

18 If I shall go out to the fields, lo the slain with the sword: and If I enter into the city, lo the pined away with famine. For the Prophet & the Priest are gone into a land which they knew not. 19 Why, casting off hast thou cast away Juda, or hath thy soul abhorred Sion? Why then hast thou striken us, so that there is not health? We have expected peace, & there is no good: and a time of curing, and behold trouble. 20 We have known o Lord our impieties, the iniquities of our fathers, because we have sinned to thee. 21 Give us not into reproach for thy name's sake, neither make us to have the contumely of the throne of thy glory: remember, make not thy covenant with us void.
22 Why, are there among the sculptiles of the Gentiles that can rain? Or can the heavens give showers? Art not thou the Lord our God, whom we have expected? For thou hast made all these things.

CHAPTER XV.

Though Moyses and Samuel should pray for this people, yet God hath determined to punish them with plague, war, famine, and captivity, 6. for their impenitency. 10. The Prophet lamenteth that for his preaching the people is become worse, 15. and persecuteth him: 19. but God promiseth to deliver and to reward him.

And our Lord said to me: If Moyses & Samuel (a) shall stand before me, my soul is not toward this people: cast them out from my face, and let them go forth.

(a) The Geneva Bible is corruptly translated contrary to the Hebrew and Greek: Though Moyses and Samuel stood before me.

2 And if they shall say unto thee: Whither shall we go forth? Thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord: (b) They that to death, to death, & they that to sword, to sword: & they that to famine, to famine: & they that to captivity, to captivity.[1]

(b) This Hebrew phrase signifieth, that some shall die by sickness, some by the sword, some by famine, some shall be lead into captivity, as God hath severally ordained.[1] Zac. 11.

3 And I will visit upon them four kinds, saith our Lord: The sword to kill, and dogs to tear, and the fowls of the air, and beasts of the earth to devour and to destroy. 4 And I will give them into rage to all the kingdoms of the earth: because of Manasses the son of Ezechias the king of Juda, for all things that he did in Jerusalem.[1]

5 For who shall have pity on thee Jerusalem? Or who shall be sorry for thee? Or who shall go to pray for thy peace? 6 Thou hast forsaken me, saith our Lord, thou hast gone backward: and I will stretch forth my hand upon thee, & will kill thee: I am weary in praying thee.
7 And I will scatter them with a fan in the gates of the land: I have slain and destroyed my people, and yet they are not returned from their ways. 8 Their widows are multiplied unto me above the sand of the sea: I have brought into them upon the mother of the young man a waster at noon day: I have cast terror suddenly upon the cities. 9 She is weakened that bare seven, her soul hath fainted: the sun went down to her, when it was yet day:[1] she is confounded, and ashamed: and the residue of them I will give unto the sword in the sight of their enemies, saith our Lord.

[1] Amos 8.

10 Woe is me, my mother: why hast thou born me a man of brawling, a man of discord in all the earth? I have not lent to usury, neither hath any man lent unto me to usury: all curse me. 11 Our Lord saith: if thy remnant shall not be to good, if I have not holpen thee in the time of affliction, and in the time of tribulation against the enemy. 12 Why, shall (c) iron be confederate with the iron from the North, and also (d) brass?

(c) There can hardly be concord between potent Kingdoms. (d) The weaker is easily afflicted by the stronger.

13 Thy riches & thy treasures I will give into spoil for naught for all thy sins, and in all thy borders. 14 And I will bring thine enemies out of a land, which thou knowest not: because a fire is kindled in my fury, it shall burn upon you. 15 (e) Thou knowest o Lord, be mindful of me, and visit me, and defend me from them, that persecute me: do not receive me in (f) thy patience, know that I have sustained reproach for thee.

(e) The Prophet fearing his own weakness prayeth to be delivered from persecution. (f) Defer not to deliver me. As Psal. 12. v. 2. 3.

16 Thy words were found, and I did eat them, & thy word was made to me a joy & gladness of my heart: because thy name is invocated upon me, o Lord God of hosts. 17 [1] I sat not in the councel of jesters, & I have gloried at the face of thy hand: I sat alone, because thou hast filled me with threatening.

[1] Psal. 1. & 25.

18 Why is my sorrow made perpetual, and my desperate plague refuseth to be cured? It is become unto me as a lie of (g) unfaithful waters.

(g) Vain hopes.

19 For this cause thus saith our Lord: If thou wilt be converted, I will convert thee, & thou shalt stand before my face: & if thou wilt separate the precious thing from the vile, thou shalt be as my mouth: they shall be turned to thee, & (h) thou shalt not be turned to them.

(h) The people shall yield to the Prophet's admonition, not he to their perversity.

20 And I will give thee unto this people as a brazen wall, strong: and they shall fight against thee, and shall not prevail: because I am with thee to save thee, and to deliver thee, saith our Lord. 21 And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the most wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of strong.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XV.

1. If Moyses and Samuel shall stand before me.] [1] As before God revealed to this prophet Jeremy, that the people should assuredly be punished, and therefore prohibited him (ch. 7. v. 16. ch. 11. v. 14. & ch. 14. v. 11.) that he should not pray for them: so here he confirmeth the same determinate sentence of their punishment, saying: If Moyses and Samuel shall stand before me, my soul is not towards this people. That is, though not only Jeremy (a zealous holy prophet now living) but also Moyses and Samuel (departed from this world long before) shall pray for this people, yet they shall not escape the designed punishment, for their great sins. By necessary consequence of which confirmation, is also proved, that Moyses and Samuel, after their death, both could and did sometimes pray for the same people. [2] For otherwise the particular mention of these prophets, were not to the purpose, if they never did, nor could pray for them. And whereas the English gloss (in the Geneva Bible) supposeth God's meaning to be, that if there were any man living moved with so great zeal towards the people, as were these two, yet he would not grant this request, for as much as he had determined the contrary, it is evident that Jeremy, Ezechiel, Daniel, and some other prophets then living, had also great zeal, very like to the others, and therefore this text speaketh not of others like unto them; but as S. Jerome (in his commentaries, upon this place) S. Chrysostom (ho. 1. in 1. Thess. 1.) and S. Gregory (li. 9. Moral. c. 12.) understand it, of Moyses and Samuel themselves,

[1] No prayers of others do avail for obstinate & impenitent sinners.

[2] Saints after their death pray for men in this world.

[3] This text is understood of Moyses and Samuel themselves.

[3] being in assured happy state, where their former great zeal and charity were now greater, and more perfect than in this life.

CHAPTER XVI.

The prophet is forbid to marry, troublesome times not suffering the cares of family: 5. He must neither go to places of feasting, nor mourning, more dying than can be mourned or buried. 10. All which is for their idolatry. 15. But after captivity the people shall be released. 16. And both Jews and Gentiles converted to Christ.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 (a) Thou shalt not take a wife, and thou shalt not have sons and daughters in this place.

(a) Jeremy not only lived single in the times of tribulation, but also remained a virgin all his life. S. Ierome li. 1. adver. Iovinian. post medium.

3 Because thus saith our Lord concerning sons and daughters, that are begotten in this place, and concerning their mothers, which bear them: and concerning their fathers, of whose stock they were born in this land: 4 by the deaths of diseases they shall die: they shall not be mourned, and they shall not be buried, they shall be as a dunghill upon the face of the earth: they shall be consumed, both with sword, & famine: & their carcass shall be meat for the fowls of the air, and beasts of the earth. 5 For thus saith our Lord: Enter not into the house of feasting, neither go thou to mourn, nor comfort them: because I have taken away my peace from this people, saith our Lord, mercy and commiserations. 6 And great and little shall die in this land: they shall not be buried nor mourned, and they shall not cut themselves, neither shall baldness be made for them. 7 And they shall not break bread among them to him that mourneth to comfort him upon the dead: and they shall not give them drink of the cup to comfort them upon their father and mother. 8 And enter not into the house of feasting, to sit with them, and to eat and drink: 9 because thus saith our Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will take away out of this place in your eyes, & in your days the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride. 10 And when thou shalt tell this people all these words, and they shall say to thee: Wherefore hath our Lord spoken upon us all this great evil? What is our iniquity? And what is our sin, that we have sinned to the Lord our God? 11 Thou shalt say to them: Because your fathers have forsaken me, saith our Lord: and gone after strange gods, and served them, and adored them: and me they have forsaken, & my law they have not kept. 12 But (b) you also have wrought worse than your fathers: for behold every one walketh after the perversity of his evil heart, that he hear me not.

(b) After long expectation of amendment, & generation after generation adding more sins, at last cometh great punishment.

13 And I will cast you forth out of this land, into a land which you & your fathers knew not: & there you shall serve strange gods day & night, which shall not give you any rest. 14 (c) Therefore behold the days come, saith our Lord, and it shall be said no more: The Lord liveth, that brought forth the children of Israel out of the Land of Aegypt.

(c) But again after punishment God sheweth his mercy.

15 But, The Lord liveth, that brought the children of Israel out of the land of the North, and out of all the lands to the which I did cast them out: and I will bring them again into their land, which I gave to their fathers. 16 Behold I will send many (d) fishers saith our Lord, and they shall fish them: and after this I will send them many (e) hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every little hill, and out of the caves (f) of rocks.

(d) The Apostles. (e) Other Apostolical men. (f) Not only Christ is a rock, but he hath also given to his Apostle Peter to be called a rock, in whose judgements they that rest are rightly said to be translated from the rock. S. Iero. in hunc locum.

17 Because mine eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, and their iniquity hath not been hid from mine eyes. 18 And I will repay first their double iniquities, and their sins: because they have contaminated my land with the carcasses of their idols, and with their abominations they have filled mine inheritance. 19 O Lord my force, and my strength, and my refuge in the day of tribulation: to thee the Gentiles shall come from the ends of the earth, and shall say: In very deed our fathers have possessed lying, vanity which hath not profited them. 20 Why, (g) shall a man make gods unto himself, and they are not gods?

(g) To make men is the work of God, and therefore it is very absurd, that a man can make gods. S. Iero ibidem.

21 Therefore behold I will shew them at this time, I will shew them my hand, and my power: and they shall know that my name is the Lord.

CHAPTER XVII.

For obstinacy in sin the Jews shall be led captive. 5. He is cursed that trusteth in flesh: 7. and blessed that trusteth in God. 9. Only God searcheth the heart, giving to every one as they deserve. 11. The Prophet prayeth to be delivered from his enemies: 19. preacheth observation of the Law: 24. so they shall prosper, otherwise perish.

The sin of Juda is written with (a) iron pen in nail of Adamant, graven upon the breadth of their heart, and in the horns of their altars.

(a) These metaphorical terms signify that their sins were inveterated, & hard to be blotted out.

2 When their children shall remember their altars, and their groves, and their trees with green leaves in the high mountains, 3 sacrificing in the field: I will give thy strength, and all thy treasures into spoil, thine excelses for sin in all thy coasts. 4 And thou shalt be left alone of thine inheritance, which I gave thee: and I will make thee serve thine enemies in a land, which thou knowest not: because thou hast kindled a fire in my fury, it shall burn for ever. [1]

[1] Isa. 30.

5 Thus saith our Lord: Cursed be the man that trusteth (b) in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and his heart departeth from our Lord.

(b) Chief and principal trust must be in God's help, not in man's strength or policy.

6 For he shall be as little bushes in the desert, and shall not see when good shall come: but he shall dwell in dryness in the desert, in a land of saltness, and not habitable. 7 Blessed be the man, that trusteth in our Lord, [1] and our Lord shall be his confidence.

[1] Psal. 1.

8 And he shall be as a tree that is planted upon the waters, that spreadeth his roots towards moisture: and it shall not fear when the heat cometh. And the leaf thereof shall be green, and in the time of drought it shall not be careful, neither shall it cease at any time to bring forth fruit. 9 The heart of man is perverse, and unsearchable, who shall know it? 10 I^ the Lord (c) that search the heart, and prove the reins: [1] which give to every one according to his way, and according to the fruit of his inventions. [2]

(c) It is proper to God only by his own power to search the heart of man and to know his secret thoughts, which men nor Angels cannot naturally know, but holy Angels & glorified Saints do know the thoughts of men by light of glory, when mortal men pray unto them; & prophets know by light of prophecy, as Elizeus saw when Giezi took bribes; and by special inspiration, S. Peter knew the fraud of Ananias, & Saphira. Act. 5. [1] Psa. 7. v. 10. [2] Apoc. 2. v. 23.

11 The partridge hath nourished that which she brought not forth: he hath gathered riches, and not in judgement: in the midst of his days he shall leave them, and in his latter end he shall be a fool. 12 A throne of glory of height from the beginning, the place of our sanctification: 13 O Lord the expectation of Israel: all that forsake thee, shall be confounded: they that depart from thee, shall be written in the earth: because they have forsaken the vein of living waters our Lord. 14 Heal me o Lord, and I shall be healed:

save me, and I shall be saved: because thou art my praise. 15 Behold they say to me: Where is the word of our Lord? Let it come. 16 And I am not troubled, following thee the Pastor, & the day of man I have not desired, thou knowest. That which hath proceeded out of my lips, hath been right in thy sight. 17 Be not thou a terror unto me, thou art mine hope in the day of affliction. 18 Let them be confounded that persecute me, and let not me be confounded: let them be afraid, and let not me be afraid: bring upon them the day of affliction, and with double destruction destroy them. 19 Thus saith our Lord to me: Go, and stand in the gate of the children of the people, by which the kings of Juda come in, and go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem: 20 and thou shalt say to them: Hear the word of our Lord ye kings of Juda, and all Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, that enter in by these gates. 21 Thus saith our Lord: Take heed to your souls, and carry not burdens on (d) the Sabbath day: neither bring them in by the gates of Jerusalem.

(d) By the sabbath, as often elsewhere, is meant the observation of all the law.

22 And cast not forth burdens out of your houses on the Sabbath day, and all work you shall not do: sanctify the Sabbath day, as I commanded your fathers. 23 And they heard not, nor inclined their ear: but hardened their neck, that they would not hear me, and that they would not take discipline. 24 And it shall be: if you will hear me, saith our Lord, that you bring not burdens in by the gates of this city on the Sabbath day: and if you will sanctify the Sabbath day, that you do not all works therein: 25 (e) there shall enter in by the gates of this city kings and Princes, sitting upon the throne of David, and mounting on chariots and horses, they and their Princes, the men of Juda, and the inhabiters of Jerusalem: and this city shall be inhabited for ever.

(e) Such temporal rewards were commonly promised in the old testament, but in the new is promised life everlasting, & eternal glory.

26 And they shall come from the cities of Juda, and from round about Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from the champion countries, and from the mountains, and from the South, carrying holocaust, & victim, and sacrifice, & frankincense, & they shall bring in oblation into the house of our Lord. 27 But if you will not hear me, to sanctify the Sabbath day, and not to carry burden, and not to bring in by the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath day: I will kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it shall devour the houses of Jerusalem, and it shall not be quenched.

CHAPTER XVIII.

As clay in the hand of a potter, so is Israel in God's hand. 8. He pardoneth penitents, 10. and punisheth the obstinate. 18. They conspire against Jeremy, for which he denounceth miseries hanging over them.

The word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: 2 Arise and go down into the potter's house, and there thou shalt hear my words. 3 And I went down into the potter's house, and behold he made a work upon the wheel. 4 And the vessel was broken which he made of clay with his hands: and turning (a) he made it another vessel, as it pleased in his eyes to make it.

(a) A potter can make a new vessel of the same clay being misformed in casting, so it be yet fresh, & moist; but God can also reform man being hardened in heart, as if he made a new pot of an old one, broken into pieces or deformed.

5 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 6 Why, shall I not be able to do unto you, as this potter, o house of Israel? Behold, saith our Lord, as clay in the hand of the potter, so are you in my hand, o house of Israel. [1]

[1] Isa. 45. Rom. 9.

7 I will suddenly speak against nation, and against kingdom, to root out, and destroy, and waste it. 8 If that nation shall repent them of their evil, against whom I have spoken: I also will repent me of the evil, that I have thought to do to it. 9 And I will suddenly speak of nation and of kingdom, to build and plant it.

10 If it shall do evil in mine eyes, that it hear not my voice: I will repent me of the good that I have spoken to do unto it. 11 Now therefore tell the man of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I forge evil against you, and devise a device against you: let every man return from his evil way, and direct ye your ways and your studies.
12 Who said: We are desperate: for we will go after our cogitations, and we will do every one the perversity of his evil heart. 13 Therefore thus saith our Lord: Ask the Nations: Who hath heard such horrible things, as the virgin of Israel hath done exceedingly?
14 Why shall the snow of Libanus fail from the rock of the field? Or can the cold waters gushing forth and running down, be drawn out? 15 Because my people hath forgotten me, sacrificing in vain, and stumbling in their ways, in the paths of the world, that they might walk by them in a way not trodden: 16 that their land might be made into desolation, and into an everlasting hiss: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, & wag his head. 17 As the burning wind will I disperse them before the enemy: the back, and not the face will I shew them in the day of their perdition. 18 And they said: (b) Come, and let us find devices against Jeremy: for the law shall not perish from the Priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the Prophet: come, and let us strike him with the tongue, & let us not attend to all his words.

(b) Alluding to his own persecution the Prophet here speaketh expressly of Christ, as S. Ierome sheweth it verified, when the Jews crucified Christ, crying Crucify him, crucify him.

19 Attend o Lord unto me, and hear the voice of mine adversaries. 20 Why, is evil rendered for good, because they have digged a pit for my soul? Remember that I have stood in the sight, to speak good for them, and to return away their indignation from them.
21 Therefore give their children into famine, and lead them into the hands of the sword: let their wives be made without children, and widows: and let the husbands be killed by death: let their young men be pierced through with the sword in battle. 22 Let a cry be heard out of their houses, for thou shalt bring the robber upon them suddenly: because they have digged a pit to take me, and have hid snares for my feet.
23 But thou o Lord knowest all their counsel against me unto death: be not propitious to their iniquity, and let not their sin be clean put out from thy face: let them be made falling in thy sight, in the time of thy fury deal with them.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Prophet holding an earthen bottle in his hand, preacheth the destruction of Jerusalem, 4. for their idolatry: 10. and in sign thereof breaketh the bottle in pieces: 11. denouncing that God will so break the people that contemn his word.

Thus saith our Lord: Go, and (a) take a potter's earthen bottle of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the Priests:

(a) Words & actions together instruct both by the ears & eyes, and so move more effectually, as S. Ierom often noteth.

2 and go forth to the valley of the son of Ennom, which is by the entry of the earthen gate: and there thou shalt preach the words, that I will speak to thee.
3 And thou shalt say: Hear the word of our Lord ye kings of Juda, and inhabitants of Jerusalem: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold I will bring in affliction upon this place: so that every one that shall hear it, his ears shall tingle: 4 because they have forsaken me, and have made this place strange: and they have sacrificed therein to strange gods, whom they, and their fathers, and the king of Juda have not known: and they have filled this place with the blood of innocents. 5 And they have built the excelses of Baalim, to burn their children with fire for holocaust to Baalim: which I commanded not, nor have spoken of, neither have they ascended into my heart.
6 Therefore behold the days come, saith our Lord:

and this place shall no more be called, Topheth, and the valley of the son of Ennom, but the valley of slaughter. 7 And I will dissipate the counsel of Juda and Jerusalem in this place: and I will subvert them with the sword in the sight of their enemies, and in the hand of them that seek their lives: and I will give their carcasses to be meat for the fowls of the air, and for the beasts of the earth. 8 And I will make this city into astonishment, and into hissing: every one that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, & shall hiss upon all the plague thereof. 9 And I will feed them with the flesh of their sons, and with the flesh of their daughters: and every one shall eat the flesh of his friend in the siege, and in the distress, wherein their enemies shall include them, and they that seek their lives. 10 And thou shalt break the bottle in the sight of the men, that shall go with thee. 11 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: So will I break this people, and this city, as the potter's vessel is broken, that can (b) no more be repaired: and they shall be buried in Topheth, because there is no other place to bury in.

(b) That which is unpossible to men, is possible to God. Mat. 19. See Annot. ch. 18. v. 3.

12 So will I do to this place, saith our Lord, and to the inhabitants thereof: and I will make this city as Topheth. 13 And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Juda shall be as the place of Topheth, unclean: all houses, in the tops whereof they have sacrificed to all the host of heaven, and have offered libaments to strange gods. 14 And Jeremy came from Topheth, whither our Lord had sent him to prophesy, and he stood in the court of the house of our Lord, and said to all the people: 15 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold I will bring in upon this city, and upon all the cities thereof all the evils that I have spoken against it: because they have hardened their neck, that they would not hear my words.

CHAPTER XX.

Phassur a Priest beateth the Prophet, and putteth him in the stocks. He still prophesieth their captivity in Babylon. 7. Lamenteth that he and his preaching is derided: 11. confideth in God: 14. and uttereth his afflicted mind.

And Phassur the son of Emmer Priest, who was appointed Prince in the house of our Lord, heard Jeremy prophesying these words. 2 And Phassur struck Jeremy the Prophet, and put him into the stocks, that was in the upper gate of Benjamin, in the house of our Lord. 3 And when it was light on the morrow, Phassur brought forth Jeremy out of the stocks. And Jeremy said to him: Our Lord hath called thy name not (a) Phassur, but fear on every side.

(a) Phassur signifieth multiplying principality, but his name was changed into Fear on every side, to signify that he should be terrified by many enemies.

4 Because thus saith our Lord: Behold I will give thee into fear, thee and all thy friends: and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and thine eyes shall see, and I will give all Juda into the hand of the king of Babylon: and he shall transport them into Babylon, and shall strike them with the sword. 5 And I will give all the substance of this city, & all the labour thereof, and all the price, and all the treasures of the kings of Juda will I give into the hand of their enemies: and they shall spoil them, and take them away, and carry them into Babylon. 6 But thou Phassur, and all the inhabiters of thy house shall go into captivity, and thou shalt come into Babylon, and there thou shalt die, and there shalt be buried, thou and all thy friends, to whom thou hast prophesied a lie. 7 Thou hast seduced me, o Lord, and I am seduced: thou wast stronger than I, and hast prevailed: I am made a derision all the day, all do scorn me. 8 Because now long ago I speak, crying out iniquity, and I often proclaim wasting: and the word of our Lord is made a reproach to me, and a derision all the day. 9 And I said: I will not remember him, nor speak any more in his name: and there was made in my heart as a fire boiling, and shut up in my bones: and I fainted, not sustaining to bear it. 10 For I heard the contumelies of many, and terror on every side: persecute ye, and let us persecute him: of all the men, that were my peaceables, and guarding my side: if by any means he may be deceived, and we prevail against him, and be revenged on him. 11 But our Lord is with me as a strong warrior: therefore they that persecute me shall fall, and shall be weak: they shall be confounded exceedingly, because they have not understood the everlasting reproach, which never shall be clean put away. 12 And thou Lord of hosts, prover of the just, which seest the reins and the heart: let me see I beseech thee thy revenge of them: for to thee I have revealed my cause. 13 Sing ye to our Lord, praise our Lord: because he hath delivered the soul of the poor out of the hand of the wicked. 14 (b) Cursed be the day, wherein I was born: the day in which my mother bare me, be it not blessed.[1]

(b) As Job (saith S. Ierom) so this holy Prophet in hyperbolical words sheweth his afflicted mind, signifying that which our Saviour also affirmeth (Mat. 26.) It were better not to be, than to be in misery; and as Jacob having lived in much travail & affliction, calleth his days few and evil (Gen. 47.) Amos also (c. 5.) saith: The day of our Lord (afflicting) is darkness, not light. Likewise S. Paul calleth this world wicked (Gal. 1.) and the days evil. Ephes. 5.[1] Iob. 3.

15 Cursed be the man that told my father, saying: There is a man child born to thee: and as it were with joy he rejoiced him. 16 Let that man be as the cities are, which our Lord hath subverted, and it hath not repented him: let him hear crying in the morning, and howling at noon time. 17 Who slew me not from the womb, that my mother might be made my grave, and her womb an everlasting conception. 18 Why came I out of the womb, that I should see labour and sorrow, and my days should be spent in confusion?

CHAPTER XXI.

The Prophet answereth the King's messengers, that Jerusalem shall be punished with plague, sword, famine, and captivity. 9. Those shall escape best that yield themselves captives: 11. exhorteth to correct their lives, lest all be utterly destroyed.[1]

[1] The 3. part.
Comminations to Jerusalem, especially to the King, evil Priests, & false Prophets: for which Jeremy is again persecuted.

The word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord (a) when king Sedecias sent Phassur the son of Melchias unto him, and Sophonias the son of Maasias Priest, saying:

(a) This revelation was made to Jeremy & uttered by him long after those, which are in the former chapters: yea & after some of those which are recorded in the chapters following. For he speaketh here of the time when Nabuchodonosor invaded the country.

2 Ask our Lord for us, because Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon maketh battle against us: if perhaps our Lord shall do with us according to all his marvelous works, and he may retire back from us. 3 And Jeremy said to them: Thus shall you say to Sedecias: 4 Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Behold I will convert the weapons of war which are in your hands, and wherewith you fight against the king of Babylon, & the Chaldees, that besiege you round about the walls: & I will gather them together in the midst of this city. 5 And I will vanquish you in stretched out hand, and in a strong arm, and in fury, and in indignation, and in great wrath. 6 And will strike the inhabitants of this city, men and beasts shall die with a great pestilence. 7 And after this saith our Lord: I will give Sedecias the king of Juda, and his servants, & his people, & they that are left in his city from the pestilence, and the sword, and famine, into the hand of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life, and he will strike them in the edge of the sword, and he will not be moved, nor spare, nor have mercy. 8 And to this people thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord: Behold (b) I give before you the way of life, and the way of death.[1]

(b) God's grace is ever ready that sinners may convert if they will. [1] Duet. 7. 11. 30.

9 He that shall dwell within this city, shall die with the sword, and with famine, and pestilence: but he that shall go forth, and fly to the Chaldees that besiege you, shall live, and his life shall be to him as a spoil. 10 For I have set my face upon this city to evil, & not to good, saith our Lord: it shall be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, & he shall burn it with fire. 11 And to the house of the king of Juda: Hear ye the word of our Lord, 12 o house of David, thus saith our Lord: Judge ye judgement in the morning, & deliver the oppressed by violence out of the hand of the oppressor: lest perhaps mine indignation go forth as fire, & be kindled, & there be none to quench it, because of the malice of your studies. 13 Behold, I to thee inhabitress of the firm & champion valley saith our Lord: which say. Who shall strike us: & who shall enter into our houses? 14 And I will visit upon you according to the fruit of your studies, saith our Lord: and I will kindle a fire in the forest thereof: and it shall devour all things round about it.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Prophet going to the palace admonisheth the King and his officers to judge and govern rightly: 5. threatening that otherwise they shall fall into calamity: 10. prophesieth that Sellum shall not return into Jerusalem: 13. reprehendeth unjust builders; 18. that Joakim shall die and be buried ignominiously: 24. and Jechonias with his mother shall die in the captivity of Babylon.

Thus saith our Lord: (a) Go down into the house of the king of Juda, and there thou shalt speak this word,

(a) This was prophesied before that which is written in the chapter precedent; for the Prophets do not observe the order of history.

2 and shalt say: Hear the word of our Lord, o king of Juda, which sittest upon the throne of David: thou & thy servants, and thy people, which enter in by these gates. 3 Thus saith our Lord: Do ye judgement & justice, & deliver the oppressed by violence out of the hand of the oppressor: and the stranger, and pupil, and widow make not sorrowful, nor oppress them unjustly: and the innocent blood^ shed not in this place. 4 For if doing you will do this thing, there shall enter in by the gates of this house, kings of the stock of David sitting upon his throne, and mounting upon chariots and horses, they and their servants, and their people. 5 But if you will not hear these words: by myself I have sworn, saith our Lord, that this house shall be into desolation. 6 Because thus saith our Lord upon the house of the king of Juda: (b) Galaad thou art unto me the head of (c) Libanus: if I make thee not a wilderness, cities not habitable.

(b) By Galaad he signifieth the King's palace. (c) By Libanus Jerusalem.

7 And I will (d) sanctify upon thee a killing man and his weapons: and they shall cut down thy chosen cedars, and shall cast them headlong into the fire.

(d) By sanctify segregate, separate, or design to this office.

8 And many nations shall pass by this city: and every one shall say to his neighbour: Why hath the Lord done so to this great city? [1]

[1] Deu. 29.
3. Reg. 9.

9 And they shall answer: Because they have forsaken the covenant of the Lord their God, and have adored strange gods, and served them. 10 Weep not for the dead, neither mourn ye upon him with weeping: Lament him that goeth forth, because he shall return no more, nor see the land of his nativity. 11 Because thus saith our lord to (e) Sellum the son of Josias the king of Juda, who (f) hath reigned for Josias his father, who is gone forth out of this place. He shall return hither no more:

(e) The fourth son of Iosias. 1. Par. 3. v. 15. (f) To whom (as is probable) Nabuchodonosor gave the title of king, after the death of Sedecias.

12 but in the place, to which I have transported him, there shall he die, and he shall not see this land any more. 13 Woe to him that buildeth his house in injustice, and his chambers not in judgement: his friend he will oppress without cause, and his hire he will not render him. 14 Who saith: I will build me a broad house, and large chambers; who openeth to himself windows, and maketh embowed ceilings of cedar, and painteth them with ruddle. 15 Why, shalt thou reign, because thou comparest thyself to the cedar? Why, did not thy father eat and drink, & do judgement & justice then when it was well with him? 16 He judged the cause of the poor & needy to his own good, did he it not therefore because he knew me, saith our Lord? 17 But thine eyes and heart are to avarice, and to shed innocent blood, and to crafty oppression, & to the course of evil work. 18 Therefore thus saith our Lord to Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda: They shall not mourn for him, Alas brother, & alas sister: they shall not cry together to him, Alas Lord, and alas o noble one. 19 With the burial of an ass shall he be buried, rotted and cast forth without the gates of Jerusalem. 20 Go up to Libanus and cry: and in Basan give thy voice, & cry to them that pass by, because all thy lovers are destroyed. 21 I spake to thee in thine aboundance: & thou saidst: I will not hear: This is thy way from thy youth, because thou heardest not my voice. 22 The wind shall feed all thy Pastors, & thy lovers shall go into captivity: & then shalt thou be confounded, and ashamed of all thy malice. 23 Thou that sittest in Libanus, and makest thy nest in the cedars, how hast thou mourned together when sorrows came to thee, as the sorrows of a woman in travail? 24 I live, saith our Lord: that if (g) Jechonias the son of Joakim the king of Juda shall be a ring on my right hand, thence will I pluck him off.

(g) Otherwise called Ioachin the son of Ioakim. 4. Reg. 24. v. 6.

25 And I will give thee into the hand of them that seek thy life, and into the hand of them, whose face thou fearest, and into the hand of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and into the hand of the Chaldees. 26 And I will send thee, and thy mother that bare thee, into a strange country, in the which you were not born, & there you shall die: 27 and into the land, whereto they lift up their mind to return thither: they shall not return. 28 Why, is this man Jechonias an earthen and broken vessel? Is he a vessel without all pleasure? Why are they cast away, he and his seed are cast forth into a land which they know not? 29 Earth, earth, earth, hear the word of our Lord. 30 Thus saith our Lord: Write this man barren, a man that in his days shall not prosper: for neither shall there be a man of his seed, that shall sit upon the throne of David, and have power any more in Juda. (h)

(h) This Ioachin (or Jechonias) was restored to good estate, 4. Reg. 25. v. 27. but not to the dignity or power of a king, neither Salathiel, Zorobabel, or others of his posterity till Christ.

CHAPTER XXIII.

God reproveth the evil governers, promising to reduce the relics of the people from dispersion; 4. to send good pastors; and Christ the chief Pastor. 9. False prophets are threatened: 16. The people warned, not to hear them, preaching without mission, 27. against God's will, 33. and calling God's word a burden.

Woe to the Pastors, that destroy and tear the flock of my pasture, saith our Lord. [1]

[1] Ezech. 13. & 34.

2 Therefore thus saith our Lord the God of Israel to the Pastors, that feed my people: You have scattered my flock, and cast them out, & have not visited them: Behold I will visit upon you the malice of your studies, saith our Lord. 3 And I will gather together the remnant of my flock out of all lands, into which I shall have cast them out: and I will make them return to their fields, and they shall increase and be multiplied. 4 And I will raise up Pastors over them, and they shall feed them: they shall fear no more, and they shall not dread: and none shall be to seek of the number, saith our Lord. 5 Behold the days come, saith our Lord: and I will raise up to David (a) a just branch: and he shall reign a king, and shall be wise: and he shall do judgement and justice in the earth. [1]

(a) Christ who is just of himself, who maketh others just, and without whom no man can be just. [1] Isa. 4. 40. 45.

6 In those days shall Juda be saved, and Israel shall dwell confidently: and this is the name that they shall call him: The Lord our just one. [1]

[1] Ezec. 34. Dan. 9. Ioa. 1. v. 45.

7 For this cause behold the days come, saith our Lord, and they shall say no more: Our Lord liveth, that brought forth the children of Israel out of the Land of Aegypt: [1]

[1] Deut. 33.

8 but: Our Lord liveth, that hath brought forth, and brought hither the seed of the house of Israel from the Land of the North, and out of all the lands, to which I had cast them out: and they shall dwell in their own land. 9 To the Prophets: My heart is broken in the midst of me, all my bones have trembled: I am become as a drunken man, and as a man wet with wine, at the presence of our Lord, and at the presence of his holy words. 10 Because the land is replenished with adulterers, because the land hath mourned by reason of malediction, the fields of the desert are withered: and their course is become evil, and their strength unlike. 11 For the Prophet and the Priest are polluted: and in my house I have found their evil, saith our Lord. 12 Therefore their way shall be as slipper ground in the dark: for they shall be driven forth, and fall therein: for I will bring evils upon them, the year of their visitation, saith our Lord. 13 And in the Prophets of Samaria I have seen foolishness: They Prophesied in Baal, and deceived my people Israel. 14 And in the Prophets of Jerusalem I saw the similitude of adulterers, and the way of lying: and they strengthened the hands of the most wicked, that no man would return from his malice: they are all become unto me as Sodoma, and the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrha. 15 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts to the Prophets: Behold I will feed them with wormwood, and will give them gall to drink, for from the Prophets of Jerusalem is pollution gone forth upon all the land. 16 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Hear not the words of the Prophets, that prophesy unto you, and deceive you: they speak the vision (b) of their own heart, not from the mouth of the Lord.

(b) To trust their own judgement, not believing the definitions of the Church, & relying every one upon his private spirit is a manifest note of heretics, false-prophets or Apostates.

17 They say to them that blaspheme me: Our Lord hath spoken: Peace shall be to you, and to every one that walketh in the perversity of his own heart, they have said: There shall no evil come upon you. 18 For who hath been present in the counsel of our Lord, and hath seen and heard his word? Who hath considered his word, & heard it? 19 Behold the whirlwind of the Lord's indignation shall come forth, and a tempest breaking out: it shall come upon the head of the impious. 20 The fury of the Lord shall not return till he do it, and until he accomplish the cogitation of his heart: in the later days you shall understand his counsel. 21 I (c) sent not the Prophets, and they ran: I spake not to them, and they Prophesied.

(c) Mission of Pastors & Prophets was always so necessary in God's Church, that whosoever cometh without right mission is a false prophet, a wolf & not a pastor.

22 If they had stood in my counsel, and made my words known to my people, I had verily turned them from their evil way, and from their most wicked cogitations. 23 Am I God near hand thinkest thou, saith our Lord? And not God far off? 24 Shall a man be hid in secrets: and shall not I see him, saith our Lord? Why, do not I fill heaven and earth, saith our Lord? 25 I have heard what the Prophets have said, prophesying in my name lies, and saying: I have dreamed, I have dreamed. 26 How long is this in the heart of the Prophets prophesying lies, and prophesying the seductions of their own heart? 27 Who will make my people to forget my name through their dreams, which every one telleth to his neighbour: as their fathers forgot my name for Baal. 28 The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell the dream: & he that hath my word, let him speak my word truly: what hath the chaff to do with the wheat, saith our Lord? 29 Why, are not my words as fire, saith our Lord: and as a hammer breaking a rock? 30 Therefore behold I to the Prophets, saith our Lord: which steal my words every one from his neighbour. 31 Behold I to the Prophets, saith our Lord: which take their tongues, & say: Our Lord saith it. 32 Behold, I to the Prophets dreaming lies, saith our Lord: which have told those things, & have seduced my people in their lying, & in their (d) miracles: When I had not sent them, nor commanded them, who have not profited this people, saith our Lord.

(d) False Prophets may do false miracles, that is, strange things to deceive others: but cannot work true miracles. Because therefore it is hard for vulgar people to judge which are false miracles, the former note of right mission is a more secure mark to know true & false prophets.

33 If therefore this people, or the Prophet, or the Priest shall ask thee, saying: What is the burden of our Lord? Thou shalt say to them: We are the burden. for I will cast you forth, saith our Lord. 34 And the Prophet, and the Priest, and the people that saith: The burden of our Lord^ will I visit upon that man, and upon his house. 35 Thus shall you say every one to his brother, & neighbour: What hath our Lord answered? And what hath our Lord spoken? 36 And the burden of our Lord shall no more be mentioned: because every man's burden shall be his own word: & you have perverted the words of the living God, the Lord of hosts our God. 37 Thus shalt thou say to the Prophet: What hath our Lord answered thee? And what hath our Lord spoken? 38 But if thou shalt say the burden of our Lord: for this, thus saith our Lord: Because you have said this word: The burden of our Lord: and I have sent to you, saying: Say not: The burden of our Lord: 39 Therefore behold I will take you away carrying you, and will forsake you, and the city which I have given to you, and to your fathers, from before my face. 40 And I will give you into everlasting reproach, and into eternal ignominy, which shall never be put away by oblivion.

CHAPTER XXIV.

By a parable of good and evil figs, is signified, 5. the reduction of the penitent from captivity: 8. and the vexation of those, that stayed in Jerusalem, or fled into Aegypt.

Our Lord shewed me: & behold two baskets full of figs, set before the temple of our Lord: after that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon transported Jechonias the son of Joakim the king of Juda, and his Princes, and the craftsman, & incloser of Jerusalem, and had brought them into Babylon. 2 One basket had very good figs: as the figs of the prime time are wont to be: and one basket had very naughty figs, which could not be eaten, because they were naught. 3 And our Lord said to me: What seest thou Jeremy? And I said: Figs: the good figs, (a) exceeding good, and the naughty figs, exceeding naught: which cannot be eaten because they are naught.

(a) Literally he prophesieth that king Jechonias, and others carried in the first transmigration into Babylon should be released; and king Sedecias with his children & followers should perish: but mystically he prophesieth that the good shall prosper & be highly rewarded, & the wicked shall be miserable and most severely punished.

4 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 5 Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: As are these good figs: so will I know the transmigration of Juda, which I have sent forth out of this place into the land of Chaldees, unto good. 6 And I will set mine eyes upon them to be pacified, and I will bring them again into this land: and I will build them, and not destroy: and I will plant them and not pluck them up. 7 And I will give them an heart to know me, that I am the Lord: and they shall be my people, & I will be their God: because they shall return to me in all their heart. 8 And as are the very naughty figs, that cannot be eaten, because they are naught: thus saith our Lord, so will I give Sedecias the king of Juda: and his Princes, and the rest of Jerusalem, that have remained in this city, and that dwell in the Land of Aegypt. 9 And I will give them into vexation, and affliction, to all the kingdoms of the earth: into reproach, and to be a parable, and into a proverb, and into malediction in all places, to which I have cast them out. 10 And I will send among them the sword, famine, and pestilence: till they be consumed out of the land, which I gave them, and their fathers.

CHAPTER XXV.

After the people's contemning to hear Jeremy, and other Prophets, preaching three & twenty years, 8. he denounceth their assured captivity seventy years in Babylon: 12. and then the ruin of their enemies. 15. All which wrath of God, Jeremy foresheweth to the Jews, 19. and Gentiles. 29. Which shall first happen to God's proper people: 36. and so extend to all nations: 34. the principal governers bewailing their common misery.

The word that was made to Jeremy concerning all the people of Juda in (a) the fourth year of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda (the same is the first year of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon.)

(a) As is noted before (ch. 21.) these Prophesies are not written in order of the time when they were uttered. For this vision pertaineth to Ioakim, who was father to Jechonias, and elder brother to Sedecias, of whom the former chapters make mention.

2 Which Jeremy the Prophet spake to all the people of Juda, and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying: 3 From the thirteenth year of Josias, the son of Amon king of Juda until this day; this is the three and twentieth year, the word of our Lord was made to me, and I have spoken to you rising in the night and speaking, and you have not heard. 4 And our Lord hath sent all his servants the Prophets, rising early, and sending, and you have not heard, nor inclined your ears to hear 5 when he said: [1] Return ye every one from his evil way, and from your most wicked cogitations: and you shall dwell in the land, which our Lord hath given you, and your fathers from everlasting and for evermore.

6 And go ye not after strange gods to serve them, and adore them: nor provoke me to wrath in the works of your hands, and I will not afflict you. 7 And you have not heard me, saith our Lord, so that you provoked me to anger in the works of your hands, to your evil. 8 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: For that you have not heard my words: 9 behold I will send, & take all the kindreds of the North, saith our Lord, & Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon (b) my servant: & I will bring them upon this land, & upon the inhabitants thereof, & upon all the nations that are round about it: and I will kill them & make them into astonishment & hissing, and into everlasting desolations.

(b) This wicked King is called God's servant, in that he was his instrument or minister to punish other sinners.

10 And I will destroy out of them the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the noise of the mill, and the light of the lamp. 11 And all this land shall be in desolation, and into astonishment: and all these nations shall serve the king of Babylon (c) seventy years. [1]

(c) These seventy years began in the eleventh year of Sedecias. [1] Dan. 9.
1. Esd. 1.
3. Esd. 1.

12 And when the seventy years shall be expired, I will visit upon the king of Babylon, & upon the nation, saith our Lord, their iniquity, and upon the land of Chaldees: and I will make it into everlasting desolations. 13 And I will bring upon that land all my words that I have spoken against it, all that is written in this Book, whatsoever Jeremy hath prophesied against all nations: 14 because they have served them, whereas they were many nations, and great kings: and I will repay them according to their works, and according to the deeds of their hands. 15 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Take (d) the cup of wine of this fury at my hand: & thou shalt drink thereof to all nations, unto the which I shall send thee.

(d) This metaphor of a cup signifieth that God's wrath is poured out to punish sinners. As Ps. 74. v. 9. Isa. 51. v. 17.

16 And they shall drink, & be troubled, and be mad at the face of the sword, which I shall send among them.
17 And I took the cup at the hand of our Lord, and I drank to all the nations, to which our Lord sent me:
18 to Jerusalem, and the cities of Juda, and to the kings thereof, and Princes thereof: that I would give them into desolation, and into astonishment, and into hissing, and into malediction, as is this day. 19 To Pharao the king of Aegypt, and to his servants, and his Princes, and all his people, 20 and to all generally: to all the kings of the land of Ausitis, and to all the kings of the land of the Philisthiims, and of Ascalon, and of Gaza, & of Accaron, & to the remnant of Azotus, 21 & of Idumea, and of Moab, and to the children of Ammon. 22 And to all the kings of Tyre, and to all the kings of Sidon: and to the kings of the land of the isles, who are beyond the Sea. 23 And to Dedan, and Thema, and Buz, and to all (e) that have their hair polled.

(e) The Ismaelites, & Agarenes (otherwise called Sarazens) polled their hair to the ears, & left the lowest part long; as now the Polonians & Hungarians use to be polled.

24 And to all the kings of Arabia, and to all the kings of the West, that dwell in the desert. 25 And to all the kings of Zambri, and to all the kings of Elam, and to all the kings of the Medes: 26 also to all the kings of the North from near and from a far off: to every one against his brother: and to all the kingdoms of the earth, which are upon the face thereof: and the king of Sesac shall drink after them. 27 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Drink ye, and be drunken, and vomit: and fall, and rise not, at the face of the sword, which I shall send among you. 28 And when they shall not take the cup of thy hand to drink, thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Drinking you shall drink: 29 because lo in the city, [1] wherein my name is invocated, will I begin to afflict, and shall you be as innocent and scape free? You shall not scape free: for I call the sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the Lord of hosts.

[1] 1. Pet. 4.

30 And thou shalt prophesy unto them all these words, and shalt say to them: [1] Our Lord from on high shall roar, and from his holy habitation shall give his voice: roaring he shall roar upon his beauty: the cry as it were of them that (f) tread grapes shall be sung against all the inhabitants of the earth.

[1] Ioel. 3. Amos 1. (f) As those that labour in the vine press sing to encourage each other, so in affliction it will be necessary to do the like.

31 The sound is come even to the ends of the earth: because there is judgement to our Lord with the Nations: he entereth judgement with all flesh, the impious I have delivered to the sword, saith our Lord.
32 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold, affliction shall go forth from nation to nation: and a great whirlwind shall go forth from the ends of the earth.
33 And the slain of our Lord shall be in that day from the one end of the earth even to the other end thereof: they shall not be mourned & they shall not be gathered up, nor buried: as a dunghill shall they lie upon the face of the earth. 34 Howl ye pastors, and cry: and sprinkle yourselves with ashes ye leaders of the flock: because your days are accomplished to be slain: and your dissipations, and you shall fall as precious vessels. 35 And flight shall fail from the Pastors, and salvation from the principals of the flock. 36 A voice of the cry of the Pastors, and an howling of the Principals of the flock: because our Lord hath wasted their pastures. 37 And the fields of peace have been silent at the presence of the wrath of the fury of our Lord. 38 He hath as a lion forsaken his covert, because their land is made into desolation at the presence of the wrath of (g) the dove, and at the presence of the wrath of the fury of our Lord.

(g) Though God of his nature is most meek like to a dove, yet provoked by sin he poureth out wrath.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Prophet for preaching God's commination, is apprehended by the Priests, and false Prophets: 10. but delivered from death by the ancients of the people: 18. alleging the examples of Michaeas, 20. and Urias prophesying the same before.

In the beginning of the kingdom of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda, came this word from our Lord, saying: 2 Thus saith our Lord: Stand in the court of the house of our Lord, and thou shalt speak to all the [1]cities of Juda, out of the which they come, to adore in the house of our Lord, all the words which I have commanded thee to speak unto them: withdraw not a word,

[1] * Men of the cities.

3 (a)If perhaps they will hear and be converted every one from his evil way: and it may repent me of the evil that I think to do to them for the malice of their studies.

(a) God's comminations are conditional, if the people persist in sin, they shall be punished, as is threatened, but if they repent the punishment shall be mitigated.

4 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord: If you will not hear me to walk in my law, which I have given you, 5 that you hear the words of my servants the Prophets, which I sent to you in the night rising, and directing, and you heard not: 6 [1]I will give this house as Silo, and this city I will give into malediction to all the nations of the earth.

7 And the Priests, and Prophets, and all the people heard Jeremy speaking these words in the house of our Lord. 8 And when Jeremy had ended speaking all things that our Lord had commanded him, to speak unto all the people: the Priests, and Prophets, and (b)all the people apprehended him, saying: Let him die the death.

(b) It is a most common phrase of holy Scripture to say, all, for most part.

9 Why hath he prophesied in the name of our Lord, saying: This house shall be as Silo: and this city shall be made desolate, for that there is no inhabitant? And all the people was gathered together against Jeremy in the house of our Lord. 10 And the Princes of Juda heard these words: & they went up from the king's house into the house of our Lord, & sat in the entry of the new gate of the house of our Lord. 11 And the Priests and the Prophets spake to the Princes, and to all the people, saying: The judgement of death is to this man: because he hath prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your ears. 12 And Jeremy spake to all the Princes, & to all the people, saying: Our Lord sent me, that I should prophesy to this house, and to this city all the words that you have heard.[1]

[1] Ch. 25. 2. Par. 36. 1. Esd. 1. 3. Esd. 1.

13 Now therefore make your ways good, and your studies, and hear the voice of our Lord your God: and our Lord will repent him of the evil, that he hath spoken against you. 14 But I lo am in your hands: do unto me that which is good, and right in your eyes: 15 Howbeit know ye and understand, that if you kill me, you shall betray innocent blood against yourselves, and against this city, & the inhabitants thereof. For in truth our Lord sent me to you, that I should speak all these words in your ears. 16 And the Princes, and (c)all the people said to the Priests, and to the Prophets: There is no judgement of death to this man: because he hath spoken to us in the name of the Lord our God.

(c) Common people do easily change their judgement, sometimes to the better, as here to save the Prophet's life, sometimes to worse, as when they had received our Saviour with joy on Palm-Sunday, within few days after they cried: Crucify him.

17 Men therefore of the ancients of the land rose up, & they spake to all the assembly of the people, saying: 18 Michaeas the Morasthi was a Prophet in the days of Ezechias the king of Juda, and he spake to all the people Juda, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: [1]Sion shall be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall be as an heap of stones: and the mount of the house as the high places of woods.

[1] Mich. 3.

19 Did Ezechias the king of Juda, and all Juda, condemn him to death? Did they not fear our Lord, and beseech the face of our Lord: and it repented our Lord of the evil, that he had spoken against them? Therefore we do great evil against ourselves. 20 There was also a man prophesying in the name of our Lord, Urias the son of Semei of Cariathiarim: and he prophesied against this city, & against this land, according to all the words of Jeremy. 21 And king Joakim, and all his mighties, and his Princes heard these words: & the king sought to kill him. And Urias heard, and was afraid, & fled & went into Aegypt. 22 And king Joakim sent men into Aegypt, Elnathan the son of Achobor, and men with him into Aegypt. 23 And they brought Urias out of Aegypt: and brought him to king Joakim, & he struck him with the sword: and he cast forth his carcass in the sepulchres of the base vulgar people. 24 Therefore the hand of Ahicam the son of Saphan was with Jeremy, that he should not be delivered into the hands of the people, and they kill him.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Jeremy putteth chains about his own neck, and then sendeth them to sundry Kings, admonishing them, that they must either be subject to the King of Babylon, 8. or perish by sword, famine, and pestilence. 14. Inveigheth against false Prophets preaching the contrary: 16. and falsely affirming that the vessels already taken away shall quickly be restored: 18. whereas indeed the rest shall also be carried away, but all at last restored.

In the beginning of the kingdom of Joakim, the son of Josias king of Juda, was this word made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: 2 Thus saith our Lord to me: Make thee (a) bands, and chains: and thou shalt put them on thy neck.

(a) Bands and chains are apt signs of captivity, because they are the very instruments wherewith captives are bond.

3 And thou shalt send them to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the children of Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon: by the hand of the messengers, that are come to Jerusalem to Sedecias the king of Juda. 4 And thou shalt command them that they speak to their lords: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Thus shall you say to your lords: 5 I made the earth, and men, and the beasts, that are upon the face of the earth, in my great strength, and in my stretched out arm: and I have given it to him, that pleased in mine eyes. 6 And now therefore I have given all these lands into the hand of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon (b) my servant: moreover also the beasts of the field I have given him, to serve him.

(b) Hangmen, or executioners, are God's instruments, & his servants in punishing the wicked.

7 And all nations shall serve him, and his son, and his son's son: till the time come of his land and of himself: and many nations and great kings shall serve him. 8 But the nation and kingdom that shall not serve Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and whosoever shall not bow his neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon: I will visit upon that nation with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence, saith our Lord: till I consume them in his hand. 9 You therefore hear not your Prophets, and diviners, and dreamers, and soothsayers, and sorcerers, that say to you: You shall not serve the king of Babylon. 10 Because they prophesy lies unto you: that they may make you far from your country, & cast you out, and you perish. [1]

[1] Ch. 23. & 29.

11 But the nation, that shall submit their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and shall serve him, the same will I let alone in their own land, saith our Lord: and they shall husband it, and dwell in it. 12 And to Sedecias the king of Juda, I have spoken according to all these words, saying: Submit your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him, and his people, and you shall live. 13 Why will you die, thou and thy people with the sword, and famine, & the pestilence, as the Lord hath spoken to the nation, that will not serve the king of Babylon? 14 Hear not the words of the Prophets that say to you: You shall not serve the king of Babylon: because they speak a lie to you. 15 [1]Because I sent them not, saith our Lord: & they prophesy in my name falsely: that they may cast you out, & you perish, as well you, as the Prophets that prophesy unto you.

[1] Ch. 14.

16 And to the Priests, and to this people I have spoken, saying: Thus saith our Lord. Hear not the words of your Prophets, that prophesy to you, saying: Behold the vessels of our Lord shall return out of Babylon even now quickly, for they prophesy a lie unto you. 17 Therefore hear them not, but serve the king of Babylon, that you may live. Why is this city given into desolation? 18 And (c) if they be Prophets, and the word of our Lord be in them: let them interpose themselves before the Lord of hosts, that the vessels which were left in the house of our Lord, & in the house of the king of Juda, and in Jerusalem, come not into Babylon.

(c) It is so false that the treasures carried away shall quickly be restored, that indeed more shall be carried away before the former be recovered.

19 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts to the pillars, and to the sea, and to the feet, and to the rest of the vessels, that are remaining in this city.[1]

[1] 4. Reg. 25.

20 Which Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, took not when he transported Jechonias the son of Joakim, the king of Juda, from Jerusalem into Babylon, and all the great men of Juda and Jerusalem.[1]

[1] 4. Reg. 24.

21 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel to the vessels, that are left in the house of our Lord, and in the house of the king of Juda and Jerusalem: 22 They shall be transported into Babylon, and there they shall be until the day of their visitation, saith our Lord: and I will cause them to be brought, and to be restored in this place.[1]

[1] 4. Reg. 25.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Hananias a false Prophet avoucheth that within two years the holy vessels and King Jechonias with other captives shall be restored. 5. Jeremy prayeth that it may be so: 7. but prophesieth that it will not so be. 10. The false prophet in confirmation of that he saith, breaketh Jeremy's chain. 12. But Jeremy again prophesieth the contrary. 16. & that Hananias shall die the same year.

And it came to pass in that year, in the beginning of the kingdom of Sedecias king of Juda, in the (a) fourth year, in the fifth month, Hananias the son of Azur the Prophet of Gabaon spake to me, in the house of our Lord before the Priests, and all the people, saying:

(a) Sedecias reigning eleven years, the fourth year of his reign may well be called in the beginning of his reign.

2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. 3 As yet two years of days, and I will make all the vessels of the house of our Lord to be brought back into this place, which Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon took out of this place, and transported them into Babylon. 4 And Jechonias the son of Joakim the king of Juda, and all the transmigration of Juda, that are entered into Babylon, I will make to return to this place, saith our Lord: for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon. 5 And Jeremy the Prophet said to Hananias the Prophet in the presence of the Priests, and in the presence of all the people, that stood in the house of our Lord: 6 And Jeremy the Prophet said: (b) Amen, Our Lord so do: our Lord raise up thy words, which thou hast prophesied: that the vessels may be brought again into the house of our Lord, and all the transmigration out of Babylon to this place.

(b) The prophet hearing a good thing falsely avouched wisheth it might be so, but lest others be deceived, warneth the people not to believe it, because it is false and shall not happen as the false prophet affirmeth.

7 But yet hear this word, that I speak in thine ears, and in the ears of all the people: 8 The Prophets, that have been before me, and before thee from the beginning, and have prophesied concerning many countries, and concerning great kingdoms of war, and of affliction, and of famine. 9 The Prophet, that hath prophesied peace: when his word shall come to pass, the Prophet shall be known, whom our Lord hath sent in truth. 10 And Hananias the Prophet took the chain from the neck of Jeremy the Prophet and brake it. 11 And Hananias spake in the sight of all the people, saying: Thus saith our Lord: So will I break the yoke of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon after two years of days, from the neck of all nations. 12 And Jeremy the Prophet went his way. And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, after that Hananias the Prophet brake the chain from the neck of Jeremy the Prophet, saying: 13 Go, and thou shalt tell Hananias: Thus saith our Lord: Thou hast broken chains of wood, and thou shalt make for them chains of iron. 14 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: An iron yoke have I put upon the neck of all these Nations, to serve Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and they shall serve him: moreover also the beasts of the earth I have given him. 15 And Jeremy the Prophet said to Hananias the Prophet: Hear Hananias: Our Lord sent thee not, and thou hast made this people to trust in a lie. 16 Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will send thee from off the face of the earth: this year shalt thou die: for thou hast spoken against our Lord. 17 And Hananias the Prophet died in that year, the seventh month.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Jeremy writeth to the captives in Babylon, exhorting them to live in peace, 8. and not harkening to false-Prophets. 10. For they must remain there seventy years, and then shall be delivered. 16. And those that remain in Jerusalem shall suffer sword, famine, and pestilence. 21. And Achab, Sedecias, 24. and Semeias false Prophets, shall die miserably. [1]

[1] The 4. part.
Consolations and threats as the people shall deserve, with the destruction of Ierusalem, captivity of the king & people and their release after 70. years.

And these are the words of (a) the book, which Jeremy the Prophet sent from Jerusalem to the remnant of the Ancients of the transmigration, and to the Priests, and to the Prophets, and to all the people, which Nabuchodonosor had transported from Jerusalem into Babylon:

(a) Against the flattery of false prophets affirming that the captives shall shortly be reduced, Jeremy sincerely writeth unto them that they must remain in Babylon a long time.

2 after that Jechonias the king was gone forth, and the queen, and the Eunuchs, and the Princes of Juda, and of Jerusalem, and the craftsman, and the incloser out of Jerusalem: 3 by the hand of Elasa the son of Saphan, and Gamarias the son of Helcias, whom Sedecias the king of Juda sent to Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon into Babylon, saying: 4 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel to all the transmigration, which I have transported from Jerusalem into Babylon: 5 Build ye houses, and inhabit them: and plant orchards, and eat the fruit of them. 6 Take wives, and beget sons and daughters: & give wives to your sons, & give your daughters to husbands, and let them bear sons and daughters: and be ye multiplied there, and be not few in number. 7 And seek the peace of the city, to which I have transported you: and pray for it to our Lord: because in the peace thereof there shall be peace to you. 8 [1] For thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Let not your Prophets, that are in the midst of you, and your diviners seduce you: and attend not to your dreams, which you dream:

[1] Ch. 14.

9 because they do falsely prophesy to you in my name: and I sent them not, saith our Lord. 10 Because thus saith our Lord: When the seventy years shall begin to be expired in Babylon, I will visit you: and I will raise up upon you my good word, to bring you again to this place. [1]

[1] Ch. 25.
2. Par. 3.
1. Esd. 1.
Dan. 9.

11 For I know the cogitations, that I intend upon you, saith our Lord, cogitations of peace, and not of affliction, to give you an end and patience. 12 And you shall invocate me, and go: and you shall pray me, and I will hear you. 13 You shall seek me, and shall find: when you shall seek me with all your heart.
14 [1]And I will be found of you, saith our Lord: and I will bring back your captivity, & I will gather you out of all nations, & from all places to the which I have expelled you, saith our Lord: and I will make you to return from the place, to the which I have transported you.

15 Because you have said: (b) Our Lord hath raised up Prophets to us in Babylon:

(b) The seduced people thought the false prophets had been true prophets of God.

16 for thus saith our Lord to the king, that sitteth upon the throne of David, and to all the people the inhabiter of this city, to your brethren, that are not gone forth with you into the transmigration. 17 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will send upon them the sword, and famine, and the pestilence: and I will make them as naughty figs, that cannot be eaten, because they are very naught. [1]

[1] ch. 24.

18 And I will persecute them with the sword, and with famine, and with pestilence: and I will give them into vexation to all the kingdoms of the earth: into (c) malediction, & into astonishment, and into hissing, and into reproach to all the Nations, to which I have cast them out:

(c) Their misery shall be so great, that it shall be as a Proverb of them that wish evil to others, to say: The malediction of the Jews fall upon you, as is more clearly explicated. v. 22.

19 because they have not heard my words, saith our Lord: which I sent to them by my servants the Prophets in the night rising, and sending: and you heard not, saith our Lord. 20 You therefore hear the word of our Lord all ye the transmigration, which I have sent out from Jerusalem into Babylon. 21 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel to Achab the son of Colias, and to Sedecias the son of Maasias, which prophesy unto you in my name falsely: Behold I will deliver them into the hands of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon: & he shall strike them in your eyes. 22 And of them a malediction shall be taken up by all the transmigration of Juda, that is in Babylon, saying: Our Lord make thee as Sedecias, & as Achab, whom the king of Babylon fried in the fire: 23 for that they have done folly in Israel, and committed adultery with their friends' wives, and have spoken the word in my name falsely, which I commanded them not: I am the judge and the witness, saith our Lord. 24 And to Semeias the Nehelamite thou shalt say: 25 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: For that thou hast sent in thy name books to all the people, that is in Jerusalem, and to Sophonias the son of Maasias, the Priest, & to all the Priests, saying: 26 Our Lord hath made thee Priest for Joiada the Priest, that thou shouldest be ruler in the house of our Lord, upon every man raving and prophesying, to put him into the stocks, and into prison. 27 And now why hast thou not rebuked Jeremy the Anathothite, which prophesieth unto you? 28 Because upon this he hath sent into Babylon to us, saying: It is long: build ye houses, and inhabit them: and plant gardens, and eat the fruits of them. 29 Sophonias therefore the Priest read this Book in the ears of Jeremy the Prophet.
30 And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: 31 Send to all the transmigration, saying: Thus saith the Lord to Semeias the Nehelamite: Because Semeias hath prophesied to you, and I sent him not: and hath made you to trust in a lie: 32 Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will visit upon Semeias the Nehelamite, and upon his seed: there shall not be unto him a man sitting in the midst of this people, & he shall not see the good, that I will do to my people, saith our Lord: because he hath spoken prevarication against our Lord.

CHAPTER XXX.

The Prophet is commanded to write the same which he preacheth: 4. first pensive things, 8. then joyful. 9. Especially in the new Testament, when God will raise David (to wit Christ) 16. Who shall destroy all enemies. 19. And whose Church shall be great, glorious, and perpetual.

This is the word, that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: 2 Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel, saying: Write unto thee all the words that I have spoken to thee, in a book. 3 For behold the days come, saith our Lord: and I will convert the conversion of my people (a) Israel and Juda, saith our Lord: and I will make them return to the land, which I gave their fathers, & they shall possess it.

(a) It is probable by this, and Ch. 31. Ezech. 33. & other places, that with the two tribes of the Kingdom of Juda many of the ten tribes returned also from captivity, whose chief city was Samaria.

4 And these are the words, that our Lord hath spoken to Israel and to Juda: 5 Because thus saith our Lord: We have heard a voice of terror: there is fear and no peace. 6 Demand, and see if a man bear child? Wherefore then have I seen every man's hand upon his loin, as a woman that is in travail, and all faces are turned into the jaundice? 7 Alas, because that is a great day, neither is there the like to it: and it is the time of tribulation to Jacob, & he shall be saved out of it. [1]

Sopho. 1.

8 And it shall be in that day, saith the Lord of hosts: I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and will break his bands: & strangers shall no more rule over him: 9 but they shall serve our Lord their God, & David their king, whom I will raise up to them. 10 Thou therefore my servant Jacob fear not, saith our Lord, neither be thou afraid Israel: because lo I will save thee out of a far country, and thy seed out of the land of their captivity: & Jacob shall return, and be at rest, & flow with all good things, & there shall be none whom he may fear: 11 because I am with thee, saith our Lord, to save thee: for I will make (b) a consummation in all the Nations, in which I have dispersed thee: but thee I will not make into consummation: but I will chastise thee in judgement, that thou mayst not seem to thyself innocent.

(b) Only the true Church is perpetually conserved without interruption; all other nations, Kingdoms, & congregations, do change and are consumed.

12 Because thus saith our Lord: Thy wound is uncurable, thy stripe is very sore. 13 There is none to judge thy judgement to bind it up: there is no profit of medicines for thee. 14 All thy lovers have forgotten thee, & will not seek thee: for with the stroke of an enemy I have strucken thee with cruel chastisement: for the multitude of thine iniquity, thy sins are hardened. 15 What cryest thou upon thine affliction? Thy sorrow is uncurable: for the multitude of thine iniquity, & for thine hardened sins I have done these things to thee. 16 Therefore all that eat thee, shall be devoured: and all thine enemies shall be led into captivity: and they that waste thee, shall be wasted, and all thy spoilers will I give to the spoil. 17 For I will close up thy wound, and will heal thee of thy wounds, saith our Lord. Because they have called thee, o Sion, an outcast: This is she, that had none to seek after her. 18 Thus saith our Lord: Behold I (c) will convert the conversion of the tabernacles of Jacob, and will have pity on his houses, & the city shall be built in her high place, and the temple shall be founded according to the order thereof.

(c) After seventy years captivity the temple shall be re-edified, but more fully & more perfectly this Prophecy is fulfilled in Christ and his Apostles, when the city was built in a high place, the city which cannot be hid, set in a mountain.

19 And out of them shall come forth praise, and the voice of them that play: and I will multiply them, and they shall not be diminished: and I will glorify them, and they shall not be lessened. 20 And his children shall be as from the beginning, and his assembly shall be permanent before me: and I will visit against all that afflict him. 21 And (d) his duke shall be of himself: and the prince shall be brought forth from the midst of him: and I will bring him (e) near, and he shall come to me. For who is this, that applieth his heart to approach unto me, saith our Lord?

(d) Christ of the issue of Jacob. (e) Who according to his divinity is the Son of God as he saith of himself. Ioan. 14. I am in the Father and the Father in me.

22 And you shall be my people: and I will be your God. 23 Behold, the whirlwind of our Lord, the fury going forth, the storm violently falling, it shall light upon the head of the impious. 24 Our Lord will not turn away the wrath of indignation, till he have done and accomplished the cogitation of his heart: in the latter days you shall understand these things.

CHAPTER XXXI.

God will reduce Israel from captivity, 4. and give them abundance of all things: 9. after their tribulation. 15. Rachel (The afflicted Church) shall cease from mourning: 25. confessing that she is justly chastised. 20. Christ (a perfect man) shall be contained in his mother's womb. 26. He rising from sleep (death) will build his Church, 31. with a new covenant, 36. that it shall be large, and perpetual.

At that time, saith our Lord: I will be the God of (a) all the kindreds of Israel, and they shall be my people.

(a) Together with the two tribes many also of the ten tribes were reduced from captivity. And when Christ came into this world they were more ready to receive him, than the other two tribes. Mat. 13. Mar. 6. Luc. 4. Ioan. 4.

2 Thus saith our Lord: The people that remained from the sword, found grace in the desert: Israel shall go to his rest. 3 Our Lord hath appeared to me of long time. And in everlasting charity have I loved thee, therefore have I drawn thee taking compassion. 4 And I will build thee again, and thou shalt be builded o virgin Israel: thou shalt yet be adorned with thy timbrels, & shall go forth in the choir of them that play. 5 Thou shalt yet plant vineyards in the mountains of Samaria: the planters shall plant, & till the time come they shall not make vintage: 6 because there shall be a day, wherein the watchmen on mount Ephraim shall cry: Arise, and let us go up unto Sion to the Lord our God. [1]

[1] Isa. 2. Mich. 4. Zach. 8.

7 Because thus saith our Lord: Rejoice in gladness o Jacob, and neigh against the head of the Gentiles: sound ye, and sing, and say: Save o Lord thy people the remnant of Israel. 8 Behold I will bring them out of the land of the North, and will gather them from the ends of the earth: among whom shall be the blind and the lame, and woman with child, and she that beareth child together, a great company of them that return hither. 9 They shall come in weeping: and in mercy I will reduce them: and I will bring them through the torrents of waters in a right way, and they shall not stumble in it: because I am become a father to Israel, and (b) Ephraim is my first-begotten.

(b) God will also shew his mercy to the ten tribes (signified by Ephraim) as a father loveth his first begotten.

10 Hear the word of our Lord ye Nations, & shew forth in the islands, that are far off, and say: He that dispersed Israel, will gather him: and he will keep him as the Pastor his flock. 11 For our Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and he will deliver him out of the hand of the mightier. 12 And they shall come, and shall praise in mount Sion: and they shall run together to the good things of our Lord for the corn, and wine, and oil, and the increase of cattle and herds, and their soul shall be as a watered garden, and they shall be hungry no more. 13 Then shall the virgin rejoice in the choir, the young men & old men together: and I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them joyful from their sorrow. 14 And I will replenish the soul of the Priests with fatness: and my people shall be filled with my good things, saith our Lord.

15 Thus saith our Lord: A voice of lamentation is heard on high of the mourning, and weeping of (c) Rachel weeping for her children, and refusing to be comforted for them, because they are not.[1]

(c) By Rachel the mother of Ioseph & Benjamin, are signified all the women of both Kingdoms (Israel & Juda) mourning the miseries of the captivity. And particularly of the mother's lamenting the slaughter of their children near Bethlehem. Mat. 2.[1]Mat. 2.

16 Thus saith our Lord: Let thy voice cease from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: because there is a reward for thy work, saith our Lord: and they shall return out of the land of the enemy. 17 And there is hope to thy last ends, saith our Lord: & the children shall return to their borders. 18 Hearing I heard Ephraim going into transmigration. Thou hast chastised me, & I am taught, as a young bullock not tamed. (d) Convert me, and (e) I shall be converted: because thou art the Lord my God.

(d) God's grace is the principal cause of justification. (e) Man's cooperation by free-will is the secondary cause.

19 For after thou didst convert me I did penance: & after thou didst shew unto me, I struck my thigh: I am confounded, and ashamed, because I have sustained the reproach of my youth. 20 Certes Ephraim is an honourable son to me, certes a delicate child: because since I spake of him, as yet will I remember him. Therefore are my bowels troubled upon him: pitying I will pity him, saith our Lord. 21 Set thee a watch tower, make unto thee bitterness: direct thy heart into the right way wherein thou hast walked: return, o virgin Israel, return to these thy cities. 22 How long wilt thou be dissolute in deliciousness, o wandering daughter? Because our Lord hath created a new thing upon the earth: A WOMAN SHALL COMPASS (f) A MAN.

(f) Christ in his mother's womb in stature an infant: but in all perfection a man.

23 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: As yet shall they say this word in the land of Juda, & in the cities thereof, when I shall convert their captivity: Our Lord bless thee the beauty of justice, the holy mountain. 24 and Judas and all his cities shall dwell in it together: the husbandmen and they that drive the flocks. 25 Because I have inebriated the weary soul: and every hungry soul I have filled. 26 Therefore I was raised up as out of a sleep, and I saw, and my sleep was sweet to me. 27 Behold the days come, saith our Lord: and I will sow the house of Israel & the house of Juda with the (g) seed of men, & with the seed (h) of beasts.

(g) God promised the Jews multiplication of men. (h) And of cattle which were a principal riches, as appeareth by the word, pecunia derived of pecus.

28 And as I have watched upon them, to pluck up, and deface, and dissipate, & destroy, and afflict: so will I watch over them, to build, and to plant them, saith our Lord. 29 In those days they shall say no more: The fathers did eat the bitter grape, and the teeth of the children are set on edge. 30 But every one shall die in his own iniquity: every man that shall eat the sour grape, his teeth shall be on edge. 31 Behold the days shall come, saith our Lord: and I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Juda: 32 not according to the covenant, which I made with their fathers in the day that I took their hand, to bring them out of the Land of Aegypt: the covenant which they made void, and I had the dominion of them, saith our Lord. 33 But this shall be the covenant, that I will make with the house of Israel: after those days saith our Lord: I will give my law in their bowels, and in their heart I will write it: and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. 34 And a man shall no more teach his neighbour,[1] and a man his brother, saying: Know our Lord: for all shall know me from the least of them even to the greatest, saith our Lord: because I will be propitious to their iniquity, and their sin I will remember no more.[2]

[1]Isa. 54.[2]Ioa. 6.

35 Thus saith our Lord, that giveth the sun for the light of the day, the order of the moon and of the stars, for the light of the night: that troubleth the sea, and the waves thereof do sound, the Lord of hosts is his name. 36 If these laws shall fail before me, saith our Lord: thee also (i) the seed of Israel shall fail, that it be not a nation before me for ever.

(i) The seed of Israel remaineth for ever; not in the incredulous Jews (saith S. Jerome) but in those which with the Apostles, & by the Apostles believe in Christ.

37 Thus saith our Lord: If the heavens above shall be able to be measured, and the foundations of the earth beneath to be searched out: I also will cast away all the seed of Israel, for all things that they have done, saith our Lord. 38 Behold the days come, saith our Lord: and the city shall be built to our Lord from the tower of Hananeel even to the gate of the corner. 39 And the rule of the measure shall go out farther in his sight upon the little hill Gareb: and it shall compass Goatha, 40 and all the valley of carcasses, and of ashes, and all the country of death, even to the torrent of Cedron, and to the corner of the East gate of horses. The Holy of our Lord shall not be plucked up, and it shall no more be destroyed for ever.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Nabuchodonosor besieging Jerusalem, Jeremy in prison 7. buyeth by God's commandment a field of his cousin. 17. prayeth for the whole nation, reciting God's former benefits, 26. prophesieth their captivity in Babylon, 30. for their idolatry: 36. and delivery from thence, 40. with a new covenant to serve God sincerely.

The word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord (a) in the tenth year of Sedecias the king of Juda: the same is the eighteenth year of Nabuchodonosor.

(a) When the city was besieged, & Jeremy in prison prophesied that it should be taken, & subdued by the enemies, yet he bought lands, to signify that in time they should be delivered from captivity.

2 Then the army of the king of Babylon besieged Jerusalem: and Jeremy the Prophet was shut up in the court of the prison, that was in the house of the king of Juda. 3 For Sedecias the king of Juda had shut him up, saying: Why doest thou prophesy, saying: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it? 4 And Sedecias the king of Juda shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldees: but he shall be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon: and he shall speak with him mouth to mouth, and (b) his eyes shall see his eyes.

(b) Sedecias was brought to the King of Babylon in Reblatha, where they put out his eyes, & thence carried him blind to Babylon. 4. Reg. 25. and so coming to that city he could not see it. Ezech. 12. v. 13.

5 And he shall lead Sedecias into Babylon: & he shall be there till I visit him, saith our Lord. But if you will fight against the Chaldees you shall have nothing prosperous. 6 And Jeremy said: The word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 7 Behold, Hanameel the son of Sellum thy cousin shall come to thee, saying: Buy unto thee my field, which is in Anathoth: for it appertaineth to thee by kindred to buy it. 8 And Hanameel mine uncle's son came unto me according to the word of our Lord to the entry of the prison, and said to me: Possess my field, which is in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin: because the inheritance pertaineth to thee, and thou art near of kin to possess it. And I understood that it was the word of our Lord. 9 And I bought the field of Hanameel mine uncle's son, which is in Anathoth: and I weighed him the silver, seven staters, and ten pieces of silver. 10 And I wrote it in a book, and signed it, and took witnesses: and I weighed the silver in balance. 11 And I took the book of the possession signed, and the stipulations, and the things ratified, and the signs on the out side. 12 And I gave the book of the possession to Baruch the son of Neri the son of Maasias in the sight of Hanameel my cousin, and in the sight of the witnesses, that were written in the book of the purchase, and in the sight of all the Jews, that sat in the court of the prison. 13 And I commanded Baruch before them saying: 14 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Take these books, this book of the purchase signed, and this book, that is open: and put them in an earthen vessel, that they may continue many days. 15 For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Yet shall houses, and fields, and vineyards be possessed in this land. 16 And I prayed to our Lord, after that I delivered the book of the possession to Baruch the son of Neri, saying: 17 Alas, alas, alas, o Lord God: behold thou hast made heaven and earth in thy great strength, & in thy stretched out arm: no word shall be hard to thee: 18 [1]Which doest mercy on thousands, and renderest the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them. O Most strong, great, & mighty, the Lord of hosts is thy name.

19 Great in counsel, and incomprehensible in cogitation: whose eyes are open upon all the ways of the children of Adam, to render unto every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his inventions. 20 Which hast put signs & wonders in the land of Aegypt even until this day, & in Israel, & in men, and hast made thee a name as is this day. 21 And thou didst bring forth thy people Israel out of the Land of Aegypt, in signs, & in wonders, & in a strong hand, and in a stretched out arm, and in great terror. 22 And thou gavest them this land, which thou swarest to their fathers, that thou wouldst give them a land flowing with milk and honey. 23 And they entered in, & possessed it: & they obeyed not thy voice, & in thy law they walked not: all that thou didst command them to do, they did not: and all these evils are befallen them. 24 Behold munitions are built against the city, that it may be taken: & the city is given into the hands of the Chaldees, which fight against it, at (c) the presence of the sword, and of famine, and of pestilence: & what things soever thou hast spoken, are come to pass, as thyself seest.

(c) By the force of the sword, famine, & pestilence, as Psa. 59. v. 6. that they flee from the face of the bow.

25 And sayst thou to me o Lord God: Buy the field for silver, & take witnesses, whereas the city is given into the hands of the Chaldees? 26 And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: 27 Behold I am the Lord the God of all flesh: shall any word be hard for me? 28 Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will deliver this city into the hands of the Chaldees, and into the hands of the king of Babylon, and they shall take it. 29 And the Chaldees shall come fighting against this city, and shall set it on fire, and burn it, and the houses, in whose tops they did sacrifice to Baal, and offered libaments to strange gods, to provoke me unto wrath. 30 For the children of Israel, and the children of Juda were continually doing evil in mine eyes (d) from their youth: the children of Israel which even until this present exasperate me in the work of their hands, saith our Lord.

(d) When they were in the wilderness newly delivered from Aegypt, they committed many heinous crimes: in murmuring^ schism, idolatry, & other carnal & spiritual sins.

31 Because in fury and in mine indignation this city is made to me, from the day that they builded it, until this day, wherein it shall be taken out of my sight. 32 For the malice of the children of Israel, and of the children of Juda, which they have done provoking me to wrath, they & their kings, their Princes, & their Priests, and their Prophets, the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 33 And they have turned the backs to me, and not the faces: when I taught them early, & instructed them, & they would not hear that they might take discipline.[1]

[1] Psal. 35.
1. Reg. 21.

34 And they have set their idols in the house, wherein my name is invocated, that they might pollute it. 35 And they have built the excelses of Baal, which are in the valley of the son of Ennom, that they might consecrate their sons and their daughters to Moloch: which I commanded them not, neither hath it ascended into my heart, that they should do this abomination, & bring Juda into sin. 36 And now for these things, thus saith our Lord the God of Israel to this city, whereof you say that it is delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon in sword, and in famine, and in pestilence. 37 Behold (e) I will gather them together out of all lands, to which I have cast them out in my fury, and in my wrath, and in my great indignation: and I will bring them again into this place, and will make them dwell confidently.

(e) Lest any should think that by God's just and severe punishment, or by any revolting from his service the Church might be utterly destroyed, he still promiseth mercy towards the relics of his people, that they shall never all fail, but continue till the Redeemer of mankind Christ shall come. And much less shall Christ's Church ever fail after his coming.

38 And they shall be my people, and I will be their God. 39 And I will give them one heart, and one way, that they may fear me all days: and it may be well with them, and with their children after them. 40 And I will make an everlasting covenant with them: and will not cease to do them good: and I will give my fear in their heart, that they revolt not from me. 41 And I will rejoice upon them, when I shall do them good: and I will plant them in this land in truth in my whole heart and in all my soul 42 Because thus saith our Lord: As I have brought upon this people all this great evil: so will I bring upon them all the good, that I speak to them. 43 And the fields shall be possessed in this land: whereof you say that it is desolate, because there is remaining no man nor beast, and it is given into the hands of the Chaldees. 44 The fields shall be bought for money, and shall be written in a book, and the sign shall be stamped on, and a witness shall be taken, in the land of Benjamin, and round about Jerusalem, in the cities of Juda, and in the cities on the mountains, and in the champion cities, and in the cities that are toward the South: because I will convert their captivity, saith our Lord.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

God promiseth remission of sins: 10. reduction from captivity, and many other benefits. 14. He will give judgement and justice in David (Christ) whose throne (the Church) 19. shall be glorious 24. and permanent.

And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy (a) the second time, when as yet he was shut up in the court of the prison, saying:

(a) Besides many other revelations, this prophet had two visions in prison, in confirmation that God would conserve his people and Church for ever, notwithstanding their manifold great sins & great affliction and destruction of many for the same.

2 Thus saith our Lord that will do, & will form it, & prepare it, the Lord is his name. 3 Cry unto me, and I will hear thee: and I will tell thee great things, and firm things which thou knowest not. 4 Because thus saith our Lord the God of Israel to the houses of this city, and to the houses of the king of Juda, which are destroyed, & to the munitions, and to the sword. 5 of them that come to fight with the Chaldees, and to fill them with the carcasses of the men, whom I have strucken in my fury, and in mine indignation, hiding my face from this city, because of all their malice. 6 Behold I will bring to them a scar and health, & will cure them: & I will reveal unto them the prayer of peace & truth. 7 And I will convert the conversion of Juda, & the conversion of Jerusalem: and will build them as from the beginning. 8 And I will cleanse them from all their iniquity, wherein they have sinned to me: & I will be propitious to all their iniquities, wherein they have sinned to me, & despised me. 9 And it shall be to me a name, & a joy, & a praise, & an exultation to all the nations of the earth, that shall hear all the good things, which I will do to them: and they shall fear, & be troubled in all the good things, & in all the peace, that I will make to them. 10 Thus saith our Lord: Yet there shall be heard in this place (which you say is desolate, because there is neither man nor beast: in the cities of Juda, & without Jerusalem, which are desolate without man, & without inhabiter, and without beast) 11 the voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voice of them that say: Confess ye to the Lord of hosts, because our Lord is good, because his mercy is for ever: and of them that carry vows into the house of our Lord. For I will bring back the conversion of the land as from the beginning, saith our Lord. 12 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Yet there shall be in this desolate place without man, and without beast, and in all the cities thereof, an habitation of Pastors of the resting flocks. 13 In the cities on the mountains, and in the champion cities, and in the cities that are toward the South: and in the land of Benjamin, and round about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Juda there shall yet pass flocks, at the hand of him that numbereth them, saith our Lord.

14 Behold the days shall come, saith our Lord, & (b) I will raise up the good word, that I have spoken to the house of Israel, and to the house of Juda. [1]

(b) An evident Prophecy and promise of Christ. [1] Iere. 23. v. 5.

15 In those days, and in that time, I will make (c) the spring of justice to bud forth unto David: and he shall do judgement and justice in the earth.

(c) Born of the seed of David.

16 In those days shall Juda be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell confidently: & this is the name, that they shall call him, The Lord our just one. 17 Because thus saith our Lord: (d) There shall not fail of David a man, to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel.

(d) David's progeny shall continue unto Christ: whose kingdom, which is his Church, shall have no end. Luc. 1. v. 33. Psal. 88. v. 30.

18 And of the Priests and Levites there shall not fail from before my face a man, to offer (e) holocausts, & to burn sacrifice, & to kill victims all days.

(e) S. Hypolitus and all ancient Fathers teach that the holy Eucharist is the complement of all sacrifices of the old Testament.

19 And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: 20 Thus saith our Lord: If my covenant with the day can be made void, & my covenant with the night, that there be not day and night in their time: 21 also my covenant may be made void with David my servant, that there be not of him a son to reign in his throne, & Levites & Priests my ministers. 22 Even as the stars of heaven cannot be numbered, & the sand of the sea be measured: so will I multiply the seed of David my servant, and the Levites my ministers.

23 And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: 24 Hast thou not seen what this people hath spoken, saying: The (f) two kindreds, which our Lord had chosen, are cast off: and they have despised my people, because it is no more a Nation before them?

(f) God's most special providence blessed the families of David and Aaron above all other kindreds.

25 Thus saith our Lord: If I have not set my covenant between day and night, and laws to heaven and earth: 26 surely I will also cast off the seed of Jacob, and of David my servant, that I take not of his seed Princes of the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For I will bring back their conversion, and will have mercy on them.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

King Sedecias shall fall into the hands of Nabuchodonosor, and Jerusalem shall be burned: 8. because he hath broken the covenant, of releasing Jews from bondage, 14. in the seventh year; and contrary to particular promise of observing that law.

The word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord when Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, & all his army, and all the kingdoms of the earth that were under the power of his hand, and all the peoples made war against Jerusalem and against all the cities thereof, saying: 2 Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Go, and speak to Sedecias the king of Juda: & thou shalt say to him: Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will deliver this city into the hands of the king of Babylon, & he shall burn it with fire. 3 And thou shalt not escape out of his hand: but by taking thou shalt be taken, and thou shalt be delivered into his hand: and (a) thine eyes shall see the eyes of the king of Babylon, and his mouth shall speak with thy mouth, & thou shalt enter into Babylon.

(a) See ch. 32. v. 4. & 4. Reg. 25. v. 7.

4 But yet hear the word of our Lord o Sedecias king of Juda: Thus saith our Lord to thee: Thou shalt not die by the sword, 5 but thou shalt die in peace, & according to the burnings of thy fathers the former kings that have been before thee, so shall they burn thee: &, Alas lord, shall they mourn for thee: because I have spoken the word, saith our Lord. 6 And Jeremy the Prophet spake all these words to Sedecias the king of Juda in Jerusalem. 7 And the army of the king of Babylon fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Juda, that were remaining, against Lachis, and against Azecha: for these remained of the cities of Juda, fenced cities. 8 The word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, after that king Sedecias made a covenant with all the people in Jerusalem, proclaiming: 9 That every one should dismiss his servant, and every one his handmaid; the Hebrew man & the Hebrew woman free: And that they should not have dominion over them, that is, on a Jew and his brother. 10 All the Princes therefore heard, and all the people which had made the covenant that every man should dismiss his servant, and every man his handmaid free, and should no more have dominion over them: they heard therefore, and dismissed them. 11 And (b) they turned afterwards: and drew their servants and their handmaids back again, whom they had dismist free, and brought them into subjection as men servants, and women servants.

(b) Recidivation into sins after remission offendeth God more than the former sins, as our Saviour teacheth by a parable. Mat. 18.

12 And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: 13 Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: I made a covenant with your fathers in the day, that I brought them out of the Land of Aegypt, from the house of bondage, saying: 14 When seven years shall be accomplished, let every man dismiss his brother an Hebrew, that was sold to him, and he shall serve thee six years: and thou shalt dismiss him free from thee: and your fathers have not heard me, nor inclined their ear.[1]

[1] Exo. 21. Deu. 15.

15 And you were converted this day, & did that which is right in mine eyes, that you proclaimed liberty every one to his friend: and you made a covenant in my sight, in the house, wherein my name is invocated upon it. 16 And you are returned, and have defiled my name: and you have brought back again every man his servant, and every man his handmaid, whom you had dismist to be free, and of their own jurisdiction: and you have brought them into subjection to be your servants and handmaids. 17 Therefore thus saith our Lord: You have not heard me, to proclaim liberty every man to his brother, and every one to his friend: behold I proclaim unto you liberty, saith our Lord, to the sword, to the pestilence, and to famine: and I will give you into commotion to all the kingdoms of the earth. 18 And I will give the men, that transgress my covenant, and have not observed the words of the covenant, whereunto they consented in my sight, the calf which they did cut into two parts, and passed between the divisions thereof: 19 The Princes of Juda and the Princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, and the Priests, and all the people of the land that passed between the divisions of the calf. 20 And I will give them into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of them that seek their life: and their carcass shall be for meat to the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the earth. 21 And Sedecias the king of Juda, and his Princes I will give into the hands of their enemies, and into the hands of them that seek their lives, and into the hands of the armies of the king of Babylon, which are retired from you. 22 Behold I (c) command, saith our Lord, and I will bring them again into this city, and they shall fight against it, and take it, & burn it with fire: and the cities of Juda I will give into desolation, because there is not an inhabiter.

(c) God was not the cause of the Babylonians' cruelty, but permitted & directed the same to punish the Jews.

CHAPTER XXXV.

By example of the Rechabites voluntarily keeping their father's rule, God expostulateth with the people that keep not his precepts; 17. denouncing that they shall be punished, and the Rechabites rewarded.

The word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord in the days (a) of Joakim the son of Josias the king of Juda, saying:

(a) Here again it appeareth that the Prophet observeth not the order of time in writing his visions. For the things here recorded happened before the prophecies mentioned in the former chapters.

2 Go to the house of the Rechabites: and speak to them, & thou shalt bring them into the house of our Lord, into one chamber of the treasuries, & thou shalt give them wine to drink. 3 And I took Jezonias the son of Jeremias the son of Habsamias, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites. 4 And I brought them into the house of our Lord, to the treasure-house of the sons of Hanan, the son of Jegedelias the man of God, which was by the treasure-house of the Princes, above the treasure of Maasias the son of Sellum, who was keeper of the entry. 5 And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites goblets full of wine, and cups: and I said to them: Drink ye wine. 6 Who answered: We will not drink wine: because (b) Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, commanded us, saying: You shall not drink wine, you and your children for ever.

(b) This Jonadab was a man of power and estimation, very familiar with Jehu King of Israel. 4. Reg. 10. v. 15.

7 And you shall not build house, and you shall not sow seed, and you shall not plant vineyards, nor have any: but you shall dwell in tabernacles all your days, that you may live many days upon the face of the land, wherein you are (c) strangers.

(c) The Rechabites descended not of Israel, but of Jethro a Madianite, Moyses' father in law: as both Hebrew & Latin Doctors hold by tradition.

8 We therefore have obeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, in all things that he commanded us: so that we drank not any wine all our days: we and our wives, our sons & our daughters. 9 And we builded not houses to inhabit, and vineyard, and field, and seed we have not had: 10 but we have dwelt in tabernacles, and have been obedient according to all things that Jonadab our father commanded us. 11 But when Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon was come up to our Land, we said: (d) Come, and let us go into Jerusalem from the face of the host of the Chaldees, & from the face of the host of Syria: & we have tarried in Jerusalem.

(d) in case of necessity they entered into the city, otherwise remained in tents.

12 And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy, saying: 13 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Go, & say to the men of Juda, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: Why will you not receive discipline, to obey my words, saith our Lord? 14 (e) The words of Jonadab the son of Rechab have prevailed, which he commanded his sons not to drink wine: & they have not drunk until this day, because they have obeyed the commandment of their father: but I have spoken to you, early rising and speaking, and you have not obeyed me.

(e) Seeing these religious Rechabites observed obediently the rule of their father & founder, in works of supererogation, otherwise not commanded: much more all are bound to keep God's commandments.

15 And I have sent to you all my servants the Prophets, rising early, and sending and saying: [1] Return ye every one from his most wicked way, and make your studies good: & follow not strange gods, nor worship them, and you shall dwell in the land which I gave you and your fathers: and you have not inclined your ear, nor heard me.

16 The children therefore of Jonadab the son of Rechab have firmly kept the precept of their father, which he commanded them: but this people hath not obeyed me. 17 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will bring upon Juda, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all the affliction which I have spoken against them, because I have spoken to them, and they have not heard: I have called them, and they have not answered me. 18 But to the house of the Rechabites Jeremy said: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: For that you have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father, and have kept all his commandments, and have done all things, that he commanded you: 19 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: There shall not want a man of the stock of Jonadab the son of Rechab, standing in my sight all days.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XXXV.

[1] Religious Orders in the old Testament.

[2] The rule of Rechabites differed from the Nazarites & children of the Prophets. They were figures of more perfect orders in the Church of Christ.

[3] Mat. 19. v. 12. 21. Luc. 18. v. 22.

[4] Diverse kinds of Religious Orders.

[5] Varieties of Religious Orders make no difference in Catholic Religion. But do much adorn the whole Church.

[6] Psal. 44. v. 11. 15.

1. The house of Rechabites.] We have here (according to the state of God's Church in the old Testament) a clear example of religious life, [1] by professing and performing good works of supererogation, not commanded by God, but piously instituted by a holy man called Jonadab. Which, not only himself, and his proper children, but also their posterity many ages after him, voluntarily observed by a prescript Rule: Not to build houses, nor dwell in any (but in tents) not to sow seed, nor to plant, nor have vineyards, nor to drink wine. A like rule but not the same in all points, was prescribed by God himself (Num. 6.) for such as would voluntarily embrace it. [2] And Elias and Elizeus with their disciples observed another form of religious life: as appeareth 4. Reg. 1. 2. &c. All which were figures of more perfect Religious Orders in the Church of Christ, consisting in three essential vows, of voluntary Poverty, Chastity, and Obedience: not commanded but commended, and for the better attaining to perfection, counseled by our Saviour; whereof they are called Evangelical Counsels, observed by the Apostles, leaving all their worldly substance, and all desire of having any proper possessions: such also as had wives leaving them, the rest not marrying; & all renouncing their own wills, subjected the same to Christ's will; following him. Whose example others imitating, this holy manner of life hath still continued in the Church, as is evident by the Ecclesiastical histories even from the Apostles' time. [3] But all observed not the same particular rules, nor were called by the same titles. [4] For as in the time of Moyses' law, some were called Nazareites; some the Children of the Prophets; and some Rechabites, after the name of their founder's father Rechab, a renowned godly man: so now some are called Eremites, some Monks, some Friars, and some Religious Clerks. And of each of these kinds, diverse sorts are distinguished by variety of rules, habits, special functions, and titles either of their first Institutors, or of the Institutes themselves, or of the places, or other occasions. As Carmelites, Augustines (as well Monks, as Canons Regular) Benedictins, Bernardins, Carthusians, Dominicans, Franciscans, Jesuits, Theatines, Capuchins, and the like. As also many distinct Orders of Nuns. But none of them all differ from the rest, nor from other Catholic Christians in points of faith: [5] nor make any Sects of Religion, as Heretics ridiculously object. For all believe and confess the self same Catholic Faith, in all the Articles thereof; all use and acknowledge the same, and no other holy Sacraments; and all are united in one universal Church; under one visible Head: Every Order good and holy in their profession; & all together excellently adorning the whole body with sacred seemly varieties, make the same universal Church more glorious. [6]

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Jeremy in prison sendeth Baruch by God's commandment, to read a book of comminations before the people: 7. exhorting them to repent: 9. which being read in a porch of the Temple, 11. Micheas reporteth it to the Nobles in the court, 14. whither Baruch being called readeth the same before them: 20. they inform the King: 21. who hearing part thereof, causeth the book to be burned: 26. and commandeth to apprehend Baruch, and Jeremy. 27. The book is written again by them with addition of more.

And it came to pass in the fourth year of Joakim, the son of Josias king of Juda: this word was made to Jeremy from our Lord, saying: 2 Take (a) a volume of a book and thou shalt write in it all the words that I have spoken to thee against Israel & Juda, and against all Nations since the day that I spake to thee, from the days of Josias even to this day.

(a) Besides preaching, which the evil disposed did either not duly regard, or quickly forget, God commanded that his will should also be written, for a perpetual admonition, if they would read it, or hear it read, and for a testimony against them, and a warning to others.

3 If perhaps the house of Juda hearing all the evils, that I mean to do unto them, let every man return from his most wicked way: and I will be propitious to their iniquity, and to their sin. 4 Jeremy therefore called Baruch the son of Nerias: and Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremy all the words of our Lord, which he spake to him, in the volume of the book. 5 And Jeremy commanded Baruch, saying: I am (b) shut up, neither am I able to go into the house of our Lord.

(b) He was not now in prison; for (v. 19.) certain noble men of the court advised both Baruch and him to hide themselves; but kept himself close in some secret place; as most Priests do now in England, that they may better exercise their function, than if they were in the persecutors' hands.

6 Go thou in therefore, and read out of the volume, wherein thou hast written from my mouth the words of our Lord, in the hearing of all the people in the house of our Lord on the fasting day: moreover also in the hearing of all Juda, which come out of their cities, thou shalt read it to them: 7 if perhaps their prayer may fall in the sight of our Lord, and every one return from his most wicked way: because great is the fury and indignation, which our Lord hath spoken against this people. 8 And Baruch the son of Nerias did according to all things, that Jeremy the Prophet had commanded him, reading out of the volume the words of our Lord in the house of our Lord. 9 And it came to pass in the fifth year of Joakim the son of Josias the king of Juda, in the ninth month: they proclaimed a fast in the sight of our Lord to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the multitude, that was flocked together out of the cities of Juda in Jerusalem. 10 And Baruch read out of the words of Jeremy in the house of our Lord, in the treasury of Gamarias the son of Saphan the scribe, in the higher court, in the entry of the new gate of the house of our Lord, all the people hearing it. 11 And when Micheas the son of Gamarias the son of Saphan had heard all the words of our Lord out of the book: 12 he went down into the king's house to the treasury of the scribe: and behold all the Princes sat there, Elisama the scribe, and Dalaias the son of Semeias, and Elnathan the son of Achobor: and Gamarias the son of Saphan, and Sedecias the son of Hananias, and all the Princes. 13 And Micheas told them all the words that he had heard Baruch reading out of the volume in the ears of the people. 14 All the Princes therefore sent to Baruch, Judi the son of Nathanias, the son of Selemias, the son of Chusi, saying: Take in thy hand the volume, out of which thou hast read in the hearing of the people, & come. Baruch therefore the son of Nerias took the volume in his hand & came to them. 15 And they said to him: Sit, and read these things in our ears. And Baruch read in their ears. 16 Therefore when they had heard all the words, they were astonished every one toward his neighbour, and they said to Baruch: We must tell the king all these words. 17 And they asked him, saying: Tell us how didst thou write all these words from his mouth. 18 And Baruch said to them: From his mouth he spake as it were reading unto me all these words, and I wrote in a volume with ink. 19 And the Princes said to Baruch: Go, & be hid thou & Jeremy, and let no man know where you are. 20 And they went to the king into the court: moreover they laid up the volume in the treasury of Elisama the scribe: and they told all the words in the hearing of the king. 21 And the king sent Judi, that he should take the volume: who taking it out of the treasury of Elisama the scribe, read it, the king hearing, and all the Princes, that stood about the king. 22 And the king sat in the winter house in the ninth month: and there was an hearth set before him full of burning coals. 23 And when Judi had read three or four pages, (c) he cut it with the penknife of a scribe: and he cast it into the fire, that was upon the hearth, till all the volume was consumed with the fire, that was on the hearth.

(c) The secretary cut out the leaves and burnt them by the King's commandment, as appeareth. v. 25. &c.

24 And the king and all his servants, that heard all these words, did not fear, nor rent their garments. 25 But yet Elnathan, and Dalaias, and Gamarias gainsaid the king, not to burn the Book: and he heard them not. 26 And the king commanded Jeremiel the son of Amelech, and Saraias the son of Ezriel, and Selemias the son of Abdeel, that they should apprehend Baruch the scribe, and Jeremy the Prophet: but (d) our Lord hid them.

(d) God did not translate them to another place, but they hiding themselves by God's direction, the searchers could not find them.

27 And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy the Prophet, after that the king had burnt the volume and the words, that Baruch had written from the mouth of Jeremy, saying: 28 Again take another volume: and write in it all the former words, that were in the first volume, which Joakim the king of Juda hath burnt. 29 And to Joakim the king of Juda thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord: Thou hast burnt that volume, saying: Why hast thou written in it telling: The king of Babylon will come in haste, and will waste this land: and he will make man and beast, to cease out of it? 30 Therefore thus saith our Lord against Joakim the king of Juda: (e) There shall not be of him to sit upon the throne of David: and his carcass shall be cast forth to the heat by day, and to the frost by night.

(e) His son Jechonias reigned but three months: which is counted as no reign. Theodoret.
Nor any of his issue in worldly glory, as their predecessors had reigned: S. Tho. p. 3. q. 31. a. 2. ad. 3.

31 And I will visit against him, and against his seed, and against his servants their iniquities, and I will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, & upon the men of Juda all the evil, that I have spoken to them: and they have not heard. [1]

[1] Ch. 22. v. 19.

32 And Jeremy took another volume, and gave it to Baruch the son of Nerias the scribe: who wrote in it from the mouth of Jeremy all the words of the book, which Joakim the king of Juda had burnt with fire: & there were added moreover many more words, than had been before.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Sedecias appointed by the King of Babylon to reign in Juda, requesteth Jeremias' prayers. 4. The Chaldees besieging Jerusalem, and hearing that the Aegyptians come against them, part away. 5. But Jeremy Prophesieth that they will return, and burn Jerusalem. 10. For which he is imprisoned. 16. After many days the King examineth him of his prophecy, who still affirming the same, 20. is kept in the entry of the prison.

And king Sedecias the son of Josias reigned for Jechonias the son of Joakim: whom Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon made king in the Land of Juda. [1]

2. Par. 36.
3. Esd. 1.

2 And he obeyed not, he and his servants, and the people of the land the words of our Lord, that he spake in the hand of Jeremy the Prophet. 3 And king Sedecias sent Juchal the son of Selemias, and Sophonias the son of Maasias Priest to Jeremy the Prophet, saying: (a) Pray the Lord our God for us.

(a) As Herod dealt afterwards with S. John Baptist: so this king esteemed, reverenced, and feared Jeremy, and yet persecuted him.

4 And Jeremy walked freely in the midst of the people: for they had not cast him into ward in prison. Therefore the army of Pharao came out of Aegypt: and the Chaldees that besieged Jerusalem, hearing such tidings, retired from Jerusalem. 5 And the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy the Prophet, saying: 6 Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel: Thus shall you say to the king of Juda, which sent you to demand of me: Behold the army of Pharao, which is come forth to help you, shall return into his land into Aegypt. 7 And the Chaldees shall return, and make war against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire. 8 Thus saith our Lord: Deceive not your souls, saying: The Chaldees going shall go away, & retire from us, because they shall not go away. 9 But if you shall strike all the host of the Chaldees, that fight against you, and there be left of them some wounded: every one shall rise up out of his tent, and shall burn this city with fire.

10 Therefore when the army of the Chaldees was retired from Jerusalem, because of Pharao's army, 11 Jeremy went out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin, and to divide possession there in the sight of the citizens. 12 And when he was come to the gate of Benjamin, there was there the keeper of the gate by course, one named Jerias, the son of Selemias, the son of Hananias: and he apprehended Jeremy the Prophet, saying: (b) Thou flyest to the Chaldees.

(b) It is an old device of persecuters to pretend false causes against the innocent; so Iulian the Apostata charged Christian Catholics with treason & sedition. Hist. tripart. li. 6. c. 27. So did also the Arians, Vandals, & other heretics against Catholics, as Ruffinus and Victor testify.

13 And Jeremy answered: It is not so, I fly not to the Chaldees. And he heard him not: but took Jeremy, and brought him to the Princes. 14 For which thing the Princes being angry against Jeremy, they beat him, and cast him into the prison that was in the house of Jonathan the scribe: for he was chief over the prison. 15 Jeremy therefore went into the house of the lake, and into the dungeon: and Jeremy sat there many days. 16 But Sedecias the king sending took him: and demanded of him in his house secretly, and said: Thinkest thou the word is from our Lord? And Jeremy said: It is. And he said: Thou shalt be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon. 17 And Jeremy said to king Sedecias, what have I sinned against thee, and thy servants, and thy people, that thou hast cast me into the prison house? 18 Where are your Prophets that did prophesy to you, and said: The king of Babylon shall not come upon you & upon this land? 19 Now therefore hear I beseech thee my lord king: let my petition be available in thy sight: and send me not back into the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there. 20 King Sedecias therefore commanded that Jeremy should be committed in the entry of the prison: and there should be given him a piece of bread every day, beside broth, till all the bread were spent out of the city: and Jeremy remained in the entry of the prison.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The nobles being offended with Jeremy's preaching, solicit to have him slain: 5. the king putting him in their hands, they cast him into a dirty dungeon, 7. from whence at the instance of Abdemelech an Aethiopian, he is drawn forth, 14. and having licence to speak, he adviseth the king to yield himself to the Chaldees, so he and the city shall be safe: 18. otherwise shall be taken captive, 24. which the king commandeth him to keep secret.

And Saphatias the son of Mathan, and Gedelias the son of Phassur, and Juchal the son of Selemias, and Phassur the son of Melchias heard the words, that Jeremy spake to all the people, saying: 2 Thus saith our Lord: Whosoever shall remain in this city, shall die by sword, and famine, and pestilence: but he that shall fly to the Chaldees, shall live, and his life shall be safe and (a) living.[1]

(a) The Hebrew phrase life shall be living, and, living he shall live, signifieth that he shall live most securely. Mystically this safety in voluntary banishment signifieth, that voluntary temporal penance saveth from eternal damnation. [1] Iere. 21. v. 9.

3 Thus saith our Lord: By delivering this city shall be delivered into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it. 4 And the Princes said to the king: We desire thee that this man may be put to death: for of purpose he weakeneth the hands of the men of war, that are remaining in this city, and the hands of the people, speaking to them according to these words: for this man seeketh not peace to this people, but evil. 5 And king Sedecias said: Behold he is in your hands: for it is not lawful for the king to deny you any thing. 6 They therefore took Jeremy, and cast him into the lake of Melchias the son of Amelech, which was in the entry of the prison: & they let down Jeremy by ropes into the lake, wherein there was no water, but mire. Jeremy therefore sunk down into the mire. 7 But (b) Abdemelech the Aethiopian an eunuch, that was in the king's house, heard that they had cast Jeremy into the lake: moreover the king sat in the gate of Benjamin.

(b) God ever moveth some to pity the innocent afflicted, till at last he giveth them a crown of glory for their constant patience.

8 And Abdemelech went out of the king's house, and spake to the king, saying: 9 My lord king, these men have done all things naughtily, whatsoever they have done against Jeremy the Prophet, casting him into the lake, that he may die for famine, for there is no more bread in the city. 10 The king therefore commanded Abdemelech the Aethiopian, saying: Take with thee from hence thirty men, and lift up Jeremy the Prophet out of the lake, before he die. 11 Abdemelech therefore taking the men with him, entered into the king's house, that was under the cellar: and he took thence old rags, and old things that were rotten: and he let them down to Jeremy into the lake by cords. 12 And Abdemelech the Aethiopian said to Jeremy: Put the old rags, and these rent and rotten things under the cubit of thine arms, & upon the ropes: Jeremy therefore did so. 13 And they drew out Jeremy with the cords, and brought him forth out of the lake. And Jeremy remained in the entry of the prison. 14 And king Sedecias sent, and took to him Jeremy the Prophet to the third door, that was in the house of our Lord: and the king said to Jeremy: I ask thee a word, hide not any thing from me. 15 And Jeremy said to Sedecias: If I shall tell thee, wilt thou not kill me? And if I give thee counsel, thou wilt not hear me. 16 King Sedecias therefore sware to Jeremy secretly, saying: Our Lord liveth, that made us this soul, if I kill thee, and if I deliver thee into the hands of these men, that seek thy life. 17 And Jeremy said to Sedecias: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: (c) If going forth thou wilt go out to the princes of the king of Babylon, thy soul shall live, and this city shall not be burnt with fire: and thou shalt be safe, and thine house.

(c) Prophecies are not only certain when a thing is absolutely affirmed, but also when they are conditional, as this was, and the event should have been accordingly if the king had followed the prophet's advise, though by not going^ the contrary captivity, and much misery happened to the king and people.

18 But if thou wilt not go out to the princes of the king of Babylon, this city shall be delivered into the hands of the Chaldees, and they shall burn it with fire: and thou shalt not escape out of their hand. 19 And king Sedecias said to Jeremy: I am careful because of the Jews, that are fled to the Chaldees: lest perhaps I be delivered into their hands, & they mock me. 20 But Jeremy answered: They shall not deliver thee, hear I beseech thee the word of our Lord, which I speak to thee, and it shall be well with thee, and thy soul shall live. 21 But if thou wilt not go forth: this is the word, which our Lord hath shewed me: 22 Behold all the women, that are remaining in the house of the king of Juda, shall be brought out to the Princes of the king of Babylon: and they shall say: Thy peaceable men have seduced thee, and have prevailed against thee, they have drowned thy feet in the mire, and in a slippery place, and are revolted from thee. 23 And all thy wives, and thy sons shall be brought out to the Chaldees, and thou shalt not escape their hands, but thou shalt be taken in the hand of the king of Babylon: and he shall burn this city with fire. [1]

24 Sedecias therefore said to Jeremy: let none know these words, and thou shalt not die. 25 But if the Princes shall hear, that I have spoken with thee: and shall come to thee, and say to thee: Tell us what hast thou spoken with the king, conceal not from us, and we will not kill thee. 26 Thou shalt say to them: I did prostrate my prayers before the king, that he would not command me to be carried back into the house of Jonathan, and there die. 27 All the Princes therefore came to Jeremy, and asked him: and he spake to them according to all the words, that the king had commanded him, and they left him: for nothing had been heard. 28 But Jeremy remained in the entry of the prison, until the day, that Jerusalem was taken: and it came to pass that Jerusalem was taken.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Jerusalem after two years siege is taken by the Chaldees: 4. King Sedecias with others flying by a postern gate, is taken, brought to the King of Babylon, all his sons are slain, his eyes put out, and so led into Babylon. 8. The king's palace and the town house are burned; the walls of the city destroyed, the people carried captive, only the poorest left to till the ground. 11. Jeremias is delivered. 15. And Abdemelech is saved from danger.

In the ninth year of Sedecias the king of Juda, the tenth month, came Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, & all his army to Jerusalem, and they besieged it.[1]

[1] 4. Reg. 25. Iere. 25.

2 And in the eleventh year of Sedecias, the fourth month, the fifth of the month the city was opened. 3 And all the Princes of the king of Babylon went in, & (a) sat in the middle gate: Neregal, Sereser, Semegarnabu, Sarsachim, Rabsares, Neregel, Serezer, Rebmag, & all the rest of the Princes of the king of Babylon.

(a) Possession of one gate gave sufficient entrance to the whole army; whereupon the King and his chief nobles fled by a postern gate.

4 And when Sedecias the king of Juda, & all the men of war had seen them, they fled: & they went forth in the night out of the city by the way of the king's garden, and by the gate, that was between the two walls, & they went out to the way of the desert. 5 But the host of the Chaldees pursued them: and they took Sedecias in the field of the desert of Jericho, and being taken they brought him to Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon into Reblatha, which is in the Land of Emath: and he spake unto him (b) judgements.

(b) He expostulated, & justly reproved Sedecias for rebelling, breaking his oath, shewing ingratitude, for so much as Nabuchodonosor had made him King, & reposed confidence in him.

6 And the king of Babylon killed the sons of Sedecias in Reblatha, before his eyes: and the king of Babylon killed all the nobles of Juda. 7 The eyes also of Sedecias he plucked out: and bound him with fetters, to be led into Babylon. 8 The king's house also, and the house of the common people the Chaldees burnt with fire, and they overthrew the wall of Jerusalem. 9 And the remnant of the people, that remained in the city, and the fugitives that were fled to him, and the rest of the people that remained, Nabuzardan the Prince of the soldiers transported into Babylon. 10 And the poor people, that had nothing at all, Nabuzardan the master of the soldiers let alone in the land of Juda, and he gave them vineyards, and cisterns in that day. 11 But Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon had commanded Nabuzardan the Prince of the soldiers concerning Jeremy, saying: 12 Take him, and set thine eyes upon him, and do him no evil: but as he will^ so do to him. 13 Nabuzardan therefore the Prince of the warfare sent; and Nabusezban also, and Rabsares, and Neregel, & Sereser, and Rebmag, and all the nobles of the king of Babylon, 14 sent, & took Jeremy out of the entry of the prison, and delivered him to Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan, that he might enter into the house, and dwell among the people. 15 But to Jeremy the word of our Lord was made, when he was shut up in the entry of the prison, saying: Go, and tell Abdemelech the Aethiopian, saying: 16 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will bring my words upon this city unto evil, and not unto good: and they shall be in thy sight in that day: 17 And I will deliver thee in that day, saith our Lord: and thou shalt not be delivered into the hands of the men, whom thou fearest: 18 but delivering I will deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword: but thy life shall be to thee unto salvation, because thou hast had confidence in me, saith our Lord.

CHAPTER XL.

Jeremy being permitted to go whither he will, 6. repaireth to Godolias, governor of the country. 7. To whom also many Jews come from sundry places. 13. Godolias warned of danger, doth not believe it.[1]

[1] The fifth part.

Jeremy prophesieth the destruction of the Jews going into Aegypt; and of sundry nations for their idolatry, and cruelty.

The word that was made to Jeremy from our Lord, after that he was dismist of Nabuzardan master of the war from Rama, when he took him bound with chains in the midst of all, that went in transmigration of Jerusalem and Juda, and were led into Babylon. 2 The Prince therefore of the war taking Jeremy, said to him: (a) The Lord thy God hath spoken this evil upon this place,

(a) This heathen Prince seeing the Jews afflicted for their sins, confesseth the justice of God, not sparing to punish his own elected people.

3 and hath brought it: and the Lord hath done as he hath spoken because you have sinned to the Lord, and have not heard his voice, and this word is fallen to you. 4 Now then behold I have loosed thee this day from the chains, that are on thy hands: if it please thee to come with me into Babylon, come: and I will set mine eyes upon thee: but if it please thee not to come with me into Babylon, tarry: behold all the land is in thy sight, that which thou shalt choose, and whither it shall please thee to go, thither go. 5 And come not with me: but dwell with Godolias the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, whom the king of Babylon hath appointed chief over the cities of Juda: dwell therefore with him in the cities of Juda: dwell therefore with him in the midst of the people: or whithersoever it shall please thee to go, go. The master of the war gave him victuals also, and gifts, and dismissed him. 6 And Jeremy came to Godolias the son of Ahicam into Masphath: and dwelt with him in the midst of the people, that was left in the land. 7 And when all the Princes of the army, that were dispersed through the countries, they and their companions, had heard, that the king of Babylon had made Godolias the son of Ahicam governor of the country, & that he had commanded unto him men, & women, & children, & those of the poor of the land, that had not been transported into Babylon. 8 Then came to Godolias into Masphath both Ismahel the son of Nathanias, and Johanan, and Jonathan, the son of Caree, and Sareas the son of Thanehumeth, and the children of Ophi, that were of Netophathie, and Jezonias the son of Maachati, they and their men. 9 [1] And Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan sware to them and to their companions, saying: Fear not to serve the Chaldees: dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you.

10 Behold I dwell in Masphath, that I may answer (b) the commandment of the Chaldees, that are sent to us: but you gather ye vintage, and harvest, and oil, and lay it up in your vessels, and abide in your cities which you hold.

(b) Being chief governor he promiseth according to his place to defend the people, to answer for them, and to be their agent & procurator in whatsoever the Chaldees should command, or require of them.

11 Yea and all the Jews, that were in Moab, and among the children of Ammon, and in Idumea, and in all the countries, when it was heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Jewry, & that he had made Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan ruler over them: 12 all the Jews, I say, returned out of all places, to which they had fled, and they came into the land of Juda to Godolias into Masphath: and they gathered wine, and harvest exceeding much. 13 But Johanan the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the host, that had been dispersed in the countries, came to Godolias into Masphath. 14 And they said to him: Know that Baalis the king of the children of Ammon hath sent Ismahel the son of Nathanias to kill thee. And Godolias the son of Ahicam believed them not. 15 But Johanan the son of Caree, spake to Godolias apart in Masphath, saying: I will go, and strike Ismahel the son of Nathanias no man knowing it: lest he kill thee, and all the Jews be dispersed, that are gathered unto thee, and the remnant of Juda perish. 16 And Godolias the son of Ahicam said to Johanan the son of Caree: Do not [1]this word: for thou speakest false of Ismahel.

CHAPTER XLI.

Godolias with other Jews and some Chaldees are slain by Ismahel, sent from the King of Moabites: 8. ten are ransomed for their riches, 11. Johanan taking arms to revenge the slaughter, Ismahel flyeth away, delivering those whom he held captives: 17. and they prepare to fly into Aegypt.

And it came to pass in the seventh month, came Ismahel the son of Nathanias,[1] the son of Elisama of the king's blood, and the nobles of the king, and ten men with him, to Godolias the son of Ahicam into Masphath: and (a) they did eat bread there together in Masphath.

[1] 4. Reg. 25. (a) Such cruel tragedies are commonly achieved by falsehood & treachery, pretending friendship, & intending mischief.

2 And Ismahel the son of Nathanias arose, & the ten men, that were with him, and they struck Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan with the sword, and slew him, whom the king of Babylon had made ruler over the land. 3 All the Jews also that were with Godolias in Masphath, and the Chaldees that were found there, and the men of war did Ismahel strike. 4 And the second day after he had killed Godolias, no man yet knowing it, 5 there came men from Sichem, and from Silo, and from Samaria eighty men: their beard shaven, and their garments rent, and ill favoured: and they had gifts, and frankincense in their hand, to offer in the house of our Lord. 6 Ismahel therefore the son of Nathanias going forth to meet them out of Masphath, went going (b) & weeping: and when he had met them, he said to them: Come to Godolias the son of Ahicam.

(b) Not sincerely weeping, but hypocritically feigning to lament the destruction of the Temple and City.

7 Who when they were come to the midst of the city, Ismahel the son of Nathanias slew them about the midst of the lake, he and the men that were with him. 8 But ten men were found among them, that said to Ismahel: Kill us not: because we have treasures in the field, of wheat, and barley, and oil, and honey. And (c) he ceased, and slew not them with their brethren.

(c) Avarice tameth cruelty when nothing else can.

9 And the lake into the which Ismahel threw all the carcasses of the men whom he struck for Godolias, is the same (d) that king Asa made for Baasa the king of Israel: the same did Ismahel the son of Nathanias fill with them that were slain.

(d) It seemeth that Asa made this lake when he build Maspha. 3. Reg. 15. v. 22.

10 And Ismahel led away captive all the remnant of the people that were in Masphath: the king's daughters, and all the people, that remained in Masphath: whom Nabuzardan the Prince of the war had commended to Godolias the son of Ahicam. And Ismahel the son of Nathanias took them, & he went away, to pass unto the children of Ammon.

11 (e) But Johanan the son of Caree, & all the Princes of the men of war, that were with him, heard all the evil that Ismahel the son of Nathanias had done.

(e) This Johanan and his fellows rose up against Ismahel, lest otherwise they might have been judged to have been of the same conspiracy against Godolias, being fugitives as Ismael was.

12 And taking all the men, they went forth to make battle against Ismahel the son of Nathanias, and they found him at the many waters, that are in Gabaon.
13 And when all the people that was with Ismahel, had seen Johanan the son of Caree, & all the Princes of the men of war, that were with him, they rejoiced.
14 And all the people, whom Ismael had taken, returned into Masphath: and returning they went to Johanan the son of Caree. 15 But Ismahel the son of Nathanias fled with eight men, from the face of Johanan, and went to the children of Ammon.
16 Johanan therefore the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the men of war, that were with him, took all the remnant of the common people, which they had brought back from Ismahel the son of Nathanias out of Masphath, after that he had struck Godolias the son of Ahicam: strong men for battle, & women, & children, & eunuchs, which he had brought back from Gabaon.
17 And they went, & sat sojourning in Chamaam, which is beside Bethlehem: that they might go forward, & enter into Aegypt 18 from the face of the Chaldees: for they feared them, because Ismahel the son of Nathanias had strucken Godolias the son of Ahicam, whom the king of Babylon had made ruler in the land of Juda.

CHAPTER XLII.

Jeremy praying and consulting God, 7. answereth that all those which remain in Jerusalem shall be safe: 13. but those that go into Aegypt shall perish.

And (a) there came all the Princes of the men of war, and Johanan the son of Caree, and Jezonias the son of Osaias, and the rest of the common people from little unto great:

(a) This consultation was piously begun, seeking to Know God's will by his Prophet: but the same people erred grievously in not following his direction, as he foresaw they would not. v. 21. And he further recordeth that they rebelliously opposed against him. ch. 43. v. 2.

2 And they said to Jeremy the Prophet: Let our prayer fall in thy sight: and pray for us to the Lord thy God for all this remnant, because we are left few of many, as thine eyes do behold us. 3 And let our Lord thy God tell us the way, by which we may go, and the [1] word that we must do.

4 And Jeremy the Prophet said to them: I have heard: behold I pray to our Lord your God according to your words: every word whatsoever he shall answer me, I will tell you: neither will I conceal from you any thing.
5 And they said to Jeremy: Be our Lord witness between us of truth and faith, if we do not according to every word, for the which our Lord, thy God shall send thee to us. 6 Whether it be (b) good, or evil, we will obey the voice of the Lord our God, to whom we send thee: that it may be well with us, when we shall hear the voice of the Lord our God.

(b) Whether it seem to bring prosperity or adversity.

7 And when ten days were accomplished, the word of our Lord was made to Jeremy. 8 And he called Johanan the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the men of war, that were with him, and the whole people from little to great. 9 And he said to them: Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel, to whom you sent me, that I should prostrate your prayers in his sight: 10 If resting you will abide in this land, I will build you, and not destroy you; I will plant, and not pluck you up: for now I am pacified upon the evil that I have done to you. 11 Fear not at the face of the king of Babylon, of whom you being fearful are afraid: fear him not, saith our Lord: because I am with you, to save you, and to deliver you out of his hand. 12 And I will give you mercies, and will have mercy upon you, and will make you dwell in your own land. 13 But if you shall say: We will not dwell in this land, neither will we hear the voice of the Lord our God, 14 saying: No, not so: but we will go forward to the Land of Aegypt, where we shall not see war, and not hear the sound of the trumpet, and shall not sustain famine: and there we will dwell. 15 For this now hear the word of our Lord ye remnant of Juda: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: If you shall set your face to go into Aegypt, and shall enter to inhabit there: 16 the sword which you fear, shall there take you in the Land of Aegypt: and the famine, for the which you are careful, shall cleave to you in Aegypt, and there you shall die. 17 And all the men, that shall set their face to go into Aegypt, to dwell there, shall die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: none of them shall remain, nor escape from the face of the evil, that I will bring upon them. 18 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: As my fury is poured out, and mine indignation upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem: so shall mine indignation be poured out upon you, when you shall be entered into Aegypt, and you shall be into (c) an oath, and into astonishment, and into a curse, and into reproach: and you shall no more see this place.

(c) An oath of execration. As Isa. 65. v. 15.

19 The word of our Lord is upon you, o remnant of Juda: Enter not into Aegypt: knowing you shall know that I have adjured you this day, 20 because you have deceived your souls: for you sent me to the Lord our God, saying: Pray for us to the Lord our God, & according to all things whatsoever the Lord our God shall say to thee, so tell us, and we will do. 21 And I have told you this day, and (d) you have not heard the voice of the Lord your God concerning all things, for which he hath sent me to you.

(d) It was a double fault, in that they neither obeyed God speaking by his prophet, nor stood to their own promise. v. 5.

22 Now therefore knowing you shall know that by sword, and famine, and pestilence you shall die in the place, to which you would enter for to dwell there.

CHAPTER XLIII.

The relics of the Jews, against Jeremy's admonitions, go into Aegypt, 6. carrying Jeremy and Baruch with them: 8. where Jeremy prophesieth that the King of Babylon shall spoil that land, 12. and their idols.

And it came to pass, when Jeremy had finished speaking to the people all the words of the Lord their God, for which our Lord their God had sent him to them, all these words: 2 Azarias the son of Osaias said: & Johanan the son of Caree, and all the proud men, saying to Jeremy: (a) Thou speakest a lie: the Lord our God sent thee not, saying: Go not into Aegypt, to dwell there.

(a) Sinful people are easily changed to worse and worse from their good motions. For this insolent calumniation is far from their promise, ch. 42. v. 5. & 6.

3 But Baruch the son of Nerias doth provoke thee against us, that he may deliver us into the hands of the Chaldees, that he may kill us, and make us to be transported into Babylon. 4 And Johanan the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the men of war, & the whole people, heard not the voice of our Lord, to abide in the Land of Juda. 5 But Johanan the son of Caree, and all the Princes of the men of war taking all the remnant of Juda, that were returned out of all nations, to which they had before been dispersed, to dwell in the Land of Juda: 6 men and women, and children, and the king's daughters, and every soul, which Nabuzardan the Prince of the war had left with Godolias the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan, and Jeremy the Prophet, and Baruch the son of Nerias. 7 And they went into the Land of Aegypt, because they obeyed not the voice of our Lord: & they came as far as Taphnis. 8 And the word of our Lord was made to (b) Jeremy in Taphnis, saying:

(b) The obstinate people forced also Jeremy and Baruch to go with them into Aegypt.

9 (c) Take thee great stones in thy hand, and thou shalt hide them in the cave, that is under the brick wall in the gate of Pharao's house in Taphnis: in the sight of the men of Juda.

(c) Where both by words and other signs he prophesieth that the King of Babylon will build his palace in the chief city of Aegypt, and in sign thereof layeth great stones as the foundation of the same. As elsewhere he prophesied by facts. ch. 19. v. 10. c. 27. v. 2. c. 32. v. 7.

10 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will send, and take to me Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon my servant: and I will set his throne over these stones, which I have hid, and he shall set his throne upon them.

11 And coming he shall strike the Land of Aegypt: those that into death, into death: & those that into captivity, into captivity: and those that into the sword, into the sword. 12 And he shall kindle a fire in the temples of the gods of Aegypt, and shall burn the same, and he shall lead them captive: & he shall be clothed with the Land of Aegypt, as a pastor is clothed with his cloak: & he shall go out from thence in peace.

13 And he shall break the statues of the house of the Sun, that are in the Land of Aegypt: and the temples of the gods of Aegypt he shall burn with fire.

CHAPTER XLIV.

The Jews admonished by Jeremy to leave their idolatry, 15. obstinately answer, that they will persist therein. 20. Whereupon he prophesieth their destruction; 28. few escaping that return into Jerusalem. 29. And that the King of Aegypt shall also fall into his enemies' hands.

The word, that was made to Jeremy, to all the Jews, that dwelt in the Land of Aegypt, dwelling in Magdal, and in Taphnis, and in Memphis, and in the Land of Phatures, saying: 2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: (a) You have seen all this evil, that I have brought upon Jerusalem, & upon all the cities of Juda: and behold they are desolate this day, and there is not an inhabiter in them:

(a) It is a very convenient motive, and ought to be effectual unto sinful nations, to see their neighbours fallen into Heresy, Turcism, or Paganism, for their obstinacy in other sins.

3 for the malice, which they have done, to provoke me to wrath, & to go and sacrifice, & worship false gods, which both they, & you, & your fathers knew not. 4 And I have sent to you all my servants the Prophets, in the night rising, and sending and saying: Do not the word of this manner of abomination, which I hated. 5 And they heard not, nor inclined their ear to return from their evils, & not to sacrifice to strange gods. 6 And mine indignation, and my fury is poured out, & it is kindled in the cities of Juda, & in the streets of Jerusalem: & they are turned into desolation & waste according to this day. 7 And now thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Why do you this great evil against your own souls, that there should die of you man and woman, child and suckling out of the midst of Juda, and nothing be left remaining unto you: 8 provoking me in the works of your hands, in sacrificing to strange gods in the Land of Aegypt, into which you are entered to inhabit there: and that you should perish, and be a malediction, and a reproach to all the nations of the earth? 9 Why, have you forgotten the evils of your fathers, and the evils of the kings of Juda, and the evils of their wives, and your evils, and the evils of your wives, that they have done in the Land of Juda, and in the countries of Jerusalem?

10 They are not cleansed even to this day: and they have not feared, and they have not walked in the law of the Lord, and in my precepts, which I have given before you and your fathers. 11 [1] Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will set my face upon you to evil: and I will destroy all Juda.

[1] Amos 9.

12 And I will take the remnant of Juda, which have set their face to go into the Land of Aegypt, and to dwell there, and they shall be all consumed in the Land of Aegypt: they shall fall by the sword, and by famine: & they shall be consumed (b) from the least even to the greatest, by the sword, and by famine shall they die: [1]and they shall be for an oath, and for a miracle, and into malediction, and into reproach.

(b) Not all absolutely, but the greatest part and well near all: for some shall fly from thence. v. 14. & 28.[1]Ch. 42. v. 18.

13 And I will visit the inhabitants of the Land of Aegypt, as I have visited upon Jerusalem in sword, and famine, and pestilence. 14 And there shall be none that shall escape, and be remaining of the remnant of the Jews, that go to sojourn in the Land of Aegypt: & that shall return into the Land of Juda, to the which they elevate their souls, for to return and dwell there: there shall none return but they that shall fly. 15 But all the men that knew that their wives sacrificed to strange gods: and all the women of whom there stood a great multitude, and all the people of the inhabitants in the Land of Aegypt in Phatures, answered Jeremy, saying: 16 The word, which thou hast spoken to us in the name of our Lord, we will not hear of thee: 17 But doing we will do every word, that shall proceed out of our own mouth, to sacrifice unto (c)the queen of heaven, and to offer libaments unto her, as we and our fathers have done, our kings, and our Princes in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, and we were filled with bread, and it was well with us, and we saw no evil.

(c) They reputed the moon as Queen, and the sun as King of the stars: more peculiarly men did sacrifice to the sun, and women to the moon, but so that all did cooperate in both. For the children gathered sticks^ the fathers kindled the fire, and women tempered the dough, and made cakes unto the queen of heaven. ch. 7. v. 18. 4. Reg. 23. v. 5.

18 But from that time, since we ceased to sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to offer libaments unto her, we lack all things, & we are consumed with sword, & famine. 19 And if we sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and offer libaments to her: why, have we without our husbands made her cakes to worship her, and to offer libaments to her? 20 And Jeremy said to all the people against the men, and against the women, and against all the people, that had answered him the word saying: 21 Why, the sacrifice that you have sacrificed in the cities of Juda, and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your fathers, your kings, and your Princes, and the people of the land, is not our Lord mindful of them, and hath it not ascended upon his heart? 22 And our Lord would bear no longer for the malice of your studies, and for the abominations, which you have done, and your land is brought into desolation, and into astonishment, and into malediction, for that there is not an inhabiter, as is this day. 23 Because you have sacrificed to idols, and have sinned to our Lord: and have not heard the voice of our Lord, and have not walked in his law, and in his precepts, and in his testimonies: therefore are these evils fallen to you, as is this day. 24 And Jeremy said to all the people, and to all the women: Hear you the word of our Lord all Juda, which are in the Land of Aegypt: 25 Thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, saying: You, and your wives have spoken with your mouth, and have accomplished with your hands, saying: Let us perform our vows which we have vowed, to sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to offer libaments to her: you have fulfilled your vows, and have done them in work. 26 Therefore hear ye the word of our Lord all Juda, which dwell in the Land of Aegypt: Behold I have sworn by my great name, saith our Lord: that my name shall no more be called by the mouth of every man of Juda, saying: Our Lord God liveth^ in all the Land of Aegypt. 27 Behold I will watch upon them to evil, and not to good: and all the men of Juda that are in the Land of Aegypt, shall be consumed, with sword, and famine, till they be utterly consumed. 28 And they that shall escape the sword, shall return out of the Land of Aegypt into the Land of Juda a few men: and all the remnant of Juda that go into the Land of Aegypt, to dwell there, shall know, whose word is accomplished, mine, or theirs. 29 And this shall be a sign for you, saith our Lord, that I visit upon you in this place: that you may know that my words shall be accomplished indeed against you to evil. 30 Thus saith our Lord: Behold I will deliver Pharao Ephree the king of Aegypt into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that seek his life: as I have delivered Sedecias the king of Juda into the hand of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon his enemy, and that seeketh his life.

CHAPTER XLV.

Jeremy reprehendeth Baruch for lamenting in affliction.

The word that Jeremy spake to Baruch the son of Nerias, when he had written these words in a book, from the mouth of Jeremy, in the fourth year of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda, saying: 2 Thus saith our Lord the God of Israel to thee Baruch: 3 Thou hast said: Woe is me wretch, because our Lord hath added (a) sorrow to my sorrow: I have laboured in my mourning, & have not found rest.

(a) Baruch seeing the people much afflicted, & understanding by Jeremy's Prophecy, that they should yet be more punished, lamented the same.

4 Thus saith our Lord: Thus shalt thou say to him: Behold, them whom I have builded, I do destroy: and whom I have planted, I do pluck up, and all this land. 5 And doest thou seek to thyself great things? Seek not: for behold I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith our Lord: and I will give (b) thee thy life into safety in all places, whither-soever thou shalt go.

(b) God granted not his prayer for the people but for himself only.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Jeremy prophesieth that the King of Babylon shall invade Aegypt, 13. and waste the cities and land: 25. which shall again be repaired. 27. And the relics of the Jews shall be delivered from sundry places of captivity.

The word of our Lord that was made to Jeremy the Prophet against (a) the Gentiles,

(a) As partly before, so more especially in the chapters following^ the Prophet foresheweth the punishment of diverse gentiles which were the chiefest enemies to the Jews.

2 to Aegypt against the army of Pharao Nechao the king of Aegypt, which was beside the river Euphrates in Charcamis, whom Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon struck, in the fourth year of Joakim the son of Josias king of Juda. 3 Prepare ye shield, & buckler, and go forth to battle. 4 Yoke horses, & mount ye horsemen: stand in helmets, furbish the spears, put on coats of mail. 5 What then? (b) I saw them fearful, and turning their backs, their valiants slain: they fled in haste, neither looked they back: terror on every side, saith our Lord.

(b) It is the common manner of Prophets to speak in the pretertense of things to come, for the infallible certainty thereof.

6 Let not the swift fly, nor the strong think that he is safe: Toward the north by the river Euphrates they were overcome, and fell down. 7 Who is this that riseth up as a flood: and as it were of rivers, so his streams do swell? 8 Aegypt riseth up like a flood, & the waves thereof shall be moved as rivers, & shall say: Rising up I will cover the earth: I will destroy city, and the inhabitants thereof. 9 Get ye up on horses, & in chariots, & let the valiants come forth, Aethiopia, and the Libyans holding the shield, and the Lydeans taking, and shooting arrows. 10 And that day of our Lord the God of hosts, is a day of revenge, that they may take vengeance of his enemies: the sword shall devour, and be filled, and shall be drunken with their blood: for the victim of our Lord the God of hosts is in the Land of the North by the river Euphrates. 11 Go up into Galaad, & take resin (c) o virgin the daughter of Aegypt: thou doest in vain multiply medicines, there shall not be health to thee.

(c) Aegypt accounted it-self invincible: and so the Prophet ironyously calleth it the virgin daughter, as in this whole passage he speaketh by the same figure ironia, willing them to do those things which should nothing help nor profit them, as appeareth by the next words: Thou doest in vain multiply medicines, or remedies, and v. 5. 10. 16.

12 The Gentiles have heard thine ignominy, and thine howling hath filled the earth: because the strong hath stumbled against the strong, and both are fallen together. 13 The word that our Lord spake to Jeremy the Prophet, concerning this, that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon should come and strike the Land of Aegypt: 14 Tell Aegypt, and make it heard in Magdal, and let it sound in Memphis, and in Taphnis: Say ye: Stand, and prepare thyself: because the sword shall devour those things, that be round about thee. 15 Why is thy valiant become rotten? He stood not: because our Lord hath overthrown him. 16 He hath multiplied them that fall, and man hath fallen against his neighbour, and they shall say: Arise, and let us return to our people, and to the Land of our nativity, from the face of the sword of [1]the dove.

17 Call ye the name of Pharao the king of Aegypt, Tumult, Time hath brought it. 18 I live (saith the King, the Lord of hosts is his name) that as Thabor in the mountains, and as Carmel in the sea, he shall come. 19 Make ye vessels of transmigration o daughter inhabitant of Aegypt: because Memphis shall be in desolation, and shall be forsaken, and shall be inhabitable. 20 Aegypt a trim and beautiful heifer: a pricker from the North shall come to her. 21 Her hirelings also that conversed in the midst of her, as fatted calves are turned, and are fled together, neither could they stand: because the day of their slaughter came upon them, the time of their visitation. 22 Her voice shall sound as if it were of brass, because they shall hasten with an army, & with axes they shall come to her, as it were cutting trees. 23 They have cut down her forest, saith our Lord, which cannot be counted: they are multiplied above locusts, and are without number. 24 The daughter of Aegypt is confounded, and delivered into the hand of the people of the North. 25 The Lord of hosts the God of Israel hath said: Behold I will visit upon the tumult of Alexandria, and upon Pharao, and upon Aegypt, and upon her gods, and upon her kings, and upon Pharao, and upon them that trust in him. 26 And I will give them into the hand of them that seek their life, and into the hand of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and into the hand of his servants: and after these things it shall be inhabited as in the days of old, saith our Lord. 27 And (d)thou my servant Jacob fear not,[1] and be not thou afraid Israel: because lo I will save thee from a far, and thy seed out of the land of thy captivity: and Jacob shall return, and rest, and prosper: and there shall be none to terrify him.

(d) Seeing God will reduce the Aegyptians from captivity, much less need the Israelites to fear God's promise, that he will restore them being his own peculiar people. [1] Isa. 43. & 44. Iere. 30.

28 And thou my servant Jacob fear not, saith our Lord: because I am with thee, because I will consume all the nations, to the which I have cast thee out: but thee I will not consume, but I will chasten thee in judgement, neither will I spare thee as innocent.

CHAPTER XLVII.

The desolation of the Philisthiims, Tyre, Sidon, Gaza, and Ascalon, is prophesied.

The word of our Lord that was made to Jeremy the Prophet against the Palesthines,[1] before Pharao struck Gaza:

[1] Isa. 14. & 21.

2 Thus saith our Lord: Behold there come up waters from (a)the North, and they shall be as a torrent overflowing, and they shall cover the earth, and the fullness thereof, the city and the inhabitants thereof: men shall cry, and all the inhabitants of the land shall howl

(a) Babylon which is northward from Palestina.

3 at the noise of the pomp of the armour, and of his men of war, at the commotion of his chariots, and the multitude of his wheels. The fathers have not respected the children, being of dissolute hands, 4 for the coming of the day, wherein all the Philisthiims shall be wasted, and Tyre, and Sidon shall be destroyed with all the rest of their aids. For our Lord hath spoiled the Palesthines, the remnant of the isle of Cappadocia. 5 Baldness is come upon Gaza. Ascalon hath held her peace, and the remnant of her valley, how long shalt thou be hewed? 6 O sword of our Lord, how long wilt thou not be quiet? Get into thy scabbard, be cooled, and be still. 7 How shall it be quiet when our Lord hath commanded it against Ascalon, and against the countries thereof by the sea side, and there^ hath made appointment with it?

CHAPTER XLVIII.

A Prophecy of the vastation of Moab 29. for their pride: 47. but their captivity shall at last be released.

To Moab thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Woe upon (a) Nabo, because it is wasted, and confounded: Cariathaim is taken: the strong one is confounded, and hath trembled. [1]

(a) Nabo a chief city of Moab (as also Medaba, Isa. 15.) and Cariathaim, Hesebon, Oronaim, and the rest, v. 18. &c. shall be destroyed. [1] Isa. 15. & 16.

2 There is no more rejoicing in Moab: against Hesebon they have thought evil. Come, and let us destroy it from being a nation. Therefore shalt thou in silence hold thy peace, and the sword shall follow thee. 3 The voice of a cry from Oronaim: waste, and great destruction. 4 Moab is destroyed: proclaim a cry to her children. 5 For by the ascent of Luith shall the mourner go up in weeping: because in the descent of Oronaim the enemies have heard the howling of destruction: 6 Fly, save your lives: & you shall be as heath in the desert. [1]

[1] Iere. 17.

7 For that thou hast had confidence in thy munitions, and in thy treasures, thou also shalt be taken: and (b) Chamos shall go into transmigration, his Priests, and his Princes together.

(b) A great idol of the Moabites. Num. 21. v. 29. 3. Reg. 11. v. 7. 33. & 44. Reg. 23. v. 13. shall be overthrown; to shew the vanity in trusting to false gods.

8 And the spoiler shall come to every city, and no city shall be saved: and the valleys shall perish, & the champion countries shall be destroyed: because our Lord hath said: 9 Give ye the flower to Moab, because flourishing it shall go out: and her cities shall be desolate, and inhabitable. 10 Cursed be he that doeth the work of our Lord fraudulently: and cursed that stayeth his sword from blood. 11 Moab hath been fruitful from his youth, and hath rested in his dregs: neither hath he been poured out of vessel into vessel, and hath not gone into transmigration: therefore hath his taste remained in him, and his savour is not changed. 12 Therefore behold the days come, saith our Lord: and I will send unto him those that shall order and dispose of his pots, and they shall overthrow him, and shall empty his vessels, and dash their pots one against another. 13 And Moab shall be ashamed of Chamos, as the house (c) of Israel was ashamed of Bethel, wherein it had confidence. [1]

(c) The Kingdom of the ten tribes trusted as vainly in their calf set up by Jeroboam in Bethel. 3. Reg. 12. [1] 3. Reg. 12.

14 How say ye: We are valiant, and strong men to fight? 15 [1] Moab is wasted, and her cities they have cast down: & her chosen young men are gone down into slaughter: saith the King, the Lord of hosts is his name.

[1] Isa. 16.

16 The destruction of Moab is nigh to come: the evil thereof shall come exceeding swiftly. 17 Comfort him all ye that are round about him, and all you that know his name, say: How is the strong rod broken, the glorious staff? 18 Come down from thy glory, and sit in drought, o habitation of the daughter of Dibon: Because the waster of Moab shall come up to thee, he shall destroy thy munitions. 19 Stand in the way, and look o habitation of Aroer: ask of him that flyeth: and say to him that hath escaped: What is chanced? 20 Moab is confounded, because he is overcome: howl ye, and cry, declare in Arnon, that Moab is wasted.

21 And judgement is come to the champion country: upon Helon, and upon Jasa, and upon Mephaath,
22 and upon Dibon, and upon Nabo, & upon the house of Deblathaim, 23 and upon Cariathaim, and upon Bethgamul, and upon Bethmaon, 24 and upon Carioth, and upon Bosra: and upon all the cities of the Land of Moab, that are far, and near. 25 The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, saith our Lord.
26 Make him drunken, because he is erected against our Lord: and Moab shall wring his hand in his vomiting, and himself also shall be in derision. 27 For (d) Israel hath been in derision unto thee: as though thou hadst found him amongst thieves: for thy words therefore, which thou hast spoken against him, thou shalt be led captive.

(d) Moabites descending from Lot, Abraham's nephew^ derided their kindred in miseries, and are therefore more severely punished.

28 Leave the cities, and dwell in the rock ye inhabitants of Moab, and be ye as a dove making her nest in the highest mouth of the hole. 29 We have heard the pride of Moab, he is proud exceedingly: his haughtiness, and arrogancy, and pride, and loftiness of his heart. 30 I know, saith our Lord, his boasting: and that the strength thereof is not according to it, neither hath it endeavoured to do according to that which it was able. 31 Therefore will I wail upon Moab, and to all Moab will I cry, to the men (e) of the earthen wall that lament.

(e) Men that brag of more strength than they have, are resembled to an earthen wall, v. 36.

32 Of the mourning of Jazer I will weep to thee, o vineyard of Sabama: thy branches have passed over the sea, they are come even to the sea of Jaser: the spoiler hath violently entered upon thine harvest, and thy vintage.[1]

[1] Isa. 16.

33 Joy and gladness is taken away out of Carmel, and out of the Land of Moab, and the wine out of the presses I have taken away: the treader of the grape shall not sing the accustomed cheerful note. 34 From the cry of Hesebon unto Eleale, and Jasa, they have given their voice: from Segor to Oronaim, an heifer of three years old: the waters also of Nemrim shall be very ill. 35 And I will take away from Moab, saith our Lord, him that offereth in the excelses, and that sacrificeth to his gods. 36 Therefore shall my heart sound to Moab as a shalm: and my heart shall give the sound of shalms to the men of the earthen wall: because he hath done more than he could, therefore have they perished. 37 [1] For every head (f) baldness, and every beard shall be shaven: in all hands binding together, & upon every back cloth of hair.

[1] Isa. 15. Ezec. 7. (f) Amongst the Jews and others in those parts, cutting of their hair was a sign of mourning, but with the Romans contrarywise^ mourners suffered their hair grow long. Cicero Orat. pro Pub. Sestio, & pro Cn. Plancio.

38 Upon all the house tops of Moab, & in the streets thereof all mourning: because I have broken Moab as an unprofitable vessel, saith our Lord. 39 How is it overcome, & they have howled? How hath Moab cast down the neck, and is confounded? And Moab shall be in derision, and for an example to all round about him.
40 Thus saith our Lord: Behold he shall fly as an eagle, and shall stretch forth his wings to Moab.
41 Carioth is taken, and munitions are won: and the heart of the valiants of Moab in that day, shall be as the heart of a woman in travail. 42 And Moab shall cease to be a people: because he hath gloried against our Lord. 43 Fear, and pit, & snare upon thee o inhabiter of Moab, saith our Lord. 44 [1] He that shall fly from the face of fear, shall fall into the pit: and he that shall come up out of the pit, shall be taken in the snare: for I will bring upon Moab the year of their visitation, saith our Lord.[2]

[1] Isa. 24. [2] Num. 21.

45 They stood in the shadow of Hesebon that fled from the snare: because there came a fire out of Hesebon, and a flame out of the midst of Sehon, and it hath devoured part of Moab, and the top of the children of tumult. 46 Woe to thee Moab, thou hast perished, o people of Chamos: because thy sons are taken, and thy daughters into captivity. 47 And I will convert the captivity of Moab (g) in the last days, saith our Lord. Hitherto the judgements of Moab.

(g) All Nations shall be converted to the Church of Christ. For other conversion of Moab, Ammon, Aelam, or the like, is not recorded in holy scripture, nor other history.

CHAPTER XLIX.

The like vastation of Ammon (6. who shall be again restored.) 7. destruction of Idumea: 27. of the Syrians, 28. Agarenes, 34. and Aelamites: 39. whose captivity shall at last be released.

To the children of Ammon. Thus saith our Lord: Why, (a) hath Israel no children? Or hath he not an heir? Why then hath (b) Melchom by inheritance possessed Gad: and his people dwelt in his cities?

(a) When the ten tribes were carried into captivity, the Ammonites possessed the inheritance of Gad by intrusion, as next neighbours, & of their kindred, as though all the Israelites had been utterly destroyed. (b) And therefore God expostulateth this injury and absurdity, that the people of Melchom, the idol of the Ammonites (4. Reg. 23.) should invade the inheritance of his own people.

2 Therefore behold the days come saith our Lord: and I will make the noise of battle to be heard upon Rabbath the children of Ammon, and it shall be destroyed into an heap, and her daughters shall be burnt with fire, & Israel shall possess his possessors, saith our Lord. 3 Howl Hesebon, because Hai is wasted. Cry ye daughters of Rabbath, gird yourselves with cloths of hair: mourn and go about by the hedges: because Melchom shall be led into transmigration, his Priests, and his Princes together. 4 What gloriest thou in the valleys? Thy valley hath flowed away o delicate daughter, which didst trust in thy treasures, & saidst: Who shall come to me? 5 Behold I will bring terror upon thee, saith our Lord the God of hosts, from all that are round about thee: & you shall be dispersed every one from another's sight, neither shall there be any to gather together them that fly. 6 And after these things I will make the captives of the children of Ammon to return, saith our Lord. 7 To Idumea. Thus saith the Lord of hosts: (c) Why is wisdom no more in Theman? Counsel is perished from the children: their wisdom is become unprofitable.

(c) The Idumeans were worldly wise, but became foolish in the way of serving God.

8 Fly and turn your backs, go down into the gulf ye inhabitants of Dedan: because I have brought the perdition of Esau upon him, the time of his visitation. 9 If the grape gatherers had come upon thee, they had not left a cluster: if thieves in the night, they had taken that should suffice them. 10 But I have discovered Esau, I have revealed his secrets, and he cannot be concealed: his seed is wasted, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and he shall not be. 11 Leave thy pupils: I will make them live: and thy widows shall hope in me. 12 For thus saith our Lord: Behold they whose judgement was not to drink the cup, drinking shall drink: and shalt thou be left as innocent? Thou shalt not be innocent, but drinking thou shalt drink. 13 Because I have sworn by myself, saith our Lord, that Bosra shall be into desolation, & into reproach, and into a desert, and into malediction: and all her cities shall be into everlasting desolations. 14 [1]I have heard a bruit from our Lord, & a legate is sent to the Nations: Gather yourselves together, and come against her, and let us rise up into battle.

15 For behold I have made thee a little one in the Gentiles, contemptible among men. 16 Thine arrogancy hath deceived thee, and the pride of thy heart: which dwellest in the caves of the rock, and endeavourest to apprehend the height of the hill. When thou shalt exalt thy nest as an eagle,[1] thence will I bring thee down, saith our Lord.

[1] Abd. v. 4.

17 And Idumea shall be desolate: every one that shall pass by it, shall be (d) astonished, & shall hiss upon all the plagues thereof.

(d) As excessive marveling at strange and unexpected events, maketh men to be astonished: so if the same do please them, they hiss thereat, signifying contempt. Terms often used by this prophet.

18 [1]As Sodom is overthrown and Gomorrha, and her neighbours saith our Lord: there shall not a man dwell there, and there shall no son of man inhabit it.

[1] Gen. 19. Iere. 50.

19 Behold as a lion he shall come up from the pride of Jordan, to the strong beautifulness: because I will make him run suddenly to her: & who shall be a chosen one whom I may appoint over her? For who is like to me? And who shall abide me? And who is this Pastor that can resist my countenance?[1]

[1] Iob. 41.

20 Therefore hear ye the counsel of our Lord, which he hath taken concerning Edom: and his cogitations, which he hath thought concerning the inhabitants of Theman: If the little ones of the flock shall not cast them down, if they shall not destroy their habitation with them. 21 At the voice of their ruin the earth is moved: the cry of their voice is heard in the Red sea. 22 Behold he shall come up as an eagle, & fly out: and he shall spread his wings over Bosra: and the heart of the strong of Idumea shall be in that day, as the heart of a woman in travail. 23 (e)To Damascus. Emath is confounded and Arphad: because they have heard a very ill bruit, they are troubled in the sea: for carefulness it could not be quiet.

24 Damascus is undone, she is turned into flight, trembling hath apprehended her: anguish and sorrows have held her as a woman in travail. 25 How have they forsaken the laudable city, the city of joy!
26 Therefore shall her young men fall in her streets: and all the men of war shall be silent in that day, saith the Lord of hosts. 27 And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall devour the walls of Benadad. 28 (f)To Cedar, and to the kingdoms of Asor, which Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath strucken. Thus saith our Lord: Arise, & go ye up to Cedar, and waste the children of the East.

(f) Cedar was one of Ismael's sons, and Asor the chief city of the Agarens, to whom this Prophecy pertaineth.

29 They shall take their tabernacles, and their flocks: their curtains, and all their vessels, & their camels they shall take to them: and they shall call upon them fear round about. 30 Fly ye, get away speedily, sit in deep pits you that inhabit Asor, saith our Lord: for Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath taken counsel against you, & hath devised devices against you. 31 Arise, and go up to the nation that is quiet, and that dwellest confidently, saith our Lord, they have neither doors, nor bars: they dwell alone. 32 And their camels shall be into spoil, & the multitude of beasts for a prey: and I will disperse them into every wind, which have their hair polled: and from every confine of theirs, I will bring destruction upon them, saith our Lord. 33 And Asor shall be for an habitation of dragons, desolate for ever: there shall no man tarry there, nor son of man inhabit it. 34 The word of our Lord that was made to Jeremy the Prophet against (g)Aelam, in the beginning of the kingdom of Sedecias king of Juda, saying:

(g) The Aelamites inhabiting in a part of Persia, did assist the Chaldees against the Jews, and therefore were punished.

35 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will break the bow of Aelam, and their chief strength. 36 And I will bring upon Aelam the four winds from the four coasts of heaven: and I will scatter them into all these winds: and there shall not be a nation, to which the fugitives of Aelam shall not come. 37 And I will make Aelam to fear before his enemies, and in the sight of them that seek their life: and I will bring evil upon them, the wrath of my fury, saith our Lord: and I will send the sword after them, till I consume them.
38 And I will set my throne in Aelam, and destroy kings and Princes from thence, saith our Lord.
39 (h)But in the last days I will cause the captives of Aelam to return, saith our Lord.

(h) This & the like Prophecies, are understood of the conversion of the Gentiles to Christ: begun to be fulfilled when the Holy Ghost descended. Act. 2. v. 7.

CHAPTER L.

Babylon which afflicteth the Israelites in captivity, 4. after their reduction into their country, 8. shall be utterly destroyed.

The word that our Lord hath spoken of (a) Babylon, and the Land of the Chaldees in the hand of Jeremy the Prophet. [1]

(a) Babylonians and other Chaldees the greatest enemies of the Jews were at last overthrown by the Medes and Persians. [1] Isa. 13. & 21.

2 Declare among the Gentiles, and make it heard, lift up a sign: proclaim and conceal it not; say: Babylon is taken, (b) Bel is confounded, Merodach is overcome, their sculptiles are confounded, their idols are overcome.

(b) Bel & Merodach greatest idols of the Chaldees could neither save their clients nor themselves.

3 Because a nation is come up against them from the North, which shall bring her Land into desolation: and there shall be none to dwell therein, from man even to beast, and they are removed, and gone away. 4 In those days, and in that time saith our Lord, the children of Israel shall come, they and the children of Juda together: walking and (c) weeping they shall hasten, and shall seek the Lord their God.

(c) The Jews Returning from captivity wept for joy; as Ioseph did seeing his brethren. Gen. 42. 43. & 45.

5 Into Sion they shall ask the way, their faces hitherward. They shall come, and shall be joined to our Lord by an everlasting covenant, which shall by no oblivion be abolished. 6 My people is become a lost flock, their Pastors have seduced them, & have made them wander in the mountains: they have passed from mountain to hill, they have forgotten their couch. 7 All that found them, have eaten them: and their enemies said: We have not sinned: because they have sinned to the Lord the beauty of Justice, and to the Lord the expectation of their fathers. 8 Depart out of the midst of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldees: and be ye as kids before the flock. 9 Because lo I raise up, and will bring into Babylon an assembly of great nations from the land of (d) the North: and they shall be prepared against her, and thereby she shall be taken: his arrow as a valiant man's that is a killer, shall not return void.

(d) The Medes and Persians dwelling on the North to Babylon overthrew all Chaldea.

10 And Chaldea shall be for a prey: all that waste it shall be filled, saith our Lord. 11 Because you rejoice, and speak great things, spoiling mine inheritance: because you are poured out as calves upon the grass, and you have bellowed as bulls. 12 Your (e) Mother is confounded exceedingly, and made even with the dust, she that bare you: behold she shall be the last among the Gentiles, desolate, without access, and dry.

(e) The whole country of Chaldea is made a prey to the spoilers.

13 Of the wrath of our Lord it shall not be inhabited, but shall be brought wholly into desolation: every one that shall pass by Babylon, shall be astonished, and shall hiss upon all the plagues thereof. 14 Be prepared against Babylon round about all ye that bend bow; overthrow her, spare not arrows: because she hath sinned to our Lord. 15 Cry against her, she hath given the hand every-where, her foundations are fallen, her walls are destroyed, because it is the vengeance of our Lord. Take vengeance of her: as she hath done, so do to her. 16 Destroy the sower out of Babylon, and him that holdeth the sickle in the harvest time: at the face of the sword of (f) the dove every man shall return to his people, and every one shall fly to his own land.

(f) God resembled to a dove in meekness, is severe when he punisheth enormous sinners, ch. 25. v. 38. & 46. v. 16. Or, the King of Babylon is resembled to a dove for his swiftness.

17 Israel is a flock dispersed, lions have cast him out: first the king (g) of Assur did eat him: last this Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath spoiled his bones.

(g) The Assirians led the ten tribes into captivity. 4. Reg. 18. and the Chaldees the two tribes. 4. Reg. 25.

18 Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel: Behold I will visit the king of Babylon and his land, as I have visited the king of Assur: 19 and I will bring Israel again to his habitation: and Carmel shall be fed, and Basan, and in mount Ephraim, and Galaad his soul shall be filled. 20 In those days, and in that time, saith our Lord, the iniquity of Israel shall be sought, and it shall not be: and the sin of Juda, and it shall not be found: because I will be propitious to them, whom I shall leave. 21 Ascend upon the land of them that rule, and visit upon the inhabitants thereof, destroy, and kill the things that are behind them, saith our Lord: and do according to all things that I have commanded thee. 22 A voice of battle in the land, and great destruction. 23 How is the hammer of the whole earth broken, and destroyed? How is Babylon turned into a desert among the nations? 24 I have snared thee, and thou art taken Babylon, and thou knewest it not: thou art found & apprehended, because thou hast provoked our Lord. 25 Our Lord hath opened his treasure, and brought forth the vessels of his wrath: because the Lord the God of hosts hath a work in the land of the Chaldees. 26 Come ye unto her from the uttermost borders, open that they may go forth that shall tread her down: take the stones out of the way, & bring it into heaps, & kill her: neither let there be any thing left. 27 Destroy all her valiants, let them descend into slaughter: woe unto them, because their day is come, the time of their visitation. 28 A voice of them that fly, and of them that have escaped out of the land of Babylon: to tell in Sion the revenge of the Lord our God, the revenge of his temple. 29 Declare ye against Babylon to very many, to all that bend bow: stand together against her round about, and let none escape: repay her according to her work: according to all things, that she hath done, do ye to her: because she is erected against our Lord, against the holy one of Israel. 30 Therefore shall her young men fall in her streets: and all her men of war shall hold their peace in that day, saith our Lord. 31 Behold I to thee thou proud one, saith our Lord the God of hosts: because thy day is come, the time of thy visitation. 32 And the proud shall fall, and tumble down, and there shall be none to raise him up: and I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it shall devour all things round about him. 33 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: (h) The children of Israel, and the children of Juda sustain calumny together: all that have taken them, hold them, they will not let them go.

(h) All the Jews of both Kingdoms being holden captives in strong hands, 34 Their (i) strong redeemer, the Lord of hosts is his name, in judgement will defend their cause, to terrify the land, and to stir up the inhabitants of Babylon.

(i) were redeemed by a stronger arm, by God himself.

35 The sword to the Chaldees, saith our Lord, & to the inhabitants of Babylon, and to her Princes, and to her wise men. 36 The sword to her diviners, who shall be foolish: the sword to her valiants, who shall be afraid. 37 The sword to his horses, and to his chariots, and to all the common people, that is in the midst of her: and they shall be as women: the sword to her treasures, which shall be spoiled. 38 There shall be drought upon her waters, and they shall be dried up: because it is a land of sculptiles, and they glory in monstrous things. 39 Therefore shall the dragons dwell with the foolish murderers: and the ostriches shall dwell in it: and it shall no more be inhabited for ever, neither shall it be built even to generation and generation. 40 [1] As our Lord overthrew Sodom and Gomorrha, and the neighbours thereof, saith our Lord: there shall no man dwell there, & son of man shall not inhabit it.

[1] Gen. 19.

41 Behold a people cometh from the North, and a great nation, and many kings shall rise from the ends of the earth. 42 They shall take bow and shield: they are cruel & unmerciful: their voice shall sound as the sea, and they shall mount upon horses: as a man prepared to battle against thee, o daughter of Babylon. 43 The king of Babylon hath heard the same of them, and his hands are dissolved: anguish hath caught him, sorrow as a woman in travail. 44 Behold (k) as a lion he shall come up (l) from the pride of Jordan to the strong beautifulness: because I will make him run suddenly to her: and who shall be a chosen one, whom I may appoint over her? For who is like to me? And who shall abide me? And who is this Pastor, that can resist my countenance? [1]

(k) As the King of Babylon like a lion destroyed, and devoured others: so at last others destroyed him, and all his forces, coming suddenly upon him. (l) As when Jordan swelling overfloweth the land. [1] Iob. 41.

45 Therefore hear ye the counsel of our Lord, which he hath conceived in his mind against Babylon: and his cogitations, which he hath thought upon the land of the Chaldees: Unless the little ones of the flocks shall pluck them down, unless their habitation shall be destroyed with them. 46 [1] At the voice of the captivity of Babylon the earth is moved, and the cry is heard amongst the Nations.

[1] Apoc. 16.

CHAPTER LI.

More miseries shall fall upon Babylon (11. by the Medes) with destruction of her idols.

Thus saith our Lord: (a) Behold I will raise upon Babylon and upon the inhabitants thereof, which have lifted up their heart against me, as it were a pestilent wind.

(a) In all this chapter the Prophet amplifieth the same he writ in the chapter precedent of the utter destruction of Babylon.

2 And I will send upon Babylon fanners, and they shall fan it, and shall destroy her land: because they are come upon her on every side in the day of her affliction. 3 Let not him that bendeth bend his bow, and let not him go up that is in [1] a brigandine, spare not her young men, kill all her host.

[1] * a coat of mail.

4 And the slain shall fall in the land of the Chaldees, and the wounded in the countries thereof. 5 Because Israel and Juda have not been left as a widow of their God the Lord of hosts: but their land hath been replenished with sin from the holy one of Israel.

6 [1] Flee ye out of the midst of Babylon, and let every one save his own life, hold not your peace upon her iniquity: because it is the time of revenge from our Lord, he will requite her the like.

[1] 2. Cor. 6.

7 Babylon is a golden cup in the hand of our Lord, inebriating all the earth: of her wine have the Nations drunk, and therefore they are in commotion.

8 [1] Babylon is fallen suddenly, and is destroyed: howl ye upon her, take resin for her sorrow, if perhaps she may be healed.

[1] Isa. 21. Apoc. 14.

9 We have cured Babylon, & she is not healed: let us forsake her, and let us go every man to his own land: because her judgement hath reached even to the heavens, & is lifted up unto the clouds. 10 Our Lord hath brought forth our justices: come, and let us tell in Sion the work of the Lord our God. 11 Make sharp the arrows, fill the quivers: our Lord hath raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes: and against Babylon his mind is to destroy it, because it is the revenge of our Lord, the revenge of his temple. 12 Upon the walls of Babylon lift up the ensign, increase the watch: set up watchmen, prepare embushments: because our Lord hath meant, and hath done whatsoever he spake against the inhabitants of Babylon. 13 Thou that dwellest upon many waters, rich in treasures: thine end is come within a foot of thy cutting off.

14 [1] The Lord of hosts hath sworn by his soul: that I will replenish thee with men as it were with the locust, and upon thee shall the merry shout be sung.

[1] Amos 6.

15 He that made the earth in his strength, hath prepared the world in his wisdom, and with his prudence stretched out the heavens. 16 He giving a voice, the waters are multiplied in heaven: who lifteth up the clouds from the extreme part of the earth, lightnings he hath turned into rain: and he hath brought forth the wind out of his treasures. 17 Every man is become a fool by knowledge: every metal caster is confounded in his sculptile, because his casting is counterfeit, neither is there spirit in them. 18 They are vain works, and worthy to be laughed at, in the time of their visitation they shall perish. 19 The portion of

Jacob is not as these things: because he that made all things he it is, and Israel is the sceptre of his inheritance: the Lord of hosts is his name. 20 Thou doest knock together the vessels of war for me, and I will knock together in thee the Gentiles, and I will destroy in thee kingdoms: 21 And I will break in thee the horse, & his rider: and I will knock together in thee the chariot, and the rider thereof. 22 And I will knock together in thee man and woman, and I will knock together in thee the old man and the child, and I will knock together in thee the young man & the virgin: 23 and I will knock together in thee the Pastor and his flock, and I will knock together in thee the husbandman and his drawing cattle, and I will knock together in thee Dukes and Magistrates. 24 And I will render to Babylon, and to all the inhabitants of Chaldee all their evil, that they have done in Sion, before your eyes, saith our Lord. 25 Behold I to thee thou pestiferous mountain, saith our Lord, which corruptest the whole earth: and I will stretch out my hand upon thee, and will roll thee out of the rocks, & will give thee to be a mountain of burning. 26 And they shall not take of thee a stone for the corner, and a stone for foundations, but thou shalt be destroyed for ever, saith our Lord. 27 Lift ye up an ensign in the land: sound with the trumpet among the Gentiles: (b) sanctify the Gentiles upon her: declare against her to the kings of Ararat, Menni, and Ascenez: number Taphsar against her, bring the horse as the stinging locust.

(b) Call together all nations by public proclamation to fight against Babylon.

28 Sanctify the Gentiles against her, the kings of Media, the Dukes thereof, & all the Magistrates thereof, and all the land of his dominion. 29 And the land shall be in a commotion, and shall be troubled: because the cogitation of our Lord shall awake against Babylon, to lay the Land of Babylon desert and inhabitable. 30 The valiants of Babylon have ceased from battle, they have dwelt in holds: their strength is devoured, and they are become as women: her tabernacles are burnt, her bars are broken. 31 A runner shall come to meet the runner, and messenger to meet messenger: to tell the king of Babylon that his city is taken from one end to the other: 32 and the fords are taken beforehand, and the fens be burnt with fire, and the men of war be troubled. 33 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: The daughter of Babylon is as a barn floor, the time of her threshing: yet a little, and the time of her reaping shall come. 34 (c) Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath eaten me, he hath devoured me: he hath made me as an empty vessel: he hath swallowed me up as a dragon, he hath filled his belly with my tenderness, and hath cast me out.

(c) Sion in behalf of all the Jews, sheweth that the Chaldees are justly plagued, for their cruelty against God's people.

35 Iniquity against me, and my flesh upon Babylon, saith the habitation of Sion: and my blood upon the inhabitants of Chaldee, saith Jerusalem. 36 Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I will judge thy cause, and will revenge thy vengeance, & I will make her sea desolate, & will dry up her vein. 37 And Babylon shall be into heaps, the habitation of dragons, astonishment, and hissing, because there is not an inhabiter. 38 They shall roar together as lions, they shall shake the manes as the whelps of lions, 39 In their heat I will set their drink: and I will make them drunk, that they may be drowsy, and sleep an everlasting sleep, and not arise, saith our Lord. 40 I will lead them as lambs to be a victim, and as rams with kids. 41 How is Sesach taken, and the noble one of all the earth apprehended? How is Babylon become an astonishment among the Gentiles? 42 The sea is come up over Babylon: she is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof. 43 Her cities are become an astonishment: a land inhabitable and desolate, a land wherein none can dwell, nor son of man may pass by it. 44 And I will visit upon Bel in Babylon, and I will cast out of his mouth that which he had swallowed: and the Gentiles shall no more run together unto him, for the wall also of Babylon shall fall. 45 Go out of the midst of her my people: that every one may save his life from the wrath of the fury of our Lord. 46 And lest perhaps your hearts faint, and ye fear the bruit, that shall be heard in the land: and there shall come a bruit in the year, & after this year a bruit: and iniquity in the land, & ruler upon ruler. 47 Therefore behold the days come, and I will visit upon the sculptiles of Babylon: and all her land shall be confounded and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her. 48 And the heavens and the earth shall praise upon Babylon, & all things that are in them: because spoilers shall come to her from the North, saith our Lord. 49 And as Babylon caused that there should fall slain in Israel: so of Babylon there shall fall slain in the whole land. 50 You that have escaped the sword, come, stand not: remember our Lord a far off, and let Jerusalem ascend upon your heart. 51 We are confounded, because we have heard reproach: ignominy hath covered our faces: because strangers are come upon the sanctification of the house of our Lord. 52 Therefore behold the days come, saith our Lord: & I will visit upon her sculptiles, and in all her land the wounded shall roar. 53 If Babylon shall ascend up into heaven, and stablish her strength on high, from me there shall come wasters of her, saith our Lord. 54 A voice of crying from Babylon, and great destruction from the Land of the Chaldees: 55 because our Lord hath wasted Babylon, and destroyed out of it the great voice: & their waves shall sound as many waters: their voice hath given a sound. 56 Because the spoiler is come upon her, that is, upon Babylon, & her valiants are apprehended, & their bow is weakened: because the strong revenger our Lord rendering will repay. 57 And I will inebriate her Princes, & her wise men, & her Dukes, and her magistrates, and her valiants: and they shall sleep an everlasting sleep, and shall not awake, saith the King, the Lord of hosts is his name. 58 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: That most broad wall of Babylon by undermining shall be undermined, and her high gates shall be burnt with fire, and the labours of the peoples shall come to nothing, and of the nations shall be into the fire, & shall perish. 59 The word that Jeremy the Prophet commanded Saraias the son of Nerias, the son of Maasias, when he went with Sedecias the king into Babylon, in the fourth year of his kingdom: and Saraias was (d) the Prince of Prophecy.

(d) This Saraias was a principal Levite, to whom it pertained to read and publish the words and writings of prophets.

60 And Jeremy wrote all the evil, that was to come upon Babylon in one Book: all these words, that are written against Babylon. 61 And Jeremy said to Saraias: When thou shalt come into Babylon, and shalt see, & shalt read all these words, 62 thou shalt say: Lord thou hast spoken against this place to destroy it: that there be none to inhabit it from man even unto beast, and that it be a perpetual wilderness. 63 And when thou shalt have finished reading this Book, thou shalt tie a stone to it, and shalt throw it into the midst of Euphrates: 64 and thou shalt say: So shall Babylon be drowned, and she shall not rise up from the face of the affliction, that I will bring upon her, and she shall be dissolved. (e) Hitherto the words of Jeremy.

(e) Thus much Jeremy Prophesied against Babylon.

CHAPTER LII.

A recapitulation of the taking of Jerusalem after two years siege. 7. King Sedecias taken in flight, 10. his children slain before his eyes, with other nobles, 11. his eyes put out, and so led into Babylon, 12. the Temple, the Palace, and other houses burnt, the people carried into captivity (15. few excepted to till the land) 17. the two brazen pillars, lavatory, and all the treasure taken away. 24. All the captives at diverse times four thousand six hundred. 31. Finally King Joachin is exalted in the court.

[1] child of one and twenty years was Sedecias when he began to reign: and eleven years he reigned in Jerusalem: and the name of his mother was Amital, the daughter of Jeremie of Lobna.

[1] This whole history is written more largely in the two last chapters of the fourth book of Kings, & in the last of Paralipomenon.

2 And he did evil in the eyes of our Lord, according to all things that Joakim had done. 3 Because the fury of our Lord was against Jerusalem, & against Juda, till he cast them away from his face: and Sedecias revolted from the king of Babylon. 4 And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, the tenth of the month, came Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, himself and all his army against Jerusalem, and they besieged it, and built against it munitions round about. 5 And the city was besieged until the eleventh year of king Sedecias. 6 And in the fourth month, the ninth of the month, a famine possessed the city: and there were no victuals for the people of the land. 7 And a breach was made into the city, and all the men of war fled, and went out of the city in the night by the way of the gate that is between the two walls, and leadeth to the king's garden (the Chaldees besieging the city round about) & they departed by the way, that leadeth into the wilderness. 8 But the army of the Chaldees pursued the king: and they apprehended Sedecias in the desert, which is beside Jericho: and all his train fled scattering from him. 9 And when they had taken the king, they brought him to the king of Babylon into Reblatha, which is in the land of Emath; and he spake to him judgements. 10 And the king of Babylon killed the sons of Sedecias before his eyes: yea & all the Princes of Juda he slew in Reblatha. 11 And he plucked out the eyes of Sedecias, & bound him with fetters, & the king of Babylon brought him into Babylon: and he put him in the prison house even to the day of his death. 12 And in the fifth month, the tenth of the month, the same is the nineteenth year of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon: came Nabuzardan the Prince of the warfare, who stood before the king of Babylon in Jerusalem. 13 And he burnt the house of our Lord. And the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and every great house he burnt with fire. 14 And all the host of the Chaldees that was with the Prince of the warfare, destroyed all the wall of Jerusalem round about. 15 But of the poor of the people, and of the rest of the vulgar sort, which remained in the city, and of the fugitives, that were fled to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the multitude, Nabuzardan the Prince of the warfare transported. 16 But of the poor of the land Nabuzardan the prince of the warfare left some to be dressers of vineyards, and husbandmen. 17 The brazen pillars also, that were in the house of our Lord, and the feet, and the sea of brass, that was in the house of our Lord, the Chaldees brake: and they took all the brass of them into Babylon. 18 And the kettles, and the fleshhooks, and the psalteries, and the phials, and the little mortars, and all the brazen vessels, that had been in the ministry, they took: 19 and the water pots, and the censers, and the pitchers, and the basins, and the candlesticks, & the mortars, & the goblets: as many as of gold, of gold, & as many as of silver, of silver, did the Prince of the warfare take: 20 and two pillars, & one sea, & twelve oxen of brass, that were under the feet, which king Salomon had made in the house of our Lord: there was no weight of the brass of all these vessels. 21 [1]And concerning the pillars, there were eighteen cubits of height in one pillar: & a cord of twelve cubits did compass it about: moreover the thickness thereof, of four fingers, and within it was hollow.

[1] 3. Reg. 7.

22 And the little heads of brass upon both: the height of one little head, of five cubits: and the little nets, and the pomegranates upon the crown round about, all of brass. Likewise of the second pillar, & the pomegranates. 23 And there were ninety six pomegranates hanging down: and all the pomegranates an hundred, were compassed with little nets. 24 And the master of the warfare took Saraias the chief Priest, and Sophonias the second Priest: and the three keepers of the entry. 25 And of the city he took one eunuch, that was chief over the men of war: and seven men of them, that saw the king's face, that were found in the city: and a scribe the captain of the soldiers, who tried the young soldiers: and three score of the people of the land, that were found in the midst of the city. 26 And Nabuzardan the Prince of the warfare took them, and he brought them to the king of Babylon into Reblatha. 27 And the king of Babylon struck them: and he killed them in Reblatha in the land of Emath: and Juda was transported from his land.

28 This is the people, which Nabuchodonosor transported: In the seventh year, Jews three thousand and twenty three. 29 In the eighteenth year of Nabuchodonosor from Jerusalem souls eight hundred thirty two. 30 In the three and twentieth year of Nabuchodonosor, Nabuzardan the Prince of the warfare transported of the Jews seven hundred forty five souls. All the souls therefore were four thousand six hundred. 31 And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the transmigration of Joachin the king of Juda, the twelfth month, the five and twentieth of the month, Evilmerodach the king of Babylon lifted up in the very year of his reign, the head of Joachin the king of Juda, and he brought him out of the prison house. 32 And he spake with him good things, & he set his throne above the thrones of the kings, that were after himself in Babylon. 33 And he changed his prison garments, and he did eat bread before him always all the days of his life. 34 And his allowance of meat, a continual provision of meat was given him by the king of Babylon, every day a certain, even unto the day of his death, all the days of his life.

THE ARGUMENT OF JEREMIE'S LAMENTATIONS.

THESE Lamentations, in Greek called Threni, and by the Hebrew Rabbins entitled Cinoth, [1] were written by Jeremie before the greatest part of his other Prophecies (as seemeth most probable to S. Jerom) [2] and were first sung at the death of Josias King of Juda. Again when King Sedecias with many others were taken captives, many also slain, and the Temple and city of Jerusalem destroyed. But most especially he prophesieth the Jews' miserable estate, and just cause of Lamentation after Christ's coming, and their rejecting him. And therefore his Church singeth the same in the Anniversary, or Commemoration of his Passion and Death, and most piously inviteth all sinners, both Jews and Gentiles, to return unto Christ our Redeemer, saying: Jerusalem, Jerusalem convertere ad Dominum Deum tuum. [3] In this little book the diligent reader will easily observe many doleful pathetical speeches, poured out from a pensive heart, as in great calamities it commonly happeneth, with little connexion of sentences, but otherwise four whole chapters are very artificially compiled in verse, [4] not by number of times, with measure of long & short syllables, as the Greeks & Latins use, but after the Hebrew manner, observing number of syllables, and beginning every verse with a distinct letter, from the first to the last in order, with some small variety, of the Hebrew Alphabet. Doubtless with great mysteries, [5] as S. Jerom judgeth, and therefore explicateth the significations, and certain connexions of the two and twenty Hebrew letters: as we have noted upon the 118. Psalm: but above the capacity of our understanding. In the last chapter the Prophet omitting the observation of Initial letters, in twenty two verses prayeth lamentably, as the whole people shall pray in captivity.

[1] It is probable that the Lamentations were written before his other prophecies.

[2] 2. Paral. 35. v. 25.

[3] Doleful speeches are commonly uttered without connexion of sentences.

[4] These Lamentations are artificially composed.

[5] And besides the historical sense contain hidden mysteries.

THE THRENES, THAT IS TO SAY, THE LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIE THE PROPHET.

◦And it came to pass, after that Israel was brought into captivity, and Jerusalem was desolate, Jeremie the Prophet sat weeping, and he mourned with this lamentation upon Jerusalem, and with a pensive mind sighing, and wailing he said.

◦ These words are not Jeremie's, but added by the 70. or other Interpreter, as a Preface to his Lamentations.

CHAPTER I.

How [1][2] doth the city full of people, sit solitary: how is the lady of the Gentiles become as a widow: the princess of Provinces is made tributary?

[1] Aleph. [2] The miserable change in Jerusalem made the beholders astonished.

2 [1]Weeping she hath wept in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks: there is none to comfort her of all her dear ones: all her friends have despised her, and are become her enemies.

[1]Beth.

3 [1]Judas is (a)gone into transmigration because of affliction, and the multitude of bondage: she hath dwelt among the Gentiles, neither hath she found rest: all her persecuters have apprehended her within the straits.

[1]Ghimel. (a) Some Jews seeing their brethren led captives into Babylon, went into Aegypt, but there also were in misery.

4 [1]The ways of Sion mourn, because there are none that come to the solemnity: all her gates are destroyed: her priests sighing: her virgins loathsome, and herself is oppressed with bitterness.

[1]Daleth.

5 [1]Her adversaries are made (b)in the head, her enemies are enriched: because our Lord hath spoken upon her for the multitude of her iniquities: her little ones are led into captivity, before the face of the afflicter.

[1]He. (b) It is a desolate misery when enemies obtain dominion.

6 [1]And from the daughter of Sion all her beauty is departed: her princes are become as (c)rams not finding pastures: and they are gone without strength before the face of the pursuer.

[1]Vau. (c) Fleeing from place to place to seek relief.

7 [1]Jerusalem hath remembered the days of her affliction, and prevarication of all her things worthy to be desired, which she had from the days of old, when her people fell in the enemy's hand, and there was no helper: the enemies have seen her, and have scorned her sabbaths.

[1]Zain.

8 [1]Jerusalem hath sinned a sin, therefore is she made unstable: all that did glorify her, have despised her, because they have seen her ignominy: but she sighing is turned backward.

[1]Heth.

9 [1]Her (d)filthiness is on her feet, neither hath she remembered her end: she is pulled down exceedingly, not having a comforter: see o Lord mine affliction, because the enemy is exalted.

[1]Teth. (d) Idolatry which is spiritual adultery.

10 [1]The enemy hath thrust his hand to all her things worthy to be desired: because she hath seen the Gentiles enter into her sanctuary, of whom thou gavest commandment that they should not enter into thy church.

[1]Iod.

11 [1]All her people sighing, and seeking bread: they have given all precious things for meat to refresh the soul, see o Lord and consider, because I am become vile.

[1]Caph.

12 [1]O all ye that pass by the way, attend, and see if there be sorrow like to my sorrow: because he hath made (e)vintage of me, as our Lord hath spoken in the day of the wrath of his fury.

[1]Lamed. (e) First Nabuchodonosor took away much treasure. 4. Reg. 24. afterwards his captain Nabuzardan spoiled all. 4. Reg. 25.

13 [1]From on high he hath cast a fire in my bones, and hath taught me: he hath spread a net for my feet, he hath turned me backward: he hath made me desolate, all the day consumed with sorrow.

[1]Mem.

14 [1]The yoke of mine iniquities hath watched: they are folded together in his hand, and put upon my neck: my strength is weakened: our Lord hath given me into the hand, from which I cannot rise.

[1]Nun.

15 [1]Our Lord hath taken away all my magnifical ones out of the midst of me: he hath called a time against me, to destroy mine elect: our Lord hath trodden the winepress to the virgin the daughter of Juda.

[1]Samech.

16 [1]Therefore am I weeping, and mine eye shedding tears: because a comforter is made far from me, converting my soul: my children are become desolate because the enemy hath prevailed.

[1] Ain.

17 [1] Sion hath spread forth her hands, there is none to comfort her: our Lord hath commanded against Jacob, round about him are his enemies: Jerusalem is become as a woman polluted with menstruous flowers among them.

[1] Phe.

18 [1] Our Lord is just, because I have provoked his mouth to wrath: hear I beseech all ye peoples, and see my sorrow: my virgins, and my young men are gone into captivity.

[1] Sade.

19 [1] I have called (f) my friends, they have deceived me: my priests and my ancients are consumed in the city: because they have sought meat for themselves, to refresh their soul.

[1] Coph. (f) Aegypt wherein the Jews trusted to find aid, could not, or at least did not help them. Ier. 2. v. 18. & 37. v. 4. & 6.

20 [1] See o Lord that I am in tribulation, my belly is troubled: my heart is overturned in myself, because I am full of bitterness: the sword killeth abroad, and at home it is (g) like death.

[1] Res. (g) At home in famine.

21 [1] They have heard that I do sigh, and there is none to comfort me: all mine enemies have heard mine evil, they have rejoiced, because thou hast done it: thou hast brought a day of consolation, and they shall be made like to me.

[1] Sin.

22 [1] Let all their evil enter in before thee: and vintage them, as thou hast vintaged me for all mine iniquities: for my sighings are many, and my heart is sorrowful.

[1] Thau.

CHAPTER II.

How [1] (a) hath our Lord in his fury covered the daughter of Sion with darkness: cast forth the noble one of Israel from heaven to the earth, and hath not remembered the footstool of his feet in the day of his fury.

[1] Aleph. (a) Punishment permitted by God is truly ascribed to him as his fact.

2 [1] Our Lord hath cast down headlong, and hath not spared, all the beautiful things of Jacob: he hath destroyed in his fury the munitions of the virgin of Juda, and cast it down to the ground: he hath polluted the kingdom, and the princes thereof.

[1] Beth.

3 [1] He hath broken (b) every horn of Israel in the wrath of fury: he hath turned away his right hand backward from the face of the enemy: and he hath kindled in Jacob as it were the fire of a flame devouring round about.

[1] Ghimel. (b) Strength and forces are called horns, so every horn signifieth all their strength.

4 [1] He hath bent his bow as an enemy, he hath fastened his right hand as an adversary: and he hast killed all, that was fair to behold in the tabernacle of the daughter of Sion, he hath poured out his indignation as fire.

[1] Daleth.

5 [1] Our Lord is become as an enemy: he hath cast down Israel headlong, he hath cast down headlong all her walls: he hath destroyed the munitions thereof, and hath replenished in the daughter of Juda the humbled man and humbled woman.

[1] He.

6 [1] And he hath destroyed his tent as a garden, he hath thrown down his tabernacle: our Lord hath brought festivity and sabbath in Sion to oblivion: and king and priest into reproach, and into the indignation of his fury.

[1] Vau.

7 [1] Our Lord hath rejected, he (c) hath cursed his sanctification: he hath delivered the walls of the towers thereof into the hand of the enemy: they have made a noise in the house of our Lord, as in a solemn day.

[1] Zain. (c) Suffered his Sanctuary to be polluted.

8 [1] Our Lord hath meant to destroy the wall of the daughter of Sion: he hath stretched out his cord, and hath not turned away his hand from destruction: and the forewall hath mourned, and the wall is destroyed together.

[1] Heth.

9 [1] Her gates are fastened in the ground: he hath destroyed, and broken her bars: her king and her princes in the Gentiles: there is no law, and her prophets have not found vision from our Lord.

[1] Teth.

10 [1] The ancients of the daughter of Sion have sitten on the ground, they have held their peace: they have sprinkled their heads with dust, they are girded with hair cloths, the virgins of Jerusalem have cast down their heads to the ground.

[1] Iod.

11 [1] Mine eyes have failed for tears, my bowels are troubled: my liver is poured out on the earth, for the destruction of the daughter of my people, when the little one, and the sucking fainted in the streets of the town.

[1] Caph.

12 [1] They said to their mothers: Where is wheat and wine? When they fainted as the wounded in the streets of the city: when they yielded up the ghosts in the bosom of their mothers.

[1] Lamed.

13 [1] Whereto shall I compare thee? Or whereto shall I liken thee o daughter of Jerusalem: whereto shall I make thee equal, and comfort thee o virgin daughter of Sion? For great is thy destruction (d) as the sea: who shall heal thee?

[1] Mem. (d) As the sea exceedeth all other waters, so the affliction surpasseth other afflictions, which is spoken by hyperbole to signify the grievousness thereof.

14 [1] Thy prophets have seen false and foolish things for thee: neither have they opened thine iniquity, to provoke thee to penance, but they have seen false burdens and banishments for thee.

[1] Nun.

15 [1] All that passed by the way have clapped their hands upon thee: they have hissed, and moved their head upon the daughter of Jerusalem, saying: Is this the city of perfect beauty, the joy of all the earth?

[1] Samech.

16 [1] All thine enemies have opened their mouth upon thee: they have hissed, and gnashed with the teeth, and have said: We will devour: Lo this is the day, which we expected: we have found it, we have seen it.

[1] Phe.

17 [1] Our Lord hath done the things that he meant, he hath accomplished his word, which he commanded from the days of old: he hath destroyed, and hath not spared, and he hath made the enemy joyful over thee, and hath exalted the horn of thine adversaries.

[1] Ain.

18 [1] Their heart hath cried to our Lord upon the walls of the daughter of Sion: Shed tears as a torrent by day, and night: give no rest to thyself, neither let the apple of thine eye cease.

[1] Sade.

19 [1] Arise, praise in the night in the beginning of the watches: pour out thy heart as waters before the sight of our Lord: lift up thy hands to him for the life of thy little ones, which have fainted for famine in the head of all high ways.

[1] Coph.

20 [1] See o Lord, and consider whom thou hast vintaged thus: (e) shall women then eat their own fruit, little ones of the measure of a span? Is the priest, and the prophet slain in the sanctuary of our Lord?

[1] Res. (e) This happened before in Samaria. 4. Reg. 6. and in the siege of Jerusalem, by Titus and Vespasian.

21 [1] The child and the old man lay on the ground without: my virgins and my youngmen are fallen by the sword: thou hast killed in the day of thy fury: thou hast strucken, (f) neither hast thou had mercy.

[1] Sin. (f) More severely than thou art accustomed.

22 [1]Thou hast called as it were to a solemn day, those that should terrify me round about, and there was none in the day of the fury of our Lord, that escaped and was left: whom I brought up, & nourished, mine enemy hath consumed them.

[1]Thau.

CHAPTER III.

The [1] man (a) that see my poverty in the rod of his indignation.

[1]Aleph. (a) Jeremy himself felt his part of this affliction.

2 [1]He hath led me, and brought me into darkness and not into light.

[1]Aleph.

3 [1]Only against me he hath turned and hath converted his hand all the day.

[1]Aleph.

4 [1]He hath made my skin old and my flesh, he hath broken my bones.

[1]Beth.

5 [1]He hath built round about me, and he hath compassed me with (b) gall and (c) labour.

[1]Beth. (b) Jerusalem was ransacked by Nabuchodonosor. (c) and worse by Nabuzardan.

6 [1]In dark places he hath placed me as the everlasting dead.

[1]Beth.

7 [1]He hath built round about against me, that I go not forth: he hath aggravated my fetters.

[1]Ghimel.

8 [1]Yea and when I shall cry, and ask, he hath excluded my prayer.

[1]Ghimel.

9 [1]He hath shut up my ways with square stones, he hath subverted my paths.

[1]Ghimel.

10 [1]He is become unto me a bear lying in wait: a lion in secret places.

[1]Daleth.

11 [1]He hath subverted my paths, and hath broken me, he hath made me desolate.

[1]Daleth.

12 [1]He hath bent his bow, and set me as a mark for the arrow.

[1]Daleth.

13 [1]He hath shot in my reins the daughters of his quiver.

[1]He.

14 [1]I am made a derision to all my people, their song all the day.

[1]He.

15 [1]He hath replenished me with bitterness, he hath inebriated me with wormwood.

[1]He.

16 [1]And he (d) hath broken my teeth by number, he hath fed me with ashes.

[1]Vau. (d) He describeth his grievous pains, as if his teeth were broken one by one.

17 [1]And my soul is repelled from peace, I have forgotten good things.

[1]Vau.

18 [1]And I said: Mine end is (e) perished, and mine hope from our Lord.

[1]Vau. (e) The end of my life is come.

19 [1]Remember my poverty, and transgression, the wormwood, and the gall.

[1]Zain.

20 [1]Remembering I will be mindful, and my soul shall languish in me.

CHAPTER IV.

How [1] is (a) the gold darkened, the best colour changed, the stones of the sanctuary dispersed in the head of all streets?

[1]Aleph. (a) Whereas the Temple before glistered with gold, now there appeared burnt smoky walls, & pitiful ruins.

2 [1]The noble children of Sion, & they that were clothed with the principal gold: how are they reputed as earthen vessels, the work of the potter's hands?

[1]Beth.

3 [1]Yea even (b) the lamiaes have opened their breast, they have given suck to their young, the daughter of my people is cruel, as (c) the ostrich in the desert.

[1]Ghimel. (b) Lamia hath a face like a woman, a body as other brutish beasts, is cruel to others, yet kind to her own brood: but women of Jerusalem in extreme distress were cruel to their own children. (c) as the ostrich forsaking her eggs.

4 [1]The tongue of the suckling hath cloven to the roof of his mouth for thirst: the little ones have asked bread, and there was none that brake it unto them.

[1] Daleth.

5 [1] They that fed voluptuously, have died in the ways: they that were brought up in scarlet, have embraced the dung.

[1] He.

6 [1] And the iniquity of the daughter of my people is become greater than the sin of Sodom: which was overthrown in a moment, and hands took nothing in her.

[1] Vau.

7 [1] Her Nazareites whiter than snow, purer than milk, ruddier than the old ivory, fairer than the sapphire.

[1] Zain.

8 [1] Their face is made blacker than coals, and they are (d) not known in the streets: their skin hath cloven to their bones, it is withered, and is made as wood.

[1] Heth. (d) One could not know another, though they were acquainted before.

9 [1] It was better with them that were slain with the sword, than with them that were killed by famine: because these pined away consumed by the barrenness of the country.

10 [1] The hands of (e) pitiful women have sodden their own children: they were made their meat (f) in the destruction of (g) the daughter of my people.

[1] Iod. (e) Women being by nature pitiful, were cruel to their own children. (f) In the siege of Jerusalem. (g) In Hebrew phrase cities are called the daughters of the country.

11 [1] Our Lord hath accomplished his fury, he hath poured out the wrath of his indignation: and he hath kindled a fire in Sion, and it hath devoured the foundations thereof.

[1] Caph.

12 [1] The kings of the earth, and all the inhabitants of the world did not believe, that the adversary and the enemy should enter in by the gates of Jerusalem.

[1] Lamed.

13 [1] For the sins of her (h) prophets, and the iniquities of her priests, which have shed the blood of just men in the midst of her.

[1] Mem. (h) False Prophets were called by the name of Prophets, as they seemed in the world to be.

14 [1] The blind wandered in the streets, they were polluted with blood: and when they could not, they held their skirts.

[1] Nun.

15 [1] Depart ye polluted, they cried to them: depart, get ye hence, touch not: for they brawled, & were moved: they said among the Gentiles: He will add no more to dwell among them.

[1] Samech.

16 [1] The face of our Lord hath divided them, he will not add to respect them: they have not reverenced the faces of the priests, neither had they pity on the ancients.

18 [1] Our steps slipped in the way of our streets, our end draweth near: our days are accomplished, because our end is come.

[1] Sade.

19 [1] Our persecuters were swifter than the eagles of the heaven: upon the mountains they pursued us, in the desert they lay in wait against us.

[1] Coph.

20 [1] The spirit of our mouth (i) Christ our Lord is taken in our sins: to whom we have said: In thy shadow shall we live among the Gentiles.

[1] Res. (i) This pertaineth either to King Iosias slain by the Aegyptians. 2. Par. 35. or to Sedecias taken by the Chaldees. Mystically of Christ our Saviour. Isa. 53. v. 5. S. Aug. l. 18. c. 33. de civit.

21 [1] Rejoice, and be glad o daughter of Edom, which dwellest in the Land of Hus: to thee also shall the cup come, thou shalt be made drunken, and naked.

[1] Sin.

22 [1] Thine iniquity is accomplished o daughter of Sion, he will add no more to transport thee: he hath visited thine iniquity o daughter of Edom, he hath discovered thy sins.

[1] Thau.

CHAPTER V.

THE PRAYER OF JEREMIE THE PROPHET.

(a) The Prophet foreseeing in spirit their future state as if it had been present, prayed in the same manner, as the whole people should pray when they were in such calamity.

Remember o Lord what is fallen to us: behold, and regard our reproach. 2 Our inheritance is turned to aliens: our houses to strangers. 3 We are made (b) pupils without father: our mothers are as it were widows.

(b) Many were orphans without fathers, & all were deprived of their King, who was a father of all the people.

4 Our water we have drunk for money: our wood we have bought for a price. 5 We were led by our necks, no rest was given to the weary. 6 We (c) have given our hand to Aegypt, and to the Assyrians, that we might be filled with bread.

(c) We have put ourselves to work and travail in strange countries to get bread to eat.

7 Our fathers have sinned, & they are not: and we have borne their iniquities. 8 Servants have ruled over us: there was none that would redeem us out of their hand. 9 In peril of our lives did we fetch us bread, [1] at the face of the sword in the desert.

[1] * in danger of the sword.

10 Our skin was burnt as an oven, by reason of the tempests of famine. 11 They humbled the women in Sion, and the virgins in the cities of Juda. 12 The Princes were hanged up by the hand: they did not reverence the faces of the ancients. 13 Young men they abused (d) unchastely: and the children fell (e) in wood.

(d) They were made to grind naked in the mill: (e) And beaten with staves.

14 The ancients decayed out of the gates: the youngmen out of the choir of the singers. 15 The joy of our heart hath failed, our choir is turned into mourning. 16 The (f) crown of our head is fallen: woe to us, because we have sinned.

(f) They lost the glory of a kingdom, and were subject to strange and barbarous nations.

17 Therefore is our heart made sorrowful, therefore are our eyes darkened. 18 For mount Sion, because it is perished, foxes have walked on it. 19 But thou o Lord shalt remain for ever, thy throne in generation and to generation. 20 Why wilt thou for ever be forgetful of us? Wilt thou forsake us in length of days? 21 (g) Convert us o Lord to thee, and we shall be converted: renew our days, as from the beginning.

(g) As Iere: 31. v. 18. and S. Aug. l. de gratia & l. arb. c. 2. 4. &c.

22 But rejecting thou hast rejected us, (h) thou art angry against us exceedingly.

(h) Having so severely punished us, we beseech thee now to cease from more.

THE ARGUMENT OF BARUCH'S PROPHECY.

[1] This Prophecy is supposed by many to be Jeremy's.

[2] By others^ accounted Baruch's.

[3] By all^ holden to be Canonical Scripture.

[4] Why S. Ierome urgeth it not against the Jews.

[5] Praefat. Ierem.

[6] The contents.

[1] MANY ancient Fathers suppose this Prophecy to be Jeremie's: though none doubted but Baruch his scribe was the writer thereof. So S. Xystus Epist. ad omnes fideles. S. Prosper. par. 2. c. 9. & p. 3. c. 3. de promiss. & predict. S. Theodoretus, Dialogo 1. Eranistes. (who also writeth commentaries upon this Book, as upon divine Scripture) c. 2. v. 9. These and others allege this Prophecy as Jeremie's. [2] Some also under the name of Baruch. As Origen, li. 2. c. 3. Patriarch. S. Cyril of Alexandria, li. 10. in Iulianum, S. Gregory Nyssen, Orat. 1. de pauperibus amandis. S. Athanasius, Orat. 3. cont. Arianos. Though in his Synopsi he mentioneth not Baruch, yet he, as also S. Augustin, l. 2. c. 8. Doct. Christ. S. Gelacius, dist. 15. and others in their Catalogues of Canonical Scriptures, comprehend this Book under the name of Jeremie. [3] But whether Baruch was the immediate Author under God, or the writer thereof as of another man's Prophecy (as the Evangelists writ the words of Christ and others, in the Gospels, and in the Acts of the Apostles) always it is certain, the Holy Ghost directed him, that he could not err in writing it. And the ancient Fathers, and Councels ever accepted this book as Divine Scripture. The Councel also of Laodicea, in the last Canon, expressly nameth Baruch, Lamentations, and Jeremie's Epistle. And lastly the Councels of Florence, de Unione Armenorum; and of Trent Sess. 4. expressly define that Baruch is Canonical Scripture. In the Greek this book is placed before the Lamentations. [4] Which S. Jerom not finding in Hebrew, nor in the Canon of the Jews, urgeth it not against them. [5] Yet testifieth that he found it in the vulgate Latin Edition, and that it containeth many things of Christ, & the later times. [6] According to the historical sense, the author in five chapters exhorteth the Jews to repentance, and patience, prophesying that they should be brought into more distress and captivity, than as yet they were, but should afterwards be released. The sixth chapter is Jeremie's Epistle.

THE PROPHECY OF BARUCH.

CHAPTER I.

The Jews in Babylon having heard Baruch's Book red, 6. send the same with money to Jerusalem, 10. requesting their brethren there to offer sacrifice, and to pray for the King and Prince of Babylon; and for them, 15. acknowledging their manifold sins.

AND these be the words of the book, that Baruch the son of Nerias, the son of Maasias, the son of Sedecias, the son of Sedei, the son of Helcias wrote in Babylon, 2 in the fifth year, in the seventh day of the month, at (a) the time that the Chaldees took Jerusalem, and burnt it with fire.

(a) The whole time of taking Jerusalem endured eleven years before it was burned. In the fifth year of which space this book was written. For as yet there were Priests in Jerusalem: v. 7. some holy vessels, v. 8. the Altar, v. 10. and the temple, v. 14.

3 And Baruch read the words of this book unto the ears of Jechonias the son of Joakim king of Juda, and to the ears of all the people coming to the book,
4 and to the ears of the mighty, the sons of the kings, and to the ears of the ancients, and to the ears of the people, from the least even to the greatest of them, that dwelt in Babylon, by the river Sodi. 5 Who hearing it wept, and fasted, and prayed in the sight of our Lord. 6 And they gathered money, according as every man's hand was able, 7 and they sent into Jerusalem to Joakim the son of Helcias, the son of Salom, priest, and to the priests, and to all the people, that were found with him in Jerusalem.
8 When he took the vessels of the temple of our Lord, which had been taken away out of the temple, to return them into the Land of Juda the tenth day of the month Sivan, the silver vessels, which Sedecias the son of Josias the king of Juda made, 9 after that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon had taken Jechonias, and the princes, and all the mighty, and the people of the land from Jerusalem, and brought them bound into Babylon. 10 And they said: Behold we have sent you money, with the which buy ye holocausts, and frankincense, and make [1] manna, and offer for sin at the altar of the Lord our God:

[1] * or, manah sacrifice.

11 and pray ye for the life of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and for the life of Balthasar his son, that their days may be as the days of heaven upon the earth: 12 and that our Lord give us strength, and illuminate our eyes, that we may live under the shadow of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and under the shadow of Balthasar his son, and may serve them many days, and (b) may find grace in their sight.

(b) Seeing it was God's will they should be in captivity, they desired rather to be under the Chaldees than any other foreign nation.

13 And for ourselves pray ye to the Lord our God: because we have sinned to the Lord our God, and his fury is not turned away from us even to this day.
14 And read ye this book, which we have sent to you to be recited in the temple of our Lord, in a solemn day, and in a day convenient. 15 And you shall say: To the Lord our God justice: but to us confusion of our face: as is this day to all Juda, and them that dwell in Jerusalem, 16 to our kings, and to our princes, and to our priests, and to our prophets, and to our fathers.
17 We have sinned before the Lord our God, and believed him not, having diffidence in him: 18 and we would not be made subject to him, and we have not heard the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in his commandments, which he hath given us.
19 From the day, that he brought our fathers out of the Land of Aegypt, even to this day, we would not be brought to believe the Lord our God: and [1] dissipated we revolted, that we might not hear his voice.

[1] * Corrupted in judgement.

20 And many evils and maledictions have cloven to us, which our Lord appointed to Moyses his servant: who brought our fathers out of the Land of Aegypt, to give us a land flowing with milk and honey, as at this present day. 21 And we have not heard the voice of the Lord our God according to all the words of the prophets, which he hath sent to us: 22 and we have gone away every man into the sense of our malignant heart, to serve strange gods, doing evils before the eyes of the Lord our God.

CHAPTER II.

The same captives further confess, that their calamities are justly come upon them for their iniquities, 11. and therefore lamentably pray for God's mercy, as he promised by Moyses to penitents.

FOR the which thing the Lord our God hath established his word, that he spake to us, and to our judges, that have judged Israel, and to our kings, and to our princes, and to all Israel and Juda: 2 that our Lord might bring upon us great evils, which were not done under the heaven, as have been done in Jerusalem, according to the things that are written in the law of Moyses: 3 that a man (a) should eat the flesh of his son, and the flesh of his daughter.

(a) That this happened in the siege of Jerusalem, is noted before Lament. 2. v. 20.

4 And he hath given them under the hand of all the kings, that are round about us into reproach, and into desolation among all peoples, into which our Lord hath dispersed us. 5 [1]And we are made underneath, and not above: because we have sinned to the Lord our God, in not obeying his voice.

[1]Deu. 28. v. 43.

6 To the Lord our God justice: but to us, and to our fathers confusion of face, as is this day. 7 Because our Lord hath spoken upon us all these evils, that are come upon us: 8 and we have not besought the face of the Lord our God, to return every one of us from our most wicked ways. 9 And our Lord hath watched in evils, and hath brought them upon us: because our Lord is just in all his works, which he hath commanded us: 10 and we have not heard his voice to walk in the precepts of our Lord, which he hath given before our face. 11 And now o Lord God of Israel, which brought out thy people out of the Land of Aegypt in a strong hand, and in signs, and in wonders, and in thy great strength, and in a mighty arm, and madest thee a name as is this day: 12 we have sinned, we have done impiously, we have dealt unjustly o Lord our God, in all thy (b) justices.

(b) God's commandments are commonly called justices (Psal. 118.) and many other places: because by observing or not observing the commandments men are made just, or unjust.

13 Let thy wrath be turned away from us: because we are left a few among the nations, where thou hast dispersed us. 14 Hear o Lord our prayers, and our petitions, and bring us out for thine own sake: and grant us to find grace before their face, that have led us away: 15 that all the earth may know that thou art the Lord our God, and that thy name is invocated upon Israel, and upon his stock. 16 Look o Lord from thy holy house upon us, and incline thine ear, and hear us. 17 Open thine eyes, & see: because the dead that are in hell, whose spirit is taken from their bowels, shall not give honour and justification to our Lord: 18 but the soul, that is sorrowful for the greatness of evil, and goeth crooked, and weak, and the eyes failing, and the hungry soul giveth glory and justice to thee their Lord. 19 For not according to the justices of our fathers do we pour out prayers, and ask mercy before thy sight o Lord our God: 20 but because thou hast sent thy wrath, [1]and thy fury upon us, as thou hast spoken by the hand of thy servants the prophets, saying:

[1]Iere. 2. v. 8.

21 Thus saith our Lord: Bow down your shoulder, & your neck, and do works for the king of Babylon: and you shall sit in the land, which I have given to your fathers. 22 But if you will not hear the voice of the Lord your God, to work for the king of Babylon: I will make you to fail out of the cities of Juda, and from without Jerusalem, 23 and I will take from you the voice of mirth, and the voice of joy, and the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, and all the land shall be without foot step that inhabit it. 24 And they heard not thy voice, to work for the king of Babylon: and thou hast established thy words, which thou spakest by the hands of thy servants the prophets, that the bones of our kings, and of our fathers should be transported out of their place: 25 and behold they are cast forth in the heat of the sun, and in the frost of the night: and they are dead in very sore pains, in famine, and by sword, and by casting forth. 26 And hast made the (c) temple, in which thy name was there invocated, as it is this day, for the iniquity of the house of Israel, and of the house of Juda.

(c) The temple was not as yet destroyed but the prophet speaketh of it, as he saw it should come to pass.

27 And thou hast done in us o Lord our God according to all thy goodness, and according to all that thy great compassion: 28 as thou spakest by the hand of thy servant Moyses, in the day, that thou didst command him to write thy law before the children of Israel, 29 saying: [1]If you will not hear my voice, this great multitude shall be turned into a very little one among the Gentiles, whither I will disperse them:

[1] Deut. 28. v. 62.

[1] & 32. v. 20.

31 and they shall know that I am the Lord their God: and I will give them a heart, and they shall understand: and ears, and they shall hear. 32 And they shall praise me in the land of their captivity, and shall be mindful of my name. 33 And they shall turn away themselves from their hard back, and from their malignant works: because they shall remember the way of their fathers, that sinned against me. 34 And I will recall them back into the land, which I sware to their fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they shall have dominion thereof: and I will multiply them, and they shall not be lessened. 35 [1]And I will establish unto them (d) another testament everlasting, that I be their God, and they shall be my people: and I will no more move my people, the children of Israel from the land, that I have given them.

[1] Ier. 31. v. 31. &c. (d) The law of Moyses ceased after Christ, but Christ's law continueth to the end of the world.

CHAPTER III.

With further confession of their sins, 8. they acknowledge their just captivity: 12. because they have left true wisdom: 16. which was given to their fathers: 23. not to rich men, or mighty giants, 29. but to those that serve God. 34. whom the stars obey. 36. A clear prophecy of Christ.

AND now o Lord omnipotent, God of Israel, the soul in distresses, & the pensive spirit cryeth to thee: 2 hear Lord, and have mercy, because thou art a merciful God, & have mercy upon us: because we have sinned before thee. 3 Because thou sittest for ever, and shall we perish everlastingly? 4 O Lord omnipotent, God of Israel, hear now the prayer of (a) the dead of Israel, and of their children, that have sinned before thee, and have not heard the voice of the Lord their God, and evils have stuck fast to us.

(a) Men in sins & misery are as if they were dead (v. 11.) yet by God's mercy may receive new grace of spiritual life.

5 Remember not the iniquities of our fathers, but remember thy hand, and thy name in this time: 6 because thou art the Lord our God, and we will praise thee o Lord: 7 because for this end thou hast given thy fear in our hearts, and that we may invocate thy name, and may praise thee in our captivity, because we are converted from the iniquity of our fathers, which have sinned before thee. 8 And behold we are in our captivity, this day, whereby thou hast dispersed us into reproach, and into malediction, and into sin, according to all the iniquities of our fathers, which have revolted from thee o Lord our God.

9 (b) Hear Israel the commandments of life: harken with your ears, that you may know prudence.

(b) The Church readeth this Prophecy as other divine Scriptures in the eves of Easter & Pentecost, according to the most ancient Roman use.

10 What is the matter Israel that thou art in the land of the enemies? 11 Thou art waxen old in a strange land, thou art defiled with the dead: thou art reputed with them that go down into hell. 12 Thou hast forsaken the fountain of wisdom: 13 for if thou hadst walked in the way of God, thou hadst verily dwelt in peace everlasting. 14 Learn where wisdom is, where strength is, where understanding is: that thou mayst know withal where is the long continuance of life and living, where the light of the eyes, and peace is. 15 Who hath found the place thereof? and who hath entered into the treasures thereof? 16 Where are the princes of the Gentiles, and they that rule over the beasts, that are upon the earth? 17 that play with the birds of the heaven, 18 that treasure up silver, and gold, wherein men have confidence, and is there no end of their getting? which fashion silver & are careful, (c) neither is there invention of their works?

(c) Shall they not find the fruit of their works?

19 They are destroyed, and are gone down to hell, and others are risen up in their place. 20 Young men saw the light, and dwelt upon the earth: but the way of discipline they knew not, 21 neither understood they the paths thereof, neither have their children received it, it is made far from their face. 22 It hath not been heard in the Land of Chanaan, neither hath it been seen in Theman. 23 The children of Agar also, that seek out the prudence, that is of the earth, merchants of Merrhe, and of Theman, and (d) fablers, and searchers of prudence and understanding: but the way of wisdom they have not known, neither have they remembered the paths thereof.

(d) Fabulatores, those that did frame, or explicate moral examples, for instruction of manners, were worthily esteemed in all ages not such as feigned false, and ridiculous gods, with their filthy & wicked acts, of which S. Augustin writeth against Varro. l. 6. c. 5. 6. & 7. de civit.

24 O Israel how great is the house of God, and how great is the place of his possession! 25 It is great, and hath no end: high and unmeasurable. 26 There were the giants those renowned, that were from the beginning, of big stature, expert in war? 27 These did not our Lord choose, neither found they the way of discipline: therefore did they perish. 28 And because they had not wisdom, they perished through their folly. 29 Who hath ascended into heaven, and taken her, and brought her down (e) from the clouds?

(e) It is unpossible to find true wisdom without God's grace, and by his grace it is easily found. Deut. 30. v. 11. Mat. 11. v. 30. 1. Ioa. 5. v. 3.

30 Who hath passed over the sea, and found her, and brought her above chosen gold? 31 There is none that can know her ways, nor that can search out her paths: 32 but he that knoweth all things, knoweth her, & hath found her out by his prudence: he hath prepared the earth in time everlasting, and replenished it with cattle, and fourfooted beasts: 33 he that sendeth forth light, and it goeth: and hath called it, and it obeyeth him with trembling. 34 And the stars have given light in their watches, and rejoiced: 35 they were called, and they said: here we are: and they have shined to him with cheerfulness, that made them. 36 (f) This is our God, and there shall none other be esteemed against him.

(f) By this text, most of the Fathers cited in the argument of this book prove Christ to be God against Jews, Pagans, and Heretics.

37 He found out all the way of discipline, and delivered it to Jacob his servant, and to Israel his beloved. 38 After these things he was seen upon the earth, and was conversant with men.

CHAPTER IV.

God's people neglecting his grace offered to them, more than to other nations, 6. are severely punished, 15. by captivity: 18. but are reserved, 22. and repenting shall be released: 31. and their enemies destroyed.

THIS (a) the book of the commandments of God, and the law, that is for ever: all that hold it, shall come to life: but they that have forsaken it, into death.

(a) Wisdom whereof he spake in the former chapter (v. 12.) is the law and commandment of God.

2 Return Jacob, and take hold of it, walk by the way to the brightness of it, against the light thereof.

3 Deliver not thy glory to another, & dignity to a strange nation. 4 We are blessed o Israel: because the things that please God, are manifest to us. 5 Be of good comfort o people of God, memorable Israel: 6 you are sold to the Gentiles, not into perdition: but for that in anger you provoked God to wrath, you are delivered to the adversaries. 7 For you have exasperated him, that made you, the eternal God, immolating to devils, and not to God. 8 For you have forgotten God, who hath nourished you, and your nurse Jerusalem you have made sorrowful. 9 For she saw the wrath coming from God to you, and she said: Hear ye confines of Sion, for God hath brought me great mourning: 10 For I have seen the captivity of my people, and of my sons, and daughters, which the everlasting hath brought upon them. 11 For I nourished them with joyfulness: but I have left them with weeping and mourning. 12 Let no man rejoice over me a widow, and desolate: I am forsaken of many for the sins of my children, because they have declined from the law of God. 13 And his justices they have not known, nor walked by the ways of God's commandments, neither have they entered by the paths of his truth and justice. 14 Let the borderers of Sion come, and remember the captivity of my sons & daughters, which the everlasting hath brought upon them. 15 For he hath brought upon them a nation from afar, a wicked nation, and of another tongue: 16 which have not reverenced the ancient, nor pitied the children, & have led away the beloved of the widow, and made the sole woman desolate of children. 17 But (b) as for me what can I help you?

(b) Jerusalem exhorteth her children to patience in their just punishment, assuring them of God's mercy and relaxation.

18 [1]For he that hath brought the evils upon you, he will deliver you out of the hands of your enemies.

[1] Deu. 28. v. 49. Iere. 5. v. 15.

19 walk children, walk: for I am left alone. 20 I have put off the stole of peace, and I have put upon me the sackcloth of prayer, and I will cry to the Highest in my days. 21 Be of good comfort my children, cry to our Lord, and he will deliver you out of the hand of the princes your enemies. 22 For I have hoped in the everlasting for your salvation: & joy is come to me from the holy one upon the mercy, which shall come to you from our everlasting saviour. 23 For I sent you forth with mourning and weeping: but our Lord will bring you back to me with joy and gladness for ever. 24 For as the neighbours of Sion have seen your captivity from God: so shall they see also with celerity your salvation from God, which shall come upon you with great honour, and everlasting brightness. 25 Children patiently sustain the wrath, which is come upon you: for thine enemy hath persecuted thee, but thou shalt quickly see his destruction: and thou shalt get up upon his neck. 26 My delicate ones have walked rough ways, for they are led as a flock taken violently of the enemies. 27 Be of good comfort children, and cry out to our Lord: for there shall be remembrance of you with him, that hath led you away. 28 For as your mind hath been to stray from God: ten times so much shall you returning again seek him. 29 For he that hath brought the evils upon you, he again will bring unto you everlasting joy with your salvation. 30 Be of good comfort Jerusalem: for he exhorteth thee, that named thee. 31 The wicked afflicters shall perish, that have vexed thee: & they that have rejoiced in thy ruin, shall be punished. 32 The cities which thy children have served, shall be punished: and she that received thy children. 33 For as she hath rejoiced in thy ruin, and been glad at thy fall: so shall she be made sorrowful in her own desolation. 34 And the rejoicing of her multitude shall be cut off, & her gladness shall be turned to mourning. 35 For fire shall come upon her from the everlasting in long during days, and she shall be inhabited of devils a great time. 36 Look about o Jerusalem toward the East, and see the joy that cometh to thee from God. 37 For behold thy children come, whom thou hast let go dispersed, they come gathered together from the East even to the West, in the word of the holy one rejoicing to the honor of God.

CHAPTER V.

A consolatory prophecy to Jerusalem, that her children shall be reduced with joy from captivity.

PUT off Jerusalem the robe of mourning, and of thy vexation: and put on the beauty, and honor of that everlasting glory, which thou hast of God. 2 God will clothe thee with the doublet (a) of justice, and will put upon thy head the mitre of everlasting honour.

(a) Mercy is here called justice, in respect of God's promise, for although his promise was of his only mercy, yet the performance proceedeth also from his justice.

3 For God will shew his brightness in thee, which is under the heaven. 4 For thy name shall be named of God to thee for ever: The peace of justice, and honor of piety. 5 Arise Jerusalem, and stand on high: and look about toward the East, and see thy children gathered together from the rising of the sun to the going down, in the word of the holy rejoicing at the memory of God. 6 For they went out from thee on foot led by the enemies: but our Lord will bring them to the exalted into honour as children of the kingdom. 7 For God hath appointed to humble every high mountain, and everlasting rocks, and to fill up valleys to be equal with the earth: that Israel may walk diligently to the honour of God. 8 And the woods also, and every tree of sweetness have overshadowed Israel by the commandment of God. 9 For God will bring Israel with joyfulness in the light of his majesty, with mercy, and justice, which is of him.

CHAPTER VI.

Jeremie by his epistle forewarneth the Jews, that they shall be captives in Babylon: and after seventy years shall be released: 3. exhorting them all that time to avoid idolatry: 7. largely shewing the vanity of idols.

A copy of the Epistle that Jeremie sent to them that were (a) to be led away captives into Babylon, by the King of Babylon, to tell them according to that which was commanded him of God.

(a) Jeremy writ this Epistle before the common people were in Babylon, but Baruch red it unto them in Babylon, and so it was sent back to the rest, which were yet in Jerusalem.

FOr the sins that you have sinned before God, you shall be led away captive into Babylon by Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon. [1]

[1] Iere. 25. v. 8. 9. &c.

2 Being entered therefore into Babylon, you shall be there many years, and long times even unto (b) seven generations: and after this I will bring you forth from thence with peace. [1]

(b) Ten, being the first article number, signifieth a general number; and so seven generations signify seven times ten, that is, seventy years. Sometimes seven do signify a generality, because this whole world is counted by seven days: sometimes, 100 signify the same; as Gen. 15. v. 16. 400 years are called four generation. [1] Isa. 44.

3 But now you shall see in Babylon gods of gold, and of silver, and of stone, and of wood to be carried upon shoulders, shewing fear to the Gentiles. 4 Beware therefore lest you also be like to the doing of strangers, and you be afraid, and fear take you in them. 5 Seeing therefore the multitude adoring behind, and before, say you in your hearts: Thou oughtest to be adored o Lord. 6 For mine (c) Angel is with you: and myself (d) will ask account of your souls.

(c) The Angel which guided this people coming out of Aegypt. Exo. 12. 33. protected them also in Babylon. (d) The innumerable absurdities in forging and adoring false gods here recited by the prophet shew how foolish & senseless they are, that serve idols, or any images for gods.

7 For their tongue polished by the craftsman, themselves also laid over with gold, and silver are false things, and they cannot speak. 8 And as to a virgin that loveth ornaments: so taking gold their gods are forged. 9 Their gods certes have golden crowns upon their heads: whereof the priests secretly convey away from them gold, and silver, and bestow it on themselves. 10 Yea and they give thereof to strumpets, and they deck whores: and again when they receive it of the harlots, they deck their gods. 11 But these are not delivered from the rust, and the moth. 12 And these being covered with a purple garment, they wipe their face for the dust of the house, which is very much among them. 13 And he hath a sceptre as a man, as a judge of the country, that killeth him not that offendeth against him. 14 He hath also in his hand a sword, and an axe, but himself he delivereth not from the sword, and from robbers, whereby be it known to you that they are not gods. 15 Therefore fear them not. For as a man's vessel being broken is made unprofitable: such also are their gods: 16 they being placed in the house, their eyes are full of dust by the feet of them that go in. 17 And as upon one, that hath offended the king, the gates be shut round about, or as the dead brought to the grave, so do the priests guard the doors with shuttings, and locks, lest they be spoiled of thieves. 18 They light candles to them, and that many, of the which they can see none: but they are as beams in the house. 19 And they say that the serpents which are of the earth, gnaw out their hearts, whiles they eat them and their garment, and they feel not. 20 Their faces are black with the smoke, that is made in the house. 21 The owls, and the swallows fly upon their body, and upon their head, and the birds also, the cats in like manner. 22 Whereby you may know that they are not gods. Therefore fear them not. 23 The gold also which they have, is for beauty, unless a man wipe off the rust, they shall not shine: for neither when they were molten, did they feel. 24 With (e) all price are they bought, whereas there is no breath in them.[1]

(e) Idolaters imagining that senseless idols had divine power, foolishly esteemed them of great value, & price.[1] Isa. 46. v. 6.

25 As being without feet they are carried upon shoulders, shewing their baseness to men. Be they confounded also that worship them. 26 Therefore if they fall to the ground, they rise not up of themselves, nor if a man set him upright, shall he stand by himself, but as to dead men their gifts shall be set before them. 27 Their priests sell their sacrifices, and abuse them: likewise also their wives plucking from them, impart nothing, neither to the sick, nor to the beggar. 28 Of their sacrifices women in childbed, and in flowers do touch: knowing therefore by these things that they are not gods, fear them not. 29 For whence are they called gods? Because women offer to the gods of silver, and gold, and wood. 30 And priests sit in their houses, having their garments rent, and their heads, & beard shaven, whose heads be bare. 31 And they were crying before their gods, as at the supper of the dead. 32 The priests take away their garments, and they clothe their wives & their children. 33 Neither if they suffer any evil, nor if any good of any man, are they able to recompence it: neither can they make a king, nor take him away: 34 In like manner they can neither give riches, nor requite evil. If a man vow a vow unto them, and perform it not; neither this do they require. 35 They deliver not a man from death, nor save the weak from the mightier. 36 The blind man they restore not to his sight: they shall not deliver a man out of necessity. 37 They shall not pity the widow, nor do good to the fatherless. 38 Like unto the stones of the mountain are their gods, of wood, and of stone, and of gold, and of silver. & they that worship them, shall be confounded: 39 How then is it to be supposed, or to be said, that they are gods? 40 Moreover the Chaldees themselves not honoring them: who when they hear that the dumb cannot speak, they offer it to Bel, requesting of him, that it may speak. 41 As though they could feel that have no motion: and they when they shall understand, will leave them: for their gods themselves have no sense. 42 And women compassed with cords, sit in the ways, burning the bones of olives. 43 And when one of them being drawn of some passenger shall lie with him, she upbraideth her neighbour, that she is not counted worthy, as herself, neither is her cord broken. 44 But all things that are done about them are false, how is it then to be thought, or to be said, that they be gods? 45 And they are made by craftsmen, & by goldsmiths. They shall be nothing else, but that which the priests will have them to be. 46 For the artificers themselves, that make them, are of no long time. Why, can those things then that are made by them, be gods? 47 But they have left forged things & reproach, to them that shall come after. 48 For when battle cometh upon them, and evils: the priests devise with themselves, where they may hide themselves with them. 49 How then may they be thought, that they are gods, which neither deliver themselves from battle, nor save themselves from evils? 50 For seeing they be of wood, & laid over with gold, and with silver, it shall be known afterwards that they are false things, of all the Gentiles, and kings: Which are manifest that they are no gods, but the works of men's hands, and no work of God is with them. 51 Whence then is it known, that they are not gods, but the works of men's hands, & no work of God is in them? 52 A king to the country they raise not up, neither shall they give rain to men. 53 Judgement also they shall not discern, neither shall they deliver countries from injury: because they can do nothing, as crows between the heaven and the earth. 54 For when fire shall fall into the house of the wooden, and silver, and golden gods, their priests indeed shall flee, and be delivered: but themselves as beams shall be burnt in the midst. 55 And king and battle they shall not resist. How is it then to be supposed, or to be received that they are gods? 56 Not from thieves, nor from robbers shall the gods of wood, and of stone, and laid over with gold, and with silver deliver themselves, stronger than which are the wicked men. 57 The gold, and silver, and the garment wherewith they are covered, they shall take from them, and shall depart, neither shall they help themselves. 58 Therefore it is better to be a king shewing his strength: or a profitable vessel in the house, wherein he will glory that possesseth it: or a door in the house, which keepeth the things that are therein, than false gods. 59 The sun certes, and the moon, and the stars whereas they are bright, and sent forth for profitable uses, obey. 60 Likewise also the lightning, when it shall appear is perspicuous: and the wind also bloweth the self same in every country. 61 And the clouds, which when God shall command to walk throughout the whole world, they do that which is commanded them. 62 The fire also being sent from above to consume mountains, and woods, doeth that which is commanded it. But these neither in shapes, nor in virtues are like to one of them. 63 Wherefore neither is it to be thought, nor to be said, that they be gods: whereas they can neither judge judgment, nor do any thing for men. 64 Knowing therefore that they are not gods, then fear them not. 65 For neither shall they curse kings, nor bless them. 66 Signs also in the heaven to the Gentiles they shew not, neither shall they shine as the sun, nor give light as the moon. 67 Beasts are better than they, which can fly under the roof, and profit themselves. 68 By no means therefore is it manifest unto us, that they are gods: for which cause fear them not. 69 For as in a garden of cucumbers a scarecrow keepeth nothing, so are their gods of wood, and of silver, and laid over with gold. 70 After the same sort also in a garden the white thorn, upon the which every bird sitteth. In like manner also their gods of wood, and laid over with gold, and with silver, are like to a dead body cast forth in the dark. 71 By the purple also and the murex colour laid upon them, which fadeth, you shall know that they are not gods. At the last also they are consumed, and shall be a reproach in the country. 72 Better is therefore the just man, that hath not idols: for he shall be far from reproaches.

THE ARGUMENT OF EZECHIEL'S PROPHECY.

EZECHIEL a Priest, and a Prophet, and at last a Martyr;[1] [2] as likwise Jeremy was, near of the same age, prophesied for the most part the same things; but Jeremy began to prophesy a child, in Jerusalem, and finally in Aegypt; Ezechiel when he was about thirty years old, in Babylon, where he was in captivity with King Jechonias and others. The beginning and end of his Prophecy are so obscure, that amongst the Hebrews (saith S. Jerom)[3] none may read these parts,[4] nor the beginning of Genesis, before the age of thirty years. [5] The three first chapters contain a wonderful vision, wherein the Prophet saw God as sitting in a glorious throne, resting as it were upon four living creatures, drawing strangely four wheels. [6] Secondly, in one and twenty chapters following he prophesieth the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple, with the captivity of the people for their enormous sins. [7] Thirdly in eleven more chapters, he prophesieth the like of diverse other nations. [8] Fourthly, in four other chapters, he foresheweth the reduction of the Jews from captivity, but more especially the Redemption of mankind by Christ, and the glorious state of his Church. [9] Finally, in the other nine chapters, he describeth, but marvelous obscurely, his last vision of the restoration of the Temple, Sacrifices, Priests, and other religious things pertaining thereto; but principally concerning the Church of Christ, both militant and triumphant.

THE PROPHECY OF EZECHIEL.

CHAPTER I.

By the river of Chobar near Babylon, Ezechiel seeth in vision a tempestuous whirlwind, 5. and strange shapes, 10. of a man, a lion, an oxe, and an eagle: 15. of four wheels, 22. and of a man sitting gloriously on a throne in the firmament.[1]

[1] The first part.

The Prophet's first vision, and mission to preach.

1 And [a] it came to pass in [b] the thirtieth year, in the fourth, in the fifth of the month, when I was in the midst of the captives beside the river Chobar, the heavens were opened, and I saw the visions of God.

[a] The conjunction, And, being the first word, either joineth the context to the title, or (as S. Gregory expoundeth it) the exterior words uttered to the interior, revealed to the Prophet in spirit. [b] Either the thirtieth year of his age, or the 30. since the captivity was prophesied, in the reign of Iosias 4. Reg. 22. v. 18.

2 In the fifth of the month, the same is the fifth year of the transmigration of king Joachin, 3 the word of our Lord was made to Ezechiel the son of Buzi Priest in the land of the Chaldees, by the river Chobar: and there the hand of our Lord was made upon him.

4 And I saw, and behold a whirlwind came from the North: & a great cloud, and a fire involving, & brightness round about it: and out of the midst thereof as it were the form of amber, that is, out of the midst of the fire. 5 and out of the midst thereof the similitude of four [1] living creatures: and this was their look: the similitude of a man in them.

[1] * animalium.

6 There were four faces to one, and four wings to one. 7 Their feet straight feet, and the sole of their foot as the sole of a calf's foot, and sparks as the form of glowing brass. 8 And the hands of a man under their wings in four parts: and they had faces, and wings by the four parts. 9 And the wings of them were joined one to another. They (c) returned not when they went: but every one went before his face.

(c) They turned not about (v. 12.) but having faces on every side were ready to go every way.

10 And the similitude of their countenance: the face of a man, and the face of a lion on the right hand of them four: and the face of an oxe, on the left hand of them four: and the face of an eagle over them four.
11 And their faces, and their wings were stretched out above: two wings of every one were joined, and two covered their bodies: 12 and every one of them walked before his face: where the force of the spirit was, thither they went: neither did they return when they went: neither did they return when they walked.
13 And the similitude of the living creatures, their look as it were of coals of burning fire, and as it were the resemblance of lamps. This was the vision running in the midst of the living creatures, brightness of fire, and from the fire lightning going forth. 14 And the living creatures went, and returned after the similitude of glistering lightning. 15 And when I beheld the living creatures, there appeared one wheel upon the earth by the living creatures, having four faces.
16 And the shape of the wheels, and the work of them, as it were appearance of the sea: and one similitude of them four: and their appearance and work, as if it were (d) a wheel in the midst of a wheel.

(d) S. Gregory expounding this vision of the four Evangelists, or of the whole new Testament, teacheth that the old & new Testaments are each in the other; both teaching the same things in diverse manners. ho. 6. in Ezech.

17 By their four parts going they went: and they returned not when they walked. 18 There was a stature also to the wheels, and height, and a fearful form: and the whole body was full of eyes round about them four. 19 And when the living creatures walked, the wheels also walked together by them: and when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels also were lifted up together.
20 Whithersoever the spirit went, thither the spirit going, the wheels also were lifted up withal, following it: for the spirit of life was in the wheels.
21 With them going they went, and with them standing they stood, and with them lifted up from the earth, the wheels also were lifted up together, following them: because the spirit of life was in the wheels. 22 And a similitude over the heads of the living creatures of the firmament, as it were the sight of crystal dreadful, and stretched out over their heads above. 23 And under the firmament the wings of them straight one toward another, every one with two wings covered his body, and the other was covered in like manner. 24 And I heard the sound of the wings, as it were the sound of many waters, as it were the sound of the high God, when they walked, it was as the voice of a multitude, as the sound of a camp, and when they stood, their wings were let down. 25 For when a voice was made above the firmament, that was over their head, they stood, and let down their wings.
26 And (e) above the firmament, that hung over their head, as it were the form of the sapphire stone the similitude of a throne, and upon the similitude of the throne, a similitude as it were the shape of a man above.

(e) In this chapter the Prophet describeth four parts of a vision which he saw at one time: of a whirlwind, v. 4. of four living creatures, v. 5. of four wheels v. 15. & of a man sitting in a throne in the firmament. v. 26. For understanding of all which, learned large commentaries do hardly suffice.

27 And I saw as it were the form of amber, as the resemblance of fire within it round about: from his loins & upward, and from his loins downward, I saw as it were the resemblance of fire glistering round about.
28 As the form of the bow when it is in a cloud on a day of rain, this was the form of the brightness round about.

CHAPTER II.

The Prophet terrified with the vision, is encouraged by God's spirit. 3. And is sent to preach 9. penance, and the service of God.

This was the vision of the similitude of the glory of our Lord. And I saw, and I fell on my face, and I heard the voice of one speaking. And he said to me: (a) Son of man, stand upon thy feet, and I will speak with thee.

(a) Our Saviour of his great humility & his singular love towards mankind, often calleth himself the Son of man, but no other so calleth him. Here the Angel most frequently calleth Ezechiel the Son of man, as well to distinguish between Angelical and human kind, as in honour of Christ, of whom this and other Prophets were figures: but why Ezechiel, and scarce any other (Dan. 8. v. 17.) had this title is hard to explicate.

2 And the spirit entered into me after that he spake to me, and he set me upon my feet: and I heard him speaking to me, 3 and saying: Son of man, I send thee to the children of Israel, to nations apostates which have revolted from me: they, and their fathers, have transgressed my covenant even unto this day. 4 And they are children of an hard face, and of an heart that cannot be tamed, to whom I send thee: and this thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: 5 If perhaps they at the least will hear, & if perhaps they will cease, because it is an exasperating house: and they shall know that there was a Prophet in the midst of them. 6 Thou therefore o son of man fear them not, neither be afraid of their words: because the incredulous and subverters are with thee, & thou dwellest with scorpions. Fear not their words, and of their looks be not afraid: because it is an exasperating house. 7 Thou therefore shalt speak my words to them, if perhaps they will hear, and be quiet, because they are provokers to anger. 8 But thou son of man hear whatsoever I speak to thee: and be not exasperating, as it is an exasperating house: open thy mouth, and eat whatsoever I give thee. 9 And I looked, and behold, an hand sent to me, wherein was a rolled book: and he spread it before me, which was written within and without: and there were written in it (b) lamentations, and (c) a song, and (d) woe.

(b) Lamentations pertain to the penitent: (c) Song to the praises of God: (d) Woe to the desperate damned.

CHAPTER III.

Against a stubborn people, to whom he must preach, 8. the Prophet is strengthened, 12. by increase of spirit: 17. charged to execute his office. 12. But first to be silent for a time.

And he said to me: Son of man, whatsoever thou shalt find^ eat: (a) eat this volume, and going speak to the children of Israel.

(a) By this Metaphor of eating a book, is signified, that the Prophet received revelations from God, as appeareth. v. 10. &c.

2 And I opened my mouth, and he fed me with that volume: 3 and he said to me: Son of man thy belly shall eat, and thy bowels shall be filled with this volume, which I give thee. And I did eat it: and it was made in my mouth sweet as honey. 4 And he said to me: Son of man go to the house of Israel, and thou shalt speak my words to them. 5 For not to a people of profound speech, and of an unknown tongue art thou sent, to the house of Israel. 6 Neither to many peoples of profound speech, and of an unknown tongue, whose words thou canst not hear: and if thou were sent to them, (b) they would hear thee.

(b) By this place and the like (Mat. 11. v. 21.) it seemeth that the same grace being offered to diverse persons, some do accept it, and some do not: but the cause of difference is by more grace added to the former which was sufficient before, and by this superaddition is made effectual. That God giveth this abundance to some is of his mercy, and that he giveth it not to others is no injury. Ro. 9.

7 But the house of Israel will not hear thee: because they will not hear me. For all the house of Israel is of a shameless forehead, & hard hearted. 8 Behold I have made thy face stronger than their faces, and thy forehead harder than their foreheads. 9 As the adamant, & as the flint stone have I made thy face: fear them not, neither be afraid of their face: because it is an exasperating house. 10 And he said to me: Son of man, all my words which I speak to thee, take in thy heart, & hear with thine ears: 11 And go, enter into the transmigration, to the children of thy people, and thou shalt speak to them, and shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: if perhaps they will hear, and be quiet. 12 And the spirit took me up, and I heard behind me the voice of a great commotion: Blessed be the glory of our Lord from his place, 13 and the voice of the wings of living creatures striking one against another, & the voice of wheels following the living creatures, & the voice of a great commotion. 14 The spirit also lifted me, & took me up: & I went away bitter in the indignation of my spirit: for the hand of our Lord was with me, strengthening me. 15 And I came to the transmigration, to the heap of new corn, to them that dwelt by the river Chobar, & I sat where they sat: & I tarried there seven days mourning in the midst of them. 16 And when seven days were passed, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 17 Son of man, a watchman to the house of Israel have I given thee: & thou shalt hear the word out of my mouth, & shalt tell it them from me. 18 If when I say to the impious: Dying thou shalt die: thou tell him not, nor speak that he may be turned away from his impious way, and live: the same impious man shall die in his iniquity, but his blood I will require at thy hand.

19 But if thou denounce to the impious, and he be not converted from his impiety, and from his impious way: he verily shall die in his iniquity, but thou hast delivered thy soul. 20 Yea & if the just shall be turned from his justice, & shall do iniquity: I (c) will lay a stumbling block before him, he shall die: because thou hast not told him, he shall die in his sin, & his justices which he hath done shall not be in memory: but his blood I will require at thy hand.

(c) I will take away my grace from him, in punishment of his revolting from me.

21 But if (d) thou warn the just that the just sin not, and he do not sin: living he shall live, because thou hast warned him, & thou hast delivered thy soul.

(d) A preacher's office is as well to warn the just to persevere in justice, as to admonish the wicked to repent & return to God.

22 And the hand of our Lord was made upon me, and he said to me: Rising go out into the field, and there I will speak with thee. 23 And rising I went out into the field: and behold the glory of our Lord stood there as it were the glory, which I saw by the river Chobar: & I fell on my face: 24 And the spirit entered into me, and set me upon my feet: and he spake to me, and said to me: Go in, and be shut up in the midst of thy house.
25 And thou son of man, behold bands are given upon thee, and they shall bind thee in them: and thou shalt not go forth from the midst of them. 26 And I will make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, and thou shalt be dumb, not as a man controlling: because it is an exasperating house. 27 But when I shall speak to thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: He that heareth, let him hear: & he that is quiet, let him be quiet, because it is an exasperating house.

CHAPTER IV.

The future siege of Jerusalem is described in a brick. 4. The time of captivity of Israel and of Juda, is signified by sleeping 390. days on the left side, and forty on the right. 9. Famine is also signified by bread sprinkled with dung.
[1]

[1] The 2. part.
The destruction of Jerusalem, & the Temple, with the captivity of the people for their sins.

And thou son of man take thee a brick, and thou shalt put it before thee: and thou shalt draw in it the city of Jerusalem. 2 And thou shalt lay siege against it, and shall build munitions, and cast up (a) a bank, and pitch camps against it, and place engines round about.

(a) To make a bank, a ditch is also made, ordinarily above three foot deep, & so the earth cast up towards the town besieged make covert passage above seven foot in height by which trench men approach more safely towards the wall, where they purpose to make battery, breach, and assault.

3 And thou take thee an iron frying pan, and thou shalt set it as an iron wall between thee and the city: & thou shalt set thy face steadily toward it, & it shall be besieged, & thou shalt compass it: which is a sign to the house of Israel. 4 And thou shalt sleep upon thy left side, and shalt put the iniquities of the house of Israel upon it, according to the number of the days, that thou shalt sleep upon it, and thou shalt take their iniquity. 5 And I have given thee, the years of their iniquity, according to the number of days (b) three hundred and ninety days: and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

(b) It is very hard to explicate, how the ten tribes were 390. years in captivity.

6 And when thou hast accomplished these things, thou shalt sleep upon thy right side the second time: and thou shalt take the iniquity of the house of Juda (c) forty days, a day for a year, a day, I say, for a year I have given thee.

(c) And from what time the 40. years are counted, seeing it is certain, that the two tribes were in captivity, 70. years, See S. Ierome in Ezech.

7 And thou shalt turn thy face to the siege of Jerusalem, & thine arm shall be stretched out: and thou shalt prophesy against it. 8 Behold I have compassed thee with bands: & thou shalt not turn thyself from thy side unto the other side, till thou accomplish the days of the siege. 9 And thou take thee wheat and barley, and beans, and lentils, and millet, and fitches: and thou shalt put them into one vessel, and make thee loaves according to the number of the days, that thou shalt sleep upon thy side: three hundred & ninety days shalt thou eat it. 10 And thy meat, that thou shalt eat, shall be in weight twenty staters a day: from time to time thou shalt eat it. 11 And water by measure thou shalt drink, the sixth part of an hin: from time to time thou shalt drink it. 12 And as hearth baken barley bread thou shalt eat it: and with the dung that cometh out of a man, thou shalt cover it before their eyes. 13 And our Lord said: So shall the children of Israel eat their bread polluted among the Gentiles, to the which I shall cast them out. 14 And I said: A, a, a, o Lord God, behold my soul is not polluted, and a dead thing, and thing torn of beasts, I have not eaten from mine infancy even till this time, and all unclean flesh hath not entered into my mouth. 15 And he said to me: Behold I have given thee dung of oxen for man's dung, and thou shalt make thy bread therewith. 16 And he said to me: Son of man, Behold I will break (d) the staff of bread in Jerusalem: and they shall eat bread in weight, and in carefulness: and they shall drink water in measure, and in distress.

(d) As a staff aideth the weak, so bread sustaineth all men.

17 That bread and water failing, every man may fall against his brother, and they may pine away in their iniquities.

CHAPTER V.

By the hair of the Prophet's head and beard polled, and diversely destroyed, 5. is signified the destruction of the Jews. 10. The fathers and sons eating one another, 12. in extremity of pestilence, famine, and sword.

And thou son of man take thee a sharp knife, shaving the hairs: and thou shalt take it and draw it over thy head, and over thy beard: and thou shalt take thee a balance of weight, and shalt divide them. 2 The third part thou shalt burn with fire in the midst of the city, according to the accomplishing of the days of the siege: and thou shalt take a third part, and cut it with the knife in (a) the circuit thereof: but the other third part thou shalt scatter into the wind, and I will draw the sword after them:

(a) In other cities of Juda near Jerusalem.

3 And thou shalt take thereof a small number: and shalt bind them in the skirt of thy cloak. 4 And of them again thou shalt take, and shalt cast them forth in the midst of the fire, and shalt burn them with fire: and out of it shall come forth a fire into all the house of Israel. 5 Thus saith our Lord God: This is Jerusalem, I placed her in the midst of the Gentiles, and countries round about her. 6 And she hath contemned my judgements, so that she was more impious than the Gentiles: and my precepts more than the lands, that are round about her. For they have cast away my judgements, and in my precepts they have not walked. 7 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because you have passed the Gentiles, that are round about you, and have not walked in my precepts, and have not done my judgements, and according to the judgements of the nations, which are round about you, you have not wrought. 8 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee, & I myself will do judgements, in the midst of thee in the eyes of the Gentiles. 9 And I will do in thee that which I have not done: & the like whereof I will do no more for all thine abominations. 10 Therefore (b) the fathers shall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers: and I will do judgements in thee, and I will scatter all thy remnant into every wind.

(b) Jeremy, Lament. 2. and Baruch. ch. 2. prophesied of the same distress by famine in the siege of Jerusalem.

11 Therefore I live, saith our Lord God: Unless for that thou hast violated my sanctuary in all thine offences, and in all thine abominations: I also do break thee, and mine eye shall not spare, and I will not have mercy. 12 The third part of thee shall die with the pestilence, and shall be consumed with famine in the midst of thee: and a third part of thee shall fall by the sword round about thee: and thy third part I will scatter into every wind, and I will draw a sword after them. 13 And I will accomplish my fury, and will make mine indignation rest in them, and will be comforted: and they shall know that I^ the Lord have spoken in my zeal, when I shall have accomplished mine indignation in them. 14 And I will make thee a desert, and a reproach to the nations, that are round about thee, in the sight of every one that passeth by. 15 And thou shalt be a reproach, and (c) blasphemy, an example, and astonishment amongst the nations, that are round about thee, when I shall have done judgments in thee in fury, and in indignation, and in the rebukes of anger.

(c) Blasphemy is here taken improperly, & signifieth that other nations shall not only reproach Jerusalem, but also taunt & scoff at her miseries.

16 I^ the Lord have spoken: When I shall send very sore arrows of famine upon them: which shall be mortiferous, and which I shall send to destroy you: and I will gather famine upon you, and will break among you the staff of bread. 17 And I will send in upon you famine, and very sore beasts even to destruction: and pestilence, and blood shall pass through thee, and the sword I will bring in upon thee. I^ the Lord have spoken.

CHAPTER VI.

For idolatry the people shall be diversely destroyed: 8. till the relics convert to God.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, set thy face toward (a) the mountains of Israel, and thou shalt prophesy to them,

(a) Idolatry was most especially committed in mountains, or hills, & therefore both idols and idolaters were destroyed in the same places.

3 and shalt say: Mountains of Israel hear ye the word of our Lord God: Thus saith our Lord God to the mountains, and little hills, and to the rocks, & the valleys: Behold I will bring upon you the sword, and will destroy your excelses, 4 and cast down your altars, and your idols shall be broken: and I will overthrow your slain before your idols. 5 And I will lay the carcasses of the children of Israel before the face of your idols: and I will disperse your bones about your altars 6 in all your habitations. The cities shall be desolate, and the excelses shall be cast down, and destroyed, and your altars shall perish, and shall be broken: and your idols shall cease, & your temples shall be destroyed, & your works shall be defaced.

7 And the slain shall fall in the midst of you: & you shall know that I am the Lord. 8 And (b) I will leave in you them, that shall escape the sword in the Gentiles, when I shall disperse you in the lands.

(b) God's perpetual providence still preserveth some relics that serve him sincerely, and before those depart from this world,

9 And your delivered shall remember me amongst the Gentiles, to which they are led in captivity: because I have broken their heart fornicating, and revolting from me: & their eyes fornicating after their idols: and (c) they shall mislike with themselves upon the evils which they had done in all their abominations.

(c) others do repent and return to God.

10 And they shall know that I^ the Lord have not spoken in vain to do them this evil. 11 Thus saith our Lord God: Strike thy hand, and knock thy foot, and say: Alas, to all the abominations of the evils of the house of Israel: because they shall fall by sword, famine, and pestilence. 12 He that is far off, shall die with pestilence: and he that is near, shall fall by the sword: and he that shall be left, and besieged, shall die for famine: and I will accomplish mine indignation in them. 13 And you shall know that I am the Lord, when your slain shall be amongst the midst of your idols, in the circuit of your altars, in every high hill, and in all the tops of mountains, and under every woody tree, and under every oak with thick branches, the place where they burnt frankincense smelling sweetly to all their idols. 14 And I will stretch forth my hand upon them: and will make the land desolate, and destitute from the desert of Deblatha in all their habitations: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER VII.

Miseries shall be so great, 8. and shall come so presently, 16. that few shall escape, and those also shall be in great terror and affliction.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 And thou son of man, thus saith our Lord God to the land (a) of Israel: The end is come, come is the end upon the four quarters of the land.

(a) By Israel is here meant all the country of Jury, as appeareth by the general speech following, the four quarters of the land.

3 Now an end upon thee, and I will send my fury upon thee: and I will judge thee according to thy ways: and I will lay against thee all thine abominations.
4 And upon thee mine eye shall not spare, and I will not have mercy: but I will lay thy ways upon thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee: and you shall know that I am the Lord. 5 Thus saith our Lord God: One affliction, lo affliction cometh. 6 An end cometh, there cometh an end, it hath awaked against thee: behold it cometh. 7 Destruction cometh upon thee, which dwellest in the land: the time cometh, the day of slaughter is near, & not of the glory of mountains. 8 Now straight-way I pour out my wrath upon thee, & I will accomplish my fury in thee: & I will judge thee according to thy ways, & I will lay upon thee all thy wicked deeds. 9 And mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have mercy: but I will lay thy ways upon thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee: and you shall know that I am the Lord that strike. 10 Behold the day, behold it cometh: destruction is gone forth, the rod hath flourished, pride hath budded. 11 Iniquity is risen in the rod of impiety: not of them, and not of the people, nor of the sound of them: and there shall be no rest in them. 12 The time cometh, the day is at hand: he that buyeth let him not rejoice: and he that selleth, let him not mourn: because wrath upon all the people thereof. 13 Because he that selleth, (b) shall not return to that which he hath sold, and as yet in the living the life of them. For the vision shall not go back to all the multitude thereof: and man in the iniquity of his life shall not be strengthened.

(b) In the year of Jubilee the lands which were sold, returned to the seller or to his heir, Levi. 25. but in captivity there could be no such recovery.

14 Sound you with the trumpet, let all be prepared, and there is none to go to the battle: for my wrath shall be upon all the people thereof. 15 The sword without, and the pestilence and famine within: he that is in the field shall die by the sword: & they that are in the city, shall be devoured with the pestilence and famine. 16 And those of them that fly shall be saved: and they shall be in the mountains as doves of the valleys all trembling, every one in his iniquity. 17 All hands shall be dissolved, & all knees shall run with waters. 18 And they shall gird themselves with hair-cloths, and fear shall cover them, and in every face confusion, and upon all their heads baldness.

19 Their silver shall be thrown forth, and their gold shall be into a dunghill. Their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the fury of our Lord. Their soul they shall not satisfy, and their bellies shall not be filled: because it is made (c) a scandal of their iniquity.

(c) Adorning of idols with much gold was occasion that the Chaldees spoiled the city more eagerly.

20 And the ornament of their Jewels they have turned into pride, and the images of their abominations, and idols they have made of it: for this cause have I given it them into uncleanness: 21 and I will give it into the hands of aliens to spoil, and to the impious of the earth for a prey, and they shall contaminate it. 22 And I will turn away my face from them, and they shall violate my [1] secret: and spoilers shall enter into it, and shall contaminate it.

[1] * arcanum.

23 Make a conclusion: because the land is full of the judgement of blood, and the city full of iniquity.

24 And I will bring the worst of the nations, and they shall possess their houses: and I will make the pride of the mighty to cease, and they shall possess their sanctuary. 25 Distress coming upon them, they will seek peace, and there shall be none. 26 Trouble shall come upon trouble, and report upon report, and they shall seek vision of the prophet, and (d) the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients.

(d) This and other like places signify scarcity of Priests to teach the law, in the captivity, but not an universal destruction or want of all. For even then also God conserved some relics, as appeareth, Malach. 2.

27 The king shall mourn, and the prince shall be clothed with sorrowfulness, and the hands of the people of the land shall be troubled. According to their way will I do to them, and according to their judgements I will judge them: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER VIII.

In another vision the Prophet seeth innumerable most abominable idolatries 11. committed by all sorts of men and women, 17. for which God will no longer spare them.

And it came to pass in (a) the sixth year, in the sixth month, in the fifth of the month: I sat in my house, and the ancients of Juda sat before me, and the hand of our Lord God fell there upon me.

(a) After that the Prophet had rested in his house 390. days, in which time when so ever he slept, he lay only on his left side, & 40. days in like manner on his right side, which was in all, 430. days, which make one year, two months, and five days, the next day he had this other vision before he went forth to preach.

2 And I saw, and behold a similitude as it were the resemblance of fire: from the resemblance of his loins, and downward, fire: and from his loins, and upward, as it were the resemblance of brightness, as the appearance of amber. 3 And the similitude of a hand put forth took me by the locks of my head: and the spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heaven, and brought me into Jerusalem in the vision of God, beside the inner door, that looked to the North, where was set an idol of zeal to provoke emulation.

4 [1]And lo there the glory of the God of Israel according to the vision which I had seen in the field.

[1] Ch. 3. v. 22.

5 And he said to me: Son of man, lift up thine eyes to the way of the North. And I lifted up mine eyes to the way of the North: and behold on the North of the port of the altar the idol of zeal in the very entry. 6 And he said to me: Son of man, doest thou see thinkest thou what these do, the great abominations, that the house of Israel doth here, that I may depart far from my sanctuary? And yet turning thou shalt see greater abominations. 7 And he brought me into the door of the court: and I saw, and behold one hole in the wall. 8 And he said to me: Son of man dig the wall. And when I had digged the wall, there appeared one door. 9 And he said to me: Go in, and see the most wicked abominations, which these do here. 10 And being entered in I saw, and behold every similitude of creeping creatures, and beasts, abomination, and all the idols of the house of Israel were painted in the wall round about throughout. 11 And seventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel, and Jezonias the son of Saphan stood in the midst of them, that stood before the pictures: and every one had a censer in his hand: and a vapour of a cloud rose up from the frankincense. 12 And he said to me: Surely thou seest son of man what things the ancients of the house of Israel do in darkness, every one in the secret of his chamber: for (b) they say: Our Lord seeth us not, our Lord hath forsaken the earth.

(b) Wicked men either do not believe, or little consider God's knowledge, and providence, of all things, and so fall into idolatry.

13 And he said to me: Yet turning thou shalt see greater abominations, which these do. 14 And he brought me in by the door of the gate of the house of our Lord, which looked to the North: and behold their women sat mourning for (c) Adonis.

(c) Rabbi David and Rabbi Salomon writ that the image of this idol being made of brass had eyes of lead, and when the brass was made hot, by fire secretly put under, the lead beginning to melt, the image seemed to weep, whereupon the women of compassion did weep with their goddess.

15 And he said to me: Surely thou hast seen o son of man: yet turning thou shalt see greater abominations than these. 16 And he brought me into the inner court of the house of our Lord: and behold in the door of the temple of our Lord between the porch and the altar, as it were five and twenty men having their backs against the temple of our Lord, and their faces to the East: and they adored toward the rising of the sun. 17 And he said to me: Surely thou hast seen o son of man: Why, is this a light thing to the house of Juda, that they should do these abominations, which they have done here: because they replenishing the land with iniquity, are turned to provoke me? And behold they put a bough to their nostrils. 18 Therefore I also will do in my fury: mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have mercy: and when they shall cry to mine ears with a loud voice, I will not hear them.

CHAPTER IX.

The Prophet seeing six men by God's commandment kill all, 6. that are not marked with THAV in their forehead: 8. lamenteth so great a slaughter: 9. and God answereth, that their iniquity may not be longer tolerated.

And (a) he cried in mine ears with a loud voice, saying: The visitations of the city approach, and every one hath [1]a weapon of slaughter in his hand.

(a) The Prophet being first instructed by a voice that the destruction is near at hand: [1] * Vas interfectionis.

2 And behold (b) six men came from the way of the upper gate, which looketh to the North: and every man's weapon of destruction in his hand: (c) one man also in the midst of them was clothed with linen garments, and the ink-horn of a writer at his reins: and they entered in, and stood by the brazen altar.

(b) forthwith in the same vision, seeth six men coming to kill the idolaters. (c) Yet one is sent before the six to mark some, whom God's mercy will save from the slaughter, because he never suffereth his Church to be wholly destroyed.

3 And the glory of the Lord of Israel was taken up from the Cherub, which was over him to the threshold of the house: and he called the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, and had the ink-horn of a writer on his loins. 4 And our Lord said to him: Pass through the midst of the city in the midst of Jerusalem: and sign [1]Thau upon the foreheads of the men that mourn and lament upon all the abominations, that are done in the midst thereof.

[1] * Mark with.

5 And to them he said in my hearing: Pass through the city following him, and strike: let not your eye spare, neither have ye mercy. 6 The old, the young man, and the virgin, the little one, and the women kill to utter destruction: but every one upon whom you shall see Thau, kill not, and (d) begin ye at my Sanctuary: They began therefore at the ancient men, which were before the face of the house.

(d) For abuses of holy Sacrifices, Sacraments, & other sacred Rites, God suffereth first Churches and Monasteries to be destroyed, & clergy men & other religious persons to be persecuted, and so punishment proceedeth to other offenders, as, 1. Pet. 4. v. 17. Judgement beginneth at the house of God.

7 And he said to them: Contaminate the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go ye forth. And they went forth, and struck them that were in the city. 8 And the slaughter being accomplished I remained: and I fell upon my face, and crying: I said Alas, alas, alas o Lord God, wilt thou then destroy all the remnant of Israel, pouring out thy fury upon Jerusalem? 9 And he said to me: The iniquity of the house of Israel, and Juda is exceeding great, and the land is replenished with blood, and the city is replenished with aversion: for they have said: Our Lord hath forsaken the earth, and our Lord seeth not. 10 Therefore mine eye also shall not spare, neither will I have mercy: I will requite their way upon their head. 11 And behold the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, that had the ink-horn at his back, answered a word, saying: I have done as thou hast commanded me.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. IX.

[1] Some translate, Sign a sign, or, set a mark upon the foreheads.

[2] Others translate more distinctly: Sign Thau upon the foreheads: or Mark the foreheads with Thau, or T. That is with the letter which hath the form of a Cross. It was in the time of Ezechiel in figure, now is in remembrance of Christ's Cross. The Ancient Fathers testify the continual use of the sign of the

4. Sign Thau upon the foreheads.] [1] Most of the Hebrew Rabbins, as also the Septuagint, likewise Aquila, and Symmachus translate THAV, according to the signification of the Hebrew word, a sign: as if it were commanded only in general to set one sign or other, not any determinate certain sign or mark, on the foreheads of the men that mourn and lament upon the abominations, that are done in Jerusalem. [2] But as well some other Hebrew Rabbins, with the Chaldee Paraphrasis, as also Theodotion, and in manner all other ancient Latin Interpreters, whom S. Jerome followeth, translate as in the vulgate Edition, Signa Thau super frontes virorum gementium, &c. Sign Thau upon the foreheads of the men that mourn, &c. That is, mark their foreheads with THAV, the last Hebrew letter, which in the old Hebrew characters, used even to S. Jerome's time by the Samarians, hath the similitude and form of a Cross. So expressing a particular determinate sign; [3] as when the Angel slew the first-born of Aegypt, the Israelite's houses were distinctly marked with blood, sprinkled on the posts of their doors: mystically signifying our B. Saviour's most sacred blood to be shed for Redemption of mankind: so also this letter THAV bearing the form of a Cross, formed in the forehead of the mourners, signified the Cross, whereon Christ our Lord should die, and redeem us from sin. Which sign, as it was then prefigurative, and prophetical; so now it is representative, and commemorative of our Redemption made by our B. Saviour, on the holy Cross. That we may truly glory in Christ, and that with our great Apostle S. Paul, [4] in CHRIST CRUCIFIED. With great reason therefore hath the whole Church of Christ singularly esteemed, and continually used this holy Sign of the Cross in all Divine Mysteries, and godly works, even from the Apostles' time. Witnesses hereof are the ancient Fathers: S. Dionyse Ariopagite, Eccles. Hierarch. c. 2. reciting the sign of the Cross amongst other sacred Rites in administration of Baptism: who also c. 5. & 6. maketh like mention of the same sign in making Priests, and professing of Religious persons. Likewise S. Ireneus. li. 2. c. 42. describeth the form of the Cross. S. Justinus Martyr, Dialogo cum Tryphone, sheweth diverse figures in the old Testament of the Cross. Tertullian, Adversus Marcionem, testifieth that the Apostles, and all the faithful of Christ were signed in their foreheads with the sign of THAV, the last of the Hebrew letters, bearing the form of a Cross: the same (saith he) with the Greek letter, TAV, and our Latin T. Who further both in that place, and li. de corona militis, & li. de resurrect. carnis, testifieth the most frequent use of this holy sign of the Cross. After him S. Cyprian witnesseth the same in his time, Epist. ad Tybaritanos, li. ad Demetrianum, & li. 1. ca. 8. Testimoniorum advers. Iudaeos. More especially, li. 2. c. 21. proveth by this place amongst other holy Scriptures, that in this sign of the Cross, is health to all that are signed therewith in the foreheads. S. Chrysostome. li. cont. Gentiles, Amongst other demonstrations, sheweth by the honour, [5] and daily use of the Cross, that Christ is God; because none but God could make a thing, which before was so execrable, to be now every-where so highly esteemed. And in his Homilies. 55. in Mat. 16. & 84. in Ioan. 19. and other places, witnesseth that in Baptism, in the most holy Eucharist, in the Sacrament of Holy Orders, & in all most excellent Mysteries, the Ensign of Victory, the sign of the Cross is ever present unto us: in all his discourse teaching, to glory not only in Christ crucified, but also to honour the sign of the Cross. And that who soever despiseth the sign of the Cross, despiseth indeed Christ Crucified. To omit others, S. Augustine recordeth, li. 1. Confess. c. 11. that himself when he was a child, and dangerously sick, was by his mother's pious care, signed with the sign of the Cross: and li. de catechizandis rudibus c. 20. teacheth that every one is to be signed in the forehead with the sign of the Cross, [6] and that all Christians are so signed. Also Tract, 118. in Ioan. What is the sign of Christ (saith he) which all know, but the Cross of Christ? Which sign unless it be adjoined, as well to the foreheads of them that believe in Christ, as to the water it-self wherewith they are regenerate, and to the chrism oil, wherewith they are anointed, as also to the Sacrifice, wherewith they are nourished; none of these things is rightly performed. Or will you have him to speak more plainly, or more generally? Ser. 101. de tempore: With the sign of the Cross (saith he) our Lord's body is consecrated, and all things, whatsoever are sanctified, are consecrated with the invocation of Christ's name in this sign. [5] Honour of the Cross proveth Christ to be God.

[6] The sign of the Cross used in Baptism, in Confirmation, in the B. Eucharist, and in all holy Rites.

◦The apparition also of this sign to Constantine the great, with this inscription: IN HOC VINCES, is most famous; written by Eusebius Caesariensis li. 1. c. 22: & 23. de vita Constantini, and many others. The same sign also appeared in Jerusalem in the time of his son Constantius, as S. Cyril of Jerusalem testifieth in his Epistle to the same Emperor. And Nicephorus. li. 10. c. 2. Hist. Eccles writeth that the forms of Crosses, fell with the dew upon the garments of Iulian the Apostata, and of his followers. And many other histories, both ancient and modern make mention of the like apparitions.

◦Miraculous apparition of the sign of the Cross.

But above all others, the most principal is to come: The sign of the Son of man; as our B. Saviour himself foretelleth, [1] which shall appear in the heaven at his coming to judge the whole world: his most proper Ensign the Cross; by which he conquered the devil, sin, death, and enemies of God and men. So all ancient Fathers undoubtedly understand his prediction. Mat. 24. Then will this sign appear to the great confusion of all unsigned miscreants, with other wicked enemies of the Cross, and Crucifix. [2] For then shall all the world, both men, and Angels see, what infinite charity, our

[1] The sign of the Cross shall appear before Christ, coming to judge.

[2] The unsigned shall be confounded.

[3] The rightly signed shall be glorified.

most blessed Redeemer hath used for man's salvation; and how justly those that either do not believe, or not regard his so unspeakable mercy, shall be adjudged to everlasting damnation in the pit and fire of hell. [3] And on the other side, all those that are rightly signed in their foreheads, and have accordingly performed that, which in Baptism they promised, shall meet this saving Ensign, with incomparable comfort, joy, and gladness; who coming clothed in white robes, with palms of victory in their hands, shall then receive glorious crowns in eternal life.

CHAPTER X.

Destruction of the city is again signified by appearance of fire sprinkled therein, 9. with description of Cherubims, four wheels, and of the four living creatures.

And I saw, & behold (a) in the firmament, that was over the head of the Cherubs, as it were the sapphire stone, as it were the form of the similitude of a throne appeared over them.

(a) In this vision appeared in the air as it were a man sitting in a throne of sapphire stone, over the image of Cherubs, & four wheels under them.

2 And he spake to the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, and said: Go in the midst of the wheels that are under the Cherubs, and fill thy hand with the coals of fire, that are between the Cherubs, and pour them out upon the city. And he went in, in my sight: 3 & the Cherubs stood on the right hand of the house, when the man went in, and a cloud filled the inner court. 4 And the glory of our Lord was lifted up from above the Cherub to the threshold of the house: and the house was replenished with the cloud, & the court was replenished with the brightness of the glory of our Lord. 5 And the sound of the wings of the Cherubs was heard even to the utter court, as it were the voice of God almighty speaking. 6 And when he had commanded the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, saying: Take fire from the midst of the wheels, that are between the Cherubs: he being gone in stood beside the wheel. 7 And a Cherub stretched out his hand from the midst of the Cherubs to the fire, that was between the Cherubs: & he took, & gave into his hands, that was clothed with the linen garments: who taking it went forth. 8 And there appeared in the Cherubs the similitude of a man's hand under their wings. 9 And I saw, & behold four wheels by the Cherubs: one wheel by one Cherub, & another wheel by one Cherub: & the form of the wheels was as it were the resemblance of the stone Chrysolithus: 10 & their resemblance, one similitude to the four: as it were (b) a wheel in the midst of a wheel.

(b) The strange form of these four pair of wheels, signified the consonant agreement of the old and new Testament. S. Greg. ho. 6. in Ezech.

11 And when they walked, they went into (c) four parts: & they returned not walking: but to the place, whereunto that which was first declined, the rest also followed, neither did they turn.

(c) They were ready to go forward, backward, on the right hand, on the left, or to what part soever without turning about.

12 And all their body, & necks, & hands, & wings, and the circles were full of eyes, in the circuit of the four wheels. 13 And these wheels he called voluble, myself hearing it. 14 And one had four faces: one face, the face (d) of a Cherub, and the second face, the face of a man: and in the third the face of a lion: and in the fourth the face of an eagle.

(d) It seemeth every one had as it were four faces. v. 21. all like men's faces, but one more resembling a man's face than the other, one somewhat resembling an oxe face (c. 1.) here called the face of a cherub) another, the face of a lion, the other of an eagle.

15 And the Cherubs were lifted up: the same is the living creature, that I had seen by the river Chobar. 16 And when the Cherubs walked, the wheels also went together by them: and when the Cherubs lifted up their wings, to be raised up from the earth, the wheels rested not, but also were beside them.

17 Those standing, they stood: and with them lifted up they were lifted up. For the spirit of life was in them. 18 And the glory of our Lord went forth from the threshold of the temple, and stood over the Cherubs. 19 And the Cherubs lifting up their wings, were exalted from the earth before me: and they going forth, the wheels also followed: & it stood in the entry of the east gate of the house of our Lord: and the glory of the God of Israel was over them. 20 The same is the living creature, which I saw under the God of Israel by the river Chobar: an I understood that they were Cherubs. 21 Four faces to one, and four wings to one: and the similitude of a man's hand under their wings. 22 And the similitude of their faces, the same faces, which I had seen by the river Chobar, and the looks of them, and the sway of every one to go before his face.

CHAPTER XI.

Against false-Prophets affirming that the people should not be carried into captivity, 4. Ezechiel prophesied that they shall not escape it. 13. Pheltias a false-Prophet dieth: 14. and God promiseth to conserve some relics: 19. and to give a new spirit in their hearts.

And the spirit lifted me up, and (a) brought me into the east gate of the house of our Lord, which looketh to the rising of the sun: and behold in the entry of the gate five and twenty men: and I saw in the midst of them Jezonias the son of Azur, & Pheltias the son of Banaias, the Princes of the people.

(a) The Prophet in Chaldea saw in spirit what was done in Jerusalem.

2 And he said to me: Son of man, these are the men that conceive iniquity, and devise most wicked counsel in this city, 3 saying: (b) Were not houses builded of late? (c) This is the cauldron, & we the flesh.

(b) Were not new houses builded (say the false Prophets) since Jeremy said, that all our houses should be destroyed? Whereupon they infer that his Prophecy is false: (c) and so counted themselves as secure, in Jerusalem: as flesh in the pot.

4 Therefore prophesy of them, prophesy thou son of man. 5 And the spirit of our Lord fell upon me, & said to me: Speak: Thus saith our Lord: So have you spoken, o house of Israel, & the cogitations of your heart I know. 6 Very many have you killed in this city, and you have filled the ways thereof with the slain. 7 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Your slain, whom you have laid in the midst thereof, these are the flesh, and this is the cauldron: and I will bring you out of the midst thereof. 8 (d) The sword you have feared, and the sword I will bring upon you, saith our Lord God.

(d) The false Prophets feared wars, but not captivity, therefore the Prophet assureth them that the people shall feel both sword, & captivity.

9 And I will cast you out of the midst thereof, & I will give you into the hand of the enemies, & will do judgements in you. 10 You shall fall by the sword: in the borders of Israel will I judge you, and you shall know that I am the Lord. 11 This shall not be as a cauldron to you, and you shall not be as flesh in the midst thereof, in the borders of Israel I will judge you. 12 And you shall know that I am the Lord: because you have not walked in my precepts, and have not done my judgements, but you have done according to the judgements of nations, that are round about you. 13 And it came to pass, when I prophesied, Pheltias the son of Banaias died: and I (e) fell upon my face, crying with a loud voice: and said: Alas, alas, alas, o Lord God: makest thou a consummation of the remnant of Israel?

(e) He lamented not the death of the false prophet, but feared great ruin of the people seeing this wicked man die so suddenly.

14 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 15 Son of man thy brethren, thy brethren, thy kinsmen, and all the house of Israel, all to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said: Depart ye far from our Lord, the land is given to us in possession. 16 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because I have made them far off in the Gentiles, and because I have dispersed them in the lands: I will be (f) a little sanctification to them in the lands, to which they are come.

(f) God still conserveth his Church from utter ruin, as the prophets do often affirm. Iere. 4. v. 27. ch. 5. v. 10. 18. Psal. 88. v. 3. 35.

17 Therefore speak: Thus saith our Lord God: I will gather you out of the peoples, and unite you out of the lands, wherein you are dispersed, and I will give you the ground of Israel. 18 And they shall go in thither, and shall take away all the offences, and all the abominations thereof out of it. 19 And I will give them one heart, and will give a new spirit in their bowels: and I will take away the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them a fleshy heart: 20 that they may walk in my precepts, and keep my judgements, and do them: and they may be my people, and I may be their God. 21 Whose heart walketh after their offences and abominations, their way will I lay on their head, saith our Lord God. 22 And the Cherubs lifted up their wings, and the wheels with them: and the glory of the God of Israel was over them. 23 And the glory of our Lord ascended from the midst of the city, and stood over the mount, that is on the east side of the city. 24 And the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into Chaldee to the transmigration, in a vision in the spirit of God: and the vision which I had seen was taken up from me. 25 And I spake to the transmigration all the words of our Lord, which he had shewed me.

CHAPTER XII.

By providing furniture for a journey, and carrying it from one place to another, 5. and flying through a hole in the wall, 10. the Prophet signifieth that the King, and people shall go into captivity. 17. By eating, as if he were troubled, foresheweth their famine. 21. All which shall come quickly.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, thou dwellest in the midst of an exasperating house: which have eyes to see, and see not: and ears to hear, and hear not: because it is an exasperating house. 3 Thou therefore, o son of man, make thee (a) vessels of transmigration, and thou (b) shalt flit by day before them: and thou shalt flit out of thy place to another place in their sight; if perhaps they will behold: because it is an exasperating house.

(a) Provide furniture for travel. (b) Truss up, & carry bag & baggage from one place to another.

4 And thou shalt carry forth thy vessels as the vessels of one flitting by day in the sight of them: and thou shalt go forth at even before them, as one goeth forth that flitteth. 5 Before their eyes dig to thee through the wall: and thou shalt go forth through it. 6 In their sight on shoulders thou shalt be carried, in the dark thou shalt be carried out: thou shalt cover thy face, and shalt not see the earth: because I have given thee a portending sign to the house of Israel. 7 I did therefore as he had commanded me: I carried my vessels as the vessels of one flitting by day: and at even I digged to me through the wall with my hand: and I went forth in the dark, and was carried on shoulders in their sight. 8 And the word of our Lord was made to me in the morning, saying: 9 Son of man, hath not the house of Israel the exasperating house said to thee: What doest thou? 10 Say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: This burden upon the Prince, that is in Jerusalem, and upon all the house of Israel, which is in the midst of them. 11 Say: I am your portending sign, as I have done, so shall it be done to them, into transmigration, and into captivity shall they go. 12 And the Prince, that is in the midst of them, shall be carried on shoulders, he shall go forth in the dark: they shall dig through the wall to bring him out: his face shall be covered, that he may not see the earth with his eye. 13 And I will stretch forth my net upon him, and he shall be taken in my net: and I (c) will bring him into Babylon into the land of the Chaldees, and he shall (d) not see it, and there he shall die.

(c) The false Prophets argued here Ezechiel of contradiction that the king should be carried into Babylon, (d) and should not see Babylon. But the event convinced their rash judgement. For he was carried thither blind. 4. Reg. 2.

14 And all that are about him, his guard, and his troops I will disperse into every wind: and I will draw the sword after them. 15 And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have dispersed them in the Gentiles, and scattered them in the lands. 16 And I will leave of them a few men from the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence: that they may declare all their wicked deeds in the Gentiles, to which they shall enter: and they shall know that I am the Lord. 17 And the word of our Lord was made unto me, saying: 18 Son of man, eat thy bread in trouble: yea & drink thy water in haste and sorrowfulness. 19 And thou shalt say to the people of the land: Thus saith our Lord God to them that dwell in Jerusalem in the land of Israel: Their bread they shall eat in carefulness, and their water in desolation they shall drink: that the land may be made desolate from the multitude thereof, for the iniquity of all that dwell therein. 20 And the cities, that are now inhabited, shall be desolate, and the land desert: and you shall know that I am the Lord. 21 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 22 Son of man, what is this (e) proverb with you in the land of Israel saying: (f) The days shall be deferred to a long time, and all vision shall perish.

(e) That which is commonly said of many is called a Proverb. (f) False Prophets persuaded the people, that seeing the captivity foretold by the Prophets was not yet come, therefore it would never come. As heretics shall deny the day of general judgement. 1. Pet. 3.

23 Therefore say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: I will make this proverb cease, neither shall it any more be commonly said in Israel: and speak to them that the days are at hand, and the word of every vision. 24 for all vision shall no more be in vain, nor divination ambiguous in the midst of the children of Israel. 25 Because I^ the Lord will speak: and what word soever I shall speak, shall also be done, it shall not be prolonged any more: but in your days ye exasperating house, will I speak the word, and will do it, saith our Lord God. 26 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 27 Son of man, behold the house of Israel, they that say: The vision, that this man seeth, is for many days: and this man Prophesieth long times. 28 Therefore say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Every word of mine shall be prolonged no further: the word that I shall speak, shall be accomplished, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XIII.

God threateneth false Prophets, 5. that flatter the people with lies: 10. without the fear of God. 17. Likewise false Prophetesses, that deceive themselves and others with flattery, 19. for worldly gain.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man prophesy to the Prophets of Israel, that prophesy: and thou shalt say to them, that prophesy of their own heart: Hear ye the word of our Lord: 3 Thus saith our Lord God: Woe to the foolish Prophets, which follow their own spirit, and see nothing. 4 As foxes in the deserts, were thy Prophets o Israel. 5 You have not ascended against, nor opposed a wall for the house of Israel, that you might stand in battle in the day of our Lord. 6 They see vain things, and they divine lies, saying: Our Lord saith: whereas our Lord sent them not: and they persevered to confirm the word. 7 Why^ have you not seen vain vision, and spoken lying divination? And you say: Our Lord saith; whereas I have not spoken. 8 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because you have spoken vain things, and have seen lies: therefore behold I to you, saith our Lord God. 9 And my hand shall be upon the Prophets, that see vain things, and divine a lie: in the counsel of my people they shall not be, & in the scripture of the house of Israel they shall not be written, neither shall they enter into the land of Israel: and you shall know that I am the Lord God. 10 For that they have deceived my people, saying: Peace, and there is not peace: and he builded the wall, and they daubed it with mortar (a) without straw.

(a) As a wall of clay, or mortar without straw or other temperature, is washed away with rain, so vain hopes of security, without repentance & good works deceive the careless people that live in sin.

11 Say to them that daub without tempering, that it shall fall: for there shall be a shower overflowing, and I will give very great stones falling violently from above, and the wind of a storm dissipating. 12 For indeed behold the wall is fallen: shall it not be said to you: Where is the daubing, that you daubed?

13 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: And I will make the spirit of tempests to break forth in mine indignation, and there shall be an overflowing showering in my fury: & great stones in my wrath unto consumption. 14 And I will destroy the wall, that you have daubed without tempering: & I will make it even with the ground, and the foundation thereof shall be revealed: and it shall fall, and shall be consumed in the midst thereof: and you shall know that I am the Lord. 15 And I will accomplish mine indignation in the wall, and in them, that daub it without tempering, and I will say to you: The wall is not, and they are not that daub it. 16 The Prophets of Israel, which prophesy to Jerusalem, & see vision of peace for it: and there is not peace, saith our Lord God. 17 And thou son of man, put thy face against (b) the daughters of thy people, which prophesy of their own heart: and do thou prophesy upon them,

(b) There were also false prophetesses feigning to be illuminated with the spirit of Prophecy; as Debora (Iud. 4.) Holda (4. Reg. 22.) and other holy women were indeed true Prophetesses. But these, by 18 and say: Thus saith our Lord God: woe to them that sow cushions under every cubit of the hand: and make pillows under the head of every age to catch souls: and when they caught the souls of my people, they did (c) vivificate their souls.

(c) flattery deceived the people, saying they were in good state & in security, when they were in sin, & in extreme danger of both temporal and eternal ruin.

19 And they violated me to my people, for a handful of barley, and a cantel of a bread, that they might kill the souls, which die not, and vivificate the souls which live not, lying to my people, that believeth lies. 20 For this cause thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to your cushions, wherewith you catch flying souls: and I will break them from your arms: and I will let go the souls that you take, the souls to fly 21 And I will break your pillows, & will deliver my people out of your hand, neither shall they be any more in your hands to be a prey: and you shall know that I am the Lord. 22 For that you have made the heart of the just to mourn lyingly, whom I made not sorrowful: and have strengthened the hands of the impious, that he might not return from his evil way, and live. 23 Therefore you shall not see vain things, and divinations you shall divine no more, and I will deliver my people out of your hand: and you shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER XIV.

Idolaters inquiring of God's will by his Prophets, 6. must first depart from idolatry: 8. otherwise God will permit false-Prophets to deceive them, and both shall perish together: 12. by famine, 15. by ravenous beasts, 17. sword, 19. and pestilence: yea Noe^ Daniel, and Job interceding shall not deliver them (v. 14. 16. 18. 20.) 21. yet God will conserve some that the whole Church perish not.

And men of the ancients of Israel came to me, and sat before me. 2 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 3 Son of man, (a) These men have put their uncleanness in their hearts, and the scandal of their iniquity they have set against their face: what, being asked shall I answer them?

(a) God revealed to the Prophet that these men came not sincerely to learn, but were settled in their heart to serve the idols. As worldly men in heretical countries do inquire of Catholic Priests what they should do, but remain resolved to participate with heretics.

4 For this cause speak to them, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Man, man of the house of Israel, that shall put his uncleanness in his heart, and set the scandal of his iniquity against his face, and shall come to the Prophet asking me by him: I^ the Lord will answer him in the multitude of his uncleanness: 5 that the house of Israel may be taken in their heart, wherewith they have revolted from me in all their idols. 6 Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God: (b) Convert, and depart from your idols, and from all your contaminations turn away your faces.

(b) Such men are first of all to be admonished to depart from idolatry, heresy, schism, & from all practice thereof: which is the first step of true conversion to God.

7 Because man man of the house of Israel and of the proselytes, whosoever shall be a stranger in Israel, if he be alienated from me, and put his idols in his heart, and set the scandal of iniquity against his face, and come to the Prophet to ask me by him: I^ the Lord will answer him by myself. 8 And I will set my face upon that man, and will make him for an example, & for a proverb, & will destroy him out of the midst of my people: & you shall know that I am the Lord. 9 And the Prophet when he shall err, & shall speak a word: I^ the Lord (c) have deceived that Prophet: and I will stretch forth my hand upon him, and will rase him out of the midst of my people Israel.

(c) God permitteth false prophets to be deceived, & to deceive in punishment of their own sins, and of the people that hear them. 3. Reg. 22. v. 19. 2. Par. 18. v. 18.

10 And they shall carry their iniquity: according to the iniquity of him that asketh, so shall the iniquity of the Prophet be. 11 That the house of Israel may no more err from me, nor be polluted in all their prevarications: but may be my people, & I may be their God, saith the Lord of hosts. 12 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 13 Son of man, the land when it shall sin to me, that transgressing it transgresseth, I will stretch forth my hand upon it, and will break the rod of the bread thereof: and I will send famine into it, and will kill out of it man and beast. 14 And if these three men shall be in the midst thereof, (d) Noe, Daniel, & Job: they by their justice shall deliver their own souls, saith the Lord of hosts.

(d) Daniel then living, Noe & Job, departed from this life did sometime pray for the people; else this allegation of their interceding, were not to the purpose of confirming God's immutable decree to punish this obstinate people. As is noted of Moyses and Samuel. Iere. 15.

15 And if I shall bring most evil beasts also upon the land, to waste it; and it be without passage, for that there is none can pass because of the beasts: 16 These three men if they shall be therein, I live, I, saith our Lord, that they shall deliver neither sons nor daughters: but themselves alone shall be delivered, and the land shall be made desolate. 17 Or if I shall bring the sword in upon that land, and shall say to the sword: Pass through the land: and shall kill out of it man & beast: 18 And these three men shall be in the midst thereof: I live, I, saith our Lord God, they shall not deliver sons nor daughters, but themselves alone shall be delivered. 19 And if I shall send the pestilence also in upon that land, and shall pour out mine indignation upon it in blood, to take away out of it man and beast: 20 And (e) Noe, & Daniel, & Job shall be in the midst thereof: live I, saith our Lord God, that son and daughter they shall not deliver: but themselves by their justice shall deliver their own souls.

(e) Noe is named for example of spiritual Pastors of the Church, Daniel of all religious orders, & Job of holy lay people. S. Gregory, li. 1. c. 13. Mor.

21 Because thus saith our Lord: That and if I shall send in upon Jerusalem my four very sore judgements, the sword, and famine, and evil beasts, & the pestilence: to kill out of it man, and beast: 22 Yet shall there be left in it salvation (f) of some bringing out sons, and daughters: behold they shall go forth to you, & you shall see their way, and their inventions: and you shall be comforted upon the evil, that I have brought upon Jerusalem in all things, that I have brought in upon it.

(f) There shall always be Pastors to bring forth & feed spiritual children of God.

23 And they shall comfort you, when you shall see their way, & their inventions: and you shall know that I have not in vain done all things, which I have done in it, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XV.

As a vine cut down is profitable to no use, but to burn: 6. so the Jews (and other people) separated from the Church, are to be burned in the fire.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, what shall be made of (a) the wood of the vine of all the trees of the woods, that are among the trees of the forests?

(a) God's Church is very often and fitly compared to a vine in respect of the excellent fruit: & so the branches cut off from the Church, are most like to wild superfluity of the vine, good for nothing but to the fire. S. Aug. Tract. 81. in Io.

3 Shall there be taken wood of it, that a work may be made, or shall a pin be made thereof, that any vessel may hang thereon? 4 Behold it is given to the fire for food: the fire hath consumed both parts thereof, and the midst thereof is brought into ashes: why, shall it be profitable for a work? 5 Yea when it was whole, it was not fit for a work: how much more when the fire hath devoured, and burnt it, shall no work be made thereof? 6 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: As the wood of the vine among the trees of the forests, which I have given to the fire to be devoured, so will I deliver the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 7 And I will set my face against them: (b) out of the fire shall they come forth, and fire shall consume them: and you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall set my face against them,

(b) In burning a fagot the middes being first consumed (v. 4.) the rest of both ends are likewise put in the fire till all be consumed, so none that are out of the Church can escape the fire.

8 and shall make their land not passable, and desolate, because they have been prevaricators, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XVI.

God by his Prophet setting his benefits, 15. and the Jews' wickedness before their eyes, 31. compareth them with other idolaters: 35. and after threatened punishment, 45. with further comparison of other nations, 52. exhorting them to repentance, 60. offereth mercy by a new covenant of Christ's Gospel.

And the word of our Lord was made to me saying: 2 Son of man make known (a) to Jerusalem her abominations:

(a) Ezechiel was now in Babylon, & therefore this admonition which he should give to Jerusalem was to be notified there by letters, & messengers sent thither for this purpose.

3 and thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God to Jerusalem: Thy root, and thy generation of the land of Chanaan, thy father an Amorrheite, & thy mother a Cetheite. 4 And when thou wast born, in the day of thy birth thy navel was not cut, and thou wast not washed with water to health, nor salted with salt, nor swaddled in clouts. 5 No eye had mercy on thee to do unto thee one of these things, having pity on thee: but thou wast thrown forth upon the face of the earth in the abjection of thy soul, in the day that thou wast born. 6 And passing by thee (b) I saw thee to be trodden down in thy blood: and I said to thee when thou wast in thy blood: Live. I said to thee, I say: In thy blood live.

(b) By all this is signified that God made the Israelites of a barbarous nation to be civil, and gave them not only things necessary, but also

7 Multiplied as the spring of the field have I made thee: and thou wast multiplied, & made great, and thou wentest in, and camest to the ornaments of women: thy breasts swelled, and thy hair budded: and thou was naked, and full of confusion. 8 And I passed by thee, and saw thee: and behold thy time, the time of lovers: and I spread my garment over thee, and covered thy ignominy. And I sware to thee, and I entered a covenant with thee, saith our Lord God: and thou wast made mine. 9 And I washed thee with water, and made clean thy blood from off thee: and I anointed thee with oil. 10 And I clothed thee with diverse colours, and shod thee with hyacinth: and I girded thee with silk, and clothed thee with fine garments. 11 And I (c) adorned thee with ornament, and gave bracelets on thy hands, and a chain about thy neck.

(c) ornaments, above the state of other nations; especially in spiritual benefits, giving a Law, with Sacrifices, Sacraments, and other holy rites.

12 And I gave a jewel upon thy face, and rings to thine ears, and a crown of beauty on thy head. 13 And thou was adorned with gold, and silver, and wast clothed with silk, and embroidered work, and many colours: thou hast eaten flour, and honey, and oil, and wast made very beautiful exceedingly: and didst prosper to a kingdom. 14 And thy name went forth into the Gentiles, because of thy beauty: because thou wast perfect in my beauty, which I had put upon thee, saith our Lord God. 15 And having confidence in thy beauty thou hast fornicated in thy name: & thou hast laid forth thy fornication to every passenger to be made his. 16 And taking off thy garments thou madest thee idols embroidered on each side: & thou didst fornicate upon them, as hath not been done, nor shall not hereafter. 17 And thou tookest the vessels of thy beauty, of my gold, and my silver, which I gave thee: and thou madest thee images of men, and hast fornicated in them. 18 And thou tookest thy garments of many colours, and coveredst them: and mine oil, and mine incense thou didst put before them. 19 And my bread, which I gave thee, the flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I have nourished thee, thou didst set in their sight for an odour of sweetness, and it was done saith our Lord God. 20 And thou hast taken (d) thy sons, & thy daughters, which thou didst beget to me: and hast immolated the same unto them to devour. Why, is thy fornication small?

(d) Adulterous women do deceive their husbands, bringing them other men's children: but the Jews gave their lawful children to the worst adulterers, sacrificing them to idols. 4. Reg. 6. 17. 21. 23.

21 Thou hast immolated my sons, & hast given them, consecrating them to the idols. 22 And after all thine abominations, & fornications, thou wast not mindful of the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked, & full of confusion, trodden down in thy blood. 23 And it chanced after all thy malice (woe, woe to thee, saith our Lord God) 24 thou didst also build thee a stews, & madest thee a brothel house in all streets. 25 At every head of the way hast thou built a sign of thy prostitution: & hast made thy beauty abominable: & hast divided thy feet to every one that passeth by, and hast multiplied thy fornications. 26 And thou hast fornicated with the children of Aegypt thy neighbours of great flesh, & hast multiplied thy fornication to provoke me. 27 Behold I will stretch out my hand upon thee, & will take away thy justification: & I will give thee into the souls of the daughters of Palestine that hate thee, that are ashamed of thy wicked way. 28 And thou hast committed fornication with the sons of the Assyrians, because neither as yet wast thou filled: & after thou didst fornicate, neither so wast thou satiated. 29 And thou didst multiply thy fornication in the Land of Chanaan with the Chaldees: & neither so wast thou satiated. 30 Wherein shall I cleanse thy heart, saith our Lord God: whereas thou doest all these the works of a woman that is a whore, & malapert? 31 Because thou hast built thy brothel house in the head of every way, & thy excelse thou hast made in every street, neither becamest thou as an harlot that by disdain augmenteth the price, 32 but as a woman adulteress, that over her husband bringeth in strangers. 33 To (e) all harlots are rewards given: but thou hast given rewards to all thy lovers, & thou didst give them gifts to come unto thee on every side, to fornicate with thee.

(e) All fornication is abominable, but that is most detestable when women give rewards to men for fornication or adultery.

34 And in thee it was done contrary to the custom of women in thy fornications, and after thee there shall be no fornication: for in that thou gavest rewards, and didst not take rewards, it hath been done contrary in thee. 35 Therefore hear, o harlot, the word of our Lord. 36 Thus saith our Lord God: Because thy brass is poured out, & thine ignominy is revealed in thy fornications upon thy lovers, and upon the idols of thine abominations in the blood of thy children, whom thou gavest them: 37 Behold I will gather together all thy lovers, with whom thou hast taken pleasure, & all, whom thou hast loved, with all, whom thou didst hate: and I will gather them together upon thee on every side, and will discover thine ignominy before them, and they shall see all thy turpitude. 38 And I will judge thee by the judgements of adulteresses, and them that shed blood: and I will give thee into blood of fury and zeal. 39 And I will give thee into their hands, and they shall destroy thy brothel-house, and throw down thy stews: and they shall turn thee naked out of thy garments, and shall take away the vessels of thy beauty: and shall leave thee naked, and full of ignominy. 40 And they shall bring upon thee a multitude, and they shall stone thee with stones, and shall murder thee with their swords. 41 And they shall burn thy houses with fire, and shall do judgements in thee in the eyes of very many women: and thou shalt cease to fornicate, and shalt give rewards no more. 42 And mine indignation shall rest in thee: and my zeal shall be taken away from thee, and I will cease, and be angry no more. 43 For that thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, and hast provoked me in all these: wherefore I also have given thy ways on thy head, saith our Lord God, & I have not done according to thy wicked deeds in all thine abominations. 44 Behold every one, that speaketh a common proverb, shall take up that against thee, saying: (f) As the mother, so also her daughter.

(f) As Jerusalem was wont to be wicked in former times, so it is now.

45 Thou art the daughter of thy mother, which did cast off her husband, & her children: & thou art sister of thy sisters, which did cast off their husbands, and their children: your mother was a Cetheite, and your father an Amorrheite. 46 And thy elder sister, Samaria, she & her daughters, that dwell on thy left hand, & thy sister younger than thou, which dwelleth on thy right hand, Sodom, & her daughters. 47 But neither in their ways has thou walked, nor according to their wicked deeds hast thou done a very little less: thou hast done almost more wicked things than they in all thy ways. 48 Live I, saith our Lord God, that Sodom thy sister herself hath not done, and her daughters, as thou hast done, and thy daughters. 49 Lo this was the iniquity of Sodom thy sister, (g) pride, fullness of bread, and aboundance, and the idleness of her, and of her daughters: and they raught not the hand to the needy, and the poor.

(g) Ambition, gluttony, & idleness are cause of much more sins; temperance & labour bring forth much good fruit. Otia si tollas periere cupidinis arcus. Take away idleness, & Cupid's bow is weak. Labour omnia vincit.

50 And they were elevated, and did abominations before me: & I took them away as thou hast seen. 51 And Samaria sinned not the half of thy sins: but thou hast passed them with thy wicked deeds, & hast justified thy sisters in all thine abominations, which thou hast wrought. 52 Thou also therefore carry thy confusion, which hast passed thy sisters with thy sins, doing more wickedly than they: for they are justified above thee: thou also therefore be confounded, and bear thine ignominy, which hast justified thy sisters. 53 And I will convert restoring them by the conversion of Sodom with her daughters, and by the conversion of Samaria, and her daughters: and I will convert thy reversion in the midst of them, 54 that thou mayst carry thine ignominy, and mayst be confounded in all things, that thou hast done, comforting them. 55 And thy sister (h) Sodom, and her daughters shall return to their antiquity: and Samaria, and her daughters shall return to their antiquity: and (i) thou, and thy daughters shall return to your antiquity.

(h) By Sodom & other cities are understood all nations, which shall come to Christ. (i) After that all other nations are converted the Jews shall also return to Christ. Ro. 11. v. 26.

56 And Sodom thy sister was not heard in thy mouth, in the day of thy pride, 57 before that thy malice was revealed: as at this time for reproach of the daughters of Syria, & of all the daughters of Palesthine in the circuit of thee, which compass thee round about. 58 Thy wickedness, & thine ignominy thou hast carried, saith our Lord God. 59 Because thus saith our Lord God: And I will do to thee, as thou hast despised the oath, to make the covenant frustrate: 60 and I will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth: and I will raise unto thee an everlasting covenant. 61 And thou shalt remember thy ways, & shalt be confounded: when thou shalt receive (k) thy sisters elder than thee with thy younger: and I will give them to thee for daughters, but not by (l) thy covenant.

(k) All gentiles elder & younger shall be converted to Christ. (l) Not by the covenant made with the Jews in the Law of Moyses, but by the Evangelical covenant.

62 And I will raise up my covenant with thee: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord, 63 that thou mayst remember, and be confounded, and mayst no more open thy mouth because of thy confusion, when I shall be pacified toward thee in all that thou hast done, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XVII.

By a parable of two eagles (6. and of a vineyard) is prophesied, 9. that Sedecias being made King by Nabuchodonosor, 15. and rebelling, shall be carried captive, and die in Babylon: 22. with prophecy, that God will plant, and propagate the Church of Christ.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, propose a dark speech, and tell a parable to the house of Israel, 3 and thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: A great (a) eagle with great wings, with a long reach of members, full of feathers, and of variety, came to Libanus, and took the marrow of the cedar.

(a) Nabuchodonosor like an eagle ravenous to the prey, & speedy in seizing thereon, spoiled the vineyard (signifying Jerusalem) notwithstanding they sought help of another eagle, the King of Aegypt. v. 7. See v. 12. &c.

4 He plucked away the top of the boughs thereof: and transported it into the Land of Chanaan, in the city of merchants he did put it. 5 And he took of the seed of the land, & put it in the ground for seed, that it might fasten the root over many waters: he planted it in the overmost part of the earth. 6 And when it had budded, it grew into a broad spreading vine of low stature, the boughs thereof looking toward it: and the roots thereof were under it. It became a vine then, and fructified into branches, and put forth shoots. 7 And there was made another great eagle, with great wings, and many feathers: and behold this vine as it were spreading her roots towards it, stretched forth her branches to it, that she might water it from the beds of her spring. 8 In a good ground upon many waters it was planted, that it might bring forth branches, & bear fruit, that it might be into a great vine. 9 Say: Thus saith our Lord God: shall it prosper then? Shall he not pluck up the roots thereof, & strip off the fruits thereof, dry up all the branches of the spring thereof, & it shall wither: & not in a great arm, nor in much people, to pluck it up by the root? 10 Behold it is planted: shall it prosper them? Shall it not be dried when the burning wind shall touch it, and wither in the beds of the spring thereof? 11 And the word of our Lord was made to me saying: 12 Say to the exasperating house: Know you not what these things do signify? Say: (b) Behold the king of Babylon cometh into Jerusalem: and he shall take the king and the princes thereof, and shall bring them to himself into Babylon.

(b) The explication of the parable.

13 And he shall take of (c) the seed of the kingdom, and shall make a covenant with it, and shall take an oath of it. Yea and he shall take away the strong of the land,

(c) The King of Babylon making Sedecias King of Juda, took of him an oath of allegiance to be under him, which oath Sedecias breaking was therefore justly plagued.

14 that it may be a low kingdom, & not be elevated, but keep his covenant, and observe it. 15 Who revolting from him sent messengers to Aegypt, that it would give him horses, and much people. What, shall he prosper, or get salvation that hath done these things? And he that broke the covenant, shall he escape? 16 Live I, saith our Lord God: that in the place of the king that made him king, whose oath he made frustrate, and brake the covenant, that he had with him, (d) in the midst of Babylon shall he die.

(d) After the ruin of Jerusalem, the slaughter of his sons, the plucking out of his own eyes, & many other miseries, this King at last died a captive in Babylon. Iere. 32. Ezech. 12.

17 And not in a great army, nor in much people shall Pharao make battle against him: in the casting up of a ramper, and in the building of bulwarks, to kill many souls. 18 For he had despised the oath, that he might break the covenant, and behold he gave his hand, & when he hath done all these things, he shall not escape. 19 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Live I, that the oath which he hath despised, and the covenant, that he transgressed, I will lay on his head. 20 And I will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my net: and I will bring him into Babylon, and will judge him there in the prevarication, whereby he hath despised me. 21 And all his fugitives with all their troop shall fall by the sword: and the residue shall be dispersed into every wind: and you shall know that I^ the Lord have spoken. 22 Thus saith our Lord God: And (e) I will take of the marrow of the high cedar, and will set it: of the top of the boughs thereof the tender one I will strip off, and will plant it upon a mountain high and eminent.

(e) Nabuchodonosor planted a Kingdom under Sedecias, which prospered not: the Kingdom also of Babylon was afterwards destroyed: but God's Church planted by Christ shall never fail.

23 On the high mountains of Israel will I plant it, and it shall shoot forth into a bud, and shall yield fruit, and it shall be into a great cedar: and all birds, and every fowl shall dwell under the shadow of the boughs thereof, and shall there make their nest. 24 And all the trees of the country shall know, that I^ the Lord have humbled the high tree, & exalted the low tree: and have dried the green tree, and have caused the dry tree to spring, I^ the Lord have spoken, and have done it.

CHAPTER XVIII.

One shall not bear the sins of another, but every one their own: 21. If the wicked truly repent, he shall be saved: and if the just leave his justice, he shall be damned.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 What is that among you, you turn a parable into this proverb in the land of Israel, saying: (a) The fathers did eat a sour grape, & the teeth of the children are set on edge?

(a) The people suffering affliction would not confess it to be for their own sins, but cast the fault upon their fathers: which error is here convinced, God declaring by his Prophet that not only the fathers, but also the children had sinned, & were therefore justly punished, every one is for his own sins.

3 Live I, saith our Lord God, if this parable shall be unto you any more for a proverb in Israel. 4 Behold all souls are mine: as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that shall sin, the same shall die. 5 And a man if he shall be just, and hath done judgement and justice, 6 hath not eaten on the mountains, and not lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel: and hath not violated his neighbour's wife, & approached not to a menstruous woman: 7 and made no man sorrowful: hath restored the pledge to the debter, taken nothing away by violence: hath given his bread to the hungry, and covered the naked with a garment: 8 hath not lent to usury, and not taken more: hath turned away his hand from iniquity, and done true judgement between man & man: 9 hath walked in my precepts, and kept my judgements, to do truth: this man is just, living he shall live, saith our Lord God. 10 And if he hath begotten a son that is a robber shedding blood, and he do one of these things: 11 and that doth not indeed all these things, but eateth on the mountains, and defileth his neighbour's wife: 12 that maketh the needy and poor sorrowful, violently committeth robberies, restoreth not the pledge, & lifteth his eyes to idols, doth abomination: 13 that giveth to usury, & taketh more: what, shall he live? He shall not live. Whereas he hath done all these detestable things, dying he shall die, his blood shall be upon him. 14 But and if he hath begotten a son, that seeing all his father's sins, which he hath done, is afraid, and shall not do the like to them: 15 hath not eaten upon the mountains, & not lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, & hath not violated his neighbour's wife: 16 and hath made no man sorrowful, hath not withheld the pledge, and hath not violently committed robbery, hath given his bread to the hungry, and covered the naked with clothing: 17 hath turned away his hand from injury of the poor, hath not taken usury and overplus, hath done my judgements, hath walked in my precepts: this man shall not die in the iniquity of his father, but living he shall live. 18 His father because he did calumniate, and did violence to his brother, and wrought evil in the midst of his people, behold he is dead in his own iniquity. 19 And you say: Why hath not the son borne the iniquity of his father? Verily because the son hath wrought judgement and justice, he hath kept all my precepts, and done them, living he shall live. 20 The soul that shall sin, the same shall die: the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, and the father shall not bear the iniquity of the son: the justice of the just shall be upon him, and the impiety of the impious shall be upon him. 21 But (b) if the impious shall do penance from all his sins, which he hath wrought, and shall keep all my precepts, and do judgement, and justice: living he shall live, and shall not die.

(b) Another general rule is here given, That as men alter their manners from evil to good or from good to evil, so they shall be judged & finally rewarded or punished, according to the state wherein they end this life.

22 All his iniquities, which he hath wrought, I will not remember them: in his justice which he hath wrought, he shall live. 23 Why, is the death of a sinner my will, saith our Lord God, and not that he convert from his ways, and live? [1]

[1] v. 32.

24 But if the just man shall turn away himself from his justice, and do iniquity according to all the abominations, which the impious useth to work, shall he live? All his justices, which he had done, shall not be remembered: in the prevarication, which he hath prevaricated, and in his sin, which he hath sinned, in them he shall die. 25 And you have said: The way of our Lord is not right. Hear ye therefore, o house of Israel: What, is not my way right, and are not rather your ways perverse? 26 For when the just shall turn away himself from his justice, and doth iniquity, he shall die in them: in the injustice, that he hath wrought he shall die. 27 And when the impious shall turn away himself from his impiety, which he hath wrought, and shall do judgement and justice (c) he shall [1] vivificate his soul.

(c) As a soul in mortal sin is spiritually dead: so truly repenting it returneth to spiritual life. [1] * make his soul to live.

28 For considering, and turning away himself from all his iniquities, which he hath wrought, living he shall live, and not die. 29 And the children of Israel say: The way of our Lord is not right. What, are not my ways right, o house of Israel, and not rather your ways perverse? 30 Therefore will I judge every man according to his ways, o house of Israel, saith our Lord God. Convert, (d) and do penance from all your iniquities: & iniquity shall not be a ruin to you.

(d) Not only repentance, which is aversion from sin, and conversion to God, but also doing penance that is, satisfaction for sins past is necessary to salvation.

31 Cast away from you all your prevarications, wherein you have prevaricated, and make to yourselves a new heart, and a new spirit: and why will you die, o house of Israel? 32 Because I will not the death of him that dieth, saith our Lord God, return ye, and live.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XVIII.

[1] Though God conditionally would have all men to be saved: yet many are justly damned.

[2] Psa. 113. v. 11. Rom. 9. v. 19. Ezec. 33. v. 11. 1. Tim. 2. v. 4. 2. Pet. 3. v. 9. S. Tho. p. 1. q. 19. a. 6.

[3] A just Judge would condemn no man, yet condemneth murderers, thieves, &c.

23. Is the death of a sinner my will?] [1] In many places of holy Scripture [2] it is clear, that God's will is most assuredly fulfilled in all things, whatsoever he would: and none can resist his will, &c. Nevertheless here, and in other places it is also expressly affirmeth, that God would have all sinners to repent, and none to die in their sins; which seemeth to repugn with the former doctrine. For solution of which difficulty, S. Damascene, li. 2. c. 29. de Orthodoxa fide, and other Doctors distinguish God's will, which is either called Antecedent, and conditional; and so God would have all men to be saved, as appeareth by creating all to that end, by his frequent admonitions, precepts, threats, temporal punishments, and rewards, and especially by our Saviour's death, and redemption of all mankind, whereby he merited most sufficient means, and offereth his sufficient grace to every one, that they may be saved if they will. Otherwise God's will is called Consequent and absolute; and so for justice sake his divine will is, that impenitent sinners shall be damned, and eternally punished for their sins. [3] As a just Judge conditionally and antecedently would have all men to observe good laws, and to live so long as they can by nature; but absolutely and consequently finding some to be murderers, or otherwise pernicious to the commonwealth, he punisheth them with death.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Israelite's calamity is described by two parables, of lions, 10. and of a vine planted and plucked up.

And thou take up lamentation upon the Princes of Israel, 2 and thou shalt say: Why lay (a) thy mother a lioness among the lions, in the midst of young lions brought up her whelps?

(a) Jerusalem brought forth cruel Kings, as Joachaz, Ioakim, Jechonias, and Sedecias. 4. Reg. 23. & 24. of the which two reigned but three months each one, and the others but each of them eleven years.

3 And she brought out one of her young lions, he became a lion: and he learned to catch preys, and to eat man. 4 And the Gentiles heard of him, and not without their wounds they took him: & they brought him in chains into the Land of Aegypt. 5 Who when she saw that she was weakened, and her expectation was lost, she took one of her young lions, she made him a lion. 6 Who went among the lions, & became a lion: and he learned to take prey, & to devour men. 7 He learned to make widows, and to bring their cities into a desert: and the land was made desolate, and the fullness thereof by the voice of his roaring. 8 And (b) the Gentiles came together against him on every side out of the Provinces, and they spread their net upon him, in their wounds he was taken.

(b) Rovers of Chaldea, of Syria, of Moab, & of Ammon. 4. Reg. 24. v. 2.

9 And they put him into a cave, in chains they brought him to the king of Babylon: and they cast him into prison, that his voice might no more be heard upon the mountains of Israel. 10 (c) Thy mother as it were a vine in thy blood is planted upon the water: her fruit and her branches have grown out of many waters.

(c) The Kingdom of all the Israelites was planted and prospered under David and Salomon, but decayed under other Kings: & first ten tribes, afterwards the other two were carried in captivity.

11 And there were made to her strong rods for the sceptres of them that rule, and her stature was exalted among the branches: and she saw her height in the multitude of her branches. 12 And she was plucked up in wrath, and cast on the ground: and the burning wind hath dried up her fruit: the rods of her strength are withered, & dried up: fire hath eaten her. 13 And now she is transplanted into the desert, in a land not passable, and dry. 14 And there came forth fire from the rod of her boughs, which hath eaten her fruit: and there was not in her a strong rod, the sceptre of rulers. Lamentation it is, and it shall be into lamentation.

CHAPTER XX.

God will not answer the elders of Israel asking by the Prophet, 4. but by him setteth his benefits before their eyes, and their own heinous sins; 30. threatening yet greater punishments: 40. but still mixt with mercy.

And it came to pass in (a) the seventh year, in the fifth, the tenth of the month: there came men of the ancients of Israel to ask our Lord, and they sat before me.

(a) Ezechiel began to Prophesy in the fifth year after the transmigration of Jechonias ch. 1. v. 2. after which he was silent 390. days, and 40. days (ch. 4. v. 8.) which make 430. that is, a year two months & five days. In the sixth year the sixth month he Prophesied again ch. 8. v. 1. And now in the seventh year fifth month tenth day, the elders coming to demand Prophecy it was revealed to him not to answer.

2 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 3 Son of man, speak to the ancients of Israel, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Why, are you come to ask me? Live I, that I will not answer you, saith our Lord God. 4 Doest thou judge them, doest thou judge o son of man? Shew to them the abominations of their fathers. 5 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: In the day that I chose Israel, and lifted up my hand for the stock of the house of Jacob: and appeared to them in the Land of Aegypt, & lifted up my hand for them, saying: I^ the Lord your God: 6 in that day I lifted up my hand for them, that I might bring them out of the Land of Aegypt, into a Land which I had provided for them, flowing with milk & honey, which is excellent among all lands. 7 And I said to them: Let every man cast away the scandals of his eyes, & in the idols of Aegypt be ye not polluted: I^ the Lord your God. 8 And they provoked me, & would not hear me: every one did not cast away the abominations of his eyes, neither did they leave the idols of Aegypt: and I said I would pour out mine indignation upon them, and fill my wrath in them, in the midst of the Land of Aegypt. 9 And (b) I did for my name sake, that it might not be violated before the Gentiles, in the midst of whom they were, & among whom I appeared to them to bring them out of the Land of Aegypt.

(b) According to their deserts all should have been destroyed, but God for his name's sake saved his people, as he had promised.

10 I cast them out therefore of the Land of Aegypt, and brought them forth into the desert. 11 And I gave them my precepts, and I shewed to them my judgements, which a man doing, shall live in them. 12 Moreover also my sabbaths I gave to them, to be a sign between me and them: & that they might know that I am the Lord sanctifying them. 13 And the houses of Israel provoked me in the desert; they walked not in my precepts, and my judgements they rejected, which a man doing shall live in them: & my sabbaths they violated exceedingly. I said therefore I would pour out my fury upon them in the desert, and would consume them. 14 And (c) I did for my name sake, lest it should be violated before the Gentiles, from which I cast them out, in their sight.[1]

(c) As v. 9. & 22. God still conserved a succession.[1] Num. 26. Psal. 105.

15 I therefore lifted up my hand upon them in the desert, not to bring them into the Land, which I gave them flowing with milk and honey, the chief of all lands. 16 Because they rejected my judgements, and walked not in my precepts, and violated my sabbaths: for their heart went after idols. 17 And mine eye was merciful on them, that I killed them not: neither did I consume them in the desert. 18 But I said to their children in the wilderness: In the precepts of your fathers^ walk not, neither keep ye their judgments, nor be polluted in their idols: 19 I^ the Lord your God: walk ye in my precepts, and keep my judgements, and do them. 20 And sanctify ye my sabbaths, that they may be a sign between me and you: and ye may know that I am the Lord your God. 21 And the children exasperated me, in my precepts they walked not: and my judgements they kept not, to do them: which when a man shall do, he shall live in them: and they violated my sabbaths: and I threatened to pour out my fury upon them, and to fill my wrath in them in the desert. 22 But I turned away my hand, & did for my name's sake, that it might not be violated before the Gentiles, out of which I did cast them forth in their eyes. 23 (d) Again I lifted up my hand upon them in the wilderness, that I might disperse them into nations, and scatter them into lands:

(d) God lifteth up his hand either to deliver, as v. 5. 6. 15. or to threaten and punish as here.

24 for that they had not done my judgements, and had rejected my precepts, and had violated my sabbaths, and their eyes had been after the idols of their fathers. 25 Therefore I also gave them precepts not good, & judgements, in which they shall not live. 26 And I polluted them in their gifts, when they offered all that opened the matrice, for their offences: and they shall know that I am the Lord. 27 Wherefore speak to the house of Israel, o son of man: and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Yet also in this did your fathers blaspheme me, when contemning they had despised me: 28 and I had brought them into the Land, upon which I lifted up my hand to give it them: they saw every high hill, & every woody tree, and there they immolated their victims: and there they gave the irritation of their oblation, and there they put the odour of their sweetness, and offered their libations. 29 And I said to them: What is (e) the excelse, unto which you go? & the name thereof was called Excelse even to this day.

(e) By long custom of sacrificing to idols upon the Excelses (that is, on high places, or little hills) the people also called the Altar of God an Excelse whereupon the prophet argueth against them that even by the false name used by evil custom, they are convinced to have been great idolaters. As those who have been heretics, do commonly use terms & phrases belonging to heresy. As Communion for Mass, Table for Altar, Service for Sacrifice.

30 Therefore say to the house of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God: Surely in the way of your fathers you are polluted, and after their scandals you do fornicate. 31 And in the oblation of your gifts, when you make your children pass through the fire, you are polluted in all your idols unto this day: and shall I answer you, o house of Israel? Live I, saith our Lord God, that I will not answer you. 32 Neither shall the cogitation of your mind come to pass, saying: We will be as the Gentiles, and as the kindreds of the earth, that we may worship wood, and stones. 33 Live I, saith our Lord God, that in a strong hand, & in a stretched out arm, & in fury poured forth will I reign over you. 34 And I will bring you out of the peoples, and I will gather you out of the lands, in which you are dispersed, in a strong hand, & in a stretched out arm, & in fury poured forth will I reign over you. 35 And I will bring you into the desert of peoples, and will be judged there with you face to face. 36 As I contended in judgement against your fathers in the desert of the Land of Aegypt: so will I judge you, saith our Lord God. 37 And I will subdue you to my sceptre, & will bring you into the bands of covenant. 38 And I will choose out of you the transgressors, and impious, & will bring them out of the land of their sojourning, and into the land of Israel they shall not enter: and you shall know that I am the Lord. 39 And you o house of Israel, Thus saith our Lord God: (f) Walk you every one after your idols, & serve them. But and if in this also you hear me not, and shall pollute (g) my holy name any more in your gifts, & in your idols:

(f) God will rather have idolaters to leave him wholly than to halt between two, 3. Reg. 18. neither hot nor cold, but lukewarm Apoc. 3. (g) For such do especially pollute God's name. Rom. 2. v. 24.

40 in my holy mount, in the high mount of Israel, saith our Lord God, there shall all the house of Israel serve me; all I say in the land, wherein they shall please me, & there will I require your first fruits, and the beginning of your tithes in all your sanctifications. 41 I will receive you for an odour of sweetness, when

I shall have brought you out of the peoples, & shall have gathered you out of the lands, into which you are dispersed, & I will be sanctified in you in the eyes of the nations. 42 And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have brought you into the land of Israel, into the land for which I lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers. 43 And there you shall remember your ways, and all your wicked deeds, in which you were polluted: & you shall mislike yourselves in your own sight, in all your malices, which you have done.
44 And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have done you good for my name sake, and not according to your evil ways, nor according to your most wicked deeds, o house of Israel, saith our Lord God. 45 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 46 Son of man, set thy face against the way (h) of the south, and drop toward the southern wind, & prophesy to the forest of the southern field.

(h) By southern forest is meant Jerusalem, full of all sorts of people good and bad.

47 And thou shalt say to the southern forest: Hear the word of our Lord: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will kindle a fire in thee, and will burn in thee every green tree, and every dry tree: the flame of the fire shall not be quenched: and every face shall be burned in it, from the South even to the North. 48 And all flesh shall see, that I^ the Lord kindled it, neither shall it be quenched. 49 And I said: A a a, o Lord God: they say of me: (i) Doth not this man speak by parables?

(i) Much of his prophecy was so hard, that all seemed to be parables.

CHAPTER XXI.

Destruction of Jerusalem by sword is further described: 10. with translation of the Kingdom. 28. The ruin also of the Ammonites is foreshewed. 30. And finally Babylon, the destroyer of others, shall be destroyed.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man set thy face to Jerusalem, and (a) drop to the sanctuaries, and prophesy against the ground of Israel:

(a) Cease not to instill & inculcate the punishment of the people.

3 And thou shalt say to the land of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee, and I will draw forth my sword out of his scabbard, and will kill in thee (b) the just, and the impious.

(b) Temporal afflictions fall also upon the just; not for punishment, but for their merit, and that they may escape the miseries of captivity, whereas the wicked are punished both temporally and eternally. S. Ierom. in ch. 20. v. 47.

4 And for that I have killed in thee the just, and the impious, therefore shall my sword go forth out of his scabbard to all flesh, from the South even to the North.
5 That all flesh may know that I^ the Lord have drawn my sword out of his scabbard not to be revoked.
6 And thou son of man, mourn in contrition of the loins, and in bitterness mourn before them. 7 And when they shall say to thee: Why mournest thou? Thou shalt say: For the bruit: because it cometh, and every heart shall melt, & all hands shall be dissolved, and every spirit shall be weakened, and waters shall run by all knees: behold it cometh, and it shall be done, saith our Lord God. 8 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 9 Son of man prophesy, and thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: Speak: The sword, the sword is sharpened, and furbished. 10 To kill victims it is sharpened, to glitter it is furbished: thou that movest the sceptre (c) of my son, hast cut down every tree.

(c) The whole people of Israel was the peculiar adopted son of God, called also his first begotten. Exo. 4. v. 22.

11 And I gave it to be made smooth, that it may be held with the hand: this is a sharpened sword, and this is furbished, that it may be in the hand of the slayer.
12 Cry, and howl, o son of man, because this same is made in my people, in all the captains of Israel, that fled: they are delivered to the sword with my people, therefore strike upon the thigh, 13 Because it is proved: and that, when it shall overthrow the sceptre, it shall not be, saith our Lord God. 14 Thou therefore o son of man prophesy, and strike hand against hand, and let the sword be doubled, & let the sword of the slain be tripled: this is the sword of great slaughter, that maketh them to be astonished, 15 and to pine in heart, & multiplieth ruins. In all their gates have I given the trouble of the sword sharp and furbished to glitter, addressed to slaughter. 16 Be thou sharpened, go to the right hand, or to the left, whithersoever the appetite of thy face is. 17 Yea and I will clap hand to hand, and will fill mine indignation: I^ the Lord have spoken. 18 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 19 And thou son of man, (d) put thee two ways, that the sword of the king of Babylon may come: both shall come forth out of one land: and he shall take conjecture with the hand, in the head of the way of the city shall he choose it.

(d) The Babylonians consulting the idols whether they should invade the Ammonites or the Jews, were directed to assault Jerusalem.

20 Thou shalt make way that the sword may come to Rabbath of the children of Ammon, and to Juda into Jerusalem most fenced. 21 For the king of Babylon stood in the high way, in the head of two ways, seeking divination, shuffling arrows: he asked the idols, and took counsel of entrails. 22 On his right hand was made divination upon Jerusalem, to set engines to open the mouth in slaughter, to elevate the voice in howling, to set engines against the gates, to cast up a rampier, to build munitions. 23 And he shall be as it were consulting the oracle in vain in their eyes, and imitating the rest of sabbaths: but he shall remember the iniquity to take it. 24 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: For that you have remembered your iniquity, and have revealed your prevarications, and your sins have appeared in all your cogitations: for that, I say, that you remembered, you shall be taken by hand. 25 But thou profane, impious prince of Israel, whose day prefixed cometh in the time of iniquity: 26 Thus saith our Lord God: Take away the mitre, take off the crown: is not this it, that extolled the humble, and humbled the high? 27 Iniquity, iniquity, iniquity will I put it, and this was not done, till he came to whom judgement belongeth, and I will deliver it to him. 28 And thou son of man prophesy, and say: Thus saith our Lord God to the children of Ammon, and (e) to their reproach, and thou shalt say: Sword, sword draw out thyself to kill, furbish thyself to slay, and to glitter.

(e) The Ammonites reproaching the Jews when they were afflicted by the Babylonians, were for the same destroyed also by the Babylonians.

29 When vain things were seen for thee, and lies were divined: that thou mightest be given upon the necks of the wounded impious, whose day prefixed cometh in the time of iniquity. 30 (f) Return to thy scabbard, in the place wherein thou wast created, in the land of thy nativity I will judge thee,

(f) At last the like sword, and ruin fell upon Babylon.

31 and will pour out upon thee mine indignation: in the fire of my fury will I blow upon thee, and will give thee into the hands of men unwise, and framing destruction. 32 Thou shalt be food for the fire, thy blood shall be in the midst of the land, thou shalt be forgotten: because I^ the Lord have spoken.

CHAPTER XXII.

For diverse enormous sins, 14. Jerusalem, and all Israel shall be plagued: 56. namely false Prophets, Priests, ravening Princes, and wicked people.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 And thou son of man (a) doest thou not judge, doest thou not judge the city of blood?

(a) Why dost thou cease from admonishing & blaming the people for their bloody sins?

3 And thou shall shew her all her abominations, & shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: The city shedding blood in the midst of it, that her time may come: & that hath made idols against herself, that she might be polluted. 4 In thy blood, which is shed by thee, thou hast offended: and in thine idols, which thou hast made, thou art polluted: and thou hast made thy days to approach, and hast brought the time of thy years: therefore have I given thee a reproach to the Gentiles, and a mockery to all lands. 5 Those that are near, and that are far from thee, shall triumph over thee: thou filthy one, noble, great in destruction. 6 Behold the princes of Israel, every one in his arm, have been in thee, to shed blood. 7 Father and mother they have abused with contumelies in thee, the stranger they have calumniated in the midst of thee, the pupil and widow they have made sorrowful in thee. 8 My sanctuaries you have despised, and my sabbaths you have polluted. 9 Detracting men have been in thee to shed blood, and upon the mountains they have eaten in thee, they have wrought wickedness in the midst of thee. 10 The father's shame they have discovered in thee, the uncleanness of the menstruous woman they have humbled in thee. 11 And every one hath wrought abomination upon his neighbour's wife, and the father in law hath polluted his daughter in law wickedly, the brother hath oppressed his sister the daughter of his father in thee. 12 They have taken gifts in thee to shed blood: thou hast taken usury and overplus, and didst calumniate thy neighbours covetously: and thou hast forgotten me, saith our Lord God. 13 Behold, I (b) have wrung my hands upon thy covetousness, which thou hast done, & upon the blood that hath been shed in the midst of thee.

(b) God of his part desiring the salvation of all men, signifieth here his sorrow for the people's sins, not that God is subject to any such passion, but to insinuate the enormity of sin, as Gen. 6. v. 6.

14 Why, shall thy heart abide, or shall thy hands prevail in the days, which I shall make to thee? I^ the Lord have spoken, and will do it. 15 And I will disperse thee into nations, & will scatter thee into lands, and will make thy uncleanness to fail from thee. 16 And I will possess thee in the sight of the Gentiles, and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. 17 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 18 Son of man, the house of Israel is turned into dross to me: all these are become brass, and tin, and iron, and lead, and dross of silver, in the midst of the furnace.

19 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because you are all turned into dross, therefore behold I will gather you together in the midst of Jerusalem, 20 with the gathering of silver, and brass, and tin, & iron, and lead, in the midst of a furnace: that I may kindle a fire in it to melt it: so will I gather you together in my fury, and in my wrath, and will rest: and I will melt you. 21 And I will gather you together, and will set you on fire, in the fire of my fury, and you shall be melted in the midst thereof. 22 As silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall you be in the midst thereof: & you shall know that I am the Lord, when I have poured out mine indignation upon you. 23 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 24 Son of man, say to it: Thou art an unclean land, and not rained upon in the day of fury. 25 A conspiracy of Prophets in the midst thereof: as a lion roaring, and ravening the prey, have they devoured souls, they have taken the riches and the price, her widows they have multiplied in the midst thereof. 26 Her Priests have contemned my law, and have polluted my sanctuaries: between a holy thing and profane they have put no difference: and between the polluted and the clean they understood not: and from my sabbaths they have turned away their eyes, and I was defiled in the midst of them.

27 Her princes in the midst of her, as wolves ravening the prey to shed blood, and to destroy souls, and to pursue gains covetously. 28 And her Prophets daubed them without tempering, seeing vain things, & divining lies to them, saying: Thus saith our Lord God: whereas our Lord hath not spoken. 29 The people of the land they oppressed by calumny, and took away violently: the needy and poor they afflicted, and the stranger they oppressed by calumny without judgement. 30 And I sought of them a man that might interpose an hedge, and (c) stand opposite against me for the land, that I might not destroy it: and I found not.

(c) A marvelous force of just men's prayers, by which God suffereth himself to be overcome. And it is most grateful to God when some do so oppose themselves to entreat mercy for sinners, that they may repent. S. Iero. Epist. 12. ad Gaudentium.

31 And I poured out mine indignation upon them, in the fire of my wrath I consumed them: I have rendered their way upon their head, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XXIII.

By a parable of two harlots, Oolla and Ooliba, 5. the idolatry of the two Kingdoms of Israel, 11. and of Juda is described: 22. with threats (31. as Israel is partly afflicted already) 36. of more affliction to them both.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, there were (a) two women daughters of one mother.

(a) He speaketh here as of two peoples by anticipation, for when the Israelites were in Aegypt, they were but one people, & then also they committed idolatry.

3 And they fornicated in Aegypt, (b) in their youth they fornicated: there were their breasts pressed, and the paps of their virginity were broken.

(b) Though they were but beginning to increase.

4 And their names (c) Oolla the elder, and Ooliba her younger sister: and I had them, & they bare sons, and daughters. Moreover their names, Samaria Oolla, and Jerusalem Ooliba.

(c) God called the ten tribes Oolla, which signifieth their own habitation, because they made gods to themselves, in Bethel and Dan; and the two tribes he called Ooliba, signifying my habitation, because the temple there was God's habitation.

5 Oolla therefore fornicated over me, and was mad upon her lovers, upon the Assyrians approaching, 6 clothed with hyacinth, the princes, and the magistrates, all the young men of concupiscences, all the horsemen, the riders of horses. 7 And she gave her fornications upon them all the chosen children of the Assyrians: and in all, on whom she was mad, in their uncleanness she was polluted. 8 Moreover also her fornications, which she had made in Aegypt she left not: for they also slept with her in her youth, and they brake the breasts of her virginity, and poured out their fornication upon her. 9 Therefore have I delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the children of Assur, upon whose lust she was mad. 10 They discovered her ignominy, took her sons and daughters, and her they killed with the sword: and they were made notorious women, and they did judgements in her. 11 Which when her sister Ooliba had seen, she was mad with lust more than she: and she gave impudently her fornication above the fornication of her sister 12 to the children of the Assyrians, to the princes, and magistrates coming to her clothed with party clothing, to the horsemen that were carried on horses, and to young men all of goodly beauty. 13 And I saw that she was polluted, both one way. 14 And she increased her fornications: and when she had seen men painted in a wall, the images of the Chaldees expressed in colours, 15 and girded with girdles about their reins, and dyed turbans on their heads, the form of all the dukes, the similitude of the children of Babylon, and of the land of the Chaldees, wherein they were born, 16 she was mad upon them with the concupiscence of her eyes, & she sent messengers to them into Chaldee. 17 And when the children of Babylon were come to her unto the bed of paps, they polluted her with (d) their fornications, and she was polluted of them, and her soul was filled of them.

(d) In all this & the like discourses the Prophet speaketh not of carnal fornication, but of spiritual which is idolatry, by the most frequent figure Metaphora.

18 She revealed also her fornications, & discovered her ignominy: & my soul departed from her, as my soul departed from her sister. 19 For she hath multiplied her fornications, remembering the days of her youth, in which she fornicated in the land of Aegypt. 20 And she was mad for lust upon the lying with them, whose flesh is as the flesh of asses: and as the flux of horses, their flux. 21 And thou hast visited the wickedness of thy youth when thy breasts were pressed in Aegypt, & the paps of thy virginity broken. 22 Therefore Ooliba, thus saith our Lord God: Behold

I will raise up all thy lovers against thee, of whom thy soul is filled: & I will gather them together against thee round about, 23 the children of Babylon, & all the Chaldees, the nobles, & the tyrants, & princes, all the children of the Assyrians, the young men of goodly beauty, all the captains, & magistrates, the princes of princes, & the renowned riders of horses. 24 And they shall come upon thee well appointed with chariot, & wheel, a multitude of peoples: with brigantine, and buckler, and helmet they shall be armed against thee on every side: and I will give judgement before them, and they shall judge thee by their judgements. 25 And I will put my (e) zeal in thee, which they exercise with thee in fury: (f) thy nose and thine ears they shall cut off: & the things that remain shall fall by the sword: they shall take thy sons, and thy daughters, and thy very last thing shall be devoured with fire.

(e) In that the Chaldees were the ministers of God's wrath, they are called his zeal, as Assur is called the rod of his fury. Isa. 10. v. 5. (f) By the nose S. Ierom. understandeth the King: by the ears the Priests & Judges, who were not slain but cut off from the people, and carried into captivity. 4. Reg. 25. Iere. 52.

26 And they shall strip thee of thy garments, and shall take away the vessels of thy glory. 27 And I will make thy wickedness to cease out of thee, and thy fornication out of the Land of Aegypt: neither shalt thou lift up thine eyes to them, & Aegypt thou shalt remember no more. 28 Because thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will deliver thee into the hands of them, whom thou hatest, into their hands, of whom thy soul is filled. 29 And they shall deal with thee in hatred, and they shall take away all thy labours, & shall let thee go naked, and full of ignominy, and the ignominy of thy fornications shall be revealed, thy wicked deed, and thy fornications. 30 They have done these things to thee, because thou hast fornicated after the Nations, among which thou wast polluted in their idols.

31 Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister, and I will give her cup in thy hand. 32 Thus saith our Lord God: The cup of thy sister thou shalt drink deep, and wide: thou shalt be into derision & into scorn, which is most capable. 33 With drunkenness and sorrow thou shall be replenished: with the cup of pensiveness, and sadness, with the cup of thy sister Samaria. 34 And thou shalt drink it, and shalt drink it up even to the dregs, and the fragments thereof thou shalt devour, thou shalt rent thy breasts: because I have spoken, saith our Lord God: 35 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because thou hast forgotten me, and hast cast me off behind thy body, thou also bear thy wickedness, and thy fornications. 36 And our Lord spake to me, saying: Son of man, (g) doest thou judge Oolla, and Ooliba, and shewest thou them their wicked deeds?

(g) This demand is an admonition to judge & condemn their wickedness, without intermission, as ch. 20. v. 4.

37 because they have committed adultery, and blood is in their hands, and with their idols they have fornicated: moreover also their children, whom they begat for me, they have offered unto them to be devoured. 38 Yea and they have done this to me. They polluted (h) my sanctuary in that day, & profaned my (i) sabbaths.

(h) Circumstances of places and (i) times do aggravate sins very much, which are therefore more severely punished.

39 And when they immolated their children to their idols, and went into my sanctuary in that day to pollute it: these things also they did in the midst of my house. 40 They sent to men coming from far, to whom they had sent a messenger: therefore lo they came: to whom thou didst wash thyself, and didst anoint thine eyes about with [1] stibic stone, and wast adorned with women's ornaments.

[1] * Antimonium.

41 Thou satest in a very fair bed, and a table was decked before thee: mine incense, and mine ointment thou didst set upon it. 42 And the voice of a multitude rejoicing was on it: and on the men, that were brought of the multitude of men, and came from the desert, they did put bracelets on their hands, and beautiful crowns on their heads. 43 And I said to her, that was worn in adulteries: Now will this woman also fornicate in her fornication. 44 And they went to her as to an harlot woman: so went they unto Oolla, and Ooliba wicked women. 45 They therefore are just men: these shall judge them with the judgement of adulteresses, and with the judgement of blood-shedders: because they are adulteresses, and blood is in their hands. 46 For thus saith our Lord God: Bring a multitude to them, and deliver them into tumult, and into spoil: 47 and let them be stoned with the stones of peoples, and let them be thrust through with their swords: they shall kill their sons, and daughters, and their houses they shall burn with fire. 48 And I will take away the wickedness out of the land, and all women shall learn, not to do according to the wickedness of them. 49 And they shall give your wickedness upon you, and the sins of your idols you shall carry: and you shall know that I am the Lord God.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Jerusalem many ways chastised of God, and not amended, 11. shall at last be melted like a brass pot: 15. and shall not dare to mourn for the death of her dearest.

And the word of our Lord was made to me in (a) the ninth year, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, saying:

(a) Jeremy in Babylon saw what was done the same time in Jerusalem, and therefore is bid,

2 Son of man, (b) write thee the name of this day, wherein the king of Babylon is confirmed against Jerusalem today.

(b) to write the day, v. 2. that thereby the certainty of his prophecy may appear. For the very same day Nabuchodonosor laid siege to Jerusalem. 4. Reg. 25. v. 1.

3 And thou shalt speak by a proverb to the exasperating house a parable, & shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Set thou a pot, set it, I say, and put water into it. 4 Heap together the pieces thereof into it, every good part, the thigh and the shoulder, the chosen things and full of bones. 5 Take the fattest beast, and lay together piles of bones also under it: the seething thereof is boiling hot, and the bones thereof are throughly sodden in the midst thereof. 6 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Woe to the city of blood, to the pot, whose rustiness is in it, and the rustiness thereof is not gone out of it: by her parts and by her parts cast her out, there hath no lot fallen upon her. 7 For her blood is in the midst of her, she hath shed it upon the most clear rock: she shed it not upon the ground, that it might be covered with dust. 8 That I might bring mine indignation in upon her, and might revenge with vengeance: I gave her blood upon the most clear rock, that it might not be covered. 9 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Woe to the city of blood, whose bonefire I will make great. 10 Heap together the bones, which I will burn with fire: the flesh shall be consumed, and all the composition shall be sod, and the bones shall dry away. 11 Set it also upon hot burning coals empty, that the brass thereof may wax hot, and be melted: and let the filth of it be melted in the midst thereof, and let the rust thereof be consumed. 12 There hath been sweating with much labour, & the exceeding rust thereof is not gone out, (c) no not by fire.

(c) When sinners are not amended by fire of tribulation; God after that they are parted from this world, punisheth them everlastingly.

13 Thine uncleanness is execrable: because I would cleanse thee, and thou art not cleansed from thy filthiness: yea neither shalt thou be cleansed, before I make mine indignation to cease in thee. 14 I^ the Lord have spoken: It shall come, and I will do it: I will not pass, nor spare, nor be pacified: according to thy ways, and according to thine inventions will I judge thee, saith our Lord. 15 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 16 Son of man, behold I take from thee the thing that thine eyes desire in a plague: and thou shalt not lament, nor weep: neither shall thy tears run. 17 Sigh holding thy peace, thou shalt not make the mourning of the dead: let thy crown be tied round about thee, and thy shoes shall be on thy feet, neither shalt thou cover thy face with a cloth, neither shalt thou eat the meats of mourners. 18 I spake therefore to the people in the morning, and (d) my wife died at even: and I did in the morning as he had commanded me.

(d) The sudden death of near friends causeth more sorrow, than if it were feared before: yet the Prophet was commanded not to shew sorrow for the sudden death of his wife, to signify that the great calamity of every one would take away the particular grief for the loss of private friends.

19 And the people said to me: Why doest thou not tell us what these things signify, that thou doest? 20 And I said to them: The word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 21 Speak to the house of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will pollute my sanctuary, the pride of your empire, and the thing that your eyes desire, and upon which your soul quaketh for fear: your sons, and your daughters, which you have left, shall fall by the sword. 22 And you shall do as I have done: your faces with a cloth you shall not cover, and the meats of mourners you shall not eat. 23 You shall have crowns on your heads, & shoes on your feet: you shall not lament nor weep, but you shall pine away in your iniquities, and every one shall groan toward his brother. 24 And Ezechiel shall be unto you for a portending sign: according to all things, that he hath done, shall you do when this shall come: & you shall know that I am the Lord God. 25 And thou son of man, behold in the day, wherein I will take away from them their strength, and the joy of dignity, and the desire of their eyes, whereupon their souls rest, their sons and daughters. 26 In that day when one flying shall come to thee, to tell thee: 27 in that day, I say, shall thy mouth be opened with him that flyeth, and thou shalt speak, and shalt be silent no more: and thou shalt be unto them for a portending sign, and you shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Ammonites, 8. Moabites, 12. Idumeans, 15. and Philistians (for their malice against the Israelites) shall be overthrown.[1]

[1] The 3. part.
The destruction of diverse other nations besides the Jews.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, set thy face against the children of Ammon, & thou shalt prophesy of them. 3 And thou shalt say to the children of Ammon: Hear ye the word of our Lord God: Thus saith our Lord God: (a) For that thou hast said: Ha, ha, upon my sanctuary, because it is polluted: and upon the Land of Israel, because it is made desolate: and upon the house of Juda, because they are led into captivity:

(a) Amongst other heathen nations, especially the Ammonites rejoiced at the miseries of the Jews, & were therefore plagued.

4 Therefore will I deliver thee to the children (b) of the east for an inheritance, and they shall place their sheepcotes in thee, and shall set their tents in thee: they shall eat thy fruits: and they shall drink thy milk.

(b) The Chaldees, or rather the Armenians or Agarens (who are more direct eastward, and were Pastors of cattle here mentioned) subdued the Ammonites.

5 And I will give Rabbath to be an habitation of camels, and the children of Ammon to be a lying place for beasts: and you shall know that I am the Lord.
6 Because thus saith our Lord God: For that thou hast clapped with the hand, and strucken with the foot, and hast been glad with all thy affection upon the land of Israel: 7 therefore behold I will stretch forth my hand upon thee, and will deliver thee into the spoil of the Gentiles, and will kill thee out of the peoples, and destroy thee out of the lands, and break thee: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. 8 Thus saith our Lord God: For that Moab, and Seir have said: Behold as all the Gentiles, so is the house of Juda: 9 therefore behold (c) I will open the shoulder of Moab of his cities, of his cities I say, and of his borders the noble cities of the land Bethiesimoth, and Beelmeon, and Cariathaim,

(c) I will take away all the strength and force of Moab, which consisteth in his strong cities.

10 to the children of the East with the children of Ammon, & I will give it for an inheritance: that there may be memory no more of the children of Ammon among the Gentiles. 11 And in Moab I will do judgements: and they shall know that I am the Lord. 12 Thus saith our Lord God: For that Idumea hath made revenge to revenge herself of the children of Juda, and hath sinned offending, & hath sought revenge of them, 13 therefore thus saith our Lord God: I will stretch forth my hand upon Idumea, and will take away out of it man, and beast, and will make it desert from the South: and they that are in Dedan, shall fall by the sword. 14 And I will give my revenge upon Idumea by the hand of my people Israel: and they shall do in Edom according to my wrath, and my fury: and they shall know my vengeance, saith our Lord God. 15 Thus saith our Lord God: For that the Palesthines have made revenge, and have revenged themselves with all their mind, killing, and accomplishing old enmities: 16 therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will stretch forth my hand upon the Palesthines, and will kill the killers, and will destroy the remnant of the sea coast, 17 and I will make in them great revengements arguing in fury: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have given my vengeance upon them.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Tyre a most noble maritime city shall be destroyed, by the King of Babylon, because they rejoice at the desolation of Jerusalem. 15. At the sight whereof many shall be astonished.

And it came to pass in (a) the eleventh year, the first of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying:

(a) Years are still counted from the transmigration of Ioachin, as ch. 1. 8. 20. 24. v. 1. & 29. v. 1. 17.

2 Son of man for that Tyre hath said of Jerusalem: Ah the gates of the peoples are broken, she is turned to me: I shall be filled, she is desert. 3 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I upon thee o Tyre, and I will make many nations come up to thee, as the sea riseth up swelling. 4 And they shall dissipate the walls of Tyre, and shall destroy the towers thereof: and I will scrape her dust from her, and will make her as a most clear rock. 5 (b) The drying of nets shall be in the midst of the sea, because I have spoken, saith our Lord God: and she shall be for a spoil to the Gentiles.

(b) Tyre which is a most frequented sea town, shall be made desolate and to no use but to hang nets therein to dry.

6 (c) Her daughters also that be in the field, shall be slain by the sword: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

(c) Less cities and towns pertaining to Tyre shall likwise be destroyed.

7 Because thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will bring to Tyre Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon from the North, the king of kings with horses, & chariots, and horsemen, and multitude, & a great people. 8 Thy daughters that are in the field, he shall kill with the sword: & he shall compass thee with munitions, and shall cast up a mount round about: and he shall lift up the buckler against thee. 9 And he shall dispose ordinances, and engines against thy walls, and shall destroy thy towers with his armour. 10 With the inundation of his horses, the dust of them shall cover thee: at the sound of the horsemen, and wheels, and chariots thy walls shall be moved, when he shall go in at thy gates, as by the entrance of a city destroyed. 11 With the hoofs of his horses he shall tread down all thy streets: thy people he shall kill with the sword, and thy noble statues shall fall to the ground. 12 They shall waste thy riches, they shall spoil thy merchandise: and they shall destroy thy walls, and shall overthrow thy goodly houses: and thy stones, and thy timber, and thy dust they shall put in the midst of the waters. 13 And I will make the multitude of thy songs to cease, and the sound of thy harps shall be heard no more. 14 And I will make thee as a most clear rock, drying of nets shall thou be, neither shalt thou be built any more: because I have spoken, saith our Lord God. 15 Thus saith our Lord God to Tyre: Why, shall not the islands be moved at the sound of thy ruin, and the groaning of thy slain when they shall be killed in the midst of thee? 16 And all the Princes of the sea shall go down from their seats: and take off their robes, and cast away their broidered garments, and be clothed with astonishment, sit on the earth, and being astonished marvel at thy sudden fall. 17 And taking upon thee a lamentation, they shall say to thee: How hast thou perished that dwellest in the sea, o noble city, which hast been strong in the sea with thine inhabitants, whom all did fear? 18 Now shall the ships be astonished in the day of thy fear: and the islands in the sea shall be troubled, for that none cometh forth out of thee. 19 Because thus saith our Lord God: When I shall make thee a desolate city as the cities that are not inhabited: and shall bring upon thee the depth, & many waters shall cover thee: 20 and shall pluck thee down with those, that descend into the lake to the everlasting people, and shall place thee in the (d) lowest ground as old desolations, with them that are brought down into the lake, that thou be not inhabited: moreover when I shall give glory in the land of the living,

(d) As Tyre was exalted in pride, so it was brought to great ruin, yet was it restored, after seventy years according to Isaias' prophecy, ch. 23. v. 15. And our Saviour retired sometimes into the quarters of Tyre and Sidon. Mat. 15. v. 21.

21 I will bring thee to nothing, & thou shalt not be, and being sought for, thou shalt not be found any more for ever, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Prophet lamenteth the ruin of Tyre: 3. describing her former glories 10. and traffic in all sorts of rich merchandise, with sundry nations. 26. All which shall be overthrown by the Chaldees.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Thou therefore o son of man, take up a lamentation upon Tyre: 3 And thou shalt say to Tyre, which dwelleth in the entrance of the sea, being the traffic of peoples to many islands: Thus saith our Lord God: o Tyre, thou hast said: (a) I am of perfect beauty,

(a) This large description of the Tyrians' glory sheweth their greater ruin.

4 & situated in the heart of the sea. Thy borderers, which builded thee have accomplished thy beauty: 5 with the fir trees of Sanir they builded thee, with all the boards of the sea: they took the cedar from Libanus, to make thee a mast. 6 Oaks of Basan they have hewed for thine oars: & thy banks they have made thee of the ivory of India, and little cabins of the islands of Italy. 7 Various silk of Aegypt was woven for thy sail, to be put on the mast: hyacinth, and purple out of the islands of Elisa, were made thy covering. 8 The inhabitants of Sidon, and the Aradians were thy rowers: thy wise men, o Tyre, were made thy governors. 9 The ancients of Gebal, & wisemen thereof had mariners to the service of thy diverse stuff: all the ships of the sea, and their mariners have been in the people of thy traffic. 10 The Persians, and Lydians, and the Libyans were in thine army thy men of war: the buckler, and helmet they did hang in thee for thine ornament. 11 The children of Arad were with thine army upon thy walls round about: yea and the Pygmeians, that were in thy towers, hung up their quivers on thy walls round about: they accomplished thy beauty. 12 They of Carthage thy merchants, for the multitude of all riches, with silver, iron, tin, and lead did they replenish thy marts. 13 Greece, Thubal, and Mosoch, they were thy merchants: slaves, and vessels of brass they brought to thy people. 14 From the house of Thogorma they brought horses, and horsemen, and mules to thy market. 15 The children of Dedan were thy merchants: many islands the traffic of thy hand, teeth of ivory, and of Heben they exchanged for thy price. 16 The Syrian was thy merchant for the multitude of thy works, the precious stone, and purple, and branched works, and fine linen, and silk, and (b) chodchod they did set forth in thy market.

(b) S. Ierome in Isaie 54. v. 12. translating this word a jasper stone, here leaveth it untranslated, and so do also the Septuagint; neither do the Hebrew Doctors describe it in their commentaries. The Chaldee paraphrasis translateth it in general precious stones, or margarites: some in particular, think it to be a carbuncle, some a ruby, others a crystal, others an adamant.

17 Juda and the land of Israel they were thy merchants in the principal corn: balm, and honey, and oil, and resin they did set forth in thy marts. 18 The Damacene was thy merchant in the multitude of thy works, in the multitude of diverse riches, in fat wine, in wools of the best colour. 19 Dan, and Greece, and Mosel in thy marts have set forth wrought iron: stacte, and calamus were in thy merchandise. 20 Dedan thy merchants in tapestry for seats. 21 Arabia, and all the Princes of Cedar, they were the merchants of thy hand: with lambs, and rams, and kids thy merchants came to thee. 22 The sellers of Saba, and Reema, they were thy merchants: with principal spices, and precious stone, and gold, which they did set forth in thy market. 23 Haran, and Chene, and Eden, thy merchants: Saba, Assur, and Chelmad thy sellers. 24 They were thy merchants in diverse manner, with folded pieces of hyacinth, and of embroidered cloths, and of precious riches, which were wrapped up, and bound with cords: cedars also they had in thy merchandise. 25 The ships of the sea, thy chief in thy merchandise: and thou was replenished, and glorified exceedingly in the heart of the sea. 26 In many waters have thy rowers brought thee: the southwind hath broken thee in the heart of the sea. 27 Thy riches, and thy treasures, and thy manifold furniture, thy mariners, and thy governers, which hold thy stuff, and were chief over thy people: thy men of war also, that were in thee with all thy multitude, that is in the midst of thee: shall fall in the heart of the sea in the day of thy ruin. 28 At the sound of the cry of thy governors shall the navies be troubled. 29 And all they that held oar shall go down out of their ships: the mariners, and all the governors of the sea shall stand on the land: 30 and they shall bewail upon thee with a loud voice, and shall cry bitterly: and they shall cast dust upon their heads, and shall be sprinkled with ashes. 31 And they shall shave (c) baldness upon thee, and shall be girded with haircloths: and they shall weep for thee in bitterness of soul with most bitter weeping.

(c) With these Gentiles, cutting or shaving of their hair was a sign of sorrow, which the Jews were commanded not to imitate. Deut. 14. to shew difference from other nations: yet they also did cut their hair in great calamities. Isa. 22. v. 12.

32 And they shall take up a mournful song upon thee, and shall lament thee: What city is as Tyre, which is become silent in the midst of the sea? 33 Which in the going forth of thy merchandise from the sea didst fill many peoples: in the multitude of thy riches, and of thy peoples hast enriched the kings of the earth. 34 Now thou art destroyed by the sea, thy riches are in the bottom of the waters, and all the multitude, that was in the midst of thee, are fallen. 35 All the inhabitants of the islands are astonished upon thee: & all the kings of the same being striken with tempest have changed their looks. 36 The merchants of peoples have hissed upon thee: thou art brought to nothing, and thou shalt not be even for ever.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

For most insolent pride Tyre shall be utterly destroyed. 20. Sidon likewise overthrown. 24. And the people of Israel at last restored.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man say to the Prince of Tyre: Thus saith our Lord God: For that thy heart is elevated, and thou hast said: I am God, and I have sitten in the chair of God in the heart of the sea: whereas thou art a man, and not God: and hast given thy heart as the heart of God. 3 Lo thou (a) art wiser than Daniel: every secret is not hid from thee.

(a) Daniel was so famous for wisdom, that thereof came a proverb in Chaldea, to compare wise-men with Daniel; and to reproach those that arrogated more wisdom than they had, that they seemed vainly to themselves wiser than Daniel.

4 In thy wisdom and thy prudence thou hast made thee strength: and hast gotten gold, and silver in thy treasures. 5 In the multitude of thy wisdom, & in thy merchandise thou hast multiplied strength to thee: and thy heart is elevated in thy strength. 6 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: For that thy heart is elevated as the heart of God: 7 therefore behold I will bring upon thee strangers, the strongest of the Gentiles: and they shall draw their swords upon the beauty of thy wisdom, and shall pollute thy comeliness. 8 They shall kill, and pluck thee down: and thou shalt die in the death of the slain in the heart of the sea. 9 Why, shalt thou speak saying: I am God, before them that kill thee: whereas thou art a man, and not God, in the hand of them that slay thee? 10 By the death of the uncircumcised shalt thou die in the hand of strangers: because I have spoken, saith our Lord God. 11 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: Son of man lift up a lamentation upon the king of Tyre: 12 and thou shalt say to him: Thus saith our Lord God: Thou the signet of similitude, full of wisdom, and perfect of beauty, 13 thou wast in the delicacies of the paradise of God: every precious stone thy covering: sardius, topatius, and the jasper, chrysolithus, and onyx, and berillus, the sapphire, and the carbuncle, and the emerald: gold the work of thy beauty: & thy [1]pipes were prepared in the day, that thou wast created.

[1] * Foramina, places taking breath.

14 Thou Cherub stretched out, and protecting, and I set thee in the holy mount of God, in the midst of fiery stones thou hast walked. 15 Perfect in thy ways from the day of thy creation, (b) until iniquity was found in thee.

(b) Tyre had much iniquity long before, but when the king thought himself to be God, v. 2. this iniquity could not be longer tolerated.

16 In the multitude of thy merchandise, thine inner parts were filled with iniquity, and thou didst sin: and I cast thee out from the mount of God, and destroyed thee o Cherub protecting, out of the midst of the fiery stones. 17 And thy heart was elevated in thy beauty: thou hast lost thy wisdom in thy beauty, I have cast thee to the earth: before the face of kings I have given thee, that they might behold thee. 18 In the multitude of thine iniquities, and in the iniquity of thy merchandise, thou hast polluted thy sanctification: I will therefore bring forth a fire out of the midst of thee, to eat thee, and I will make thee as ashes upon the earth in the sight of all that see thee. 19 All that shall see thee in the Gentiles, shall be astonished upon thee: thou art become a thing of naught, and thou shalt not be for ever. 20 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 21 Son of man, set thy face (c) against Sidon: and thou shalt prophesy of it,

(c) As Sidon was near in situation to Tyre, so it was made like in ruin for their like pride.

22 and shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee Sidon, and I will be glorified in the midst of thee: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall do judgements in it, and shall be sanctified in it. 23 And I will send into it pestilence, and blood in the streets thereof: and the slain shall fall in the midst thereof by the sword round about: and they shall know that I am the Lord. 24 And there shall be no more scandal of bitterness to the house of Israel, & thorn causing pain on every side round about them that are against them: and they shall know that I am the Lord God. 25 Thus saith our Lord God: (d) When I shall have gathered together the house of Israel out of the peoples, in which they are dispersed: I will be sanctified in them before the Gentiles: and they shall dwell in their land, which I gave to my servant Jacob.

(d) All nations will praise God when they see that he justly punisheth his own people, & afterwards restoreth them to their former state.

26 And they shall dwell therein secure, and they shall build houses, and shall plant vineyards, & shall dwell confidently, when I shall have done judgements in all, that are their enemies round about: and they shall know that I am the Lord their God.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The King of Aegypt shall be overthrown: 9. and the Kingdom wasted forty years: It shall be repaired to a mean state. 17. And shall be given to the King of Babylon, for his service in destroying Tyre.

In (a) the tenth year, the tenth month, the eleventh day of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying:

(a) Prophets do not write their prophecies in order of time as they were revealed; for in former chapters he wrote that which he saw in the eleventh year: ch. 26. v. 1. but that which was sooner fulfilled: or because Tyre & Sidon were nearer in situation to Jerusalem than Aegypt, he writ that prophecy before this.

2 Son of man, set thy face against Pharao the king of Aegypt: and thou shalt prophesy of him, & of all Aegypt. 3 Speak, and thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee Pharao king of Aegypt, thou great dragon, which liest in the midst of thy rivers, & sayest: The river is mine, & I made it myself. 4 And I will put a bridle in thy jaws: and I will fasten the fishes of thy rivers to thy scales: and I will draw thee out of the midst of the rivers, and all thy fishes shall stick to thy scales. 5 And I will cast thee forth into the desert, and all the fishes of thy river: thou shalt fall upon the face of the earth, thou shalt not be collected, nor gathered together: to the beasts of the earth, and to the fowls of the heaven have I given thee to be devoured. 6 And all the inhabitants of Aegypt shall know that I am the Lord: for that thou hast been a staff of reed to the house of Israel. 7 When they took thee with the hand, & thou wast broken, and didst rent all their shoulder: and they leaning upon thee, thou was broken, and didst dissolve all their reins.

8 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will bring upon thee the sword: and will kill out of thee man, & beast. 9 And the Land of Aegypt shall be into a desert, and into a wilderness: & they shall know that I am the Lord: for that thou hast said: The river is mine, & I made it. 10 Therefore behold I to thee, and to thy rivers: and I will give the Land of Aegypt into desolations, destroyed with the sword, from the tower of Syene, even to the borders of Aethiopia. 11 The foot of men shall not pass through it, neither shall the foot of beast go in it: & it shall not be inhabited forty years. 12 And I will make the Land of Aegypt desert in the midst of desert lands, & the cities thereof in the midst of cities overthrown, and they shall be desolate forty years: & I will disperse the Aegyptians into nations, and will scatter them into the lands. 13 Because thus saith our Lord God: After the end of forty years I will gather Aegypt out of the peoples in which they had been dispersed. 14 And I will bring back the captivity of Aegypt, & will place them in the land of Phatures, in the land of their nativity, and they shall be there as a low kingdom: 15 among other kingdoms it shall be lowest, and it shall no more be elevated over the nations, and I will diminish them that they rule not over the Gentiles. 16 And they shall no more be to the house of Israel in confidence, teaching iniquity, that they may fly, and follow them: and they shall know that I am the Lord God. 17 And it came to pass in (b) the seven and twentieth year, in the first, in the first of the month: the word of our Lord was made to me, saying:

(b) This vision against Aegypt is in confirmation of the former 17. years before v. 1.

18 Son of man, Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon hath made his army to serve with great service against Tyre: every head made bald, and every shoulder hath the hair plucked off: and (c) there hath been no reward rendered him, nor his army concerning Tyre, for the service that he served me against it.

(c) Of this place S. Ierom proveth that God rewardeth also Infidels for their moral good works temporally, though they cannot merit an eternal reward as the just do.

19 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will give Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon in the land of Aegypt: & he shall take the multitude thereof, and take the booties thereof for a prey, and rifle the spoils thereof: & it shall be a reward for his army, 20 and for the work, that he served me against it: I have given him the land of Aegypt, for that they have laboured for me, saith our Lord God. 21 In that day there shall a horn spring to the house of Israel, & I will give thee an open mouth in the midst of them: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER XXX.

Aegypt shall be so wasted, 5. that Aethiopia, and other neighbours shall tremble; 9. seeing the cities and country destroyed. 20. All which is confirmed again by another vision.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man prophesy, and say: Thus saith our Lord God: Howl ye, woe, woe to the day: 3 because the day is near, and (a) the day of our Lord approacheth: the day of a cloud, the (b) time of the Gentiles shall be.

(a) The day of just punishment is called the day of our Lord. As the Apostle calleth the day of general judgement the day of our Lord. 1. Cor. 5. 2. Cor. 1. & 1. Thes. 5. (b) The time when the Chaldees, the most potent nation shall conquer, and triumph over Aegypt.

4 And the sword shall come into Aegypt: & there shall be fear in Aethiopia, when the wounded shall fall in Aegypt, & the multitude thereof shall be taken away, and the foundations thereof be destroyed. 5 Aethiopia, and Libya, and the Lydians, and all the rest of the common people, and Chub, and the children of the land of covenant, shall fall with them by the sword. 6 Thus saith our Lord God: And they shall fall that underprop Aegypt, and the pride of the empire thereof shall be destroyed: from the tower of Siena shall they fall in it by the sword, saith our Lord the God of hosts. 7 And they shall be dissipated in the midst of desolate lands, and the cities thereof shall be in the midst of desert cities. 8 And they shall know that I am the Lord: when I shall have given fire in Aegypt, and all the aiders thereof shall be broken. 9 In that day shall messengers go forth from my face in galleys to terrify the confidence of Aethiopia, and there shall be fear among them in the day of Aegypt: because it shall come without doubt. 10 Thus saith our Lord God: I will make the multitude of Aegypt to cease in the hand of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon. 11 He and his people with him the strongest of the Gentiles shall be brought to destroy the land: and they shall draw their swords upon Aegypt: and shall fill the land with the slain. 12 And I will make the channels of the rivers dry, and will deliver the land into the hands of the most wicked: and will dissipate the land and the fullness thereof in the hands of aliens, I^ the Lord have spoken. 13 Thus saith our Lord God: And I will destroy the idols, and I will make the idols to cease out of Memphis: and duke of the land of Aegypt there shall be no more: and I will give terror in the land of Aegypt. 14 And I will destroy the land of Phathures, and will give fire in Taphnis, and will do judgements in Alexandria. 15 And I will pour out mine indignation upon Pelusium the strength of Aegypt, and will kill the multitude of Alexandria, 16 And will give fire in Aegypt: as a woman in travail shall Pelusium sorrow, and Alexandria shall be dissipated, and in Memphis daily distresses. 17 The young men of Heliopolis, and of Bubasti shall fall by the sword, and themselves shall be led captive. 18 And in Taphnis the day shall wax black, when I shall have broken there the sceptres of Aegypt, and the pride of the might thereof shall fail in it: the cloud shall cover her, & her daughters shall be led into captivity. 19 And I will do judgements in Aegypt: & they shall know that I am the Lord. 20 And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, in the seventh of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 21 Son of man, I (c) have broken the arm of Pharao king of Aegypt: and behold it is not wound up, that health might be restored to it, that it might be bound with cloths, & swaddled with linen clouts, that recovering strength it might hold the sword.

(c) Part of the Kingdom of Aegypt was subdued before this time by the King of Babylon. 4. Reg. 24. v. 7.

22 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to Pharao king of Aegypt, and I will break into pieces his strong arm, already broken: and I will cast down the sword out of his hand: 23 and will disperse Aegypt among the Gentiles, & will scatter them in the lands. 24 And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and will give my sword in his hand: and I will break the arms of Pharao, and the slain before his face shall groan with groanings. 25 And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and the arms of Pharao shall fall, and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall give my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall have stretched it forth upon the Land of Aegypt: 26 And I will disperse Aegypt into nations, and will scatter them into lands, and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The glory of Assyrians excelling all other Kingdoms, 10. was overthrown, God so ordaining, by the Chaldees: 18. much less shall Aegypt escape.

And it came to pass in the eleventh year, the third month, the first of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, say to Pharao the king of Aegypt, and to his people: (a) To whom art thou made like in thy greatness?

(a) Thou that seemed to thyself invincible, yet art thou not equal to the King of Assirians, who already is overthrown; and so shalt thou likewise be.

3 Behold Assur as it were a Cedar in Libanus, fair of boughs, & thick of leaves, and high of height, & the top thereof is elevated among the thick boughs. 4 The waters have nourished him, the depth hath exalted him, the rivers thereof ran out round about the roots thereof, and he sent forth her rivers to all the trees of the country. 5 Therefore was his height elevated above all the trees of the country, and his groves were multiplied, and his boughs were elevated because of many waters. 6 And when he had spread forth his shadow, in his boughs all the fowls of the heaven made nests, and under his leaves all beasts of the forests engendered, and under his shadow dwelt the assembly of very many nations. 7 And he was most fair in his greatness, and in the enlarging of his groves: for his root was near many waters. 8 The cedars were not higher than he in the paradise of God, the fir-trees matched not his top, & the plane-trees were not equal to his boughs: no tree of the paradise of God was likened to him, and to his beauty. 9 Because I made him beautiful, and with many and thick boughs: and all the trees of pleasure, that were in the paradise of God, did emulate him. 10 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: For that he is extolled in height, and hath given his top green and thick, and his heart is elevated in his height: 11 I have delivered him into the hands of the strongest of the nations, doing he shall do to him: according to his impiety I have cast him out. 12 And aliens, and the most cruel of the nations shall cut him down, and shall throw him forth upon the mountains, and in all valleys his boughs shall fall, and his groves shall be broken on all rocks of the land: and all the peoples of the earth shall depart from his shadow, and shall leave him. 13 In his ruin dwelt all the fowls of heaven, and in his boughs were all the beasts of the field. 14 For which cause there shall not be elevated in their height all the trees of the waters, neither shall they put their highness among the woody and thick ones, neither shall they stand in their height, all that are watered with waters: because they are all delivered into death to the lowest earth in the midst of the children of men, to them that go down into the Lake. 15 Thus saith our Lord God: In the day that he went down to hell, I brought in mourning, I covered him with the depth: and I stayed his rivers, and kept in many waters: Libanus was made sad upon him, & all the trees of the field were shaken. 16 At the sound of his ruin I moved the Gentiles, when I brought him down to hell with them, that descended into the lake: & all the trees of pleasure goodly & glorious in Libanus, all that were watered with waters, were comforted in the lowest earth. 17 For they also shall go down with him to hell to the slain by the sword: & the arm of every one shall sit under his shadow in the midst of the nations. 18 (b) To whom art thou likened, o thou noble and lofty among the trees of pleasure? Behold thou art brought down with the trees of pleasure to the lowest earth: in the midst of the uncircumcised shalt thou sleep, with them that are slain by the sword, the same is Pharao, and all his multitude, saith our Lord God.

(b) Although o Aegypt thou art like to the most potent Kingdoms, yet as the Assirians & others so thou also shalt be ruined.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Prophet lamenteth the destruction of Aegypt, 11. prosecuting his prophecy of the most lamentable destruction thereof: 17. foreshewing that the more it is exalted in strength and glory, so much more miserable shall be the fall thereof.

And it came to pass (a) the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying:

(a) Here it is manifest that this Prophet counteth the years by the time of transmigration of King Jechonias, for it is clear that Sedecias reigned only eleven years. 4. Reg. 24. & 25. Iere. 39 & 52.

2 Son of man, take up a lamentation upon Pharao the king of Aegypt, & thou shalt say to him: Thou art likened to the Lion of the Gentiles, and the dragon, that is in the sea: and thou didst strike with the horn in thy rivers, and didst trouble the waters with thy feet, and didst conculcate their streams. 3 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: I will spread my net upon thee in the multitude of many peoples, and I will draw thee out in my net. 4 And I will throw thee forth on the ground, upon the face of the field will I cast thee away: and I will make all the fowls of heaven to dwell upon thee, and I will fill of thee the beasts of all the earth. 5 And I will give thy flesh upon the mountains, and will fill the little hills with thy corruption. 6 And I will water the earth with the stench of thy blood upon the mountains, and the valleys shall be filled of thee. 7 And I will cover the heavens, when thou shalt be extinguished, and I will make the stars thereof to wax black: the sun I will cover with a cloud, & the moon shall not give her light. 8 I will make (b) all the lights of heaven to mourn upon thee: & I will give darkness upon thy land, saith our Lord God, when thy wounded shall fall in the midst of the land, saith our Lord God.

(b) This hyperbolical speech describeth the former glory of Aegypt, as if all lights were much diminished, when this Kingdom was darkened.

9 And I shall provoke to anger the heart of many peoples, when I shall have brought in thy destruction in the Gentiles upon the lands, which thou knowest not. 10 And I will make many peoples to be astonished upon thee, and their kings with exceeding horror shall be afraid upon thee, when my sword shall begin to fly upon their faces: and they shall be astonished suddenly, every one for his life, in the day of thy ruin. 11 Because thus saith our Lord God: 12 The sword of the king of Babylon shall come to thee, in the swords of the valiants will I overthrow thy multitude: invincible are all these Gentiles: and they shall waste the pride of Aegypt, and the multitude thereof shall be dissipated. 13 And I will destroy all the beasts thereof, that were upon very many waters: and the foot of man shall trouble them no more, neither shall the hoof of beasts trouble them. 14 Then will I make their waters most pure, and their rivers I will bring as oil, saith our Lord God. 15 When I shall have made the Land of Aegypt desolate: & the land shall be made desert of her fullness, when I shall have strucken all the inhabitants thereof: & they shall know that I am the Lord. 16 It is lamentation, and they shall lament it, the daughters of the Gentiles shall lament it, upon Aegypt, and upon the multitude thereof they shall lament it, saith our Lord God. 17 And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the fifteenth of the month, the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 18 Son of man, sing a mourning song upon the multitude of Aegypt: and pluck her down, herself, and the daughters of the strong nations, to the lowest earth, with them that go down into the lake. 19 Fairer than whom art thou? Descend, & sleep with the uncircumcised. 20 In the midst of the slain by the sword they shall fall. The sword is given, they have drawn her, and all her peoples. 21 The most mighty of the strong shall speak to him from the midst of hell, which went down with his helpers, and slept uncircumcised, slain by the sword. 22 There Assur, and all his multitude: round about him their graves, all the slain, and they that fell by the sword. 23 Whose graves were made in the lowest lakes: and his multitude was made round about his grave: all the slain, and they that fell by the sword, which sometime had given fear in the land of the living. 24 There Aelam, and all the multitude thereof round about her grave. All these slain, and falling by the sword: that went down uncircumcised to the lowest earth: which did put their terror in the land of the living, and they have borne their ignominy with them, that go down into the lake. 25 In the midst of their slain they have set (c) her couch among all her peoples: round about (d) him their grave, and these uncircumcised, and slain by the sword, for they gave their terror in the land of the living, and have borne their ignominy with them, that descend into the lake: they are laid in the midst of the slain.

(c) The country of the Aelamites: (d) and the king of Aelamites shall also perish with Assirians, Aegyptians, & other infidels.

26 There Mosoch, & Thubal, & all their multitude: round about him their graves: all these uncircumcised, and slain, and falling by the sword: because they gave their fear in the land of the living: 27 And they shall not sleep with the valiants, and them that fell, and the uncircumcised, that went down to hell with their weapons, and put their swords under their heads, and their iniquities were in their bones: because they were made the terror of the valiants in the land of the living. 28 And thou therefore shalt be destroyed in the midst of the uncircumcised, and shalt sleep with the slain by the sword. 29 There Idumea, and her kings, and all her Princes, which were given with their host with the slain by the sword: and which slept with the uncircumcised, & with them that go down into the lake. 30 There all the Princes of the North, and all the hunters: which were brought down with the slain, fearing, and in their strength confounded: which slept uncircumcised with the slain by the sword, & have borne their ignominy with them, that go down into the lake. 31 Pharao saw them, and he was comforted upon all his multitude, which was slain by the sword, Pharao, & all his host, saith our Lord God: 32 because I gave his terror in the land of the living, and he slept in the midst of the uncircumcised with the slain by the sword: Pharao and all his multitude, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

By example of a watchman, 7. God chargeth the Prophet to declare whatsoever dangers he seeth imminent to the people. 10. Sinners repenting shall be saved, and if the just leave their justice they shall be damned, 21. The promise made to Abraham maketh not the Jews secure: 23. but for their enormous sins they shall be carried out captives. 33. Then they shall know that the prophet said the truth.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and thou shalt say to them: The land when I shall bring the sword in upon it, and the people of the land take a man, one of their meanest, and make him (a) a watchman over them:

(a) Pastors are not excused, omitting to admonish their flock either for fear of danger, or for despair of the sinner's amendment.
For every one shall be judged as he dischargeth or neglecteth his own office. S. Iero.

3 and he shall see the sword coming upon the land, and sound with the trumpet, and tell the people: 4 and he that heareth the sound of the trumpet, whosoever he be, and doth not look to himself, and the sword come, and take him: his blood shall be upon his head. 5 He heard the sound of the trumpet, and did not look to himself, his blood shall be on himself: but if he shall look to himself, he shall save his life. 6 And if the watchman see the sword coming, & sound not with the trumpet: and the people look not to themselves, and the sword come, and take a soul from among them: he certes is caught in his iniquity, but his blood I will require of the hand of the watchman. 7 And thou son of man, I have made thee a watchman to the house of Israel: hearing therefore the word from my mouth, thou shalt tell them from me. 8 If when I say to the impious: O thou impious, dying thou shalt die: thou speak not that the impious may keep himself from his way: the impious himself shall die in his iniquity, but his blood I will require at thy hand. 9 But if thou telling the impious, that he convert from his ways, he convert not from his way: he shall die in his iniquity: but thou hast delivered thy soul. 10 Thou therefore o son of man say to the house of Israel: Thus you have spoken, saying: Our iniquities, & our sins are upon us, and in them we fade away: how then can we live?

11 Say to them: Live I, saith our Lord God: (b) I will not the death of the impious, but that the impious convert from his way, and live. Convert, convert ye from your most evil ways: and (c) why will you die, o house of Israel?

(b) God's absolute or consequent will is always fulfilled: but not his conditional or antecedent. As is noted ch. 18. v. 23. (c) God being always ready to shew mercy, knocking at the door of our heart, Apoc. 3. v. 20. it is of men's own willfulness that they are not saved: according to that general Axiom: Man doing that in him lieth^ God is not wanting of his part to save all. S. Tho. 1. 2. q. 109. a. 6. & q. 112. a. 3.

12 Thou therefore son of man say to the children of thy people: The justice of the just shall not deliver him, in what day soever he shall sin: and the impiety of the impious shall not hurt him, in what day soever he shall convert from his impiety: and the just cannot live in his justice, in what day soever he shall sin.
13 Yea if I shall say to the just that living he shall live, & he trusting in his justice do iniquity: all his justices shall be forgotten, & in his iniquity, which he hath wrought, in the same shall he die. 14 And if I shall say to the impious: Dying thou shalt die: & he do penance from his sin & do judgement & justice, 15 & the same impious restore pledge, and render robbery, walk in the commandments of life, and do not any unjust thing: living he shall live, & shall not die. 16 All his sins, which he hath sinned, shall not be imputed to him: he hath done judgement & justice, living he shall live. 17 And the children of thy people, have said: The way of our Lord is not of equal weight, & their own way is unjust. 18 For when the just shall depart from his justice, & do iniquities, he shall die in them.
19 And when the impious shall depart from his impiety, & shall do judgements, & justice: he shall live in them. 20 And you say: The way of our Lord is not right, every one according to his ways will I judge of you, o house of Israel. 21 And it came to pass in (d) the twelfth year, in the tenth month, in the fifth of the month of our transmigration, there came to me one that was fled from Jerusalem, saying: The city is made waste.

(d) As he prophesied ch. 24. v. 2. the very day when the siege began: so he foreshewed also v. 26. that one flying away should tell of the taking & spoiling of the city three years after.

22 And the hand of our Lord had been made to me in the evening, before he came that was fled: & he opened my mouth till he came to me in the morning, & my mouth being opened I was silent no more. 23 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 24 Son of man, They that dwell in these ruinous places, upon the ground of Israel, speaking do say: Abraham was one, and by inheritance he possessed the land: but we be many, the land is given us in possession.
25 Therefore thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Ye that eat in blood & lift up your eyes to your uncleanness, & shed blood: what^ shall you possess the land by inheritance? 26 You stood on your swords, you have done abominations, & every one hath polluted his neighbour's wife: & you will possess the land by inheritance? 27 Thus thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Live I, that they which dwell in the ruinous places, shall fall by the sword: & he that is in the field, shall be delivered to beasts to be devoured: and they that are in holds, and caves, shall die of the pestilence. 28 And I will give the land into a wilderness, & into a desert, and the proud strength thereof shall fail, and the mountains of Israel shall be desolate, because there is none to pass by them. 29 And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall give their land desolate and desert for all their abominations, which they have wrought. 30 And thou son of man: the children of thy people, which speak of thee by the walls, and in the doors of houses, and one saith to another, a man to his neighbour, speaking: Come, & let us hear what is the word that proceedeth from our Lord. 31 And they come to thee, as if a people should go in, and my people sit before thee: and they hear thy words, and do them not: because they turn them into a song of their mouth, and their heart followeth their avarice. 32 And thou art unto them as a musical song which is sung with sweet and pleasant sound: and they hear thy words, and do them not. 33 And when it shall come to pass which was told before (for behold it cometh) then shall they know that there was a prophet among them.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A commination of evil pastors: 11. and a prophecy of the coming of Christ, the true Pastor; who will gather his flock from all parts of the earth, 25. and conserve it for ever.

And the word of our Lord was made to me saying: 2 Son of man prophesy of the Pastors of Israel: prophesy, and thou shalt say to the Pastors: Thus saith our Lord God: Woe to the Pastors of Israel, which fed themselves: are not the flocks fed of the Pastors? 3 You did eat the (a) milk, & were covered with the wool, & that which was fat ye killed: but my flock you fed not.

(a) Pastors do lawfully eat of the milk of their flock. 1. Cor. 9. v. 7. but they ought not to take the wool, nor flesh to themselves, which belong to their master.

4 That which was weak, you strengthened not: and that which was sick, you healed not: that which was broken, you bound not up: and that which was cast away, you brought not again: and that which was lost, you sought not: but with austerity you did rule over them, and with might. 5 And my sheep were dispersed, because there was no (b) Pastor: & they came to be devoured of all the beasts of the field, and were dispersed.

(b) He that hath spiritual charge of souls, & seeketh his own temporal profit, not the spiritual good of his flock, is indeed no Pastor, but a hireling, or if he also teach false doctrine, he is a wolf. Ioan. 10.

6 My flocks have wandered in all mountains, and in every high hill: and upon all the face of the earth were my flocks dispersed, and there was none that sought them, there was none, I say, that sought them. 7 Therefore ye shepherds hear the word of our Lord: 8 Live I, saith our Lord God: that for as much as my flocks have been made a spoil: & my sheep to be devoured of all the beasts of the field, because there was no Pastor (for my Pastors did not seek my flock, but the Pastors fed themselves, & my flocks they fed not:) 9 therefore ye Pastors hear the word of our Lord: 10 Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I myself upon the shepherds, I will require my flock of their hand, and I will make them cease, that they feed my flock no more, & that the Pastors feed no more themselves: and I will deliver my flock out of their mouth, and it shall no more be meat for them. 11 Because thus saith our Lord God: Behold I myself will seek my sheep, and will visit them. 12 As the Pastor visiteth his flock in the day when he shall be in the midst of his sheep which were scattered: so will I visit my sheep, and will deliver them out of all places, wherein they had been dispersed in the day of the cloud and of darkness. 13 And I will bring them out of the peoples, and will gather them out of the lands, and will bring them into their own land: and I will feed them in the mountains of Israel, in the rivers, and in all the seats of the land. 14 In the most plentiful pastures will I feed them, & in the high mountains of Israel shall be their pastures: there shall they rest on the green grass, and in fat pastures they shall be fed upon the mountains of Israel. 15 I will feed my sheep, & I will make them lie, saith our Lord God. 16 (c) That which was lost, I will seek: & that which was cast away, I will bring again: & that which was broken I will bind up: & that which was weak, I will strengthen: & that which was fat & strong, I will keep: & will feed them in judgement.

(c) Not only Christ himself but also others shall do these right Offices of true Pastors in the new Testament. as S. Paul conformably teacheth Ephe. 4. that God giveth Apostles, Prophets, Evangelists, Pastors & doctors, to the consummation of Saints, till we meet all into the unity of faith &c.

17 And you my flocks, thus saith our Lord God: Behold I judge between beast & beast, of rams, & of buck goats. 18 Was it not enough for you to feed upon good pastures? You have besides also trodden down with your feet the residue of your pastures: and when you drank most pure water, the rest you troubled with your feet. 19 And my sheep were fed with those things, which were trodden with your feet: and what your feet had troubled, that did they drink.

20 Therefore thus saith our Lord God to you: Behold, I myself do judge between the fat beast & the lean.

21 For that you with sides & shoulders did thrust, and with your horns struck all the weak beasts, till they were dispersed abroad: 22 I will save my flock, & it shall be no more into spoil, & I will judge between beast and beast. 23 AND I WILL RAISE UP OVER THEM ONE PASTOR: [1] who shall feed them, my servant (d) David: he shall feed them, & he shall be their Pastor.

[1] Ioa. 10. (d) No Jew is so obstinate, nor heretic so blind, but all confess that the Messias Christ, is here called by the name of David. For King David was now dead long before this Prophet lived. See the same ch. 37. v. 24. 25. and in many places of holy Scripture.

24 And I^ the Lord will be their God: & my servant David the Prince in the midst of them: I^ the Lord have spoken. 25 And I will make a covenant of peace with them, and will make the most cruel beasts to cease out of the land: & they that dwell in the desert, shall sleep secure in the forests. 26 And I will put them round about my hill a blessing: and I will bring down the showers in his time, there shall be rains of blessing. 27 And the tree of the field shall give his fruit, and the earth shall give her spring, and they shall be in their land without fear: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have broken the chains of their yoke, and shall have delivered them out of the hand of those that rule over them. 28 And they shall be no more for a spoil in the Gentiles, neither shall the beasts of the earth devour them: but they shall dwell confidently without any terror. 29 And I will raise up unto them a bud of name: and they shall be no more diminished for famine in the land, neither shall they bear any more the reproach of the Gentiles. 30 And they shall know that I^ the Lord their God with them, and they my people the house of Israel: saith our Lord God. 31 And you my flocks, the flocks of my pasture are men: and I^ the Lord your God, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Another Prophecy against the Idumeans, 5. because they afflicted the Israelites.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man (a) set thy face against mount Seir, and thou shalt Prophesy of it, and shalt say to it:

(a) This frequent phrase here and in other places signifieth, turn thy speech to speak of such & such people: or, speak boldly and freely fearing no man.

3 Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee mount Seir, and I will stretch forth my hand upon thee, & will make thee desolate and desert. 4 Thy cities I will destroy, & thou shalt be desert: & thou shalt know that I am the Lord. 5 (b) For that thou hast been an everlasting enemy, and hast shut up the children of Israel into the hands of the sword in the time of their affliction, in the time of extreme iniquity.

(b) God accounteth all injuries done against his Church, as done against himself. So our Saviour charged Saul persecuting the Church, as persecuting himself. Act. 9. v. 4.

6 Therefore live I, saith our Lord God, that I will deliver thee unto blood, & blood shall persecute thee: & whereas thou hast hated blood, blood shall persecute thee. 7 And I will make mount Seir desolate & desert: & I will take from it the comer & goer. 8 And I will fill his mountains with his slain: in thy hills, and in thy valleys, & in the torrents shall the slain with the sword fall. 9 Into everlasting desolations will I deliver thee, & thy cities shall not be inhabited: & thou shalt know that I am the Lord God. 10 For that thou hast said: The two nations, & the two lands shall be mine, & I will possess them by inheritance: whereas our Lord was there. 11 Therefore live I, saith our Lord God, that I will do according to thy wrath, and according to thy zeal, which thou hast used hating them: & I will be made known by them, when I shall have judged thee. 12 And thou shalt know that I^ the Lord have heard all thy reproaches, that thou hast spoken of the mountains of Israel, saying: They are desert, they are given unto us to devour. 13 And you rose up upon me with your mouth, and have derogated your words against me: I heard it. 14 Thus saith our Lord God: All the earth rejoicing, I will bring thee into a wilderness. 15 As thou hast rejoiced upon the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was dissipated, so will I do to thee: Thou shalt be dissipated mount Seir, & all Idumea: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The Jews shall be reduced from captivity, 13. their manners amended, 16. which are enormous, 22. by special grace of God, for the glory of his name: 25. fulfilled by Christ's baptism. [1]

[1] The 4. part.
The reduction of the Jews from captivity: and the Redemption of mankind by Christ.

And thou son of man, Prophesy concerning the mountains of Israel, and thou shalt say: Mountains of Israel hear ye the word of our Lord: 2 Thus saith our Lord God: For that the enemy hath said of you: Aha, the everlasting heights are given to us for an inheritance: 3 therefore prophesy, & say: Thus saith our Lord God: For that you have been desolate, & trodden down round about, & made an inheritance to the rest of the Gentiles, and have ascended (a) upon the lip of the tongue, & the reproach of the people:

(a) Your captivity and distressed state hath given occasion to all nations to speak & discourse of you. As Jeremy prophesied, ch. 24. v. 9. I will give them into reproach, & to be a parable and a proverb. &c.

4 Therefore ye mountains of Israel hear the word of our Lord God: Thus saith our Lord God to the mountains, and hills, to the torrents, and valleys, & the deserts, and broken walls, and to the cities forsaken, which are spoiled, & scorned of the rest of the Nations round about. 5 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Because in fire of my zeal I have spoken of the rest of the nations, & of all Idumea, which have given my land to themselves for an inheritance with joy, and with all their heart, and with the mind: and have cast it forth to waste it: 6 therefore prophesy concerning the ground of Israel, and thou shalt say to the mountains, and hills, to the hill-tops, & valleys: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I have spoken in my zeal, & in my fury because you have sustained the confusion of the Gentiles. 7 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: I have lifted my hand, that the Gentiles which are round about you, they may bear their confusion. 8 But you o mountains of Israel may shoot forth your boughs, and bring forth your fruit to my people of Israel: for he is at hand to come. 9 Because lo I to you, and I will turn to you, and you shall be ploughed, and shall take seed. 10 And I will multiply in you men, and all the house of Israel. And the cities shall be inhabited, & the ruinous places shall be repaired. 11 And I will replenish you with men, and with beasts: and they shall be multiplied, and increase: and I will make you dwell as from the beginning, and will endue you with greater gifts, than you have had from the beginning: and you shall know that I am the Lord. 12 And I will bring men upon you, my people Israel, and they shall possess thee by inheritance: and thou shalt be for an inheritance to them, & thou shalt add no more to be without them. 13 Thus saith our Lord God: For that they say of you: A devourer of men thou art, and one that doest suffocate thy nation. 14 Therefore thou shalt eat men no more, and thy nation thou shalt kill no more, saith our Lord God: 15 neither will I make the confusion of the Gentiles, to be heard in thee any more, and the reproach of the people thou shalt not bear, & thy nation thou shalt lose no more, saith our Lord God. 16 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 17 Son of man, the house of Israel dwelt in their ground, and polluted it in their ways, & in their studies, according to the uncleanness of a menstruous woman was their way made before me. 18 And I have poured out mine indignation upon them for the blood, which they have shed upon the land, & in their idols have polluted it. 19 And I have dispersed them into the Gentiles, & they are scattered into the lands: according to their ways, & their inventions have I judged them 20 And they went in to the Nations, unto which they entered, and (b) have polluted my holy name, when it was said of them: This is the people of the Lord, and out of his land they are come forth.

(b) Jews by their sins provoking God to punish them with captivity, gave occasion that other nations said: God could not defend his people: blaspheming against his power, when he exercised justice.

21 And I have spared my holy name, which the house of Israel polluted among the Gentiles, to which they entered in. 22 Therefore thou shalt say to the house of Israel: Thus saith our Lord God, not for your sake will I do it, o house of Israel, but for my holy name which you have polluted in the Nations to which you entered. 23 And I will sanctify my great name, that is polluted among the Gentiles, which you have polluted in the midst of them: that the Gentiles may know that I am the Lord, saith our Lord of hosts, when I shall be sanctified in you before them. 24 For I will take you out of the Gentiles, & will gather you together out of all the lands, & will bring you into your land. 25 And I will pour out upon you (c) clean water, and you shall be cleansed from all your contaminations, and from all your idols will I cleanse you.

(c) Rabbi David & the Chaldee Paraphrasis expound this place of remission of sin. And all Christian Doctors understand it of Baptism, which indeed is in water cleansing sins. Ephes. 5. v. 26. Tit 3. v. 5.

26 And I will give you a new heart, and will put a new spirit in the midst of you: and will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and will give you a fleshy heart. 27 And I will put my spirit in the midst of you: and I (d) will make that you walk in my precepts, and keep my judgements, and do them.

(d) An evident text, that by God's grace some men do keep the commandments.

28 And you shall dwell in the land: which I gave to your fathers, and you shall be my people, and I will be your God. 29 And I will save you from all your contaminations: and I will call for corn, and will multiply it, and will not put famine upon you. 30 And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the offsprings of the field, that you bear no more the reproach of famine among the Gentiles. 31 And you shall remember your most wicked ways, & your studies not good: & your iniquities, & your wicked deeds shall displease you. 32 Not for you will I do it, saith our Lord God, be it known to you: be ye confounded, & ashamed upon your ways, o house of Israel. 33 Thus saith our Lord God: In the day that I shall cleanse you from all your iniquities, & shall make the cities to be inhabited, & shall repair the ruinous places. 34 & the desert land shall be tilled, which once was desolate in the eyes of every wayfaring man, 35 they shall say: This land untilled is become as a garden of pleasure: and the desert cities, and destitute and undermined, have sitten fenced. 36 And the Nations whatsoever shall be left round about you, shall know that I^ the Lord have builded the destroyed things, & planted the untilled places, that I^ the Lord have spoken, and done it. 37 Thus saith our Lord God: As yet in this shall the house of Israel find me, that I will do for them: I will multiply them as a flock of men, 38 as a holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in the solemnities thereof: So shall the desert cities be full of flocks of men: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

By dead bones rising to life (which also signifieth the general resurrection) 11. is prophesied the reduction of the Jews from captivity: 15. the Kingdoms of Juda and Israel shall be reduced into one Kingdom: 23. in figure that all Nations shall be united in Christ.

The hand of our Lord was made upon me, and brought me forth in the spirit of our Lord: and left me in the midst of a field, that was full of bones. 2 And he led me about through them on every side: and there were very many upon the face of the field, and exceeding dry. 3 And he said to me: Son of man, thinkest thou these bones shall live? And I said, Lord God, thou knowest. 4 And he said to me: Prophesy of these bones: and thou shalt say to them: Dry bones hear ye the word of our Lord. 5 Thus saith our Lord God to these bones: Behold (a) I will put spirit into you, and you shall live.

(a) A double prophecy of two great benefits, the reduction of the Jews from captivity; and of the Gentiles from idolatry to Christ, wherein also is included the mystery of resurrection.

6 And I will give sinews upon you, and will make flesh to grow up over you, and will stretch a skin on you: and I will give you spirit, and you shall live, and you shall know that I am the Lord. 7 And I prophesied as he had commanded me: and there was made a sound when I prophesied, and behold a commotion: and bones came to bones, every one to his juncture. 8 And I saw, and behold upon them sinews, and flesh was grown up: and a skin was stretched out in them above, and they had no spirit. 9 And he said to me: prophesy to the spirit, prophesy son of man, & thou shalt say to the spirit: Thus saith our Lord God: Come spirit from the four winds, and blow upon these slain, and let them be revived. 10 And I prophesied as he had commanded me: and spirit entered into them, and they lived: and they stood upon their feet, an army passing great. 11 And he said to me: Son of man: All these bones, are the house of Israel: They say: our (a) bones are withered, (b) our hope is perished, and we (c) are cut off.

(a) One cause of distrust that the people of Israel should not be restored from captivity, was because they were like to dry bones. (b) Secondly they had all generally lost their hope of restitution. (c) Thirdly they seemed like to trees or plants cut off at the very root.

12 Therefore prophesy, and thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: (d) Behold I will open your graves, and will bring you out of your sepulchres o my people: and will bring you into the land of Israel.

(d) Yet God by his power & goodness restored them.

13 And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have opened your sepulchres, & shall have brought you out of your graves o my people: 14 and shall have given my spirit in you, & you shall live, & I shall make you rest upon your ground: & you shall know that I^ the Lord have spoken & done it, saith our Lord God. 15 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 16 And thou son of man, take thee one piece of wood, and write upon it: Of Juda, & of the children of Israel his fellows: & take another piece of wood, & write upon it: Of Joseph the wood of Ephraim, and of all the house of Israel, and of his fellows. 17 And (e) join them, one to the other for thee into one piece of wood, and they shall be into an union in thy hand.

(e) Before Christ joined the Gentiles to his Church, he first united the two Kingdoms of Juda and Israel: signifying that Catholics which labour for conversion of heretics (as now in England) must first agree amongst themselves, & then shall their endeavours be more effectual. For so all shall sooner be made one fold under one shepherd.

18 And when the children of thy people shall say to thee speaking: Doest thou not declare unto us what thou meanest by these? 19 Thou shalt speak to them:

Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will take the piece of wood of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, & the tribes of Israel, that are adjoined to him: and I will give them together with the piece of wood of Juda, and will make them into one piece of wood: and they shall be one in his hand. 20 And the pieces of wood whereupon thou shalt write, in thy hand, shall be before their eyes. 21 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I will take the children of Israel out of the midst of the nations, to which they are gone: and I will gather them together on every side, and will bring them to their ground. 22 And I will make them into one nation in the land on the mountains of Israel, and there shall be one king ruling over them all: & they shall no more be two nations, neither shall they be divided any more into two kingdoms. 23 Neither shall they be polluted any more in their idols, & their abominations, and all their iniquities, & I will save them out of all the seats, in which they have sinned, & I will cleanse them: & they shall be my people, & I will be their God. 24 And my servant David king over them, & there shall be (f) one Pastor of them all, they shall walk in my judgements, and shall keep my commandments, and shall do them.

(f) Fulfilled by Christ the good Pastor, who bringeth all nations into one fold under one Pastor. Ioan 10. v. 16.

25 And they shall dwell upon the land, which I gave to my servant Jacob, wherein your fathers dwelt, and they shall dwell upon it, themselves, & their children, & their children's children, even for ever: & David my servant their Prince for ever. 26 And I will make a league of peace to them, an everlasting covenant shall be to them: and I will found them, & will multiply them, and will give my sanctification in the midst of them for ever. 27 And my tabernacle shall be in them: & I will be their God, and they shall be my people. 28 And the Gentiles shall know that I am the Lord the sanctifier of Israel, when my sanctification shall be in the midst of them for ever.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Gog and Magog most tyrannically persecuting the Church, 17. as other Prophets have also foretold, 20. shall be mightily overthrown.

And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 2 Son of man, set thy face against (a) Gog, and the Land of (b) Magog, the Prince of the head of Mosoch, and Thubal: and prophesy of him and thou shalt say to him: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I to thee Gog Prince of the head of Mosoch and Thubal.

(a) Gog signifying hid or covered, was the common surname of the Scythian Kings. (b) Magog, out of the hid, were the people and adherents of Gog persecuting the faithful.

3 And I will turn thee about, and will put a bit in thy jaws: and will bring forth thee, and all thine army, the horses and horsemen clothed with brigantines, 4 a great multitude, of them that take spear and buckler and sword. 5 The Persians, Aethiopians, and Libyans with them, all with shields & helmets. 6 Gomer, and all her troops, the houses of Thogorma the sides of the North, and all his strength, and many peoples with them. 7 Prepare and make ready thyself, and all thy multitude, that is gathered to thee in heaps: and be thou as a precept to them. 8 After many days thou shalt be visited: in the later end of years thou shalt come to the land, that is returned from the sword, and is gathered together out of many peoples, to the mountains of Israel, that were desert continually: this same is brought forth out of the peoples, and they shall all dwell in it confidently. 9 And going up as a tempest thou shalt come, & as it were a cloud that thou mayst cover the land, thou & thy troops, & many peoples with thee. 10 Thus saith our Lord God: In that day shall words ascend upon thy heart, and thou shalt think a most wicked thought. 11 And shalt say: I will go up to the land without wall: I will come to them that rest, & dwell securely: all these dwell without wall, there are no bars nor gates to them: 12 That thou mayst take the spoils, & invade the prey, that thou mayst lay thy hand upon them, that (c) had been desert, & afterward restored, & upon the people that is gathered together out of the Gentiles, which hath begun to possess, & to be inhabitant of the navel of the earth.

(c) Alluding to those that endeavoured to spoil and oppress the Jews after their relaxation from captivity, he prophesieth of Antichrist, and all heretics, that seek to pervert or to suppress Catholic Christians, who are delivered from the bondage of the devil by Baptism and other Sacraments of Christ.

13 Saba, & Dedan, and the merchants of Tharsis, & all the lions thereof shall say to thee: What comest thou to take spoils? Behold thou hast gathered thy multitude to take the prey, that thou mayst take silver, and gold, and mayst take away stuff & substance, and spoil infinite booties. 14 Therefore prophesy thou son of man, and thou shalt say to Gog: Thus saith our Lord God: Why shalt thou not know in that day, when my people of Israel shall dwell confidently? 15 And thou shalt come out of thy place from the sides of the North, thou & many peoples with thee, all riders of horses, a great company, and a vehement army.

16 And thou shalt ascend upon my people of Israel as a cloud, that thou cover the earth. (d) In the later days shalt thou be, and I will bring thee upon my land: that the Gentiles may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee before their eyes, o Gog.

(d) Antichrist signified by Gog shall persecute the Church near the end of the world.

17 Thus saith our Lord God: Thou then art he, of whom I spake in the days of old, in the hand of my servants the Prophets of Israel, which prophesied in the days of those times, that I would bring in thee upon them. 18 And it shall be in that day, in the day of the coming of Gog upon the land of Israel, saith our Lord God, mine indignation shall ascend in my fury. 19 And in my zeal, and in the fire of my wrath I have spoken. That in that day shall be a great commotion upon the land of Israel: 20 and at my presence shall the fishes of the sea be moved, and the fowls of heaven, and the beasts of the field, and every creeping thing, that moveth upon the ground, and all men that are upon the face of the earth: & the mountains shall be overthrown, & the hedges shall fall, and every wall shall fall on the ground. 21 And I will call in against him (e) in all my mountains the sword, saith our Lord God: every man's sword shall be directed against his brother.

(e) In every part of the universal Church God will at last destroy Antichrist's power confounding him, and all his adherents.

22 And I will judge him with pestilence, & blood, & vehement shower, & mighty great stones: fire, and brimstone will I rain upon him, and upon his army, and upon the many peoples that are with him. 23 And I will be magnified, and I will be sanctified: and I will be known in the eyes of many nations: and they shall know that I am the Lord.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XXXVIII.

2. Against Gog, and the Land of Magog.] [1] Gog and Magog, according to the most common opinion, were the King, and people of Scithia, in the North part of the world, a barbarous, savage, and cruel nation, the offspring of Magog son of Japheth: [2] whereto the Prophet alluding describeth here, as S. Jerome in this place, S. Augustine. li. 20. c. 11. de civit. and other Fathers expound it, [3] all persecuters of the Church; most especially Antichrist, and his complices. Of whom likewise, by the same mystical names, S. John prophesieth Apoc. 20. v. 7. that Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, and shall go forth, and seduce the nations, that are upon the four corners of the earth, Gog, and Magog, and shall gather them into battle, [4] whose number is as the sand of the sea. For the Church being spread on all the earth (as S. Augustine noteth in the same place) her enemies also spread every-where, shall most vehemently persecute her. But the holy Prophets,

[1] Gog and Magog, the King and Kingdom of Scythia:

[2] Gen. 10.

[3] Signifying all persecuters of the Church, especially Antichrist.

[4] Psal. 2. Isa. 11.

namely Ezechiel here, v. 21. &c. and S. John, v. 11. foresheweth, that Christ our Lord will destroy them all. [5]

Dan. 12.

[5] Who shall be destroyed.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

Our Lord permitting Gog, most vehemently to afflict the Church, 3. after a while will destroy him, with all his troops: 9. their weapons shall be burned, 11. their sepulchres infamous, the earth not fully cleansed of their carcases in seven months. 17. God's people shall rejoice; 22. and all men shall know that their sins were the cause of their captivity.

But thou son of man, prophesy against Gog, & thou shalt say: Thus saith our Lord God: Behold I upon thee Gog, the Prince of the head of Mosoch and Thubal. 2 And I will turn thee about, & will reduce thee, and will make thee ascend from the sides of the North: & will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel. 3 And I will strike thy bow in thy left hand, & thine arrows I will cast down out of thy right hand. 4 Upon (a) the mountains of Israel shalt thou fall, and all thy troops, and thy peoples that are with thee: to the wild beasts, to the birds, and to every fowl, and to the beasts of the earth have I given thee to be devoured.

(a) Antichrist persecuting the Church in all parts of the world, shall be resisted by some in every place, and at last vanquished.

5 Thou shalt fall upon the face of the field: because I have spoken, saith our Lord God. 6 And I will send in fire upon Magog, and on them that dwell in the islands confidently: and they shall know that I am the Lord. 7 And my holy name will I make known in the midst of my people Israel, and I will pollute my holy name no more: and the Gentiles shall know that I am the Lord the holy one of Israel. 8 Behold it cometh, and it is done, saith our Lord God: this is the day, whereof I have spoken. 9 And the inhabitants shall go forth of the cities of Israel, and shall set on fire and burn weapons, buckler, and spears, bow and arrows, and hand-staves, and poleaxes: and they shall burn them with fire seven years. 10 And they shall not carry trees out of the countries, nor cut down out of the forests: because they shall burn the weapons with fire, & shall make prey of them, to whom they had been a prey, & they shall spoil their spoilers, saith our Lord God. 11 And it shall be in that day: I will give Gog a renowned place for a sepulchre in Israel: the valley of wayfaring men on the East of the sea, which shall make them that pass by to be astonished: & they shall there (b) burn Gog, and all his multitude, and it shall be called the valley of the multitude of Gog.

(b) Not with material fire, but with zeal & fervour Catholics shall resist him, and finally overcome him.

12 And the house of Israel shall bury them, that they may cleanse the land seven months. 13 And all the people of the land shall bury him, and it shall be unto them a renowned day, wherein I was glorified, saith our Lord God. 14 And they shall appoint men continually going about the land, to bury & to seek them, that were remaining upon the face of the earth, that they may cleanse it: and after seven months they shall begin to seek. 15 And they that travel through the land shall go about: and when they shall see the bone of a man, they shall set up a sign beside it, till the buriers bury it in the valley of the multitude of Gog. 16 And the name of the city Amona, and they shall cleanse the land. 17 Thou therefore o son of man, saith our Lord God, say to every fowl, and to all birds, and to all the beasts of the field: Come together, make haste, run together on every side to my victim, which I immolate for you, the great victim upon the mountains of Israel: that you may eat the flesh, and drink the blood. 18 The flesh of the strong shall you eat, and the blood of the princes of the earth shall you drink: of rams, of lambs, and of buckgoats, and bulls, and of fed wares, and of all fat things. 19 And you shall eat the fat your fill, and shall drink blood till you be drunk of the victim, which I shall immolate for you. 20 And you shall be filled upon my table of horse, and strong horsemen, and of all the men of war, saith our Lord God. 21 and I will put my glory in the Gentiles: and all nations shall see my judgement, that I have done, and my hand, that I have put upon them. 22 And the house of Israel shall know that I am the Lord their God from that day and so forward. 23 And the Gentiles shall know that the house of Israel (c) was taken in their iniquity, for that they forsook me, and I hid my face from them: and delivered them into the hands of the enemies, and they fell all by the sword.

(c) God's people were not made captives by the power of their enemies, as if God could not defend them, but by his permission for punishment of their sins.

24 According to their uncleanness and wickedness have I done to them, and have hid my face from them.

25 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: Now will I bring back the captivity of Jacob, and will have mercy on all the house of Israel: and I will take on me zeal for my holy name. 26 And they shall bear their confusion, and all the prevarication wherewith they prevaricated against me, when they shall dwell in their land confidently fearing no man: 27 and I shall have brought them back out of the peoples, & shall have gathered them together out of the lands of their enemies, and shall be sanctified in them, in the eyes of many nations. 28 And they shall know that I am the Lord their God, for that I transported them into the nations, and have gathered them together upon their own land, & have not left any of them there. 29 And I will hide my face no more from them, because I have poured out my spirit upon all the house of Israel, saith our Lord God.

Annotations upon Ezechiel's last vision: written in the nine last chapters.

[1] Four expositions of this vision.

[2] 1. Of the temple and city re-edified after the captivity.

[3] 2. That Messias shall build a material temple and city.

[4] 3. That this Prophetical vision was conditional.

[5] ch. 18. v. 23. ch. 33. v. 11.

[6] 4. That it cannot all be expounded according to the history, but only mystically.

[1] Of the true sense of this obscure vision there be four opinions: two of the Jewish Rabbins, and other two of Christian Catholic Doctors. The more ancient Jews understand this vision wholly and only of the temple and city of Jerusalem, re-edified by Zorobabel and Nehemias with others, after their captivity in Babylon, [2] assisted by the Persian Kings. But this opinion cannot consist with the holy text, ch. 42. v. 16. describing the utter wall of the temple in length on every side (being four square. v. 20.) five hundred reeds, every reed containing six sacred cubits (ch. 40. v. 5.) which are above ten foot or two paces; & so. 500. reeds making a thousand paces, or a mile, the whole wall was four miles in compass. Likewise the city is described (ch. 48. v. 16.) to have in length on the north quarter, four thousand five hundred reeds, with the same length on the west quarter, and consequently on the east, and south, that is, nine thousand paces, or nine miles on every side: in all the circuit thirty six miles. Of which greatness it is certain the temple and city never were. No not after the temple was augmented by Herod Ascalonites, whereof Josephus writeth, li. 15. c. 14. Antiq. Iudaicarum. Neither were there any such waters issuing from the material temple, nor such trees on the banks thereof, bringing forth fruits every month, as are described, ch. 47. v. 1. & 12. All which, with other like dissonances considered, the later Jews confessing that this prophecy is not hitherto fulfilled, say that their Messias, whom they expect, shall build such a terrestrial city, and temple, [3] with all the appertinances, as are shewed in this vision. Rejecting therefore these Jewish errors, and ridiculous imaginations. Richardus de Sancto Victore, Hugo Cardinalis, Nicolaus Lyranus, and some other Christian Doctors, suppose that God indeed conditionally, [4] according to his antecedent will, [5] promised all these things, even as the letter soundeth, to the Jews, if after their delivery from captivity, they should sincerely serve him, walk rightly in his ways, and perfectly keep his commandments. And that besides this supposed literal sense, all the same should more excellently be performed in the mystical temple and city of God, our Saviour Christ, and his Church. But for so much (say these Doctors) as the Jews performed not that which was required of their part, in perfect life and due service of God, this vision was not fulfilled, but only in some part, according to the virtues, and merits of the better sort of that people, by the restoration of the city, temple and other things, as in the books of Esdras: & that lastly for their general revolt from Christ persecuting him to death, their temple and city were again destroyed, the people slain, dispersed, & rejected, except only the few relics converted to Christ. In whom, with the multitude of Gentiles, the whole vision hath full effect. This opinion albeit grounded in probability, yet seemeth not so certain, nor indeed so probable, as the judgement of S. Jerom, & S. Theodoret in their commentaries, as also of S. Gregory in his homilies upon Ezechiel, and of many others, both ancient and late writers. [6] Who not finding how to apply this vision in all parts to the state of the old testament, neither that promise of such a huge great temple, and city with the rest were agreeable to God's wisdom, do only expound this vision to pertain in some parts to the Jews reduced from temporal captivity, as in figure of all mankind redeemed by Christ, and of his Church gathered of all nations, enriched and adorned with all spiritual graces, virtues, and power. Neither yet expounding all of the militant Church, but some part of the triumphant only, as surpassing the perfectest state of this transitory life. We therefore out of their large discourses shall abridge a few, and brief marginal notes, for some light of understanding the text, and entrance into the spiritual sense, principally intended by the Holy Ghost.

CHAPTER XL.

In a vision the Prophet seeth the re-edification of Jerusalem. 5. With the measures of diverse parts thereof, 47. and of the court, and entire of the temple. [1]

[1] The first part.
Restoration of the temple, with things pertaining thereto: more especially the glory of the Church militant & triumphant.

In the five & twentieth year of our transmigration, in the beginning of the year, the tenth of the month, the fourteenth year, after the city was strucken: in this self-same day the hand of our Lord was made upon me, & he brought me (a) thither.

(a) Into the destroyed city of Jerusalem.

2 In the visions of God he brought me into the Land of Israel, & left me upon (b) a mountain (c) exceeding high: upon which there was as it were the building of a city bending toward the south.

(b) Mount Sion: (c) called exceeding high mystically, in that it signifieth the Church of Christ: for historically Sion was not so exceeding high.

3 And he brought me in thither: and behold a man, whose form was as the form of brass, and a linen cord in his hand, and a reed of measure in his hand: & he stood in the gate. 4 And the same man spake to me: Son of man, see with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, & set thy heart on all things, which I will shew thee: for thou art brought hither that they may be shewed to thee: declare all things that thou seest, to the house of Israel. 5 And behold a wall on the outside round about the house, & in the man's hand a reed of measure of six cubits (d) & a palm: & he measured the breadth of the building with one reed, the height also with one reed.

(d) In the Hebrew text, in the Chaldee Paraphrasis, and in the 70. Interpreters, it is thus, of six cubits, in a cubit and a palm, to signify that these cubits used in measuring sacred things contained six palms, whereas the ordinary cubit containeth but five palms. See ch. 43. v. 13.

6 And he came to the gate, that looked to the way of the east, & he ascended by the steps thereof: & he measured the threshold of the gate with one reed the breadth, that is, one threshold with one reed in breadth: 7 and a chamber with one reed in length, and one reed in breadth: and between the chambers five cubits: 8 and the threshold of the gate by entry of the gate within, with one reed. 9 And he measured the entry of the gate of eight cubits, and the front thereof of two cubits: and the entry of the gate was within.

10 Moreover the chambers of the gate to the way of the East, three on this side, and three on that side: one measure of the three, and one measure of the fronts, on both parts. 11 And he measured the breadth of the threshold of the gate ten cubits: and the length of the gate of thirteen cubits: 12 and the border before the chambers of one cubit: and one cubit the end on both sides, and the chambers were of six cubits, on this side and that side. 13 And he measured the gate from the roof of the chamber, even to the roof thereof, the breadth of five and twenty cubits: door against door.
14 And he made fronts by sixty cubits: & to the front the court of the gate on every side round about.
15 And before the face of the gate, which raught even to the face of the entry of the inner gate, fifty cubits.
16 And (e) oblique windows in the chambers, and in their fronts, which were within the gate on every side round about: & in like manner there were also in the entries windows round about within, and before the fronts the picture of palm trees graven.

(e) Larger within than without, to spread the light within the place, & to avoid the danger of hurt from abroad: as the windows of Salomon's temple. 3. Reg. 6. as also in castles and towers is commonly used. In explicating this vision by reason of the obscurity, is great variety amongst the expositors, but all agree that God here revealed to the Prophet, that he will reward the good, to wit, in the old Testament temporally, & in the new spiritually, first with grace in this life, and with eternal glory in life everlasting.

17 And he brought me out of the utter court, & behold cells, and the pavement paved with stone in the court round about: thirty cells in the compass of the pavement. 18 And the pavement in the front of the gates according to the length of the gates was beneath.
19 And he measured the breadth from the face of the lower gate even to the front of the inner court without, an hundred cubits to the East, and to the North.
20 The gate also that looked to the way of the North of the utter court, he measured as well in length as in breadth. 21 And the chambers thereof three on this side, & three on that side: and the front thereof, and the entry thereof according to the measure of the former gate, of fifty cubits the length thereof, and the breadth of five and twenty cubits. 22 And the windows thereof, & the entry, and the gravings according to the measure of the gate, that looked to the East, and the ascent thereof was of seven steps, and an entry before it. 23 And the gate of the inner court against the gate of the North, and the East gate: and he measured from gate even to gate an hundred cubits. 24 And he brought me out to the way of the South, and behold the gate, that looked to the South: and he measured the front thereof, and the entry thereof according to the former measures. 25 And the windows thereof, and the entries round about, as the other windows: of fifty cubits in length, and in breadth of five and twenty cubits. 26 And on (f) seven steps was the ascent to it: and an entry before the doors thereof: and there were graven palm trees, one on this side, and another on that side in the front thereof.

(f) To the gates of the utter wall was ascent of seven steps, but of the inner wall (v. 31.) of eight steps, to signify that more perfection is required in the new Testament than was in the old, for which more grace is given and better reward. S. Greg.

27 And the gate of the inner court in the way of the South: and he measured from gate even to gate in the way of the South, an hundred cubits. 28 And he brought me into the inner court to the South gate: and he measured the gate according to the former measures. 29 The chamber thereof, and the front thereof, and the entry thereof with the same measures: and the windows thereof, and entry thereof round about fifty cubits of length, and of breadth five and twenty cubits. 30 And the entry round about in length of five and twenty cubits, & in breadth of five cubits.
31 And the entry thereof to the utter court, & the palm-trees thereof in the front: & there were eight steps, on which the ascent was through it. 32 And he brought me in into the inner court by the way of the east: & he measured the gate according to the former measures. [1]

[1] Ioa. 10.

33 The chamber thereof, and the front thereof, and the entry thereof as before: and the windows thereof, and the entries thereof round about, in length of fifty cubits, & in breadth of five and twenty cubits. 34 And the entry thereof, that is, of the utter court: & the graven palm-trees in the front thereof on this side and on that side: and on eight steps the ascent thereof. 35 And he brought me into the gate, that looked to the North: & he measured according to the former measures. 36 The chamber thereof, and the front thereof, and the entry thereof, and the windows thereof round about, in length of fifty cubits, and breadth of five and twenty cubits. 37 And the entry thereof looked to the utter court: and the graving of palm-trees in the front thereof on this side & on that side: and upon eight steps the ascent thereof. 38 And at every chamber a door in the forefronts of the gates: there they washed the holocaust. 39 And in the entry of the gate, two tables on this side, and two tables on that side: that there might be immolated upon them holocaust, & for sin, and for offence. 40 And on the utter side, which goeth up to the door of the gate, that goeth on toward the North, two tables: and at the other side before the entry of the gate, two tables. 41 Four tables on this side, and four tables on that side: at the sides of the gate were eight tables, whereupon they did immolate. 42 And the four tables for holocaust, were made of square stones: in length of one cubit and an half, and in breadth of one cubit and an half, and in height of one cubit: upon which they shall put the vessels, wherein is immolated the holocaust, and the victim. 43 And the brims of them of one palm, bowed back within round about: and upon the tables, the flesh of the oblation. 44 And without the inner gate the cells of the singing men in the inner court, which was on the side of the gate that looketh to the North: and the faces of them against the way of the South, one at the side of the East gate, which looked to the way of the North. 45 And he said to me: This is the chamber, which looketh to the way of the South, it shall be for the Priests, that watch in the wards of the temple. 46 Moreover the chamber that looketh to the way of the North shall be for the Priests, that watch upon the ministry of the altar. These are the children of Sadoc, which of the children of Levi approach to our Lord to minister unto him. 47 And he measured the court in length of an hundred cubits, and in breadth of an hundred cubits square: and the altar before the face of the temple. 48 And he brought me into the entry of the temple: and he measured five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and the breadth of the gate of three cubits on this side, and of three cubits on that side. 49 And the length of the entry of twenty cubits: and the breadth of eleven cubits, and by eight steps was the ascent to it. And there were (g) pillars in the fronts: one on this side, and another on that side.

(g) For that the pillars are not measured, it seemeth they were of the same height and bigness, as the former were built by Salomon. 3. Reg. 7. v. 15.

CHAPTER XLI.

A description of the temple to be re-edified, and all the parts thereof.

And he brought me into (a) the temple, and he measured the fronts six cubits of breadth on this side, and six cubits of breadth on that side, the breadth of the tabernacle.

(a) This description of the temple & order of priesthood, with the partition and fertility of the land is much more excellent, than was in Salomon's time: & the new temple re-edified by Zorobabel, was much meaner than Salomon's, and therefore this prophecy (as likewise the prophecies of Aggeus & Zacharias) cannot be understood of the temple in Jerusalem but of the Church of Christ. S. Ierom. in ch. 40. Ezec. S. Aug. l. 18. c. 45. civit.

2 And the breadth of the gate was ten cubits: and the sides of the gate of five cubits on this side, and of five cubits on that side: and he measured the length thereof of forty cubits, and the breadth of twenty cubits.
3 And being entered within he measured in the front of the gate, two cubits: and the gate of six cubits: and the breadth of the gate of seven cubits. 4 And he measured the length thereof of twenty cubits, and the breadth of twenty cubits, before the face of the temple: and he said to me: This is Sanctum Sanctorum. 5 And he measured the wall of the house of six cubits: and the breadth of a side, of four cubits on every side round about the house. 6 And the sides, side to side, were twice thirty three: and they were eminent, which might enter in through the wall of the house, in the sides round about, to hold in, and not to touch the wall of the temple. 7 And there was a broad alley made round, ascending up by winding stairs, and it led into the upper chamber of the temple round about: therefore was the temple broader in the higher parts: and so from the lower parts they mounted to the higher unto the midst. 8 And I saw in the house the height round about, the sides founded by the measure of a reed the space of six cubits: 9 and the breadth through the wall of the side without of five cubits: and there was an inner house in the sides of the house.
10 And between the cells the breadth of twenty cubits round about the house on every side, 11 and the door of the side for prayer: one door to the way of the North, and one door to the way of the South: and the breadth of the place for prayer, of five cubits round about. 12 And the building, that was separated, and turned to the way that looketh toward the sea, of the breadth of seventy cubits: and the wall of the building, of five cubits in breadth round about: and the length thereof of ninety cubits. 13 And he measured the length of the house, of an hundred cubits: and the building that was separated, and the walls thereof, of the length of an hundred cubits. 14 And the breadth before the face of the house, and of that which was separated against the East, of an hundred cubits.
15 And he measured the length of the building against the face of that, which was separated at the back: the ethecks on both sides of an hundred cubits: and the inner temple, and the entries of the court.
16 The thresholds, and oblique windows, & the ethecks round about by three parts, against the threshold of every one, and paved with wood round about the circuit: and earth even to the windows, and the windows shut over the doors. 17 And even to the inner house, and without by every wall round about within and without, by measure. 18 And (b) Cherubs and palmtrees wrought, & a palmtree between Cherub & Cherub, & a Cherub had (c) two faces.

(b) In the wall of the temple were interchangeably painted a Cherub signifying knowledge, & a palm tree signifying victory, representing to men that they must be instructed in divine knowledge, & so fight for victory. (c) Signifying our Saviour, who in his humanity suffered miseries, but as a lion overcame all enemies.

19 The face of a man by the palmtree on this side, and the face of a lion by the palmtree on the other side: expressed through all the house round about. 20 From the ground even to the upper parts of the gate, were Cherubs, and palmtrees graven in the wall of the temple. 21 The threshold four square, and the face of the sanctuary, sight to sight. 22 The height of the wooden altar, of three cubits: and the length thereof, of two cubits: and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, & the walls thereof of wood. And he spake to me: This is the table before our Lord. 23 And there were two doors in the temple, and in the sanctuary.
24 And in the two doors on both sides were two little doors, which were folded within each other: for there were two wickets on both sides of the doors. 25 And there were Cherubs also graven in the same doors of the temple, and the graving of palmtrees, as they were expressed in the walls: for which cause also there was thicker timber in the front of the entry without.
26 Upon which were the oblique windows, and the similitude of palmtrees on this side and on that side in braces of the entry: according to the sides of the house, and the breadth of the walls.

CHAPTER XLII.

Description of the courts, chambers, & other places pertaining to the temple.

And he brought me out into the utter court by the way that leadeth to the North, and he brought me into the cell, that was against the separated building, & against the house bending to the North. (a)

(a) S. Jerome finding the Hebrew text & the 70. interpreters, and others to differ not only in words but also in the sense, explicating as seemed to him most probable avoucheth withal that saying of Socrates: Scio quod nescio. I know, that I do not know any thing perfectly. For it is a part of knowledge (saith he) to know that thou art ignorant.

2 In the face of the length, an hundred cubits of the North door: and the breadth fifty cubits, 3 against the twenty cubits of the inner court, & against the pavement paved with stone of the utter court, where was a porch joined to a triple porch. 4 And before the cells a walk of ten cubits in breadth, looking to the inner parts of the way of one cubit. And their doors toward the North: 5 Where were chambers in the upper parts more low: because they bare up the porches, which appeared above out of them from the nether parts, and from the midst of the building. 6 For they were triple lofts, & had not pillars, as the pillars of the courts: therefore did they appear above out of the nether places, and out of the middle places, from the ground fifty cubits. 7 And an utter closure according to the cells, which were in the way of the utter court before the cells: the length thereof of fifty cubits. 8 Because the length of the cells of the utter court was of fifty cubits: and the length before the face of the temple, of an hundred cubits. 9 And there was under these cells an entrance from the East, going into them out of the utter court. 10 In the breadth of the closure of the court, that was against the way of the East, toward the face of the separated building, and there were cells before the building. 11 And the way before the face of them according to the similitude of the cells, which were in the way of the North: according to the length of them, so also was their breadth: and all the entrance of them, and similitudes, and their doors. 12 According to the doors of the cells that were in the way looking to the South: a door in the head of the way, which way was before the entry separated by the way of the East going in. 13 And he said to me: The cells of the North, and the cells of the South, which are before the separated building: these are the holy cells, wherein the Priests do eat, which approach to our Lord into Sancta Sanctorum, there shall they lay the holies of holies, and the oblation for sin, and for offence: for it is a holy place. 14 And when the Priests shall be entered, they shall not go forth out of the holy places into the utter court: and there they shall lay their vestments, wherein they minister, because they are holy: and they shall be clothed with other vestments, & so they shall go forth to the people. 15 And when he had accomplished the measures of the inner house, he brought me out by the way of the gate, that looked to the way of the East: and he measured it on every side round about. 16 And he measured against the East wind with the reed of measure, five hundred reeds in reed of measure round about. 17 And he measured against the North wind five hundred reeds in reed of measure round about. 18 And to the South wind he measured five hundred reeds, in reed of measure round about. 19 And to the West wind he measured five hundred reeds, in reed of measure. 20 By the four winds he measured the wall thereof on every side round about the length and breadth of five hundred reeds, dividing between the sanctuary and the place of the common people.

CHAPTER XLIII.

The glory of God returneth to the new temple. 7. The prophet heareth, that the Israelites will no more pollute God's name with idolatry: 10. is commanded to shew them the measure, and form of the temple, 13. and of the altar: 18. with sacrifices to be offered seven days.

And he brought me to the gate that looked to the way of the East. 2 And behold the glory of the God of Israel went by the East gate: and he had a voice as the voice of many waters, and (a) the earth shined at his majesty.

(a) All the world is lightened by the preaching of Christ's Apostles, and their successors: and the triumphant Church shall perfectly shine when that which is sown in corruption shall rise in incorruption &c. 1. Cor. 15. S. Ierom. S. Thomas also expoundeth this place of the B. virgin conceiving the Son of God p. 3. q. 27. a. 3.

3 [1] And I saw a vision according to the form which I had seen, when he came to destroy the city: and the shape according to the sight, which I had seen by the river Chobar: and I fell upon my face.

[1] ch. 9.

4 And the majesty of our Lord went into the temple by the way of the gate that looked to the East. [1]

[1] ch. 1.

5 And the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the inner court: and behold the house was filled with the glory of our Lord. 6 And I heard one speaking to me out of the house, and a man stood by me, 7 said to me: Son of man, the place of my throne, and the place of the steps of my feet, where I dwell in the midst of the children of Israel (b) for ever: and the house of Israel shall no more pollute my holy name, they, and their kings in their fornications, and in the ruins of their kings, and in the excelses.

(b) God hath left the house of the Jews desolate. Mat. 23. v. 38. but remaineth with the Church of Christ all days to the end of the world. Mat. 28. v. 20.

8 Who have built their threshold by my threshold, and their posts by my posts: and there was a wall between me and them: and they polluted my holy name in the abominations which they did: for the which thing I consumed them in my wrath. 9 Now therefore let them repel their fornication, & ruins of their kings far from me: & I will dwell in the midst of them always. 10 But thou son of man, shew to the house of Israel the temple, and let them be confounded at their iniquities, and let them measure the frame: 11 and be ashamed of all things that they have done. The figure of the house, & of the frame thereof, the goings out, and the comings in, and all the description thereof, and all the precepts thereof, and all the order thereof, and all the laws thereof shew to them, and thou shalt write in their eyes: that they may keep all the descriptions thereof, and the precepts thereof, and let them do them. (c)

(c) And the perfect impolluted Church, without spot or wrinkle (Eph. 5. v. 27.) is only the triumphant Church.

12 This is the law of the house in the top of the mount: All the border thereof round about is holy of holies: this then is the law of the house. 13 And these are the measures of the altar by the most true cubit, (d) which had a cubit and a palm: in the bosom thereof was a cubit, & a cubit in breadth: and the limit thereof even to the brim thereof, and round about, one palm: this also was the trench of the altar.

(d) The sacred cubit or cubit used in sacred things was longer than the common cubit by one palm.

14 And from the bosom of the ground to the lowest brim two cubits, and the breadth of one cubit: and from the lesser brim unto the greater brim four cubits, and the breadth of one cubit. 15 And (e) Ariel it-self of four cubits: & from Ariel upward four horns.

(e) The altar is called Ariel, the lion of God, because fire sometimes descending from God upon the altar consumed the sacrifice, as a lion consumeth his prey. S. Ierom.

16 And Ariel of twelve cubits in length by twelve cubits of breadth, four square with equal sides. 17 And the brim of fourteen cubits of length by fourteen cubits of breadth in the four corners thereof: & the crown round about it of half a cubit, & the bosom thereof of one cubit round about: and the steps thereof turned to the East. 18 And he said to me: Son of man, thus saith our Lord God: These are the rites of the altar, in what day soever it shall be made: that holocaust may be offered upon it, and blood poured out. 19 And thou shalt give to the Priests, and Levites, that are of the seed of Sadoc, that approach to me, saith our Lord God, that they offer to me a calf of the herd for sin. 20 And taking of his blood, thou shalt put it upon the four horns thereof, and upon the four corners of the brim, and upon the crown round about: and thou shalt cleanse, and expiate it. 21 And thou shalt take the calf, that is offered for sin: and thou shalt burn him in a separate place of the house without the sanctuary. 22 And in the second day thou shalt offer a buck of goats unspotted for sin: and they shall expiate the altar, as they did expiate in the calf. 23 And when thou shalt have accomplished expiating it, thou shalt offer a calf of the herd unspotted, and a ram of the flock unspotted. 24 And thou shalt offer them in the sight of our Lord: and the Priests shall cast salt upon them, & shall offer them an holocaust to our Lord. 25 Seven days shalt thou make a buck goat for sin daily: and a calf of the herd, & a ram of the cattle unspotted shall they offer. 26 Seven days shall they expiate the altar, and shall cleanse it: and they shall fill his hand. 27 And the days being expired, in the eighth day and so forth, the priests shall make your holocausts upon the altar, and those which they offer for peace: and I will be pacified toward you, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XLIV.

The East gate of the Sanctuary shall be always shut. 5. The incircumcised shall not enter into the sanctuary: 10. nor the Levites, that have served idols: but shall do other service belonging to sacrifices: 15. and the children of Sadoc shall do the priestly functions: 17. observing the prescribed rites thereof.

And he turned me to the way of the utter sanctuary, which looked toward the East: and it was shut. 2 And our Lord said to me: This gate shall be shut: it (a) shall not be opened, and man shall not pass through it: Because our Lord the God of Israel is entered in through it, and it shall be shut

(a) S. Ierom expoundeth this of the hardness of scripture, which no man understandeth fully but the son of God. Mat. 11. v. 27. Likewise of our B. Lady a perpetual virgin, also after the birth of Christ. The same doth S. Augustin, ser. 6. & 18. de temp. S. Amb. ep. 81. S. Chrys. ho. de Io. Bapt.

3 for the Prince. The Prince himself shall sit in it, to eat bread before our Lord: by the way of the gate of the entry shall he enter in, and by the way thereof he shall go out. 4 And he brought me by the way of the North gate in the sight of the house: and I saw, & behold the glory of our Lord filled the house of our Lord: and I (b) fell on my face.

(b) This astonishment, and reverence of the Prophet,

5 And our Lord said to me: Son of man (c) set thy heart, and see with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all things, that I speak to thee concerning all the ceremonies of the house of our Lord, and concerning all the laws thereof: & thou shalt set thy heart in the ways of the temple, by all the goings out of the sanctuary.

(c) and the great attention which he is admonished to have, import the great mysteries of Christ & his Church, & not only the temple & rites of the old law, which were but figures of the new.

6 And thou shalt say to the house of Israel that exasperateth me: Thus saith our Lord God: Let all your wicked deeds suffice you o house of Israel: 7 because you bring in strange children uncircumcised in heart, & uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary, & to pollute my house, & you offer my breads, the fat, and the blood: & you dissolve my covenant in all your wicked abominations. 8 And you have not kept the precepts of my sanctuary: & you have set keepers of my observances in my sanctuary to your own selves. 9 Thus saith our Lord God: Every stranger uncircumcised in heart, & uncircumcised in flesh, shall not enter into my sanctuary, every strange child that is in the midst of the children of Israel. 10 Yea and the Levites that have revolted far from me in the error of the children of Israel, & have erred from me after their idols, and have borne their iniquity: 11 they shall be officers in my sanctuary, and porters of the gates of the house, and ministers of the house: they shall kill the holocausts, and the victims of the people: & they shall stand in their sight, to serve them. 12 For that they have served them in the sight of their idols, and were made to the house of Israel a scandal of iniquity: therefore have I lifted up mine hand upon them, saith our Lord God, & they shall bear their iniquity: 13 and they shall not approach to me, to do the function of priesthood unto me, neither shall they approach to all my sanctuary by Sancta Sanctorum: but they shall bear their confusion, and their wicked abominations which they have done. 14 And I will make them porters of the house, in all the ministry thereof, and in all things that shall be done therein. 15 But the Priests, and Levites, the sons of Sadoc, which kept the ceremonies of my sanctuary, when the children of Israel erred from me, they shall approach to me, to minister unto me: & they shall stand in my sight, to offer me the fat, and the blood, saith our Lord God. 16 They shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall approach to my table, to minister unto me, and to keep my ceremonies. 17 And when they shall enter into the gates of the inner court, they shall be clothed with linen garments: neither shall any woollen thing come upon them, when they minister in the gates of the inner court & within. 18 There shall be linen mitres on their heads, & there shall be linen breeches on their loins, & they shall not be girded in sweat. 19 And when they shall go out to the utter court unto the people, they shall put off from them their vestments, wherein they had ministered, and shall lay them up in the vestry of the sanctuary, & they shall clothe themselves with other garments: and they (a) shall not sanctify the people in their vestures.

(a) Holy things are ordinarily to be done in holy places; and therefore sacred vestures (by touching whereof men were sanctified. Exod. 29. v. 37.) must not be used out of the temple.

20 And they shall not shave their head, nor nourish their hair: but polling they shall poll their heads. 21 [1] And no Priest shall drink wine when he is to enter into the inner court.

[1] Levit. 10. v. 9.

22 And widow, and her that is divorced they shall not take for wives, but virgins of the seed of the house of Israel: but a widow also which hath been the widow of a Priest, they shall take. 23 And they shall teach my people what is between a holy thing and polluted, & between clean and unclean they shall shew to them. 24 And when there shall be a controversy, they shall stand in my judgements, & shall judge: my laws, and my precepts in all my solemnities shall they keep, and my sabbaths they shall sanctify. 25 And to a dead man they shall not enter in, lest they be polluted, but to father and mother, and son and daughter, & brother & sister, which hath not had another husband: in which they shall be contaminated. 26 And after that he is cleansed, seven days shall be numbered to him. 27 And in the day of his entering into the sanctuary to the inner court to minister unto me in the sanctuary, he shall offer for his sin, saith our Lord God. 28 And there shall not be inheritance to them, I am their inheritance: and possession you shall not give them in Israel, for I am their possession. [1]

[1] Deu. 18.

29 The victim both for sin and for offence they shall eat: and every vowed thing in Israel shall be theirs. 30 And the first fruits of all the first born, and all the libaments of all things that are offered, shall be the priests': and the first fruits of your meats you shall give to the priest, that he may lay up a blessing for thy house. 31 All carrion, and thing taken by a beast of birds, and of cattle the Priests shall not eat.

CHAPTER XLV.

In distribution of the land (after the captivity) several portions are assigned for the Priests, the Levites, the City, and the Prince: the rest was for the people. 9. Rulers are admonished to observe just measures: 15. and to offer due sacrifices.

And when you shall begin to divide the land by lot, separate ye first fruits to our Lord, (a) a piece [1] sanctified of the land, in length twenty five thousand, and in breadth ten thousand: it shall be sanctified in all the border thereof round about.

(a) The land that was assigned to holy uses, was called sanctified, and could not be alienated to private men nor other purposes. [1] * sanctificatum.

2 And it shall be sanctified on every side by five hundred and five hundred, four square round about: and of fifty cubits for the suburbs thereof round about. 3 And from this measure thou shalt measure the length, of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand, and in it shall be the temple, and Sanctum Sanctorum. 4 The sanctified piece of the land shall be for the Priests the ministers of the sanctuary, which approach to the ministry of our Lord: and it shall be a place to them for houses, and for the sanctuary of holiness. 5 And five and twenty thousand of length, and ten thousand of breadth shall be for the Levites, which minister in the house: they shall possess twenty cells. 6 And the possession of the city you shall give five thousand of breadth, & of length five and twenty thousand, according to the separation of the sanctuary, to all the house of Israel. 7 To (b) the Prince also on this side & on that side, according to the separation of the sanctuary, and according to the possession of the city, against the face of the separation of the sanctuary, and against the face of the possession of the city: from the side of the Sea even to the Sea, and from the side of the East even to the East. And the length according to every part from the West border to the East border.

(b) The princes' portion of land was round about the clergies' portion, that he might defend them, and the people's part round about the Princes, that they might defend him.

8 Of the land shall he have possession in Israel: & the Princes shall no more spoil my people: but the land they shall give to the house of Israel according to their tribes. 9 Thus saith our Lord God: Let it suffice you o Princes of Israel: intermit ye iniquity and robberies, and do judgement & justice, separate your confines from my people, saith our Lord God. 10 Just balance, & a just ephi, & a just bate shall be to you. 11 The (c) ephi, & the bate shall be equal, and of one measure: that the bate may take the tenth part of a core, & the ephi the tenth part of a core: according to the measure of a core shall be the equal balancing of them.

(c) These measures were of equal capacity, but the ephi served for dry things; & the bate for liquid, as appeareth v. 13. & 14.

12 And a sicle hath twenty oboles. Moreover twenty sicles, and five and twenty sicles, & fifteen sicles make Mnam. 13 And these are the first fruits, which you shall take: the sixth part of an ephi of a core of wheat, and the sixth part of an ephi of a core of barley. 14 The measure of oil also, a bate of oil is the tenth part of a core: and ten bates make a core: because ten bates fill a core. 15 And one ram of a flock of two hundred, of those things that Israel nourisheth for sacrifice, & for holocaust, and for pacifics, to expiate for them, saith our Lord God. 16 All (d) the people of the land shall be bound to these first fruits for the Prince in Israel.

(d) All the people were bound to pay certain first fruits to their temporal prince:

17 And (e) upon the Prince shall the holocaust be, and the sacrifice, and the libaments in the solemnities, and in the Calends, & in the Sabbaths, & in all the solemnities of the house of Israel: he shall make the sacrifice for sin, & the holocaust, & the pacifics to expiate for the house of Israel.

(e) so he was mutually bound to pay the charges of public sacrifices for all the people. S. Ierom also expoundeth this mutual obligation to consist between the people and high priest.

18 Thus saith our Lord God: In the first month, the first of the month, thou shalt take a calf of the herd unspotted, and thou shalt expiate the sanctuary. 19 And the Priest shall take of the blood that shall be for sin: and he shall put it on the posts of the house, and on the four corners of the brim of the altar, & on the posts of the gate of the inner court. 20 And so shalt thou do in the seventh of the month for every one, that hath been ignorant, and was deceived by error, and you shall expiate for the house. 21 In the first month, the fourteenth day of the month shall be with you the solemnity of Pasch: seven days shall Azymes be eaten. 22 And the Prince in that day shall make for himself, and for all the people of the land, a calf for sin. 23 And in the solemnity of the seven days he shall make holocaust to our Lord seven calves, and seven rams unspotted daily seven days: and for sin a buck of goats daily. 24 And he shall make the sacrifice an ephi to a calf, and an ephi to a ram: and of oil an hin to every ephi. 25 In the seventh month the fifteenth day of the month, in the solemnity he shall make as are before said^ for seven days: as well for sin, as for holocaust, and in sacrifice, and in oil.

CHAPTER XLVI.

A prescription at which gate, and what sacrifices shall be offered for the Prince, every sabbath, and first day of the month. 16. The Prince may give perpetual inheritance to his sons, but to his servants only till the year of Jubilee. 19. with description of the places, where sacrifices shall be prepared.

Thus saith our Lord God: The gate of the inner court, which looketh to the East, shall be shut the six days, in which work is done: but in the Sabbath day it shall be opened, yea & in the day of the Calends it shall be opened. 2 And (a) the Prince shall enter in by the way of the entry of the gate from without, and he shall stand in the threshold of the gate: & the Priests shall make his holocaust, and his pacifics: and he shall adore upon the threshold of the gate, and shall go out: but the gate shall not be shut till evening.

(a) After the captivity, albeit King David's progeny continued in Salathiel, Zorobabel, and others, yet they had not the state of Kings or temporal Princes; and therefore not only Christian Doctors, but also Rabbi David & other Hebrews understand this prophecy of Christ the true Messias, and of the sacrifices & rites of his Church: the letter nevertheless alluding to the form of the old law.

3 And the people of the land shall adore at the door of the gate in the Sabbaths, & in the Calends before our Lord. 4 And this holocaust shall the Prince offer to our Lord: in the Sabbath day six lambs unspotted, & a ram unspotted. 5 And sacrifice an ephi for a ram: but in the lambs the sacrifice that his hand shall give: and of oil an hin for every ephi. 6 And in the day of the Calends a calf of the herd unspotted: and the six lambs, and the rams shall be unspotted. 7 And an ephi for a calf, an ephi also for a ram shall he make sacrifice: but the lambs, as his hand shall find: & of oil an hin, for every ephi. 8 And when the Prince is to go in, let him go in by the way of the entry of the gate, and by the same way let him go out. 9 And when the people of the land shall enter in the sight of our Lord in the solemnities: he that goeth in by the North gate to adore, let him go out by the way of the South gate: moreover he that goeth in by the way of the South gate, let him go out by the way of the North gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate, whereby he entered, but at that over against it he shall go out.
10 And the Prince in the midst of them with the goers in shall go in, & with the goers out shall go out.
11 And in the fairs, and in the solemnities there shall be sacrifice an ephi for a calf, & an ephi for a ram: but of the lambs, there shall be sacrifice as his hand shall find: and of oil an hin for every ephi. 12 But when the Prince shall make a voluntary holocaust, or voluntary pacifics to our Lord: to him the gate shall be opened, that looketh to the East, & he shall make his holocaust, & his pacifics, as it is wont to be done in the Sabbath day: and he shall go out, and the gate shall be shut after that he is gone forth. 13 And a lamb of the same year unspotted, shall he make for holocaust daily to our Lord: always in the morning shall he make it.
14 And he shall make sacrifice upon it morning by morning the sixth part of an ephi: & of oil the third part of an hin, that it may be mingled with the flour: a sacrifice to our Lord by ordinance, continual & everlasting. 15 He shall make the lamb, & the sacrifice, & the oil morning by morning, an everlasting holocaust. 16 Thus saith our Lord God: If the Prince shall give a gift to any (b) of his sons: his inheritance shall be to his sons, they shall possess it by inheritance.

(b) All works done by the true children of God, that is to say done in the state of grace, do merit eternal reward.

17 But if he give a legacy of his inheritance to one (c) of his servants, it shall be his until the year of remission, & it shall return to the Prince: and his inheritance shall be to his sons.

(c) But other moral good works done in state of mortal sin are only rewarded temporally in this world, and not in life everlasting.

18 And the Prince shall not take of the people's inheritance by violence, & of their possession: & of his own possession he shall give the inheritance to his sons: that my people be not dispersed every one from his possession. 19 And he brought me in by the entry, that was on the side of the gate, into the cells of the sanctuary to the Priests, which looked to the North. And there was a place bending to the West. 20 And he said to me: This is the place where the Priests shall seethe that for sin, and that for offence: where they shall dress the sacrifice, that they bring it not out into the utter court, & the people be sanctified. 21 And he brought me into the utter court, and he led me about by the four corners of the court: and behold there was a little court in the corner of the court, to every corner of the court a little court. 22 In the four corners of the court were little courts disposed, of forty cubits in length, and thirty in breadth: the four were of one measure. 23 And a wall round about compassing the four little courts: and there were kitchens builded under the porches round about. 24 And he said to me: This is the house of kitchens wherein the ministers of the house of our Lord shall seethe the victims of the people.

CHAPTER XLVII.

The Prophet seeth waters issuing from under the Temple: 4. increasing to an unpassible torrent: 9. whereto come all sorts of fishes: 12. with trees on the banks bringing forth fruit every month. 13. And the land is given in portions to the twelve tribes.

And he turned me to the gate of the house, [1] and behold (a) waters issued forth under the threshold of the house toward the East: for the face of the house looked to the East: but the waters descended into the right side of the temple to the South part of the altar.

[1] See ch. 36. v. 25. (a) There is no history nor probability that waters issued out of the temple, which was re-edified by Zorobabel. Neither did all sorts of fishes live in any such water near the temple as are mentioned. v. 9. And therefore this prophecy hath an higher & truer sense, of the Church of Christ, and the water of Baptism.

2 And he led me out by the way of the North gate, and he turned me to the way without the utter gate, the way that looked to the East: and behold waters flowing on the right side. 3 When the man went out toward the East, that had the cord in his hand, he measured a thousand cubits: and he brought me through the water even to the ankles. 4 And again he measured a thousand, & he brought me through the water even to the knees: 5 and he measured a thousand, and he brought me through the water even to the reins. And he measured a thousand, a torrent which I could not pass over, because the waters were risen of the deep torrent which cannot be passed over. 6 And he said to me: Certes thou hast seen o son of man. And he brought me out, and he turned me to the bank of the torrent. 7 And when I had turned myself, behold in the bank of the torrent exceeding many trees on both sides. 8 And he said to me: These waters, that issue forth toward the heaps of the sand in the East, and descend to the plains of the desert, shall go into the sea, & shall go out, & the waters shall be healed. 9 And every living soul, that creepeth, whither soever the torrent cometh shall live: and there shall be fishes very many after these waters are come thither, and they shall be healed, and all things shall live, to which the torrent shall come. 10 And fishers shall stand over them, from Engaddi even to Engallim shall be drying of nets: there shall be very many sorts of fishes thereof, as the fishes of the great sea, of a passing great multitude: 11 but in the shore thereof, & in the fenny places they shall not be healed, because they shall be turned into salt pits. 12 And (b) over the torrent shall rise in the banks thereof on both sides every tree bearing fruit: the leaf shall not fall from it, & the fruit thereof shall not fail: every month shall it bring forth first fruits, because the waters thereof shall issue out of the sanctuary: & the fruits thereof shall be for meat, & the leaves thereof for medicine.

(b) S. John saw this river of living water as clear as crystal, proceeding from the seat of God, & of the Lamb. And the tree of life yielding twelve fruits, rendering his fruit every month. &c. Apoc. 22.

13 Thus saith our Lord God: This is the border, in which you shall possess the land in the twelve tribes of Israel: (c) because Joseph hath a double cord.

(c) Joseph's two sons had each one a whole portion, and so there were twelve tribes besides the Levites, who had other better means than the rest.

14 and you shall possess it every man in like manner as his brother: upon which I lifted up my hand to give it to your fathers: and this land shall fall unto you for a possession. 15 And this is the border of the land: toward the North quarter, from the great sea by the way of Hethalon, as they come to Sedada, 16 Emath, Berotha, Sabarim, which is between the border of Damascus and the confine of Emath, the house of Tichon, which is by the border of Auran. 17 And the border from the Sea even to the court of Enon, shall be the border of Damascus, and from the North to the North, the border of Emath the North quarter.

18 Moreover the East quarter from the midst of Auran, and from the midst of Damascus, and from the midst of Galaad, and from the midst of the land of Israel, Jordan making the bound to the East sea, you shall measure also the East quarter. 19 And the South quarter toward the South from Thamar even to the waters of contradiction of Cades: and the torrent even to the great sea: and this is the South quarter toward the South. 20 And the quarter of the Sea, the great sea from the confine directly, till thou come to Emath: this is the quarter of the Sea. 21 And you shall divide this land unto you by the tribes of Israel: 22 and you shall cast it for an inheritance to you, and to the strangers, that shall come to you, that have begotten children in the midst of you: and they shall be unto you as the same country-men born among the children of Israel: they shall divide the possession with you in the midst of the tribes of Israel. 23 And in what tribe soever the stranger shall be, there shall you give him possession, saith our Lord God.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

Further description of every tribe's part of the land: 8. likewise of the portions of Priests, 13. Levites, 15. City, 21. and Prince: 31. with twelve gates named of the twelve tribes.

And these are (a) the names of the tribes from the borders of the North, by the way of Hethalon, as they go to Emath, the court of Enan the border of Damascus toward the North, by the way of Emath. And the East quarter thereof to the sea shall be for Dan one.

(a) By the twelve tribes of Israel S. Ierom understandeth the universal multitude of all glorified Saints, noting that no mention is here made of the cities of refuge (as in the books of Numeri, & Iosue) because in the glorious habitation of Saints, there can be no need of refuge, where all are perfect, all secure.

2 And to the border of Dan, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Aser one: 3 and upon the border of Aser, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Nephthali one. 4 And upon the border of Nephthali, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Manasses one. 5 And upon the border of Manasses, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Ephraim one. 6 And upon the border of Ephraim, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Ruben one. 7 And upon the border of Ruben, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, for Juda one. 8 And upon the border of Juda, from the East quarter even to the quarter of the Sea, shall be the (b) first fruits, which you shall separate, five and twenty thousand of breadth & of length, as every portion from the East quarter to the quarter of the Sea: and the sanctuary shall be in the midst thereof.

(b) As the first born of living things, & first fruits of all things springing, so the first portion of land allotted to God's service is called the first fruits.

9 The first fruits, which you shall separate to our Lord: the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand. 10 And these shall be the first fruits of the sanctuary of the Priests: toward the North of length five and twenty thousand, and toward the Sea of breadth ten thousand. Yea and toward the East of breadth ten thousand, and toward the South of length five and twenty thousand: and the sanctuary of our Lord shall be in the midst thereof. 11 The sanctuary shall be for the Priests of the sons of Sadoc, which kept my ceremonies, & erred not when the children of Israel erred, as the Levites also erred. 12 And for them shall be the first fruits of the first fruits of the land holy of holies, by the border of the Levites. 13 Yea & to the Levites in like manner by the borders of the Priests five & twenty thousand of length, & of breadth ten thousand. All the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand. 14 And they shall not sell thereof, nor change, neither shall the first fruits of the land be transported, because they are sanctified to our Lord. 15 But the five thousand, that remain in the breadth against the five & twenty thousand, shall be the profane parts of the city for habitation, and for the suburbs: and the city shall be in the midst thereof. 16 And these are the measures thereof: to (c) the North quarter five hundred and four thousand: and to the South quarter five hundred and four thousand: and to the East quarter five hundred & four thousand: & to the West quarter five hundred & four thousand:

(c) The North side of the city being in length 4500 reeds, of six sacred cubits, every reed, the west side also, and consequently the other two sides east and south, in all 18000. reeds which make 36. miles, of 1000. paces every mile, it is certain that this description agreeth not to the terrestrial city of Jerusalem, which was nothing near so large. And therefore the later Jewish Rabbins hold opinion, that when their Messias cometh the city of Jerusalem shall be built so great. But all Catholic Doctors understand it mystically of the Church of Christ.

17 And the suburbs of the city shall be, to the North two hundred fifty, & to the South two hundred fifty, and to the East two hundred fifty, and to the Sea two hundred fifty. 18 And that which shall be residue in length according to the first fruits of the sanctuary, ten thousand toward the East, and ten thousand toward the west, shall be as the first fruits of the sanctuary: and the fruits thereof shall be for bread to them, that serve the city. 19 And they that serve the city, shall work of all the tribes of Israel. 20 All the first fruits, of five and twenty thousand, answering to five and twenty thousand four square, shall be separated according to the first fruits of the sanctuary, and to the possession of the city. 21 And that which shall be left, shall be the prince's of every part of the first fruits of the sanctuary, and of the possession of the city over against the five and twenty thousand of the first fruits unto the east border: Yea & to the sea over against the five & twenty thousand, unto the border of the Sea, likewise it shall be in the portions of the Prince: and the first fruits of the sanctuary, and the sanctuary of the temple shall be in the midst thereof. 22 And of the possession of the Levites, & of the possession of the city in the midst of the prince's portions: shall be to the border of Juda, and to the border of Benjamin, shall also pertain to the prince. 23 And to the rest of the tribes: from the East quarter to the West quarter, for Benjamin one. 24 And against the border of Benjamin, from the East quarter to the West quarter, for Simeon one. 25 And upon the border of Simeon from the East quarter to the West quarter, for Issachar one. 26 And upon the border of Issachar, from the East quarter to the West quarter, for Zabulon one. 27 And upon the border of Zabulon, from the East quarter to the quarter of the Sea, for Gad one. 28 And upon the border of Gad, to the south quarter toward the South: and the border shall be from Thamar, even to the waters of contradiction of Cades, the inheritance against the great sea. 29 (d) This is the land, which you shall divide by lot to the tribes of Israel: and these are the portions of them, saith our Lord God.

(d) S. John the Apostle had the same vision of this new Jerusalem Christ's triumphant Church. Apoc. 21. & 22.

30 And these are the goings out of the city: from the North quarter thou shalt measure five hundred and four thousand. 31 And the gates of the city according to the names of the tribes of Israel, three gates on the North side, the gate of Ruben one, the gate of Juda one, the gate of Levi one. 32 And to the East quarter, five hundred and four thousand: and three gates, the gate of Joseph one, the gate of Benjamin one, the gate of Dan one. 33 And to the South quarter, thou shalt measure five hundred and four thousand: and three gates, the gate of Simeon one, the gate of Issachar one, the gate of Zabulon one. 34 And to the West quarter, five hundred and four thousand, and their gates three, the gate of Gad one, the gate of Aser one, the gate of Nephthali one. 35 Round about eighteen thousand: and the name of the city from that day, (e) Our Lord there.

THE ARGUMENT OF DANIEL'S PROPHECY.

[1] DANIEL of the tribe [2] of Juda, and [3] royal blood, about the age of ten years, was carried into Babylon with other children for hostage, when Nabuchodonosor invaded the kingdom of Juda, in [4] the third year of king Joakim. [5] His whole life (in all about an hundred and ten years) was most pious, with such zeal of God's honour, and common good of his country, that he was called by an Angel, [6] vir desideriorum, the man of (goodly) desires: [7] whom also Ezechiel, elder in years, prophesying part of the same time, joined with Noe and Job for example of holy men; recounting him also the most renowned of his time for wisdom. [8] Whose loyal fidelity towards the king of Babylon, was so clear, that his malignant enemies said expressly of him: [9] we shall not find against this Daniel, any occasion, unless perhaps in the law of his God. His book as well in respect of various important narrations of things done: as of most high divine Mysteries is very excellent: [10] but withal very obscure, for that many things here inserted, seem hardly to agree with other authentical histories; some things also are intricate in themselves; nor placed in order of time as they happened; and many things so briefly related, that they cannot be understood, without the knowledge of profane histories. As S. Jerom affirmeth Epist. 103. But as for another difficulty which some make, [11] denying the [12] Prayer of Azarias, with the Hymn following, & [13] the histories of Susanna, [14] Bel, and the Dragon, to be Canonical Scripture, it is partly solved already, in the Annotations before the Book of Tobie: where is shewed, that it is no just exception against these, and other parts of holy Scripture of the old Testament, because they are not in the Hebrew Edition, being otherwise accepted for Canonical by the Catholic Church. And further it is very probable that these parcels were sometimes either in the Hebrew or Chaldee tongue, in which two languages (part in one, part in the other) the rest of this book was written. For from whence else could the Septuagint Interpreters, Theodotion, Symmachus, and Aquila translate them? In whose Editions S. Jerom found the same. [15] But S. Jerom, some will say, calleth these histories fables, and so did not account them Canonical Scripture. [16] First we answer, that he reporting the Jews' opinion useth their terms, not explicating his own judgement, intending only to deliver sincerely that which he found in the Hebrew: Yet would he not omit to insert the rest, advertising withal that he had it in Theodotion's translation. Which answer is clearly justified by his own testimony (li. 2. c. 9. adversus Ruffinum) in these words: whereas I relate (saith he) what the Hebrews say against the history of Susanna, and the Hymn of the three children, he that for this reputeth me a fool, proveth himself a sycophant. For I did not explicate what myself judged, but what they are wont to say against me. [17] Secondly, we answer, that if S. Jerom did not think these parts to be Canonical, yet seeing so many other ancient Fathers, and now the whole Church hold them for Canonical, we so believe them to be. For albeit the ancient Councels, and others that recite catalogues of holy Scriptures, do not expressly say, [18] as the councel of Trent lastly doth (Sess. 4.) that all the parts of books by them recited, are Canonical; yet they do not except any parts of this Book: and therefore speaking indefinitely, do indeed include all, and not exclude any parcels usually read in the Church as these are. Moreover very many ancient Fathers do expressly allege these parts as Divine Canonical Scriptures. Of many we shall cite some.

[4] Divided into three parts.

To conclude therefore with whom we began, [1] S. Jerom speaking of this whole Book, [2] saith: Daniel temporum conscius, & totius mundi philoistor, lapidem praecisum de monte sine manibus, & regna omnia subvertentem, claro sermone pronuntiat. Daniel skillful of times, a studious historiographer, in clear speech sheweth the stone cut out of the mountain without hands, which overthroweth all kingdoms. Signifying the principal contents of this book to be, that all other kingdoms (namely for example sake, the four great Monarchies, the first of the Chaldees, the second of the Medes and Persians, the third of the Grecians, and the fourth of the Romans) should be overthrown, one after another; and only the kingdom of Christ our Saviour, born of a perpetual virgin, shall be permanent for ever. [3] More particularly this Book may be divided into three parts. [4] In the first six chapters especially are declared (for most part in manner of history) certain acts of Daniel, with the other three Hebrew children, and of the kings of Babylon. In other six chapters is more directly prophesied of Christ; and of Antichrist; of the perpetual glory of Christ's kingdom, and utter destruction of the others; with the end of the world, and general judgement. In the two last chapters are contained the histories of holy Susanna; and of the idols Bel, and the Dragon.

THE PROPHECY OF DANIEL.

CHAPTER I.

The King of Babylon by force entering into Jerusalem, spoileth the temple: 6. amongst others carrieth captive Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias: 8 who abstaining from the King's meats, 15. are fairer than other children, 17. and wiser (Daniel also understanding dreams) than all the magicians of Chaldee.

IN [1] the third year of the kingdom of Joakim king of Juda, came Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon into Jerusalem, and besieged it. [2]

[1] The first part.
Acts of Daniel with the other three Hebrew children; & of the Kings of Babylon. [2] 4. Reg. 24. v. 1.

2 And our Lord delivered into his hand Joakim the king of Juda, and part of the vessels of the house of God: and he (a) carried them away into the land of Sennaar, into the house of his god, & the vessels he brought into the house of the treasure of his god.

(a) Part of the holy vessels & some special persons were carried away, but the King was released at this time: for he reigned in Jerusalem eight years more, eleven in all. 2. Par. 36. v. 5.

3 And the king spake to Asphenez the governor of the Eunuchs, that he should bring in of the children of Israel, and of the king's, & the tyrants' seed,
4 children in whom was no spot, beautiful of form, and instructed in all wisdom, cunning in knowledge, and taught in discipline, and that might stand in the king's palace, that he might teach them the learning, and the tongue of the Chaldees. 5 And the king appointed them a certain provision for every day, of his meats, & of the wine whereof he drank himself, that being nourished three years, afterward they might stand in the king's sight. 6 There were therefore among them of the children of Juda, Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias. 7 And the governor of the eunuchs gave them names: to Daniel, Baltassar: to Ananias, Sidrach, to Misael, Misach: & to Azarias, Abdenago. 8 But (b) Daniel purposed in his heart, that he would not be polluted of the king's table, nor of the wine of his drink: & he requested the governor of the eunuchs, that he might not be contaminated.

(b) Daniel as chief was an example to the other three children in their manner of life, whereby is also probable that they being all of the tribe of Juda, v. 6. he was nearer of the royal blood: of which some were taken into the King's court. v. 3.

9 And God gave unto Daniel grace and mercy in the sight of the prince of the eunuchs. 10 And the prince of the eunuchs said to Daniel: I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed for you meat and drink: who if he shall see your faces leaner than the other youths your equals, you shall condemn my head to the king.
11 And Daniel said to Malasar whom the prince of the eunuchs appointed over Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias: 12 (c) Prove I beseech thee, thy servants for ten days, & let [1] pulse be given us to eat, & water to drink:

(c) Three causes moved them to abstain from the King's meats: lest they might eat any thing offered to idols, or forbid by the law of Moyses, and because such delicate diet might provoke to gluttony, or in time when they should be elder, to other sins. Theod. [1] * beans, peas &c.

13 and look upon our faces, and the faces of the children that eat of the king's meat: and as thou shalt see, thou shalt do with thy servants. 14 Who hearing that manner of speech, proved them for ten days.
15 And after ten days their faces appeared better & more corpulent than all the children, that did eat of the king's meat. 16 Moreover Malasar took away the meats, and the wine of their drink: and he gave them pulse. 17 And to these children God gave knowledge, and discipline in every book, and wisdom: but to Daniel the understanding of all visions and dreams.
18 The days therefore being accomplished, after which the king had said, that they should be brought in; the governor of the eunuchs brought them in the sight of Nabuchodonosor. 19 And when the king had spoken to them, there were not found such of them all, as Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Azarias: and they stood in the king's sight. 20 And every word of wisdom and understanding, that the king demanded of them, he found in them more by ten fold above all the soothsayers, & magicians, that were in all his kingdom. 21 And Daniel was even to (d) the first year of Cyrus the king.

(d) By mention of the first year of Cyrus is sufficiently signified that Daniel lived all the time of the captivity. And ch. 10. it is further clear that he lived in the third year: & very like longer.

CHAPTER II.

Nabuchodonosor dreameth, and forgetteth his dream, 4. which the magicians not able to tell, 12. are adjudged to die. 14. But Daniel (praying with his three fellows) by revelation, 24. telleth, 36. and interpreteth the dream: 46. the King adoreth him, confessing his God to be the only true God, and advanceth him & his fellows.

IN (a) the second year of the kingdom of Nabuchodonosor, Nabuchodonosor saw a dream, and his spirit was terrified, and his dream was fled from him.

(a) Nabuchodonosor had this dream the second year after his great conquest of the Moabites, Ammonites, Syrians, & Aegyptians, making his Kingdom a great Monarchy: so it was in the 25. year of his reign: when Daniel was about the age of 35 years.

2 But the king commanded, that the soothsayers should be called together, and the magicians, and the sorcerers, and the [1]Chaldees: to declare unto the king his dreams: who when they were come, stood before the king.

[1] * professors of Astrology.

3 And the king said to them: I saw a dream: & being confounded in mind I know not what I saw. 4 And the Chaldees answered the king in Syriach: King for ever live: tell the dream to thy servants, and we will declare the interpretation thereof. 5 And the king answering said to the Chaldees. The word is departed from me: unless you tell me the dream, and the conjecture thereof, you shall perish, and your houses shall be confiscate. 6 But if you tell the dream, & the conjecture thereof, you shall receive of me rewards, & gifts, and much honour: the dream therefore, and the interpretation thereof tell you me. 7 They answered the second time, & said: Let the king tell his servants the dream, & we will declare the interpretation thereof. 8 The king answered, & said: Surely I know that you redeem time, knowing that the word is departed from me. 9 If therefore you shew me not the dream, there is one sentence of you, that you have also framed a guileful interpretation, and full of deceit, to speak unto me till the time pass away. Tell me therefore the dream, that I may know (b) that you speak a true interpretation also thereof.

(b) It is indeed more easy to tell by the devil's help, what one hath dreamed; because dreams being past, might either proceed from the devil, or by some external signs be known unto him: but to declare the signification which is to come, and uncertain, is above the devil's or man's power: who can only conjecture what is probable, & do often err therein. See the Annot. Gen. 40.

10 The Chaldees therefore answering before the king, said: There is no man upon the earth, that can accomplish thy word, o king, yea neither any king great and mighty, demandeth such a word of any soothsayer, & magician, and Chaldee. 11 For the word that thou askest, o king, is weighty: neither shall there be found any, that can shew it in sight of the king, except the gods, whose conversation is not with men. 12 Which thing being heard, the king in fury, and in great wrath commanded that all the wisemen of Babylon should perish. 13 And the sentence being gone forth, wisemen were slain: & Daniel and his fellows were sought for, to perish. 14 Then Daniel inquired concerning the law, and the sentence, of Arioch the prince of the king's warfare, who was gone forth to kill the wisemen of Babylon. 15 And he asked him, that had received the power of the king, for what cause so cruel a sentence was gone forth from the face of the king. When Arioch therefore had shewed the matter to Daniel, 16 Daniel going in desired the king, that he would give him a time to tell the solution to the king. 17 And he went into his house, and he told the matter unto Ananias, & Misael, & Azarias his fellows: 18 that they should ask mercy at the face of the God of heaven upon this sacrament, & Daniel and his fellows might not perish, with the rest of the wisemen of Babylon. 19 Then was the mystery revealed to Daniel by a vision in the night: and Daniel blessed the God of heaven, 20 and speaking said: The name of our Lord be blessed from everlasting & for ever more: because wisdom and strength are his. 21 And he changeth times, and ages: transporteth kingdoms & establisheth them: giveth wisdom to the wise, and knowledge to them that understand discipline: 22 he revealeth profound & hidden things, and knoweth the things that are done in darkness: and light is with him. 23 To thee o God of our fathers I confess, and I praise thee: Because thou hast given me wisdom, & strength: and now thou hast shewed me the things that we desired of thee, because the king's word thou hast opened to us. 24 After these things Daniel being entered in to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wisemen of Babylon, spake thus unto him: Destroy not the wisemen of Babylon: bring me in before the presence of the king, & I will tell the solution to the king. 25 Then Arioch in haste brought in Daniel to the king, and said to him: I have found a man of the children of the transmigration of Juda, that can tell the solution to the king. 26 The king answered, and said to Daniel, whose name was Baltassar: Thinkest thou in very deed thou canst tell me the dream, that I saw, and the interpretation thereof? 27 (c) And Daniel answering before the king, said: The mystery, that the king demandeth, the wisemen, the Magicians, and the soothsayers, and the enchanters cannot declare unto the king.

(c) By shewing the King's former cogitation before his dream, he gave great assurance of the true spirit of prophecy, that the King might securely believe the interpretation of the dream.

28 But there is a God in heaven that revealeth mysteries, who hath shewed unto thee, king Nabuchodonosor, what things are to come in the later times. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head in thy bed, are these. 29 (d) Thou o king beganst to think in thy bed, what should be hereafter: and he that revealeth mysteries, shewed thee what things are to come.

(d) The four Kingdom of the Chaldees, Persians, Grecians, and Romans, signified by the four parts of this statua,

30 To me also not in the wisdom, that is in me more than in all men alive, is this sacrament revealed: but that the interpretation might be made manifest to the king, and thou mightest know the cogitations of thy mind. 31 Thou o king didst see, and behold (e) as it were one great statua: that statua, great and high of stature stood over against thee, and the sight thereof was terrible.

(e) consisting of diverse metals or matter, did succeed in order of time:

32 (f) The head of this statua was of the best gold, but the breast and the arms of silver, moreover the belly, and the thighs of brass:

(f) not each one meaner, or baser than the former, as gold is best, & iron & earth the worst, for the last rather excelled the former; but when this vision appeared the kingdom of the Chaldees was the greatest, and most excellent & that being destroyed the Medes & Persians became greater than it had been: again the Grecians under Alexander became far greater than any before, and finally the Roman greatest of all, till Christ's kingdom, his Church was spread over the whole world.

33 and the legs of iron, of the feet a certain part was of iron, and a certain of earth. 34 Thou sawest so, till a stone was cut out of a mountain without hands: and it struck the statua on the iron, & earthen feet thereof, & brake them in pieces. 35 Then were the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and gold broken together, and brought as it were into the dust of a summer's floor, that are taken violently with the wind: and there was no place found for them: but the stone that struck the statua, was made a great mountain, and it filled all the earth. 36 This is the dream: the interpretation also thereof we will tell before thee, o king. 37 Thou art the king of kings: and the God of heaven hath given thee kingdom, and strength, and empire, and glory: 38 and all things, wherein the children of men, and the beasts of the field do inhabit, the fowls also of the heaven he hath given in thy hand, and under thy dominion he hath appointed all things: thou therefore art the golden head. 39 And after thee shall rise up another kingdom less than thou of silver: and another third kingdom of brass, which shall rule over all the world. 40 And the fourth kingdom shall be as it were iron. As iron breaketh into pieces, & tameth all things, so shall that break, and destroy all these. 41 Moreover because thou sawest part of the feet, and of the toes of the potter's clay, and part of iron: the kingdom shall be divided, which notwithstanding shall rise of the ground of iron, according as thou sawest the iron mingled with the earth of clay. 42 And the toes in part of iron, and in part of earth: in part the kingdom shall be whole, and in part broken. 43 And that thou sawest the iron mingled with the earth of clay, they shall be mingled indeed together with man's seed, but they shall not stick fast one to another, as iron cannot be mingled with earth. 44 But in the days of those kingdoms the God of Heaven will raise up (g) a kingdom, that shall not be dissipated for ever, and his kingdom shall not be delivered to another people: and it shall break in pieces, and shall consume all these kingdoms: and itself shall stand for ever.

(g) The Church of Christ is the only kingdom that cannot be destroyed.

45 According as thou sawest, that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and brake the earth in pieces, and the iron, and the brass, and the silver, and the gold, the great God hath shewed the king what things are to come hereafter. & the dream is true, & the interpretation thereof faithful. 46 Then king Nabuchodonosor fell on his face, & (h) adored Daniel, & commanded to sacrifice to him hosts & incense.

(h) He thought Daniel to be a little god, subject to the great God. v. 47.

47 The king therefore speaking said to Daniel: In very deed (i) your God is the God of gods, and Lord of kings, and he that revealeth mysteries: because thou couldst open this [1] sacrament.

(i) Notwithstanding this confession, shortly after he erected an idol to represent his own greatness, and to be adored therein. [1] * mystery.

48 Then the king advanced Daniel on high, & he gave him many gifts, and great: and he made him prince over all the provinces of Babylon: and chief of the magistrates, over all the wisemen of Babylon. 49 And Daniel requested of the king, and he appointed over the works of the province of Babylon, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago: but Daniel himself was in the doors of the king.

CHAPTER III.

Nabuchodonosor setteth up a statua, commanding all under pain of death to adore it: 8. which Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago refusing to do, 14. are cast into a burning furnace, 24. wherein they walk, defended by an Angel from burning: praying, and praising God, 51. with an hymn, 57. inviting all creatures to praise him. 91. Which the King admiring confesseth, and proclaimeth, that their God is the only true God.

Nabuchodonosor the king made (a) a statua of gold in height of sixty cubits, in breadth of six cubits, and he set it in the field of Dura of the province of Babylon.

(a) This huge statua of ninety foot in height and nine in breadth contained a great mass of gold.
Which the King made to shew his riches, to terrify his enemies, & to represent himself, that he might be adored therein as a god. S. Ierom.

2 Therefore Nabuchodonosor the king sent to call together the nobles, the magistrates, and judges, dukes, and tyrants, and rulers, and all the princes of the countries, that they should come together to the dedication of the statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king had erected. 3 Then were the nobles gathered together, the magistrates, and judges, the dukes, and tyrants, & the great men that were placed in regiments, and all the princes of the countries, to come together to the dedication of the statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king had erected. And they stood in the sight of the statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king had set up. 4 And the crier cried mightily: To you peoples, and tribes, and tongues it is said: 5 In the hour that you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, & pipe, and harp, of the dulcimer, and psalter, and symphony, & all kind of musical instruments: falling adore ye the golden statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king hath set up. 6 But if any man shall not adore (b) prostrate, he shall the self same hour be cast into a furnace of burning fire.

(b) Practice of this idolatry consisted in falling prostrate on the ground before the statua; sometimes it consisteth in offering incense to idols; and the like; Now in England personal presence at heretical service or sermon is a distinctive sign of conformity to the protestants' pretended religion; because such presence is there exacted for this purpose.

7 After this therefore forthwith as all the peoples heard the sound of the trumpet, the pipe, & harp, of the dulcimer, and psalter, of the symphony, and of all kind of musical instruments: all the peoples, tribes, and tongues falling adored the golden statua, which Nabuchodonosor the king had set up. 8 And forthwith in the very same time men of Chaldee coming accused the Jews, 9 and said to Nabuchodonosor the king: King for ever live: 10 thou, o king hast made a decree, that every man which shall hear the sound of the trumpet, of the pipe, and harp, of the dulcimer, and psalter, of the symphony, and of all kind of musical instruments, prostrate himself, and adore the golden statua: 11 and if any man do not prostrate on the ground adore, that he be cast into a furnace of burning fire. 12 There are therefore men of Jewry, whom thou didst appoint over the works of the country of Babylon, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago: these men, o king, have contemned thy decree: thy gods they worship not, and the golden statua, which thou hast erected, they adore not. 13 Then Nabuchodonosor in fury, and in wrath commanded, that Sidrach, Misach, & Abdenago should be brought: who immediately were brought before the king. 14 And Nabuchodonosor the king pronouncing, said to them: Indeed Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, do not you worship my gods, & the golden statua that I have set up do not you adore? 15 Now therefore if you be ready, in what hour soever you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, the pipe, the harp, of the dulcimer, and psalter, and symphony, and of all kind of musical instruments, prostrate yourselves, & adore the statua which I have made: but if you adore not, the self same hour you shall be cast into the furnace of burning fire: and what God is there that shall deliver you out of my hand? 16 Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago answering said to king Nabuchodonosor: We must not answer thee concerning this thing. 17 For behold our God, whom we worship, (c) can save us from the furnace of burning fire, and out of thy hands, o king, deliver us.

(c) By this most modest & confident answer they professed their assured faith of God's omnipotent power, not knowing whether it was his divine will to deliver them from the fire or no: resolving to suffer with patience whatsoever he would permit to fall unto them.

18 But if he will not, be it known to thee, o king, that we worship not thy gods, & the golden statua, which thou hast erected, we adore not. 19 Then was Nabuchodonosor replenished with fury: and the look of his face was altered upon Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, and he commanded that the furnace should be heated seven times more, than it had been accustomed to be heated. 20 And commanded the strongest men of his host, to bind the feet of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, and to cast them into the furnace of burning fire. 21 And forthwith those men being bound with their breeches, [1] and head attire, and shoes, and garments were cast into the furnace of burning fire.

[1] * or caps.

22 For the commandment of the king did urge, and the furnace was heated exceedingly. Moreover the flame of the fire slew those men, that had cast in Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago. 23 But these three men, that is, Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago fell in the midst of the furnace of burning fire, bound together.

That which followeth I found not in the Hebrew volumes. [1]

[1] Though these parcels were not in the Hebrew in S. Jerome's time, yet either had been in the Hebrew or Chaldee, or at least were Canonical scriptures; as we have proved in the argument of this book.

24 And they walked in the midst of the flame praising God, and blessing our Lord. 25 And Azarias standing prayed thus, and opening his mouth in the midst of the fire, he said: 26 Blessed art thou o Lord the God of our fathers, and laudable, and glorious is thy name for ever: 27 because thou art just in all things, which thou hast done to us, and all thy works are true, and thy ways right, and all thy judgements true. 28 For thou hast done true judgements according to all things, that thou hast brought upon us, and upon the holy city of our fathers Jerusalem: because in truth, & in judgement thou hast brought in all these things for our sins. 29 For we have sinned, and done unjustly revolting from thee: and we have offended in all things; 30 and thy precepts we have not heard, nor observed, nor done as thou hadst commanded us, that it might be well with us. 31 All things therefore that thou hast brought in upon us, and all things that thou hast done to us, thou hast done with true judgement: 32 and thou hast delivered us into the hands of our enemies unjust, & most wicked, & prevaricators, & to an unjust king and most wicked above all the earth. 33 And now we cannot open the mouth: we are become a confusion, and reproach to thy servants, & to them that worship thee. 34 Deliver us not for ever, we beseech thee, for thy name sake, and dissipate not thy testament: 35 neither take thou away thy mercy from us, (d) for Abraham thy beloved, and Isaac thy servant, and Israel thy holy one:

(d) In the very same manner Moyses prayed, & pacified God's wrath. Exo. 32.

36 to whom thou hast spoken, promising that thou wouldest multiply their seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that is in the sea shore. 37 Because o Lord we are diminished more than all nations, and are abased in all the earth this day for our sins. 38 And there is not at this time (e) prince, & duke, and prophet, nor holocaust, nor sacrifice, nor oblation, nor incense, nor place of first fruits before thee,

(e) Sedecias being dead, and Ioachin kept in prison, there was none in state of a King amongst the Jews: neither was there at this time any Prophet in all Jewry: for Daniel himself and Ezechiel were in Babylon: and Jeremy was either dead or in Aegypt.

39 that we may find thy mercy: but in contrite mind, & spirit of humility let us be received. 40 As in holocaust of rams, and bulls, and as in thousands of fat lambs: so let our sacrifice be made in thy sight this day, that it may please thee: because there is no confusion to them that trust in thee. 41 And now we follow thee in all our heart, and fear thee, and seek thy face. 42 Confound us not, but do with us according to thy meekness, and according to the multitude of thy mercy. 43 And deliver us in thy marvels, and give glory to thy name o Lord: 44 and let all be confounded that shew evils to thy servants, let them be confounded in all thy might, and let their strength be broken: 45 and let them know that thou art the Lord, the only God, and glorious over the round world.

46 And the king's servants that had cast them in, ceased not to heat the furnace, with [1] Naphtha, and tow, and pitch, and dry sticks,

[1] chalky, clay, or lime.

47 and the flame mounted out above the furnace nine and forty cubits: 48 and it brake forth, and burnt them whom it found by the furnace, of the Chaldees. 49 But the Angel of our Lord descended with Azarias, and his fellows into the furnace: and he shook the flame of the fire out of the furnace, 50 and made the midst of the furnace as a wind of dew blowing, and the fire touched them not at all, nor pained them, nor did them any grievance. 51 Then these three as out of one mouth praised, and glorified, and blessed God in the furnace, saying: 52 Blessed art thou o Lord the God of our fathers: and laudable, and glorious, and superexalted for ever: and blessed is the holy name of thy glory: and laudable, and superexalted in all ages. 53 Blessed art thou in the holy temple of thy glory: & passing laudable, and passing glorious for ever. 54 Blessed art thou in the throne of thy kingdom, and passing laudable, and superexalted for ever. 55 Blessed art thou, that beholdest the depths, and sittest upon the Cherubs: and laudable, and superexalted for ever. 56 Blessed art thou in the firmament of heaven: and laudable and glorious for ever. 57 All (f) works of our Lord bless ye our Lord, praise and superexalt him for ever.

(f) Holy Angels do incessantly praise God, and therefore need not to be invited thereto; sensible creatures do not properly praise God, because they have not understanding nor will: but the meaning of this invitation is, to congratulate that Angels do always without intermission praise God, & to exhort all men in consideration of all God's works, spiritual and corporal, to praise him as most worthy to be praised by all men.

58 Bless our Lord ye Angels of our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 59 Ye heavens bless our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 60 All waters that are above the heavens, bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 61 Bless our Lord all ye powers of our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 62 Sun and moon bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 63 Stars of heavens bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 64 Every shower, & dew bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 65 All spirits of God bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 66 Fire and heat bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 67 Cold and heat bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 68 Dews and hoar frost bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 69 Frost and cold bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 70 Ice and snows bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 71 Nights and days bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 72 Light and (g) darkness bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever.

(g) Privations of things have also their decent course in the universal state of creatures: Darkness praiseth God, that is, bringeth forth praise in the hearts of considerative men. S. Aug. li. de natura boni c. 16.

73 Lightnings and clouds bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 74 Let the earth bless our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 75 Mountains and little hills bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 76 All things that spring in the earth bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 77 Bless our Lord ye fountains: praise and superexalt him for ever. 78 Seas and rivers bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 79 Whales, and all things that move in the waters, bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 80 Bless our Lord all ye fowls of heaven: praise and superexalt him for ever. 81 All beasts and cattle bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 82 Sons of men bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 83 Let Israel bless our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 84 Priests of our Lord bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 85 Servants of our Lord bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 86 Spirits and souls of the just bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 87 Holy and humble of heart bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. 88 Ananias, Azarias, and Misael, bless ye our Lord: praise and superexalt him for ever. Because he hath delivered us from hell, and saved us out of the hand of death, and delivered us out of the midst of the burning flame, and out of the midst of the fire hath he rid us. 89 Confess ye to our Lord, because he is good: because his mercy is for ever. 90 All religious bless ye our Lord the God of gods: praise and confess ye to him, because his mercy is unto all worlds.

Hitherto it is not in the Hebrew: and that which we have put, is translated out of the Edition of Theodotion. [1]

[1] S. Jerome's words.

91 Then Nabuchodonosor the king was astonished, and he arose hastily, & said to his nobles: Did we not cast three men (h) fettered into the midst of the fire? Who answering the king, said: It is true o king.

(h) The fire burned their bands, but not their garments nor bodies: so God useth the service of his creatures to give comfort to his servants & not torment. S. Greg. li. 3. c. 18. dialo. Where he writeth the like miracle, when the Goths would have burned S. Benedict.

92 He answered, and said: Behold I see four men loose, and walking in the midst of the fire, and there is no corruption in them, & the form of (i) the fourth is like to the son of God.

(i) This fourth was the Angel that averted the force of the fire from them. v. 49. & 95.

93 Then came Nabuchodonosor to the door of the furnace of burning fire, and said: Sidrach, Misach, & Abdenago, servants of the high God, go ye forth, and come. And forthwith Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago went out of the midst of the fire. 94 And the nobles, and the magistrates, and judges, and the potentates of the king being gathered together, beheld those men, that the fire had no power on their bodies, & not a hair of their head was singed, yea their breeches were not altered, & the scent of the fire had not passed by them. 95 And Nabuchodonosor breaking forth, said: Blessed be the God of them, to wit, of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, who hath sent his Angel, and hath delivered his servants that believed in him: and they changed the king's word, & delivered their bodies that they might not serve, and might not adore any god, except their own God. 96 By me therefore this decree is made, that every people, tribe, and tongue, whatsoever shall speak blasphemy against the God of Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago, he perish, and his house be wasted: for there is none other God, that can so save. 97 Then did the king (k) promote Sidrach, Misach, and Abdenago in the province of Babylon.

(k) They were not only restored to their former authority, as prefects over the works. ch. 2. v. 49. but were also more advanced, as this place insinuateth.

98 Nabuchodonosor the king, to all peoples, nations, and tongues, that dwell in the whole earth, peace be multiplied unto you. 99 The high God hath wrought signs and marvelous things with me. It hath pleased me therefore to publish 100 his signs, because they are great: and his marvels, because they are strong: and his kingdom an everlasting kingdom, & his power in generation and to generation.

CHAPTER IV.

King Nabuchodonosor having another dream, telleth it to Daniel, demanding of him the interpretation: 16. who encouraged and warranted to speak freely, sheweth that the King shall become like a beast in form seven years: 28. the same is confirmed by a voice from heaven: 30. and being fulfilled, he is at last restored to his own form, and state.

I ^ (a) Nabuchodonosor, was quiet in my house, and flourishing in my palace.

(a) It seemeth that Daniel inserted this particular history as the King in his own person & words reported it after his restoration. It is also probable that the King had this dream about the 34. year of his reign. For he reigning in all 43. years, lived seven years among beasts: into which state he fell one year after this dream, v. 26. and lived about a year more or less after his restoration.

2 I saw a dream that made me sore afraid: and my cogitations in my bed, and the visions of my head disturbed me. 3 And by me there was a decree set forth, that all the wisemen of Babylon should be brought into my sight, and that they should shew me the solution of the dream. 4 Then came in the soothsayers, magicians, Chaldees, and diviners, and I told the dream in their sight: & the solution thereof they shewed me not: 5 till their colleague Daniel came into my sight, whose name is Baltassar, according to the name of my god, who hath the spirit of the holy gods in himself: and I told the dream before him.

6 Baltassar prince of the soothsayers, because I know that thou hast the spirit of the holy gods in thee, and no secret is impossible to thee: tell thou the visions of my dreams, which I have seen, and the solution of them. 7 The vision of my head in my bed, I saw, and behold a tree in the midst of the earth, and the height thereof exceeding. 8 A great tree, and strong: and the height thereof touching the heaven: the sight thereof was even to the ends of all the earth. 9 The leaves thereof most fair, and the fruit thereof exceeding much: and the food of all things in it: under it dwelt cattle, and beasts, and in the boughs thereof conversed the fowls of heaven: and of it all flesh did eat. 10 I saw in the vision of my head upon my bed, & behold a watchman, and an holy one descended from heaven. 11 He cried mightily, and thus he said: Cut ye down the tree, & chop off the boughs thereof: shake off the leaves thereof, and scatter the fruits thereof: let the beasts fly that are under it, and the fowls from the boughs thereof. 12 But yet leave the spring of the roots thereof in the earth, and let it be tied with iron, and brazen band among the grass, that is without, and let it be dipped with the dew of heaven, and with wild beasts his portion in the grass of the earth. 13 Let his heart be changed from human, & let the heart of a wild beast be given him: and let seven (b) times be changed over him.

(b) Seven times signify seven years, because all ordinary varieties of times are in one year.

14 In the sentence of the watchman is the decree, and the word of saints, and the petition, till the living know, that the high one ruleth in the kingdom of men; and to whom soever it shall please him, he will give it, & the basest man he will appoint over it. 15 This dream saw I^ Nabuchodonosor the king: thou therefore o Baltassar tell the interpretation quickly: because all the wisemen of my kingdom cannot declare the solution unto me: but thou canst, because the spirit of holy gods is in thee. 16 Then Daniel, whose name was Baltassar, began secretly to think within himself as it were for one hour: & (c) his cogitations troubled him. But the king answering said: Baltassar, let not the dream and the interpretation thereof trouble thee. Baltassar answered, and said: My lord, the dream be to them, that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof be thine enemies.

(c) No marvel that the prophet was troubled in mind being loath to declare the calamity which should fall unto the king, and yet must needs utter the truth. And therefore with mild words, wishing the King might escape the evil, which was decreed against him, he maketh his entrance to the true interpretation of the dream.

17 The tree which thou sawest high and strong, whose height reacheth to heaven, and the sight thereof into all the earth: 18 and the bough thereof most fair, and the fruit thereof exceeding much, and the food of things in it, under it the beasts of the field inhabiting, & in the boughs thereof the fowls of heaven abiding: 19 It is thou king, which art magnified, & become mighty: & thy greatness hath grown, and is come even to heaven, and thy power unto the ends of the earth. 20 But in that the king saw a watchman, and an holy one descend from heaven, and say: Cut ye down the tree, and dissipate it, but leave the spring of the roots thereof in the earth, and let it be bound with iron and brass among the grass without, and let it be sprinkled with the dew of heaven, and let his fodder be with the wild beasts, till seven times be changed over him. 21 This is the interpretation of the sentence of the Highest, which is come upon my lord the king. 22 They shall cast thee out from men, and with beasts and wild beasts shall thy habitation be, and grass thou shalt eat as an ox, & with the dew of heaven thou shalt be wet: seven times also shall be changed over thee, till thou know that the High one ruleth over the kingdoms of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will. 23 But whereas he commanded, that the spring of the roots thereof, that is, of the tree, should be left: thy kingdom shall remain to thee after thou shalt have known that power is heavenly. 24 Wherefore o king let me counsel thee, and (d) redeem thou thy sins with alms, & thine iniquities with the mercies of the poor: perhaps he will forgive thine offences.

(d) God's threats being conditional that if sinners truly repent he will pardon all, or part of the punishment, the prophet proposeth the most sovereign remedy of alms deeds that by works of mercy this sinful king, or any other sinner may procure the mercy of God. As indeed this king found mercy after some punishment: the prophet proposeth the sovereign remedy of alms deeds, that by works of mercy, he might procure God's mercy.

25 All these things came upon Nabuchodonosor the king. 26 After the end of twelve months he walked in the palace of Babylon. 27 And the king answered, & said: Is not this Babylon the great city, which I have built to be the house of the kingdom, in the strength of my power, and in the glory of my beauty? 28 And when the word was yet in the king's mouth, a voice came down from heaven: To thee it is said Nabuchodonosor: Thy kingdom shall pass from thee, 29 and from men they shall cast thee out, and with beasts and wild beasts shall thy habitation be: grass as an ox shalt thou eat, and seven times shall be changed over thee till thou know that the High one ruleth in the kingdom of men, & to whom soever he will, he giveth it. 30 The self same hour was the word accomplished upon Nabuchodonosor, and he was cast away from among men, & as an ox did he eat grass, and with the dew of heaven his body was imbrued: till his hairs grew into the similitude of eagles', & his nails as it were of birds'. 31 Therefore after the end of the days, I^ Nabuchodonosor lifted up mine eyes to heaven, and my sense was restored to me: and I blessed the Highest, and praised him that liveth for ever, and glorified him: because his power is an everlasting power, and his kingdom in generation and generation. 32 And all the inhabitants of the earth with him are reputed for nothing: for he doth according to his will, as well in the powers of heaven, as in the inhabitants of the earth: & there is none that can resist his hand, and say to him: Why didst thou it? 33 In the very same time did my sense return to me,

& I came to the honour, and beauty of my kingdom: and my (e) figure returned to me: and my nobles, & my magistrates sought for me, and I was restored in my kingdom: and more ample magnificence was added to me.

(e) Being restored to his wits he went up right, cut his hair & nails, & so appeared to himself as returned to his former figure or shape.

34 Now therefore I^ Nabuchodonosor praise, and magnify, and glorify the King of heaven: because all his works are true, and his ways judgements, and them that walk in pride he can humble.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. IV.

◦Nabuchodonosor was not changed in substance; but became mad, and lived seven years like a beast.

13. Let his heart be changed.] In what manner King Nabuchodonosor was changed is hard to explicate. ◦But omitting other opinions, the most probable & common is, that he was not deprived of his reasonable soul, nor the form & parts of his body substantially changed from the nature of a man: but he was distracted losing the use of reason, & in his own melancholy imagination & phantasy, thought that he was a beast. And therefore easily refused the conversation of men, & comforted himself with beasts, went naked; his hair growing very much, & covering all his body, his nails likewise extreme long; he went on his hands together with his feet, like fourfooted beasts; did eat grass as an oxe, putting his mouth to the ground to shear and swallow it, the space of seven years. Then God restoring to him the use of reason, and inspiring him with grace, he lifted up his eyes to heaven (v. 32.) & in perfect sense blessed God, the Highest, and praised him; was again received, yea sought for by his nobles and magistrates: so was restored to his Kingdom, and had more magnificence than before.

[1] It is probable that he died shortly after his restoration.

[2] And most like that he is eternally saved.

34. Now therefore I Nabuchodonosor praise, magnify, and glorify God] Albeit holy Scripture doth not report, when and how King Nabuchodonosor died, [1] yet by this last thing written of him, it is very like he lived not long after his great chastisement: for if he had, it is probable that Daniel would have written more of him, and that he being so fully converted to God, would have delivered Ioachin King of Juda, out of prison (which his next successor Evilmerodach did. 4 Reg. 25. v. 27.) and all the Jews from captivity, if God had longer spared him life, he being now well affected towards them. [2] And that he died in state of salvation, may with great reason be supposed, seeing his repentance and conversion to God is so fully expressed in holy Scripture, and no mention that he fell again. Which is also the judgement of most learned writers. Namely of Josephus, li. 10. Antiq. Dorotheus in Synopsi. S. Epiphanius, in vita Danielis. S. Jerom. epist. 7. ad Letam, S. Augustin epist. 122. ad Victoriam & li. de predest. & gratia c. 15. Where he compareth Pharao with Nabuchodonosor, and their diverse ends, by God's grace, moving the one to penance for his iniquity, the other willfully fighting against God's merciful verity, as we have noted. Exo. 7.

CHAPTER V.

King [1] Baltassar making a great banquet, with his nobles drink in the holy vessels, which were taken from the Temple of Jerusalem. 5. Fingers appear writing on the wall: 10. which only Daniel readeth, and interpreteth: 18. signifying the ruin of the King, 30. happening the same night.

[1] After Nabuchodonosor, & before Baltasar, Evilmerodach reigned in Babylon, who delivered Ioachin King of Juda out of prison, & used him with great respect in the 37. year of the transmigration. 4. Reg. 25. There reigned also before Baltasar other two of another lineage, called Niglissar and Labosardach: as testify Euse. S. Ierom. S. Beda. & others.

BALTASSAR (a) the king made a great feast to his nobles a thousand: and every one drank according to his age.

(a) The ruin of this Baltassar happened in the 17. and last year of his reign: when Daniel was near an hundred years.

2 He commanded therefore now being drunk that the vessels of gold & silver, should be brought, which Nabuchodonosor his father had carried away out of the temple, that was in Jerusalem, that the king, and his Nobles might drink in them, and his wives, and concubines. 3 Then were the golden and silver vessels brought, which he had carried away out of the temple, that was in Jerusalem: and the king and his nobles drank in them, his wives and concubines. 4 They drank wine, and praised their gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, and of wood, and of stone. 5 In the very same hour there appeared fingers, as it were of the hand of a man, writing over against the candlestick in the utter part of the wall of the king's palace: and the king beheld the joints of the hand that wrote. 6 Then was the king's face changed, and his cogitations troubled him: and the junctures of his reins were loosed, and his knees were strucken one against the other. 7 The king therefore cried out mightily that they should bring in the magicians, Chaldees, and soothsayers. And the king speaking said to the wisemen of Babylon: Whosoever shall read this writing, and shall make the interpretation thereof manifest unto me, shall be clothed with purple, and shall have a golden chain on his neck, & shall be the third in my kingdom. 8 Then all the king's wisemen going in could not neither read the writing, nor declare the interpretation to the king. 9 Wherewith king Baltassar was much troubled, and his countenance was changed: yea and his nobles were troubled. 10 And the [1] queen for the thing that had happened to the king, and his nobles, entered into the house of the feast: and speaking she said: King for ever live: let not thy cogitations trouble thee, neither let thy face be changed.

[1] * the King's mother v. 11.

11 There is a man in thy kingdom, that hath the spirit of the holy gods in him: and in the days of (b) thy father knowledge and wisdom were found in him: for king Nabuchodonosor also thy father appointed him prince of the magicians, enchanters, Chaldees and soothsayers, thy father, I say o king:

(b) All progenitors are commonly called the fathers of their offspring: so Nabuchodonosor is called the father of Baltasar, being his grand father: as may be gathered, Ier. 27. v. 7. where is prophesied that Nabuchodonosor & his son, and son's son should reign over many nations.

12 Because more ample spirit, and prudence, and understanding, & interpretation of dreams, and shewing of secrets, and solution of things bound were found in him, that is, in Daniel: to whom the king gave the name Baltassar. Now therefore let Daniel be called, and he will tell the interpretation. 13 Daniel therefore was brought in before the king. To whom the king speaking, said: Art thou Daniel of the children of the captivity of Juda, whom my father the king brought out of Jewry? 14 I have heard of thee, that thou hast the spirit of the gods, and more ample knowledge, and understanding, and wisdom are found in thee. 15 And now there have come into my sight the wise magicians, that they might read this writing, and might shew me the interpretation thereof: and they could not declare me the sense of this [1] word.

16 Moreover I have heard of thee, that thou canst interpret obscure things, and resolve things bound: if therefore thou be able to read the writing, & to shew me the interpretation thereof, thou shalt be clothed with purple, and shalt have a chain of gold about thy neck, & shalt be the third prince in my kingdom.
17 To which things Daniel answering, said before the king: Thy rewards be they unto thee, and the gifts of thy house give to another: but the writing will I read thee, o king, and the interpretation thereof will I shew to thee. 18 O king, God the most high gave to Nabuchodonosor thy father kingdom and magnificence, glory and honour. 19 And for the magnificence, which he gave to him, all peoples, tribes, and tongues trembled, and feared him: whom he would he killed: and whom he would, he struck: and whom he would he exalted: and whom he would, he humbled. 20 But when his heart was elevated, and his spirit obstinately set to pride, he was deposed from the throne of his kingdom, and his glory was taken away. 21 And he was cast out from the sons of men, yea and his (c) heart was set with the beasts, and with the wild asses was his habitation: grass also he did eat as an ox, and with the dew of heaven his body was imbrued: till he knew that the Highest had power in the kingdom of men, and whomsoever it shall please him he will raise up over it.

(c) His imagination that he was a beast made him forsake the company of men, and to dwell amongst wild beasts. ch. 4.

22 Thou also his son Baltassar, hast not humbled thy heart, whereas thou knowest all these things: 23 but against the dominator of heaven thou wast elevated: and the vessels of his house have been brought before thee: and thou, and thy nobles, and thy wives, and thy concubines have drunk wine in them: the gods also of silver, and of gold, and of brass, of iron, and of wood, and of stone that see not, nor hear, nor feel, thou hast praised: moreover the God, that hath thy breath in his hand, and all thy ways, thou hast not glorified. 24 Therefore from him is the joint of the hand sent, which hath written this that is drawn. 25 And this is the writing which is ordered: MANE, THECEL, PHARES. 26 And this the interpretation of the word. MANE: God hath numbered thy kingdom, and hath finished it. 27 THECEL: thou art weighed in the balance, and art found having less. 28 PHARES: thy kingdom is divided, and is given to the Medes, and Persians. 29 Then the king commanding Daniel was clothed with purple, and a chain of gold was put about his neck: & it was proclaimed of him that he had power the third in the kingdom. 30 (d) The same night was Baltassar the king of Chaldee slain.

(d) The Medes being at this time in the siege of Babylon, took their opportunity to assault it this night, when the King and most part of the city were drunk.

31 And Darius the Mede succeeded into the kingdom, being three score and two years old.

CHAPTER VI.

King Darius making Daniel one of the three chief rulers of his Kingdom: 4. and intending also to advance him higher, other Princes accuse him for praying to God, contrary to the King's edict. 16. Whereupon he is cast into the lions' den: 21. but is conserved without any hurt: 24. his accusers are devoured by the lions, and commandment is given, that all men shall fear the God of Daniel.

IT pleased (a) Darius, and he appointed over the kingdom governers an hundred twenty to be in all his kingdom.

(a) Darius (King of Medes now also of Chaldees) otherwise called Astyages (ch. 13. v. 65.) reigned but one year, and so Cyrus succeeded.

2 And over them three princes, of whom Daniel was one: that the governers might render account to them, & the king might sustain no trouble. 3 Daniel therefore passed all the princes, and governers: because there was the spirit of God more ample in him. 4 Moreover the king thought to appoint him over all the kingdom, whereupon the princes, & the governers sought to find occasion against Daniel on the behalf of the king: and they could find no cause, nor suspicion, because he was faithful, and no fault, nor suspicion was found in him. 5 Those men therefore said: (b) We shall not find against this same Daniel any occasion, unless perhaps in the law of his God.

(b) An old and continual malignant practice, to call religion treason: And for that purpose to procure laws or statutes to be enacted.

6 Then the princes, and the governers by surreption suggested to the king, and spake thus unto him: King Darius, for ever live: 7 All the princes of the kingdom, the magistrates, and governers, the senators and judges have taken counsel, that there go forth an imperial decree, and an edict: That every one, which shall ask any petition of whatsoever god, or man, until thirty days, but of thee o king, he be cast into the lake of lions. 8 Now therefore o king confirm the sentence, and write the decree: that it may not be changed, which is decreed by the Medes and the Persians, nor be lawful for any man to transgress it. 9 Moreover king Darius put forth the edict, and decreed it.

10 Which when Daniel had perceived, that is to say, the law determined, he went into his house: and (c) the windows being opened in his upper chamber, three times in a day toward Jerusalem bowed he his knees, and adored, and confessed before his God, as also he had accustomed to do before.

(c) It is not probable that Daniel opened the windows of purpose, that he might be seen to pray: for so he should have undiscreetly contemned the King, and provoked the infidels to persecute him; but having accustomed to open the windows of his upper chamber, which gave prospect towards Jerusalem, according to Salomon's prayer 3. Reg. 8. v. 47. & 48. he observed the same custom still: & was not seen publicly of many, but his enemies searching curiously (v. 11.) found him praying, and accused him of breaking the King's Edict.

11 Those men therefore searching curiously, found Daniel praying, and beseeching his God. 12 And coming they spake to the king upon the edict: O king, hast thou not decreed, that every man which should ask any of the gods, & men until thirty days, but thyself o king, he should be cast into the lake of lions? To whom the king answering, said: The word is true according to the decree of the Medes, and Persians, which it is not lawful to transgress. 13 Then they answering said before the king: Daniel of the children of the captivity of Juda, hath not cared for thy law, and for the edict, that thou madest: but three times in a day he prayeth with his prayer. 14 Which word when the king had heard, he was strucken very sad: and for Daniel he set his heart to deliver him, and even until sun set he laboured to deliver him. 15 But those men perceiving the king said to him: know thou o king, that the law of Medes and Persians is, that every decree, which the king hath determined, is not lawful to be changed. 16 Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the lake of lions. And the king said to Daniel: Thy God, whom thou doest worship always, he will deliver thee. 17 And there was a stone brought, and laid upon the mouth of the lake: which the king sealed with his ring, and with the ring of his nobles, that nothing should be done against Daniel. 18 And the king went into his house, and slept unsupped, and meats were not brought before him, moreover also sleep departed from him.

19 Then the king rising in the very first break of day, went in haste to the lake of the lions: 20 and approaching to the lake, cried on Daniel with a weeping voice, and spake unto him: Daniel servant of the living God, thy God whom thou servest always, hath he been able thinkest thou, to deliver thee from the lions? 21 And Daniel answering the king said: King for ever live. 22 (d) My God hath sent his Angel, and hath shut up the mouths of the lions, and they have not hurt me: because before him justice hath been found in me: yea and before thee, o king, I have done no offence.

(d) To this miracle wrought by the power of God in defence, and for the merits of this holy Prophet, S. Paul alludeth, Heb. 11. v. 33.

23 Then was the king exceeding glad upon him, & he commanded Daniel to be brought out of the lake: and Daniel was brought out of the lake, and no hurt was found in him, because he believed his God. 24 And by the king's commandment, those men were brought that had accused Daniel: and (e) they were cast into the lake of the lions, themselves, and their children, and their wives: and they came not to the pavement of the lake, till the lions caught them, & brake all their bones in pieces.

(e) The law of like-punishment is so agreeable to the law of nature, that this Pagan King punished Daniel's accusers, when it appeared to him, that Daniel had not committed treason, but only used his religion and devotion.

25 Then Darius the king wrote to all peoples, tribes, and tongues dwelling in the whole earth: PEACE be multiplied unto you. 26 By me a decree is made, that in all mine empire, and my kingdom they dread and fear the God of Daniel. for he is the living and eternal God for ever: and his kingdom shall not be dissipated, & his power even for ever. 27 He is the deliverer, and saviour, doing sign, & marvels in heaven, and in earth: who hath delivered Daniel out of the lake of the lions. 28 Moreover Daniel continued unto the kingdom of Darius, and the kingdom of Cyrus the Persian.

CHAPTER VII.

Daniel seeth four winds fighting, and four terrible beasts rising from the sea: 9. God sitting in a throne, and served by innumerable Angels. 11. The greatest beast is slain, and the power of the rest diminished. 13. The Son of man receiveth eternal power of God. 15. The prophet much terrified, is instructed that the four beasts signify four kingdoms. 19. The greatest shall prevail for a while, 26. but shortly perish. [1]

[1] The 2. part.
Prophetical visions of Christ and of Antichrist.

IN (a) the first year of Baltassar the king of Babylon, Daniel saw a dream: & the vision of his head in his bed: and writing the dream, he comprehended it in a short speech: and in sum comprising it, he said:

(a) In order of time these two visions were before the histories written in the two precedent chapters.

2 I saw in my vision by night, and behold (b) the four winds of heaven fought in the great sea.

(b) Four winds may signify the great tumults which happen in the beginning of monarchies by wars and bloodshed of much people.

3 And (c) four great beasts came up, out of the sea diverse one from another.

(c) Four beasts do signify the four Monarchies of the Chaldees, Medes and Persians, the Grecians, & the Romans: as was also signified before in Nabuchodonosor's dream. ch. 2.

4 The first as it were (d) a lioness, & she had the wings of an eagle: I beheld till her wings were plucked off, and she was lifted up from the earth, & she stood upon the feet as a man, & the heart of a man was given to her.

(d) A lioness's cruelty, and the pride of an eagle do resemble the Chaldee's monarchy.

5 And behold another beast like (e) a bear stood aside: and there were three rews in the mouth thereof, and in the teeth thereof, & thus they said to it: Arise, eat very much flesh.

(e) A bear of rude shape, & weak sight, content with little and base meat, represented the Medes & Persians.

6 After this I beheld, and lo another as it were (f) a leopard, and it had wings as of a bird, four upon it, & there were four heads in the beast, and power was given to it.

(f) The leopard with wings and four heads, signified the speedy victories of the Grecians under Alexander in four quarters of the world: after his death divided into four Kingdoms.

7 After this I beheld in the vision of the night, and lo (g) a fourth beast terrible and marvelous, and strong exceedingly, it had great iron teeth, eating and breaking, and treading the rest with her feet: and it was unlike to the other beasts, which I had seen before it, and it had ten horns.

(g) By the fourth beast without name is understood the incomparable power of the Romans: governing first by kingly authority; afterwards by Consuls; then joining to them Tribunes; sometimes Dictators; finally Emperial.

8 I considered the horns, and behold another (h) little horn sprang out of the midst of them: and three of the first horns were plucked off at the presence thereof, and lo eyes as it were the eyes of a man were in this horn, & a mouth speaking great words.

(h) The little horn becoming so great and strong, as to overcome all the other, signifieth Antichrist; whose outrageous fury shall continue but a short time. v. 25.

9 I beheld till thrones were set, and (i) the ancient of days sat: his vesture white as snow, and the hairs of his head as clean wool: his throne flames of fire: his wheels fire kindled.

(i) God the Father is called the Ancient of days, not as though one Person of the Blessed Trinity were more ancient than another: for every Person is eternal; and all are one eternal God: But in order of proceeding one from another, the Father is the beginning: of whom the Son is begotten; and from whom, as also from the Son, the Holy Ghost proceedeth.

10 A fire & swift stream came forth from his face: (k) thousands of thousands ministered to him, & (l) ten thousand hundred thousands assisted him: judgement sat, and the books were opened.

(k) By multiplication of these cardinal numbers, is signified the innumerable multitude of Angels: who do exceed all corporal creatures in number, as the celestial spheres exceed terrestrial bodies in greatness. (l) And the highest Hierarchy (who are Assistants) do far exceed the other Hierarchies in multitude. S. Dionys. c. 14. Hierar. coelest. S. Tho. p. 1. q. 112. a. 4.

11 I beheld because of the voice of the great words, which that horn spake: and I saw that the beast was slain, and the body thereof was perished, and was committed to the fire to be burnt. 12 The power of the other beasts also was taken away: and times of life were appointed them until time, and time. 13 I beheld therefore in the vision of the night, and lo with the clouds of heaven there came in, as it were (m) the son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days: and in his sight they offered him.

(m) Our Saviour Christ is here clearly prophesied: by whose power Antichrist shall be utterly destroyed.

14 And he gave him power, and honour, and kingdom: and all peoples, tribes, & tongues shall serve him: his power, an eternal power, that shall not be taken away: and his kingdom, that shall not be corrupted. 15 My spirit trembled, I^ Daniel was made sore afraid at these things, and the visions of my head troubled me. 16 I came to one of the assistants, and I asked the truth of him concerning all these things, who told me the interpretation of the words, and taught me: 17 These four great beasts, are four kingdoms, which shall rise up out of the earth. 18 And they shall take the kingdom of the holy God most high: & they shall obtain the kingdom even to world, & world of worlds. 19 After this I would diligently learn of the fourth beast, which was very unlike from all, and exceeding terrible: his teeth and claws of iron: he did eat, and break in pieces, & the rest he stamped with his feet: 20 and of the ten horns that he had on his head: and of the other, that had grown up, before which the three horns fell: and of that horn, that had eyes, and the mouth speaking great words, and was greater than the rest. 21 I beheld, and lo that horn made war against the saints, and prevailed over them, 22 till the ancient of days came, & gave judgement to the saints on High, and the time came, and the saints obtained the kingdom. 23 And thus he said: The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom in the earth, which shall be greater than all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall conculcate, and break it in pieces. 24 Moreover the ten horns of that same kingdom, shall be ten kings: and another shall rise up after them, and he shall be mightier than the former, and he shall bring down three kings. 25 And he shall speak words against the High one, and shall destroy the saints of the Highest: and he shall think that he can change times, & laws, and they shall be delivered into his hand even (n) to a time, & times, & half a time.

(n) ch. 12. v. 7. 11. & 12.
Apoc. 11. v. 2. & 3.
Apoc. 12. v. 6. & 14. & Apoc. 13. v. 5.

26 And judgement shall sit, that might^ may be taken away, and be broken, and perish even to the end.
27 And kingdom, and power, and the greatness of the kingdom, that is under all the heaven, be given to the people of the saints of the Highest: whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all kings shall serve him, and shall obey him. 28 Hitherto the end of the word, I^ Daniel was much troubled with my cogitations, and my face was changed in me: but the word I kept in my heart.

CHAPTER VIII.

Daniel seeth a ram with two horns overcome by a goat with one horn: 8. Which shall also be broken, and four less rise in place thereof: one of them profaneth the temple in Jerusalem, and taketh away the daily sacrifice. 15. And Gabriel the Archangel expoundeth the vision.

IN the third year of the reign of Baltassar the king, a vision appeared to me. 2 I^ Daniel (a) saw in my vision, after that which I had seen in the beginning, when I was in Susis the castle, which is in the province of Aelam: and I saw in the vision, that I was over the [1]gate Ulai.

(a) He insinuateth that this vision was in explication of some part of the former, which he had two years before. ch. 7. where four monarchies are mentioned: so here is foretold the great conflict between the Persians & Grecians, about 220 years after. [1] or river.

3 & I lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and behold one (b) ram stood before the marish, having high horns, & one higher than another & growing under.

(b) The ram represented the King of Persians & Medes.

4 Afterward I saw the ram pushing with the horns against the West, & against the North, and against the South: and all beasts could not resist him, nor be delivered out of his hand: and he did according to his will, & was magnified. 5 And I understood: and behold (c) a buckgoat came from the West upon the face of the whole earth, & he touched not the ground. Moreover the buckgoat had a notable horn between his eyes:

(c) The goat signified Alexander the great:

6 And he came even to that ram with the horns, which I had seen standing before the gate, & he ran towards him in the violence of his strength. 7 And when he had approached near the ram, he was wood against him, and struck the ram: and he (d) brake his two horns, and the ram could not resist him: and when he had cast him on the ground, he trod him, and no man could deliver the ram out of his hand.

(d) breaking the two horns, that is conquering the two nations of Persians & Medes.

8 And the buckgoat became exceeding great: and when he was grown, the great horn (e) was broken, and there rose up (f) four horns under it by the four winds of heaven.

(e) King Alexander died when he was very young and strong not fully 33. years of age. (f) Four of his followers possessed every one a Kingdom of his Monarchy.

9 And out of one of them came forth (g) one little horn: and it was made great against the South, and against the East, and against the strength.

(g) Antiochus Epiphanes persecuting the people of God, destroyed the sacrifice, polluted the temple, setting up the image of Jupiter Olympius.

10 And it was magnified even unto the strength of heaven: and it threw down of the strength, and of the stars, and trod them. 11 And it was magnified even unto the prince of the strength: and from him it took the continual sacrifice, and threw down the place of his sanctification. 12 And strength was given against the continual sacrifice because of sins: and truth shall be thrown prostrate on the ground, and he shall do, and shall prosper. 13 And I heard (h) one of the saints speaking, & one saint said to another, I know not to whom that spake: How long the vision, and the continual sacrifice, and the sin of the desolation that is made: and the sanctuary, and the strength shall be conculcate?

(h) One Angel demanded of another to know a thing to come.

14 And he said to him: Unto (i) the evening & morning, two thousand three hundred: & the sanctuary shall be cleansed.

(i) 2300 evenings and mornings, that is, 2300 days, which make six years, & well near four months, the whole time from the beginning of Antiochus' persecution unto his death: for he began to persecute in the year 143. 1 Mac. 1. v. 21. & he died, an. 149. 1 Mac. 6. v. 16. within which time an. 148. the temple was purged 1. Mac. 4. v. 52.

15 And it came to pass when I^ Daniel saw the vision, and sought the understanding: behold there stood in my sight as it were the form of a man. 16 And I heard the voice of a man between the banks of Ulai: and he cried, and said: Gabriel make this man understand the vision. 17 And he came and stood near where I stood: and when he was come, trembling I fell on my face, & he said to me: Understand (k) son of man, that in the time of the end the vision shall be accomplished.

(k) Ezechiel is very often called by the name of son of man, here also Daniel is so called by an Angel, as well to distinguish Angelical and human nature, as in honour of mankind, which Christ would assume: & therefore calleth himself by the very same title in the Gospel.

18 And when he spake to me I fell flat on the ground: and he touched me, and set me up in my standing, 19 and said to me: I will shew thee what things are to come in the last of the malediction: because the time hath his end. 20 The ram, which thou sawest have horns, is the king of the Medes and Persians. 21 Moreover the buckgoat, is the king of the Graecians, and the great horn, that was between his eyes, the same is the first king. 22 But whereas that being broken, there rose up four for it: four kings shall rise up of his nation, but not in his strength. 23 And after their reign, when iniquities shall be increased, (l) there shall arise a king impudent of face, and understanding [1] propositions.

24 And his strength shall be made strong, but not in his own strength: and more than can be believed, shall he waste all things, and shall prosper, and do. And he shall kill the strong, and the people of the saints 25 according to his will, and craft shall be directed in his hand: and he shall magnify his heart, and in the abundance of all things he shall murder very many: & against the prince of princes shall he arise, & without hand he shall be destroyed. 26 & the vision of the evening and the morning, which hath been said, is true: thou therefore seal the vision, because it shall be (m) after many days.

(m) So much as pertained to the profanation of the temple was fulfilled above 300. years after this prophecy: as the same is also a figure of Antichrist, it shall happen towards the end of this world. S. Greg. l. 30. c. 12. Moral.

27 And I^ Daniel languished, and was sick for certain days: and when I was risen up, I did the king's works, and was astonished at the vision, and there was none that could interpret it.

CHAPTER IX.

Daniel confessing that they are justly afflicted for their sins, 15. prayeth for speedy mercy. 20. An Angel signifieth to him, that within seventy weeks of years, Christ will come; 26. and be slain; his people the Jews denying him, whom he will therefore reject.

IN the first year of Darius the son (a) of Assuerus of the seed of the Medes, who reigned over the kingdom of the Chaldees:

(a) Assuerus, or Achasuerus, not a proper name signifieth a great Prince, or head of people.

2 (b) the first year of his kingdom, I^ Daniel understood in books the number of years, whereof the word of our Lord was made to Jeremie the prophet, that (c) seventy years should be accomplished of the desolation of Jerusalem. [1]

(b) Darius had reigned in Persia before this time, but this was the first year of his reign over the Chaldees, and also the last, neither did he reign a full year: for Cyrus reigned some part of the seventieth year of the Jews' captivity in Babylon: in which also Baltassar was slain. Ier. 25. v. 12. & Ier. 29. v. 10. 2. Par. 36. v. 22. (c) Daniel seeing the seventieth year of captivity was come, in which God promised to deliver his people, Ier. 29. v. 10. prayed with great zeal, & confidence for their release. [1] Iere. 29. v. 10.

3 And I set my face to our Lord my God to pray and beseech in fastings, sackcloth, and ashes. 4 And I prayed our Lord my God, and I confessed, and said: I beseech thee o Lord God great and terrible, which keepest covenant, & mercy to them that love thee, and keep thy commandments. 5 We have sinned, we have done iniquity, we have dealt impiously, and have revolted: & we have declined from thy commandments, and judgements. 6 We have not obeyed thy servants the prophets, that have spoken in thy name to our kings, to our princes, to our fathers, and to all the people of the land. 7 To thee o Lord, justice: but to us confusion of face, as is today to the man of Juda, and to the inhabiters of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, to them that are near, and to them that are far off in all the lands, to which thou hast cast them out, for their iniquities in which they have sinned against thee. 8 O Lord, to us confusion of face, to our princes, & to our fathers that have sinned. 9 But to thee Lord our God mercy and propitiation, because we have revolted from thee: 10 and have not heard the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in his law, which he gave us by his servants the prophets. 11 And all Israel have transgressed thy law, and have declined from hearing thy voice, and the malediction hath distilled upon us, & the detestation, which is written in the book of Moyses the servant of God, because we have sinned to him.[1]

[1] Deu. 17. v. 14.

12 And he hath established his words, which he spake upon us, and upon our princes, that judged us, that he would bring in upon us a great evil, such as never was under all the heaven, according to that which hath been done in Jerusalem. 13 As it is written in the law of Moyses, all this evil is come upon us: and we besought not thy face o Lord our God, that we might return from our iniquities, & might think on thy truth. 14 And our Lord hath watched upon the malice, and hath brought it upon us: just is the Lord our God in all his works, which he hath done: for we have not heard his voice. 15 And now o Lord our God, which broughtest forth thy people out of the Land of Aegypt in a strong hand, & madest thee a name according to this day: we have sinned, we have done iniquity. 16 O Lord according to all thy justice, but let thy wrath be turned away I beseech thee, and thy fury from thy city Jerusalem, & from thy holy mount. For by reason of our sins, and the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem, and thy people are a reproach to all round about us. 17 Now therefore hear o our God the petition of thy servant, & his prayers: and shew thy face upon thy sanctuary, which is desert, for thine own sake. 18 Incline^ my God^ thine ear, & hear: open thine eyes, and see our desolation, & the city upon which thy name is invocated: for neither in our justifications do we prostrate prayers before thy face, but in thy many commiserations. 19 Hear o Lord, be pacified o Lord: attend & do, delay not for thine own sake my God: because thy name is invocated upon thy city, & upon thy people. 20 And when I yet spake, & prayed, and confessed my sins, and the sins of my people of Israel, and did prostrate my prayers in the sight of my God, for the holy mount of my God: 21 as I was yet speaking in prayer, lo the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision from the beginning, quickly flying touched me in the time of the evening sacrifice. 22 And he taught me, and spake to me, & said: Daniel now am I come forth to teach thee, and that thou mightest understand. 23 From the beginning of thy prayers the word came forth: and I am come to shew it to thee, because thou art (d) a man of desires: and do thou mark the word, and understand the vision.

(d) This singular devotion with austere works of penance & zeal of his country merited this commendable title to be called, The man of desires.

24 (e) Seventy weeks are abridged upon thy people, & upon thy holy city, (f) that prevarication may be consummate, and sin take an end, & iniquity be abolished; and everlasting justice be brought; & vision be accomplished, and prophecy; & the Holy one of holies be anointed.

(e) And whereas he prayed particularly for the release of the Jews from captivity of Babylon, a far greater thing is promised & revealed to him, that within seventy weeks of years (that is 490. years) the Messias Christ will come & redeem mankind from captivity of sin & the devil. (f) These four things (v. 24.) Forgiveness of sins; Infusion of justice; Fulfilling of prophecies; & Anointed Holy of holies agree only to Christ.

25 Know therefore, & mark: From the going forth of the word, that Jerusalem be built again, unto Christ the prince, there shall be seven (g) weeks, & sixty two weeks, & the street shall be built again, & the walls in [1] straitness of the times.

(g) Hebdomas or Septenarius signifying seven, understood of days importeth a week: of years (as Levi. 25.) seven years: so seventy weeks 490. years. S. Bed. li. de rat. temp. c. 6. 7. 8. [1] * troublesome times.

26 And after sixty two weeks Christ shall be slain: and it shall not be his people, that shall deny him. And the city, & the sanctuary shall the people dissipate with the prince to come: & the end thereof waste, & after the end of the battle the appointed desolation.
27 And he will confirm the covenant to many, one week: and in the half of the week shall the host & the sacrifice fail: and there shall be in the temple the abomination of desolation:[1] & even to the consummation, and to the end shall the desolation endure.

CHAPTER X.

After fasting and other voluntary afflictions, 4. Daniel seeing a man in a strange form, and much terrified therewith, 8. is comforted. 13. The Angels of Persians and Grecians resist his prayer, 20. S. Michael assisting the Jews.

IN the third year of Cyrus king of the Persians, a word was revealed to Daniel surnamed Baltassar, and a true word, and great strength: & he understood the word: for (a) there is need of understanding in vision.

(a) Pharao had a vision in sleep, Gen. 41. Baltasar waking, saw a hand writing in the wall, Dan. 5. but neither of them understood their visions, and therefore were not Prophets. Joseph understood the former, & Daniel this other, and so, they were Prophets. For as this text teacheth, understanding is required that a vision be prophetical. S. Tho. 2. 2. q. 175. a. 2. & 4.

2 In those days^ I^ Daniel mourned the days of three weeks, 3 desiderable bread I did not eat, and flesh and wine entered not into my mouth, yea neither with ointment was I anointed: till the days of three weeks were accomplished. 4 And in the four & twentieth day of the first month I was by the great river, which is Tigris. 5 And I lifted up mine eyes, & I saw: and behold a man clothed with linen cloths, & his reins girded with the finest gold: 6 and his body as it were the chrysolithus, and his face as the form of lightning, and his eyes as a burning lamp: and his arms, & the parts that are downward even to the feet, as it were the form of glistering brass: and the voice of his word as the voice of a multitude. 7 And I^ Daniel alone saw the vision: moreover the men that were with me, saw it not, but exceeding terror fell upon them, and they fled away, and hid themselves. 8 And I being left alone saw this great vision: and there remained no strength in me, yea and my shape of countenance was changed in me, and I withered, neither had any strength. 9 And I heard the voice of his words: and hearing I lay astonished upon my face, and my visage cleaved to the ground. 10 And behold a hand touched me, and lifted me up upon my knees, and upon the joints of my hands. 11 And he said to me: Daniel (b) thou man of desires, understand the words, that I speak to thee, and stand in thy place: for now am I sent to thee. And when he had said this word to me, I stood trembling.

(b) The Angel repeateth this honourable new title to encourage him being sore frighted.

12 And he said to me: Fear not Daniel: because since the first day that thou didst set thy heart to understand to afflict thyself in the sight of thy God, thy [1] words have been heard: and I am come for thy words.

[1] prayers.

13 But (c) the prince of the kingdom of the Persians (d) resisted me one and twenty days: and behold Michael one of the chief princes came to aid me, and I tarried there by the king of the Persians.

(c) The Angel guardian of Persia. S. Ierom, S. Theodoret. S. Gregory. (d) This Angel for his office sake, not yet knowing God's will in this particular, prayed that the Jews might remain among the Persians for their edification and spiritual good.

14 But I am come to teach thee what things shall come to thy people in the later days, because as yet the vision unto days. 15 And when he spake to me in these manner of words, I cast down my countenance to the ground, and held my peace. 16 And behold as it were the similitude of the son of man touched my lips, and opening my mouth I spake, and said to him, that stood before me: My Lord, in thy vision my joints are dissolved, and no strength hath remained in me.

17 And how can the servant of my Lord speak with my Lord? for no strength is remaining in me, yea & my breath is stopped. 18 Again therefore there touched me as it were the vision of a man, and strengthened me, 19 and he said: Fear not o man of desires, Peace be to thee: take courage & be strong. And when he spake with me, I received strength, and said: Speak my Lord, because thou hast strengthened me. 20 And he said: Doest thou know wherefore I am come to thee? and now I will return, that I (e) may fight against the prince of the Persians. When I therefore went forth, there appeared the prince of the Greeks coming.

(e) Daniel's proper Angel joined his prayers with him for the delivery of the Jews from captivity.

21 But yet I will tell thee that which is expressed in the scripture of truth: and none is my helper in all these, but Michael (f) your prince.

(f) S. Michael the guardian Angel of the whole Church also prayed for the same purpose.

CHAPTER XI.

The Angel declareth what shall happen to the Jews under the King of Persia, and by occasion of wars between Aegypt and Syria.

AND I from the first year of Darius the Mede (a) stood that he might be strengthened, and made strong.

(a) The Angel prosecuting his speech to the Prophet sheweth that he had prayed for the King of Persians, from the first time after the overthrow of Babylon, seeing him well affected towards the Jews, as was also the next King Cyrus, who indeed released them.

2 And now I will declare the truth unto thee. Behold [1] three kings as yet shall stand in Persia, and [2] the fourth shall be enriched with exceeding riches above all: & when he is grown mighty in his riches, he shall raise up all against the kingdom of Greece.

[1] * Cambyses. 1. Smerdes magus. Darius Histaspis. [2] * Xerxes.

3 But there shall rise [1] a strong king, and shall rule with much power: and he shall do what shall please him.

[1] Alexander.

4 And when he [1] shall stand, his kingdom shall be broken, and it shall be divided into the four winds of heaven: but not unto his posterity, nor according to his mightiness wherewith he ruled. For (b) his kingdom shall be rent even unto foreigners, beside these.

[1] * come to his height. (b) Scarcely touching other successors of Alexander, the holy scripture here prophesieth of the Kings of Aegypt on the south side of Jury; and Syrians on the North: by whose wars the Jews were most molested.

5 And (c) the king [1] of the South shall be made strong, & there shall (d) of his princes prevail above him, and he shall rule in dominion: for his dominion shall be much.

(c) Every prophecy (saith S. Iren. li. 4. c. 43.) before it be fulfilled is aenigma, a riddle, or obscure proposition. But when it is past may more easily, sometimes certainly be interpreted. So by histories of things now past he gathereth very probably that by this King of the south was understood Ptolomeus son of Lagus King of Aegypt. [1] King of Aegypt. (d) His son called Ptolomeus Philadelphus excelled his father in power and magnificence.

6 And after the end of years they shall be confederated: and the daughter of the king of the South shall come to (e) the king [1] of the North to make amity, and shall not obtain the strength of the arm, neither shall his seed stand: and she shall be delivered, and they that brought her, her youngmen and they that strengthened her in the times.

(e) This King of the North seemeth to be Antiochus Theos King of Syria. [1] King of Syria.

7 (f) And there shall stand of the bud of her roots a plant: and he shall come with an army, and shall enter the province of the king of the North: and he shall abuse them, and shall obtain.

(f) Ptolomeus Evergetes King of Aegypt invaded and spoiled Syria.

8 Moreover also their gods, and sculptiles, the precious vessels also of gold, and silver, he shall carry away captive into Aegypt: he shall prevail against the king of the North. 9 And the king of the South shall enter into the kingdom, and shall return to his own land. 10 And (g) his sons shall be provoked, and they shall gather a multitude of very many hosts: and he shall come hastening, and overflowing: and he shall return and be stirred up, and he shall join battle with his force.

(g) Seleucus Ceraunus, and Antiochus Magnus sons of Seleucus Callinicus shall raise new wars against Ptolomeus Philopator King of Aegypt, but the elder brother being slain in the way, Antiochus shall prosecute the war.

11 And the king of the South being provoked shall go forth, and shall fight against the king of the North, & shall prepare an exceeding great multitude, and a multitude shall be given into his hands. 12 And he shall take a multitude, and his heart shall be exalted, and he shall overthrow many thousands: (h) but he shall not prevail.

(h) He shall invade and kill many, but not prevail.

13 For the king of the North shall return, and shall prepare a multitude much greater than before: & in the end of times, & years, he shall come hastening with a great host, and riches exceeding much. 14 And in those times many shall rise up against the king of the South, (i) the children also of the prevaricators of thy people shall be extolled to fulfill the vision, and they shall fall. [1]

(i) Many Jews deceived by Onias flying into Aegypt shall erect a temple and sacrifice, falsely avouching that they fulfil the prophecy of Isaie. ch. 19. v. 19. [1] Isa. 19. v. 19.

15 And the king of the North shall come, and shall cast up a mount, and shall take the best fenced cities: & the arms of the South shall not sustain, and his chosen shall rise up to resist, & there shall be no strength. 16 And he shall do coming upon him according to his pleasure, and there shall be none to stand against his face: and he shall stand in a noble land, & it shall be consumed in his hand. 17 And he shall set his face to come to possess all his kingdom, & he shall do right things with him: and he shall give unto him a daughter of women, to overthrow it: and she shall not stand neither shall she be his. 18 And he shall turn his face to the islands, & shall take many: and he shall make the prince of his reproach to cease, and his reproach shall be returned upon him. 19 And he shall turn his face to the empire of his own land, and he shall stumble, and fall, & shall not be found. 20 And there shall stand in his place one most vile, & unworthy of kingly honour: & in few days he shall be destroyed, not in fury nor in battle. 21 And (k) there shall stand in his place one despised, and kingly honour shall not be given him: and he shall come secretly, and shall obtain the kingdom by fraud.

(k) According to the history all expositers understand this of Antiochus Epiphanes, who lived and died basely: but mystically of Antichrist, very potent & glorious in this world, yet shall have base beginning and an ignominious end.

22 And the arms of him that fighteth shall be expugned from before his face, and shall be broken: moreover also the prince (l) of the league.

(l) This title Prince of the league or covenant, pertaineth directly to Antichrist: who will join himself with the Jews pretending to observe the law of Moyses and so they will receive him as their Messias. Ioan. 5. v. 43. S. Ireneus li. 5. c. 25. S. Ierom. & alii.

23 And after the amities, he shall work deceit with him: and he shall go up, and shall overcome with few people. 24 And he shall enter abundant and plentiful cities: & he shall do things that his fathers never did, & his fathers' fathers: their robberies, and prey, & riches he shall dissipate, and shall devise devices against the best fenced: and this until a time. 25 And his strength & his heart shall be stirred up against the king of the South in a great army: and the king of the South shall be provoked to battle with many aids, and exceeding strong: & they shall not stand because they shall take counsels against him. 26 And they that eat bread with him, shall destroy him, and his army shall be oppressed: & there shall fall slain very many. 27 The heart also of the two kings shall be to evil, and at one table they shall speak lies, and they shall not prosper: because as yet the end unto another time. 28 And he shall return into his land with much riches: and his heart against the holy testament, and he shall prosper and shall return into his own land. 29 At the time appointed he shall return, and he shall come to the South, and the later end shall not be like to the former. 30 And there shall come upon him galleys, and the Romans, and he shall be strucken, and shall return, and shall fret against the testament of the sanctuary, and he shall speed: and shall return, and shall devise against them, that have forsaken the testament of the sanctuary. 31 And of him shall stand (m) arms, and shall pollute the sanctuary of strength, and shall take away the continual sacrifice: and they shall give abomination into desolation.

(m) Even in the hottest persecution of Antiochus, Nero, or Antichrist, some shall constantly confess true religion.

32 And the impious against the testament shall dissemble fraudulently: but the people that knoweth their God, shall obtain, and shall do. 33 And the learned in the people shall teach very many: and they shall fall by sword, and by flame, and by captivity, and by spoil of days. 34 And when they are fallen, they shall be relieved with a little aid: and very many shall be joined to them feignedly. 35 And of the learned there shall fall, that they may be tried, and may be chosen, and made white even to the time prefixed: because yet there shall be another time. 36 And the king shall do according to his will, and shall be elevated, & magnified against every god: and against the God of gods he shall speak magnifical things, & shall be directed, till the wrath be accomplished: for the determination is made. 37 And the God of his fathers he shall not account of: and he shall be in the concupiscences of women, neither shall he care for any of the gods: because he shall rise up against all things. 38 But god (n) Maozim he shall worship in his place: and the god whom his fathers knew not, he shall worship with gold, and silver, and precious stone, and precious things.

(n) The god of power or strength, either Jupiter the Grecians' great god, or their own strength, wherein Antiochus, & Antichrist shall trust.

39 And he shall do it to fence Maozim with a strange god, whom he acknowledged, and he shall multiply glory, and shall give them power in many, and shall divide the land gratis. 40 And in the time prefixed shall the king of the South make battle against him, & as a tempest shall the king of the North come against him in chariots, and in horsemen, and in a great navy, and he shall enter the lands, and shall destroy, and pass through. 41 And he shall enter into the glorious land, and many shall fall: but these only shall be saved out of his hand, Edom, and Moab, and the beginning of the children of Ammon. 42 And he shall lay his hand upon the lands: and the Land of Aegypt shall not escape. 43 And he shall rule over the treasures of gold, and of silver, and in all the precious things of Aegypt: through Libya also, and Aethiopia he shall pass. 44 And a bruit shall trouble him from the East, and from the North: and he shall come in a great multitude to destroy and kill very many. 45 And he shall pitch his tabernacle (o) Apadno between the seas, upon a mount glorious and holy: and he shall come even to the top thereof, and no man shall help him.

(o) His royal tabernacle or palace, between the dead sea & the Mediterranean.

CHAPTER XII.

The Angel describeth the persecution of Antiochus, as the figure; & of Antichrist prefigured. 6. The shortness also of his reign is clearly prophesied.

BUT in that time shall rise up (a) Michael the great prince, who standeth for the children of thy people: and a time shall come such as hath not been from the time since nations began even until that time. And in that time shall thy people be saved, every one that shall be found written in the book.

(a) S. Michael the Guardian Angel & protector of the Jews in the old Testament. c. 10. v. 13. & 21. & now of the Church of Christ, will defend the same against Antichrist invisibly as the Ecclesiastical pastors shall do visibly.

2 And many of those, that sleep in the dust of the earth, shall awake: (b) some unto life everlasting, & others unto reproach to see it always.

(b) All shall rise in body, but all shall not be changed into better. 1. Cor. 15. v. 51.

3 But they that be learned [1] shall shine as the brightness of the firmament: and they that instruct many to justice, (c) as stars unto perpetual eternities.

[1] * in the law of God. (c) A glorious Aureola or accidental reward (besides the essential beatitude) shall be given to those that duly perform the office of pastors, in teaching others, as there is another like to Martyrs, & another to Virgins.

4 But thou Daniel (d) shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time appointed: very many shall pass over, and there shall be manifest knowledge.

(d) Daniel's prophecy is shut & sealed, not to be interpreted by human wit, but by the spirit of God, wherewith the Church is illuminated, taught, governed, moved, & vivificated: S. Iero. in Gal.

5 And I^ Daniel saw, and behold there stood as it were two others: one on this side upon the bank of the river, and another on that side, on the other bank of the river. 6 And I said to the man, that was clothed with linen garments, that stood upon the waters of the river: How long the end of these marvels? 7 And I heard the man, that was clothed with the linen garments, that stood upon the waters of the river, when he had lifted up his right hand, & his left hand unto heaven, and had sworn by him that liveth for ever, that unto (e) a time, & times, & the half of a time. And when the dispersion of the hand of the holy people shall be accomplished, all these things shall be accomplished.

(e) A time ordinarily signifieth one year, as ch. 4. v. 13. so here is signified the space of three years and a half, as. ch. 7. and Apo. 12. v. 14. &c.

8 And I heard, & understood not. And I said: My Lord, what shall be after these things? 9 And he said: Go Daniel, because the words are shut up, and sealed until the prefixed time. 10 Many shall be chosen, and made white, & shall be tried as fire: and the impious shall do impiously, neither shall all the impious understand, but the learned shall understand. 11 And from the time (f) when the continual sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination to desolation shall be set up, [1] a thousand two hundred ninety days.

(f) From the taking away of the daily sacrifice, and placing of abomination (to wit the practice of heresy) to desolation, that is, abolishing of much as is possible, the holy Sacrifice of Mass, to the end of that persecution shall be 1290. days. [1] Mat. 24.

12 Blessed is he that expecteth, and cometh unto days (g) a thousand three hundred thirty five.

(g) Why 45. days are added to the former number, is marvelous obscure: neither may we presume amongst diverse expositions, to censure which seemeth most probable.

13 But thou (h) go, until the time prefixed: and thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot unto the end of the days.

(h) But we are content to go away with Daniel (v. 9. and 13.) without further searching the profound sense of so high mysteries.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XII.

7. Unto a time, and times, and half a time.] Our Saviour saying (Mat. 24. v. 22.) that the days (of Antichrist's great persecution) shall be shortened: and Apoc. 17. v. 10. the great persecutor that is to come, must tarry a short time, it is necessary to say, that the time of the same persecutor here signified to Daniel, as also before ch. 7 v. 25. & repeated Apoc. 12. v. 14. by these terms of a time, &

[1] Antichrist's persecution shall not be long.

[2] Ancient fathers understand this term to be three years and a half. Agreeable to other scriptures.

times, and half a time, cannot possibly import any long time. [1] [2] And therefore the ancient Fathers uniformly understand by a time one year, by times two years, and so by half a time half a year. [3] Which is some what more clear in other terms, in this ch. v. 11. by a thousand two hundred ninety days, & v. 12. a thousand three hundred thirty days, & Apoc. 11. v. 3. Two witnesses shall prophesy (Against Antichrist) a thousand two hundred sixty days: Apoc. 12. v. 6. The Church shall be fed in the wilderness, the same number of days 1260. But most clearly Apoc. 11. v. 2. & Apoc. 13. v. 5. this great persecution shall endure 42. months, that is, three years & a half. [4]

Hitherto we read Daniel in the Hebrew volume. That which followeth even to the end of the Book, is translated out of Theodotion's Edition.

CHAPTER XIII.

Two old judges overcome with carnal concupiscence, tempt chaste Susanna: 22. who constantly resisting, 27, is by them falsely accused, 41. and condemned of adultery. 45. Daniel convinceth them of false testimony, 60. and they are punished with death. [1]

Other histories not now extant in Hebrew.

AND (a) there was a man dwelling in Babylon, and his name Joakim:

(a) S. Athanasius in Synopsi, reciteth this history in the beginning of Daniel. And S. Aug. ser. 242. de tem. supposeth that Daniel about the age of twelve years endued with the spirit of prophecy, discovered the malicious falsehood of them, that accused Susanna.

2 & he took a wife named Susanna, the daughter of Helcias exceeding fair, and fearing God. 3 For her parents being just, instructed their daughter according to the law of Moyses. 4 And Joakim was very rich, and he had an orchard near unto his house: and to him the Jews resorted together, because he was the more honorable of all. 5 And there were (b) two ancients appointed judges in that year, of whom our Lord spake: That iniquities came out of Babylon from the senior judges, that seemed to rule the people.

(b) In the transmigration which was made in the third year of Ioakim King of Juda, the Jews were better entreated, and had their own judicial tribunal, and other privileges, until the captivity, which happened about 19. years after, in the eleventh year of Sedecias. At which time they were brought into much more bondage.

6 These frequented the house of Joakim, and all that had judgements came to them. 7 And when the people returned at noon, Susanna went in, and walked in her husband's orchard. 8 and the ancients saw her daily going in, and walking: and they were inflamed to the concupiscence of her: 9 and they subverted their sense, and declined their eyes that they would not see heaven, nor remember just judgements. 10 They were both therefore wounded with the love of her, neither did they shew their grief one to the other: 11 for they were ashamed to shew one another their concupiscence, being desirous to lie with her: 12 and they watched every day carefully to see her. And one said to the other: 13 Let us go home, because it is the hour of dinner. And going forth they departed one from another. 14 And when they were returned, they came into one place: and asking of each other the cause, they confessed their concupiscence: and then in commune they appointed a time, when they might find her alone. 15 And it came to pass, when they observed a fit day, she went in on a time as yesterday and the day before, with two maids only, & would be washed in the orchard: for it was an hot season.
16 And there was none there, but the two ancients hid, & beholding her. 17 She therefore said to the maids: Fetch me oil, and washing balls, and shut the doors of the orchard, that I may be washed. 18 And they did as she had commanded: and they shut the doors of the orchard, and went out by a back door to fetch the thing that she had commanded; and they knew not that the ancients were hid within. 19 But when the maids were gone forth, the two ancients arose, and ran to her, and said: 20 Lo the doors of the orchard be shut, and nobody seeth us, and we are in the concupiscence of thee: wherefore consent to us, and lie with us. 21 and if thou wilt not, we will give testimony against thee, that there was a young man with thee, and for this cause thou didst send out thy maids from thee. 22 Susanna sighed, and said: Perplexities are to me on every side: for if I shall do this, it is death to me: and if I do it not, I shall not escape your hands. 23 But it is better for me without the act to fall into your hands, than to sin in the sight of our Lord. 24 And Susanna cried out with a loud voice: but the ancients also cried out against her. 25 And one ran to the door of the orchard, and opened it. 26 when the servants therefore of the house had heard the cry in the orchard, they rushed in by the back door, to see what it was. 27 And after the ancients spake, the servants were ashamed exceedingly: because never had there been such a word said of Susanna. And the morrow came. 28 And when the people was come to Joakim her husband, the two ancients also came full of unjust cogitation against Susanna, to put her to death. 29 And they said (c) before the people: Send to Susanna daughter of Helcias the wife of Joakim. And forthwith they sent.

(c) For more colour of just proceeding, these wicked men gave their false testimony & sentence before the people.

30 And she came with her parents, and children, and all her kin. 31 Moreover Susanna was exceeding delicate, and beautiful of face. 32 But those wicked men commanded that she should be uncovered (for she was covered) that so at least they might be satisfied with her beauty. 33 Her friends therefore wept, & all that had known her. 34 But the two ancients rising up in the midst of the people, laid their hands upon her head. 35 Who weeping looked up to heaven, for her heart had confidence in our Lord. 36 And the ancients said: When we walked alone in the orchard, this woman came in with two maids, and shut the doors of the orchard: and she sent away the maids from her. 37 And a young man that was hid came to her, and lay with her. 38 But we being in a corner of the orchard, seeing the iniquity, ran to them, and saw them lie together. 39 And him indeed we could not take, because he was stronger than we, and opening the doors he lept out: 40 but her when we apprehended, we asked what youngman it was, and she would not tell us, of this thing we are witnesses. 41 The multitude believed them as the ancients and the judges of the people, and (d) they condemned her to death.

(d) The people gave their opinions that she deserved death, but the false Judges gave sentence. For so the form of the law required, which they pretended to fulfill. Lev. 20. Deut. 22.

42 But Susanna cried out with a loud voice, and said: Eternal God, which art the knower of hidden things before they come to pass, 43 thou knowest that they have borne false witness against me: and lo I die, whereas I have done none of these things, which these men have maliciously forged against me. 44 And our Lord heard her voice. 45 and when she was led to death, our Lord (e) raised up the holy spirit of a young boy, whose name was Daniel:

(e) Daniel by the gift of prophecy saw & declared that she was innocent.

46 and he cried out with a loud voice: (f) I am clean from the blood of this woman.

(f) Whereas therefore the people had consented to her death, he denied his consent, & undertook to convince the false witnesses: as he did. v. 54. & 58.

47 And all the people turning to him, said: What is this word, that thou hast spoken? 48 Who when he stood in the midst of them, said: So foolish ye children of Israel, not judging, nor discerning that which is the truth, have you condemned the daughter of Israel? 49 Return ye to judgement, because they have spoken false testimony against her. 50 The people therefore returned with speed, and the ancients said to him: Come, and sit in the midst of us, and tell us: because God hath given thee the honour of old age. 51 And Daniel said to the people: Separate them far one from another, and I will discover them. 52 When they were therefore divided one from the other, he called one of them, and said to him: O thou inveterated of evil days, now are thy sins come, which thou didst commit before: 53 judging unjust judgements, oppressing innocents, and dismissing offenders, our Lord saying: The innocent and the just thou shalt not kill.[1]

[1] Iere. 22. v. 3. Exo. 23. v. 7.

54 Now then if thou sawest her, tell under what tree thou sawest them talking together. Who said: Under a schine tree. 55 And Daniel said: Well hast thou lied against thine own head: for behold the Angel of God taking the sentence of him, shall cut thee in the midst. 56 And removing him away, he commanded that the other should come, and he said to him: Seed of Chanaan, and not of Juda, beauty hath deceived thee, and concupiscence hath subverted thy heart: 57 so did you to the daughters of Israel, and they fearing spake to you: but the daughter of Juda did not abide your iniquity. 58 Now therefore tell me, under what tree thou tookest them speaking one to another. Who said: Under a prine tree. 59 And Daniel said to him: Well hast thou also lied against thine own head: for the Angel of our Lord tarrieth, having a sword, that he may cut thee in the midst, and kill you. 60 Therefore all the assembly cried out with a loud voice, and they blessed God, which saveth them that hope in him.

61 And they rose up against the two elders (for Daniel had convinced them by their own mouth to have given false testimony) and they did to them as they had dealt naughtily against their neighbour, 62 to do according to the law of Moyses: & they killed them, and innocent blood was saved in that day.[1]

[1] Deu. 19. v. 19.

63 But Helcias, and his wife praised God, for their daughter Susanna, with Joakim her husband, and all her kin, because there was no unhonest thing found in her. 64 And (g) Daniel became great in the sight of the people from that day, & thence forward.

(g) By this first prophetical act, Daniel began worthily to be esteemed.

65 (h) And king Astyages was laid to his fathers, & Cyrus the Persian received his kingdom.

(h) This last verse, of Astyages otherwise called Darius, and of Cyrus succeeding him, pertaineth to the ninth chapter. And here mention is made of them, to signify that Daniel beginning to prophesy in his childhood, continued even to old age. For between this history of Susanna and the death of Darius were about ninety years.

CHAPTER XIV.

Daniel detecteth the fraud of Bel's Priests: who pretend that Bel eateth much meat: 21. for which they are slain, and the idol destroyed. 22. Likewise he destroyeth a dragon, which the Babylonians held for a god. 27. He is cast into the lake of seven lions: 32. whither Habacuc miraculously bringeth him meat: 39. the lions hurt him not: and his accusers are devoured.

AND Daniel was (a) the king's guest, and honoured above all his friends.

(a) It seemeth most probable that this King was Evilmerodach, who favoured the Jews, and delivered Jechonias (otherwise called Ioachin) out of prison. 4. Reg. 25. v. 27.

2 [1] There was also an idol among the Babylonians named Bel: and there were bestowed on him every day of flour twelve [2] arctabaes, and forty sheep, and of wine six great pots.

[1] Gen. 10. v. 10. [2] * amphorae.

3 The king also did worship him, and went every day to adore him: But (b) Daniel adored his God. & the king said to him: Why dost thou not adore Bel.

(b) Which supposed, Daniel was now about the age of 55. years. For being carried into Babylon at the age of ten years, was there 8. years before Ioachin, who was there 37. years before he was delivered from prison, which make in all 55.

4 Who answering, said to him: Because I worship not idols made with hand, but the living God, that created heaven, and earth, and hath power over all flesh.

5 And the king said to him: Doeth not Bel seem unto thee to be a living God? Seest thou not how much he eateth and drinketh every day? 6 And Daniel smiling said: Be not deceived o king: For this same is within of clay, and without of brass, neither hath he eaten at any time. 7 And the king being wrath called his priests, & said to them: Unless you tell me, who it is that eateth these expenses, you shall die. 8 But if you shew, that Bel eateth these things Daniel shall die, because he hath blasphemed against Bel. And Daniel said to the king: Be it done according to thy word. 9 And the priests of Bel were seventy, beside their wives, and little ones, & children. And the king came with Daniel into the temple of Bel. 10 And the priests of Bel said: Behold we go forth: & thou o king set the meats, & mingle the wine, & shut the door, & seal it with thy ring: 11 and when thou shalt come in the morning, unless thou find all eaten of Bel, dying we will die, or Daniel that hath lied against us. 12 And they contemned, because they had made under the table a secret entrance, & by it they came in always, and devoured those things. 13 It came to pass therefore after they were gone out, the king set the meats before Bel: & Daniel commanded his servants, and they brought ashes, and he sifted them over all the temple before the king: and going forth they shut the door, and sealing it with the king's ring, they departed. 14 But the priests went in by night, according to their custom, and their wives, and their children: and they did eat, and drink all. 15 And the king arose in the first break of day, and Daniel with him. 16 And the king said: Are the seals safe, Daniel? Who answered: Safe o king. 17 And forthwith when he had opened the door, the king looking on the table, cried out with a loud voice: Great art thou o Bel, and there is not any deceit with thee. 18 And Daniel laughed: and he held the king that he should not go in: and he said: Behold the pavement, mark whose steps these are. 19 And the king said: I see the steps of men, & women, and of infants. And the king was angry. 20 Then apprehended he the priests, & their wives, & their children: and they shewed him secret little doors by which they came in, & consumed the things that were on the table. 21 The king therefore slew them, & he delivered Bel into the power of Daniel: who overthrew him, & his temple. 22 And (c) there was a great dragon in that place, & the Babylonians worshipped him.

(c) Not only the Babylonians as is manifest in many places, but also the Romans and most nations worshipped Bel for a great god: But it is more wonderful that both the Chaldees and the Romans, otherwise most wise, worshipped a serpent, or dragon, a beast naturally most hating men, & most abhorred by all men. The cause of this blindness can be no other but God's just punishment, suffering them for their abominable pride, and other sins to fall into sottish conceits, as to think, that serpents could either greatly benefit them, or by such worship be appeased, and cease from annoying them. As Valerius writeth. li. 1. c. 8. S. Augustine also li. 14. c. 11. Civit. & many others testify the same.

23 And the king said to Daniel: Lo now thou canst not say, that this same is not a living god: adore him therefore. 24 And Daniel said: The Lord my God I do adore: because he is the living God: 25 but thou o king give me licence, and I will kill the dragon without sword and club. And the king said: I give thee licence. 26 Daniel therefore took pitch, and fat, and hairs, and sod them together: & he made lumps, and gave into the dragon's mouth, & the dragon burst in sunder. And he said: Lo whom you worshipped. 27 Which when the Babylonians had heard, they were wrath exceedingly: and being gathered together against the king, they said: The king is become a Jew. Bel he hath destroyed, the dragon he hath killed, & he hath slain the priests. 28 And they said when they were come to the king: Deliver us Daniel, otherwise we will kill thee, & thy house. 29 The king therefore saw that they pressed upon him vehemently: and compelled by necessity he delivered Daniel to them. 30 Who cast him into the lake of lions, and he was there six days. 31 Moreover in the lake were seven lions, & there were given to them two bodies every day, & two sheep: and they were not given unto them, that they might devour Daniel. 32 And there was (d) Habacuc a prophet in Jewry, & he had boiled broth, & had broken bread in a bowl: and he went into the field, to carry it to the reapers.

(d) Although about 20. years before, there was no Prophet in Jury (ch. 3. v. 38.) yet now this Habacuc was endued with the spirit of prophecy. As for Habacuc, the eighth in order of the less Prophets, he prophesied before the captivity: yea before the Chaldees became a Monarchy. As appeareth Hab. 1. v. 6.

33 And the Angel of our Lord said to Habacuc: Carry the dinner which thou hast, into Babylon to Daniel, who is in the lake of lions. 34 And Habacuc said: Lord, Babylon I have not seen, and the lake I know not.
35 And the Angel of our Lord took him by the top of his head, and carried him by the hair of his head, & put him into Babylon over the lake in the force of his spirit. 36 And Habacuc cried, saying: Daniel, take the dinner that God hath sent to thee. 37 And Daniel said: Thou hast remembered me o God, and hast not forsaken them that love thee. 38 And Daniel rising up did eat. Moreover the Angel of our Lord restored Habacuc forthwith in his place. 39 The king therefore came the seventh day to lament Daniel: and he came to the lake, and looked in, and behold Daniel sitting in the midst of the lions. 40 And the king cried out with a loud voice, saying: Great art thou o Lord the God of Daniel. And he drew him out of the lake of lions.
41 But those that had been the cause of his perdition, he cast into the lake, and they were devoured in a moment before him. 42 Then the king said: Let all inhabitants in the whole earth fear the God of Daniel: because he is the Saviour, doing signs, & marvels in the earth: who hath delivered Daniel out of the lions' den.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE TWELVE LESS PROPHECIES.

[1][2] WHY Isai, Jeremie, Ezechiel, and Daniel are called the four greater Prophets, & these twelve the less, there seemeth no other certain and proper reason, but because they writ more largely, and these more briefly. For otherwise without essential difference, all the sixteen, as also Baruch (whose Book is inserted with Jeremie's) and Moyses, Samuel, the Royal Psalmist David, Nathan, Elias, Elizeus, Esdras, Nehemias, & many others, some writing Books, some not, were absolutely true Prophets of God,[3] endued with the holy spirit of prophecy; had the like revelations, with the same assurance of truth, in great part of the same Mysteries, as well pertaining to the old Testament, as to the New. And so these twelve, contracted into the straitness of one volume (saith S. Jerom.)[4] multo aliud, quam sonant in litera, praefigurant: Prefigurate a far other thing, than they sound in the letter. [5]Signifying, as he elsewhere explicateth, that they do foreshew many important things, not only pertaining to the Jews, and some other peoples of those former times, but also of all nations to be converted to Christ. They were not all at one time: [6]but Osee, Ioel, Amos, Abdias, Jonas, & Micheas, prophesied before the captivity of the ten Tribes. [7]Nahum, Habacuc, & Sophonias, after that captivity, & before the captivity of the two Tribes. And the other three Aggaeus, Zacharias, and Malachie, after the relaxation from captivity. Neither did they all prophesy in the same places: nor concerning the same people; and so have their particular arguments, as we shall briefly note of every one, as they follow in order.

[1] Four are called the greater Prophets, and twelve the less.

[2] S. Iero. Prologo. li. Reg. S. Aug. li. c. 18. c. 29. civit. Theod. Isidorus.

[3] All these and many others were as properly Prophets as the chiefest.

[4] Epist. ad Paulin.

[5] In Osee. 1.

[6] Of these 12, six prophesied before the captivity of the 10. tribes.

[7] Other three also before the captivity of the two tribes, & three after the relaxation.

Here we may note for instruction of the vulgar reader, that the Prophets commonly use one of these names, when they direct their speech of the◦ tribes.

◦ Special names signifying the Kingdom of two

Kingdom of two Tribes. ⌜Juda, Benjamin, Jerusalem, or The house of David.⌟

Because Juda was the chief, and most worthy tribe. Benjamin the other only tribe (besides Levi) that joined with Juda. Jerusalem the Metropolitan & Royal city, where both the Temple, and King's palace were situated. The House of David is the family, whereof succeeded all the Kings of that Kingdom, so long as it stood; and of which some remained in more estimation than any other even to Christ.

Likewise they use some of these other names, when they speak of the◦ ◦ Others signifying the ten tribes.

Kingdom of ten Tribes. ⌜Ephraim, Joseph, Samaria, Jezrahel, Bethel, or Bethaven.⌟

For that their first King Jeroboam was of the tribe of Ephraim, and so descended from Joseph; Samaria, and Jezrahel were the chiefest cities of that Kingdom; Bethel was one of the places (Dan both Kingdoms.

the other) where Jeroboam set up the two calves. Which place was otherwise, and more truly called Bethaven, the house of the idol, or of vanity, or iniquity. ◦The names also of Israel and Jacob, were more commonly used for the ten tribes; who being more in number, usurped and appropriated to themselves the names of their general Progenitor and Patriarch. Yet sometimes these names import all the twelve tribes, including also Levi. And sometimes, especially after the captivity of the ten tribes, these names signify the two tribes only: which more imitated Jacob's steps and virtues, than the ten.

THE PROPHECY OF OSEE.

[1] Osee of the tribe of Issachar prophesieth the captivity of both Kingdoms.

[2] De vita & interitu prophetar. 4. Reg. 17. S. Iero. Ep. ad Paulin.

[3] Their relaxation.

[4] And coming of Christ.

[1] OSEE born in Belomoth (as writeth S. Epiphanius) [2] of the tribe of Issachar, prophesied in the reign of Ozias (otherwise called Azarias) Joathan, Achaz, Ezechias, Kings of Juda, and of Jeroboam the son of Joas King of Israel; and of the residue of the Kings of Israel, even to their captivity, which happened in the sixth year of Ezechias King of Juda. This Prophet taking by God's commandment a fornicatrix to wife, and having children that became also fornicators, by these figures, and by a widow long expecting another husband, and the like parables, and other preaching, admonisheth both the Kingdoms of Israel and Juda, that for their obstinacy in sins, they shall fall, first the one and afterwards the other, into miserable captivity. Exhorteth them to repentance; [3] foresheweth their release; [4] and the coming of Christ our Redeemer, with aboundance of grace, and benefits to all nations.

CHAPTER I.

In signification of the people's idolatry, the Prophet marrieth a fornicatrix: 4. by his children's names foresheweth their great and long captivity: 11. And afterwards their redemption together with all nations.

The word of our Lord, that was made to Osee the son of Beeri, in the days of Ozias, Joathan, Achaz, Ezechias, kings of Juda, and in the days (a) of Jeroboam the son of Joas king of Israel.

(a) This Jeroboam King of Israel died 26. years before Ozias: whereby appeareth that Osee prophesied before Isaie: who began near the end of Ozias' reign. Isa. 6.

2 The beginning to our Lord of speaking in Osee: and our Lord said to Osee: Go, take thee a wife (b) of fornications, and [1] make children (c) of fornications: because the land fornicating shall fornicate from the Lord.

(b) Take a woman that hath been a fornicatrix: [1] * beget.
(c) and beget children, which will also be fornicators.

3 And he went, and took Gomer the daughter of Debelaim: and she conceived, and bare him a son.

4 And our Lord said to him: Call his name Jezrahel: because yet a little while, and I will visit the blood (d) of Jezrahel upon the house of Jehu, and I will make the kingdom of the house of Israel to cease.

(d) The issue of Jehu now reigning, solicited the 10. tribes called Jezrahel to idolatry, which God here saith he will revenge.

5 And in that day I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezrahel. 6 And she conceived yet again, and bare a daughter, and he said to him: Call her name, Without mercy: because I will add no more to have mercy on the house of Israel, but with oblivion I will forget them.[1]

[1] 4. Reg. 19.

7 And I will have mercy on the house of Juda, and will save them in the Lord their God: and I will not save them in bow and sword, and in battle, & in horses, and in horsemen. 8 And she weaned her that was, Without mercy. And she conceived, and bare a son. 9 And he said: Call his name, Not my people: because you not my people, and I will not be yours.

10 And the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, that is without measure, and shall not be numbered. And it shall be in place where it shall be said to them: Not my people you: it shall be said to them: (e) Children of the living God.

(e) Among many sinners, some are the elected children of God, whom he will call to grace & repentance.

11 And the children of Juda, and the children of Israel shall be gathered together: and they shall set to themselves, (f) one head, and shall ascend out of the earth: because great is the day of Jezrahel.

(f) All the faithful have one head, our Saviour Christ.

CHAPTER II.

He admonisheth the two tribes of their sins, threatening their captivity in Babylon. 1. Sheweth the aboundance of grace in the Church of Christ, and multitude of nations to be converted.

Say (a) ye to your brethren: My people: and to your sister, She that hath obtained mercy.

(a) Ye people of Juda disdain not to call the ten tribes & the Gentiles your brethren and sisters. For God will make them also his people, as appeareth in the Gospel, more of the ten tribes than of the other Kingdom believed in Christ: & afterwards more of the Gentiles, than of the Jews.

2 Judge your mother, judge ye: because she not my wife, and I not her husband. Let her take away fornications from her face, and her adulteries from the midst of her breasts. 3 Lest perhaps I strip her naked, and set her according to the day of her nativity: and I will lay her as a wilderness, and will set her as a land unpassable, and will kill her with drought. 4 And (b) I will not have mercy on her children: because they are the children of fornications:

(b) God will not withdraw his punishments till the sinners be penitent.

5 because their mother hath fornicated, she is confounded that conceived them: because she said: I will go after my lovers, that give me my breads, & my waters, my wool, and my flax, mine oil, & my drink. 6 For this behold I will hedge thy way with thorns, and I will hedge it with a wall, & she shall not find her paths. 7 And she shall follow her lovers, and shall not overtake them: and she shall seek them, and shall not find, and she shall say: I will go, and will return to my former husband: because it was well with me then, more than now. 8 And she did not know that I gave her corn, and wine, and oil, and multiplied silver unto her, & gold, which they have made to Baal. 9 Therefore will I return, and will take my corn in his time, and my wine in his time, and I will deliver my wool, and my flax, which covered her ignominy. 10 And now I will reveal her folly in the eyes of her lovers: and there shall not a man deliver her out of my hand: 11 and I will make all her joy to cease, her solemnity, her new-moon, her sabbath, & all her festival times. 12 And I will destroy her vine, and her figtree, of which she said: These are my rewards, which my lovers have given me: and I will lay her as a forest, & the beast of the field shall eat her. 13 And I will visit upon her the days of Baalim, to whom she burnt incense, and was adorned with her earlet, and with her tablet, & went after her lovers, & forgot me, saith our Lord. 14 (c) For this, lo I will allure her, and will lead her into the wilderness: and I will speak to her heart.

(c) God's mercy preventeth by his grace offered to sinners that they may convert to him if they will.

15 And I will give her dressers of vines out of the same place, and the vale of Achor to open hope: and she shall sing there according to the days of her youth, and according to the days of her ascending out of the Land of Aegypt. 16 And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord: She shall call me: My husband, and she shall call me no more, Baalim. 17 And I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth, and she shall no more remember their name. 18 And I will make with them a league in that day, with the beast of the field, and with the fowl of the heaven, and with that, which creepeth on the earth: and bow, and sword, and battle I will destroy out of the earth: and will make them sleep confidently. 19 And I will despouse thee to me for ever: and I will despouse thee to me in justice, and judgement, and in mercy, and in commiserations. 20 And I will despouse thee to me in faith: and thou shalt know that I am the Lord. 21 And it shall be in that day: I will hear, saith our Lord, I will hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth. 22 And the earth shall hear wheat, and wine, and oil: and these shall hear Jezrahel. 23 And I will sow her unto me into the earth, and (d) I will have mercy on her, that was without mercy.

(d) The Apostles S. Paul. Rom. 9. v. 25. and S. Peter. ep. 1. c. 2. v. 10. expound this place of the conversion of Gentiles to Christ.

24 And I will say to Not my people: My people art thou: and it shall say: Thou art my God.

CHAPTER III.

The Prophet is commanded again to love an adultress: 3. whom he maketh long to expect her husband: to signify God's love to the Synagogue: 4. and the Jews state in the new testament: 5. Who at last shall be converted to Christ.

And our Lord said to me: Yet again go, love a woman beloved of her friend, and an adulteress; (a) as our Lord loveth the children of Israel, and they have respect to strange gods, and love the kernels of grapes.

(a) Notwithstanding sinners forsake God, yet he offereth them new grace, never hating the persons, but their sins.

2 And I [1] digged her unto me for (b) fifteen pieces of silver, and for a core of barley, and for half a core of barley.

[1] * bought. (b) The Jews not believing in Christ, but expecting his coming, and in the mean time abstaining from service of idols, receive of God temporal poor means to live, not 30. pieces of silver, and three cores of wheat, that is, believing in the B. Trinity, and keeping the ten commandments, they might possess life everlasting, but half so much: neither wheat but barley, till near the end of the world: when they shall be converted to Christ.

3 And I said to her: Thou shalt expect me many days: thou shalt not fornicate, and thou shalt be no man's: but I also will expect thee. 4 Because many days shall the children of Israel sit without king, and without prince, and without sacrifice, and without altar, and without ephod, and without (c) theraphim.

(c) Theraphim signifying images good or bad, being here joined with King, Prince, sacrifice, altar, & ephod, must needs signify lawful images, such as were religiously used in the temple of God. 3. Reg. 7. v. 36.

5 And after this the children of Israel shall return, and shall seek the Lord their God, and David their king: and they shall dread at the Lord, and at his goodness in the last days.

CHAPTER IV.

Diverse great sins of both Kingdoms, 3. are the cause of great punishments threatened, 15. yet the sins of Juda are less excusable, because they have more means to serve God.

Hear the word of our Lord ye (a) children of Israel, because there is judgement to our Lord with the inhabitants of the land: for there is no truth, and there is no mercy, and there is (b) no knowledge of God in the land.

(a) Children of Israel import the whole people of the ten, & two tribes, so he speaketh to all till. v. 15. (b) Knowledge of God includeth the keeping of his commandments For he that saith; he knoweth God, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar. 1. Ioan. 2. v. 4.

2 Cursing, and lying, and manslaughter, & theft, and adultery have overflowed, & blood hath touched blood. 3 For this shall the land mourn, and every one shall be weakened that dwelleth in it, in the beast of the field, and in the fowl of the heaven: yea and the fishes of the sea shall be gathered together. 4 But yet let not every man judge: and let not a man be rebuked: for the people are as those, that gainsay the Priest. 5 And thou shalt fall today, and the Prophet also shall fall with thee: in the night I made thy mother hold her peace. 6 My people have held their peace, because they had not knowledge: because thou hast repelled knowledge, I will repel thee, (c) that thou do not the function of priesthood unto me: and thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I also will forget thy children.

(c) Function of priests which is properly sacrifice, being taken away, all spiritual offices decay therewith.

7 According to the multitude of them so have they sinned to me: their glory I will change into ignominy. 8 They shall eat (d) the sins of my people, and at their iniquity shall lift up their souls.

(d) The hosts offered for sins.

9 And as the people, so shall the Priest be: and I will visit their ways upon them, and their cogitations I will render to them. 10 And they shall eat and shall not be filled: they have fornicated, & have not ceased: because they have forsaken our Lord in not observing. 11 Fornication, & wine, & drunkenness take away the heart. 12 My people hath asked in their wood, & their staff hath declared unto them: for (e) the spirit of fornications hath deceived them, & they have fornicated from their God.

(e) Certain sins more than others do obscure man's understanding, but spiritual fornication blindeth the heart above all other vices.

13 Upon the heads of mountains they did sacrifice, and upon little hills they burnt incense: under the oak, and the poplar-tree, and the terebinth, because the shadow thereof was good: therefore shall your daughters fornicate, and your spouses shall be adulteresses. 14 I will not visit upon your daughters when they shall fornicate, and upon your spouses when they shall commit adultery: because they themselves converst with harlots, and with the effeminate they did sacrifice, and the people not understanding shall be beaten. 15 If thou fornicate (f) o Israel, at the least let not Juda offend: and enter ye not into Galgal, and go not up into Bethaven, neither swear ye: Our Lord liveth.

(f) It was a great sin in the kingdom of Juda to commit idolatry, where they had the public true service of God in the temple, than in Israel where Jeroboam had set up calves, and forbid the people from going to Jerusalem.

16 Because Israel hath declined as a wanton cow: now will our Lord feed them, as a lamb in latitude. 17 Ephraim is partaker of idols, let him alone. 18 Their banquet is separated, with fornication they have fornicated: the protectors thereof loved to bring ignominy. 19 The spirit hath bound him in his wings, and they shall be confounded at their sacrifices.

CHAPTER V.

The Prophet reprehendeth the Priests, and Princes of both Kingdoms, for drawing the people to idolatry: 8. denouncing captivity for the same.

Hear ye this (a) o Priests, and attend ye house of Israel, and you the king's house harken: because there is judgement for you, because you are become a snare to speculation, & a net spread upon Thabor.

(a) There were no true priests in the ten tribes (3. Reg. 12.) but he calleth them by the title which they usurped, falsely pretending to do the offices of right Priests.

2 And victims you have declined into the depth: & I^ the teacher of them all. 3 I know Ephraim, & Israel is not hid from me: because now hath Ephraim fornicated, Israel is contaminated. 4 They will not give their cogitations to return to their God, because the spirit of fornications is in the midst of them, & they have not known the Lord. 5 And the arrogancy of Israel shall answer in his face: and Israel and Ephraim shall fall in their iniquity, Judas also shall fall with them. 6 In their flocks and in their herds they shall go to seek the Lord, and shall not find: he is taken away from them. 7 They have prevaricated against the Lord, because they have begotten strange children: now shall a month devour them with their parts.

8 (b) Sound with the trumpet in Gabaa, & with the shalm in Rama: howl ye in Bethaven, behind thy back o Benjamin.

(b) The captivity is here described not only in bare words but as in fact it shall happen, with tumults of war, sounding of trumpets, crying, howling &c.

9 Ephraim shall be in desolation in the day of correction: in the tribes of Israel I have shewed faith. 10 The princes of Juda are become as they that take the bound: I will pour out my wrath as water upon them. 11 Ephraim is suffering calumny, broken in judgement: because he began to go after filthiness. 12 And I as it were a moth to Ephraim: & as the rot to the house of Juda. 13 And Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judas his band: and Ephraim went to Assur, and sent to the king revenger: and he shall not be able to heal you, neither shall he be able to loose the band from you. 14 Because I as it were a lioness to Ephraim, and as a lion's whelp to the house of Juda: I, I will take, and go: I will take away, and there is none that can deliver. 15 Going I will return to my place: until you fail and seek my face.

CHAPTER VI.

By afflictions the people will return to God, and hope in Christ to come. 4. both the Kingdoms sinning (6. and thinking to be spared for their sacrifices, neglecting works of mercy) 7. shall be punished: 11. but at last delivered from captivity.

In their tribulation early they will rise up to me: Come, & let us return to our Lord. 2 Because he (a) hath wounded, & will heal us: he will strike, & will cure us.

(a) God who punisheth, is always ready to heal sinners, if they will repent.

3 He will revive us after two days: in (b) the third day he will raise us up, & we shall live in his sight. We shall know, & we shall follow, that we may know our Lord. As the morning light, is his coming forth prepared, and he will come to us as a shower timely, and late to the earth.

(b) S. Paul (1. Cor. 15. v. 4.) not only teaching Christ's Resurrection, but also expressly saying the third day, according to the Scriptures, seemeth to understand this place, where & in no other place, the day is so clearly expressed.

4 What shall I do to thee Ephraim? What shall I do to thee Juda? Your mercy as a morning cloud, & as the dew passing away in the morning. 5 For this have I hewed in Prophets, I have killed them in the words of my mouth: and thy judgements shall come forth as the light: 6 [1] because I would mercy, and not sacrifice: and the knowledge of God more than holocausts.

[1] Mat. 9. v. 13.

7 But they as Adam have transgressed the covenant, there have they prevaricated against me. 8 Galaad a city of them that work idol, supplanted with blood. 9 And as it were the jaws of men that are robbers, partaker with the Priests, of them that in the way kill those that pass out of Sichem: because they have wrought wickedness. 10 In the house of Israel I saw an horrible thing: there the fornications of Ephraim: Israel is contaminated. 11 Yea and thou Juda put thee an harvest, when I shall convert the captivity of my people.

CHAPTER VII.

Since Jeroboam made schism in religion, that Kingdom hath fallen into many distresses: 10. and not repenting shall endure more.

When (a) I would heal Israel, the iniquity of Ephraim was revealed, & the malice of Samaria, because they have wrought lying, & the thief hath entered in spoiling, the robber without.

(a) God punishing all the Jews by dividing their Kingdom into two (3. Reg. 12.) would have cured them: but Jeroboam King of the ten tribes drew all his people into grosser sins than before, by making a schism & setting up idols to be adored for God.

2 And lest perhaps they may say in their hearts, that I have remembered all their malice: now have their own inventions compassed them, they have been done before me. 3 In their malice they have rejoiced the king: and in their lies the princes. 4 All they committing adultery, as it were an oven heated of the baker: the city was quiet a little from the commistion of leaven, till the whole was leavened. 5 The day of our king, (b) the princes began to rage by reason of wine: he stretched out his hand with the scorners.

(b) All the chief men of the ten tribes consented to the schism & idolatry of their new King Jeroboam.

6 Because they have applied their heart as an oven, when he lay in wait for them: he slept all the night baking them, in the morning himself heated as a fire of flame. 7 All were heated as an oven, and have devoured their judges: all their kings are fallen: there is none amongst them that cryeth unto me. 8 Ephraim himself was (c) mingled in the peoples: Ephraim is become as hearth-baken-bread (d) that is not turned.

(c) Became like to pagan idolaters: (d) and impenitent.

9 Strangers have eaten his strength, & he knew not: yea hoar hairs also were poured out on him, & he was ignorant. 10 And the pride of Israel (e) shall be humbled in his face: neither did they return to the Lord their God, & they have not sought him in all these.

(e) For all these sins they shall be severely punished.

11 And Ephraim is become as a dove seduced, not having an heart: they invocated Aegypt, they went to the Assyrians. 12 And when they shall go forth, I will spread my net upon them: as a fowl of the heaven will I pluck them down, I will beat them according to the hearing of their assembly. 13 Woe to them, because they have revolted from me: they shall be wasted because they have prevaricated against me: & I redeemed them & they have spoken lies against me. 14 And they have not cried to me in their heart, but they howled in their chambers: upon wheat and wine they chewed the cud, they are revolted from me. 15 And I have taught them, and strengthened their arms: and against me they have thought malice. 16 They returned, that they might be without yoke: they became as a deceitful bow: their princes shall fall by the sword, for the fury of their tongue. This is their scorning in the Land of Aegypt.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Chaldees shall destroy the Temple. 3. But the ten tribes shall first be carried into captivity, 6. for worshiping the image of a calf.

In thy throat let there be a trumpet as an eagle upon (a) the house of the Lord: for that they have transgressed my covenant, and have prevaricated my law.

(a) The temple also in Jerusalem (though not so soon) shall be destroyed.

2 Me they shall invocate: My God, we (b) Israel have known thee.

(b) But first the ten tribes of Israel for their general idolatry shall be carried into captivity by the Assyrians. v. 9. & 4. Reg. 17.

3 Israel hath cast away the good thing, the enemy shall persecute him. 4 They have reigned, & not of me: they have been Princes, & I knew not: their silver & their gold they made idols to themselves, that they might perish. 5 Thy calf is cast off o Samaria, my fury is wrath against them. How long can they not be cleansed? 6 Because it-self also is of Israel: the workman made it, and it is not God: because the calf of Samaria shall be as spiders' webs. 7 Because they shall sow wind, & reap a whirlwind: there is no standing stalk in it, the bud shall not yield meal: & if it do yield, strangers shall eat it. 8 Israel is devoured: Now is he become in nations as an unclean vessel. 9 Because they went up to Assur, a wild ass solitary to himself: Ephraim have given gifts to lovers. 10 Yea and when they shall hire the nations with reward, now will I gather them together: & they shall rest a while from the burden of the king and the princes. 11 Because Ephraim hath multiplied altars to sin: altars are made to him unto sin. 12 I will write to him my manifold laws, which have been accounted as strange. 13 They shall offer hosts, they shall immolate flesh, and shall eat, and the Lord will not receive them: now will he remember their iniquity, and will visit their sins: they shall return into Aegypt. 14 And Israel hath forgotten his maker, and hath built temples: and (c) Judas hath multiplied fenced cities: & I will cast fire on his cities, and it shall devour the houses thereof.

(c) The two tribes seeing the miseries of the other ten, will not prevent the like by penance, but think to escape by fortifying their cities.

CHAPTER IX.

The ten tribes shall suffer famine: 12. be deprived of their children: 15. and made captive.

Be not glad Israel, rejoice not as the peoples: because thou hast fornicated from thy God, thou hast loved reward above all the floors of wheat. 2 The floor and the winepress shall not feed them, and the wine shall lie to them. 3 They shall not dwell in the land of our Lord: (a) Ephraim is returned into Aegypt, and among the Assyrians he hath eaten the thing polluted.

(a) Many of the Kingdom of Israel by the reason of famine and other distresses will fly into Aegypt, as both this place, and the same words *ch. 8. v. 13.*do foreshew. S. Ierom. & Theodoret. v. 6.

4 They shall not offer wine to our Lord, and they shall not please him: their sacrifices as the bread of mourners: all that shall eat it shall be contaminated: because their bread for their soul, shall not enter into the house of our Lord. 5 What will you do in the solemn day, in the day of the festivity of our Lord? 6 For behold they are gone forth from destruction: Aegypt shall gather them together, Memphis shall bury them: their silver to be desired the nettle shall inherit, the bur in their tabernacles. 7 The days of visitation are come, the days are come of retributions: know (b) o Israel the foolish Prophet, (c) the mad spiritual man, for the multitude of thine iniquity, the multitude also madness.

(b) Israel did foolishly prophesy all prosperity to themselves, (c) not inspired by God, but replenished with fury of madness.

8 The watchman of Ephraim with my God: the Prophet is made a snare of ruin upon all his ways, madness in the house of his God. 9 They have sinned deeply, as in the days of Gabaa: [1] he will remember their iniquity, and will visit their sin.

[1] Iudic. 19.
1. Reg. 8.
4. Reg. 9.

10 As grapes in the desert I found Israel: as the first fruits of the fig-tree in the top thereof I saw their fathers: but they have entered into Beelphegor, and are alienated into confusion, and are become abominable, as those things, which they loved. 11 Ephraim as a bird hath flown away, their glory from birth, and from the womb, and from conception. 12 But if they shall nourish up their children, I will make them without children among men: yea and woe to them, when I shall depart from them. 13 Ephraim, as I saw, (d) was Tyre founded in beauty: & Ephraim shall lead out his children to the murderer.

(d) The kingdom of Israel was as proud and insolent as Tyre. Isai. 23. Ezech. 26. 27. & 28.

14 Give them o Lord, what wilt thou give to them? Give them a womb without children, & dry breasts. 15 All their wicked in Galgal, because there I hated them: for the malice of their inventions I will cast them forth out of my house: I will not add to love them, all their princes revolters. 16 Ephraim is strucken, their root is dried up, they shall yield no fruit. But and if they shall have issue, I will kill the best beloved things of their womb. 17 My God will cast them away, because they hear him not: and they shall be vagabonds in the nations.

CHAPTER X.

After many benefits, and advancement, much affliction shall fall upon the ten tribes, for their ingratitude towards God.

Israel a vine (a) thick of branches, the fruit is made equal to it: according to the multitude of his fruit he hath multiplied altars, according to the plenty of his land he hath abounded in idols.

(a) By how much more & greater benefits Israel received of God, so much were they more ungrateful.

2 Their heart is divided, now they shall perish: he shall break their idols, he shall destroy their altars. 3 Because they will now say: We have no king: for we fear not our Lord: and what shall a king do to us? 4 You speak words of unprofitable vision, and you shall make a covenant: and judgement shall spring as bitterness upon the furrows of the field. 5 The kine of (b) Bethaven have the inhabitants of Samaria worshipped: Because his people mourned upon him, and his temple wardens rejoiced upon him in his glory, because it departed from him.

(b) The house of one of their calves which Jeroboam set up for their God, otherwise called. Bethel.

6 For he also was carried unto Assur, a gift to the king Revenger: confusion shall take Ephraim, and Israel shall be confused in his own will. 7 Samaria hath made her king to pass as froth upon the face of water. 8 And the excelses of the idol the sin of Israel shall be destroyed: the bur and the thistle shall grow up over their altars: and they shall say to the mountains: Cover us, & to the little hills: Fall upon us. [1]

[1] Isa. 2. Apoc. 6.

9 From the Days (c) of Gabaa, Israel hath sinned, there they stood: the battle in Gabaa upon the children of iniquity shall not apprehend them.

(c) From the time that the tribe of Dan adored an idol which they took from Micheas (Iud. 18. v. 14. which the other Israelites revenged not) they have very often either committed or suffered idolatry, which they ought to have hindered, & therefore shall at last be punished.

10 According to my desire I will chastise them: & the peoples shall be gathered together upon them, when they shall be chastised for their two iniquities. 11 Ephraim an heifer taught to love threshing, & I have passed over the beauty of her neck: I will ascend upon Ephraim, Judas shall plough, Jacob shall break the furrows to himself. [1]

[1] Iere. 4.

12 Sow to yourselves in justice, and reap in the mouth of mercy, fallow ground: but the time to seek our Lord, when he shall come that shall teach you justice. 13 You have ploughed impiety, you have reaped iniquity, you have eaten the fruit of lying: because thou hast trusted in thy ways, in the multitude of thy strong ones. 14 A tumult shall arise in thy people: and all thy munitions shall be destroyed as Salmana was destroyed by his house, that took vengeance on Baal in the day of battle, the mother being dashed in pieces upon the children. [1]

[1] Iudic. 8.

15 So hath Bethel done to you, because of the malice of your iniquities.

CHAPTER XI.

The Kingdom of Israel is further admonished, and threatened, 10. of which tribes many shall believe in Christ.

As the morning passed, hath the king of Israel passed away. Because Israel was a child, and I loved him: & (a) out of Aegypt I called my son. [1]

(a) Literally this is spoken of the people of Israel called God's son (Exo. 4. v. 23.) whom he delivered out of Aegypt, but mystically is verified of Christ called out of Aegypt Mat. 2. and is no less certain the true mystical sense, the Evangelist endued with the Holy Ghost, so interpreting, than is the literal sense of this or any other place. [1] Mat. 2.

2 They called them, so they departed from their face: they immolated to Baalim, and sacrificed to idols.

3 And I as it were the nurse of Ephraim, carried them in mine arms: and they knew not that I cured them.

4 In the cords (b) of Adam I will draw them, in the bands of charity: and I will be to them as lifting up the yoke upon their cheeks: and I declined to him that he might eat.

(b) God draweth men by sweet invitations, by great and many benefits agreeable to man's nature and freewill, by his love and charity: not as beasts are drawn by fear & force.

5 He shall not return into the Land of Aegypt, and Assur he his king: because they would not convert.

6 The sword hath begun in his cities, and it shall consume his elect, and shall eat their heads. 7 And my people shall hang upon my return: but a yoke shall be put upon them together, which shall not be taken away. [1]

[1] Gen. 19.

8 How shall I give thee Ephraim, protect thee Israel? How shall I give thee as Adama, lay thee as Seboim? My heart is turned within, my repentance is disturbed together. 9 I will not do the fury of my wrath: I will not return to destroy Ephraim: because I am (c) God, and not (d) man: in the midst of thee the Holy one, and I will not enter into the city.

(c) God's property is to have mercy and to pardon. (d) Man is prone to revenge and punish.

10 They shall walk after our Lord, as a lion will he roar: because he will roar, and the children of the sea shall fear. 11 And they shall fly away as a bird out of Aegypt, and as a dove out of the Land of the Assyrians: and I will place them in their houses, saith our Lord. 12 Ephraim hath compassed me in denying, and the house of Israel in deceit: but Judas a witness is descended with God, and with the saints, faithful.

CHAPTER XII.

The people by their sins procure their own miseries, 3. not regarding Jacob's virtues.

Ephraim (a) feedeth the wind, and followeth the heat: all the day he multiplieth lying and waste: and he hath made a league with the Assyrians, and he carried oil into Aegypt.

(a) To make shew of turning to God, & to trust more in men, is as vain as to think to feed or to govern the wind.

2 The judgement therefore of our Lord with Juda, and visitation upon Jacob: according to his ways, & according to his inventions he will render to him.

3 [1] In the womb he supplanted his brother: and in his strength he was directed with the Angel.

[1] Gen. 25. & 32.

4 And he prevailed against the Angel, and was strengthened: and he wept, and besought him: in Bethel he found him, and there he spake with us.

5 And our Lord the God of hosts, the Lord is his memorial. 6 And thou shalt convert to thy God: keep mercy and judgement, & hope in thy God always.
7 Chanaan in his hand a deceitful balance, he hath loved calumny. 8 And Ephraim said: But yet I am made rich, I have found an idol to myself: all my labours shall not find me the iniquity, which I have sinned. 9 And I^ the Lord thy God out of the Land of Aegypt I will yet make thee sit in tabernacles, as in the days of festivity. 10 And I have spoken upon the Prophets, and I have multiplied vision, and in the hand of the Prophets I have been resembled. 11 If an idol in Galaad, then in vain were they in Galgal immolating with oxen: for their altars also as heaps upon the furrows of the field. 12 (b) Jacob fled into the country of Syria,[1] and Israel served for a wife, and for a wife he kept her.

(b) The History of Jacob & his children written in Genesis & Exodus, which the Prophet here toucheth, sheweth the singular benefits of God towards this people. [1] Gen. 28. Exo. 14.

13 But by a Prophet our Lord brought Israel out of Aegypt: and by a Prophet he was preserved.
14 Ephraim hath provoked me to wrath in his bitterness, and his blood shall come upon him, and his reproach his Lord will restore to him.

CHAPTER XIII.

For their obstinacy in idolatry, 7. greatest plagues are threatened: 10. from which none shall be able to deliver them. 14. But at last Christ coming will redeem all by his death.

Ephraim (a) speaking, horror invaded Israel: & he sinned (b) in Baal, and died.

(a) When Jeroboam first set up the calves to be adored, the people had horror thereof, yet consented thereto. (b) and shortly after some added the idol of Baal 3. Reg. 16.

2 And now they have added to sin: and they have made to themselves (c) a molten of their silver as it were the similitude of idols, the whole is the work of crafts-men: to these they say: Immolate men^ adoring calves.

(c) & of other idols as this place testifieth.

3 Therefore they shall be as a morning cloud, & as a morning dew passing away, as dust caught with a whirlwind out of the floor, and as smoke out of the chimney. 4 But I^ the Lord thy God out of the Land of Aegypt: and God beside me thou shalt not know, and there is no Saviour beside me.[1]

[1] Isa. 43.

5 I knew thee in the desert, in the land of wilderness.
6 According to their pastures they were filled, and were made full: they have lifted up their heart, and have forgotten me. 7 And I will be unto them as a lioness, as a leopard in the way of the Assyrians. 8 I will meet them as a bear her young being violently taken away, and I will break in sunder the inner parts of their liver: and will consume them there as a lion, the beast of the field shall tear them.
9 (d) Perdition is thine o Israel: (e) only in me thy help.

(d) Evils that happen are all of man's own procurement by his sins: whereof God is no way the author or cause: (e) who of his part doth all for the help of man: for whether he punish or pardon, all is to save men: so God is only cause of help and of all good, but not of evil as it is evil. He is indeed the cause of punishment, which is called malum paenae, the evil of pain. Amos. 3. v. 6. but this for amendment during this life, and of justice after death.

10 Where is thy king? Now especially let him save thee in all thy cities: and thy judges, of whom thou saidst: Give me kings, and princes.[1]

[1] 1. Reg. 8.

11 I will give thee a king in my fury, and will take him away in mine indignation. 12 The iniquity of Ephraim is bound together, his sin is hidden. 13 The sorrows of a woman in travail shall come to him, he a son not wise: for now he shall not stand the confraction of the children. 14 (f) Out of the hand of death I will deliver them, from death I will redeem them: I will be thy death o death, thy bite will I be o hell, consolation is hidden from mine eyes. [1]

(f) This cannot be understood of temporal death, from which God will not deliver men, nor of violent death, from which he would not deliver those that were slain by the Assyrians, but necessarily of eternal death, from which the just shall be delivered. [1] 1. Cor. 15.

Heb. 2.
Ezec. 19.

15 Because he shall divide between brethren: our Lord will bring a burning wind rising from the desert: and it shall dry up his veins, and shall make his fountain desolate, and he shall spoil the treasure of every vessel that is to be desired.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Prophet forewarning the people of their future afflictions, 2. exhorteth them to repentance, and confession of their sins: 5. foreshewing that God will give much grace to the penitent. 10. All which mysteries only the godly wise shall understand.

Let Samaria (a) perish, because she hath stirred up her God to bitterness: let them perish by the sword, let their little ones be dashed, and let the women with child be cut in sunder.

(a) Such imprecations in holy scriptures are sometimes only predictions, as Psal. 68. v. 23. & so here is prophesied what shall happen to the Israelites in Assyria. S. Ierom. sometimes are the zealous desires of saints conformable to God's justice, as Psal. 149. v. 6. 7. 8. 9.

2 Convert o Israel to our Lord thy God: because thou art fallen in thine iniquity. 3 [1] Take words with you, and convert to our Lord, and say to him: Take away all iniquity, and receive good: and we will render the calves of our lips.

[1] Ioel. 2.
Zach. 1.

4 Assur shall not save us, we will not mount upon horse: neither will we say any more: Our gods the work of our hands: because thou wilt have mercy on the pupil, which is in thee. 5 I (b) will heal their confractions, I will love them voluntarily: because my fury is averted from them.

(b) When the Israelites shall convert to God, as some did when Christ came, and many will near the end of the world, then Christ will heal them.

6 I will be as dew, Israel shall spring as the lily, and his root shall break forth as that of Libanus. 7 His boughs shall go, and his glory shall be as the olive-tree: and his smell as of Libanus. 8 They shall be converted that sit under his shadow: they shall live with wheat, and they shall spring as a vine: his memorial as the wine of Libanus. 9 Ephraim, what have I to do any more with idols? I will hear, and I will direct him as a verdant fir-tree: out of me thy fruit is found. 10 (c) Who is wise, and shall understand these things? Of understanding, and shall know these things? Because the ways of our Lord be right, and the just shall walk in them: but prevaricators shall fall in them.

(c) No human wit is able to understand this (& other Prophets) yet the just shall know so much as is necessary. S. Ierom in prooem. S. Aug. l. 18. c. 28. civit.

THE PROPHECY OF JOEL

[1][2] JOEL the son of Phatuel, born in Bethoron, of the tribe of Issachar, prophesied the same time, or part thereof, with Osee, according to S. Jerome's rule, approved by most expositers, that when any of these twelve prophets expresseth not what time he writ, the same time is understood which the precedent Prophet noteth. [3] He prophesied to the Kingdom of Juda, as appeareth by express mention of sacrifice, Priests, house of God, Jerusalem, and Sion; but describeth also the whole land of twelve tribes, consumed by the Eruke, Locust, Bruke, and Blast. [4][5] And after the eversion of the former people, the coming of the Holy Ghost upon the servants of God men and women: the 120. faithful gathered in the chamber in Sion. Finally foreshewing the general judgement, and future eternal world.

[1] Joel prophesied the same time with Osee.

CHAPTER I.

The Chaldees shall miserably waste the Kingdom of Juda: 9. take away sacrifice by destroying the temple: and so make the land barren spiritually and temporally.

The word of our Lord, that was made to Joel the son of Phatuel. 2 Hear this ye ancients, and harken with your ears all ye inhabitants of the land: if this hath been done in your days, or in the days of your fathers? 3 Upon this (a) tell you to your children, and your children to their children, and their children to another generation.

(a) Prophecies pertain not only to those that then live, when they are uttered, but also to all posterity, even to the end of the world, that it may appear what is fulfilled, and what yet resteth to come in due time.

4 The residue of the eruke hath the locust eaten, and the residue of the locust hath the bruke eaten, and the residue of the bruke hath the blast eaten. 5 Awake you that be drunk, and weep and howl all ye, that drink wine in sweetness: because it is perished from your mouth. 6 For a nation is ascended upon my land, strong & innumerable: his teeth as the teeth of a lion: & his cheek-teeth as of a lion's whelp. 7 He hath laid my vineyard into a desert, and hath pilled off the bark of my fig-tree: stripping he hath spoiled it, and cast it forth: the boughs thereof are made white. 8 Mourn as a virgin girded with sack-cloth upon the husband of her youth. 9 (b) Sacrifice and libation is perished out of the house of our Lord: the priests our Lord's ministers mourned.

(b) When Jerusalem was taken, and the Temple destroyed by the Babylonians, the sacrifice necessarily ceased according to this & other Prophecies.

10 The region is destroyed, the ground hath mourned: because the wheat is wasted, the wine is confounded, the oil hath languished. 11 The husbandmen are confounded, the dressers of vines have howled upon the wheat, and the barley, because the harvest of the field is perished. 12 The vineyard is confounded, & the fig-tree hath languished: the pomegranate, & the palm-tree, and the apple-tree, & all the trees of the field are withered: because joy is confounded from the children of men. 13 Gird yourselves, & mourn ye priests, howl ye ministers of the altar: go in, lie in sack-cloth ye ministers of my God: because sacrifice and libation is perished out of the house of your God.

14 (c) Sacrifice ye a fast, call an assembly, gather together the ancients, all the inhabitants of the land into the house of your God: and cry ye to our Lord:

(c) Fasting, praying and other good works of many assembling together, are an especial means to appease God's wrath, provoked by former sins.

15 A a a, for the day: because the day of our Lord is at hand, and as destruction from the mighty it shall come. 16 Why, are not the victuals perished before your eyes, joy and exultation out of the house of our God? 17 The beasts are rotted in their dung, the barns are destroyed, the store-houses are dissipated: because the wheat is confounded. 18 Why groan the beast, why lowed the flocks of the herd? Because there is no pasture for them: yea & the flocks of the cattle are perished. 19 To thee o Lord will I cry: because fire hath eaten the beautiful things of the desert, and the flame hath burnt all the trees of the region. 20 Yea and the beasts of the field, as a garden bed thirsting for a shower, have looked up to thee, because the fountains of waters are dried up, and fire hath devoured the beautiful things of the desert.

4. The residue of the eruke, locust, bruke, blast.] [1] Eruca a worm that destroyeth herbs and fruits, Locusta a flying beast with long hinder legs, destroying corn, and fruit; Bruchus, another flying little beasts, that devoureth not only fruit, but also the leaves of trees; and Rubigo the blast, or burning mist, that consumeth the ears of corn even to dust; do metaphorically signify the Chaldees, and other soldiers of sundry nations, in the army of Nabuchodonosor, invading & wasting the Kingdom of Juda. [2] And that at four several times ever worse and worse. [3] First, when Nabuchodonosor besieging Jerusalem subdued King Joakim and his Kingdom, taking hostages for assurance of subjection (amongst which were Daniel, [4] & the other three children) and carried away part of the holy vessels of the Temple. 4. Reg. 24. v. 1. [5] The second, when eight years after, Nabuchodonosor returned, & killed King Joakim for rebelling, and carried his son King Joachin (otherwise called Jechonias) into Babylon, with his mother, and Jeremie the Prophet, also many other principal persons, and much riches (ibidem. v. 10.) [6] The third when eleven years after he took and spoiled Jerusalem, destroyed the Temple, killed all King Sedecias' sons in his sight, then put out his eyes, and carried him blind into Babylon, with much more people and spoil. 4. Reg. 25. [7] Fourthly, when shortly after he sent Nabuzardan general of his army, and carried away more men and wealth, leaving only the basest people to till the land. ibidem v. 8. All which sheweth clearly the fulfilling of this Prophecy according to the historical letter. [8] In like sort we might explicate the rest of this, & other Prophets: but it is not our purpose to be so large. Much less to prosecute the Mystical sense, which is manifold, as appeareth in the works of the ancient Fathers. Whereof see F. Francis Ribera.

CHAPTER II.

The Chaldees will assault and afflict the Jews with great violence. 12. After humble repentance in captivity, 18. God's benignity will comfort them. 13. with aboundance of spiritual grace by Christ: 28. sending also the Holy Ghost. 30. And terrible signs before the day of Judgement.

Sound (a) ye with the trumpet in Sion, howl in my holy mount, let all the inhabitants of the land be troubled: Because (b) the day of our Lord cometh,

(a) Prophets do often speak in such phrase as if they admonished the people what to do, when indeed they foreshew what they will do in their distress. (b) In the time when God will suffer affliction to fall upon them for their sins.

2 because the day of darkness, and of mist is near, the day of cloud, & whirlwind: as the morning spread upon the mountains much people & strong: the like to it hath not been from the beginning, and after it shall not be even unto the years of generation & generation. 3 Before the face thereof a devouring fire, & after it a burning flame: the land before it as it were a garden of pleasure, and after it the wilderness of a desert, neither is there that can escape it. 4 As the appearance of horses, their appearance, & as horsemen so shall they run. 5 As the sound of chariots upon the tops of mountains shall they leap, as the sound of a flame of fire devouring stubble, as a strong people prepared to battle. 6 At his presence the people shall be vexed: all visages shall be made like a pot. 7 They shall run as valiants: as men of war they shall scale the wall: the men shall march in their ways, & shall not decline from their paths. 8 None shall press his brother: they shall walk every one in their own path: yea & through the windows they shall fall, & shall [1] not demolish.

[1] * take no harm.

9 They shall enter the city: they shall run on the wall, they shall climb the houses, by the windows they shall enter as a thief. 10 At his presence the earth hath trembled, the heavens are moved: the sun and moon are darkened, and the stars have withdrawn their shining. [1]

[1] Isa. 13. Ezec. 32. Mat. 24. Iere. 30. Amos. 5. Sopho. 1.

11 And our Lord hath given his voice before the face of his host: because his camps are exceeding many, because strong & doing his word: for great is the day of our Lord, and terrible exceedingly: & who shall sustain it? 12 Now therefore saith our Lord: (c) Convert to me in all your heart, (d) in fasting, & in weeping, and in mourning.

(c) For better moving the heart to true repentance, (d) God requireth these external works of penance. And where the same are wanting, at least in will, it is a manifest sign that the heart is not truly penitent. S. Ierom.

13 And rent your hearts, and not your garments, & turn to the Lord your God: because he is benign & merciful, patient and of much mercy, & ready to be gracious upon the malice. [1]

[1] Psal. 85.

14 Who knoweth if he will convert, & forgive, and leave after him benediction, sacrifice, and libament to the Lord your God? 15 Sound ye with the trumpet in Sion, sanctify a fast, call an assembly, 16 gather together the people, sanctify the Church, assemble the ancients, gather together the little ones, & them that suck the breasts: let the bridegroom go forth to his chamber, & the bride out of her bride-chamber. 17 Between the porch & the altar the priests our Lord's ministers shall weep, & shall say: Spare o Lord, spare thy people: and give not thine inheritance into reproach, that the nations have dominion over them. Why say they in the peoples: Where is their God? 18 Our Lord hath been (e) zealous to his land, & hath spared his people.

(e) Zeal is an indignation rising of love: when one seeth any person or thing which he loveth contemned or wronged. So God hath zeal for his people, when they are unjustly afflicted, more of the malice of their afflicters than for justice. Yet God suffereth oftentimes his people to be punished for their full correction and for their more merit.

19 And our Lord answered, and said to his people: Behold (f) I will send you corn, and wine, and oil, and you shall be replenished with them: & I will give you no more to be a reproach in the Gentiles.

(f) So that which God here promiseth by his Prophet, touching his protection and delivery of his people, was not fulfilled till after the seventy years of their captivity, nor then fully, but is verified in those that believe in Christ. And especially after this life, when his glorious Saints shall live in eternal joy.

20 And him that is from the North, I will make far from you: & I will expel him into a land unpassable, & desert, his face against the east sea, & his extreme part to the last sea: & his stink shall ascend, & his rottenness shall ascend, because he hath done proudly. 21 Fear not o land, rejoice & be glad: because our

Lord hath magnified to do. 22 Fear not ye beasts of the region: because the beautiful things of the desert are sprung, because the tree hath brought his fruit, the fig-tree, & the vine have given their vigour. 23 And ye children of Sion rejoice, & be joyful in the Lord your God: because he hath given you a Doctor of justice, & he will make the early and the late shower to descend to you as in the beginning. 24 And the floors shall be filled with wheat, and the presses shall overflow with wine and oil. 25 And I will render you the years, which the locust, the bruke, and the blast, and the eruke hath eaten: my great strength which I have sent upon you. 26 And you shall eat eating, and shall be filled: and you shall praise the name of the Lord your God, that hath done marvels with you, and my people shall not be confounded for ever. 27 And you shall know that I am in the midst of Israel: & I^ the Lord your God, and there is none besides: and my people shall not be confounded for ever. 28 And it shall be after this: (g) I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh: and your sons, and your daughters shall prophesy: your ancients shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions. [1]

(g) That this is a plain prophecy of the mission of the Holy Ghost performed on Whitsunday, the fiftieth day after Christ's Resurrection, and the tenth after his Ascension, S. Peter teacheth. Act. 2. [1] Isa. 44. Act. 2.

29 Yea and upon my servants, and handmaids in those days I will pour out my spirit. 30 And I will give wonders in heaven, and in earth, blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke. 31 The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood: before the great and horrible day of the Lord doth come. 32 [1] And it shall be, every one that shall invocate the name of the Lord, shall be saved: because in mount Sion, and in Jerusalem shall be salvation, as our Lord hath said, and in the residue whom our Lord shall call.

CHAPTER III.

After the conversion of the Jews to Christ, 2. shortly followeth the general Judgement, 3. where every one according to their deserts shall receive (expressed here in parabolical speech) 7. & 19. the wicked everlasting pain: 18. & 20. and the blessed eternal joy.

Because lo (a) in those days, and in that time when I shall convert the captivity of Juda, & Jerusalem,

(a) S. Ierom & most other expositers understand this chapter of the general Judgement, though some expound it of the relaxation of the Jews from captivity, and of the punishment of their enemies.

2 I will gather together all Nations, and will lead them into the valley of (b) Josaphat: and I will plead with them there upon my people, and mine inheritance Israel, whom they have dispersed in the nations, and have divided my land.

(b) And so Iosaphat is literally understood the place of the east side of Jerusalem between the Temple and mount Olivet whence our Saviour ascended into heaven. Neither is there any reason why the Judgement should rather be in another place, seeing this is expressed by name, signifying, The judgement of our Lord.

3 And upon my people they have cast lot: & boy they have given to be a strumpet, and wench they have sold for wine, that they might drink. 4 But what is to me and to you o Tyre, and Sidon, and all the border of the Palesthines? What, will you render me revenge, and if you do revenge against me, I will soon render you quickly recompense upon your head. 5 For my silver, and my gold you have taken: and my desirable things, and most beautiful you have carried into your temples. 6 And the children of Jerusalem you have sold to the children of the Greeks, that you might make them far off from their coasts. 7 Behold I will raise them up out of the place, wherein you have sold them: and I will turn your retribution upon your own head. 8 And I will sell your sons, and your daughters into the hands of the children of Juda, and they shall sell them to the Sabaeans, a nation far off, because our Lord hath spoken. 9 Proclaim ye this in the Gentiles: sanctify battle, raise up the strong: let them come, let all the men of war come up. 10 Cut your ploughs into swords, and your spades into spears. Let the weak say: That I am strong. 11 Break out, and come all ye nations from round about, and be gathered together: there will our Lord make all thy strong ones to be slain. 12 Let them arise, & let the Gentiles ascend into the valley of Josaphat: because there I will sit, to judge all nations round about. 13 Put in the sithes, [1] because the harvest is ripe: come, and descend, because the press is full, the presses run over: because their malice is multiplied.

[1] Apoc. 14.

14 (c) Peoples^ peoples in the valley of concision, because the day of our Lord is nigh in the valley of concision.[1]

(c) This duplication of the word peoples importeth an innumerable multitude in that valley of concision (also repeated) to signify, that there all God's enemies shall be utterly damned to eternal destruction, as it were cut in pieces, as fuel to the fire of hell. Psal. 128. v. 4. Our just Lord will cut the necks of sinners.[1] Iere. 21. Amos. 1.

15 The sun and the moon are darkened, & the stars have withdrawn their shining. 16 And our Lord will roar out of Sion, and out of Jerusalem he will give his voice: and the heavens, and the earth shall be moved, and our Lord the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel. 17 And you shall know that I am the Lord your God dwelling in Sion my holy mount: and Jerusalem shall be holy, and strangers shall pass through it no more. 18 [1] And it shall be in that day: the mountains shall distill sweetness, and the hills shall flow with milk: and through all the rivers of Juda shall run waters: and a fountain shall issue out of the house of the Lord, and shall water the torrent of thorns.

[1] Amos. 9.

19 Aegypt shall be into desolation, & Idumea into a desert of perdition, for that they have done unjustly against the children of Juda, and have shed innocent blood in their land. 20 And Jewry shall be inhabited for ever, and Jerusalem unto generation and generation. 21 And I will cleanse their blood, which I had not cleansed: and the Lord will dwell in Sion.

THE PROPHECY OF AMOS.

[1] Amos prophesied the same time with Osee and Joel.

[2] S. Iero. Epist. ad Paulin.

[3] Especially Against the ten tribes.

[1] AMOS a herds-man of Thecua in the tribe of Zabulon, was endued with the spirit of prophecy about the same time with Osee and Joel, in the reign of Ozias King of Juda, and of Jeroboam son of Joas King of Israel, in Metaphores, and other obscure speeches agreeable to his pastoral education, but profound in sense, [2] prophesieth [3] especially against the Kingdom of Israel, and diverse Gentiles; partly also against Juda, foreshewing their afflictions for their sins: but at last the vocation of all Nations to Christ, with aboundance of spiritual graces in his Church.

CHAPTER I.

In the reign of Jozias in Juda, and of Jeroboam in Israel, this Prophet Amos, 3. threateneth Damascus, 6. Gaza, 8. Azotus, and other Philistians, 9. Tyre, 11. Idumea, 13. and Ammon, for their obstinacy in sin, abusing his long patience.

The words of Amos, who was among (a) the Pastors of Thecua: Which he saw upon Israel in the days of Ozias the king of Juda, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joas the king of Israel, two years before (b) the earth-quake.

(a) As David was called from keeping sheep, made a King, & a Prophet; so Amos being a shepherd or herds-man was also made a Prophet. (b) Josephus. li. 9. c. 1. Antiq. sayeth this earthquake happened when king Ozias presumed to offer incense, but it must needs be understood of a former, in the days of Jeroboam, v. 1. who died in the 38. year of Ozias 2. Par. 26. at least 14. years before his deposition: for he reigned in all. 52.

2 [1] And he said: Our Lord will roar out of Sion, and out of Jerusalem he will give his voice: and the beautiful places of the Pastors have mourned and the top of Carmel is withered.

[1] Ioel 3. Zach. 14.

3 Thus saith our Lord: Upon (c) three wickednesses of Damascus, & (d) upon four I will not convert it: because they have threshed Galaad with iron wains.

(c) Three signify the multitude of their sins: for three is the first number that is called many, or may be called all. (d) and four signify excess in multitude, so that, albeit God doth forgive a multitude of sins, yet at last for so great excess he hasteneth their punishment.

4 And I will send fire into the house of Azael, and it shall devour the houses of Benadad. 5 And I will break the bar of Damascus: & I will destroy the inhabitant out of the idol, and him that holdeth the sceptre out of the house of pleasure: and the people of Syria shall be transported to Cyrene, saith our Lord. 6 Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Gaza, & upon four I will not convert it, because they have transported a perfect captivity, to shut it up in Idumea. 7 And I will send fire on the wall of Gaza, and it shall devour the houses thereof. 8 And I will destroy the inhabitant out of Azotus, & him that holdeth the sceptre out of Ascalon: & I will turn my hand upon Accaron, & the rest of the Philisthiims shall perish, saith our Lord God. 9 Thus saith our Lord: Upon the three wickednesses of Tyre, & upon four I will not convert it: because they have shut up a perfect captivity in Idumea, & have not remembered the league of brethren. 10 And I will send fire upon the wall of Tyre, it shall devour the houses thereof.

11 Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Edom, and upon four I will not convert him: because he hath persecuted his brother with the sword, and hath violated his mercy, & hath held his fury longer, & hath kept his indignation even to the end. 12 I will send fire into Theman: and it shall devour the houses of Bosra. 13 Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of the children of Ammon, & upon four I will not convert him: because he hath cut in sunder the women with child of Galaad to dilate his limit. 14 And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Rabba: and it shall devour the houses thereof with howling in the day of battle, and with a whirlwind in the day of commotion.
15 And [1]Melchom shall go into captivity, himself, and his princes together, saith our Lord.

[1] * The god of the Ammonites.

CHAPTER II.

God also threateneth Moab, 4. Juda, 6. and Israel, 9. that for ingratitude, 12. and other sins, they shall be brought into captivity.

Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Moab, and upon (a) four I will not convert him: because he hath burnt the bones of Idumea even to ashes.

(a) Besides other sins of the Moabites, their cruelty in drawing the bones of the King of Idumea out of the grave, as S. Ierom testifieth by tradition; & their King immolating his own son, 4. Reg. 3. exceeded the rest, & therefore were at last more severely punished.

2 And I will send fire into Moab, and it shall devour the houses of Carioth: and Moab shall die in the sound, in the noise of the trumpet: 3 and I will destroy the judge out of the midst of him, and all his princes I will kill with him, saith our Lord. 4 Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses (b) of Juda, and upon four I will not convert him: because he hath cast away the law of our Lord, and not kept his commandments: for their idols have deceived them, after which their fathers went.

(b) The most heinous sin in Juda, was that having the law to instruct them, they contemned, and transgressed it.

5 And I will send fire into Juda, and it shall devour the houses of Jerusalem. 6 Thus saith our Lord: Upon three wickednesses of Israel, and upon (c) four I will not convert him: because he hath sold the just for silver, and the poor for shoes.

(c) Israel much more contemned the same law of God, & committed the sins of all nations.

7 Which bruise the heads of the poor upon the dust of the earth, and decline the way of the humble: and (d) the son and his father have gone to [1]a young woman, that they might violate my holy name.

(d) Sons committed incest with their father's wives; & the fathers with their daughters in law, which most detestable sins must needs be severely punished. [1] * puellam.

8 And upon garments laid to pledge they did lie beside every altar: & the wine of the condemned they drank in the house of their God. 9 But I did cast out the Amorrheite before their face: whose height the height of Cedars, & he strong as an oak: & I destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots beneath. [1]

[1] Num. 21. Deut. 2.

10 It is I that made you come up out of the Land of Aegypt, and I led you in the desert forty years, that you might possess the Land of the Amorrheite. 11 And I raised up of your sons to be Prophets and of your young men Nazareites, is it not so o children of Israel, saith our Lord? 12 And you drank wine to the Nazareites: and the Prophets you commanded, saying: prophesy not. 13 Behold I will screak under you, as a wain screaketh laden with hay. 14 And flight shall perish from the swift, and the valiant shall not obtain his strength, and the strong shall not save his life.
15 And he that holdeth the bow shall not stand, and the swift of his feet shall not be saved, and the rider of the horse shall not save his life. 16 and the stout of heart among the valiants shall fly naked in that day, saith our Lord.

CHAPTER III.

For their manifold sins, all the twelve tribes shall be sore plagued, 11. and made captives.

Hear the word, that our Lord hath spoken upon you, ye children of Israel: upon all (a) the kindred that I brought forth out of the Land of Aegypt, saying:

(a) By Israel is here understood the whole people all the kindred or offspring of Jacob, delivered from Aegypt.

2 Only you have I known of all the kindreds of the earth: therefore will I visit upon you all your iniquities. 3 (b) Why shall two walk together, unless they be agreed?

(b) As two men do not well travel together, except they agree: so man cannot walk with God, unless he agree with God, keeping his commandments.

4 Will the lion roar in the forest, unless he have a prey? Will the lion's whelp give voice out of his den, unless he hath caught somewhat? 5 Will the bird fall into the snare of the earth, without the fowler? Shall the snare be taken away from the earth, before it hath taken somewhat? 6 Shall the trumpet sound in the city, and will not the people be afraid? Shall there be (c) evil in the city, which our Lord hath not done?

(c) All evil of pain, that is punishment for sin, is by God's permission and ordinance, either to bring sinners to repentance, or (if they die in mortal sin) the beginning of eternal punishment.

7 Because our Lord God will not do a word, unless he have revealed his secret to his servants the Prophets. 8 The lion shall roar, who will not fear? Our Lord God hath spoken, who shall not prophesy? 9 Make it heard in the houses of Azotus, and in the houses of the Land of Aegypt, and say: Gather ye together upon the mountains of the Samaria, and see the many madnesses in the midst thereof, and them that suffer calumny in the inner parts thereof. 10 And they have not known to do right, saith our Lord, treasuring up iniquity, and robberies in their houses. 11 Therefore thus saith our Lord God: The land shall be in tribulation, & compassed about, and thy strength shall be plucked away from thee, and thy houses shall be spoiled. 12 Thus saith our Lord: As if a Pastor should get out of the lion's mouth two legs, or the tip of the ear: so shall the children of Israel, that dwell in Samaria, be delivered, in the plague of the bed, and in the couch of Damascus. 13 Hear ye, and contest in the house of Jacob, saith our Lord the God of hosts: 14 That in the day when I shall begin to visit the prevarications of Israel, I will visit upon him, and upon the altars of Bethel: and (d) the horns of the altar shall be cut off, and shall fall to the ground.

(d) The fairest and strongest things that wicked men have shall at last be destroyed.

15 And I will strike the winter house with the summer house: and the houses of ivory shall perish, and many houses shall be dissipated, saith our Lord.

CHAPTER IV.

The ten tribes are particularly charged for oppressing the poor, 2. therefore threatened with calamities: 6. blamed for their obstinacy: 12. nevertheless all are admonished to expect Christ.

Hear this word ye (a) fat kine, which are in the mountains of Samaria: which do calumny to the needy, and break the poor: which say to your lords: Bring, and we will drink.

(a) Rich hard-hearted people, who being wealthy have no compassion of the poor.

2 Our Lord God hath sworn by his holy, that lo the days shall come upon you, and they shall lift you up on poles, and your remnant in pots boiling hot. 3 And by the breaches you shall go out one against another, & you shall be cast forth into [1]Armon, saith our Lord.

[1] * places of Armenia

4 (b) Come ye to Bethel, and do impiously: to Galgal, and multiply prevarication: and offer in the morning your victims, three days your tithes.

(b) After many admonitions given in vain, God suffereth the idolaters to do all the wickedness they list.

5 And sacrifice ye praise of the leavened: and call voluntary oblations, & proclaim it: for so would you, o children of Israel, saith our Lord God. 6 Whereupon I (c) have given you dullness of the teeth in all your cities, & lack of bread in all your places: and you have not returned to me, saith our Lord.

(c) All these afflictions God sent to the children of Israel for their good, but they murmured and were still obstinate.

7 I also have stayed the rain from you, when there remained yet three months unto harvest: and I rained upon one city, and upon another city I rained not: one part was rained upon, and the part whereupon I rained not, withered. 8 And two and three cities came to one city to drink water, & were not filled: & you returned not to me, saith our Lord. 9 [1]I struck you with a burning wind, and with blasting, the multitude of your gardens, and all your vineyards: your olive groves, & fig-groves the eruke hath eaten: and you returned not to me, saith our Lord.

[1] Agge. 2.

10 I sent death upon you in the way of Aegypt, I struck your young-men with the sword, even to the captivity of your horses: and I made the putrefaction of your camp to come up into your nostrils: and you returned not to me, saith our Lord. 11 I subverted you, as God subverted Sodom and Gomorth, and you were made as a fire-brand hastily caught from the burning: & you returned not to me, saith our Lord.

12 Wherefore these things will I do to thee Israel: but after I shall do these things to thee, (d) be prepared to meet thy God o Israel.

(d) After long captivity Christ will offer himself to the Jews, and such as receive him, he will save.

13 Because lo he that formeth the mountains and createth the wind, and declareth his word to man, maketh the morning mist, and walketh upon the high places of the earth, our Lord the God of hosts is his name.

CHAPTER V.

Notwithstanding great miseries threatened against the ten tribes: 4. yet if they will repent they shall escape: 7. otherwise they shall fall into captivity: 14. and therefore they are admonished to return to God: 16. but being obstinate, 21. no sacrifice can appease God's wrath.

Hear ye this word, that I lift upon you (a) a lamentation. The house of Israel is fallen, and it shall not add to rise again.

(a) When the people neither feel nor fear evil, God foreseeing their calamities, lamenteth the same in their behalf, thereby admonishing them to know their own danger, and by repentance to prevent it.

2 The virgin of Israel is cast forth upon her land, there is none to raise her up. 3 Because thus saith our Lord God: The city, out of which came forth a thousand, there shall be left in it an hundred: and out of which there came an hundred, there shall be left in it ten, in the house of Israel. 4 Because thus saith our Lord to the house of Israel: Seek ye me, and you shall live. 5 And seek not Bethel, and into Galgal enter not, and into Bersabee you shall not pass: because Galgal shall be led captive, and Bethel shall be unprofitable. 6 Seek ye our Lord, & live: lest perhaps the house of Joseph be burnt as fire, and it shall devour, and there shall be none to quench Bethel. 7 You that turn judgement into wormwood, and leave off justice in the land. 8 Him that maketh Arcturus, and Orion, and that turneth darkness into morning, and that changeth day into night: that calleth the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: The Lord is his name. 9 He that seeketh destruction upon the strong, & bringeth depopulation upon the mighty.

10 They have hated him that rebuketh in the gate: & him that speaketh perfectly they have abhorred. [1]

[1] Sopho. 1.

11 Therefore because you spoiled the poor, & took the chosen prey from him: you shall build houses with square stone, and shall not dwell in them: you shall plant most amiable vineyards, and shall not drink the wine of them. 12 Because I have known many your wickednesses, and your strong sins: enemies of the just, taking bribe, and oppressing the poor in the gate.
13 Therefore shall the wise at that time hold his peace, because it is an evil time. 14 Seek ye good, & not evil, that you may live: & our Lord the God of hosts will be with you, as you have said.
15 [1] Hate ye evil, & love good, and establish judgement in the gate: (b) if perhaps our Lord the God of hosts may have mercy on the remnant of Joseph.

[1] Rom. 12. Psal. 96. (b) If men seek good & not evil, God will assist them, as in the former verse, & in innumerable holy scriptures: but it is here said: perhaps God will have mercy, by reason of the difficulty of man's part, who converteth not always perfectly, as he hath freewill to do by God's grace assisting him.

16 Therefore thus saith our Lord the God of hosts the Dominatour, in all streets lamentation: & in all places that are without, shall be said woe woe, & they shall call the husband-man to mourning, and to lamentation them that know to lament. 17 And in all vineyards there shall be lamentation: because I will pass through in the midst of thee, saith our Lord. 18 [1] Woe unto them that desire the day of our Lord: to what purpose the same unto you? This day of our Lord, darkness, and not light.

[1] Isa. 13. Iere. 30. Ioel. 1. Soph. 1.

19 As if a man should fly from the face of a lion, and a bear should meet him: and enter into the house, and lean with his hand upon the wall, and a serpent should bite him. 20 Why, is not the day of our Lord darkness, & not light: and mist, and no shining therein?
21 [1] I have hated, and have rejected your festivities: & I will not take the odour of your assemblies.

[1] Isa. 1. Ier. 6. Mat. 2.

22 And if you shall offer unto me holocausts, and your gifts, I will not receive them: & the vows of your fat things I will not respect. 23 Take away from me the tumult of thy songs: & the canticles of thy harp I will not hear. 24 And judgement shall be revealed as water, & justice as a mighty torrent. 25 Why, (c) did you offer hosts and sacrifice to me in the desert forty years, o house of Israel? [1]

(c) In the first year of the 40. and beginning of the second they offered sacrifices to God. Levit. 8. & 9. Num. 7. But not afterwards. S. Aug. q. 47. in Exod. [1] Act. 7. Psal. 94.

26 And you carried a tabernacle for your Moloch, and the image of your idols, the star of your god, which you made to yourselves. 27 And I will make you remove beyond Damascus, saith our Lord, the God of hosts is his name.

CHAPTER VI.

For the avarice and luxury of both Kingdoms, 7. they shall be carried into captivity.

Woe to you that are rich (a) in Sion, and have confidence in the mountain of Samaria: ye great men, heads of the peoples, going stately into the house of Israel. [1]

(a) It is a foul & odious fault when rich men neglect the poor, but most detestable when the rich in Sion, wealthy Clergy men have not compassion on them that want either spiritual or temporal help. [1] Iac. 5.

2 Pass ye into Chalane, and see, and go ye thence into Emath the great: & descend into Geth of the Palestines, and to all the best kingdoms of these: if their border be larger than your border. 3 You that are separated unto the evil day: & approach to the throne of iniquity.
4 You that sleep in beds of ivory, and play the wantons in your couches: that eat the lamb out of the flock, & calves out of the midst of the herd. 5 You that sing to the voice of the psalter: as David they have thought themselves to have the instruments of song.

6 That drink wine in phials, and are anointed with the best ointment: and they suffered nothing upon the contrition of Joseph. 7 Wherefore now they shall go in the head of them, that go in transmigration: and the faction of the wantons shall be taken away.

8 [1]The Lord God hath sworn by his soul, saith our Lord the God of hosts: I detest the pride (b) of Jacob, and I hate his houses, and I will deliver up the city with the inhabitants thereof.

[1] Iere. 51. (b) Whereas Jacob by humility, patience, & many other virtues, became great in God's favour: now his progeny by pride & delicacy become hateful to God in respect of these sins, & are therefore afflicted, and miserably slain and carried captives.

9 And if there shall be left ten men in one house, they also shall die. 10 And his kinsman shall take him up, and shall burn him, that he may carry the bones out of the house: and he shall say to him, that is in the inner parts of the house: Is there yet with thee? 11 And he shall answer: There is an end. And he shall say to him: Hold thy peace, and remember not the name of our Lord. 12 Because lo our Lord hath commanded, & he will strike the greater house with ruins, & the lesser house with clefts. 13 (c) Why^ can horses run upon rocks, or can there be ploughing with buffles? Because you have turned judgement into bitterness, and the fruit of justice into wormwood?

(c) To turn the works of judgement & justice, into sins, which are bitter and ungrateful, is as contrary to order, as it is contrary to the course of nature, that horses should run upon craggy rocks, or wild buffles be brought to draw the plough.

14 Which rejoice in things of naught: which say: Why have not we taken unto us horns in our own strength? 15 For behold I will raise up from you o house of Israel, saith our Lord the God of hosts, a nation: and they shall destroy you from the entrance of Emath, even to the torrent of the desert.

CHAPTER VII.

In three visions many miseries are revealed, which shall come upon both the Kingdoms. 10. A false Priest of Bethel accusing the Prophet of sedition, and endeavouring to chase him away, 14. is by him forewarned of miseries to his family, and death to himself.

These things hath our Lord God shewed to me: and lo the former (a) of the locust in the beginning of things that spring of the later rain, and behold the later rain after the king's mowing.

(a) Locusts swarming in multitude signified the Assyrian soldiers invading the ten tribes, as is recorded 4. Reg. 18.

2 And it came to pass: after it had finished to eat the grass of the land, I said: O Lord God be propitious I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob, because he is a little one? 3 Our Lord hath had pity upon this: (b) It shall not be, saith our Lord.

(b) Salmanasar King of Assyrians having subdued the ten tribes, invaded the Kingdom of Juda, & besieged Jerusalem: but his army was miraculously destroyed 4. Reg. 19.

4 These things hath our Lord God called judgement unto (c) fire, and it devoured the great depth and it did eat a part together.

(c) This second vision of fire signified the captivity of the two tribes carried into Babylon. 4. Reg. 24. & 25.

5 And I said: Lord God be quiet I beseech thee: who shall raise up Jacob, because he is a little one? 6 Our Lord had pity upon this: Yea this also shall not be, saith our Lord God. 7 These things hath our Lord shewed to me: and lo our Lord standing upon a wall plastered, and in his hand (d) a mason's trowel.

(d) This third vision signified the calamities which the ten tribes suffered shortly after in the reign of Manahem. 4. Reg. 15. v. 20.

8 And our Lord said to me: What seest thou Amos? And I said: A mason's trowel. And our Lord said: Behold I will lay down the trowel in the midst of my people Israel: I will add no more to plaster it over.

9 And the excelses of the idol shall be thrown down, and the sanctifications of Israel shall be made desolate: and I will rise upon the house of Jeroboam with the sword. 10 And Amasias the Priest of Bethel sent to Jeroboam the king of Israel, saying: Amos (e) hath rebelled against thee in the midst of the house of Israel: the land will not be able to sustain all his words.

(e) False Prophets not enduring the wholesome preaching of true Pastors falsely accuse them of rebellion, treason, and sedition.

11 For thus saith Amos: (f) Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall depart captive out of their land.

(f) In this also the false Prophet lied; for Amos said not: Jeroboam shall die by the sword: but that God would rise upon the house of Jeroboam with the sword. v. 9. fulfilled when Zacharias the son of Jeroboam was slain by Sellum. 4. Reg. 15. v. 10.

12 And Amasias said to Amos: Thou that seest, go, fly into the land of Juda: and eat bread there, and thou shalt prophesy there. 13 And in Bethel thou shalt add no more to prophesy: because it is the sanctification of the king, and it is the house of the kingdom. 14 And Amos answered, and said to Amasias: I am not a Prophet [1] and I am not the son of a Prophet: but an herdsman am I plucking sycamores.

[1] * by education.

15 And our Lord took me when I followed the flock, and our Lord said to me: Go, Prophesy to my people Israel. 16 And now hear the word of our Lord: Thou sayest: Thou shalt not prophesy upon Israel, and thou shalt not distill upon the house of the idol.

17 Therefore thus saith our Lord: Thy wife shall fornicate in the city, and thy sons, and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy ground shall be measured with a cord, and thou shalt die in a polluted land, and Israel shall depart captive out of their land.

CHAPTER VIII.

In a vision of an apple hook the captivity of the ten tribes is again foreshewed, 4. with reprehension of their avarice, and oppression of the poor: 7. for which they shall fall into great miseries.

These things hath our Lord shewed to me: and (a) behold an apple hook.

(a) By this vision of a hook is signified, that not only the nearer parts of the ten tribes should be brought into captivity, which is written 4. Reg. 15. v. 29. but also the rest which were further off: as fruit of trees, which cannot be gathered with the hand, is drawn with a hook: & so all were carried away. 4. Reg. 17. v. 6.

2 And he said: What seest thou Amos? And I said: An apple hook. And our Lord said to me: The end cometh upon my people Israel: I will add no more to pass them. 3 And the hinges of the temple shall creak in that day, saith our Lord God: many shall die: in every place shall silence be cast. 4 Hear this you that tread down the poor, & make the needy of the land to fail, 5 saying: When will the month pass, and we shall sell wares: and the Sabbath, and we open the corn: that we may diminish the measure, and increase the sicle, and convey in deceitful balances, 6 that we may for silver possess the needy, and the poor for shoes, and may sell the refuse of the corn? 7 Our Lord hath sworn against the pride of Jacob: If I shall forget even to the end all their works. 8 Why, shall not the land be moved upon this, and every inhabitant thereof mourn: and rise up as a river altogether, and be cast out, & run down to the river of Aegypt? [1]

[1] Deut. 1. Iere. 15. Tob. 2. Mar. 1.

9 And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord God: (b) The sun shall go down at midday, and I will make the earth to be dark in the day of light.

(b) In their great prosperity, when they least suspect, calamities shall fall upon them.

10 And I will turn your festivities into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation: and I will bring in upon every back of yours sackcloth, and upon every head baldness: and I will lay it as the mourning of an only begotten son, & the later end thereof as a bitter day. 11 Behold the days come, saith our Lord, and I will send forth famine into the land: (c) not the famine of bread, nor thirst of water, but of hearing the word of the Lord.

(c) It cannot be doubted but in the siege there was want of bread, drink, & of other victuals: but greater want of spiritual food.

12 And they shall be moved from the sea even to sea, and from the North even to the East: they shall go about seeking the word of our Lord, and shall not find.

13 In that day the fair virgins shall fail, and the young men in thirst. 14 They that swear by the sin of Samaria, and say: Thy God o Dan liveth: and the way of Bersabee liveth: and they shall fall, and shall rise no more.

CHAPTER IX.

The great destruction of Jerusalem, 8. and dispersion of all the Jews are again prophesied: 11. with the conversion of Gentiles, and the Church of Christ shall greatly prosper.

I saw our Lord standing upon (a) the altar, and he said: Strike (b) the hinges, & let the lintels be moved: for there is avarice in the head of all, & the last of them will I kill by the sword: there shall be no flight for them: they shall fly, & he shall not be saved that shall fly of them.

(a) Destruction of the Altar, (b) and the Temple, import the abolishing of sacrifice, when the two tribes were carried into Babylon.

2 [1]If they shall descend even to hell, thence shall my hand bring them out: and if they shall ascend even to heaven, thence will I pluck them down.

[1] Psal. 138.

3 And if they shall be hid in the top of Carmel, thence searching will I take them away: and if they shall hide themselves from mine eyes in the depth of the sea, there will I command the serpent, and he shall bite them. 4 And if they shall go into captivity before their enemies, there will I command the sword, & it shall kill them. And I will set mine eyes upon them to evil, and not to good.[1]

[1] Iere. 44.

5 And our Lord the God of hosts, which toucheth the earth, & it shall melt away: and all that dwell therein shall mourn: and it shall all rise as a river, and shall run down as the flood of Aegypt. 6 He that buildeth in heaven his ascension, & hath founded (c) his bundle upon the earth: who calleth the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth, the Lord is his name.

(c) God, who defendeth his Church as a strong bundle fast bond together, will punish the wicked with just afflictions.

7 Why, are not you as the children of the Aethiopians unto me, o children of Israel, saith our Lord? Did not I make Israel to ascend out of the Land of Aegypt: and the Palesthins out of Cappadocia, and the Syrians out of Cyrenee? 8 Behold the eyes of our Lord God upon the sinning kingdom, and I will destroy it from the face of the earth: but yet destroying I will not destroy (d) the house of Jacob, saith our Lord.

(d) Notwithstanding the great ruin of the Jews, slain and led captives, yet God in them conserved the Church that it was not destroyed.

9 For behold I will command, & will shake the house of Israel in all nations, as wheat is shaken in a sieve: and there shall not a little stone fall upon the earth. 10 All the sinners of my people shall fall by the sword: which say: The evil shall not approach, & shall not come upon us. 11 (e) [1]In that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David, that was fallen: & I will re-edify the breaches of the walls thereof, and those things, that were fallen I will repair: & I will re-edify him as in the days of old.

(e) S. James conformably to S. Peter's doctrine, interpreteth this place of the conversion of Gentiles to Christ. Act. 15 v. 15. &c. [1] Act. 15.

12 That they may possess the remnant of Idumea, and all nations, because that my name is invocated upon them: saith our Lord that doth these things. 13 Behold the days come, saith our Lord: and the plougher shall overtake the reaper, and the treader of the grape him that soweth seed: and the mountains shall drop sweetness, and all hills shall be tilled. 14 [1]And I will convert the captivity of my people Israel: and they shall build the desert cities, and inhabit: and shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine of them: and shall make gardens, and eat the fruits of them.

[1] Ioel. 3.

15 And I will plant them upon their own ground: & I will no more pluck them out of their land, which I have given them, saith our Lord thy God.

THE PROPHECY OF ABDIAS.

CHAPTER I.

ABDIAS born in Sichem, of the tribe of Ephraim, prophesied the same time with Amos; so briefly that his prophecy is not parted into chapters: [1] 1. against the Idumeans; foreshewing their destruction, 10. for their perpetual enmity against the Jews, and confederacy with the Chaldees. 17. The captivity and relaxation of the Jews. And redemption of the whole world by Christ.

[1] S. Epiph.

The [1] vision of Abdias. Thus saith our Lord God to Edom: We have heard a bruit from our Lord, and he (a) hath sent a legate to the Gentiles: Rise ye, and let us arise against him into battle.

[1] Iere. 49. (a) God directed the cogitations of diverse other Gentiles, to join their forces against the Idumeans.

2 Behold I have given thee a little one in the Gentiles: thou art contemptible exceedingly. 3 The pride of thy heart hath extolled thee, dwelling in the clefts of rocks, exalting thy throne: which sayst in thy heart: Who shall pluck me down to the earth? 4 If thou shalt be exalted as an eagle, and if thou shalt set thy nest among the stars: thence will I pluck thee down, saith our Lord. 5 If thieves had gone in to thee, if robbers by night, how hadst thou held thy peace? Would not they have stolen things sufficient for themselves? If the grape gatherers had entered in to thee, would they not have left thee at the least a cluster? 6 How have they searched Esau, have they sought out his hidden things? 7 Even to the border have they cast thee out: all the men of thy league have mocked thee: the men of thy peace have prevailed against thee: they that eat with thee, shall lay ambushments under thee: there is no wisdom in him. [1]

[1] Isa. 29.

8 Why, shall not I in that day, saith our Lord, destroy the wise out of Idumea, and prudence from the mount of Esau. 9 And thy valiants of the South shall fear, that man may perish from the mount of Esau.

10 [1] For the slaughter, and for the iniquity against thy brother Jacob, confusion shall cover thee, and thou shalt perish for ever.

[1] Gen. 27.

11 In the day when thou stoodest against him, when strangers took his army, and foreigners entered his gates, and upon Jerusalem cast lot: thou also wast as one of them. 12 And (b) thou shalt not despise in the day of thy brother, in the day of his peregrination: and thou shalt not rejoice over the children of Juda, in the day of their perdition: & thou shalt not magnify thy mouth in the day of distress.

(b) God admonisheth them what they ought not to do, but withal foresheweth that they will despise the Jews their brethren: & will rejoice in their miseries.

13 Neither shalt thou enter the gate of my people in the day of their ruin: neither shalt thou also despise in his evils in the day of his destruction: and thou shalt not be sent out against his army in the day of his destruction. 14 Neither shalt thou stand in the out-goings to kill them that fly: & thou shalt not shut up his remnant in the day of tribulation.

15 Because the day of our Lord is at hand upon all nations: as thou hast done, so shall it be done to thee: thy retribution he will return upon thine own head.

16 For as you have drunk upon my holy mount, shall all Gentiles drink continually: & they shall drink, and swallow up, and they shall be as though they were not.

17 And in (c) mount Sion shall be salvation, and it shall be holy: and the house of Jacob shall possess those that had possessed them.

(c) Historically all this prosperity was promised to the Jews after their delivery from Babylon, and so much thereof performed as their new sins hindered not, the rest is fulfilled in Christians. S. Ierom. ep. ad Dardan.

18 And the house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau stubble: and they shall be kindled in them, and shall devour them: and there shall be no remains of the house of Esau, because our Lord hath spoken. 19 And (d) they that are toward the South, shall inherit the mount of Esau, and they in the champion countries, Philisthiims: and they shall possess the region of Ephraim, and the region of Samaria: and Benjamin shall possess Galaad.

(d) The rest of this prophecy is only of Christ possessing all nations, To whom all the prophets give testimony that all receive remission of sins by his name believing in him. Act. 10. v. 43. See S. Augustin. li. 18. c. 31. de civit.

20 And the transmigration of this host of the children of Israel, all places of the Chananeites even to Sarepta: and the transmigration of Jerusalem, that is in Bosphorus, shall possess the cities of the South.
21 And saviours shall ascend into mount Sion to judge the mount of Esau: and the kingdom shall be to our Lord.[1]

THE PROPHECY OF JONAS.

[1] JONAS the son of Amathi in Geth, of the tribe of Zabulon, in the reign of Jeroboam son of Joas King of Israel, not only in words, but also in his person prophesied, and prefigured Christ;[2] [3] as our Saviour himself testifieth. And under the name of Ninive announceth salvation to all Gentiles that repent and return to God as Ninive did.

[1] Mat. 12. Luc. 11.

[2] Ionas a figure of Christ, prophesied salvation to all nations.

[3] S. Iero. Epist. ad Paulin.

CHAPTER I.

Jonas being sent to preach in Ninive, flyeth by sea: 4. a tempest riseth, 8. whereof he being found by lot, to be the cause; 12. is cast into the sea, 15. and it is calm.

And the word of our Lord was made to Jonas the son of Amathi, saying: 2 Arise, and go into (a) Ninive the great city, and preach in it: because the malice thereof is ascended before me.

(a) God Creator & Lord of all the world, hath also care of all, Rom. 3. v. 29. & therefore sent this Prophet to the great city Ninive, as likewise others prophesied to the Babylonians, Aegyptians, Moabites, Ammonites, Idumeans, &c.

3 And Jonas arose (b) to fly into Tharsis from the face of our Lord, and he went down into Joppe, and found a ship going into Tharsis: and he gave the fare thereof, and went down into it, that he might go with them into Tharsis from the face of our Lord.

(b) Ionas sheweth the cause why he fled, ch. 4. v. 2. fearing to be counted a false Prophet.

4 But our Lord sent a great wind into the sea: and a great tempest was made in the sea, and the ship was in danger to be broken. 5 And the mariners were afraid, and the men cried to their god: & they threw the vessels, that were in the ship, into the sea, that it might be lightened of them: & Jonas went down into the inner part of the ship, and slept a deep sleep.

6 And the governer came to him & said to him: Why art thou oppressed with sleep? Rise, invocate thy God, if perhaps God will think of us, and we perish not.

7 And every one said to his fellow: Come, and (c) let us cast lots, and know why this evil is to us. And they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonas.

(c) The mariners seeing no natural cause of so sudden & great a tempest, sought to know the reason thereof by lot, whereto the Prophet agreed, by God's inspiration, & so was discovered.

8 And they said to him: Tell us for whose cause this evil is to us, what is thy work? What is thy country? & whither goest thou? Or of what people art thou?

9 And he said to them: I am an Hebrew, & the Lord God of heaven I fear, which made the sea and the dry land. 10 And the men feared with greater fear, and they said to him: Why hast thou done this? (For the men knew that he fled from the face of our Lord: because he had told them.) 11 And they said to him: What shall we do to thee, and the sea shall cease from us? Because the sea went, and swelled. 12 And he said to them: Take me up, and cast me into the sea, and the sea shall cease from you: for I know that for me this great tempest is upon you. 13 And the men rowed, to return to the land, and they were not able: because the sea went and swelled upon them. 14 And they cried to our Lord, and said: We beseech thee o Lord, let us not perish in the life of this man, and give not upon us innocent blood: because thou o Lord, hast done as thou wouldest. 15 And they took Jonas, and cast him into the sea: & the sea ceased from his rage. 16 And the men feared our Lord with great fear, and (d) immolated hosts to our Lord, and vowed vows.

(d) Sacrifice & vows are known to all men by the light of nature to be grateful to God.

CHAPTER II.

Jonas is swallowed by a great fish; 3. Prayeth with confidence in God; 11. and the fish casteth him on the dry land.

And our Lord prepared (a) a great fish to swallow down Jonas: and Jonas was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights. [1]

(a) That this great fish was a whale, our Saviour plainly expresseth. Mat. 12. v. 40. [1] Mat. 12. Luc. 11.

2 And Jonas (b) prayed to our Lord his God out of the belly of the fish.

(b) The Prophet doubtless prayed before & when they cast him out of the ship, and continued the same prayer being in the whale's belly, with more confidence, that he should be safely cast on the dry land. v. 5. And therefore rendereth thanks, vowing sacrifice of thanks-giving. v. 10.

3 And he said: I cried out of my tribulation to our Lord, & he hath heard me: out of the belly of hell cried I, and thou hast heard my voice. [1]

[1] Psal. 119. & 129.

4 And thou hast cast me forth into the depth in the heart of the sea, & a flood hath compassed me: all thy surges, and thy waves have passed over me. 5 And I said: I am cast away from the sight of thine eyes: but yet I shall see thy holy temple again. 6 The waters have compassed me even to the soul: the depth hath inclosed me, the sea hath covered my head. 7 I am descended to the (c) extreme parts of the mountains: the bars of the earth have shut me up for ever: and thou wilt lift up my life from corruption, o Lord my God.

(c) Furthest that can be from mountains, even into the depth of the sea, which is lower than any other valleys.

8 When my soul was in distress within me, I remembered our Lord: that my prayer may come to thee unto thy holy temple. 9 They that keep vanities in vain, forsake their mercy. 10 But I in the voice of praise will immolate to thee: what things soever I have vowed I will render for salvation to our Lord. 11 And our Lord (d) spake to the fish: and it vomited up Jonas upon the dry land.

(d) God's will is his word by which all creatures were made, and to which, as well living, as senseless things obey.

CHAPTER III.

Again Jonas is commanded to preach in Ninive, that within forty days it shall be destroyed: 5. They all fast, and repent: 10. and God recalleth his sentence.

And the word of our Lord was made to Jonas the second time, saying: 2 Arise, and go into Ninive (a) the great city: and preach in it the preaching which I speak to thee.

(a) Diodorus Siculus, li. 3. c. 1. writeth that Ninive was in length 150 stadia, or furlongs, in breadth 90. so it was in circuit of the walls 480. And every furlong having 125. paces of five foot the pace, the compass was 60. Italian miles, about 50. or 48. English miles: a sufficient travel of three days, to pass through the principal streets, and more public places thereof.

3 And Jonas arose, and went into Ninive according to the word of our Lord: and Ninive was a great city of three days' journey. 4 And Jonas began to enter into the city one day's journey: & he cried, and said: As yet forty days, and Ninive (b) shall be subverted.

(b) As well this, as many other like prophecies, shew that God's threats are conditional, if sinners will repent: for then God changeth his sentence. S. Chrys. ho. 5. ad popul. S. Iero. in hunc locum. S. Greg. li. 16. c. 18. Moral. The same is also clear. Iere. 18. v. 8.

5 And the men of Ninive believed in God: and they proclaimed a fast, and were clothed with sackcloths from the greater to the lesser. 6 And the word came to the king of Ninive: and he rose up out of his throne, and cast away his garment from him, and was clothed with sackcloth, and sat in ashes 7 And he cried, and said in Ninive from the mouth of the king and of his princes, saying: Men, (c) and beasts, and oxen, and cattle let them not taste any thing: nor feed, and let them not drink water.

(c) Great remorse and detestation of sin maketh penitents to exceed in austere works, which being well meant is acceptable at God's hands, so it be not indiscreet.

8 And let men, and beasts be covered with sackcloths, [1] and cry to our Lord in strength, and let every man convert from his evil way, and from the iniquity, that is in their hands.

[1] Iere. 18.

9 [1] Who knoweth if God will convert, and forgive: and will return from the fury of his wrath, and we shall not perish?

[1] Ioel. 2.

CHAPTER IV.

The prophet lamenteth for that he was commanded to preach otherwise than it came to pass. 5. Going forth he stayeth near the city to see the end. 6. An ivy growing covereth his head from the sun; 7. but withereth the next day, 8. and he lamenting desireth to die, 10 and God sheweth that it is more meet to save Ninive than the ivy.

And Jonas (a) was afflicted with great affliction, and was [1] angry:

(a) Ionas conjectured by their penance that God would for this time spare Ninive, and so was afflicted fearing that both this, and other prophecies should be reputed uncertain. But this doubt is solved understanding God's threats to be conditional as before. ch. 3. v. 4. and so it proved. For they falling again into former sins were afterwards destroyed. Nahum. 1. 2. & 3. [1] * grieved.

2 and he prayed to our Lord, & said: I beseech thee o Lord, Why, is not this my word, when I was yet in my country? For this did I prevent to fly into Tharsis. For I know that thou art a clement, and merciful God, patient, and of much compassion, and forgiving upon the evil. [1]

3 And now Lord take I beseech thee my soul from me: because better is death to me than life. 4 And our Lord said: Art thou angry well thinkest thou? 5 And Jonas went out of the city, and sat against the East part of the city: and he made himself a bower there, and he sat under it in the shadow, till he might see what would befall to the city. 6 And our Lord God prepared an ivy tree, and it came up over the head of Jonas, to be a shadow over his head, and to cover him: for he had laboured: and Jonas rejoiced upon the ivy with great joy. 7 And God prepared a worm in the rising of the morning against the morrow: & it struck the ivy: & it withered. 8 And when the sun was risen, our Lord commanded an hot and burning wind: and the sun beat upon the head of Jonas, and he broiled for heat: and he desired for his soul to die, and said: It is better for me to die than to live. 9 And our Lord said to Jonas: Art thou angry well, thinkest thou, for the ivy? And he said: (b) I am [1] angry well even unto death.

(b) Ionas had just cause to be grieved; and so God had just cause of compassion, that the city should not perish. In this prophecy, which is also an history, who could have thought that Ionas had been a figure of our Saviour's death & resurrection, unless himself had so expounded it? Mat. 12.

[1] * grieved.

10 And our Lord said: Thou art sorry for the ivy, wherein thou hast not laboured, nor made it to grow, which in one night came forth, and in one night is perished. 11 And shall not I spare Ninive the great city, wherein are more than a hundred twenty thousand men, that know not what is between their right hand and their left, and many beasts?

THE PROPHECY OF MICHEAS.

[1][2] MICHEAS a Morasthite of the tribe of Ephraim, prophesied part of the time with Isay, and the former five less Prophets: against both the Kingdoms of Israel and Juda: foreshewing their captivities, and relaxation of Juda from Babylon: their conversion to Christ near the end of the world: and that in the mean time all other nations shall believe in Christ.

[1] Micheas prophesied the same time with Isay &c.

[2] S. Epip. de vita. Prophet.

CHAPTER I.

Samaria and all the ten tribes shall be brought into captivity by the Assirians. 9. The two tribes shall also be invaded and spoiled, even near to Jerusalem.

The word of our Lord that was made to Micheas the Morasthite, in the days of Joathan, Achaz, and Ezechias kings of Juda: which he saw upon Samaria and Jerusalem. 2 Hear all ye peoples: & let the earth attend, & the fullness thereof: and (a) let our Lord God be unto you for a witness, our Lord out of his holy temple.[1]

(a) If the Prophet should not admonish the people, both he and they should die in their sin. Iere. 3. v. 18. 19. but he discharging his office (as God is witness) they not repenting shall perish in their iniquity.[1] Deu. 32. Isa. 1. Isa. 26.

3 Because lo our Lord will go forth out of his place: and he will descend, and will tread upon the highest of the earth. 4 And the mountains shall be consumed under him: and the valleys shall be cloven, as wax at the presence of fire, and as waters that run down headlong. 5 For the wickedness of Jacob all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel. What is the wickedness of Jacob? Is it not Samaria? And what the excelses of Juda? Is it not Jerusalem? 6 And I will lay Samaria as a heap of stones in the field when a vineyard is planted: & I will pluck down her stones into the valley, & will discover her foundations. 7 And all her sculptiles shall be cut in sunder, & all her wages shall be burnt with fire, & I will lay all her idols into perdition: because they are gathered together of the wages of an harlot, & (b) unto the hire of an harlot they shall return.

(b) Samaria gathering riches by traffic with idolaters communicated also with them in idolatry, and therefore their riches shall be carried into Ninive and other places of Assyria.

8 Upon this will I lament, and howl: I will go spoiled, and naked: I will make lamentation as of dragons, & mourning as it were of striches. 9 Because her plague is desperate, because it is come even to Juda, it hath touched the gate of my people even to Jerusalem.

10 (c) In Geth declare it not, weep not with tears: (d) in the house of dust sprinkle yourself with dust.

(c) Tell not these calamities which I foreshew amongst your enemies, lest they rejoice thereat. (d) But lament in your own houses which shall be ruined, & replenished with dust. S. Ierome here testifieth the hardness of this place praying for the assistance of the Holy Ghost to understand it.

11 And pass ye to yourselves o fair habitation, confounded with ignominy: she went not out that dwelleth in the going out: the house adjoining shall receive lamentation for you, which stood to herself.

12 Because she is weakened to good which dwelleth in bitterness: because evil is descended from our Lord into the gate of Jerusalem. 13 Tumult of the chariot of astonishment to the inhabitant of Lachis: it is the beginning of sin to the daughter of Sion, because in thee are found the wickednesses of Israel. 14 Therefore shall he give spoilers upon the inheritance of Geth: the houses of lying into deception to the kings of Israel. 15 As yet will I bring an heir to thee which dwellest in Maresa: even to (e) Odolla shall the glory of Israel come.

(e) Ironiously he saith the glory, that is, the misery of Israel shall be extended to Odolla the uttermost city of Juda.

16 Be bald, and be polled for the children of thy delicacies: enlarge thy baldness as an eagle: because they are led captives out of thee.

CHAPTER II.

By their great injustice, 7. notwithstanding their vain presumption of God's mercy, whereto he is indeed most prone, 8. the Israelites through their excessive rapine provoke God to punish them. 12. Yet when Christ shall come some Jews will serve him; and many more in the end of the world.

Woe to you which think that is (a) unprofitable, and work evil in your beds: in the morning light they do it, because their hand is against God.

(a) By the figure Liptote, that is here called unprofitable, which is indeed extreme hurtful, & hath nothing profitable in it.

2 And they have coveted fields, and violently taken, and houses forcibly taken away: and oppressed the man and his house, the man and his inheritance. 3 Therefore thus saith our Lord: Behold I purpose evil upon this family: whence you shall not take away your necks, and you shall not walk proud, because it is a very evil time. 4 In that day a parable shall be taken up upon you, and a song shall be sung with sweetness, of them that say: With depopulation we are wasted: part of my people is changed: how shall he depart from me, whereas he returneth, that will divide our regions? 5 For this cause thou shalt have none casting the cord of lot in the assembly of our Lord. 6 Speak ye not (b) speaking: It shall not drop upon these, confusion shall not apprehend them.

(b) The Prince of the people command the Prophets not to speak & inculcate so much of future afflictions.

7 The house of Jacob saith: Why is the spirit of our Lord abridged, or are his cogitations such? (c) Are not my words good with him that walketh rightly?

(c) God answereth, that his threats proceed from his mercy. For he would save all, and those that either walk rightly or repent shall feel the effect of his mercy, but except they be admonished, neither the good will persevere in goodness, nor the evil return into the right way.

8 And on the contrary my people is risen up as an adversary: from above the coat you have taken away the cloak: & them that passed simply, you turned into battle. 9 The women of my people you have cast out of the house of their delicacies: from their little ones you have taken my praise for ever. 10 Arise, and go, because you have no rest here. For the uncleanness thereof it shall be corrupted with a sore putrefaction. 11 Would God I were not a man having the spirit, and that I did rather speak a lie: I will distill to thee into wine, and into drunkenness: and it shall be this people upon whom it is distilled. 12 (d) Gathering I will gather thee wholly together o Jacob: I will bring together the remnant of Israel into one, I will put them together as a flock in the fold, as cattle in the midst of sheepcotes, they shall make a tumult by reason of the multitude of men.

(d) In further proof of God's mercy he promiseth to gather his Church of all nations by Christ.

13 For he shall ascend opening the way before them: they shall divide, and pass through the gate, and shall enter by it: and their king shall pass before them, and our Lord in the head of them.

CHAPTER III.

For the sins of the rich oppressing the poor, 5. of false Prophets flattering for lucre, 9. and of judges perverting justice, 12. Jerusalem and the temple shall be destroyed.

And I said: Hear ye Princes (a) of Jacob, and ye dukes of the house of Israel: Why, is it not your part to know judgement,

(a) The chief of both the Kingdoms (the two tribes, & the ten) were great extortioners, and the poor murmuring against the rich also extorted each from other: imitating the greater sort in evil.

2 which hate good, and love evil: which violently take away their skins from them, and their flesh from their bones? 3 Which have eaten the flesh of my people, and have flead their skin from them: and have broken, and cut their bones as in a kettle, and as it were flesh in the midst of a pot. 4 shall they cry to our Lord, and he will not hear them: and he will hide his face from them at that time, as they have done wickedly in their inventions. 5 Thus saith our Lord upon (b) the Prophets, that seduce my people: that bite with their teeth, and preach peace: and if a man give not something in their mouth, they sanctify battle upon him.

(b) False Prophets sought also their private gain.

6 Therefore there shall be night to you for vision, and darkness to you for divination: and the sun shall go down upon the Prophets, and the day shall be darkened over them. 7 And they shall be confounded that see visions, and the diviners shall be confounded: and all shall cover their faces, because there is no answer of God. 8 But yet I am replenished with the strength of the spirit of our Lord, with judgement, & power: to declare unto Jacob his wickedness, and to Israel his sin. 9 Hear this ye princes of the house of Jacob, and ye (c) judges of the house of Israel: which abhor judgement, and pervert all right things.

(c) Likewise the Judges perverted judgement scraping their temporal profit of other men's quarrels.

10 Which build Sion in blood, and Jerusalem in iniquity. 11 [1] Her Princes judged for gifts, and her Priests taught for wages, and her Prophets divined for money: and they rested upon our Lord, saying: Why, is not our Lord in the midst of us? Evils shall not come upon us.

[1] Ezec. 22. Soph. 3.

12 (d) For this, because of you, Sion shall be ploughed as a field, & Jerusalem be as an heap of stones, and the mount of the temple as the high places of forests. [1]

(d) And therefore all sorts grievously offending shall all worthily perish. [1] Iere. 26.

CHAPTER IV.

Many Gentiles shall believe in Christ: 6. and lastly the multitude of Jews. 8. In the mean time the two tribes shall be carried into captivity, & be delivered again.

And it shall be: In (a) the later end of days there shall be the mount of the house of our Lord prepared in the top of mountains, and high above the hills: & peoples shall flow to it. [1]

(a) The Jews confess this Prophecy to be of Christ the promised Messias: but deny it to be of our Saviour JESUS of Nazareth, framing for their purpose diverse arguments, which the learned may see very well confuted by Doct. Franc. Ribera, in this place. The later days are this whole time from Christ to the end of the world, which is the last time or state, after which shall be no other state of time, but eternity. Though in some places, the later days, or last days, signify the time that followeth after the thing then mentioned. as Isa. 9. v. 1. 2. Tim. 3. v. 1. [1] Isa. 2.

2 And many nations shall hasten, & shall say: Come, let us go up to the mountain of our Lord, & to the house of the God of Jacob: & he will teach us of his ways, & we shall go in his paths: because out of Sion shall the law go forth, & the word of our Lord out of Jerusalem. 3 And he shall judge between many peoples, and he shall rebuke strong nations unto a far off: and they (b) shall cut their swords into coulters, and their spears into spades: nation shall not take sword against nation: and they shall no more learn to make battle.

(b) True & sincere Christians love & keep peace, yea rather sustain injuries with meekness, than contend one against another. 1. Cor. 6.

4 And every man shall sit under his vine, and under his fig-tree, and there shall be none to make them afraid: because the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it. 5 Because (c) all peoples will walk every one in the name of his god: but we shall walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever.

(c) All such quiet patient people as walk in the name of God our Lord, will keep this peace yea even with them that hate peace. Psal. 119. suffering persecution with alacrity of mind. Heb. 10. v. 34. S. Iren. l. 4. c. 67. advers. haeres. S. Iust. Apol. 2. pro Christian. S. Cyril. in hunc loc.

6 In that day, saith our Lord, (d) I will gather her that halteth: and her that I had cast out, I will gather up, and her whom I had afflicted.

(d) The Jews shall be at last converted to Christ.

7 [1] And I will make her that halted into a remnant: and her that had laboured into a mighty nation: and our Lord will reign over them in mount Sion, from this time now & for ever.

[1] Soph. 3. Luc. 1. Dan. 7.

8 And thou (e) the tower of flock, cloudy of the daughter of Sion shall come to thee: and the first power shall come the kingdom to the daughter of Jerusalem.

(e) Captivity of the two tribes.

9 Now why art thou drawn together with pensiveness? Why, is there not a king to thee, or is thy counsellor perished, because sorrow hath apprehended thee as a woman in travail? 10 Sorrow thou and labour o daughter of Sion, as a woman in travail: because now shalt thou go out of the city, & shall dwell in the country, and shalt come even to Babylon, there thou shalt be delivered: there our Lord will redeem thee out of the hand of thine enemies. 11 And now many nations are gathered together upon thee, which say: Let her be stoned: and let our eye look upon Sion. 12 (f) But they have not known the cogitations of our Lord, and have not understood his counsel: because he hath gathered them together as the hay of the floor.

(f) The relaxation from captivity.

13 Arise, and thresh o daughter of Sion: because I will make thy horn of iron, and thy hoofs I will make of brass: and thou shalt break in pieces many peoples, and shalt kill the spoils of them to our Lord, and their strength to the Lord of the whole earth.

CHAPTER V.

Jerusalem shall be besieged and taken. (2. Christ shall be born in Bethlehem) 3. the Jews shall not be wholly rejected, until the Gentiles begin to embrace the true faith: 4. which shall be spread in the whole world, 8. pure from idolatry, 14. and the incredulous punished.

Now shalt thou be spoiled (a) daughter of the spoiler: they have laid siege upon us, with a rod shall they strike the cheek of the judge of Israel.

(a) Jerusalem is called daughter of the spoiler, that is, addicted to spoiling & oppressing the poor. as ch. 3. & therefore shall be spoiled; yet shall be restored & conserved, till Bethlehem bring forth the Dominator, Christ our Lord.

2 [1] AND THOU BETHLEHEM, Ephrata, art (b) a little one in the thousands of Juda: out of thee shall come forth unto me he that shall be the dominatour in Israel: & his coming forth from the beginning, from the days of eternity.

[1] Mat. 2. Ioan. 7. (b) Bethlehem a small city, of least account amongst many, yet by Christ born there, it became not a little one, but more excellent than many others. Mat. 2. v. 6.

3 Therefore shall he give them even till the time, wherein she that travaileth shall bring forth: & the remnant of his brethren shall be converted to the children of Israel. 4 And he shall stand, & feed in the strength of our Lord, in the height of the name of our Lord his God: & they shall be converted, because now shall he be magnified even to the ends of the earth. 5 And this man shall be peace: when the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our houses: & we will raise upon him seven Pastors, & eight principal men. 6 And they shall feed the land of Assur in the sword, and the land of Nemrod in the spears thereof: & he shall deliver from Assur, when he shall come into our Land, & when he shall tread in our coasts. 7 And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many peoples as dew from our Lord, & as drops upon the grass, which expecteth not man, & tarrieth not for the children of men. 8 And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the Gentiles in the midst of many peoples, as a lion among the beasts of the forests, and as a lion's whelp among the flocks of cattle: who when he hath passed, & trodden down, & taken, there is none to deliver. 9 Thy hand shall be exalted over thine enemies, & all thine enemies shall perish. 10 And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord: I will take away thy horses out of the midst of thee, & will destroy thy chariots. 11 And I will destroy the cities of thy land, & will destroy all thy munitions, & I will take away sorceries out of thy hand, & there shall be no divinations in thee. 12 And I will make thy sculptiles to perish, and thy statues out of the midst of thee: and thou shalt no more adore the works of thy hands. 13 And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee: & will destroy thy cities. 14 And I will do vengeance in fury and in indignation among all the nations, that have not heard.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. V.

2. From the beginning, from the days of eternity.] ◦To signify that Christ taking man's nature, was nevertheless eternal God with the Father and Holy Ghost, the Prophet addeth that he was from the beginning, and from the days of eternity. Which manner of speech, by iterating the same terms, as also seculum seculi, secula saeculorum, and the like, signify absolute eternity. Though the same words put single in some places do only import long time, or during such a state: as Exo. 21. v. 6. Psal. 23. v. 7. & 9.

◦Christ man & God.

5. Seven Pastors, eight principal men.] ◦Christ raiseth up, and always conserveth many, or a great number (signified by the two mystical numbers seven and eight) to defend the faithful people of the Church against Assur & Nemrod, that is, against all persecutors and adversaries. These defenders are the Fathers and Doctors of the Church, especially Bishops, who are here called Pastors, to admonish them, that their office is to feed the people with spiritual food, doctrine & Sacraments: and are called also Princes, or principal men, to admonish the people to obey, and follow their ordinance. As. S. Paul also admonisheth: Obey your Prelates, and be subject to them. For they watch as being to render account for your souls. Heb. 13.

◦The Church hath always true Pastors.

CHAPTER VI.

God expostulateth with the chief of the Jews, 3. and with the whole people, their ingratitude for his singular benefits: 6. who is not pacified with sacrifices, 8. but by doing justice. 9. Which they not doing, 13. shall be afflicted by their enemies.

Hear ye what our Lord speaketh: Arise, contend in judgement against the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice. 2 Let the mountains hear the judgement of our Lord, and the strong foundations of the earth: because the judgement of our Lord is with his people, and with Israel he will be judged. 3 (a) My people what have I done to thee, or what have I molested thee? Answer me.

(a) Whereas God shewed most singular great benefits, the ungrateful malignant people requited him with most wicked & reproachful cruelty. As is excellently set forth in the Church's service on Good Friday.

4 [1] Because I brought thee out of the Land of Aegypt, and delivered thee out of the house of them that served: and sent before thy face Moyses, and Aaron, and (b) Mary?

[1] Iere. 2. Exo. 14. Num. 22. (b) Both Moyses & Aaron were figures of our Saviour, and their sister Mary a figure of B. Mary the Mother of Christ.

5 My people remember I pray thee, what Balach the king of Moab purposed: and what Balaam the son of Beor answered him: from Setim even to Galgal, that thou mightest know the justices of our Lord. 6 What worthy thing shall I offer to our Lord? Shall I bow the knee to the high God? What shall I offer unto him holocausts, and calves of a year old? 7 Why, can our Lord be pacified with thousands of rams, or with many thousands of fat buckgoats? Why, shall I give my first born for my wickedness, the fruit of my womb for the sin of my soul? 8 I will shew thee o man what is good, and what our Lord requireth of thee: Verily (c) to do judgement, and to love mercy, and to walk solicitous with thy God.

(c) Works of justice & mercy do far excel external sacrifice of the old law.

9 The voice of our Lord cryeth to the city, and salvation shall be to them that fear thy name: hear ye o tribes, and who shall approve it? 10 As yet there is fire in the house of the impious, treasures of iniquity, and a lesser measure full of wrath. 11 Why, shall I justify an impious balance, and the deceitful weights of the bag? 12 By which her richmen were replenished with iniquity, and the inhabitants therein spake lies, and their tongue was fraudulent in their mouth. 13 And I therefore began to strike thee with perdition for thy sins. 14 Thou shalt eat, and shalt not be filled: and thy humiliation in the midst of thee: and thou shalt apprehend, and shalt not save: & whom thou shalt save, I will give unto the sword. [1]

[1] Levit. 26. Deu. 28. Agge. 1.

15 Thou shalt sow, and shalt not reap: thou shalt tread the olive, and shalt not be anointed with the oil: and press muste, and shalt not drink the wine. 16 And thou hast kept the precepts (d) of Amri, and all the work of the house of Achab: & thou hast walked in their wills, that I might give thee into perdition, and the inhabitants therein into hissing, and the reproach of my people you shall bear.

(d) Thou Jerusalem art so wicked & foolish, as to imitate the most wicked Kings & people of the ten tribes Amri & Achab. 3. Reg. 16. v. 25. & 30.

CHAPTER VII.

The Prophet lamenteth, that for all his preaching few are good, and many corrupt in manners: 5. therefore their miseries approach: 7. from which they shall be again delivered, 14. and prosper, 20. and all mankind shall be redeemed by Christ.

Woe is me, because I am become as he that gathereth in autumn the clusters of vintage: there is no cluster to eat, timely ripe figs my soul hath desired. 2 The holy is perished out of the earth, & there is (a) none righteous among men: all lie in wait for blood, every one hunteth his brother to death.

(a) Such general speech doth not import absolutely all without exception, but that very many or the far greater part of the wicked remained so still, not withstanding the prophet's diligence in preaching, by the which few were converted.

3 The evil of their hands they call good: the prince requireth, & the judge is in rendering: & the great man hath spoken the desire of his soul, & they have troubled it. 4 He that is left among them, is as a brier, and he that is righteous, as the thorn of the hedge. The day of thy speculation, thy visitation cometh: now shall be the destruction of them. 5 (b) Believe not a friend, and trust not in prince: from her that sleepeth in thy bosom keep the closures of thy mouth.

(b) In time of great & general distress nearest friends even domestical may not be trusted, because every one in such case hath care of himself, though it be with prejudice of others.

6 [1] Because the son doth contumely to the father, and the daughter riseth against her mother, the daughter in law against her mother in law: and a man's enemies they of his own household.

[1] Mat. 10. v. 21. 35.

7 But I will look towards our Lord, I will expect God my saviour: my God will hear me. 8 Rejoice not thou mine enemy over me, because I am fallen: I shall arise, when I have sit in darkness, our Lord is my light. 9 I will bear the wrath of our Lord, because I have sinned to him: until he judge my judgement: he will bring me forth into the light, I shall see his justice. 10 And mine enemy shall behold, and (c) she shall be covered with confusion, which saith to me, where is the Lord thy God? Mine eyes shall look on her: now shall she be into conculcation as the mire of the streets.

(c) Babylon shall be taken and spoiled by the Medes & Persians, by them the Jews shall be delivered: whereat the Chaldees will much repine.

11 The day that thy walls may be builded upon: in that day shall the law be made far off. 12 In that day and Assur shall come even to thee, and even to the fenced cities, and from the fenced cities even to the river, and to sea from sea, and to mountain from mountain. 13 And the land shall be into desolation for the inhabitants thereof, and for the fruit of their cogitations. 14 (d) Feed thy people with thy (e) rod, the flock of thine inheritance, them that dwell alone in the forest, in the midst of Carmel: they shall feed upon Basan and Galaad according to the days of old.

(d) Pastors' office is to feed and rule, (e) with meat, and rod, with doctrine and discipline.

15 According to the days of thy coming forth out of the Land of Aegypt I will shew him marvels. 16 The nations shall see, and shall be confounded upon all their strength: they shall put the hand upon the mouth, their ears shall be deaf. 17 They shall lick dust as serpents, as the creeping beasts of the earth, they shall be troubled in their houses: the Lord our God they shall dread, and shall fear thee. 18 What God is like to thee, which takest away iniquity, and passest over the sin of the remnant of thine inheritance? He will send his fury in no more, because he is willing mercy. [1]

[1] Iere. 10. Act. 10. Collos. 2.

19 He will return, and will have mercy on us: he will lay away our iniquities: and he will cast all our sins into the bottom of the sea. 20 Thou wilt give (f) truth to Jacob, (g) mercy to Abraham: which thou hast sworn to our fathers from the days of old. [1]

(f) God gave truth to Jacob, performing that which was promised, (g) of his mere mercy to Abraham. [1] Luc. 1. v. 35. 73. Gen. 22. v. 17.

THE PROPHECY OF NAHUM.

[1] Nahum prophesied about 50. years after Ionas, near 135. before the destruction of Ninive.

[2] S. Iero. Epist. ad Paulin.

[1] [2] NAHUM born in Elcese a town in Galiley, prophesied shortly after the captivity of the ten tribes, against Ninive, about fifty years after Jonas preaching, and their repentance; when they became more wicked than before: foreshewing their utter ruin and ignominy. In figure of the destruction of idolatry in all nations, by Christ evangelizing and announcing peace to all that will believe in him.

CHAPTER I.

Ninive shall be destroyed, not able to escape God's powerful wrath. 9. The Assirians shall not prevail against Jerusalem: 13. but themselves shall be slain.

The (a) burden of Ninive. The Book of the vision of Nahum the Elceseite.

(a) Burden signifieth comminatory & pensive prophecy of ruin & punishment. Allegorically Nahum according to his name, comforteth the just, showing that God will revenge them by destroying Ninive the beautiful great city, that is, the terrestrial world called cosmos beautiful, and then reward his Saints in eternal glory.

2 God is jealous, & our Lord revenging, our Lord revenging, and having fury: our Lord revenging on his adversaries, and he is angry with his enemies. 3 Our Lord is patient, and great of strength, and cleansing, he will not make innocent. Our Lord's ways in tempest, & whirlwind, & clouds, the dust of his feet. 4 Rebuking the sea, & drying it up: & bringing all rivers to a desert. Basan is weakened & Carmel: & the flower of Libanus is faded. 5 The mountains were moved at him, and the hills were desolate: and the earth hath trembled at his presence, & the world, & all that dwell therein. 6 Before the face of his indignation who shall stand? & who shall resist in the wrath of his fury? His indignation is poured out as fire: and the rocks are dissolved by him. 7 Our Lord is good, & strengthening in the day of tribulation: & knowing them that hope in him. 8 And in a flood passing by, he will make a consummation of the place thereof: & darkness shall pursue his enemies. 9 What think ye against our Lord? Consummation he will make: there shall not rise double tribulation. 10 Because as thorns clasp one another: so (b) the feast of them that drink together: they shall be consumed as stubble full of dryness.

(b) The Assirians accounting themselves assured to take and spoil Jerusalem, and thereupon banqueting and drinking were defeated all in one night.

11 Out of thee shall come forth one that thinketh malice against our Lord in the mind devising prevarication. 12 Thus saith our Lord: If they shall be perfect: and so a great many, so also shall they be shorn, and he shall pass by: I have afflicted thee, and I will afflict thee no more. 13 And now I will break his rod from off thy back, & I will burst thy bonds in sunder. 14 And Our Lord will command upon thee, there (c) shall not be sown of thy name any more: out of the house of thy God I will destroy sculptile, & molten, I will put thy grave, because thou art dishonoured.

(c) To Sennacherib succeeded his son Asarhaddon, but presently after the whole lineage was destroyed. 4. Reg. 19.

15 [1]Behold upon the mountains the feet of him that Evangelizeth, and preacheth peace: celebrate, o Juda, thy festivities, and render thy vows: because Belial shall no more add to pass through thee, he is wholly perished.

[1] Isa. 52. Rom. 10.

CHAPTER II.

The Chaldees shall mightily invade the Assyrians, 5. take and ransack Ninive.

He is come up that (a) shall scatter before thee, that shall keep the siege: behold the way, fortify the loins, strengthen force exceedingly.

(a) Nabuchodonosor invading the territory of Ninive wasted all things, & then assaulted and took the city.

2 Because our Lord hath rendered (b) the pride of Jacob, as the pride of Israel: because the waters have dissipated them, & have marred their branches.

(b) The Assirians became more proud & insolent after they had spoiled the two tribes and carried the ten into captivity, & therefore God will now revenge this pride.

3 The buckler of his valiants fiery, the men of the army in scarlets, the reins of the chariot fiery in the day of his preparation, & the drivers are brought asleep. 4 In the ways they are troubled, the chariots struck one against another in the streets: their appearance are as it were lamps, as it were lightning running to & fro. 5 He will remember his valiants, they shall fall in their ways: they shall quickly scale the walls thereof, and a bower shall be prepared. 6 The gates of the rivers are opened, and the temple thrown down to the ground. 7 And the soldier is led away captive: and her handmaids were led away mourning as doves, murmuring in their hearts. 8 And Ninive (c) her waters as it were a fishpool of waters: but themselves are fled. (d) Stand^ stand, and there is none that will return.

(c) The people of Ninive, when the wall of the city shall once be broken by the enemies, will fly away as water runneth out of a pond or fish-pool, when the bank is broken. (d) Although some of more courage will exhort the fugitives to stay, & fight for their city, it will not avail, because the most part will seek to escape by running away.

9 [1]Spoil the silver, spoil the gold: and there is no end of the riches of all vessels that are to be desired.

[1] Isa. 2.

10 She is dissipated, and rent, and torn: & pining heart, and dissolution of the knees, and defect in all reins: and the faces of them all as the blackness of a pot. 11 (e) Where is the habitation of lions, and the pasture of lions' whelps, to which the lion went, to go in thither, the lion's whelp, and is there none to make them afraid?

(e) The King of Assirians like a furious lion gathered prey out of all countries, and brought it into Ninive as into his den, but at last shall be spoiled of all.

12 The lion hath caught sufficiently for his whelps, and hath killed for his lionesses: and he hath filled his dens with prey, and his couch with ravening.

13 Behold I to thee, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will burn thy chariots even to smoke, and the sword shall eat thy little lions: and I will destroy thy prey out of the land, and the voice of thy messengers shall be heard no more.

CHAPTER III.

A description of Ninive's ruin, 5. made ignominious to all nations: 17. foreign soldiers flying away, and all their own terrified.

Woe [1] to thee o city (a) of bloods, all of lying full of tearing: spoil shall not depart from thee.

[1] Ezec. 24. Habac. 2. (a) Nemrod began with shedding blood to make himself great. Gen. 10. so Ninus who built Ninive, & their successors were still very bloody, & otherwise wicked, but at last after 1200. years, under Sardanapalus their Monarchy decayed much, as most writers both Greek & Latin testify, but yet continued longer & flourished again, as Doctor Ribera sheweth by the holy Scriptures, & continued in all from Ninus' time till it was destroyed by the Chaldees, about 1440. years, yea & was repaired again & was great after the relaxation of the Jews from captivity. As Euseb. S. Aug. S. Beda, and others write.

2 The voice of the whip, and the voice of the violence of the wheel, and of the neighing horse, and of the fervent chariot, and of the horseman mounting. 3 And of the glistering sword, and of the glittering spear, and of a multitude slain, and of a grievous ruin: neither is there an end of corpses, and they shall fall on their bodies. 4 Because of the multitude of the fornications, of the harlot beautiful and grateful, and having sorceries, which hath sold nations in her fornications, and families in her sorceries. 5 [1] Behold I to thee, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will discover thy privy parts in thy face, and will shew to the Gentiles thy nakedness, and to kingdoms thine ignominy.

[1] Isa. 47.

6 And I will throw upon thee abominations, and will use thee contumeliously, and will put thee for an example. 7 And it shall be, every one that shall see thee, shall leap back from thee, and shall say: Ninive is wasted: who shall shake the head upon thee? Whence shall I seek a comforter for thee? 8 Why, art thou better than (b) Alexandria full of peoples, which dwelleth in the rivers? Waters round about it: whose riches, the sea: waters the walls thereof.

(b) This city was first called No, but being destroyed by the Chaldees, and re-edified by K. Alexander, was then called by his name. S. Iero.

9 Aethiopia the strength of it, and Aegypt, and there is no end: Afrike, and the Libyans have been in thine aid. 10 But she also in transmigration was led into captivity: her little ones were dashed in the head of all ways, and upon her noble ones, they have cast lot, and all her great men were made fast in fetters. 11 Thou also therefore shalt be made drunk, and shalt be despised: and thou shalt seek help of the enemy. 12 All thy munitions as figtrees with their green figs: if they be shaken, they will fall into the mouth of the eater. 13 Behold thy people women in the midst of thee: to thine enemies the gates of thy land with opening shall be opened, fire shall devour thy bars. 14 Draw thee water for the siege, build thy munitions: enter into the clay, and tread, making mortar hold the brick. 15 There the fire shall eat thee: thou shalt perish by the sword, as a bruke it shall devour thee: be gathered together as the bruke, be multiplied as the locust. 16 Thou hast made thy merchandises more than are the stars of heaven: the bruke was spread, and flew away. 17 Thy keepers as the locusts: and thy little ones as it were the locusts of locusts, which swarm on the hedges in the day of cold: the sun arose, and they flew away, and their place was not known where they were. 18 Thy pastors slumbered, o king of Assur, thy princes shall be buried, thy people lay hid in the mountains, and there is none to gather them together. 19 Thy destruction is not obscure, thy plague is very sore: all that have heard the same of thee, have clapped the hand upon thee: for upon whom hath not thy malice passed always?

THE PROPHECY OF HABACUC.

◦Habacuc prophesied of the two tribes: of the Chaldees: and of Christ.

◦HABACUC born in Bezochar prophesied the same time with Nahum, foreshewing the victories of the Chaldees subduing many nations, namely the Kingdom of Juda, destroying Jerusalem & the temple, & carrying the people captive into Babylon, and afterwards the ruin of the same Chaldees, and relaxation of the Jews: at last the coming of Christ, with diverse particular Mysteries described in a Canticle from his incarnation to the general Judgement, and eternity of the next world.

CHAPTER I.

The Prophet lamenteth the imminent ruin of the people, by the insolent cruelty of the Chaldees: 12. especially for that the holy city shall be ransacked by idolaters and most wicked men.

The (a) burden that Habacuc the Prophet saw.

(a) This Prophet expresseth not against what Kingdom, city or person this burden is: the reason whereof seemeth to be, because it is against very many and diverse, yea against all persecuters of God's servants.

2 How long o Lord shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear? Shall I cry out to thee suffering violence, and thou wilt not save? 3 Why hast thou shewed me iniquity and labour, to see prey and injustice against me? And judgement is made, and contradiction more mighty. 4 For this cause is the law torn, and judgement came not to the end: because the impious prevaileth against the just, therefore doth there come forth perverse judgement. 5 [1]Behold ye in the nations, and see: marvel, and be astonished: because (b) a work is done in your days, which no man will believe when it shall be told.

[1] Act. 13. v. 41. (b) S. Paul allegeth this place in the mystical sense Act. 13. in the literal the coherence is very obscure.

6 Because lo I (c) will raise up the Chaldees, a bitter and swift nation, walking upon the latitude of the earth, to possess tabernacles not their own.

(c) The Chaldees were not yet come to their greatness, and therefore this could not be the same Habacuc mentioned Daniel. 14. v. 32.

7 It is horrible, & terrible: out of itself shall the judgement, & the burden thereof proceed. 8 His horses lighter than leopards, and swifter than evening wolves; and his horsemen shall be spread abroad, for his horsemen shall come from a far, they shall fly as an eagle hastening to eat. 9 All shall come to the prey, their faces a burning wind: and he shall gather together as the sand, captivity. 10 And he shall triumph over kings, and tyrants shall be his laughing stock, and he shall laugh upon every munition, and shall cast up a mount, and shall take it. 11 (d) Then shall the spirit be changed, and he shall pass, and fall: this is his strength of his god.

(d) After that the Chaldees shall have subdued the Assirians, they shall also be overthrown by others, to wit, by the Medes and Persians.

12 Why wast thou not from the beginning o Lord my God, my holy one, & we shall not die? Lord thou hast appointed him for judgement: and strong to chastise, thou hast founded him. 13 Thine eyes are clean, from seeing evil, and thou canst not look toward iniquity. Why lookest thou not upon them that do unjust things, and holdest thy peace when the impious devoureth him that is more just than himself? 14 And thou wilt make them as the fishes of the sea, and as the creeping beast not having a prince. 15 (e) He lifted up all in the hook, he drew it in his train, and gathered it into his net: upon this he will be glad and rejoice.

(e) The Chaldees and other victorious nations conquering other countries attribute all to their own industry, & forces, honouring themselves, & not God.

16 Therefore will he immolate to his train, and he will sacrifice to his net: because by them his portion is fat, & his meat chosen. 17 For this cause therefore spreadeth he his train, and always to kill (f) the nations he will not spare.

(f) Men of all nations.

CHAPTER II.

The captivity of the two tribes, their relaxation, Christ will assuredly come, though not quickly. 5. Their afflicters (the Chaldees) shall be destroyed; 18. and all other idolaters.

I (a) [1] will stand upon my watch, and fix my step upon the munition: and I will behold, to see what may be said to me, and what I may answer to him that rebuketh me.

(a) The words of the Prophet expecting what God will further reveal unto him. [1] Isa. 21.

2 And our Lord answered me, and said: Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables: that he which runneth may read it over. 3 Because as yet the vision is far, and it shall appear at the end, and shall not lie: if he shall make tarriance, expect him: because coming he will come, and he (b) will not slack.

(b) He that cometh at the time appointed, though it be long, is not slack.

4 Behold he that is incredulous, his soul shall not be right in himself: but (c) the just shall live in his faith.

(c) The principal comfort of the just consisteth in their faith & confidence of the world to come. Whereby they live with consolation, whereas otherwise this miserable life were rather a death. Heb. 10. v. 38. See also S. Aug. li. 3. c. 5. cont. duas. epist. Pelag. li. 14. de Trinit. c. 12. & de Spiritu & lit. c. 9. & 11. explicating with the Apostle that faith is the beginning of spiritual life by grace, to which works of the law without faith in Christ sufficed not. Rom. 1. Gal. 3.

5 And as wine deceiveth him that drinketh: so shall the proud man be, and he shall not be beautified: who as it were hell, hath dilated his soul: and himself as death, and he is not filled: and he hath gathered together unto him all nations, and hath heaped together unto him all peoples. [1]

[1] Ioan. 3. Rom. 1. Gal. 3. Heb. 10.

6 Why, shall not all these take up a parable upon him, and a speech of obscure sayings of him: and it be said: Woe to him that multiplieth things not his own? How long also doth he aggravate against himself thick clay? 7 Why, shall they not rise suddenly, that shall bite thee? And they shall tear thee, be raised up, and thou be for a spoil to them? 8 Because thou hast spoiled many nations, all that shall be left of the peoples shall spoil thee: for the blood (d) of man, and the iniquity of the land, of the city, and of all that dwell therein.

(d) For much bloodshed by the Chaldees, for avarice, injustice & other wickedness they shall at last be ruined.

9 Woe to him that gathereth together naughty avarice to his house, that his nest may be on high, and thinketh he is delivered out of the hand of evil. 10 Thou (e) hast thought confusion to thy house, thou hast cut in sunder many peoples, and thy soul hath sinned.

(e) Whiles thou thoughtest by rapine & avarice to eternize thy family and Kingdom thou hast merited the ruin thereof.

11 Because the stone out of the wall shall cry: and the timber, that is between the junctures of the buildings, shall answer. 12 [1] Woe to him that buildeth a city in bloods, and prepareth a city in iniquity.

[1] Ezec. 24. Nahu. 3.

13 Why, are not these things from the Lord of hosts? For the peoples shall labour in much fire: and the nations in vain, and they shall faint. 14 Because the earth shall be replenished, that they may know the glory of our Lord, as waters covering the sea. 15 Woe to him that giveth drink to his friend, putting in his gall, and making drunk, that he may behold his nakedness. 16 Thou art filled with ignominy for glory, drink thou also, and be fast a sleep: the cup of the right hand of our Lord shall compass thee, and the vomit of ignominy upon thy glory. 17 Because the iniquity of Libanus shall cover thee, & the wasting of the beasts shall terrify them for the bloods of men, and the iniquity of the land, and of the city, and of all that dwell therein. 18 What profiteth the thing engraven, that the forger thereof hath graven it, a molten, and a false image? Because the forger thereof hath hoped in his forgery, to make dumb idols. 19 Woe unto him that saith to wood: Awake: Arise, to the dumb stone. Why, can it teach? Behold, this same is covered with gold, and silver: and there is no spirit in the bowels thereof. [1]

[1] Psal. 10.

20 But our Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth be silent at his presence.

CHAPTER III.

The prayer of Habacuc the prophet for [1] ignorances.

[1]* All sins in some sort proceed of ignorance: for remission whereof the Prophet prayeth in this Canticle, and that for the same Christ's coming may not be deferred: 2. So prophesieth his Incarnation, 3. Nativity, 4. Miracles and Doctrine, 5. Passion, Resurrection, and conversion of Gentiles: 16. The general Judgement, Glory of the blessed, and Damnation of the reprobate.

2 Lord I heard thy hearing, and (a) was afraid. Lord thy work in (b) the midst of years, quicken it: In the midst of years shalt thou make it known: when thou art angry, thou wilt remember mercy.

(a) For the great excellent, & admirable mercy of God, I was astonished as one afraid, seeing God himself will take man's nature, & therein pay ransom, and redeem mankind, (b) in the time designed for this purpose. The 70. Interpreters read, between two living creatures thou shalt be found, & so the Church hath in the office of Christ's Nativity & Circumcision: between and oxe and an ass in the stall.

3 God will come from (c) the South, and the holy one from mount Pharan: [1] His glory shall cover the heavens, and the earth is full of his praise.

(c) From Bethleem which is southward from Jerusalem. [1] * Sela. See Annot. Ps. 9.

4 His brightness shall be as the light, horns in his hands: There is his strength hid. 5 Before his face shall death go, and the devil shall go forth before his feet. 6 He stood and measured the earth, he beheld, and dissolved the Gentiles: and the mountains of the world were broken. The hills of the world were bowed, by the ways of his eternity. 7 For iniquity I saw the tents of Aethiopia, (d) the skins of the land of Madian shall be troubled.

(d) In Madian, a part of Aethiopia, the people lived most in tents, not in houses: so here is signified that in the tumult of wars will be much removing of skins, that is, of their tents made of skins.

8 Why, wast thou angry with the rivers o Lord? Or was thy fury in the rivers? Or thine indignation in the sea? Who wilt mount upon thy horses, and thy chariots salvation. 9 Raising thou wilt raise up thy bow: the oath to the tribes which thou hast spoken. [1] Thou wilt cut the rivers of the earth.

[1] * Sela.

10 The mountains saw thee, and were sorry, the gulf of water passed. The depth gave his voice: the height lifted up his hands. 11 The sun and the moon stood in their habitation, in the light of thine arrows, they shall go in the brightness of thy glittering spear. 12 In fretting thou wilt tread down the earth: in fury thou wilt astonish the Gentiles. 13 Thou wentest forth the salvation of thy people: salvation with thy Christ.

Thou struckest (e) the head out of the house of the impious, thou hast discovered the foundation even to the neck.[1]

(e) Antichrist the head of the malignant house, or conventicle, shall be destroyed by Christ. Isa. 11. v. 4. 2. Thes. 2.[1] Sela.

14 Thou hast cursed his sceptres, the head of his warriors, them that come as a whirlwind to disperse me. Their exultation, as his that devoureth the poor in secret. 15 Thou madest a way in the sea for thy horses, in the midst of many waters. 16 I heard, and my belly was troubled: at the voice my lips trembled. Let rottenness enter in my bones, and swarm under me. That I may rest in (f) the day of tribulation: that I may ascend to our girded people.

(f) All afflictions are to be patiently sustained, that we may have rest in the day of judgement.

17 For the fig-tree shall not flourish: & there shall be no spring in the vines. The work of the olive-tree shall deceive: and the fields shall not yield meat: the cattle shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls. 18 But I will joy in our Lord: and will rejoice in God my JESUS. 19 God our Lord is my strength: and he will make my feet as of the harts': and upon my high places he the conquerer will lead me singing in psalms.

THE PROPHECY OF SOPHONIAS.

SOPHONIAS the son of Chusi born in Sarabatha of the tribe of Simeon, in the reign of Josias King of Juda, somewhat before Jeremie (who began in the 13. year of the same Josias. After whom followed Ezechiel, in the fifth year of the transmigration of King Joachin, and Baruch in the fifth year after the destruction of Jerusalem: then Daniel three years after him) ◦prophesied the captivity of the two tribes, and their relaxation; likewise the ruin of diverse Gentiles; the coming of Christ; conversion of Gentiles, excecation of the Jews, with their general conversion towards the end of the world.

◦Sophonias prophesied the captivity of the two tribes, their relaxation, and Mysteries of Christ.

CHAPTER I.

For certain enormous sins, the captivity of the two tribes, is threatened, with admonition to repent, otherwise it shall be most terrible.

THE word (a) of our Lord that was made to Sophonie the son of Chusi, the son of Godolias, the son of Amarias, the son of Ezechias, in the days of Josias the son of Amon king of Juda.

(a) In saying the word of our Lord, the Prophets signify that they are not the principal authors of that which they preach or write, but the ministers by whom God speaketh.

2 (b) Gathering I will gather together all things from the face of the earth, saith our Lord:

(b) Gathering more commonly signifieth a benefit, but by that which followeth, from the face of the earth, it is manifest, that God here threateneth to destroy sinners, the Kingdom of Juda.

3 gathering man, and beast, gathering the fowls of the heaven, and fishes of the sea: and there shall be ruins of the impious: and I will destroy men from the face of the earth, saith our Lord. 4 And I will stretch forth my hand upon Juda, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and I will destroy out of this place the remnant of Baal, and the names of the temple-wardens with the priests: 5 and them that adore upon the tops of houses the host of heaven, and adore, and swear (c) by our Lord, and swear by Melchom.

(c) Whosoever joineth false gods with God Almighty, indeed serveth not God.

6 And them that turn away from after the back of our Lord, and that have not sought our Lord, nor searched after him. 7 Be silent before the face of our Lord God: because (d) the day of our Lord is near, because our Lord hath prepared an host, he hath sanctified his called.

(d) The day of punishment is commonly called the day of our Lord. Isa. 2. Ioel. 2. 1. Cor. 3. 2. Thess. 2.

8 And it shall be: in the day of the host of our Lord I will visit upon the princes, and upon (e) the king's sons, and upon all that are clothed with strange clothing:

(e) Joachaz was deprived of his Kingdom and died in Aegypt. 4. Reg. 23. Ioakim was continually vexed by the Babylonians & other nations, 4. Reg. 24. at last slain, & his body cast out of the city. Iere. 22. Sedecias taken, his eyes put out, so carried into Babylon, & all his sons slain:

Jechonias otherwise called Ioachin was kept long prisoner in Babylon, & all the issue of Josias afflicted.

9 and I will visit upon every one, that arrogantly entereth upon the threshold in that day, them that fill the house of our Lord their God with iniquity, & guile. 10 And it shall be in that day, saith our Lord, the voice of clamor from the gate of fishes, and howling from the second, and great destruction from the hills. 11 Howl ye inhabitants of the [1]Morter. All the people of Chanaan is hush, all are perished that were wrapped in silver.

[1] * the valley near Jerusalem.

12 & it shall be in that time: I will search Jerusalem with lamps, and will visit upon the men that are fixed in their dregs: that say in their hearts: The Lord will not do good, and he will not do evil. 13 And their strength shall be into spoil, and their houses as a desert: and they shall build houses, and shall not inhabit them: and shall plant vineyards, & shall not drink the wine of them. [1]

[1] Amos. 5.

14 (f) The great day of our Lord is near, it is near and exceeding swift: the voice of the day of our Lord is bitter, the strong shall there have tribulation.

(f) All these afflictions are near.

15 [1]That day (g) a day of wrath, a day of tribulation and distress, a day of calamity and misery, a day of darkness and mist, a day of cloud & whirlwind:

[1] Iere. 30. Ioel. 2. Amos. 3. (g) Repeating & inculcating the same terms, doth elegantly describe the greatness of the future calamities.

16 a day of the trumpet and sound upon the fenced cities, & upon the high corners. 17 And I will afflict men, and they shall walk as blindmen, because they have sinned to our Lord: and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their bodies as dung. 18 [1]Yea and their silver, and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of our Lord: in the fire of his jealousy shall all the earth be devoured, because he will make consummation with speed to all that inhabit the earth.

[1] Ezec. 7.

CHAPTER II.

An exhortation to repent: 4. with prophecy of the destruction of the Philistiims, 8. Moabites and Ammonites, 12. Aethiopians, 13. Assyrians: 15. with their chief city Ninive.

COME together, be (a) ye gathered together o nation not to be beloved:

(a) Ye that deserve not God's love, but rather to be rejected, yet by repentance return to him and he will receive you.

2 before that the commandment bring forth the day as dust passing away, before the wrath of the fury of our Lord come upon you, before the day of the indignation of our Lord come upon you. 3 Seek our Lord all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgement: seek the just, seek the meek: if by any means you may be hid in the day of the fury of our Lord. 4 Because Gaza (b) is destroyed, and Ascalon as a desert, Azotus at noon they shall cast out, and Accaron shall be rooted out.

(b) It is very frequent in the Prophets to speak of things to come as if they were done already, for the certainty thereof. And these prophecies of the destructions of other nations by the Chaldees, do confirm that which is threatened to the Jews, for all sinning, all must be punished. And God who is Lord of all will sooner or later give to all as they deserve.

5 Woe to you that inhabit the cord of the sea, o nation of castaways: the word of our Lord upon you o Chanaan land of the Philisthiims, and I will destroy thee, so that there shall not be an inhabiter. 6 And the cord of the sea shall be the rest of pastors, and folds of cattle. 7 And it shall be the cord of him, that shall remain of the house of Juda, there they shall feed: in the houses of Ascalon at even they shall rest: because our Lord their God will visit them, and turn away their captivity. 8 I have heard the reproach of Moab, and the blasphemies of the children of Ammon, with which they have upbraided my people, and were magnified upon their borders. 9 Therefore live I, saith the Lord of hosts the God of Israel, that Moab shall be as Sodom, and the children of Ammon as Gomorrha, dryness of thorns, and heaps of salt, and a desert even for ever: the remnant of my people shall spoil them, and the residue of my nation shall possess them.

10 This shall befall them for their pride: because they have blasphemed, and have been magnified upon the people of the Lord of hosts. 11 Our Lord shall be dreadful upon them, and shall attenuate all the gods of the earth: and they shall adore him every man out of his own place, all the islands of the Gentiles. 12 Yea and you Aethiopians shall be slain with my sword.
13 And he will stretch forth his hand upon the North, and will destroy Assur: and he will lay the Beautiful as a wilderness, and as a place not passable, and as a desert. 14 And flocks shall lie in the midst thereof, all the beasts of the Gentiles: [1]and onocratulus, and the Irchin shall abide in the thresholds thereof: the voice of one singing in the window, the raven on the upper post, because I will attenuate her strength.

[1] Isa. 34.

15 This is (c) the glorious city dwelling in confidence: that said in her heart: I am, and beside me there is none other else: how is she become as a desert the couch for beasts? every one that passeth by her, shall hiss, and wag his hand.

(c) Ninive exceeding glorious for antiquity, greatness, riches, warlike prowess, & most large dominion was at last destroyed.

CHAPTER III.

Jerusalem for rejecting God's admonitions shall be destroyed, 7. Christ being risen from death; the Jews persecuting the faithful shall be rejected, miserably destroyed, 9. and the Gentiles called. 11. So his Church shall flourish: 13. and at last the Jews shall be converted.

Woe to thee thou (a) provoking, and redeemed city, the dove.

(a) Jerusalem without proper merits preferred by God's special grace before all other places sanctified, adorned, protected most singularly, yet still provoked him to wrath, contemning his admonitions, and persisting and multiplying sins, cannot but at last be severely punished.

2 She hath not heard the voice, and she hath not received discipline: she hath not trusted in our Lord, to her God she hath not approached. 3 [1]Her princes in the midst of her as lions roaring: her judges^ wolves in the evening, left nothing for the morning.

[1] Ezec. 22. Mich. 3.

4 Her prophets mad, men unfaithful: her priests have polluted the holy, they have done unjustly against the law. 5 Our just Lord in the midst thereof will not do iniquity: in the morning, in the morning he will [1] give his judgement into light, and it shall not be hid: but the wicked man hath not known the confusion.

[1] * bring.

6 I have destroyed the Gentiles, & their corners are dissipated: I have made their ways desert, whiles there is none that passeth by: their cities are desolate, not a man remaining, nor any inhabiter. 7 I said: Nevertheless thou shalt fear me, thou shalt receive discipline: and her habitation shall not perish for all things, wherein I have visited her: but yet rising early they corrupted all their cogitations. 8 Wherefore (b) expect me, saith our Lord, in the day of my resurrection till hereafter, because my judgement to assemble the Gentiles, and to gather kingdoms: & to pour upon them mine indignation, all the wrath of my fury: for in the fire of my jealousy shall all the earth be devoured.

(b) About 40. years after Christ's resurrection, the most part of the Jews persisting obstinate were brought to marvelous distress & miseries, when Titus took & destroyed Jerusalem: which is also a figure of the destruction of this world, and of eternal punishment of the wicked.

9 Because (c) then will I restore to the peoples, a chosen lip, that all may invocate in the name of the Lord, & may serve him with one shoulder.

(c) All nations shall invocate one God in a chosen lip or tongue, in unity of faith, & with one shoulder of fortitude bear the yoke & burden of Christian life, made sweet and light by Christ's grace.

10 Beyond the rivers of Aethiopia, thence shall my suppliants the children of my dispersed bring me a gift. 11 In that day thou shalt not be confounded upon all thine inventions, wherein thou hast prevaricated against me: because then will I take away out of the midst of thee the lofty speakers of thy pride, & thou shalt add no more to be exalted in my holy mount. 12 And I will leave in the midst of thee a people poor and needy: & they shall hope in the name of our Lord. 13 The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, neither shall they speak leasing, and deceitful tongue shall not be found in their mouth: because they shall feed, and shall lie down, and there shall be none to make them afraid. 14 Praise o daughter of Sion: make jubilation Israel: be glad & rejoice in all thy heart o daughter of Jerusalem. 15 Our Lord hath taken away thy judgement, he hath turned away thine enemies: the king of Israel our Lord in the midst of thee, thou shalt fear evil no more. 16 In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem: Fear not: to Sion, let not thy hands be dissolved. 17 Our Lord thy God in the midst of thee strong, he will save: he will rejoice upon thee in gladness, he will be silent in his love, he will be joyful upon thee in praise. 18 The (d) triflers that were departed from thee, I will gather together, because they were of thee: that thou mayst no more have reproach for them.

(d) Men of light conversation, & contemners of Christ, shall also be converted, become grave, & greatly honour him.

19 Behold I will kill all that have afflicted thee at that time: and I will save the halt, & her that was cast out I will gather: and I will make them into praise, and into name, in all the land of their confusion. 20 In that time, when I will bring you: and in the time, that I will gather you: for I will give you into a name, and into praise to all the people of the earth, when I shall convert your captivity before your eyes, saith our Lord.

THE PROPHECY OF AGGEUS.

[1] AGGEUS prophesying in the second year of Darius Histaspis King of Persians, that is, in the 18. year after the relaxation from captivity of Babylon, exhorteth to re-edify the Temple, which had been begun & intermitted; promising much prosperity after the building thereof, [2] and finally the coming of Christ desired of all nations; who by his presence will glorify this new temple, more than the former built by Salomon; and especially prophesieth the glory of his Catholic Church, which shall much excel the Church of the old Testament.

[1] Aggeus prophesied after the captivity: of Christ and his Church.

[2] S. Ierom Epist. ad Paulin.

CHAPTER I.

The Jews building to themselves excellent houses, are justly reprehended for not building the Temple of God. 10. Which is the cause of the barrenness, sickness, and other evils. 12. Whereupon they undertake the holy work.

In the second year of Darius the king, the sixth month, in the first day of the month: the word of our Lord was made in the hand of Aggeus the Prophet, to (a) Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, duke of Juda, and to (b) Jesus the son of Josedec the grand Priest saying:

(a) Zorobabel descending directly from the Kings of Juda was now duke, & chief temporal Governer of the Jews, by permission of Darius King of Persians. (b) In like sort Jesus succeeded in the office of high Priest to Josedec, who was carried with others captive into Babylon. 1. Par. 6. v. 15.

2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: This people saith: (c) The time is not yet come of building the house of our Lord.

(c) It behoveth without delay to set forward restoration of God's service, reduction of souls from sin, & amending of ill manners: because by foreslowing thereof God's honour is hindered, and many souls, do eternally perish.

3 And the word of our Lord was made in the hand of Aggeus the Prophet, saying: 4 Why is it time for you to dwell in embowed houses, and this house desert? 5 And now thus saith the Lord of hosts? Set your hearts upon your ways. 6 [1] You have sowed much, and brought in little: you have eaten, and have not been filled: you have drunk, and have not been inebriated: you have covered yourselves, and have not been warmed: and he that hath gathered the wages, put them into a broken bag.

[1] Deu. 28. Mich. 6.

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Set your hearts upon your ways: 8 go up into the mountain, carry timber, and build the house: and it shall be acceptable to me, & I shall be glorified, saith our Lord. 9 You have looked for more, and behold it became less, and you brought it into the house, and I puft at it: for what cause saith the Lord of hosts? Because my house is desert, and you hasten every man into his own house. 10 For this cause were the heavens stayed over you that they gave no dew, & the earth was prohibited that it yielded not her spring: 11 and I called a drought upon the earth, and upon the mountains, & upon the wheat, & upon the wine, and upon the oil, and what things soever the ground brought forth, and upon men, and upon beasts, and upon all the labour of the hands. 12 And Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and Jesus the son of Josedec the high Priest, and all the remnant of the people heard the voice of their God, and the words of Aggeus the Prophet, as our Lord their God sent him to them: and the people feared at the face of our Lord.

13 And Aggeus the messenger of our Lord, (d) of the messengers of our Lord spake, saying to the people: I am with you, saith our Lord.

(d) To incite the people to just estimation of his preaching, the prophet avoucheth that he is a messenger, not coming of himself but sent by God.

14 And our Lord raised up the spirit of Zorobabel the son of Salathiel Duke of Juda, and the spirit of Jesus the son of Josedec the grand Priest, and the spirit of the rest of all the people: and they went in, and did the work in the house of the Lord of hosts their God.

CHAPTER II.

They are encouraged to proceed in building the temple: 6. with promise that Christ by his personal presence will bring more glory to this, than was in the former temple. 11. Their former slackness in this work was the cause of their wants: 19. and now they shall have aboundance.

In the four and twentieth day of the month, in (a) the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king.

(a) They began the new work the 24. day of the sixth month:

2 In the (b) seventh month, the one & twentieth of the month, the word of our Lord was made in the hand of Aggeus the Prophet, saying:

(b) and the 21. of the 7. month the Prophet had another revelation.

3 Speak to Zorobabel the son of Salathiel the Duke of Juda, and to Jesus the son of Josedec the grand Priest, and to the rest of the people, saying: 4 Who among you is left, that saw this house in the first glory thereof? And what do you see this same now? Why, is it not so, as if it were not in your eyes? 5 And now take courage Zorobabel, saith our Lord, and take courage Jesus the son of Josedec grand Priest, and take courage all ye people of the land, saith the Lord of hosts: & do (because I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts) 6 the word that I did covenant with you when you came out of the Land of Aegypt: & my spirit shall be in the midst of you: fear not. 7 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts: [1] As yet there is one little while, and I will move the heaven, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land.

[1] Heb. 12.

8 And I will move all nations: AND (c) THE DESIRED OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME: and I will fill this house with glory, saith the Lord of hosts.

(c) Jacob the Patriarch, Gen. 49. prophesied that Christ should be the expectation of the Gentiles. Who is called the desired of all Nations, because he was heretofore wanting, & always necessary to all nations.

9 Mine is the silver, & mine is the gold, saith the Lord of hosts. 10 Great shall be the glory of this last house, more than of the first, saith the Lord of hosts: and in this place will I give peace, saith the Lord of hosts.
11 In the four and twentieth of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius the king, the word of our Lord was made to Aggeus the Prophet, saying:
12 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Ask the Priests the law, saying: 13 If a man take sanctified flesh in the skirt of his garment, and touch with the skirt thereof bread, or broth, or wine, or oil, or any meat: (d) shall it be sanctified? And the Priests answering, said: No.

(d) That which touched a holy thing was sanctified. Levi. 6. v. 18. but the thing so touched did not sanctify other things: so the people by touching the sacrifices were legally sanctified but not really: and therefore their sacrifices were not grateful to God, so long as they did not endeavour to build the temple, as they ought to have done.

14 And Aggeus said: If one polluted on a soul touch any of all these, shall he be contaminated? And the Priests answered, and said: He shall be contaminated.
15 And Aggeus answered, and said: So this people, and so this nation before my face, saith our Lord, and so all the work of their hands: & all that they have offered there, shall be contaminated. 16 And now set your hearts, from this day & upward, before there was stone laid upon stone in the temple of our Lord.

17 When you went to an heap of twenty bushels, and they became ten: and entered into the press, to press out fifty flagons, & they became twenty.[1]

[1] Amos. 4.

18 I struck you with the burning wind, and with the blast, and with hail, all the works of your hands: and there was none among you, that returned to me, saith our Lord. 19 Set your hearts from this day, & henceforward, from the four & twentieth day of the ninth month: from the day that the foundations of the temple of our Lord were laid, lay it upon your hearts.
20 Is there the seed now [1]abreward? And as yet the wine, and the fig-tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive-tree hath not flourished? From this day I will bless.

[1] * sprung up.

21 And the word of our Lord was made the second time to Aggeus in the four and twentieth of the month, saying: 22 Speak to Zorobabel the Duke of Juda, saying: I will move the heaven and also the earth.
23 And I (e) will overthrow the throne of Kingdoms, and will destroy the strength of the Kingdom of the Gentiles: and I will overthrow the chariot, and the rider thereof: and the horses shall come down, and the riders of them, every one by the sword of his brother.

(e) All other Kingdoms perishing the Kingdom of Christ, which is his Church, is never destroyed.

24 In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, [1]I will take thee o Zorobabel son of Salathiel my servant, saith our Lord, and will put thee as a signet, because thee have I chosen, saith the Lord of hosts.

[1] Eccl. 49.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. II.

10. Great shall be the glory.] [1]When according to the Prophet's exhortation the temple was built again, Esdras ch. 3. v. 12. writeth, that such ancient men as had seen the former, lamented, because this new one was not so excellent as the former had been, which is also clear by other places of holy scripture. For amongst other differences, Salomon's temple had in height, and in breadth, an hundred and twenty cubits 2. Paral 3. v. 4. this new temple had but sixty cubits. 1. Esd. 6. v. 3. Likewise Salomon's temple was built of stones hewed and perfectly polished. 3. Reg. 6. v. 7. which were also covered on the inner side with ceiling work of cedar wood. v. 18. This new temple was built of rough and unpolished stones. 1. Esd. 5. v. 8. As for the same temple long after enlarged and adorned by Herod, it continued not long in that state, [2]and the chiefest glory thereof was by our Saviour's presence therein, when he was presented by his mother, and joyfully received into the arms of Simeon, and often preached there. And therefore S. Augustin proveth li. 18. c. 45. civit. that the Prophet here foresheweth the glory of Christ's mystical temple, faithful Christian souls of all nations, in whom God dwelleth by grace of the new Testament far more glorious in living stones, than that temple which King Salomon built, or that which was restored after the captivity.

[1] The temple restored after the captivity was not so glorious as that which Salomon built.

[2] But Christ's Church of the new Testament, in which he dwelleth spiritually, far excelleth the material temple.

THE PROPHECY OF ZACHARIAS.

[1] Zachary began to prophesy but two months after Aggeus.

[2] S. Iero. Epist. ad Paulin.

[1] ZACHARIAS the son of Barachias, and Nephew of Addo, beginning two months after Aggeus, exhorteth also to re-edify the Temple: & sheweth by diverse visions that the Church shall flourish, partly in that time of the old Synagogue, but much more after Christ's coming: whose first and chief promulgators of his Gospel shall be of the Jewish nation: but the far greater number shall be of the Gentiles, the Jews for their obstinacy rejected. Yet they also in the end shall return to Christ. [2]

CHAPTER I.

The Prophet exhorteth the people to convert to God, and not to imitate the evil examples of their fathers: 7. by a vision of an horseman, and diverse coloured horses he prophesieth bitter times: 18. confirming the same by another vision of four horns.

In the eighth month in the second year of king Darius the word of our Lord was made to Zachary the son of Barachias, the son of Addo the Prophet, saying: 2 Our Lord hath been wrath upon your fathers with wrath. 3 And thou shalt say to them: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: (a) Convert to me, saith the Lord of hosts, and I will convert to you, saith the Lord of hosts. [1]

(a) When God in the holy Scriptures saith: Convert to me, and I will convert to you, we are admonished that we have free will. And when we answer: Convert us o Lord to thee, and we shall be converted, we confess that God's grace preventeth us. Conc. Trid. sess. 6. c. 5. [1] Mal. 3. Isa. 21. Iere. 3. Eze. 18. & 20. Ose. 14. Ioel. 2.

4 Be not as your fathers, to whom the former Prophets cried, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Convert from your evil ways, and from your most wicked thoughts: and they heard not, neither attended to me, saith our Lord. 5 Your fathers where are they? And the Prophets shall they live for ever? 6 But yet my words, & mine ordinances, which I gave in commandment to my servants the Prophets, did they not take hold of your fathers, and they converted, and said: As the Lord of hosts thought to do to us according to our ways, & according to our inventions he hath done to us. 7 In the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month Sabath: in the second year of Darius, the word of our Lord was made to Zacharie the son of Barachias, the son of Addo, the Prophet, saying: 8 I saw by night, and behold (b) a man mounting upon a red horse, and he stood among the myrtle-trees, that were in the bottom: and after him horses red, speckled, and white.

(b) That this was an Angel in the shape of a man is manifest. v. 11.

9 And I said: What are these, my Lord? And the Angel that spake in me, said to me: I will shew thee what these things are. 10 And the man, that stood among the myrtle-trees answered, and said: These are they, whom our Lord sent to walk through the earth. 11 And they answered to the Angel of our Lord, which stood among the myrtle-trees, and said: We have walked through the earth, and lo all the earth is inhabited, & at rest. 12 And the Angel of our Lord answered, and said: o Lord of hosts, how long wilt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem, & on the cities of Juda, with which thou hast been angry? This now is (c) the seventieth year.

(c) Seventy years from the transmigration of Ioachin were complete in the first of Cyrus. Dan. 9. Seventy years were also complete from the destruction of the temple in the second of Darius Histaspis: & therefore the prophet now prayeth God to inspire such as were able, that they would build the temple again.

13 And our Lord answered the Angel that spake in me, good words, comfortable words. 14 [1] And the Angel that spake in me, said to me: Cry, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I have been zealous for Jerusalem, and Sion with great zeal.

[1] Zach. 8.

15 And with great anger am I angry upon the wealthy nations: because I was angry a little, but they helped toward the evil. 16 Therefore thus saith our Lord: I will return to Jerusalem in mercies: my house shall be built in it, saith the Lord of hosts: & the plumb line shall be stretched forth upon Jerusalem. 17 As yet cry thou saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: As yet shall my cities flow with good things: and the Lord will yet comfort Sion, and he will yet choose Jerusalem.

18 And I lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and behold (d) four horns.

(d) From four parts of the world, to wit the Moabites & Ammonites on the east of Jury; the Idumeans and Aegyptians on the south; the Philisthiims on the west: & the Assirians and Chaldees on the North side, had much molested the Jews; all which were therefore plagued & punished for the same.

19 And I said to the Angel that spake in me: What are these: And he said to me: These are the horns that have scattered Juda, and Israel, and Jerusalem. 20 And our Lord shewed me four [1] artificers.

[1] * fabros.

21 And I said: What come these to do? Who spake saying: These are the horns, that scattered Juda every man a-part, and none of them lifted his head: and these are come to fray them, to cast down the horns of the nations, that have lifted the horn upon the land of Juda to scatter it.

CHAPTER II.

Under the name of Jerusalem, he prophesieth the progress of the Church of Christ: 6. by the conversion of some Jews, 8. and many Gentiles.

And I lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and lo a man, and in his hand a cord of measurers. 2 And I said: Whither goest thou? And he said to me: To measure (a) Jerusalem, and to see how great the breadth thereof is, and how great the length thereof.

(a) According to S. Augustin's rule in Psal. 71. when greater things are said than can be verified as the letter soundeth, the same is literally to be understood of the thing prefigured. And so this prophecy pertaineth to the Church of Christ, rather than to the city of Jerusalem.

3 And behold the Angel that spake in me, came forth, and another Angel went out to meet him. 4 And he said to him: Run, speak to this young man saying: Without wall shall Jerusalem be inhabited for the multitude of men, and of beasts in the midst thereof. 5 And I will be to it, saith our Lord, a wall of fire round about: and I will be in glory in the midst thereof. 6 O (b) fly ye out of the land of the North, saith our Lord, because into the four winds of heaven have I dispersed you, saith our Lord.

(b) O ye Gentiles that remain in confused Babylon of this world, fly from it into the Church.

7 (c) O Sion, fly thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon:

(c) And ye Jews that have fellowship with Babylon, leave it, and serve God sincerely.

8 because thus saith the Lord of hosts: After glory he sent me to the nations, that have spoiled you: for he that shall touch you, toucheth the apple of mine eye: 9 because lo I lift up my hand upon them, and they shall be a prey to those that served them: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts sent me. 10 Praise, and rejoice o daughter of Sion: because lo I come, & will dwell in the midst of thee, saith our Lord. 11 And many nations shall be joined to our Lord in that day, and they shall be my people, and I will dwell in the midst of thee: and thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me to thee. 12 And our Lord will possess Juda his portion in the sanctified land: and he will yet choose Jerusalem. 13 Let all flesh be silent at the presence of our Lord: because he is risen up out of his holy habitation.

CHAPTER III.

In a vision the devil appeareth accusing the high Priest. 4. He is cleansed from his sins. 8. Christ is promised, and great fruit of his passion.

And our Lord shewed me (a) Jesus the grand Priest standing before the Angel of our Lord: and Satan stood on his right hand, to be his adversary.

(a) Literally this vision pertained to the high Priest of that time:

2 And our Lord said to Satan: The Lord give rebuke on thee Satan: and the Lord that chose Jerusalem give rebuke on thee: Why, is not this a fire-brand taken out of the fire? 3 And Jesus was clothed (b) with filthy garments: and he stood before the face of the Angel.

(b) Whose fault is here taxed, for that he admonished not the people to build the temple; and to abstain from marrying women of strange nations, as. 1. Esd. 8. 9. 10.

4 Who answered, and said to them that stood before him, saying: Take away the filthy garments from him. And he said to him: Behold I have taken away thine iniquity, and have clothed thee with change of garments. 5 And he said: Put a clean mitre upon his head: and they put a clean mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments: and the Angel of our Lord stood. 6 And the Angel of our Lord contested Jesus, saying: 7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: If you will walk in my ways, and keep my watch, thou also shalt judge my house, and shalt keep my courts, and I (c) will give thee walkers of them that now assist here.

(c) Angels are promised to assist the Prelates of the Church.

8 Hear o Jesus thou grand Priest, thou and thy friends that dwell before thee, because they are portending men: for behold I WILL BRING (d) MY SERVANT THE ORIENT. [1]

(d) Christ according to his manhood is the servant of God. Of whom S. Luke expoundeth this prophecy. [1] Luc. 1. v. 78.

9 Because lo the stone that I laid before Jesus: upon one stone there be seven eyes, behold I will grave the graving thereof, saith the Lord of hosts: and I will take away the iniquity of that land in one day. 10 In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, every man shall call his friend under the vine and under the fig-tree.

CHAPTER IV.

In a vision of a candlestick and candles, 3. and of two olive-trees is prophesied the vocation of the Gentiles, 11. and lastly of the Jews.

And the Angel returned that spake in me: & he raised me up, as a man that is raised out of his sleep. 2 And he said to me: What seest thou? And I said: I saw, & (a) lo (b) a candlestick all of gold, & (c) the lamp thereof upon the head of it: and the (d) seven lights thereof upon it: and seven funnels for the lights, that were upon the head thereof.

(a) Most Hebrew Doctors & some Christian expound this vision of the temple, & the old synagogue, but most others understand it literally of Christ & his Church. (b) The candlestick Metaphorically signifieth Christ's Church. (c) The lamp or light Christ. (d) seven lights all the Pastors of the Church.

3 And (e) two olive-trees upon it: one on the right hand of the lamp, and one on the left hand thereof.

(e) Two olives Enoch & Elias. Apoc. 11.

4 And I answered, and I said to the Angel that spake in me, saying: What are these things, my Lord? 5 And the Angel that spake in me answered, and said to me: Why, knowest thou not what these things are? And I said: No my Lord. 6 And he answered, & said to me, saying: This is the word of our Lord (f) to Zorobabel, saying: Not in an host, nor in strength: but in my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts.

(f) Which vision was to be declared to Zorobabel, for his consolation that he might know, that God would protect his Church.

7 Who art thou o great mountain before Zorobabel? Into a plain: & he will bring forth the principal stone, and will make grace equal to the grace thereof. 8 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 9 The hands of Zorobabel have founded this house, and his hands shall perfit it: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me to you. 10 For who hath despised little days? And they shall rejoice, & shall see the stone of tin in the hand of Zorobabel. These are the seven eyes of our Lord, that run throughout the whole earth. 11 And I answered, and said to him: What are these two olive-trees on the right hand of the candlestick, and on the left hand thereof? 12 And I answered the second time, and said to him: What are the (g) two branches of olive-trees, that are beside the two beaks of gold, in which are the funnels of gold?

(g) Two branches, the divine & human natures of Christ.

13 And he said to me, saying: Why, knowest thou not what these are? And I said: No, my Lord. 14 And he said: These are two sons of oil which assist the dominatour of the whole earth.

CHAPTER V.

In a vision of a flying Book, thieves and swearers are threatened: 5. in another vision is foreshewed that the Jews shall be blind, and obdurate.

And I turned and lifted up mine eyes, and I saw, and (a) behold a volume (b) flying

(a) In this Book or roll of papers were written the sins of the people, and designed punishment. (b) It appeared flying, to signify that this decree of punishment came from heaven. S. Chry. ho. 27. ad popul.

2 And he said to me: What seest thou? And I said: I see a volume flying: the length thereof of twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof of ten cubits. 3 And he said to me: This is the malediction, that goeth forth upon the face of the earth: because every thief, as is there written, shall be judged: and every swearer, by it in like manner shall be judged. 4 I will bring it forth, saith the Lord of hosts: and it shall come to the house of the thief, & to the house of him that sweareth by my name falsely: and it shall abide in the midst of his house, and shall consume it, & the timber thereof, and the stones thereof. 5 And the Angel went out that spake in me: and he said to me: Lift up thine eyes, and see what is this, that goeth forth. 6 And I said: What is it? And he said: This is an amphore going forth. And he said: This is their eye in all the earth. 7 And behold a talent of lead was carried, and lo one woman sitting in the midst of the amphore. 8 And he said: This is impiety. And he threw her in the midst of the amphore, and cast a lump of lead upon the mouth thereof. 9 And I lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and behold (c) two women coming forth, and spirit in the wings of them, and they had wings as the wings of a kite: and they lifted up the amphore between the earth and the heaven.

(c) Excecation & obduration fell upon the Jews for their avarice, and perjury.

10 And I said to the Angel that spake in me: Whither do these carry the amphore? 11 And he said to me: That a house may be built for it in the land (d) of Sennaar, and it may be established, and set there upon the foundation thereof.

(d) Antichrist shall begin his reign where Babylon was first built. Gen. 11.

CHAPTER VI.

In a vision of chariots is foreshewed the succession of four monarchies. 11. In crowns set on the high Priest's head, the Kingdom and Priesthood of Christ: 15. and the rewards of them that receive him.

And I turned, and lifted up mine eyes, and saw: and behold (a) four chariots coming forth from the midst of two mountains, and the mountains, mountains of brass.

(a) Four Monarchies of the Chaldees, the Medes and Persians, the Grecian, and the Romans. Dan. 2.

2 In the first chariot red horses, and in the second chariot black horses, 3 and in the third chariot white horses, and in the fourth chariot speckled horses, and strong. 4 And I answered, and said to the Angel, that spake in me: What are these things, my Lord? 5 And the Angel answered, and said to me: These are the four winds of heaven, which go forth to stand before the Dominatour of all the earth. 6 That, in which were the black horses went forth into the land of the North, and the white went forth after them: and the speckled went forth to the land of the South. 7 But they that were strongest, went out, and sought to go, and to run about through-out all the earth. And he said: Go walk through-out the earth, and they walked through-out the earth. 8 And he called me, & spake to me, saying: Behold, they that go forth into the land of the North, have made my spirit to rest in the land of the North. 9 And the word of our Lord was made to me, saying: 10 Take of the transmigration of Holdai, and of Tobias, and of Idaias: and thou shalt come in that day, and shalt enter into the house of Josias, the son of Sophonias, who came out of Babylon. 11 And thou shalt take gold and silver: and shalt make crowns, & thou shalt set on the head of Jesus the son of Josedec the grand Priest, 12 and thou shalt speak to him, saying: Thus saith the Lord of hosts, (b) saying: [1] BEHOLD A MAN, ORIENT IS HIS NAME: and under him shall spring up, & shall build a temple to our Lord.

(b) When the Prophet set the crown on the high Priest's head, that he might withal signify that it pertained not to him, but as in figure of Christ he explicateth, that God revealed this mystery, saying: Behold a man, who is also God, called Orient, that is: Raising up and establishing the Kingdom which was promised to David. S. Iero. in hunc locum. [1] Luc. 1. v. 78.

13 And he shall build a temple to our Lord: and shall bear glory, and shall sit, and rule upon his throne: and he shall be a Priest upon his throne, and the counsel of peace shall be between them two. 14 And the crowns shall be to Helem, and Tobias, and Idaias, and Hem, the son of Sophonias, a memorial in the temple of our Lord. 15 And they that are far, shall come, and shall build in the temple of our Lord: and you shall know that the Lord of hosts sent me to you. But this shall be, if hearing you will hear the voice of our Lord your God.

CHAPTER VII.

The fast of the fifth and seventh month observed in the captivity, being good, 5. was unperfect, 8. fasting from sin is always more necessary.

And it came to pass in the fourth year of Darius the king, the word of our Lord was made to Zacharie, in the fourth of the ninth month, which is Casleu. 2 And Sarasar, and Rogommelech, and the men that were with him, sent to the house of God, to beseech the face of our Lord: 3 that they should say to the priests of the house of the Lord of hosts, and to the Prophets, saying: Must I weep in (a) the fifth month, or must I sanctify myself as now I have done many years?

(a) Because the temple was burned in the fifth month, & Godolias slain in the seventh. 4. Reg. 25. v. 8. 25. the Jews fasted in those two months all the time of their captivity.

4 And the word of the Lord of hosts was made to me, saying: 5 [1]Speak to all the people of the land, and to the Priests, saying: When you fasted, and mourned in the fifth and the seventh for these seventy years: (b) did you fast a fast unto me?

[1]Isa. 58. (b) Which fast was good, but unperfect, wanting works of mercy, most especially required in fasts. Isa. 58. S. Greg. p. 3. past. curae admonit. 20. & ho. 16. in Evang.

6 And when you did eat & drink, did you not eat for yourselves, & drink for yourselves? 7 Why, are they not the words, which our Lord spake in the hand of the former Prophets, when Jerusalem as yet was inhabited, & was wealthy, itself and the cities round about it, & toward the South, & in the champion there was dwelling? 8 And the word of our Lord was made to Zacharie, saying: 9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, saying: (c) Judge ye true judgement, and do ye mercy, and miserations every man with his brother.

(c) And therefore the Prophet admonisheth to fast from all sins.

10 [1]And the widow, and the pupil, and the stranger, and the poor do not calumniate: and let not a man think in his heart evil to his brother.

[1]Exo. 22. Isa. 1. Iere. 5.

11 And they would not attend, and they turned away the shoulder departing: and they aggravated their ears, not to hear. 12 And they made their heart as the adamant, lest they should hear the law, and the words which the Lord sent in his spirit by the hand of the former Prophets: and there was great indignation made from the Lord of hosts. 13 And it came to pass as he spake, and they heard not: so shall they cry, and I will not hear, saith the Lord of hosts. 14 And I dispersed them throughout all kingdoms, which they knew not: and the land was left desolate of them, for that there was none passing and returning: and the land to be desired they laid into a desert.

CHAPTER VIII.

God will give aboundance of spiritual benefits to all nations by Christ: 7. to whom shall be converted 13. many Jews, 20. but many more Gentiles.

And the word of the Lord of hosts was made, saying: 2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I have been jealous for Sion with great zeal, & with great indignation have I been jealous for it.

3 [1]Thus saith the Lord of hosts: (a) I am returned to Sion, & I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: & Jerusalem shall be called the City of truth, & the mount of the Lord of hosts, the sanctified mount.

[1]Zach. 1. v. 14. (a) These benefits here prophesied are greater than ever were bestowed upon the Jews before Christ came, & therefore are rather to be understood of the graces of the new testament.

4 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: As yet shall old men dwell, & old women in the streets of Jerusalem: & every man's staff in his hand for multitude of years. 5 And the streets of the city shall be filled with infants, & girls playing in the streets thereof. 6 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: If it shall seem hard in the eyes of the remnant of this people in those days: Why, shall it be hard in mine eyes, saith the Lord of hosts?

7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Behold I will save my people from the land of (b) the East, and from the land of the going down of the sun.

(b) The ten tribes were carried captive into Assyria, & the two tribes into Babylon: both which are northward: not into the east nor west. And therefore this prophecy is of all nations Jews & Gentiles to be called to Christ from all parts.

8 And I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: & they shall be my people, & I will be their God in truth & in justice. 9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: Let your hands be strengthened, you that hear in these days these words by the mouth of the Prophets in the day, that the house of the Lord of hosts was founded, that the temple might be built.

10 For before those days there was no hire for men, neither was there hire for beasts, neither was there peace to the comer in, nor goer out for tribulation: & I did let go all men, every one against his neighbour.

11 But now not according to the former days will I do to the remnant of this people, saith the Lord of hosts.
12 But the seed of peace shall be: the vine shall give his fruit, and the earth shall give her spring, & the heavens shall give their dew: & I will make the remnant of this people to possess all these things.
13 And it shall be: as you were a malediction among the Gentiles, o house of Juda, & house of Israel: so will I save you, & you shall be a benediction: fear not, let your hands be strengthened. 14 Because thus saith the Lord of hosts: As I purposed to afflict you, when your fathers had provoked me to wrath saith our Lord,
15 and I had no mercy: so converting I have meant in these days to do good to the house of Juda, and Jerusalem: fear not. 16 [1]These then are the words, which you shall do: Speak ye truth, every one with his neighbour: truth and judgement of peace judge ye in your gates.

[1] Ephes. 4. v. 25.

17 And think ye not every man in your heart evil against his friend: & lying oath love ye not: for all these things are such as I hate, saith our Lord. 18 And the word of our Lord of hosts was made to me saying:
19 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: The fast (c) of the fourth, & the fast of the fifth, & the fast of the seventh, & the fast of the tenth shall be to the house of Juda into joy, and gladness, & into goodly solemnities: truth only, and peace love ye.

(c) Not only the fast of the fifth and seventh months (whereof the question was proposed ch. 7. v. 3.) but also of the fourth & tenth, were to be left off in the times of joy and festivity.

20 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, until peoples come, & dwell in many cities, 21 and the inhabitants go, one to another, saying: Let us go, & beseech the face of our Lord, & let us seek the Lord of hosts: I also will go.
22 And many peoples shall come, & strong nations to seek the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem, & to beseech the face of our Lord. 23 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: In those days, wherein ten men of all the tongue of the Gentiles shall take hold, & they shall take hold of the skirt of a man that is a Jew, saying: We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you.

CHAPTER IX.

The bordering enemies of the Jews shall believe in Christ: 9. who will first come to the Jews in meekness, yet in solemnity riding on an ass: 11. deliver the godly from the lake, 12. give great things to the faithful, 17. and one most excellent thing above the rest.

The (a) burden of the word of our Lord in the land of [1]Hadrach, & Damascus his rest: because our Lord is the eye of man, and of all the tribes of Israel.

(a) Preaching true doctrine is at first ungrateful to some hearers, & still to the incredulous, but this burden becometh light to the faithful. [1] * a city of Syria.

2 Emath also in the borders thereof, & Tyre, & Sidon: for they have taken to themselves wisdom exceedingly. 3 And Tyre hath built her munition, and heaped together silver as earth, and gold as the mire of the streets. 4 Behold our Lord shall possess her, and shall strike her strength in the sea, & she shall be devoured with fire. 5 Ascalon shall see, and shall fear, and Gaza, and shall be sorry exceedingly: & Accaron, because her hope is confounded: and the king shall perish out of Gaza, & Ascalon shall not be inhabited.
6 And the separator shall sit in Azotus, and I will destroy the pride of the Philistiims. 7 And I will take away his blood out of his mouth, and his abominations out of the midst of his teeth: and he also shall be left to our God, and he shall be as a duke in Juda, & Accaron as a Jebuseite. 8 And I will environ my house of them, that serve me in warfare going and returning, & the exactor shall no more pass over them: because now I have seen with mine eyes. 9 Rejoice greatly, o daughter of Sion, make jubilation, o daughter of Jerusalem: BEHOLD THY KING (b) will come to thee, the just & saviour: himself poor, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass. [1]

(b) Christ came often into Jerusalem, but this last coming excelled all the rest, when he came to die for redemption of mankind. [1] Isa. 62. Mat. 21. v. 5. Ioan 1. v. 15.

10 And I will destroy chariot out of Ephraim, and horse out of Jerusalem, and the bow of war shall be dissipated: and he shall speak peace to the Gentiles, and his power from sea even to sea, and from the rivers even to the end of the earth. 11 Thou also in the blood of thy testament hast let forth thy prisoners out of (c) the lake, wherein is no water.

(c) S. Ierom. S. Cyril, & other fathers understand this lake to be Limbus Patrum: from whence Christ delivered the Saints of the old testament.

12 Convert to the munition ye prisoners of hope, today also declaring I will render thee double.
13 Because I have bent Juda for me as a bow, I have filled Ephraim: and I will raise up thy sons o Sion upon thy sons o Greece, and I will make thee as the sword of the strong. 14 And our Lord God shall be seen over them, and his dart shall go forth as lightning: and our Lord God will sound with trumpet, and will go in the whirlwind of the South. 15 The Lord of hosts will protect them: and they shall devour, and subdue with the stones of the sling: and drinking they shall be drunk as it were of wine, & they shall be filled as phials, and the horns of the altar. 16 And our Lord their God will save them in that day, as the flock of his people: because holy stones shall be elevated over his land. 17 For what is his good thing, and what is his beautiful thing, but (d) the corn of the elect, and wine springing virgins?

(d) Christ is the grain of wheat which dying bringeth much fruit, Ioan. 12. And of this wheat that bread is made that came from heaven. Ioan 6. S. Ierom in hunc locum.

CHAPTER X.

The Jews are exhorted to ask good things of God: 4. of their nation cometh the Redeemer of all men, 5. and of the same are the Apostles, spiritual masters of the whole world. 6. The whole nation shall at last be converted.

Ask of our Lord rain in (a) the lateward time, and our Lord will make snows, and will give them rain of showers, to every one grass in the field.

(a) Lateward time is when fruit waxeth ripe, and so is here taken for the time of grace: which S. Paul calleth the acceptable time: & therefore this Prophet exhorteth to ask this grace, and all spiritual benefits of God.

2 Because the idols spake that which was unprofitable, and the diviners saw a lie, & the dreamers spake in vain: they comforted vainly: therefore are they led away as a flock: they shall be afflicted, because they have no Pastor. 3 Upon the Pastors my fury is wrath, and upon the buckgoats I will visit: because the Lord of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Juda, and hath made them as the horse of his glory in the battle. 4 Of him the corner, of him the pin, of him the bow of battle, of him shall come forth every exactor together. 5 And they shall be as valiants, treading the mire of the ways in battle: and they shall fight, because our Lord is with them: and the riders of horses shall be confounded. 6 And I will strengthen the house (b) of Juda, and the house (c) of Joseph I will save: and I will convert them, because I will have mercy on them: and they shall be as they were when I had not cast them off, for I am the Lord their God, and will hear them.

(b) Not only the two tribes (c) but also the ten shall be converted at last to Christ.

7 And they shall be as the valiants of Ephraim, & their heart shall rejoice as it were of wine: and their children shall see, and shall rejoice, & their heart shall be joyful in our Lord. 8 I (d) will hiss to them, and will gather them together, because I have redeemed them: [1] and I will multiply them as they were multiplied before.

(d) Christians are sweetly drawn by internal inspiration without clamours, and violent persuasion of words. S. Cyril. [1] Isa. 11.

9 And I will sow them among peoples, & from a far they shall remember me: & they shall live with their children, and shall return. 10 And I will bring them back out of the Land of Aegypt, and out of the Assyrians I will gather them: and to the Land of Galaad & Libanus I will bring them, and there shall not be found place for them. 11 And he shall pass over in the strait of the sea, and shall strike the waves in the sea, & all the depths of the river shall be confounded, & (e) the pride of Assur shall be humbled, and the sceptre of Aegypt shall depart.

(e) When the faithful are multiplied & confirmed in religion, their enemies cannot hurt them.

12 I will strengthen them in the Lord, and in his name they shall walk, saith our Lord.

CHAPTER XI.

Jerusalem shall be again most miserably destroyed, 4. the Jewish nation rejected and dispersed, 12. because Christ was sold by them to the Gentiles for thirty pence. 16. They will receive Antichrist, who shall be finally destroyed.

Open thy gates (a) o Libanus, and let fire devour thy cedars.

(a) Jerusalem is called Libanus, Isa. 10. v. 34. & in other places, for the great beauty thereof: likewise the temple, & because it was built of the trees of Libanus, as S. Ierom here, & Ezech. 17. expoundeth. And so by this metaphor the destruction of the city and temple by Titus is here prophesied. The cedars also signify the principal men of the Jews.

2 Howl thou fir-tree, because the cedar is fallen, because the magnifical are wasted: howl ye oaks of Basan, because the fenced forest is cut down. 3 The voice of the howling of Pastors, because their magnificence is wasted: the voice of the roaring of lions, because the pride of Jordan is wasted. 4 Thus saith our Lord my God: Feed thou the cattle of slaughter, 5 which they that possessed, slew, and were not sorry, & they sold them, saying: Blessed be our Lord, we are become rich: & their Pastors spared them not. 6 And I will spare no more upon the inhabitants of the earth, saith our Lord: behold I will deliver men, every one in his neighbour's hand, and in the hand of his king: and they shall cut the land in pieces, & I will not deliver it out of their hand. 7 And I will feed the cattle of slaughter for this, o ye poor of the stock: and I took unto me two rods, one I called (b) Beauty, and the other I called (c) Cord: and I fed the flock.

(b) God the Creator & governor of all men, calleth his general government beauty: because it is most seemly that all be under his rod. (c) And his peculiar government of the Jews he calleth a Cord, because it is limited to one people.

8 And I cut off three Pastors in one month, and my soul shrunk together at them: for their soul also varied on me. 9 And I said: I will not feed you: [1] that which dieth, let it die: and that which is cut off, be it cut off: and let the rest devour every one his neighbour's flesh.

[1] Iere. 15. v. 2.

10 and I took my rod that was called beauty, & I cut it off to make void my covenant, which I made with all peoples. 11 And it was made void in that day: and so the poor of the flock that keep for me, understood that it is the word of the Lord. 12 And I said to them: If it be good in your eyes, bring hither my hire: and if not, be quiet. And they weighed my hire thirty pieces of silver. 13 And our Lord said to me, cast it forth to the statuary, a goodly price, that I was priced at by them. And I took (d) the thirty pieces of silver: & I threw them into the house of our Lord to the statuary. [1]

(d) Christ bought and sold for 30. pence. [1] Mat. 26.

14 And I (e) cut off my second rod, that was called Cord, that I might dissolve the brotherhood between Juda and Israel.

(e) The Jews are rejected:

15 And our Lord said to me: As yet take to thee the [1] vessels of a foolish Pastor.

[1] * unapt instruments.

16 Because lo (f) I will raise up a Pastor in the land which shall not visit things forsaken, the thing dispersed he shall not seek, and the broken he shall not heal, and that which standeth he shall not nourish, and he shall eat the flesh of the fat ones, and their hoofs he shall dissolve.

(f) Antichrist a destroyer,

17 O pastor, and idol, leaving the flock: (g) the sword upon his arm, & upon his right eye: his arm shall be dried with withering, and his right eye waxing dark shall be obscured.

(g) shall be destroyed.

CHAPTER XII.

The Jews persecuting Christ and his Church, shall be sore afflicted. 6. The Church still prospering: 11. the incredulous shall be condemned.

The burden of the word of our Lord upon (a) Israel. Saith our Lord extending the heaven, & founding the earth, & forming the spirit of man in him:

(a) When the Church of Christ began in Jerusalem, proceeding to all Jury, and Samaria, and to other nations, the other Jews most earnestly persecuted Christians. Act. 4. 5. &c.

2 Behold I will make Jerusalem a lintel of surfeit to all peoples round about: yea and (b) Juda shall be in the siege against Jerusalem.

(b) Juda besieged Jerusalem when Jews remaining in Judaism persecuted other Jews believing in Christ, for then brother delivered brother to death, the father the son &c. Mat. 10. v. 21.

3 And it shall be: In that day I will make Jerusalem a stone of burden to all peoples: all that shall lift it, shall be torn with tearing, and all the kingdoms of the earth shall be gathered against her. 4 In that day, saith our Lord: I will strike every horse into astonishment, and his rider into madness, and upon the house of Juda I will open mine eyes, and every horse of the peoples I will strike with blindness. 5 And the Dukes of Juda shall say in their heart: Let the inhabitants of Jerusalem be strengthened for me in the Lord of hosts their God. 6 In that day I will make the Dukes of Juda as a furnace of fire amongst sticks, & as a brand of fire in hay: & they shall devour to the right hand, and to the left all people round about: & Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her place in Jerusalem. 7 And our Lord shall save the tabernacles of Juda, as in the beginning: that the house of David glory not magnifically, and the glory of them that inhabit Jerusalem against Juda. 8 In that day shall our Lord protect the inhabitants of Jerusalem, & he that offended of them in that day shall be as David: & the house of David, as of God, as an Angel of our Lord in their sight. 9 And it shall be in that day: I will seek to destroy all Nations, that come against Jerusalem.

10 And I will pour out upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace, & of prayers: and they shall look toward me, whom they pierced: and they shall lament him with lamentation as it were upon an only begotten, and they shall sorrow upon him, as the manner is to be sorrowful in the death of the first begotten.[1]

[1] Ioan. 19. v. 3.

11 In that day shall be great lamentation in Jerusalem, as the lamentation of (c) Adadremmon in the field of Mageddon.[1]

(c) A town near to Jezrahel in the country of Mageddon, where Iosias was slain 2. Paral. 35. and great lamentation was made for him which was a figure of the miserable calamity of the obstinate in the day of judgement. S. Ierom.

[1] 2. Par. 35.

12 And the land shall lament: families and families apart: the families of the house of David apart, and their women apart: 13 the families of the house of Nathan apart, and their women apart: the families of the house of Levi apart, & their women apart: the families of Semei apart, and their women apart. 14 All the rest of the families, families and families apart, and their women apart.

CHAPTER XIII.

In the Church of Christ all idolatry shall be abolished. 6. In his passion his Apostles shall be dispersed, and they and others shall be proved by tribulations.

In (a) that day shall be a fountain lying open to the house of David, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: for the ablution of the sinner, and of the menstruous woman.

(a) In the time of the new Testament Christ is made an open fountain of grace by his Incarnation. Ioa. 4. v. 13. S. Greg. ho. 20. in Ezec. & l. 6. epist. 186.

2 [1]And it shall be in that day, saith the Lord of hosts: I will destroy the names of idols out of the earth, and they shall be remembered no more: and the false Prophets, and the unclean spirit I will take away out of the earth.

[1]Eze. 30.

3 And it shall be when any man shall prophesy any more, his father & his mother that begot him, shall say to him: Thou (b) shalt not live: because thou hast spoken a lie in the name of our Lord. And his father, & his mother, his parents shall strike him, when he shall prophesy.

(b) False doctrine, as idolatry & heresy, are punishable by death in the law of Christ.

4 And it shall be: in that day the Prophets shall be confounded every one by his own vision, when he shall prophesy, neither shall they be covered with cloak of sackcloth, to lie: 5 But he shall say: I am no Prophet, an husbandman am I: because Adam my example from my youth. 6 And it shall be said to him: What are these wounds in the midst of thy hands? And he shall say: With these was I wounded in the house of them, that loved me. 7 (c) Sword be thou raised up upon my Pastor, and upon the man that cleaveth to me, saith the Lord of hosts: Strike the Pastor, and the sheep shall be dispersed: [1] and I (d) will turn my hand to the little ones.

(c) By sword is understood all sorts of persecution that fell upon our Saviour. [1]Mat. 26. Mar. 14. (d) The Apostles flying, God recalled them, and strengthened them with fortitude.

8 And there shall be in all the earth, saith our Lord: two parts in it shall be destroyed, and shall fail: and (e) the third part shall be left in it.

(e) Neither Jews nor Gentiles, remaining in their proper professions can be saved, but Christian Catholics living justly, which are God's proper people distinct from the rest by his grace.

9 And I will bring the third part through fire, and will burn them as silver is burnt: and I will try them as gold is tried. They shall call my name, and I will hear them. I will say: Thou art my people; and they shall say: our Lord my God.

CHAPTER XIV.

Jerusalem shall be destroyed, many Jews slain, the rest made captives: 3. Christ's Church shall flourish, 8. especially in the Gentiles. 12. Persecuters shall be finally punished: 20. and the godly proceed in grace.

Behold the days of our Lord shall come, and thy spoils shall be divided in the midst of thee. 2 And I (a) will gather together all nations to Jerusalem into battle, and the city shall be taken, and the houses shall be wasted, and the women shall be defiled: and the half part of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the rest of the people shall not be taken away out of the city.

(a) In the army of the Romans were soldiers of many nations at the last destruction of Jerusalem.

3 [1]And our Lord will go forth, and will fight against those nations, as he fought in the day of conflict.

[1]Exo. 14.

4 And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of olives, which is against Jerusalem toward the East: and the mount of olives shall be cloven by the half part thereof to the East, and to the West with a steep rupture exceeding great, and half of the mountain shall be separated to the North, and half thereof to the South. 5 And you shall fly to the valley of those mountains, because the valley of the mountains shall be joined even to the next, and you shall fly as you fled from the face (b) of the earthquake in the days of Ozias king of Juda:[1] and our Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with him.

(b) Amos. ch. 1. maketh also mention of this earthquake, and Iosephus. l. 9. c. 11. Antiq. though it be not in the Books of the Kings nor Paralipomenon.[1] Amos. 1. v. 1.

6 And it shall be in that day: there shall be no light, but cold and frost. 7 And there shall be one day, which is known to our Lord, not day nor night: & in the time of the evening there shall be light. 8 And it shall be in that day: (c) living waters shall issue forth out of Jerusalem: half of them to (d) the East sea, and half of them to the last sea: in (e) summer and in winter shall they be.

(c) Christian doctrine of the Catholic Church universal in all (d) places and (e) all times.

9 And our Lord shall be King over all the earth: in that day there shall be one Lord, and his name shall be one. 10 And all the land shall return even to the desert, from the hill of Remmon to the South of Jerusalem: and it shall be exalted, and shall dwell in her place, from the gate of Benjamin even to the place of the former gate, and even to the gate of the corners: and from the tower of Hananeel even to the king's presses. 11 And they shall dwell in it, and there shall be anathema no more: but Jerusalem shall sit secure.

12 And this shall be the plague, wherewith our Lord shall strike all nations, that have fought against Jerusalem: (f) the flesh shall pine away of every one standing upon his feet, and his eyes shall wear away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth.

(f) It partly appeared already as S. Ierome noteth) in the persecuting Emperors, & since in other examples, but specially these calamities will fall upon the wicked near the day of judgement. as Luc. 21. v. 26.

13 In that day there shall be a great tumult of our Lord among them: and a man shall take the hand of his neighbour, & his hand shall be clasped upon his neighbour's hand. 14 Yea and Judas shall fight against Jerusalem: and the riches of all nations round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and garments exceeding many. 15 And so shall there be ruin of horse, and mule, and camel, and ass, and of all the beasts, that shall be in those tents, as is this ruin.

16 And all (g) that shall be left of all Nations, that came against Jerusalem, shall go up from year to year, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, and to celebrate the festivity of tabernacles.

(g) In the mean time such as before persecuted the Church shall be converted, & with great devotion will celebrate the festivities, and exercise religious rites to God's honour: and shall merit great rewards.

17 And it shall be: he (h) that shall not ascend of the families of the land of Jerusalem, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, there shall be no shower upon them.

(h) And the obstinate incredulous shall remain barren without grace, and void of eternal glory.

18 Yea and if the family of Aegypt shall not ascend, and shall not come: neither upon them shall it be, but ruin shall be, wherewith our Lord will strike all Nations that will not ascend to celebrate the festivity of tabernacles. 19 This shall be the sin of Aegypt, and this the sin of all Nations, that will not ascend to celebrate the festivity of tabernacles. 20 In that day shall that which is upon the bridle of the horse be holy to our Lord: and the cauldrons in the house of our Lord shall be as the phials before the altar. 21 And every cauldron in Jerusalem, and Juda shall be sanctified to the Lord of hosts: & all that immolate, shall come, and take of them, and shall seethe in them: and there shall be merchant no more in the house of the Lord of hosts in that day.

THE PROPHECY OF MALACHIE.

[1] Much is contained in this brief Prophecy.

[2] In ca. 2. v. 7. & c. 3. v. 7.

[1] [2] MALACHIE (whom. S. Jerom. and some others think to be Esdras prophesied last of the twelve, after that the temple was re-edified. He reprehendeth both Priests, and people, for that they did not offer their sacrifices with sincerity; foresheweth the rejection of the Jews, and calling of the Gentiles by Christ. Before whose first coming shall be one Precursor: and another before his last coming to judge.

CHAPTER I.

God shewed his especial love towards the Jews, in that he chose their progenitor Jacob, rather than Esau. 7. Priests are reprehended, for not offering the best things in sacrifice. 10. The old sacrifices shall be rejected, and new far more excellent shall be offered in all nations.

The burden of the word of our Lord to Israel in the hand of Malachie. 2 I have loved you, saith our Lord: & you have said: Wherein hast thou loved us? (a) Was not Esau brother to Jacob, saith our Lord, and I loved Jacob,

(a) God's peculiar love was first shewed to the Israelites in preferring their progenitor Jacob & them his issue before Esau & his offspring, though in them there was no difference at all, the one neither deserving more nor less than the other, but of his mere mercy electing the one and justly rejecting the other, whereof see the Annot. Rom. 9.

3 [1] but hated Esau? & I laid his mountains into a wilderness, and his inheritance unto the dragons of the desert.

[1] Rom. 9. v. 13.

4 But if Idumea shall say: We are destroyed, but returning we will build the things that are destroyed: thus saith the Lord of hosts: These shall build, and I will destroy: and they shall be called the borders of impiety, and the people with whom our Lord is angry (b) for ever.

(b) Again lastly the same special undeserved love was shewed, in that the Idumeans subdued by the Chaldees remained in captivity, but the Israelites were now reduced into their country.

5 And your eyes shall see: and you shall say: Our Lord be magnified upon the border of Israel. 6 The son honoureth the father, and the servant his Lord: if then I be the father, where is my honour? And if I be the Lord, where is my fear: saith the Lord of hosts? 7 To you o Priests, that despise my name, & have said: Wherein have we despised thy name? (c) You offer upon mine altar polluted bread: & you say: Wherein have we polluted thee? In that you say: The table of our Lord is contemptible.

(c) Those that offer base and contemptible things to God shew that they esteem little of God, and so by their fact despise and contemn him.

8 If you offer the blind to be immolated, is it not evil? & if you offer the lame and the feeble is it not evil? Offer it (d) to thy prince if it shall please him, or if he will receive thy face, saith the Lord of hosts.

(d) If you dare not offer your worse things to your temporal Prince, how dare you offer them to God?

9 And now beseech ye the face of God, that he may have mercy on you (for by your hand hath this been done) if by any means he will receive your faces, saith the Lord of hosts. 10 Who is there among you, that will shut the doors, & will kindle fire on my altar for naught? I have no will in you, saith the Lord of hosts: and gift I will not receive of your hand. 11 [1]For from the rising of the sun even to the going down, great is my name among the Gentiles, and in every place there is sacrificing, and there is offered to my name a clean oblation: because my name is great among the Gentiles, saith the Lord of hosts.

[1] Psal. 112.

12 And you have polluted it in that you say: The table of our Lord is contaminated: & that which is laid thereupon, is contemptible with the fire that devoureth it: 13 And you have said: Lo of labour, and you puffed at it, saith the Lord of hosts, & you brought in (e) of robberies (f) the lame, & the sick, & brought in a gift: Why, shall I receive it of your hand, saith our Lord?

(e) Two defects were in their sacrifices: they offered that which they got by robbery, or extortion: (f) & not the best, but worse part thereof.

14 Cursed is the deceitful, that hath in his flock a male, & making a vow immolateth the feeble to our Lord: because I am a great King, saith the Lord of hosts, and my name is dreadful among the Gentiles.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. I.

10. I have no will in you.] Many Prophets (as we have often noted) did foreshew the rejection of the Jews, ◦ and vocation of the Gentiles: but none more plainly than this here, by whom God expressly saith: I have no will in you: and I will not receive gift of your hand. The reason is also explicated in this chapter, because God most peculiarly loving them, they were still ungrateful, & despised him, committing sins upon sins. And therefore in their place, he would bring in the Gentiles: and that not any one, or few nations, but all from the rising of the sun, to the going down thereof, should sooner or later come into his Church.

◦ Rejection of the Jews and vocation of the Gentiles.

11. In every place there is sacrificing.] God not only changed, and multiplied his people, but also changed, and bettered his Sacrifice. [1] For in place of sacrificing cattle, birds, and other weak and poor creatures, [2] which were not able to purge sins, and were also polluted oftentimes by the sins of them that offered the same, God there promiseth a most effectual, pure, & excellent daily Sacrifice, to continue perpetually in all places of his Church, that cannot be polluted. Which accordingly our Blessed Redeemer and Saviour instituted, of his own body & blood, in the forms of bread and wine As all ancient Fathers prove, [3] by this place amongst others. So S. Justinus Martyr teacheth, in dialogo cum Triphone, S. Cyprian, li. 1. c. 18. adversus Iudaeos. S. Damascen. l. 4. c. 14. de fide Orthodoxa. S. Jerom, S. Theodoret, and S. Cyril in their commentaries upon this place. S. Augustin li. 18. c. 35. de civit. S. Chrysostom. in Ps. 95. & orat. 2. contra Iudaeos, [4] shewing plainly, & urging the Jews, and all oppugners of this Catholic belief and doctrine, that this prophecy is no otherwise fulfilled, but in the daily Sacrifice of the Church. For that here is prophesied another Sacrifice, distinct and different from the Jews' sacrifices: neither were sacrifices offered in all the world, neither could be ordinarily offered out of Jerusalem. [5] But of this most sacred Mystery, and particularly that it is here prophesied, there is so much published by ancient and late writers, that more needeth not to be here added.

[1] All old sacrifices abolished, & the sacrifice of Christ's body & blood prophesied.

[2] Gal. 4. v. 9.

[3] Proved by the fathers.

[4] And reasons deduced from the scriptures.

[5] Deu. 16.

CHAPTER II.

Priests are further reprehended because they discharged not well their great office. 10. Both they and others offended in marrying strangers. 14. They ought to love, and not lightly dismiss their wives.

And now to you this commandment (a) o ye priests.

(a) Priests coveting & scraping riches do greatly dishonour God: diminish the estimation of holy Sacraments & other rites, as though they were temporal to be bought & sold for money, and so do scandalize the weak.

2 [1]If you will not hear, and if you will not set it upon the heart, to give glory to my name, saith the Lord of hosts: I (b) will send upon you poverty, and will curse your blessings, and I will curse them: because you have not set it upon the heart.

[1] Levi. 26. Deu. 28. (b) Such are happy if God by suffering them to be spoiled, recall them to repentance. For otherwise they will be deprived of eternal reward, as being payed their wages already in this world. These our Saviour calleth Hirelings, not true Pastors. Ioa. 10.

3 Behold I will cast forth to you the arm, and will sprinkle upon your face the dung of your solemnities, and it shall take you with it. 4 And you shall know that I sent you this commandment, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the Lord of hosts. 5 My covenant was with him of life and peace: & I gave him fear: and he feared me, and at the face of my name he was afraid. 6 The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: in peace, and in equity he walked with me, and turned away many from iniquity. 7 For (c) the lips of the Priest shall keep knowledge, and the law they shall require of his mouth: because he is (d) the angel of the Lord of hosts.

(c) The proper office of Priests besides the administration of Sacraments is also to teach the people true doctrine: (d) as being the Angel, that is to say, the messenger, from God.

8 But you have departed out of the way, and have scandalized many in the law: you have made void the covenant of Levi, saith the Lord of hosts. 9 (e) For which cause I also have made you contemptible and base to all peoples, as you have not kept my ways, and have accepted face in the law.

(e) Which holy functions priests not performing are made contemptible in this world and miserable in eternal torments. Ep. Iud. v. 11.

10 [1]Why, is there not one father to us all? Hath not one God created us? Why then doth every one of us despise his brother, violating the covenant of our fathers?

[1] Mat. 23. v. 9. Eph. 4. v. 5.

11 Juda hath transgressed, and abomination was done in Israel, and in Jerusalem: because Judas hath contaminated the sanctification of our Lord, which he loved, and hath had the daughter of a strange god. 12 Our Lord will destroy the man, that hath done this, the master, and the scholar out of the tabernacles of Jacob, and him that offereth gift to the Lord of hosts. [1]

[1] Amos 5. v. 22.

13 And this again have you done, you covered the altar of the Lord with tears, with weeping, and howling, so that I have respect no more to sacrifice, neither do I accept any placable thing at your hand. 14 And you have said: For what cause? Because the Lord hath testified between thee, and the wife of thy youth, whom thou hast despised: and she thy partaker, and the wife of thy covenant. 15 Did not one make, and the residue of the spirit is his? And what doth one seek, but the seed of God? Keep ye then your spirit, and the wife of thy youth despise thou not. 16 When thou shalt hate, dismiss, saith our Lord the God of Israel: but iniquity shall cover his garment, saith the Lord of hosts, keep ye your spirit, and do not despise. 17 [1]You have in your words made our Lord to labour: and you said: Wherein have we made him to labour? In that you say: Every one that doth evil, is good in the sight of our Lord, and such please him: or certes where is the God of judgement?

[1] Ephes. 4. v. 29.

CHAPTER III.

A precursor shall come before Christ. 3. The Priesthood and Sacrifice of the new law are pure. 5. God who seeth all sinners will punish them: 10. but if they amend, they shall receive God's benefits. 13. Not evil men, but the good please God.

Behold [1] I send (a) mine Angel, and he shall prepare the way before my face. And (b) forthwith shall come to his temple the Dominatour, whom you seek, and (c) the Angel of the testament, whom you desire. Behold he cometh, saith the Lord of hosts:

[1] Mat. 11. v. 10. Mar. 1. Luc. 1. & 7. Psal. 131. v. 17. (a) S. John Baptist is called an Angel or messenger, because he was to be sent with special commission from God: and for his purity in Angelical life. (b) S. John was first conceived, likewise first born, and he first preached, and shortly after him our Saviour came. (c) Christ is the Angel of the testament, because he made the Pact of peace between God and man.

2 And who shall be able to think the day of his advent? And who shall stand to see him? For he as it were purging fire, and as the herb of fullers: 3 and he shall sit purging, and cleansing the silver, and he shall purge the sons of Levi, and will strain them as gold, and as silver, and they shall be offering sacrifices to our Lord in justice. 4 And the sacrifice of Juda and Jerusalem shall please our Lord, as the days of the world, and as the years of old. 5 And (d) I will come to you in judgement, and (e) will be a swift witness to sorcerers, and adulterers, and to the perjured, and them that calumniate the hire of the hired man, the widows, and pupils, and oppress the stranger, nor have feared me, saith the Lord of hosts.

(d) In the mean time God threateneth to punish all, even secret sins: (e) Known to him though not to other witnesses.

6 For I^ the Lord, and I am not changed: and ye sons of Jacob are not consumed. 7 For from the days of your fathers you have departed from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. [1] Return to me, and I will return to you, saith the Lord of hosts. And you have said: Wherein shall we return?

[1] Zach. 1. v. 3.

8 Shall man fasten God, because you do fasten me? And you have said: Wherein do we fasten thee? In tithes, and in first fruits. 9 And in penury you are accursed, and you your whole nation fasten me.

10 Bring in (f) all the tithe into the barn: and let there be meat in my house, and prove me upon this, saith our Lord: if I open not unto you the flood-gates of heaven, and pour you out blessing even to aboundance,

(f) Paying of tithes is most strictly commanded.

11 and I will rebuke for you the devourer, and he shall not corrupt the fruit of your land: neither shall the vine in the field be barren, saith the Lord of hosts. 12 And all Nations shall call you blessed: for you shall be a land worthy to be desired, saith the Lord of hosts. 13 Your words have been forcible upon me, saith the Lord. 14 And you said: What have we spoken against thee? You have said: (g) [1] He is vain that serveth God, and what profit is it that we have kept his precepts, and that we have walked sorrowful before the Lord of hosts?

(g) Sin of murmuring against God, is great blasphemy & not tolerable: For when they were punished by famine, for defrauding the Levites of tithes, they blasphemously imputed it to God: as though he had not such care of his own people, as he had of other nations, which had aboundance of temporal goods. [1] Iob. 21. v. 14. Isa. 58. v. 2.

15 Therefore now we call the arrogant blessed, for they that do impiety are builded, and they have tempted God and are made safe. 16 Then spake they that feared our Lord, every one with his neighbour: and our Lord attended, and heard: and a book of monument was written before him for them that fear our Lord, and think on his name. 17 And they shall be to me, saith the Lord of hosts, in the day that I do to my peculiar, and I will spare them, as a man spareth his son serving him. 18 And you shall convert, and shall see what is between the just & the impious: and between him that serveth God, and serveth him not.

CHAPTER IV.

In the terrible day of judgement, the wicked shall be condemned, and the just eternally rewarded. 5. Before which time Elias shall return, and convert the Jews to Christ.

For behold (a) the day shall come kindled as a furnace: and all the proud, and all that do impiety shall be stubble: & the day coming shall inflame them, saith the Lord of hosts, which shall not leave them root, and spring.

(a) In the day of judgement shall plainly appear, what difference is between the just and the wicked.

2 [1]And there shall rise to you that fear my name the Sun of justice, and health in his wings: and you shall go forth, and shall leap as calves of the herd.

[1]Zach. 3. v. 8. & 6. v. 11. Luc. 1. v. 78.

3 And you shall tread the impious, when they shall be ashes under the sole of your feet in the day, that I do, saith the Lord of hosts. 4 [1]Remember ye the law of Moyses my servant, which I commanded him in Horeb to all Israel precepts, and judgements.

[1]Exo. 20. Deut. 4. 5. & 6.

5 Behold I will send you (b)[1]Elias the Prophet, before the day of our Lord come great and (c) dreadful.

(b) The Septuagint for explication add Thesbites. And S. Ierom in 17. Mat. teacheth that Elias shall indeed come and restore all things.[1]Mat. 11. & 17. v. 11.(c) Christ's first coming was in all meekness not in terror, but his coming to judge will be dreadful. And therefore the Prophet here meaneth not S. John Baptist, but that Elias himself shall come before the great and dreadful day of our Lord.

6 And he shall convert the heart of the fathers to the children, & the heart of the children to their fathers: lest perhaps I come, and strike the earth with [1] anathema.

The end of the Prophetical Books.

THE BOOK OF MACHABEES PERTAINING TO THE HISTORICAL PART OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.

THE ARGUMENT OF THE BOOKS OF MACHABEES, WITH OTHER PROEMIAL ANNOTATIONS.

BEFORE we declare the contents, [1] the reader perhaps will require to know, why they are called the Books of MACHABEES: how many they be; who writ them; in what language, and especially whether all, or any, or which of them are Canonical Scriptures? For satisfaction of all which demands, distinguishing between certain and uncertain, we shall briefly shew that which seemeth more probable in the doubtful points, and the assured certainty of that which is decided by the Catholic Church of Christ. Concerning therefore the name and inscription. S. Jerom, very probably supposeth that these Books have their title of Judas MACHABEUS; [2] the narration of whose heroical virtues, and noble Acts occupieth the greatest part of this whole history. And this surname Machabeus signifying valiant of strength (or by an usual Hebrew contraction, Mobi, more explicated, Milchamach Coach bihuda, that is, Force of battle or Strength in Juda) was given him by his father Mathathias, when before his death disposing of his sons & exhorting them, he said to them all: [3] You my sons take courage, & do manfully in the law, because in it you shall be glorious. And behold Simon your brother I know that he is a man of counsel: hear ye him always, and he shall be father to you. Next he addeth: And Judas Machabeus, valiant of strength from his youth, let him be to you the Prince of warfare, and he shall manage the battle of the people. [4] And from him this name was also ascribed to his brethren, and to all the rest that joined with them either in the holy wars, or otherwise shewed their valor, professing God's law in spiritual combat even to death. [5] As Nicetas writeth in Orat. 22. S. Greg. Nazian. Whereupon old Eleazarus and the seven young brethren, with their mother, are also called Machabees.

[1] Prooemial questions touching these books.

[2] They are called Machabees of Judas Machabeus. Judas had this surname for his strength and valor.

[3] li. 1. c. 2. v. 64. 65. & 66.

[4] Others also called Machabees.

[5] li. 2. c. 6. 7.

[1] There be in all, four Books called Machabees. The first S. Jerom found in Hebrew, the second in Greek, as he testifieth Epist. 106. The third is also extant in Greek, and Latin in Bibliis Complutensibus. The fourth seemeth to be that which is mentioned in the end of the first Book. [2] And either the same, or another under that title, is also extant in Greek, as testifieth Sixtus Senensis, li. 1. Bibliothecae. Who writ them is more uncertain: but most probable every one had a diverse author. Neither are the two last approved for Canonical by any authentical authority.

[1] There be four books. Written by uncertain Authors. The two last are not Canonical.

[2] v. 24.

It resteth therefore to speak of the two first, [1] which the Jews and Protestants deny, because they are not in the Hebrew Canon. [2] The Protestants further alleging that they are not in the former Canon of the Church before S. Jerom's time. Moreover objecting certain places of these Books, which they say, are contrary to sound doctrine, and to the truth of other authentical histories, or contradictory in themselves. None of which things can proceed from the Holy Ghost, the principal author of all Divine Scriptures. All which texts we shall more conveniently explicate, [3] according to their true sense, in [4] their proper places. As for the exception, that these Books are not in the Canon of the Jews, it is answered already (Praef. Tobiae) that the Canon of the Christian Catholic Church is of sovereign authority, though the Jews' Canon have them not. Finally whereas these Books were not canonized in the former General Councels, it sufficeth that they are since declared to be Canonical, and Divine Scripture, as some other parts have likewise been, which English Protestants do not deny. As the Epistle of S. James, the second of S. Peter, the second and third of S. John, and S. Jude's epistle: of all which Eusebius, and S. Jerom testify, that some learned Fathers doubted sometimes, whether they were Apostolical or no. But afterwards the same, with these two Books of Machabees, and others, [5] were expressly declared to be Divine Scripture by the third Councel of Carthage, can. 47. By the Councel of seventy Bishops under Gelasius, though by the name of one Book, as also Esdras and Nehemias as but one Book. Lastly, by the Councels of Florence and Trent.

[1] Jews & Protestants deny also these two first.

[5] Approved by Councels.

◦And by Ancient Fathers.

◦If any further require the judgement of more ancient Fathers, diverse do allege these Books as Divine Scriptures. S. Dyonise, c. 2. celest. Hierar. S. Clemens Alexan. li. 1. Stromat. S. Cyprian li. 1. Epist. ep. 3. ad Cornelium. li. 4. ep. 1. & de exhort. ad Martyrium. c. 11. Isidorus li. 16. c. 1. Etym. S. Gregory Nazianzen hath a whole Oration of the seven Machabees Martyrs and their mother. S. Ambrose li. 1. c. 41. Offic. But to omit others, albeit S. Jerom urged not these Books against the Jews, yet he much esteemed them, as appeareth in his commentaries upon Daniel. c. 1. 11. & 12. S. Augustin most clearly avoucheth li. 2. c. 8. de doct. Christ. & li. 18. c. 36. de civit. that notwithstanding the Jews deny these Books, the Church holdeth them Canonical. And whereas one Gaudentius an heretic alleged for defence of his heresy the example of Razias, who slew himself, 2. Mach. 14. S. Augustin denieth not the authority of the Book, but discusseth the fact, and admonisheth that it is not unprofitably received by the Church; si sobrie legatur, vel audiatur: if it be read, or heard soberly. Which was a necessary admonition to those Donatists, who not understanding the holy Scriptures, depraved them (as S. Peter speaketh of like heretics, ep. 2. c. 3.) to their own perdition.

[1] The same contents of both the books.

[2] Four principal parts.

[3] The occasion of so extraordinary disposition.

[4] li. 2. c. 2. v. 24.

[5] The history containeth two parts.

[1] Now touching the contents, a great part of the same history, which is written in the former Book, is repeated in the second, with such variety of some things added, some omitted, as in the Books of Kings and Paralipomenon: and as the Gospel is written by the four Evangelists. Joining therefore these two Books together, the Concordance therefore containeth four principal parts: [2] The Preface, the History, an Appendix, and the Conclusion. But the three former parts are very extraordinarily disposed. [3] For the writer of the second Book (who doubtless was a distinct person from him that writ the former) first of all added an Appendix to the history (written before) making mention of two Epistles, and reciting the sum of one of them, in the first chapter and part of the second, as though he meant to have writ no more of the same matter. But then, as it may seem upon new resolution, intending to abridge the historical Books of Jason, maketh a preface to his works, in the rest of that second chapter. [4] And so prosecuteth his purpose: and finally maketh a brief conclusion in the three last verses of the same second Book. The main history containeth two special parts. [5] The first sheweth the state of God's peculiar people, the Jewish nation, from the beginning of the Grecian Monarchy, parted after the death of Alexander amongst his followers: of which some did exceedingly persecute the Jews, by diverse both subtle and cruel means, to the ruin of many, and even to death and martyrdom of some most constant observers of God's Laws, and true Religion, till the wars of the Machabees, in the first chapter of the first Book, and in the 3. 4. 5. 6. & 7. chapters of the second Book. In the other fifteen chapters of the former Book, and other eight of the second, are described the battles, victories, and triumphs of the valiant Machabees. Of which holy wars Mathathias was the beginner and first captain: Judas the second: the third Jonathas: and Simon the fourth: after whose death his son John Hyrcanus succeeded Duke and High-Priest.

◦An order how to read these books.

But because these Books are intermixed the one with the other, whosoever please to read them in order of the history,◦ may follow the direction of the Alphabet letters, set in the inner margin, beginning with A. at the twentieth verse of the second chapter of the second Book, to the end of the same chapter. Thence proceed as the sign of a star directeth to the next letter B. which is at the beginning of the first Book, the first chapter first verse. And so in the rest. And when the capital letters are ended, the smaller will direct you.

THE FIRST BOOK OF MACHABEES.

CHAPTER I.

[1] King Alexander conquering many countries, erecteth a new Monarchy: 6. who dying, his chief followers succeed in several kingdoms of the same Monarchy. 11. King Antiochus approveth that a profane school be set up in Jerusalem, 17. subdueth Aegypt; 21. invadeth Juda; entereth by force into Jerusalem; spoileth the temple, 25. and killeth many. 30. Two years after sendeth another spoiler; who killing many, robbeth and burneth Jerusalem; 35. fortifieth the tower of David; 38. profaneth all holy things; 43. commandeth all to commit idolatry, 47. and to forsake the rites of God's law, 52. upon pain of death. 57. He setteth up an abominable idol in the Temple, 90. persecuteth and murdereth those that conform not themselves to these innovations. [2]

[1] Read first the preface. li. 2. ch. 2. v. 20. [2] The first part of the history.

The persecution of the Church by Antiochus.

And it came to pass, after that Alexander Philip's son the Macedonian, that (a) first reigned in Greece, being gone out of the land of Cethim, struck Darius king of the Persians and the Medes:

(a) Other Kings reigned before Alexander in Greece, but he was the first that reigned in that great Monarchy erected by himself.

2 he made many battles, and obtained the munition of all, & slew the kings of the earth: 3 and he passed through even to the ends of the earth: and took the spoils of the multitude of the Gentiles: & the earth was silent in his sight. 4 And he gathered power, and an army exceeding strong: and his heart was exalted and elevated: 5 and he obtained the regions of the Gentiles, & the tyrants: and they were made tributaries to him. 6 And after these things, he fell down in his bed, and he knew that he should die. 7 And he called his servants the Nobles, that were brought up with him from his youth: & he (b) divided his kingdom to them, when he yet lived.

(b) By delivering his ring to Perdicca, he gave him authority to distribute his kingdoms. Iustinus. li. 12. Q. Curtius. li. 10.

8 And Alexander reigned twelve years, & he died. 9 And his servants possessed the kingdom, every one in his place 10 and they did all put crowns on them after his death, & their sons after them many years, & evils were multiplied in the earth. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 3. v. 1.

D

11 And there came forth of them a sinful root Antiochus (c) Illustre, the son of king Antiochus, that had been at Rome an hostage: & he reigned in (d) the hundredth & seven & thirtieth year of the kingdom of the Greeks.

(c) Epiphanes, Noble in renown. (d) This Antiochus began his reign in the year 137. from Seleucus the first King of Syria after Alexander: otherwise this was the 156 year of the Grecian Monarchy. Euse. in chronico.

12 In those days there went forth of Israel wicked children, & persuaded many, saying: Let us go, and make a covenant with the Gentiles, that are about us: because since we departed from them many evils have found us. 13 And the talk seemed good in their eyes. 14 And some of the people determined, & went to the king: & he gave them leave to do the justice of the Gentiles. 15 And they built a school in Jerusalem, according to the laws of the Nations: 16 and they made to themselves prepuces, and revolted from the holy testament, and were joined to the Nations, and were sold to do evil. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 4. v. 7.

F

17 And the kingdom was prepared in the sight of Antiochus, and he began to reign in the land of Aegypt, that he might reign over two kingdoms. 18 And he entered into Aegypt with great multitude, with chariots, and elephants, & horsemen, and a copious multitude of ships: 19 (e) And he made war against Ptolomee the king of Aegypt, & Ptolomee was afraid at his presence, and fled, and many fell wounded.

(e) Being established in the kingdom of Syria, he coveted also the kingdom of Aegypt.

20 And he took the fenced cities in the land of Aegypt: and he took the spoils of the land of Aegypt. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 4. v. 21.

H

21 And Antiochus turned, after he struck Aegypt in the hundredth and three and fortieth year: and he went up to Israel, 22 and went up to Jerusalem with a great multitude. 23 And he entered into (f) the sanctification with pride, & took the golden altar, & the candlestick of light, & all the vessels thereof, & the table of proposition, and the libatories, and the phials, and the little mortars of gold, and the veil, & the crowns, and the golden ornament, that was in the face of the temple: & he brake all into pieces.

(f) Iosephus li. 12. c. 6. writeth that Antiochus first killed such as would have hindered his entrance into Jerusalem, and afterwards those that opened the gates unto him, but would have hindered him from spoiling the temple.

24 And he took the silver and gold, & the desiderable vessels: and he took the hidden treasures which he found: & carrying away he departed into his own land. 25 And he made a slaughter of men, and spake in great pride. 26 And great lamentation was made in Israel, and in every place of theirs: 27 and the princes, and the ancients mourned, and the young men, and the virgins were weakened, & the beautifulness of the women was changed. 28 Every husband took lamentation: and the women that sat in the marriage bed mourned: 29 and the land was moved upon the inhabitants therein, & all the house of Jacob did put on confusion. 30 And after two years of days the king sent a Prince of tributes into the cities of Juda, and (g) he came to Jerusalem with a great multitude.

(g) This was Apollonius, as appeareth li. 2. c. 5. v. 24.

31 And he spake unto them peaceable words in guile: and they believed him. 32 And he fell upon the city suddenly, and struck it with a great plague, & destroyed much people in Israel. 33 And he took the spoils of the city, and burnt it with fire, and destroyed the houses thereof, and the walls thereof round about: 34 and they led the women captive, and the children, and the cattle they possessed. 35 And they built (h) the city of David with a great wall, and a strong, and with firm towers, and it was made a castle for them:

(h) The tower of Sion fortified & kept,

36 and they placed there a (i) sinful nation, wicked men, & they waxed strong therein: And they laid armour, and victuals, and gathered together the spoils of Jerusalem:

(i) by a garrison of Macedonians.

37 and laid them up there: & they became a great snare. 38 And this was made for an embushment of the sanctification, and to be an ill devil in Israel. 39 And they shed innocent blood round about the sanctification, and contaminated the sanctification. 40 And the inhabitants of Jerusalem fled by reason of them, and it became the habitation of strangers, and she became stranger to her own seed, and her children forsook her. 41 Her sanctification was desolate as a wilderness, her festival days were turned into mourning, her sabbaths into reproach, her honours into naught. 42 According to her glory was her ignominy multiplied, and her highness was turned into mourning. 43 And king Antiochus (k) wrote to all his kingdom, that all the people should be one: and every one should leave his own law.

(k) It sufficed not this cruel tyrant to spoil God's people of their goods, & many of their lives, but he also perverted many in religion: because his master the devil seeketh to destroy men's souls.

44 And all Nations consented according to the word of king Antiochus, 45 & many of Israel consented to his service, & they sacrificed to idols, & defiled the sabbath. 46 And the king sent books by the hands of messengers into Jerusalem, & into all the cities of Juda: that they should follow the law of the Nations of the earth, 47 and should prohibit holocausts & sacrifices, & placations to be made in the temple of God, 48 and should prohibit the sabbath to be celebrated, & the solemn days. 49 And he commanded the holy places to be defiled, & the holy people of Israel.
50 And he commanded altars to be built, and temples, and idols, & swine's flesh to be immolated, and common beasts, 51 and to leave their children uncircumcised, and their souls to be contaminated in all uncleannesses, and abominations, so that they should forget the law, and should change all the justifications of God. 52 And whosoever had not done according to the word of king Antiochus, they should die. 53 According to all these words wrote he to all his kingdom: & he appointed princes over the people, that should force these things to be done. 54 And they commanded the cities of Juda to sacrifice. 55 And many of the people were gathered to them, they that had forsaken the law of our Lord: and they did evils upon the land: 56 and they chased forth the people of Israel in hidden corners, and in the secret places of fugitives. 57 The fifteenth day of the month Casleu, the hundredth five and fortieth year king Antiochus (l) built the abominable idol of desolation upon the altar of God, and throughout all the cities of Juda round about they builded altars:

(l) Daniel's prophecy. ch. 9. was here in part fulfilled, as in a figure, & our Saviour confirmeth it. Mat. 24. of Antichrist setting up abomination of desolation in the holy place.

58 and before the gates of houses, and in the streets they burnt frankincense, and sacrificed. 59 and the books of the law of God they burnt with fire, cutting them: 60 and with whomsoever were found the books of the testament of our Lord, and whomsoever observed the law of our Lord, they murdered him, according to the edict of the king. 61 In their power did they these things to the people of Israel, that was found in every month & month in the cities:
62 And the five and twentieth day of the month they sacrificed upon the altar that was against the altar.
63 And the women that circumcised their children, were murdered according to the commandment of king Antiochus, 64 and they hang up the children by the necks throughout all their houses, and those that had circumcised them, they murdered. 65 And many of the people of Israel determined with themselves, that they would not eat the unclean things: and they chose rather to die, than to be defiled with unclean meats: 66 and they would not break the holy law of God, and they were murdered, 67 and there was made great wrath upon the people exceedingly.[1]

CHAPTER II.

Mathathias with his five sons, lamenteth the calamities of the people, 8. and profanation of holy things, 15. resisteth the king's wicked decrees, 23. killeth an idolater, and the king's commissioner, so flyeth into the mountains with others. 31. Many are slain not resisting in battle on the sabbath days. 40. Upon further consideration the rest defend themselves in the sabbath; 45. kill their enemies, and destroy idolatry. 49. Mathathias dying exhorteth his sons to be zealous in the law: 65. appointing Simon their counseller, and Judas their captain.

In[1] those days arose Mathathias the son of John, the son of Simeon, Priest of the sons of Joarib from Jerusalem, & he sat in the mountain of Modin:

[1] The 2. part.
The wars of the Machabees, begun by this Mathathias, and prosecuted by his sons, especially by Judas, as in the seven chapters following, and more largely in the second book from 8. chapter to the end of the last.

2 and he had five sons, John who was surnamed Gaddis: 3 and Simon, who was surnamed Thasi: 4 and Judas, who was called Machabeus: 5 and Eleazar, who was surnamed Abaron: and Jonathan, who was surnamed Apphus. 6 These saw the evils, that were done in the people of Juda, and in Jerusalem. 7 And Mathathias said: Woe is me, wherefore was I born to see the affliction of my people, and the affliction of the holy city, and to sit there, when it is given in the hands of the enemies? 8 The holy places are come into the hand of strangers: the temple thereof as an ignoble man. 9 The vessels of her glory are carried away captive: her old men are murdered in the streets, and her young men are fallen by the sword of the enemies. (a)

(a) This small help of great importance, is that aid whereof Daniel prophesied ch. 11. v. 34.

10 What nation hath not inherited her kingdom, and hath not obtained her spoils? 11 All her beauty is taken away. She that was free, is made a servant.
12 And lo our holies, and our beauty, and our glory is desolate, and the Nations have defiled them.
13 Whereto then is it for us yet to live? 14 And Mathathias rent his garments, and his sons: and they covered themselves with hair-cloths, and lamented exceedingly. 15 And there came thither they that were sent from king Antiochus, to compel them that were fled into the city of Modin, to immolate and to burn frankincense, & to depart from the law of God. 16 And many of the people of Israel consenting came to them: but Mathathias, & his sons stood constantly. 17 And they that were sent from Antiochus answering said to Mathathias: Thou art the prince, and most honourable, and great in this city, and adorned with sons, and brethren. 18 Therefore come thou first, and do the king's commandment, as all Nations have done, and the men of Juda, and they that are remaining in Jerusalem: & thou shalt be & thy sons among the king's friends, and amplified with gold, and silver, and many gifts. 19 And Mathathias answered, & said with a loud voice: Although all Nations obey king Antiochus, that every man revolt from the service of the law of his fathers, and consent to his commandments: 20 I and my sons, & my brethren will obey the law of our fathers. 21 God be merciful unto us: it is not profitable for us to forsake the law, and the justices of God: 22 we will not hear the words of king Antiochus, neither will we sacrifice, transgressing the commandments of our law, to go another way. 23 And as he ceased to speak these words, there came a certain Jew in the eyes of all^ to sacrifice to the idols upon the altar in the city of Modin, according to the king's commandment. 24 And Mathathias saw, & was sorry, and his reins trembled, and his fury was kindled (b) according to the judgement of the law, and flying upon him he slew him upon the altar:

(b) Mathathias not of private spirit, but being general captain of the people, did this justice according to the law, where it is commanded to kill the authors of false pretended religion. Deut. 13. S. Cyprian. Exhort. ad Martyrium c. 5. S. Bernar. Epist. 158. ad Innocent.

25 yea and the man, whom king Antiochus had sent, which compelled them to immolate, he slew in that very time, & destroyed the altar, 26 [1] and zealed the law, as did Phinees to Zamri the son of Salomi.

[1] Num. 25.

27 And Mathathias cried out with a loud voice in the city, saying: Every one that hath zeal of the law, establishing his testament, let him come forth after me.
28 And he fled himself, & his sons into the mountains, and left all things whatsoever they had in the city. 29 Then came down many seeking judgement, and justice, into the desert: 30 and they sat there themselves, and their children, and their wives, & their cattle: because the evils overflowed upon them.
31 And it was reported to the king's men, and to the army that was in Jerusalem in the city of David, that certain men which dissipated the king's commandment, were departed into secret places in the desert, & many were gone after them. 32 And forthwith they went forwards towards them, & set battle against them in the day of the Sabbaths, 33 & they said to them: Do you resist now also as yet? Come forth: and do according to the word of king Antiochus, and you shall live. 34 And they said: We will not come forth, neither will we do the king's word, to pollute the day of the Sabbaths. 35 And they hastened battle against them. 36 And they answered them not, neither did they cast a stone at them, nor stopped the secret places, 37 saying: (c) Let us die all in our simplicity: and heaven & earth shall be witnesses, upon us that you unjustly destroy us.

(c) These are commended by S. Ambrose li. 1. Offic. c. 40. and other Fathers, dying in the simplicity of doves, though they had not the prudence of serpents, which others observing are more commended, especially in respect of the whole Church so dangerously impugned, which God indeed will ever defend, and conserve from utter ruin: Yet he useth also ordinary means, by lawful wars and the like.

38 And they gave them battle on the Sabbaths: & there died they, & their wives, & their children, & their cattle even to a thousand souls of men. 39 And Mathathias understood it and his friends, and they had lamentation upon them exceedingly. 40 And every man said to his neighbour: If we shall all do as our brethren have done, and shall not fight against the heathen for our lives, and our justifications: now will they quickly destroy us from the earth. 41 And they thought in that day, saying: Every man whosoever shall come unto us in battle on the day of the Sabbaths, let us fight against him: & we will not all die, as our brethren died in secret places. 42 Then was there gathered to them the synagogue of (d) the Assideans strong of force out of Israel, every voluntary in the law:

(d) Assideans, otherwise called Esseni, not hypocritically as the Pharisees, nor erroneously as the Sadducees, but sincerely professed a peculiar holy rule of life. Iosephus li. 2. c. 12. de bello Iudaico.

43 and all that fled from the evils, were added to them, and were made a strength to them. 44 And they gathered an army, & struck the sinners in their wrath, and the wicked men in their indignation: & the rest fled to the nations to escape. 45 And Mathathias went round about, & his friends, and they destroyed the altars: 46 & they circumcised the uncircumcised children, as many as they found in the coasts of Israel: and in strength. 47 And they persecuted the children of pride, and the work prospered in their hands: 48 and they obtained the law out of the hands of the nations, and out of the hands of the kings: and they gave not the horn to the sinner. 49 And the days of Mathathias approached to die, & he said to his sons: Now is pride strengthened, & chastisement, & the time of subversion, & the wrath of indignation: 50 Now therefore o my sons, be ye emulators of the law, & give your lives for the testament of your fathers. 51 And remember the works of the fathers, which they have done in their generations, & you shall receive great glory, and an eternal name. 52 [1] Abraham was he not in tentation found faithful, and it was reputed to him unto justice?

61 And so think ye through generation & generation: that all that hope in him, are not weakened. 62 And of the words of the sinful man be not afraid: because his glory is dung, and worm: 63 today he is extolled, and tomorrow he shall not be found: because he is turned into his earth, & his cogitation is perished. 64 You therefore my sons take courage, and do manfully in the law: because in it you shall be glorious.

65 (e) And behold Simon your brother, I know that he is a man of counsel: hear ye him always, and he shall be a father to you.

(e) In all affairs order is of singular importance, that every office be designed to fittest persons. As here Mathathias appointed Simon the chief for determining matters in counsel, & Judas the first for execution, & that the rest should obey these two, and each of these the other in his office.

66 And Judas Machabeus valiant of strength from his youth, let him be to you the prince of warfare, and he shall manage the battle of the people. 67 And you shall bring to you all the doers of the law: and revenge ye the revenge of your people. 68 Repay retribution to the Gentiles, & attend to the precept of the law.

69 And he blessed them, and was laid to his fathers.

70 And he died the hundredth & six and fortieth year, and he was buried by his sons in the sepulchres of his fathers in Modin, and all Israel lamented him with great lamentation.

CHAPTER III.

Judas Machabeus punisheth the wicked: 10. killeth Apollonius in battle. 13. Seron braggeth, but is also overthrown. 25. Antiochus furiously incensed, 29. gathereth money in Persis, 32. leaving Lysias viceroy, 38. who sending a great army against the Israelites, 42. Judas and his brethren commending the cause to God, by prayer and penance, 54. resolve to fight against their enemies.

And Judas, that was called Machabeus his son (a) arose in his stead:

(a) He did not arrogate to himself to be chief, but being designed by his father, was so accepted by his brethren, and the good people joined with them in defence of the law of God.

2 and all his brethren helped him, & all that had joined themselves to his father, and they fought the battle of Israel with joy. 3 And he dilated glory to his people, & put on him a brigantine as a giant, and girded about him his warly armour in battles, and protected the camp with his sword. 4 He became like a lion in his acts, and as a lion's whelp roaring in hunting. 5 And he persecuted the wicked inquiring them out, & such as troubled his people, them he burnt with fire: 6 and his enemies were repelled for fear of him, all the workers of iniquity were troubled: and salvation was directed in his hand. 7 (b) And he exasperated many kings, & rejoiced Jacob in his works, & for ever his memory is in benediction.

(b) Judas had four battles, and victories, against four general captains sent by King Antiochus Epiphanes. The first against this Apollonius.

8 And he walked through the cities of Juda, & destroyed the impious out of them, & turned away wrath from Israel. 9 And he was renowned even to the uttermost part of the earth, and he gathered them that perished.[1]

[1] li. 2. c. 8. v. 1.

M

10 And Apollonius gathered together the Gentiles, and from Samaria a power much and great, to make battle against Israel. 11 And Judas understood it, and went forth to meet him: and he struck, and killed him: and there fell many wounded, & the rest fled away.

12 And he took the spoils of them, and the sword of Apollonius^ Judas took away, and he fought with it all his days. 13 And (c) Seron captain of the army of Syria heard that Judas gathered a congregation of the faithful, and an assembly with him,

(c) The second against Seron.

14 and he said: I will make me a name, and will be glorified in kingdom, and will overthrow Judas, and those that are with him that despised the word of the king. 15 And he prepared himself: and there went up with him a camp of the impious strong helpers, to do vengeance upon the children of Israel. 16 And they approached even as far as Bethoron: & Judas went forth to meet him with few. 17 But as they saw the army coming to meet them, they said to Judas: How shall we a few be able to fight against so great a multitude & so strong, and we are wearied with fasting today? 18 And Judas said: It is an easy matter for many to be inclosed in the hand of few, & (d) there is no difference in the sight of the God of heaven to deliver in many, & in few.

(d) The natural frailty of man feareth to encounter with a strong enemy, but true confidence in God's help, which is ever assured in a good cause, giveth courage and getteth the victory.

19 Because not in the multitude of the army is the victory of battle, but from heaven is the strength. 20 They come to us in an obstinate multitude, & in pride, to destroy us, & our wives, & our children, and to spoil us. 21 But we will fight for our lives, & our laws: 22 & our Lord himself will destroy them before our face, but you^ fear them not. 23 And as he ceased to speak, he flew upon them suddenly: & Seron was destroyed, & his host in his sight: 24 & he pursued him in the descent of Bethoron even to the plain, & there fell of them eight hundred men, & the rest fled into the land of the Philisthiims. 25 And the fear of Judas & of his brethren, & the dread fell upon all the nations round about them. 26 And his name came to the king, & all nations told of the battles of Judas. 27 And as king Antiochus heard these words he was wrath in his mind: & he sent, & gathered the army of all his kingdom, a camp exceeding strong: 28 and he opened his treasury, and gave wages to the army for a year: and he commanded them, that they should be ready at all assays. 29 And he saw that money failed out of his treasures, & the tributes of the region small, because of (e) the dissension, and (f) the plague, that he had made in the land, to take away the ordinances, that were from the first days:

(e) Not only the Jews resisted Antiochus' innovations in religion, but also diverse other nations revolted and rebelled, because he commanded all to leave their former rites and gods, and to accept of his gods only. ch. 1. v. 43.
(f) persecuting all that did not thereto conform themselves.

30 and he feared lest he should not have as once and twice, for costs & gifts, which he had given before with a large hand: & he had abounded above the kings, that had been before him. 31 And he was exceedingly astonished in mind, and purposed to go into Persis, and to take the tributes of the regions, and to gather much silver. 32 And he left Lysias a noble man of the blood royal, over the king's affairs, from the river Euphrates even to the river of Aegypt: 33 and that he should bring up Antiochus his son, till he returned. 34 And he delivered to him half the army, and Elephants: and he gave him commandment concerning all things that he would, and concerning the inhabitants of Jurie, and Jerusalem: 35 and that he should send an army to them, to destroy and root out the power of Israel, and the remnant of Jerusalem, and to take away the memory of them out of the place, 36 and that he should appoint inhabitants in all their coasts, children strangers, & should by lot distribute their land. 37 And the king took the part of the army that remained, & went forth from Antioch the city of his kingdom in the year an hundreth and seven and forty: and he passed over the river Euphrates, & walked through the higher countries. 38 And Lysias chose Ptolomee the son of Doryminus, and Nicanor, and Gorgias, mighty men of the king's friends. 39 And he sent with them forty thousand men, and seven thousand horsemen: that they should come into the land of Juda, and should destroy it according to the word of the king. 40 And they went forth with all their power, and came, and joined near to Emmaum in the champion country. 41 And the merchants of the countries heard the name of them: and they took silver and gold exceeding much, and servants: and they came into the camp, to take the children of Israel for slaves, & there were added to them the army of Syria, & of the land of the strangers. 42 And Judas saw, & his brethren, that the evils were multiplied, and the armies approached to their borders: and they knew the king's words, which he commanded to do to the people unto destruction and consummation: 43 and they said every one to his neighbour: Let us set up the abasing of our people, & let us fight for our people, and our holies. 44 And an assembly was gathered, that they should be ready unto battle: & that they should (g) pray and desire mercy & miserations.

(g) Praying, fasting & other works of penance are the best armour in holy wars for religion.

45 And Jerusalem was not inhabited, but was a desert: there was none that came in and went out of her children: and the holy place was conculcated: and the children of strangers were in the castle, there was the inhabitation of the Gentiles, and pleasure was taken away from Jacob, & there failed their pipe and harp. 46 And they gathered together, and came into Maspha against Jerusalem: because the place of prayer in Israel was in Maspha (h) before.

(h) Public place of prayer was, first in Silo, Iosue. 18. after in Maspha. 1. Reg. 7. lastly in Jerusalem.

47 And they fasted that day, and clothed themselves with haircloths, and put ashes on their head: and they rent their garments: 48 and they laid open the books of the law, out of which the Gentiles searched the similitude of their idols: 49 and they brought the ornaments of Priests, and first-fruits, & tithes, & raised up Nazareites, that had fulfilled their days: 50 and they cried with a loud voice to heaven, saying: What shall we do with these, & whither shall we carry them? 51 And thy holies are conculcated, and they are contaminated, and thy Priests are brought into mourning, & into humiliation. 52 And behold the Nations are come together against us to destroy us: thou knowest what things they intend against us. 53 How shall we be able to stand before their face, unless thou o God do help us? 54 And with trumpets they cried out with a loud voice. 55 And after these things Judas appointed captains of the people, tribunes, and centurions, and [1] sergeants, and decurions.

[1] * pentacontarchos.

[1] Deu. 20.

57 And they removed the camp, and pitched at the South of Emmaum. 58 And Judas said: Gird up yourselves, and be mighty sons, and be ready against the morning, that you may fight against these nations, which are assembled against us to destroy us, and our holies, 59 because it is better for us to die in battle, than to see the evils of our nation, and of the holies: 60 but (h) as it shall be the will in heaven, so be it done.

(h) This most godly resolution encouraged themselves, & procured God's merciful protection.

CHAPTER IV.

Gorgias with six thousand soldiers well appointed, intending suddenly to destroy the Israelites' army of three thousand not well armed, 8. is defeated; half of his men slain, the rest running away. 16. Judas staying his men from spoiling, till the enemies were out of sight, then they take rich preys; and render thanks to God. 28. The next year, Lysias with three score thousand foot, and six thousand horsemen invading Jury, Judas with ten thousand (making his prayer to God) killeth five thousand: 35. the rest flying, Lysias gathereth more soldiers. 36. Judas with his brethren, and others cleanse the temple, and renew holy things. 55. Offer Sacrifice, 58. and institute a feast of the dedication of a new Altar.

And (a) Gorgias took five thousand men, & a thousand chosen horsemen: & they removed the camp by night,

(a) The third battle made by Judas was against this Gorgias, another captain of Antiochus Epiphanes.

2 that they might approach to the camp of the Jews, and might strike them suddenly: & the children that were of the castle, were their guides. 3 And Judas (b) heard, & arose, he and the mighties to strike the power of the king's army, that were in Emmaum.

(b) Vigilancy in rulers and pastors preserveth from all the devil's stratagems.

4 For as yet the army was dispersed from the camp. 5 And Gorgias came into the camp of Judas by night, and found no man, & he sought them in the mountains: because he said: These fly from us. 6 And when the day was come, Judas appeared in the field with three thousand men only, which had not harness and swords as they would: 7 and they saw the camp of the Gentiles strong, and the men in brigantines, and horsemen round about them, and these were skillful to battle. 8 And Judas said to the men that were with him: (c) Fear not the multitude of them, & of their assault be not afraid.

(c) Confidence in God procureth his assistance.

9 Remember in what sort our fathers were saved in the red sea, when Pharao with a great army followed them. 10 And now let us cry towards heaven: and our Lord will have mercy on us, and will be mindful of the testament of our fathers, and will destroy this army, before our face this day: 11 and all Nations shall know that there is one that redeemeth and delivereth Israel. 12 And the aliens lifted up their eyes, and saw them coming against them. 13 And they went out of the camp into battle, and these that were with Judas, sounded with the trumpet. 14 And they met together: and the Gentiles were discomfited, and fled into the plain. 15 But all the hindmost fell by the sword, and they pursued them as far as Gezeron, and even to the plains of Idumea, and of Azotus, and of Jamnia: and there fell of them even to three thousand men. 16 And Judas returned, and his army following him. 17 And he said to the people: Covet not the spoils: because there is battle against us, 18 and Gorgias & his army are near us in the mount: but stand ye now against our enemies, and overthrow them, and you shall take the spoils afterwards secure. 19 And as Judas was speaking these words, lo a certain part appeared looking forth from the mountain. 20 And Gorgias saw that his men were turned to flight, & that they burnt the camp: for the smoke that was seen declared what was done. 21 Which things seen they feared exceedingly, beholding withal both Judas, and the army in the plain ready to battle. 22 And they did all fly into the plain of the aliens: 23 & Judas returned to the spoils of the camp, & they took much gold, and silver, and hyacinth, and purple of the sea, and great riches. 24 And turning they sung an hymn, & blessed God towards heaven, because he is good, because his mercy is for ever. [1]

[1] Psal. 106.

25 And great salvation was made in Israel in that day. 26 And whosoever escaped of the aliens, they came and told Lysias all things that had chanced. 27 Which when he heard being amazed he fainted in mind: that such things chanced not in Israel, as he would, & such as the king commanded. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 8. v. 8.

O

28 And the year following (d) Lysias gathered of chosen men three score thousand, & of horsemen five thousand, to overthrow them.

(d) The fourth great battle of Judas was against Lysias sent by Antiochus into Jury.

29 And they came into Jewry, and pitched the camp in Bethoron, and Judas met them with ten thousand men. 30 And they saw the army strong, and he prayed, and said: Blessed art thou o saviour of Israel, which brakest the assault of the mighty by the hand of thy servant David, & didst deliver the camp of the aliens into the hand of Jonathas Saul's son, and of his esquire. [1]

[1] 1. Reg. 17.
1. Reg. 14.

31 shut up this army in the hand of thy people Israel, and let them be confounded in their army and horsemen. 32 Give them fear, and consume the boldness of their strength, and let them be shaken with their contrition, 33 cast them down with the sword of them that love thee: & let all that know thy name, praise thee in hymns. 34 And they joined battle: and there fell of the army of Lysias five thousand men.

35 And Lysias seeing the flight of his men, and the boldness of the Jews, & that they are ready either to live or to die manfully, he went to Antioch, and chose soldiers, that being multiplied they might come again into Jewry. 36 But Judas, and his brethren said: Behold our enemies are discomfited: (e) let us go up now to cleanse the holy places, & to renew them.

(e) As it was the first and chief intention of Judas to defend religion & holy things, so having expugned their enemies, his chief care is to purge the temple, and to restore all holy rites of God's true service.

37 And all the army assembled together, and they went up into mount Sion. 38 And they saw the sanctification desert, and the altar profaned, and the gates burnt, and in the courts shrubs grown up as in a forest, or on the mountains, and the chambers thrown down. 39 And they rent their garments, and lamented with a great Lamentation, and laid ashes upon their head: 40 and they fell on their face upon the earth, & cried out with trumpets of significations, & cried towards heaven. 41 Then Judas ordained men to fight against them that were in the castle, till they cleansed the holy places. 42 And he chose Priests without spot, having their will in the law of God: 43 and they cleansed the holy places, and took away (f) the stones of contamination into an unclean place.

(f) Altars, temples, & statues of false gods made of stone, and set up in the temple. c. 1. v. 50. were now destroyed.

44 And he considered of the altar of holocausts, that was profaned, what he should do with it. 45 And good counsel came to their minds, to destroy it: lest perhaps it might be a reproach to them, because the Gentiles contaminated it, and they threw it down. 46 And they laid up the stones in the mount of the house in a place convenient, till their should come a Prophet, & give answer concerning them. 47 And they took whole stones according to the law, and builded a new altar according to that which was before: 48 and they built the holy places, and the things that were within the temple inward: and the temple, and the courts they sanctified. 49 And they made the holy vessels new, and brought in the candlestick, and the altar of incenses, and the table into the temple. 50 And they put incense upon the altar, and lighted the lamps, that were upon the candlestick, and they gave light in the temple. 51 And they set loaves upon the table, and hung up the veils, and finished all the works, that they had made. 52 And before the morning they arose the five and twentieth day of the ninth month (this is the month of Casleu) of (g) the hundreth & eight and fortieth year:

(g) The temple was purged two years & something more after the profanation, which was in the year 145. ch. 1. v. 57.

53 and they offered sacrifice according to the law upon the new altar of holocausts, which they made.
54 According to the time and according to the day, wherein the heathen contaminated it, in the same was it renewed in canticles, & harps, and lutes, and in cymbals. 55 And all the people fell on their face, and they adored toward heaven, and blessed him that prospered them. 56 [1] And (h) they made the dedication of the altar eight days, and they offered holocausts with joy, and sacrifice of salvation, and of praise.

[1] Ioan. 10. (h) Our Saviour observed this feast being instituted long after the Law of Moyses. Ioan. 10. v. 22.

57 And they adorned the face of the temple with gold crowns, and little shields: & they dedicated the gates, and the chambers, and hanged doors upon them.
58 And there was made exceeding great joy in the people, and the reproach of the Gentiles was turned away. 59 And Judas decreed, and his brethren, and all the Church of Israel, that the day of the dedication of the altar be kept in the times thereof from year to year for eight days, from the five & twentieth day of the month Casleu, with joy and gladness. 60 And they builded at that time mount Sion, and round about high walls, and strong towers, lest sometime the Gentiles should come, and conculcate it as they did before.
61 And he placed an army there, to keep it, & he fenced it to keep Bethsura, that the people might have a munition against the face of Idumea. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 10. v. 1.

CHAPTER V.

Judas and his brethren expugn their bordering enemies, 9. deliver them that were distressed. 17. Simon prospereth in Galilee, 24. Judas in Galaad, 45. taketh Ephron, and all return safe into Jerusalem. 55. Josephus and Azarias attempting ambitiously without order to fight against their enemies, are defeated. 63. And Judas hath more victories.

And [1] it came to pass, as (a) the Gentiles round about heard that the altar was builded up, and the sanctuary as before, they were exceeding angry:

[1] Q (a) In this chapter is mention of ten battles in which Judas or his brethren Jonathas and Simon were victors.

2 and they thought to take away the stock of Jacob, that were among them, and they began to kill of the people, and to persecute. 3 And Judas fought against (b) the children of Esau in Idumea, & them that were in Acrabathane: because they beset the Israelites round about, and he struck them with a great plague.

(b) The first against the Idumeans in Acrabathane.

4 And he remembered the malice of the children (c) of Bean, which were to the people a snare and a scandal, lying in wait for them in the way.

(c) The second against the Beanites.

[1] utterly destroyed.

6 And he passed to the children (d) of Ammon, and found a strong band, and a copious people, and Timothee their captain:

(d) The third against the Ammonites.

7 and he made many battles with them, and they were discomfited in their sight, & he struck them: 8 and he took Gazer the city, and her [1] daughters, and returned into Jewry.

[1] villages.

9 And the Gentiles that are (e) in Galaad, gathered together against the Israelites, that were in their coasts to dispatch them: and they fled into the fortress of Datheman.

(e) The fourth against the Galadites.

10 And they sent letters to Judas, and his brethren, saying: The heathen round about are gathered together against us, to dispatch us: 11 and they prepare to come, and to occupy the fortress into which we are fled: and Timothee is the captain of their host. 12 Now therefore come, & deliver us, out of their hands, because a multitude of us is fallen. 13 And all our brethren, that were in the places of Tubin, are slain: and they led away their wives captives, and the children, and the spoils, and they have slain there almost a thousand men. 14 And the epistles were yet in reading, and lo other messengers came out of Galilee their coats rent, reporting according to these words: 15 saying that there were assembled against them from Ptolemais, and Tyre, and Sidon, and all Galilee is replenished with aliens, to consume us. 16 And as Judas and the people heard these words, a great assembly assembled together to consider what they should do for their brethren, that were in tribulation, and were expugned of them. 17 And Judas said to Simon his brother: Choose thee men, and go, and deliver thy brethren in (f) Galilee: and I, and my brother Jonathas will go into the country of Galaad.

(f) The fifth against the Galileans of the Gentiles.

18 And he left Joseph the son of Zacharie, and Azarias, captains of the people with the residue of the army in Jurie to keep it: 19 and he commanded them, saying: Be ye over this people: & make no battle against the heathen, till we return. 20 And there were parted to Simon three thousand men, to go into Galilee: but to Judas eight thousand to go into the country of Galaad. 21 And Simon went into Galilee, & made many battles with the heathen: and the heathen were discomfited before his face, and he pursued them even to the gate of Ptolemais. 22 And there fell of the heathen almost three thousand men, & he took the spoils of them, 23 and he took them that were in Galilee & in Arbatis with their wives, and children, & all things that they had, and he brought them into

Jurie with great joy. 24 And Judas Machabeus, and Jonathas his brother passed over Jordan, and went three days' journey through the desert. 25 And the Nabutheians met them, & received them peaceably, & told them all things, that had happened to their brethren in the country of Galaad, 26 and that many of them were comprehended in Barasa, and Bosor, and in Alimis, and in Casphor, & Mageth, & Carnaim, all these cities fenced, & great. 27 Yea and in the rest of the cities of Galaad they are held captive, & on the morrow they appointed to remove the army near to these cities, and to take them, & to dispatch them in one day. 28 And Judas turned & his army the way into Bosor suddenly, and took the city: and he slew every male in the edge of the sword, & took all their spoils, & burnt it with fire. 29 And they arose thence by night, & went even to the fortress. 30 And it came to pass early in the morning, when they had lifted up their eyes, & behold much people, whereof there was no number, carrying ladders, & engines to take the fortress, and they expugned them. 31 And Judas saw that the battle began, and the cry of the battle ascended to heaven as a trumpet, and a great cry out of the city: 32 & he said to his host: Fight ye today for your brethren. 33 And he came with three ranks behind them & they cried out with trumpets, & cried in prayer. 34 And the camp of Timothee understood that it was Machabeus, and they fled back from his presence: and they struck them with a great plague: and there fell of them in that day almost eight thousand men. 35 And Judas turned aside into Maspha, and expugned, & took it, and he slew every male thereof, & he took the spoils thereof, & burnt it with fire. 36 From thence he marched, and took Casbon, and Mageth, and Bosor, & the rest of the cities of Galaad. 37 But after these words Timothee gathered another army, and camped against Raphon beyond the torrent. 38 And Judas send to view the army: and they reported unto him, saying: That all nations, that are round about us, are assembled against us, an army exceeding great: 39 and they have hired the Arabians to help them, & they have camped beyond the torrent, being ready to come unto thee into battle. And Judas went to meet them. 40 And Timothee said to the princes of his army: When Judas shall approach, & his army to the torrent of water: if he pass over unto us first, we shall not be able to sustain him: because prevailing he will prevail against us. 41 But if he be afraid to pass over, and camp without the river, let us pass over to them, and we shall prevail against them. 42 But as Judas approached to the torrent of water, he set the scribes of the people by the torrent, & commanded them, saying: Leave not a man: but let all come into the battle. 43 And he passed over to them first, & all the people after him, & all the heathen were discomfited at their presence, & they threw away their weapons, & fled to the temple, that was in Carnaim. 44 And he took (g) the city it-self, & the temple he burnt with fire, with all things that were therein: & Carnaim was subdued, & could not stand against the face of Judas.

(g) The sixth against the Carnaimites.

45 And Judas gathered together all the Israelites, that were in the country of Galaad, from the least even to the greatest, and their wives, and children, and an army exceeding great, to come into the land of Juda. 46 And they came as far as (h) Ephron: and this city was great, situate in the entrance, fenced exceedingly, and there was no means to decline from it on the right hand or on the left, but the way was through the midst.

(h) The seventh against the Ephronites.

47 And they that were in the city, shut in themselves, and stopped the gates with stones: & Judas sent to them in peaceable words, 48 [1] saying: Let us pass through your land, and go into our country: and no man shall hurt you, only on foot we will pass. And they would not open unto them.

[1] Num. 20.

49 And Judas commanded proclamation to be made in the camp, that they should approach every man in the place, wherein he was. 50 and the men of strength approached, and he assaulted that city all the day, and all the night, and the city was delivered into his hand: 51 & they slew every male in the edge of the sword, and he rooted it up, and took the spoils thereof, & passed through all the city upon the slain. 52 And they passed over Jordan in the great plain, against the face of Bethsan. 53 And Judas gathered together (i) the hindmost, & he (k) exhorted the people throughout all the way, till they came into the land of Juda:

(i) A good and pious captain cherisheth and comforteth the weak soldiers: (k) and encouraged all to shew their fortitude.

54 and they went up into mount Sion with joy and gladness, and offered holocausts because none of them was fallen till they returned in peace. 55 And in the days that Judas & Jonathas were in the land of Galaad, & Simon his brother in Galilee against the face of Ptolomais, 56 (l) Joseph the son of Zacharie heard, & Azarias, the princes of the band, the things well achieved, and the battles that were made,

(l) Men that presume of their own strength without commission from lawful authority have not God's assistance, and so fail in their attempts, as not called of God amongst those men, by whom salvation is made in Israel. v. 62.

57 and he said: Let us also make us a name, and let us go fight against the heathen, that are round about us. 58 And he commanded them that were in his army, and they went to Jamnia. 59 And Gorgias went forth out of the city, and his men to meet them into battle. 60 And Joseph and Azarias were chased in flight even unto the borders of Jurie: and there fell that day of the people of Israel about two thousand men, and there was made a great tumult in the people: 61 because they heard not Judas, & his brethren, thinking that they should do manfully. 62 But they were not of the seed of those men by whom salvation was made in Israel. 63 And the men of Juda were magnified exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and of all nations where their name was heard. 64 And they came together unto them, with acclamations for their good success. 65 And Judas went out, and his brethren, and they expugned the children of (m) Esau in the land, that is toward the South, and they struck Chebron, and her daughters: and the walls thereof and the towers he burnt with fire round about.

(m) The eighth against the Idumeans, in Chebron.

66 And he removed the camp to go into the land of the aliens, and he walked through (n) Samaria.

(n) The ninth against the Samaritanes.

67 In that day fell the Priests in battle, whilst they will do manfully, whilst they go forth without counsel into battle. 68 And Judas declined (o) to Azotus into the land of the aliens, and he threw down their altars, and the sculptiles of their gods he burnt with fire: and he took the spoils of the cities, and returned into the land of Juda.

(o) The tenth against the Philistiims in Azotus.

CHAPTER VI.

Antiochus repulsed from Elymais, 5. and hearing of the overthrow of his army in Jury, falleth vehemently sick: 11. and acknowledging his calamities to have happened for the evils he hath done against the Jews, dieth. 17. His young son Antiochus Eupator succeedeth. 18. Judas besiegeth the Macedonians' fortress. 21. Relapsed Jews solicit the King, 28. and he cometh with a terrible huge army. 32. Judas therefore leaving the siege meeteth the enemy. 43. Eleazar going under an elephant killed him, and so himself is also slain. 47. The King taketh Bethsura by composition. 51. and bendeth his forces against Jerusalem. 55. By Lysias' advice the King maketh peace with the Jews; 62. but breaking his oath destroyeth the wall of Sion; 63. and returning recovereth Antioch from Philippe.

And [1] king Antiochus walked through the higher countries, and he heard that there was a city Elymais in Persis, most noble, and plentiful in silver & gold,

[1] The full history of Antiochus Epiphanes his death is written in this chapter to the 16. v. and in all the 9. of the second Book.

2 and a temple therein exceeding rich: and coverings thereof gold, and brigantines, and shields, which

Alexander Philip's son the king of Macedonia that reigned first in Greece left there. 3 And he came, and sought to take the city, and to spoil it, and he could not, because the word was known to them that were in the city. 4 And they rose up into battle, and he fled from thence, and departed with great sorrow, and returned into Babylonia. [1]

[1] Finally he returned into the country of Babylon:

5 [1] And there came one that told him in Persis, that the camps that were in the land of Juda, were put to flight:

[1] but before he arrived there he heard the bad news of his army in Jury, & fell into intolerable and desperate diseases, v. 8. and li. 2. ch. 9. v. 5.

6 and that Lysias went with great power with the first, and was put to flight before the face of the Jews, and they grew strong with armour, and force, and many spoils: which they took out of the camps, which they destroyed: 7 and that they threw down the abomination which they had builded upon the altar that was in Jerusalem, and the sanctification they compassed about as before with high walls, yea and Bethsura his city, 8 And it came to pass as the king heard these words, he was sore afraid, and was moved exceedingly: and he lay down upon his bed, and fell into sickness for sorrow, because it was not chanced to him as he thought. 9 And he was there for many days: because there was renewed in him great sorrowfulness, and he made account to die. 10 And he called all his friends, & said to them: sleep is departed from mine eyes, and I am fallen away, and my heart is gone for pensiveness: 11 and I said in my heart: Into how great tribulation am I come, & into what waves of sorrow, wherein now I am: who was pleasant, and beloved in my power! 12 But (a) now I remember the evils, that I have done in Jerusalem, from whence also I took away all the spoils of gold, and of silver, that were in it, and I sent to take away the inhabitants of Jewry, without cause.

(a) All this was but feigned repentance. li. 2. ch. 9. v. 13.

13 I know therefore that for this cause have these evils found me: and lo I perish with great sorrow in a strange country. 14 And he called Philip, one of his friends, & he made him chief over all his kingdom. 15 And he gave him the crown, and his robe, and ring, that he should bring Antiochus his son, and should bring him up to reign. 16 And Antiochus the king died there in the year (b) an hundreth forty nine. [1]

(b) Antiochus began to persecute the Jews in the year 143. ch. 1. v. 21. and dying this year, 149. it appeareth that his persecution dured about six years, or somewhat more: agreeable to the answer of the Angel Dan. 8. v. 14. that it should endure 2300. days, which make six years, & almost four months. Within which time Judas by his valor obtained & purged the holy places, in the year 148. ch. 6. v. 52. some months before Antiochus' death. [1] * li. 2. c. 9. v. 1.
S

17 And Lysias understood that the king was dead, and he appointed Antiochus his son to reign, who he brought up a young man: and he called his name Eupator. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 10. v. 10.

18 And they that were in the castle, had inclosed Israel round about the holy places: and they sought them evils always, and the strengthening of the Gentiles. 19 And Judas thought to destroy them: and he called together all the people, to besiege them. 20 And they came together, and besieged them in the year an hundredth fifty, and they made balists and engines. 21 And certain of them that were besieged, went forth: and some impious men of Israel joined themselves unto them, 22 and they went to the king, & said: How long doest thou not judgements, & revengest our brethren? 23 We decreed to serve thy father, and to walk in his precepts, and obey his edicts: 24 and the children of our people for this alienated themselves from us, & whosoever were found of us, they were slain, and our inheritances were spoiled. 25 And not to us only have they extended the hand, but also into all our coasts. 26 and behold they have approached this day to the castle in Jerusalem to take it, and they have fortified a fortress in Bethsura: 27 and unless thou prevent them more speedily, they will do greater things than these, and thou shalt not be able to win them. 28 And the king was angry, as he heard these things: & he called together all his friends, & the princes of his army, and them that were over the horsemen. 29 Yea and of other realms, and of the islands by the sea there came unto him hired armies. 30 And the number of his army was an hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and elephants thirty two, taught to battle. 31 And they came through Idumea, and approached to Bethsura, and fought many days, and they made engines and came forth, and burnt them with fire, and fought manfully. 32 And Judas departed from the castle, & removed the camp to Bethzacaram against the king's camp. 33 And the king arose before it was light, and stirred the bands into fierceness against the way to Bethzacaram: and the armies made themselves ready to the battle, and they sounded with trumpets: 34 and to the elephants they shewed (c) the blood of the grape, and of the mulberry, to provoke them to the battle.

(c) Blood of the grape (wine Deut. 32. v. 14.) and juice of mulberries do incite elephants to fight. As some kind of blood or smell thereof doth incite hounds to hunt. Vallesius c. 82. sacrae Philosophiae.

35 And they divided the beasts by the legions: & there stood by every elephant a thousand men in coats of mail, and helmets of brass on their heads: and five hundred horsemen set in order were chosen for every beast. 36 These before the time wheresoever the beast was, there were they: & whither soever it went, they went, & they departed not from it. 37 Yea and upon them were strong wooden towers protecting every beast: and upon them engines, and upon every one thirty two men of strength which fought from above: and within the master of the beast. 38 And the residue of the horsemen he placed on this side and on that side into two parts, with trumpets to stir up the army, and to urge them that stood thick together in the legions thereof. 39 And as the sun did shine upon the bucklers of gold, and of brass, the mountains glistered therewith, & they glistered as lamps of fire. 40 And part of the king's army was severed by the high mountains, & another part by the low places: & they marched warily and orderly. 41 And all the inhabitants of the land were moved at the voice of the multitude of them, and the marching of the troop, and the rattling of the armour, for it was an army exceeding great and strong. 42 And Judas approached, and his army into battle: and there fell of the king's army six hundred men. 43 And Eleazar the son of Saura saw one of the beasts harnessed with the king's harness: & it was eminent above the other beasts; & it seemed to him that the king was on it: 44 and he gave himself to deliver his people, and to get himself an everlasting name. 45 And he ran to it boldly in the midst of the legion, killing on the right hand, & on the left, and they were slain of him on this side and that side. 46 And (d) he went under the feet of the elephant, and put himself under him, and slew him: and it fell to the ground upon him, and he died there.

(d) S. Ambrose li. 1. c. 40. Offic. highly commendeth the fortitude of this soldier, putting himself in so present danger of death, fighting for religion.

47 And they seeing the king's power, and the fierceness of his army, turned themselves aside from them. 48 But the king's camp went up against them unto Jerusalem: and the king's camp approached to Jurie and mount Sion. 49 And he made peace with them that were in Bethsura: & they came forth out of the city, because there were no victuals for them there being shut up, because it was the sabbaths of the land. 50 And the king took Bethsura: and he placed there a garrison to keep it. 51 And he turned the place of the sanctification many days: and he placed there arbalists, and engines, and instruments to cast fire, & pieces to cast stones, and arrows, & scorpions to shoot arrows, and slings. 52 And they also made engines against their engines, and they fought many days. 53 But there were no victuals in the city, for that it was the seventh year: and they that had remained in Jury of the Gentiles, had consumed their remains, that had been laid up. 54 And there remained in the holies few men, because famine had prevailed over them: and they were dispersed every man into his place. 55 And Lysias heard that Philip, whom king Antiochus when he lived, had appointed to bring up his son to reign, 56 was returned from Persis, and Media, and the army that went with him, and that he sought to take upon him the affairs of the kingdom: 57 and he hastened to go, and to say to the king, & to the princes of the army: We decay daily, and there is little victual for us, and the place that we besiege, is fenced, and it lieth upon us to take order for the kingdom. 58 Now therefore let us give the right hands to these men, and make peace with them, and with all their nation. 59 And let us decree for them, that they walk in their own ordinances as before. For, because of their ordinances which we despised, they have been wrath, and have done all these things. 60 And the word was liked in the sight of the king, and of the princes: and he sent unto them to make peace: and they received it. 61 And the king and the princes sware to them: & they came out of the fortress. 62 And the king entered mount Sion, and saw the munition of the place: and he brake quickly the oath which he sware, and commanded to destroy the wall round about. 63 And he departed in haste, and returned to Antioch, and found Philip ruling over the city: and he fought against him and won the city.[1]

CHAPTER VII.

Demetrius commandeth to kill Antiochus and Lysias being captives. 5. Alcimus and other wicked Jews solicit the king, 8. and he sendeth a great army into Jury: appointeth Bacchides general, and Alcimus high priest. 10. Who falsely pretending peace, Judas doth not credit them, but the Assidians are deceived: 16. and many are slain. 23. Judas resisting, the persecuters depart. 26. Whereupon Nicanor is sent with another army, fighteth, and loseth many men; 33. parteth in great rage, 39. assaulteth Bethoron, 42. is slain; and his army flying is all destroyed. 48. They celebrate that day with joy, and have peace for a while.

In[1] the year an hundreth fifty first went forth Demetrius the son (a) of Seleucus from the city of Rome, and he ascended with few men into a city by the sea side, & reigned there.

[1]X (a) This Seleucus was brother to Antiochus Epiphanes: & so Antiochus Eupator was Demetrius his cousin-german.

2 And it came to pass, as he entered into the house of the kingdom of his fathers, the army took Antiochus, and Lysias, to bring them unto him. 3 And the king was known to him: & he said: Shew me not their face. 4 And the army slew them. And Demetrius sat upon the seat of his kingdom: 5 and there came to him the wicked and impious men of Israel: and Alcimus the captain of them, who (b) would be made the Priest.

(b) Alcimus was now in place of the high-priest, as Menelaus had been before him, set up by Antiochus: & therefore is rightly here said: he would have been the chief Priest, but indeed was not. For the true high-priesthood was amongst the Machabees.

6 And (c) they accused the people to the king, saying: Judas and his brethren have destroyed all thy friends, & us he hath destroyed out of our land.

(c) This usurper with his complices devised false accusations against Judas and the rest, to incense the King against them. And by great gifts gained the king's favour. li. 2. c. 14. v. 4.

7 Now therefore send a man, whom thou doest credit, that he may go, and see all the destruction, that he hath done to us, and to the king's countries: and let him punish all his friends, & their aiders. 8 And the king chose of his friends Bacchides, that ruled beyond the great river in the kingdom, and was faithful to the king: & he sent him, 9 to see the destruction that Judas hath made: and Alcimus the impious man he appointed to the Priesthood, and gave him in commandment to make revenge upon the children of Israel. 10 And they arose, and came with a great army into the land of Juda: and they sent messengers, and spake to Judas, and his brethren with peaceable words in guile. 11 And they attended not to their words: for they saw that they came with a great army. 12 And there assembled to Alcimus and Bacchides a congregation of the scribes to require the things that are just: 13 and (d) first, the Assideans that were in the children of Israel, and they sought peace of them.

(d) Among the Scribes the Assideans were first consulted, being as learned as the Pharisees, or any other, and indeed more sincere, as we noted ch. 2. v. 42.

14 for (e) they said: A man that is a Priest of the seed of Aaron is come, he will not deceive us.

(e) And so Alcimus deceiving them in a matter of fact, to wit, that himself meant truly (as he did not) cruelly murdered three score of them.

15 And he spake with them peaceable words: and he sware to them, saying: We will do you no harm, nor your friends. 16 And they believed him. And he took of them threescore men, & slew them in one day, according to the word that is written: 17 [1] The flesh of thy saints, and the blood of them they have shed round about Jerusalem, and there was none to bury them.

[1] Psal. 78.

18 And there fell fear, and trembling upon all the people, because they said: There is no truth and judgement in them: for they have transgressed the appointment & the oath which they sware. 19 And Bacchides removed the camp from Jerusalem, and approached to Bethzecha: and he sent, and took many of them that were fled from him, and certain of the people he killed, & threw them into a great pit. 20 And he committed the country to Alcimus, and left with him aid to help him. And Bacchides went away to the king: 21 & Alcimus did what he could for the principality of his Priesthood: 22 and there gathered together unto him all that disturbed their people, & they obtained the land of Juda, & made a great plague in Israel. 23 And Judas saw all the evils that Alcimus did, and they that were with him, to the children of Israel, much more than the Gentiles. 24 And he went out into all the coasts of Jurie round about, & did vengeance upon the men that revolted, & they ceased to go forth any more into the country. 25 But Alcimus saw that Judas prevailed, & they that were with him: & he knew that he could not stand with them, and he went back to the king, & accused them of many crimes. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 14. v. 1.
Z

26 And the king sent (f) Nicanor, one of his nobler princes: that practised enmities against Israel: and he commanded him to destroy the people.

(f) This Nicanor was the most terrible enemy against Judas, but was at last slain by him. v. 43. & li. 2. c. 15. v. 28.

27 And Nicanor came into Jerusalem with a great army, and he sent to Judas & to his brethren in peaceable words with guile, 28 saying: Let there be no fighting between me and you: I will come with few men, to see your faces with peace. 29 And he came to Judas, & they saluted one another peaceably: & the enemies were ready to catch Judas. 30 And the thing was known to Judas that he was come with guile: and he was sore afraid of him, and would not see his face any more. 31 And Nicanor knew that his counsel was disclosed: and he went forth to Judas into battle beside Capharsalama. 32 And there fell of Nicanor's army almost five thousand men, & they fled into the city of David. 33 And after these words Nicanor went up into mount Sion: and there went forth of the Priests of the people to salute him in peace, and to shew him the holocausts, that were offered for the king. 34 And scorning he contemned them, & polluted them: and he spake proudly, 35 and sware with anger, saying: Unless Judas be delivered, & his army into my hands, incontinent when I shall return in peace I will burn this house. And he went out with great anger: 36 and the Priests entered in, and stood before the face of the altar and the temple: and weeping they said: 37 Thou o Lord hast chosen this house for thy name to be invocated therein, that it might be a house of prayer, and obsecration for thy people. 38 Take vengeance upon this man, and his army, and let them fall by the sword: remember their blasphemies, and grant not unto them to be permanent. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 14. v. 12.
B

39 And (g) Nicanor went out from Jerusalem, & moved the camp, near to Bethhoron: and the army of Syria met him.

(g) This was the last conflict between Judas and Nicanor written more largely in the last chapter of the second book.

40 And Judas approached in Adarsa with three thousand men: and Judas prayed, and said:
41 [1]They that were sent by king Sennacherib, o Lord, because they blasphemed thee, an angel came forth, and struck of them an hundred eighty five thousand:

[1]4. Reg. 19.

42 so destroy this army in our sight today, and let the rest know that he hath spoken it upon the holy places: and judge thou him according to his malice. 43 And the armies joined battle the thirteenth day of the month Adar: and the camp of Nicanor was discomfited, & himself was slain first in the battle.
44 And as his army saw that Nicanor was slain, they threw away their weapons, & fled: 45 and they pursued them one day's journey from Adazer, even till ye come into Gazara, & with trumpets they sounded after them with significations. 46 And they went forth out of all the towns of Jurie round about, and they pushed them with the horns, and they turned again to them, and they were all slain with the sword, and there was not left of them so much as one. 47 And they took the spoils of them for a prey: and Nicanor's head they cut off, and his right hand, which he had proudly stretched forth, & they brought it, & hung it up against Jerusalem. 48 And the people rejoiced exceedingly, & they spent that day in great gladness.
49 And he ordained that this day should be kept every year the thirteenth of the month Adar. 50 And the land of Juda was quiet for (h)a few days.[1]

(h) Whiles Judas disposed things pertaining to religion, and the commonwealth: Demetrius prepared for wars. ch. 9. v. 3.[1]l. 2. c. 15. v. 1.

CHAPTER VIII.

Judas knowing the Romans to be a most renowned nation, reciting their worthy acts, 17. sendeth Ambassadors to enter league with them: 21. Whereto they agreeing confirm a perpetual amity with mutual conditions.

And[1] Judas heard of (a)the name of the Romans, that they are mighty of power, and agree unto all things that are requested of them: and whosoever have come unto them, they have made amity with them, and that they are mighty of power.

[1]D(a) Of the renowned acts of the Romans, other Historiographers have also written largely: especially Livius, Diodorus, Iustinus, Florus, Varre, Plutarchus, and many others.

2 And they heard of their battles, and goodly acts, which they did in Galatia, that they overcame them, and brought them under tribute: 3 and how great things they did in the country of Spain, & that they brought into their power the metals of silver and gold, that are there, and possessed every place by their counsel and patience: 4 [1]and destroyed the places that were very far off from them, and the kings that came upon them from the ends of the earth, and struck them with a great plague: and the rest give them tribute every year.

[1]What places these were Iosephus expresseth. l. 12. c. 17.

5 And Philip and Perses the king of the Ceteans, & the rest that had borne weapon against them, they discomfited in battle, and overcame them: 6 and that Antiochus the great king of Asia, who made battle against them, having (b)an hundred and twenty elephants, and horsemen, and chariots and army exceeding great was discomfited by them:

(b) Polybius li. 5. writeth that Antiochus had 102. elephants in his war against Ptolemeus, & therefore it is not to be marveled that he had 120. against the Romans.

7 and that they took him alive, and appointed him that himself and they that should reign after him, should give a great tribute, and he should give hostages, and the thing appointed him. 8 and the region of the Indes, and the Medes, and the Lydians of their best countries: and the same being taken of them, they gave to Eumenes the king. 9 And that they which were in Hellada, would have gone to dispatch them: and the word was known to them, 10 and they sent unto them one captain, and they fought against them, and many of them were slain, and they led away their wives captive, and their children, and spoiled them, and possessed their land, and destroyed their walls, and brought them into bondage even until this day: 11 and the residue of kingdoms, and isles that some time had resisted them, they spoiled, and brought under their power. 12 But with their friends, and those that rested in them, they kept amity, and obtained the kingdoms, that were next, and that were far off: that whosoever heard their name, feared them. 13 But such as they would help to reign, those reigned: and whom they would, they deposed from the kingdom: and they were exalted exceedingly. 14 And in all these none bare a crown, nor was clothed with purple, to be magnified therein. 15 And that they made themselves a court, and consulted daily three hundred and twenty, that sat in counsel always for the multitude, that they might do the things that were convenient: 16 and they commit their government (c) to one man every year to rule over all their land, and all they obey one, and there is no envy, nor emulation amongst them.

(c) Though Rome was then governed by two consuls: Yet one only ruled every day in their course, not both in one day, for so saith Livius (li. 2. hist.) it should have been more terror of two rulers, than before it had been of one king.

17 And Judas chose Eupolemus the son of John, the son of Jacob, and Jason the son of Eleazar, & he sent them to Rome to make amity and society with them: 18 and that they should take from them the yoke of the Greeks, because they saw that they pressed the kingdom of Israel unto bondage. 19 And they went to Rome, a way exceeding great, and they entered into the court, and said: 20 Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, and the people of the Jews have sent us unto you to make society and peace with you, and to write us your fellows and friends. 21 And the word was liked in their sight. 22 And this is the rescript that they wrote again in tables of brass, and sent into Jerusalem, that it might be with them there a memorial of peace and society. 23 BE IT WELL TO THE ROMANS, and to the nation of the Jews by sea, and by land for ever: and sword and enemy be far from them. 24 But and if war be toward the Romans first, or all their fellows in all their dominion: 25 the nation of the Jews shall give aid, according as the time shall appoint, with full heart: 26 and to them fighting, they shall not give nor allow wheat, armour, money, ships, as it hath pleased the Romans: & they shall keep their charge, taking nothing of them. 27 In like manner also & if war shall happen first to the nation of the Jews, the Romans shall help with all their heart, according as the time shall permit them: 28 & to them helping shall not be given wheat, armour, money, ships, as it hath pleased the Romans: and they shall keep their charge without guile. 29 According to these words did the Romans agree to the people of the Jews. 30 And if after these words these or they will add to these, or take away any thing, they shall do it at their pleasure: and whatsoever they shall add, or take away, shall be ratified. 31 Yea and concerning the evils, that Demetrius the king hath done against them, we have written to him, saying: Why hast thou aggravated the yoke upon our friends and fellows the Jews? 32 If therefore they come again unto us against thee, we will do judgement for them, and will fight with thee by sea and land.

CHAPTER IX.

Bacchides and Alcimus returning into Jury make great slaughter. 5. More than two parts of Judas' small troop flying away, he with eight hundred, setteth upon the enemy, 14. overthroweth the strongest part of their army: 16. but another part coming at his back, with great slaughter on both parties, Judas is slain: 19. and most honourably buried. 23. Much evil increaseth in Israel. 28. Jonathas is made captain general. 36. The children of Iambrie kill his brother, which he revengeth. 43. Being environed by Bacchides chaseth him away to his fenced places, killing many. 54. Alcimus beginning to deface the temple, is striken with a palsy, and dieth miserably. 57. So they have peace two years. 58. Bacchides coming with a new army: 62. Jonathas and Simon retire into Bethbessen: 65. there defend themselves, and annoy the enemy. 69. who blaming his counsellers, maketh peace, and departeth.

In (a) the mean time as Demetrius heard that Nicanor was fallen and his army in the battle, he added to send Bacchides and Alcimus again into Jurie, and the right wing with them.

(a) This happened about a year after the death of Nicanor. ch. 7. v. 50. li. 2. c. 15. 38.

2 And they went the way, that leadeth into Galgal, and camped in Masaloth, which is in Arbellis: and they won it, and slew of men many souls. 3 In the first month of the year an hundreth and fifty two they brought the army near to Jerusalem: 4 and they arose, and went into Beraea twenty thousand men, and two thousand horsemen. 5 And Judas had camped in Laisa, and three thousand chosen men with him: 6 and they saw the multitude of the army that they were many, and they feared exceedingly: and many withdrew themselves out of the camp, and there remained of them but eight hundred men. 7 And Judas saw that his army shrunk away, and the battle pressed upon him, and (b) his heart was broken: because he had not time to gather them together, and he was discouraged.

(b) Strongest men are not free from first motions of perturbation, but reflecting upon their own infirmity, & confiding in God's providence, take courage in a good cause, being assured either of temporal victory, or of eternal glory. As now it happened to this most glorious Champion. v. 18.

8 And he said to them that were remaining: Let us rise, and go to our adversaries, if we may be able to fight against them. 9 And they dissuaded him saying: We are not able, but let us save our lives now, and return to our brethren, and then we will fight against them: and we are few. 10 And Judas said: God forbid we should do this thing, to fly from them: & if our time be near, let us die manfully for our brethren, and let us not stain our glory. 11 And the army moved out of the camp, and they stood to meet them: and the horsemen were divided into two parts, and the slingers, and the archers went before the army, & of the forward all mighty. 12 And Bacchides was in the right wing, and the legion approached on two sides, & they sounded with trumpets: 13 and they also cried out that were on Judas' side, even they also, & the earth was moved at the voice of the armies: and the battle was fought from morning even until the evening. 14 And Judas saw that the stronger part of the army was on the right hand, and all the stout of heart came together with him: 15 and the right side was discomfited of them, & he pursued them even to the mount of Azotus. 16 And they that were in the left wing, saw that the ring wing was discomfited, and they followed after Judas, and them that were with him at the back: 17 and the battle grew sore, and there fell many wounded of these and of them. 18 And Judas was slain, and the rest fled. 19 And Jonathas and Simon took Judas their brother, and buried him in the sepulchre of their fathers in the city Modin. 20 And all the people of Israel lamented him with great lamentation, and they mourned many days, 21 and said: (c) How is the mighty fallen, that saved the people of Israel!

(c) The mighty may fall in the sight of men, but Judas his fortitude proved & confirmed by former heroical acts, with prosperous success, was now perfectly consummate by this most glorious end. S. Ambr. li. 1. c. 41. Offic.

22 And the rest of the words of Judas' battles, and of the valiant acts that he did, and of his greatness are not described: for they were exceeding many. 23 And it came to pass: (d) after the death of Judas, there came forth the wicked men in all the coasts of Israel, & there arose all that wrought iniquity.

(d) Where there is no governor the people shall fall. Pro. 11.

24 In those days was made an exceeding great famine, and all their country with themselves yielded to Bacchides. 25 And Bacchides chose the impious men, & appointed them lords of the country: 26 and they sought out, & searched for the friends of Judas, & brought them to Bacchides, and he took revenge on them, and scorned them. 27 And there was made great tribulation in Israel, such as was not since the day, that there was no Prophet seen in Israel. 28 And all the friends of Judas gathered, & said to (e) Jonathas:

(e) Ionathas the third general captain of the Machabees was also high Priest after the death of Judas. Though Alcimus by the King's favour unjustly usurped the office: (ch. 7. v. 5.) whiles Judas yet lived, and until this time. v. 54.

29 Since thy brother Judas died, there is not a man like unto him, to go forth against the enemies, Bacchides, & them that are the enemies of our nation. 30 Now therefore thee have we chosen this day to be for him our prince, and captain to wage our battle. 31 And Jonathas took upon him at that time the princedom, & arose in the place of Judas his brother. 32 And Bacchides understood it, and sought to kill him. 33 And Jonathas understood it, and Simon his brother, and all that were with them: and they fled into the desert of Thecua, and they pitched by the water of the lake Asphar. 34 And Bacchides understood it, and in the day of the Sabbaths came himself, and all his army over Jordan. 35 And Jonathas sent his brother captain of the people, to desire the Nabutheians his friends, that they would lend him their provision, which was copious. 36 And the children of Jambri issued forth of Madaba, and (f) took John, & all things that he had, and went away having them.

(f) They also killed him. v. 38. 42.

37 After these words, it was told Jonathas and Simon his brother, that the children of Jambri make a great marriage, & bring the bride out of Madaba, the daughter of one of the great princes of Chanaan with great pomp. 38 And they remembered the blood of John their brother: and they went up, and hid themselves under the covert of the mountain. 39 And they lifted up their eyes, and saw: and lo a tumult, a great preparation: and the bridegroom came forth, and his friends, and his brethren to meet them with timbrels, and musical instruments, and many weapons. 40 And they rose upon them out of the embushment, and slew them, and there fell many wounded, & the rest fled into the mountains, and they took all the spoils of them: 41 and the marriage was turned into mourning, and the voice of their musical instruments into lamentation. 42 And they (g) took revenge of the blood of their brother: and they returned to the bank of Jordan.

(g) To revenge or punish faults in due measure, & other right circumstances, is a special virtue, moderating man's defence of his person, honour, or right, without cruelty, or remissness: and so the children sometimes are temporally punished, for their parent's sins, and the community for their leader's, either for their consent before the fact or after; or to prevent that they do not the like. S. Tho. 2. 2. q. 108.

43 And Bacchides heard it, and he came on the day of the Sabbaths even to the brink of Jordan with a great power: 44 And Jonathas said to his company: Let us arise, and fight against our enemies: for it is not today as yesterday, and the day before. 45 For lo battle directly against us, and the water of Jordan on this side and on that side, and banks, and marishes, & forests: and there is no place to turn aside. 46 [1] Now therefore cry ye unto heaven, that you may be delivered out of the hand of your enemies. And battle was joined.

[1] 2. Par. 20. v. 3.

47 And Jonathas stretched forth his hand to strike Bacchides, & he turned aside from him backwards. 48 And Jonathas lept aside, and they that were with him into Jordan, & they swam (h) over Jordan to them:

(h) Ionathas and his men swam not to the other side, but to another place on the same side: for other wise the armies had been parted by the river: and so there had been no conflict that time.

49 and there fell of Bacchides' part that day a thousand men: and they returned into Jerusalem, 50 and built fenced cities in Jurie, the fortress that was in Jericho, and in Ammaum, and in Bethoron, and in Bethel, and Thamnata, and Phara, and Thopo with high walls, and gates, & locks. 51 And he placed a garrison in them, that they might exercise enmities against Israel: 52 and he fenced the city Bethsura, and Gazara, and the castle, and set garrisons in them, & provision of victuals: 53 & he took the sons of the princes of the country for hostages, and put them in the castle in Jerusalem into ward. 54 And in (i) the year an hundred fifty three, the second month, Alcimus commanded the walls of the inner holy house to be destroyed, and the works of the Prophets to be destroyed: & he began to destroy.

(i) Iosephus li. 12. c. 17. confesseth that Judas was high-Priest, but erreth in saying he succeeded after Alcimus: neither considering that Alcimus was not indeed high priest, but an usurper: nor that he lived after Judas: who was slain a year before this time. v. 3. & 18. Whereby, and by many other such errors, we see that Iosephus is rather to be corrected by this book than to disallow this book because it differeth from Iosephus, or other like authors.

55 In that time was Alcimus strucken: and his works were stayed, and his mouth was stopped, and he was dissolved with the palsy, neither could he speak a word any more, and give commandment touching his house. 56 And Alcimus died at that time with great torment. 57 And Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead: and he returned to the king, & the land was quiet for two years. 58 And all the wicked thought saying: Behold Jonathas, and they that are with him, dwell in silence securely: now therefore let us bring Bacchides, and he shall take them all in one night. 59 And they went, and gave him counsel. 60 And he arose to come with a great army: and he sent secretly epistles to his fellows that were in Jurie, to take Jonathas, and them that were with him: but they could not, because their counsel was known to them. 61 And he apprehended of the men of the country, that were the principal of the mischief, fifty men, and he slew them. 62 And Jonathas retired aside, and Simon, and they that were with him into Bethbessen, which is in the desert: and he built up the ruins thereof, and they fortified it. 63 And Bacchides understood it, and gathered together all his multitude, and sent word to them that were of Jurie. 64 And he came, and camped above Bethbessen, and assaulted it many days, and made engines. 65 And Jonathas left Simon his brother in the city, and went forth into the country, & came with a number, 66 and struck Odares, and his brethren, and the children of Phaseron in their tabernacles, and he began to slay, and to grow in forces. 67 But Simon and they that were with him, went out of the city, and burnt the engines, 68 and they fought against Bacchides, & he was discomfited by them: and they afflicted him exceedingly, because his counsel, and his conflict was in vain. 69 And being angry against the wicked men, that had given him counsel to come into their country, (k) he slew many of them: but himself thought with the rest to depart into their country.

(k) Evil councel how soever it happeneth to them that follow it, is ever hurtful to them that give it.

70 And Jonathas understood it, and he sent unto him legates to make peace with him, and to render unto him the captives. 71 And he took it gladly, and did according to his words, and sware that he would do him no harm all the days of his life. 72 And he rendered unto him the captives, which he before had taken for a prey, out of the land of Juda: & returning he departed into his own country, and he added no more to come into their coasts. 73 And the sword ceased out of Israel: and Jonathas dwelt in Machmas, and Jonathas began there to judge the people, and he destroyed the impious out of Israel.

CHAPTER X.

Demetrius invaded by Alexander, 3. seeketh help of Jonathas: 15. but he joineth with Alexander, a surer friend: 22. though Demetrius solicit him again, offering rewards, with remission of tributes, 31. and great privileges, 46. All which he suspecting to be feigned, persisteth with Alexander: 48. who in battle killeth Demetrius: 52. espouseth the King's daughter of Aegypt: 59. calleth Jonathas to the marriage: 62. and honoureth him as a King. 67. Demetrius (the son) coming into Syria, sendeth Apollonius against Jonathas: 70. provoketh him, 74. and is overthrown (79. notwithstanding his ambushment of a thousand horsemen) 83. Jonathas burneth Azotus, with their idol Dagon: 86. so returneth by Ascalon to Jerusalem with great glory.

And in the year an hundreth threescore came up Alexander (a) the son of Antiochus, that was surnamed Noble: and he took Ptolemais, and they received him, and he reigned there.

(a) He falsely avouched that he was the son of Antiochus Epiphanes: for he was indeed of very mean birth. Iustinus. li. 35.

2 And Demetrius the king heard it, and he gathered together an exceeding great army, and went forth to meet him into battle. 3 And Demetrius sent an epistle to Jonathas in peaceable words, to magnify him. 4 For he said: Let us prevent to make peace with him, before he make with Alexander against us: 5 for he will remember all the evils, that we have done against him, and against his brother, and against his nation. 6 And he gave him authority to gather an army, and to make weapons, and to be himself his fellow: and the hostages that were in the castle, he commanded to be delivered to him. 7 And Jonathas came into Jerusalem, and read the epistles in the hearing of all the people, and of them that were in the castle. 8 And they feared with great fear, because they heard that the king gave him authority to gather an army. 9 And the hostages were delivered to Jonathas, and he rendered them to their parents. 10 And Jonathas dwelt in Jerusalem, and began to build, & to renew the city. 11 And he spake to them that made the works, that they should build the walls, and mount Sion round about with square stones for munition: and so they did. 12 And the Aliens fled that were in the holds, which Bacchides had built: 13 and every man left his place, & departed into his own country: 14 only in Bethsura there remained some of them, that had forsaken the law, and the precepts of God: for this was for a refuge to them.

15 And Alexander the king heard of the promises, that Demetrius had promised to Jonathas: and they told him the battles, & the worthy acts that he did, and his brethren, and the labours, that they endured: 16 and he said: Why, shall we find any such man? And now we will make him a friend, and our fellow.

17 And he wrote an epistle, and sent it to him according to these words, saying: 18 KING Alexander to his brother Jonathas greeting. 19 We have heard of thee, that thou art mighty of power, and art meet to be our friend: 20 and now (b) we make thee this day high Priest of thy nation, that thou be called the king's friend (& he sent him purple, and a crown of gold) & in our affairs thou be of one mind with us, and keep amity towards us.

(b) It was not in the king's power to make Ionathas high priest but he being so before, the king from this time did so account him.

21 And Jonathas put on him the holy stole the seventh month, in the year an hundreth threescore in the solemn day of Scenopegia: and he gathered an army, and made very many weapons. 22 And Demetrius heard these words, and was exceeding sorry, and said: 23 What is this that we have done, that Alexander hath prevented us to take the friendship of the Jews for his strength? 24 I also will write to them words of request, and dignities, and gifts: that they may be with me to aid me. 25 And he wrote to them in these words: KING Demetrius to the nation of the Jews greeting. 26 Because you have kept covenant towards us, and have continued in our amity, and have not joined to our enemies, (c) we have heard of it, and are glad.

(c) This King Demetrius to get his desired purpose, sticked not to write a plain lie, for he had heard that the Jews had refused him and made league with his enemy Alexander. v. 22. 23.

27 And now persevere still to keep fidelity towards us, & we will reward you with good things, for that you have done with us. 28 And we will remit you many charges, and will give you many gifts. 29 And now I release you, and all the Jews from tributes, & I pardon you the prices of salt, & remit the crowns, & the thirds of the seed: 30 and the half of the fruit of trees, which is my portion, I leave to you from this day forward, that it be not taken of the land of Juda, and of the three cities that are added thereto of Samaria, & Galilee from this day & for ever: 31 & let Jerusalem be holy, and free with the coasts thereof: & the tithes, & tributes be they to it. 32 I release also the authority of the castle, that is in Jerusalem, and I give it to the high priest, to place therein men whomsoever he shall choose, that may keep it. 33 And every soul of the Jews, that is captive from the land of Juda in all my kingdom, I dismiss free for nothing, that all may be discharged also from tributes of their cattle. 34 And all the solemn days, & the sabbaths, & the new moons, & the days appointed, and three days before the solemn day, and three days after the solemn day let them all be of immunity & remission, to all the Jews that are in my kingdom: 35 & no man shall have power to do any thing, & to make businesses against any of them in any cause. 36 And let there be enrolled of the Jews in the king's army to the number of thirty thousand men: & allowance shall be given them as behoveth to all the king's bands, & of them there shall be ordained certain, that shall be in the fortresses of the great king: 37 and of these there shall be appointed over the affairs of the kingdom, that are done of trust, and let there be princes of them, and let them walk in their own laws, as the king hath commanded in the land of Juda.

38 And the three cities that are added to Jury of the country of Samaria, let them be accounted with Jury: that they may be under one, and obey no other power, but the high priest's: 39 Ptolomais, and the confines thereof, which I have given for a gift to the holies, that are in Jerusalem, to the necessary charges of the holy things. 40 And I give every year fifteen thousand sicles of silver of the king's accounts, that belong to me: 41 & all that is above which they had not rendered, that were over the affairs the years before, from this time they shall give it to the works of the house. 42 And beside these five thousand sicles of silver, which they received of the account of the holies every year: & let these pertain to the priests, that execute the ministry. 43 And whosoever fly into the temple that is in Jerusalem, and in all the coasts thereof, in the king's danger for matter, let them be dismissed, & all things, that they have in my kingdom, let them have it free. 44 And to build or repair the works of the holy places, the charges shall be given of the king's account: 45 and to build the walls in Jerusalem, and to fortify them round about, the charges shall be given of the king's account, and to build the walls in Jurie. 46 But as Jonathas, & the people heard these words, (d) they believed them not, nor received them: because they remembered the great mischief, that he had done in Israel, and had afflicted them exceedingly.[1]

(d) Notwithstanding the great offers of evil disposed men, Ionathas and all prudent men considering their former wicked deeds do not give credit to glorious words.[1] ch. 7. v. 11.

47 And their liking was toward Alexander, because he had been the first mover of the words of peace unto them, & him they aided all days. 48 And king Alexander gathered a great army, & moved the camp near to Demetrius. 49 And the two kings joined battle, and the army of Demetrius fled, & Alexander pursued him, & urged them sore. 50 And the battle grew very sore, till the sun went down: & Demetrius was slain in that day. 51 And Alexander sent legates to (e) Ptolomee king of Aegypt according to these words, saying:

(e) This Ptolomeus Philometor decided a controversy, that the Jews had the true temple in Jerusalem, and that the Samaritanes' temple in Garizim was schismatical: which he judged, because albeit both pleaded antiquity, yet only the Jews proved by continual succession of high Priests from Aaron, and shewed that the other departed from them, first in the time of Jeroboam, and afterwards built that temple in Garizim, when some were returned from captivity: whereof Josephus writeth. li. 13. c. 6. Antiquit. Our Saviour also judged that the cause of the Jews was better. Ioan. 4. v. 22.

52 BECAUSE I am returned into my Kingdom, and am set in the seat of my fathers, & have obtained the princedom, & have destroyed Demetrius, & possessed our country, 53 and have joined battle with him, and he is destroyed himself, & his camp by us, and we sit in the seat of his kingdom: 54 and now let us make amity one with another: & give me thy daughter to wife, and I will be thy son in law, & I will give thee gifts, and to her dignity. 55 And king Ptolomee answered, saying: HAPPY is the day wherein thou art returned to the land of thy fathers, and art set in the seat of their kingdom. 56 And now I will do to thee that which thou hast written: but meet me at Ptolomais, that we may see one another, and I may despouse her to thee as thou hast said. 57 And Ptolomee went out of Aegypt, he & Cleopatra his daughter, & he came to Ptolomais in the year an hundred threescore and two. 58 And Alexander the king met him, & he gave him Cleopatra his daughter: and he made her marriage at Ptolomais, as kings in great glory. 59 And king Alexander wrote to Jonathas, that he should come to meet him. 60 And he went with glory to Ptolomais, & he met there the two kings, & he gave them much silver, & gold, & gifts: & he found grace in their sight. 61 And there assembled against him pestilent men of Israel, wicked men soliciting against him: & the king attended not to them. 62 And he commanded Jonathas to be changed of his garments, & that he should be clothed with purple: and so they did. And the king placed him to sit with himself. 63 And he said to his princes: Go ye out with him into the midst of the city, & proclaim, that no man solicit against him for any matter, & that no man be troublesome unto him for any cause. 64 And it came to pass, as they that solicited (f) saw his glory that was published, & him covered with purple, they all fled:

(f) When calumniators see that the innocent is justified and honoured, they fail in their heart to proceed against him.

65 & the king magnified him, & wrote him amongst his chief friends, & made him Duke, & partaker of the princedom. 66 And Jonathas returned into Jerusalem with peace & joy. 67 In the year an hundreth sixty five came Demetrius the son of Demetrius from Crete into the land of his fathers. 68 And Alexander the king heard it, & he was very sorry, & returned to Antioch. 69 And Demetrius the king made Apollonius general, who was ruler of Coelesiria: & he gathered a great army, & came to Jamnia: & he sent to Jonathas the high priest, 70 saying: Thou only resistest us, & I am brought into derision, & into reproach, because thou doest exercise power against us in the mountains. 71 Now therefore if thou trust in thy forces, come down to us in the plain, let us compare there one with another: because with me is the force of battles. 72 Ask, & learn who I am, & the rest, that aid me, who also say that your foot cannot stand before our face, because twice have thy fathers been put to flight in their own land: 73 and now how wilt thou be able to abide the horsemen, & so great an army in the plain, where is no stone, nor rock, nor place to fly? 74 But as Jonathas heard the words of Apollonius, he was moved in mind: & he chose ten thousand men, & went forth from Jerusalem, & Simon his brother met him to aid him. 75 And they moved the camp to Joppe, & it shut him out of the city: because the garrison of Apollonius was in Joppe, & he assaulted it. 76 And they that were in the city being put in great fear, opened to him, & Jonathas obtained Joppe. 77 And Apollonius heard it, & he took three thousand horsemen, & a great army. 78 And he went to Azotus as making journey, and immediately he went forth into the plain: because he had a multitude of horsemen, and he trusted in them. And Jonathas pursued him unto Azotus, and they joined battle. 79 And Apollonius left in the camp a thousand horsemen behind them secretly. 80 And Jonathas understood that there was an embushment behind him, and they compassed his camp, and they threw darts upon the people from morning even unto evening. 81 But (g) the people stood, as Jonathas had commanded: and their horses laboured.

(g) Ionathas set his army in that manner as on every side his men stood in front ready to resist the force of the enemy coming towards them, all their backs so turned within their own squadron, that the enemy could no way enter without present resistance: and so those of the ambushment could only cast darts, but could not break the array of Ionathas' camp, nor make any entrance without their own present death.

82 And Simon put forth his army, and joined it against the legion: for the horsemen were wearied: and they were discomfited by him, and fled. 83 And they that were scattered by the plain, fled into Azotus, and entered into Bethdagon their idol house, there to save themselves. 84 And Jonathas burnt Azotus, and the cities that were round about it, and he took the spoils of them, and the temple of Dagon: and all that fled into it, he burnt with fire. 85 And there were that were slain by the sword, with these that were burnt, almost eight thousand men. 86 And Jonathas removed the camp from thence, and brought it to Ascalon: and they went out of the city to meet him in great glory. 87 And Jonathas returned into Jerusalem with his company, having many spoils. 88 And it came to pass: as Alexander the king heard these words, he added yet to glorify Jonathas. 89 And he sent him a chain of gold, as the custom is to be given to the cousins of kings. And he gave him Accaron and all the borders thereof in possession.

CHAPTER XI.

Ptolomeus King of Aegypt deceitfully coming into Syria, 8. surpriseth certain cities, and taking his daughter from Alexander giveth her to Demetrius. 15. Alexander flying away, 17. is treacherously slain. 18. Ptolomeus dieth the third day, and Demetrius reigneth. 20. Jonathas besiegeth the fortress which resisted him in Jerusalem, 24. obtaineth of Demetrius remission of tributes, and other privileges. 38. Demetrius dismissing his army, the soldiers conspire with Tryphon against him. 43. Jonathas aideth him with three thousand men, who kill an hundred thousand mutineers. 53. Demetrius breaking league with Jonathas, is overthrown by Tryphon. 57. Young Antiochus reneweth league with Jonathas: and he (65. as likewise his brother Simon) prospereth: 67. in great danger prayeth and prevaileth.

And the king of Aegypt gathered an army, (a) as the sand that is about the sea shore, and many ships: and he sought to win the kingdom of Alexander by guile, and to add it to his own kingdom.

(a) By this hyperbolical description (very frequent in holy scripture) is signified that Ptolomeus' army was exceeding great, yea greater than can be easily conceived, and therefore is described by excessive terms.

2 And he went out into Syria with peaceable words, & they opened to him the cities, and met him: because Alexander the king had commanded them to go forth to meet him, for that he was his father in law. 3 But when Ptolomee entered the cities, he put garrisons of soldiers in every city. 4 And as he approached to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon burnt with fire, and Azotus, & the rest thereof thrown down, and the bodies cast forth, & the graves of them that were slain in the battle, which they had made near the way. 5 And they told the king that Jonathas did these things: to raise envy against him: and the king held his peace. 6 And Jonathas came to meet the king into Joppe with glory, and they saluted one another, and they slept there. 7 And Jonathas went with the king even to the river, that was called Eleutherus, and he returned into Jerusalem. 8 And king Ptolomee obtained the dominion of the cities even to Seleucia by the sea side, and he purposed evil purposes against Alexander. 9 And sent legates to Demetrius, saying: Come, let us make a league between us, and I will give thee my daughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt reign in the kingdom of thy father. 10 For it repenteth me that I have given him my daughter: for he hath sought to kill me. 11 And he dispraised him, for that he coveted his kingdom, 12 and he took away his daughter, & gave her to Demetrius, and alienated himself from Alexander, and his enmities were made manifest. 13 And Ptolomee entered into Antioch, & he put two crowns upon his head, of Aegypt, & of Asia. 14 But Alexander the king was in Cilicia at that time: because they rebelled that were in those places. 15 And Alexander heard it, and came to him into battle: and Ptolomee the king brought forth an army, and met him with a strong power, and put him to flight. 16 And Alexander fled into Arabia, there to be protected: and king Ptolomee was exalted. 17 And Zabdiel an Arabian took off Alexander's head, & sent it to Ptolomee. 18 And king Ptolomee died the third day: & they that were in the fortresses, perished by them that were within the camp. 19 And Demetrius reigned the year an hundreth sixty seven. 20 In those days Jonathas gathered together them, that were in Jurie, to win the castle in Jerusalem: and they made engines against it. 21 And certain (b) that hated their own nation wicked men, went to king Demetrius, and told him that Jonathas besieged the castle.

(b) When Pastors endeavour to extirpate sin out of the minds of the people, those that hate godliness, suggest to temporal princes that such spiritual preaching is dangerous to their state.

22 And as he heard it, he was wrath: and forthwith he came to Ptolemais, and wrote to Jonathas, that he should not besiege the castle, but should meet him to talk together in haste. 23 But as Jonathas heard it, (c) he bade them besiege it: and he chose of the ancients of Israel, and of the Priests, and put himself in hazard.

(c) But zealous men cease not from so necessary a work, because God's word is not tied. 2. Tim. 2.

24 And he took gold, & silver, and raiments, & many other presents, & went to the king to Ptolomais, and he found grace in his sight. 25 And certain wicked men of his nation solicited against him. 26 And (d) the king did to him, as they had done to him which had been before him: and he exalted him in the sight of all his friends,

(d) And wise Kings will most esteem of such men, knowing that their fidelity towards God, is an assurance that they will also be faithful to Princes.

27 and he established to him the chief Priesthood, & whatsoever other things he had before precious, & he made him the chief of his friends. 28 And Jonathas requested of the king that he would make Jury free, & the three (e) toparchies, and Samaria, & the confines thereof: and he promised him three hundred talents.

(e) The King had before adjoined principal places to Judea which were called Toparchiae, that is places of principality, or principal governments: now he granted also immunities to them as to all Judea and Samaria.

29 And the king consented: and he wrote to Jonathas epistles of all these things, containing this tenure.

30 KING Demetrius to his brother Jonathas greeting, and to the nation of the Jews. 31 A copy of the epistle, which we have written to Lasthenes our parent concerning you, we have sent to you that you might know it. 32 KING Demetrius to Lasthenes his parent greeting. 33 We have determined to do good to the nation of the Jews our friends, & that keep the things that are just with us, for their gentleness which they bear towards us. 34 We have ordained therefore unto them all the coasts of Jurie, & the three cities, Apherema, Lyda, & Ramatha, which are added to Jurie of Samaria, & all their confines, to be sequestered to all them that sacrifice in Jerusalem, for these things, which the king received of them every year, and for the fruits of the land, and of the trees. 35 And other things, that pertained to us of the tithes, and of the tributes, from this time we remit to them: & the salt floors, and the crowns, that were presented to us, 36 we grant all to them, & nothing of these shall be broken from this time, and for ever. 37 Now therefore provide to make a copy of these, and let it be given to Jonathas, & let it be laid in the holy mount, and in a solemn place. 38 And Demetrius the king seeing that the land was quiet in his sight, & nothing resisted him, he dismissed all his army, every man to his place, except the foreign army, which he brought from the isles of the Gentiles: and all the bands of his fathers were enemies to him. 39 And there was one Tryphon of Alexander's part before: and he saw that all the army murmured against Demetrius, & he went to Emalchuel the Arabian, that brought up Antiochus the son of Alexander: 40 And he lay upon him, to deliver this Antiochus unto him, to reign in his father's place: and he declared unto him what great things Demetrius did, and the enmities of his hosts against him. And he tarried there many days. 41 And Jonathas sent to Demetrius the king, that he would cast out them, that were in the castle in Jerusalem, and that were in the holds: because they impugned Israel. 42 And Demetrius sent to Jonathas, saying: I will not only do these things for thee, & for thy nation, but with glory I will honour thee, & thy nation, when it shall be time convenient. 43 Now therefore thou shalt do well if thou wilt send men to help me: because all mine army is departed. 44 And Jonathas sent him (f) three thousand valiant men to Antioch: and they came to the king, & the king was delighted at their coming.

(f) Three thousand faithful encountering with an hundred & twenty thousand infidels, killed of them in one day an hundred thousand.

45 And there assembled they that were of the city, an hundred twenty thousand men, and they would have slain the king. 46 And the king fled into the court: & they that were of the city kept the ways of the city, and began to fight. 47 And the king called the Jews for aid: & they came together to him all at once, & they were all dispersed through the city. 48 And they slew in that day an hundred thousand men, & they burnt the city, & took many spoils in that day, & delivered the king. 49 And they that were of the city saw, that the Jews had obtained the city as they would: and they were discomfited in their mind, and cried to the king with petitions, saying: 50 Give us the right hand, and let the Jews cease to oppugn us & the city. 51 And they threw away their weapons, & made peace, & the Jews were glorified in the king's sight, & were renowned in the sight of all that were in his kingdom, & returned into Jerusalem with many spoils. 52 And king Demetrius sat in the seat of his kingdom: and the land was at rest in his sight. 53 And he feigned all things whatsoever he said, & alienated himself from Jonathas, and he requited him not according to the benefits, that he had given him, and he vexed him exceedingly. 54 And after these things Tryphon returned, & with him Antiochus the young boy, who reigned, and put the crown upon him. 55 And there gathered unto him all the bands, which Demetrius had dispersed, and they fought against him: & he fled, and turned the back. 56 And Tryphon took the beasts, and won Antioch. 57 And Antiochus the young man wrote to Jonathas, saying: I appoint to thee the priesthood, & I place thee over the four cities, that thou mayst be of the king's friends. 58 And he sent him vessels of gold for his service, and he gave him leave (g) to drink in gold, and to be in purple, & to have a chain of gold:

(g) As to wear purple, and to bare a crown, so to drink in gold cups, and to wear a gold chain, was proper to Kings, and to whom they gave license.

59 And he appointed Simon his brother governor from the borders of Tyre even to the coasts of Aegypt. 60 And Jonathas went forth, & walked through the cities beyond the river: and all the band of Syria gathered unto him to help him, and he came to Ascalon, & they met him honourably out of the city. 61 And he went from thence to Gaza: and they that were in Gaza shut in themselves: and he besieged it, & burnt the things that were round about the city, and he spoiled it. 62 And the men of Gaza besought Jonathas, and he gave them the right hand: and he took their sons for hostages, & sent them into Jerusalem: and he walked through the country even to Damascus. 63 And Jonathas heard that the princes of Demetrius prevaricated in Cades, which is in Galilee, with a great army meaning to remove him from the affairs of the kingdom: 64 and he went against them: but his brother Simon he left within the Province. 65 And Simon approached to Bethsura, and expugned it many days, and inclosed them. 66 And they requested of him (h) to take the right hands, and he gave it them: and he cast them out from thence, and took the city, & placed therein a garrison.

(h) It is an ancient ceremony in all nations, often mentioned in these Books, to confirm peace by giving each other the right hand.

67 And Jonathas and his camp approached to the water of Genesar, and before it was light they watched in the plain Asor. 68 And lo the camp of the aliens met him in the plain, and they laid embushments for him in the mountains: but he went against them. 69 And the embushments rose out of their places, & they joined battle. 70 And all fled that were on Jonathas' part, and (i) none was left of them, but Mathathias the son of Absolom, and Judas the son of Calphi, chief captain of the chivalry of the host.

(i) Only two captains remained, and with them some soldiers (as Iosephus writeth about 50.) for it is not to be thought that Ionathas would have returned to battle. v. 72. being but three men in all to begin a new assault.

71 And Jonathas rent his garments, and put earth upon his head, and prayed. 72 And Jonathas returned to them into battle, and he put them to flight, and they fought. 73 And they of his part that fled saw, and returned to him, and pursued with him even to Cades to their camp, and they came even thither. 74 And there fell of the aliens in that day three thousand men:

and Jonathas returned into Jerusalem.

CHAPTER XII.

Jonathas confirmeth league with the Romans and Spartiates, by letters: 19. with mention of letters received before. 24. By diligent guard he defendeth the country from the enemies' invasions, putting them to flight: 31. subdueth the Arabians, and returneth by Damascus (33. Simon prospering in other places.) fortifieth Jerusalem. 39. Finally is deceived by Tryphon. 48. and all his men are slain.

And Jonathas saw that the time helped him, he chose men & sent them to Rome, to establish and to renew amity with them: 2 and to (a) the Spartiates, & to other places he sent epistles according to the same tenure.

(a) Sparta the chief city of Lacedemonia called also Lacedemon, and Theramne.

3 And they went to Rome, and entered into the court, and said: Jonathas the high priest, and the nation of the Jews have sent us to renew the amity and society according as before. 4 And they gave them epistles unto them by place and place, to conduct them into the land of Juda with peace. 5 And this is a copy of the epistles which Jonathas wrote to the Spartiates:

6 JONATHAS the high Priest, and the ancients of the nation, and the Priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews, to the Spartiates (b) their brethren greeting.

(b) Spartians otherwise called Lacedemonians (by Iosephus and other writers) descended from Abraham, v. 21. and were in great league with the Jews.

7 Long ago were epistles sent to Onias the high-Priest from Arius who reigned with you, that you are our brethren, as the writing containeth, that here beneath followeth. 8 And Onias received the man that was sent with honour: and he received the epistles, wherein there was signification of the society and amity. 9 We whereas we needed none of these, having for our comfort the holy books, that are in our hands, 10 chose rather to send unto you to renew the fraternity, lest perhaps we be made aliens from you: for much time is passed, since you sent to us. 11 We therefore at all time without intermission in the solemn days, and the rest wherein we should, are mindful of you in the sacrifices, that we offer, and in the observances, as it is meet, and becometh to remember brethren. 12 We rejoice therefore of your glory. 13 But many tribulations have compassed us, and many battles, and the kings that are round about us, have impugned us. 14 We therefore would not be troublesome to you, nor to the rest our fellows & friends in these battles. 15 For we have had aid from heaven, and we are delivered, and our enemies are humbled. 16 We have chosen therefore Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater the son of Jason, and have sent to the Romans to renew with them the old amity and society. 17 We therefore have commanded them that they come unto you also, and salute you, and deliver you our epistles, concerning the renewing of our fraternity. 18 And now you shall do well in answering us to these things. 19 And this is (c) the rescript of the epistles, which he had sent to Onias:

(c) The Spartians had written this epistle before Onias writ to them, though it be here placed after.

20 ARIUS the king of the Spartians to Onias the grand Priest greeting. 21 It is found (d) in scripture of the Spartians, and the Jews, that they are brethren, & that they are of the stock of Abraham.

(d) There remained with the Spartiates old writs of genealogies, as Iosephus supposeth. li. 12. c. 5. & li. 13. c. 9.

22 And now since we understood these things, you do well in writing to us of your peace. 23 Yea and we have written again to you, Our cattle, and our possessions, are yours: and yours, ours. We therefore have commanded that these things be told you.

24 And Jonathas heard that the princes of Demetrius were come again with a great army more than before to fight against him. 25 And he went out from Jerusalem, & met them in the country of Amathis: for he gave them not space to enter into his country.

26 And he sent spies into their camp, and they returning reported that they appointed to come upon them in the night. 27 And when the sun was set, Jonathas commanded his men to watch, and to be in armour ready to fight all night, and he set watchmen round about the camp. 28 And the adversaries heard that Jonathas with his company was prepared to battle: & they feared & were afraid in their heart: and they kindled fires in their camp. 29 But Jonathas, & they that were with him, knew it not till the morning, and they saw light burning, 30 and Jonathas followed them, & overtook them not: for they had passed the river Eleutherus. 31 And Jonathas turned aside to the Arabians, that were called Zabadeans, & he struck them, & took the spoils of them. 32 And he joined, & came to Damascus, & walked through all that country. 33 But Simon went forth, and came even to Ascalon, and to the next holds, and he declined into Joppe, and took it. 34 (For he heard that they would deliver the hold to Demetrius' part) and he put a garrison there to keep it. 35 And Jonathas returned, and called together the ancients of the people, & he consulted with them to build fortresses in Jurie, 36 & to build the walls in Jerusalem, and to rear a mount of a great height between the castle and the city, to separate it from the city, that it might be alone, and they might neither buy nor sell: 37 And they came together to build the city: and the wall fell that was upon the torrent toward the rising of the sun, and he repaired it, which is called Caphetetha: 38 and Simon built Adiada in Sephela, and fortified it, and hanged on gates & locks. 39 And when (e) Tryphon had purposed to reign over Asia, and to take the crown, and to extend his hand against Antiochus the king:

(e) Morally in Tryphon is noted the practice of the devil: who intending to overthrow a King or a Kingdom, first seeketh to deceive the pastors, and to destroy them: especially by error or other sin. For (as S. Gregory teacheth. ho. 38.) if the pastor's life be corrupted, his doctrine will be contemned.

40 fearing lest perhaps Jonathas would not permit him, but would fight against him, he sought to take him and to kill him. And rising up he went into Bethsan. 41 And Jonathas went forth to meet him with forty thousand chosen men into battle, and came to Bethsan. 42 And Tryphon saw that Jonathas came with a great army, to extend his hands upon him: and he feared: 43 and received him with honour, & commanded him to all his friends, and gave him gifts: and he commanded his hosts to obey him, as himself. 44 And he said to Jonathas: Why hast thou troubled all the people, whereas we have no war? 45 And now send them back to their houses, but choose thee a few men, that may be with thee, and come with me to Ptolomais, and I will deliver it to thee, and the other holds, and the army, and all the overseers of the affairs, and returning I will depart: for therefore I came. 46 And Jonathas believed him, and did as he said: and dismissed his army, and they departed into the land of Juda: 47 but he retained with him three thousand men: of whom he sent back two thousand into Galilee, and a thousand came with him. 48 But as Jonathas entered into Ptolemais, they of Ptolemais shut the gates of the city, and they took him, and all that had entered with him they slew with the sword. 49 And Tryphon sent an army and horsemen into Galilee, and into the great plain to destroy all Jonathas' fellows. 50 But they when they understood that Jonathas was taken, & was perished, and all that were with him, they encouraged themselves, and went forth ready to battle. 51 And these that had pursued, seeing that the matter stood upon their life, they returned. 52 But they came all with peace into the land of Juda. And they lamented Jonathas, & them that were with him exceedingly: and Israel mourned with great mourning. 53 And all the heathen that were round about them, sought to destroy them, for they said: 54 They have no prince, and helper: now therefore let us expugn them, and take away from men the memory of them.

CHAPTER XIII.

Simon exhorteth the people to defend themselves, and religion: 7. is made general captain. 14. Tryphon demandeth an hundred talents of silver, and hostages for Jonathas, 17. which are sent (to satisfy the people.) Tryphon receiveth the ransom; 23. killeth Jonathas, and his sons. 25. Simon erecteth a memory to his parents and brethren. 31. Tryphon murdereth his young King. 33. Simon fortifieth the country, obtaineth peace, and liberties of Demetrius: 42. subdueth the city Gaza, and the rebellious castle within Jerusalem.

And (a) Simon heard that Tryphon gathered a very great army, to come into the land of Juda, and to destroy it.

(a) Simon the fourth general captain of the Machabees, & high-priest excelled his brethren in wisdom, by the testimony of his father, c. 2. v. 65.

2 Seeing that the people was in dread, and in fear, he went up to Jerusalem, and assembled the people:
3 and exhorting he said: You know what great battles I and my brethren, and the house of my father have made for the laws, and the holies, and the distresses that we have seen: 4 by reason of these are all my brethren perished for Israel, and I only am left. 5 And now let it not fall to me to spare my life in all time of tribulation: for I am not better than my brethren. 6 I will (b) avenge therefore my nation and the holies, our children also, and wives: because all the heathen are gathered together to destroy us of enmity.

(b) He undertook by all his endeavour to defend and deliver his nation from danger and to restore their former liberty.

7 And the spirit of the people was kindled as soon as they heard these words: 8 and they answered with a loud voice, saying: Thou art our captain in the place of Judas, and Jonathas thy brother: 9 fight thou our battle, and we will do all things whatsoever thou shalt say to us. 10 And gathering together all the men of war, he hastened to finish all the walls of Jerusalem, and fortified it round about. 11 And he sent Jonathas the son of Absalom, and with him a new army into Joppe, and they that were in the castle being cast out, he remained there. 12 And Tryphon removed from Ptolemais with a great army, to come into the land of Juda, and Jonathas with him in ward. 13 But Simon pitched in Addus against the face of the plain. 14 And as Tryphon understood that Simon was risen in the place of his brother Jonathas: and that he would join battle with him, he sent legates to him, 15 saying: For the silver, that thy brother Jonathas owed in the king's account, for the affairs which he had, we have stayed him. 16 And now send an hundred talents of silver, and his two sons for hostages, that being dismissed he fly not from us, and we will release him. 17 And Simon knew that with guile he spake with him, (c) nevertheless he commanded the silver, and the children to be given: lest he should get great enmity with the people of Israel, saying:

(c) Simon being wise chose the less evil, and less danger. For if he had not sent that was demanded, it was very like and almost certain, that Ionathas should be slain, and it would have been imputed to Simon, that he had not taken just care of his brother's life, whereby the people would have been alienated from him, and perhaps have revolted from him, and also from religion. S. Tho. in hunc locum.

18 Because he sent not the silver, and the children, therefore is he perished. 19 And he sent the children, and the hundred talents: and he lied, and dismissed not Jonathas. 20 And after these things came Tryphon within the country, to destroy it, and they compassed by the way that leadeth to Addar, and Simon, & his camp marched into every place whither soever they went. 21 And they that were in the castle sent legates to Tryphon, that he should hasten to come through the desert, and should send them victuals. 22 And Tryphon prepared all the horsemen to come that night: but there was an exceeding great snow, and he came not into the country of Galaad. 23 And when he had approached to Bascama, he slew Jonathas and his sons there. 24 And Tryphon returned, and went into his country. 25 And Simon sent and took the bones of Jonathas his brother, and buried them in Modin the city of his fathers. 26 And all Israel lamented him with great lamentation: and they mourned for him many days. 27 And Simon (d) built over the sepulchre of his father and of his brethren a building high to behold, of stone polished behind and before:

(d) This was not vain glory, but true glory to keep memory of so great virtue: thereby to stir up others to imitation. He that loveth honour (saith S. Augustin. li. cont. Secundin. c. 17.) imitateth God. but humble souls desire honour in God, proud men will be honoured more than God. or without God. O how many Epitaphs are of wicked men, nothing else but perpetual monuments of their ambition, vanity, injustice, cruelty, & other vices! But those that are of true virtues are to God's more honour: the author of all virtues.

28 and he erected seven spires one against one, to his father and mother, and to his four brethren: 29 and about these he set great pillars: and upon the pillars armour for an eternal memory: and by the armour ships graven, which might be seen of all that sailed the sea. 30 This is the sepulchre, that he made in Modin even until this day. 31 But Tryphon when he journeyed with Antiochus the king, being but a young man, by guile he slew him. 32 And he reigned in his place, & put the crown of Asia upon himself, and made a great plague in the land. 33 And Simon built the fortresses of Jurie, fortifying them with high towers, & great walls, and gates, and locks: and he put victuals in the fortresses. 34 And Simon chose men & sent to Demetrius the king, that he would make a release to the country: because all Tryphon's acts had been done by spoil. 35 And Demetrius the king according to these words answered him, and wrote an epistle in this manner: 36 KING Demetrius to Simon the High-Priest, and the friend of kings, and to the ancients, and to the nation of the Jews, greeting. 37 The crown of gold, and [1]the bahem, which you sent, we have received: and we are ready to make with you great peace, and to write to the king's chief officers to release you the things that we have released.

[1] * a precious chain.

38 For whatsoever things we have decreed unto you, stand in force. The holds that you have built, let them be to you. 39 We remit also the ignorances, and offences even until this day, and the crown which you owed: and if any other thing was tributary in Jerusalem, now let it not be tributary. 40 And if any of you be fit to be enrolled among ours, let them be enrolled and let there be peace between us. 41 In the year an hundreth seventy was the yoke of the Gentiles taken away from Israel. 42 And the people of Israel began to write in the tables, and public instruments. The first year under Simon the High-Priest, the great Duke, and the Prince of the Jews: 43 In these days Simon approached to Gaza, and compassed it with camps, and he made engines, and set them to the city, and he struck one tower, and took it. 44 And they that were within the engine, brake out into the city: and there was made a great stir in the city. 45 And they that were in the city went up with their wives and children upon the wall their coats rent, and they cried with a loud voice, desiring of Simon that the right hands might be given them, 46 and they said: Requite us not according to our malices, but according to thy mercies. 47 And Simon yielding destroyed them not: but (e)yet he cast them out of the city, and cleansed the houses, wherein there had been idols, and then he entered into it with hymns blessing our Lord:

(e) By how much more, that mercy is admixed with justice, so that justice be not destroyed, and that religion be advanced, the better it pleaseth God, and edifieth the well disposed.

48 and all filthiness being cast out of it, he placed in it men that should do the law: and he fortified it, and made it his habitation. 49 But they that were in the castle of Jerusalem, were prohibited to go out and to come into the country, and to buy and sell: and they were exceeding hungry, and many of them perished for famine, 50 and they cried to Simon to receive the right hands, and he gave it them: and he cast them out from thence, and cleansed the castle from the contaminations: 51 and they entered into it the three and twentieth day of the second month, the year an hundreth seventy one, with praise, and boughs of palm trees, and harps, and cymbals, and nables, and hymns, and canticles, because the great enemy was destroyed out of Israel. 52 And he ordained that every year these days should be kept with gladness. 53 And he fortified the mount of the temple, that was by the castle, and he dwelt there himself, & they that were with him.
54 And Simon saw (f)John his son, that he was a valiant man of war: and he made him captain of all the hosts: and he dwelt in Gazara.

(f) This John Hyrcanus defended the country against invaders. ch. 16.

CHAPTER XIV.

Demetrius invading Media is taken captive: 4. and Jury is in peace. 14. Simon cherisheth the godly, and punisheth the wicked: 16. receiveth friendly letters from the Romans, and Spartiates: 20. Whereof the copy is recited: 24. sendeth a legate to Rome with a present. 25. And is established high priest, and governor by public consent.

In the year an hundreth seventy two, king Demetrius gathered his army, and went into Media to get him aids to expugn Tryphon. 2 And Arsaces the king of Persia, and Media heard, that Demetrius was entered his confines, and he sent one of his princes to take him alive. 3 And he went, and struck the camp of Demetrius: and took him, and brought him to Arsaces, and he put him into ward. 4 And (a) all the land of Juda was at rest all the days of Simon, and he sought good to his nation: & his power, and his glory pleased them all days.

(a) Simon had now governed the people two years, beginning with great difficulties, but henceforth enjoyed peace till Antiochus Sedetes brake the league, & invaded Jury. ch. 15. v. 27. & 39.

5 And with all his glory he took Joppe for an haven, and made it an entrance unto the isles of the sea. 6 And he enlarged the borders of his nation, and obtained the country: 7 And gathered a great (b) captivity, and had dominion of Gazara, and of Bethsura, and of the castle: and took away the uncleanness out of it, and there was none that resisted him.

(b) He reduced many Jews from captivity.

8 And every man tilled his land with peace: and the land of Juda yielded her fruits, and the trees of the fields their fruit. 9 The ancients sat all in the streets, and treated of the good things of the land, and the youngmen did on them glory, and the stoles of war. 10 And he gave victuals to the cities, and he appointed them that they should be vessels of munition, till the name of his glory was renowned even to the end of the earth. 11 He made peace upon the land, and Israel rejoiced with great joy. 12 And every man sat under his vine, and under his figtree: and there was none to make them afraid. 13 There was none left that impugned them upon the earth: kings were discomfited in those days. 14 And he confirmed all the humble of his people, and sought the law, & took away every wicked and evil man: 15 he glorified the holies, and multiplied the vessels of the holy places. 16 And it was heard at Rome that Jonathas was dead, & even unto the Spartiates: and they were very sorry. 17 But as they heard that Simon his brother was made the High-Priest in his place, and he obtained all the country, and the cities therein; 18 they wrote to him in brazen tables, to renew the amities and society, which they had made with Judas, & with Jonathas his brethren. 19 And they were read in the sight of the Church in Jerusalem. And this is a copy of the epistles, that the Spartiates sent. 20 THE PRINCES and (c) the cities of the Spartians to Simon the grand Priest, & to the ancients, and the Priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews their brethren, greeting.

(c) Sparta being the chief city of Lacedemonia, had many cities subject & depending as upon their Metropolitan.

21 The legates, that were sent to our people, have told us of your glory, and honour, and joy: and we rejoiced at their entrance. 22 And we wrote that, which was said of them in the counsels of the people, thus: Numenius the son of Antiochus, and Antipater the son of Jason, legates of the Jews, came to us, renewing with us old amity. 23 And it pleased the people to receive the men gloriously, and to put a copy of their words in the severed book of the people, to be for a memory to the people of the Spartiates. And a copy of these we have written to Simon the grand Priest.

24 And after these things Simon sent Numenius to Rome, having a great buckler of gold, of the weight of thousand pounds, to establish amity with them. But when the people of Rome had heard (d)

(d) When peace was established in all Jury, and friendship confirmed with the Romans, & Lacedemonians, the whole nation of the Jews in gratitude towards Simon, who only now remained of Mathathias' sons, confirmed him in the office of high-priest perpetually or for ever, v. 41. that is, during his life, & to his progeny, v. 49.

25 these words, they said: What thanks-giving shall we render to Simon & his children? 26 For he hath restored his brethren, and hath expugned the enemies of Israel from them: and they decreed him liberty, & registered it in tables of brass, & put it in titles in mount Sion. 27 And this is a copy of the writing. THE EIGHTEENTH day of the month Elul, in the year an hundreth seventy two, the third year under Simon the grand-Priest in Asaramel, 28 in a great assembly of the Priests, and of the people & the Princes of the nation, and the ancients of the country, these things were notified: that there have often been battles made in our country. 29 But Simon the son of Mathathias of the children of Jarib, & his brethren put themselves in danger, and resisted the adversaries of their nation, that their holies and law might stand: and with great glory have they glorified their nation. 30 And Jonathas gathered together his nation, & was made their grand Priest, & he was laid to his people. 31 And their enemies would conculcate, and destroy their country, and extend their hands against the holies. 32 Then Simon, resisted and fought for his nation, and bestowed much money, and armed the valiant men of his nation, and gave them wages: 33 and he fortified the cities of Jurie, and Bethsura, that was in the borders of Jurie, where the armour of the enemies was before: and he placed there Jews for a garrison.
34 And he fortified Joppe, which was by the sea: and Gazara, which is in the borders of Azotus, wherein the enemies dwelt before, and he placed Jews there: and whatsoever was fit for their correption, he put in them. 35 And the people saw the fact of Simon, and the glory that he meant to do to his nation, and they made him their duke, and grand Priest, for that he had done all these things, and for the justice, and faith, which he kept to his nation, and for that he sought by all means to advance his people. 36 And in his days it prospered in his hands, so that the heathen were taken away out of their country, and they that were in the city of David in Jerusalem in the castle, out of which they came forth, and contaminated all things that were round about the holies, and they brought great plague upon chastity: 37 and he placed in it men of Jurie to the defence of the country, and of the city, and he raised the walls of Jerusalem. 38 And king Demetrius appointed him the high priesthood. 39 According to these things he made him his friend, and glorified him with great glory. 40 For he heard that the Jews were called of the Romans, friends, & fellows, & brethren, & that they received Simon's legates gloriously: 41 and that the Jews, and their Priests consented that he should be their duke, & high-Priest (e) for ever, till there rise the faithful Prophet:

(e) The high-Priesthood continued in this family of the Machabees until Herod took it from them, selling it for money, and then shortly came Christ the faithful Prophet.

42 and that he be duke over them, and that he should have the care of the holies, and that he should appoint rulers over their works, and over the country, and over the armour, and over the holds. 43 And that he have care of the holies: and that he be heard of all, and that all writings in the country be written in his name: and that he be clothed with purple and gold: 44 and that it be not lawful for any of the people, and of the Priests to disannul any of these, and to gainsay those things, that are said of him, or to call together an assembly in the country without him: & to be clothed with purple, & to wear a chain of gold. 45 But he that shall do beside these things, or shall make frustrate any of these, he shall be guilty. 46 And it pleased all the people to appoint Simon, and to do according to these words. 47 And Simon took it upon him, and it pleased him to execute high Priest-hood, and to be duke & prince of the nation of the Jews, and of the Priests, and to be chief over all. 48 And this writing they bade them put in tables of brass, and to set them in the circuit of the holies, in a famous place: 49 and to put a copy thereof in the treasury, that Simon may have it, and his children.

CHAPTER XV.

Antiochus by his letters granteth great privileges to Simon: 10. pursueth Tryphon, and environeth him. 15. The Romans commend the Jews to other nations. 25. Antiochus refusing aid sent by Simon, breaketh league, 30. and exacteth certain cities, and tribute. 37. Tryphon escapeth, and other of the King's forces invade and spoil Jury.

And king Antiochus (a) the son of Demetrius sent epistles from the isles of the sea to Simon the priest, and prince of the nation of the Jews, and to all the nation:

(a) This Antiochus Sedetes son of Demetrius Soter, was brother to Demetrius the second, who was now captive in Persia. ch. 14. v. 3.

2 and they contained this tenure: KING Antiochus to Simon the grand-Priest, and to the nation of the Jews greeting. 3 Because certain pestilent men have obtained the kingdom of our fathers, and I mean to challenge the kingdom, and to restore it as it was before: and I have chosen a great army, and have made ships of war. 4 And I will march through the country, that I may take revenge of them, that have destroyed our country, and that have made many cities desolate in my realm. 5 Now therefore I establish unto thee all the oblations, which all the kings before me remitted unto thee, & what other gifts soever they remitted thee: 6 and I permit thee to make a coin of thy own money in thy country: 7 and Jerusalem to be holy and free, and all the armour that is made, and the fortresses which thou hast built, and which thou dost hold, let them remain to thee. 8 And all that is due to the king, and the things that are to be the king's hereafter, from this present and for all time, they are remitted to thee. 9 And when we shall have obtained our kingdom, we will glorify thee, and thy nation, & the temple with great glory, so that your glory shall be made manifest in all the earth. 10 In the year an hundreth seventy four went forth Antiochus into the land of his fathers, and all the hosts assembled unto him, so that there were few left with Tryphon. 11 And Antiochus the king pursued him, and he came to Dora flying by the sea coast. 12 For he knew that evils were heaped upon him, and the army forsook him. 13 And Antiochus camped upon Dora with an hundred twenty thousand men of war, & eight thousand horsemen: 14 and he compassed the city, and the ships approached to the sea: & they vexed the city by land & by sea, and suffered none to come in, or to go out. 15 And (b) Numenius came, and they that had been with him, from the city of Rome, having epistles written to kings, and countries, wherein were contained these words:

(b) This legate was sent almost two years before to Rome ch. 14. v. 24. and now brought letters not only to the Jews but also to sundry kings and peoples in their behalf.

16 LUCIUS the Consul of the Romans, to Ptolemee the king greeting. 17 The Ambassadors of the Jews our friends came to us, renewing the old amity, and society, being sent from Simon the prince of the priests, and the people of the Jews. 18 And they brought also a buckler of gold of a thousand pounds. 19 It hath pleased us therefore to write to the kings, & countries, that they do them no harm, nor impugn them, & their cities, and their countries: and that they give no aid to them that fight against them. 20 And it hath seemed good unto us to take the buckler of them. 21 If therefore any pestilent men are fled out of their country to you, deliver them to Simon the Prince of the Priests, that he may punish them according to their law. 22 These self same things were written to Demetrius the king, and to Attalus, and to Ariarathes, and to Arsaces, 23 and into all countries: and to Lampsaces, & to the Spartiates, and to Delus, and to Myndus, and to Sicyon, & to Caria, and to Samus, & Pamphilia, and Lycia, and Alicarnassus, and Coo, &

Siden, & Aradon, and Rhodes, and Phaselis, & Gortyna, and Gnidus, and Cypres, & Cyrenee. 24 And a copy thereof they wrote to Simon the prince of the priests and people of the Jews. 25 But king Antiochus moved his camp unto Dora the second time, setting hands always upon it, and making engines: & he shut up Tryphon, that he could not go forth. 26 And Simon sent unto him two thousand chosen men for aid, and silver, & gold, and aboundance of furniture. 27 And he would not take them, but brake all things that he covenanted with him before, and alienated himself from him. 28 And he sent to him Athenobius one of his friends, to treat with him, saying: You hold Joppe, and Gazara, and the castle, that is in Jerusalem, cities of my kingdom: 29 their borders you have made desolate, and you have made a great plague in the land, and have ruled in many places in my kingdom. 30 Now therefore deliver the cities, that you have taken, and the tributes of the places, wherein you have ruled without the borders of Jury. 31 But if not, give you for them five hundred talents of silver, and for the destruction, that you have made, & the tributes of cities other five hundred talents: but if not, we will come and expugn you. 32 And Athenobius the king's friend came into Jerusalem, and saw the glory of Simon, and his magnificence in gold, and silver, and furniture aboundant, and he was astonished, & told him the king's words. 33 And Simon answered him, and said to him: Neither have we taken other men's land, neither do we hold that is other men's: but the inheritance of our fathers, which was a certain season unjustly possessed of our enemies. 34 But we having opportunity challenge the inheritance of our fathers. 35 For concerning Joppe, and Gazara, that thou complainest (c) they made a great plague among the people, and in our country: for these (c) we given an hundred talents. And Athenobius answered him not a word.

(c) Simon subdued these two towns because they annoyed the Jews: but because they otherwise pertained not to Jury he payed for them an hundred talents. (c) ↑

36 But with anger returning to the king, he reported unto him these words, and the glory of Simon, and all things that he saw, and the king was wrath with great anger. 37 And Tryphon fled by ship to Orthosias 38 And the king appointed Cendebaeus captain by the sea coast, and gave him an army of foot men and horsemen. 39 And he commanded him to move the camp against the face of Jurie: and he commanded him to build (d) Cedron, and to fortify the gates of the city, and to conquer the people. But the king pursued Tryphon.

(d) By the river of Cedron (over which David passed 2. Reg. 15. v. 23. and our Saviour. Ioa. 18.) a city was now built, or rather repaired being decayed before.

40 And Cendebaeus came to Jamnia, and began to provoke the people, and to conculcate Jurie, & to take the people captive, and to kill, and to build Cedron. 41 And he placed there horsemen, and an host: that going forth they might walk by the way of Jurie, as the king appointed him.

CHAPTER XVI.

Simon sendeth two of his sons to fight against Cendebaeus, 8. whom they overthrow. 11. Ptolomee Simon's son in law, inviting him to a feast treacherously killeth him, and his sons Judas and Mathathias: 19. sendeth also men to kill John, but he being warned of the treason, killeth them: 23. and succeedeth to his father in the government.

And (a) John went up from Gazara, and told Simon his father what Cendebaeus did among their people.

(a) After Simon's death, his eldest son John, surnamed Hyrcanus, succeeded him in government spiritual and temporal. v. 24.

2 And Simon called his two elder sons, Judas and John, and he said to them: I and my brethren, and the house of my father, have expugned the enemies of Israel from our youth even to this day: and it hath prospered in our hands to deliver Israel oftentimes.

3 And now I am old, but be you in place of me, and my brethren, and going forth fight for our nation: and the help from heaven be with you. 4 And he chose out of the country twenty thousand fighting men and horsemen, and they went forth to Cendebaeus: and they slept in Modin. 5 And they arose in the morning, and went into the plain field: and lo a mighty great army coming to meet them of foot men, and horsemen, & there was a running river between them. 6 And he camped against the face of them, himself and his people, and he saw the people fearful to pass through the torrent, and he passed through first: and the men saw him, and they passed over after him. 7 And he divided the people, and the horsemen in the midst of the footmen: and the horsemen of the adversaries were exceeding many. 8 And they sounded with the holy trumpets: and Cendebaeus was put to flight, and his camp: and there fell many of them wounded, & the rest fled into the hold. 9 Then was Judas^ John's brother wounded: But John pursued them, till he came to Cedron, which he built: 10 and they fled even to the towers, that were in the fields of Azotus, and he burnt them with fire. And there fell of them two thousand men, and he returned into Jurie in peace. 11 And Ptolomee the son of Abobus was appointed captain in the plain of Jericho, and he had much silver, & gold.
12 For he was the son in law of the high-Priest.
13 And his heart was exalted, and he would gain the country, and he purposed treachery against Simon and his sons to dispatch them. 14 And Simon walking through the cities, that were in the country of Jurie, and being careful of them, went down into Jericho, he and Mathathias his son, and Judas, the year an hundreth seventy seven, the eleventh month: this is the month Sabath. 15 And the son of Abobus received them with guile into a little fortress, that is called Doch, which he built, and he made them a great feast, and hid men there. 16 And when Simon was (b) inebriated & his sons, Ptolomee arose with his company, and they took their weapons, and entered into the feast, and slew him, and his two sons, and certain of his servants.

(b) He beginning to govern in the year 170. ch. 13. v. 41. 42. had difficulties the first & last years, in the rest they had peace.
To be inebriated signifieth no more but to be replenished with drink competently, or aboundantly, without excess. As Psal. 64. v. 10. the earth inebriated, and v. 11. rivers inebriated . That is, abundantly replenished without excess. S. August. q. 144. in Gen.

17 And he did great deceit in Israel, and rendered evil for good. 18 And Ptolomee wrote these things, and sent to the king that he should send him an army for aid, and he would deliver him the country, and their cities, and tributes. 19 And he sent others into Gazara to dispatch John: and to the tribunes he sent epistles, that they should come to him, and he would give them silver, and gold, and gifts. 20 And he sent others to take Jerusalem, and the mount of the temple. 21 And one running before told John in Gazara, that his father was perished, and his brethren, and that he hath sent that thou also mayst be slain. 22 But as he heard it, he was exceedingly afraid: and he apprehended the men, that came to destroy him, and he slew them: for he knew that they sought to destroy him. 23 And the rest concerning the words of John, and his battles, and the valiant acts, which he did manfully, and the building of the walls, which he built, and the things that he did:
24 lo these are written in (c) the book of the days of his priesthood, from the time that he was made prince of the priests after his father.[1]

(c) Out of the book here mentioned some think the fourth book of Machabees was translated. See Sixtus Senen. li. 1. Biblioth. pag. 37.[1] * li. 2. c. 1. v. 1.

THE SECOND BOOK OF MACHABEES.

CHAPTER I.

The Jews in Jerusalem write to the Jews in Aegypt, 7. signifying that they had writ before of many afflictions past: 9. and now write again, rendering thanks to God for their delivery from Antiochus: 18. exhorting their brethren to keep the feast of Scenopegia: reciting the miracle of water returning into fire: 24. when Nehemias prayed: 33. and that the king built a temple in memory thereof.

To[1][2] the brethren, the Jews that are throughout Aegypt, the brethren, the Jews that are in Jerusalem, and that are in the country of Jurie, send health, & good peace.

[1]E[2]The Appendix concerning two epistles of the Jews was added to the history of the first book by him that writ this second.

2 God do good to you, and remember his testament, that he spake to Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful servants: 3 and give he unto you all an heart to worship him, and to do his will with a great heart, and a willing mind. 4 Open he your heart in his law, and in his precepts, and make peace. 5 Hear he your prayers, and be he reconciled unto you, neither forsake he you in the evil time. 6 And now here we are praying for you. 7 When Demetrius reigned, in the year one hundreth sixty nine, (a)we Jews wrote unto you in the tribulation, and violence, that came upon us in these years, since Jason revolted from the holy land, and from the kingdom.[1]

(a) As they had written before in their afflictions, so now they exhort their brethren to be thankful to God, and amongst other means to shew their grateful mind by celebrating the feast of dedication of the new altar.[1] li. 2. c. 4. v. 7.

8 They burnt the gate and shed innocent blood: and we prayed to our Lord, & were heard, & we offered sacrifice, and fine flour, and lighted the lamps, and set forth there breads. 9 And now celebrate ye the days of Scenopegia of the month Casleu. 10 In the year one hundreth eighty eight, the people that is at Jerusalem, and in Jurie, and the senate, and (b)Judas, to Aristobolus the master of Ptolomee the king, who is of the stock of the anointed Priests, and to those Jews that are in Aegypt, health and welfare.

(b) It seemeth that either this Judas was the first son of John Hyrcanus (otherwise called Aristobolus) or rather Judas Essenus of whom, ch. 2. v. 14. and of whom Iosephus writeth. li. 13. c. 19.

11 Being delivered by God out of great dangers, we give him thanks magnifically, as who have fought against such a king. 12 For he made them swarm out of Persis, that have fought against us, & the holy city. 13 For when he was captain in Persis, & with him a very great army, he fell in the temple of Nania, being deceived by the counsel of Naneae's priests. 14 For Antiochus, and his friends came to the place as to dwell with her, & that he might receive much money under the title of a dowry. 15 And when Naneae's priests had laid it forth, and he with a few was entered within the compass of the temple, they shut the temple, 16 when Antiochus was entered in: & a secret entrance of the temple being opened, casting stones they struck the duke, and them that were with him, and divided them in pieces, and cutting off their heads they threw them forth. 17 Blessed be the God in all things, who hath delivered up the impious. 18 We therefore meaning to keep the purification of the temple the five and twentieth day of the month Casleu, thought it necessary to signify unto you: that you also may keep the day of Scenopegia, and the day of the fire that was given, when Nehemias, after the temple was built & the altar, offered sacrifice. 19 For when our fathers were carried (c) into Persis, the Priests that then were the worshippers of God, taking the fire from the altar, hid it secretly in a valley where there was a pit deep, & dry, & therein they saved it, so that the place was unknown to all men.

(c) Chaldea being near to Persis, is sometimes comprehended under the same name so Mamertinus, in Panagerica ad Iulia, reciteth Tigris and Euphrates amongst the rivers of Persis, & S. Chrysostom. ho. 6. in Math. saith the Jews were delivered from captivity of Persis, meaning Babylon.

20 But when many years had passed, and it pleased God that Nehemias should be sent of the king of Persis: he sent the nephews of those Priests, that had hid it, to seek out the fire: and as they told us, they found not fire, but (d) thick water.

(d) In this fire were four miracles, First it was not changed into air but into water. v. 20.

21 And he bade them draw, and bring unto him: and the sacrifices, that were laid on, the Priest Nehemias commanded to be sprinkled with the same water, and the wood, and the things that were laid thereupon.

22 And as this was done, and the time was come that the sun shone forth, which before was in a cloud, there (e) was kindled a great fire, so that all marveled.

(e) Secondly this water being cast on the hosts of sacrifice was kindled as fire v. 22.

23 And all the Priests made prayer, whilst the sacrifice was consuming, Jonathas beginning, and the rest answering. 24 And the prayer of Nehemias was in this manner: O LORD God creator of all, dreadful, & strong, just, & merciful, which only art the good King, 25 only giver, only just, and omnipotent, and eternal: which deliverest Israel from all evil, which madest the fathers elect, and didst sanctify them.

26 Receive the sacrifice for all thy people Israel, & keep thy part, and sanctify it. 27 Gather together our dispersion, deliver them, that serve the Gentiles, and regard the contemned & abhorred: that the Gentiles may know that thou art our God. 28 Afflict them that oppress us, and that do contumely in pride.

29 Place thy people in thy holy place, as Moyses said.

30 And the Priests sang hymns, till the sacrifice was consumed. 31 And when the sacrifice was consumed, of the rest of the water Nehemias commanded the greater stones to be throughly washed.

32 Which thing as it was done, out of them (f) was kindled a flame: but (g) by light also, that shined from the altar, it was consumed.

(f) Thirdly, it burned also being cast upon stones. v. 32.
(g) Fourth, it was extinguished by the light that came from the altar. v. 32.

33 And as the thing was made manifest, it was told the king of the Persians, that in the place, wherein those Priests that were transported, had hid fire, there appeared water, with the which Nehemias, and they that were with him, purified the sacrifices.

34 And the king considering, and diligently examining the matter, made a temple for it, that he might approve that which was done. 35 And when he had approved it, he gave to the Priests many good things, and diverse gifts, and taking them with his own hand, he gave to them. 36 And Nehemias called this place (h) Nephthar, which is interpreted purification. But it is called with many Nephi.

(h) Nephthar, signifieth delivery, which is the effect of purification, for the temple & other holy things being purified, were delivered from profane use.

CHAPTER II.

Holy fire, and the Book of the law were conserved by Jeremy the Prophet, in the transmigration into Babylon. 4. Likewise the Tabernacle of Moyses, the Ark, and Altar of incense in a secret place. 8. As Moyses had dedicated the Tabernacle, and Salomon the Temple: 14. so Judas Machabeus cleansing the Temple, and making a new Altar, instituted a feast of the Dedication thereof. 20. The Preface of the Author abridging the history of the Machabees written by Jason in five Books.

And it is found in the descriptions of Jeremie the Prophet, that he commanded them that went in transmigration, to take (a) the fire, as it was signified, and as he commanded them that were carried away in transmigration.

(a) S. Ambrose. li. 3. c. 14. Offic. writeth at large of this miracle.

2 And he gave them a law that they should not forget the precepts of our Lord, and that they should not err in their minds, seeing the idols of gold, & silver, & the ornaments of them. 3 And saying other like things, he exhorted them that they would not remove the law from their heart. 4 [1] And it was in the same writing, how the Prophet commanded by the divine answer made to him, that (b) the tabernacle, and the ark should follow in company with him, till he came forth into the mount in which Moyses ascended, and saw the inheritance of God.

[1] Epis. Iere. Baruc. 6. (b) Neither the tabernacle nor the ark were carried away by Nabuchodonosor, but were preserved by some means: and most like (besides the authority of this scripture) by Jeremy the prophet, who had special favour of the Babylonians, when Jerusalem was taken. Iere. 39. v. 11.

5 And Jeremie coming thither found a place of a cave: and he brought the tabernacle, and the ark, & the altar of incense in thither and stopped the door. 6 And there came certain withal, that followed, to mark the place for themselves: and they could not find it. 7 And as Jeremy understood it, blaming them he said: that the place shall be unknown, till God gather together the congregation of the people, and become propitious: 8 [1] and then our Lord will shew these things, and the majesty of our Lord shall appear, and there shall be a cloud as it was also made manifest to Moyses, and as when Salomon prayed that the place might be sanctified to the great God, he did manifest these things.

[1] Exo. 40.
3. Reg. 8.

9 For he handled wisdom magnifically: as having wisdom, did he offer the sacrifice of the dedication, and of the consummation of the temple. 10 As Moyses also prayed to our Lord, and as Salomon prayed, and fire came down from heaven, and consumed the holocaust. 11 And Moyses said: Because that which was for sin, was not eaten, it was consumed. [1]

[1] Levit. 9. v. 24.

12 In like manner Salomon also eight days celebrated the dedication. 13 And these self same things were put in the descriptions and commentaries of Nehemias: & after what sort he making a library gathered together Books of the Prophets, and of David, and the epistles of the kings, and concerning the donaries. 14 And in like manner (c) Judas also such things as were fallen away by the war that happened to us, gathered them all together, and they are with us.

(c) This seemeth to be the same Judas Essenus who with others writ this epistle. ch. 1. v. 10.

15 If therefore you desire these things, send some that may fetch them unto you. 16 We therefore meaning to keep the purification have written unto you: You shall do well then, if you keep these days. 17 And God that hath delivered his people, and rendered the inheritance to all, the kingdom, and the priesthood, and the sanctification, 18 as he promised in the law, we hope that he will quickly have mercy upon us, and will gather us together from under heaven into the holy place. 19 For he hath delivered us out of great perils, and hath purged the place. [1]

[1] * li. 2. c. 15. v. 38.

20 [1] (d) Concerning Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, and of the purification of the great temple, and of the dedication of the altar,

[1] A (d) After the author had written this Appendix to the former Book, he resolved also to add an abridgement of the whole history, whereunto he maketh this Preface, signifying the matter whereof he will write. v. 20. in what manner. v. 24. and why, v. 25. avouching his diligence. v. 26. with brevity. v. 29.

21 Yea and of the battles that pertain to Antiochus the Noble, and his son Eupator: 22 and of the apparitions, that were made from heaven to them, that did manfully for the Jews, so that being few they revenged the whole country, and put to flight the barbarous multitude: 23 and repaired the most famous temple in all the world, and delivered the city, and the laws that were abolished, were restored, our Lord with all clemency being made propitious unto them. 24 Also the things which by Jason the Cyrenean are comprised in five Books, we have attempted to abridge in one volume. 25 For considering the multitude of Books, & (e) the difficulty to them, that will attempt the narrations of histories, because of the multitude of matters:

(e) God assisting the writers of divine histories, doth not always deliver them from labour in seeking to know the same of such as knew particular things. So S. Luke writ the Gospel having diligently attained to all things. Luc. 1. v. 3.

26 We have been careful for them that are willing to read, that there might be delectation of the mind: and for the studious, that they may more easily commit it to memory: and that profit might ensue to all that read it. 27 And to our own selves indeed, which have taken upon us this work, to make an abridgment, we have taken in hand no easy labour, yea rather a business full of watching and sweat. 28 As they that prepare a feast, & seek to condescend to other men's will: for many men's sakes we do willingly sustain the labour. 29 The [1] verity certes concerning every particular^ leaving to the authors, & ourselves according to the form that is given, studying to be brief.

[1] * exact declaration.

30 For as the builder of a new house must have care of the whole building: but he that hath the care to paint must seek out the things that are apt for garnishing: so must it be esteemed also in us. 31 For to gather together the understanding, to order the speech, and curiously to discuss every particular part, agreeth to the author of an history: 32 but to pursue the brevity of speech, and to avoid the exact declarations of things, is to be granted to him that abridgeth. 33 From hence then will we begin the narration: of the preface let it be sufficient to have said thus much: for it is a foolish thing before the history to flow over, and in the history to be short. [1]

CHAPTER III.

When Jerusalem was in peace, and good order, by the care of Onias high Priest, and King Seleucus favoured pious works, 4. Simon a wicked churchwarden, betrayeth the treasure of the Sanctuary: 7. Whereupon Heliodorus sent by the King, and after courteous entertainment, declaring that he must carry all the money to the King, is resisted by Onias with others, devoutly commending the cause to God. 23. He nevertheless attempting the sacrilege, is terrified by a vision, sore beaten, and in desperate misery. 31. By Onias' sacrifice and prayers, is restored to health: 31. and returning home confesseth the power of God. [1]

[1] The first part.
The persecution of the Church by Antiochus.

Therefore [1] when the holy (a) city was inhabited in [2] all peace, [3] the laws also as yet were very well kept, because of Onias [4] the high Priest his piety, and mind that hated evils,

[1] C (a) Three things make a common wealth to be in good state. [2] 1. Good agreement of principal men amongst themselves, & with the commonality. [3] 2. Exact observation of good laws: [4] 3. And eminent virtue of the supreme governor with exercise of piety and hate of sins.

2 it came to pass that kings also themselves, and princes esteemed the place worthy of high honour, & glorified the temple with very great gifts: 3 so that Seleucus the king of Asia of his revenues allowed all the charges pertaining to the ministry of the sacrifices. 4 But (b) Simon of the tribe of Benjamin, being appointed overseer of the temple, [1] contended, the Prince of the Priests resisting him, to work some wicked thing in the city.

(b) other three things do trouble the state: [1] Obstinacy in offenders, not content to be corrected.

5 And [1] when he could not overcome Onias, he came to Apollonius the son of Tharsaeas, who at that time was governor of Caelesyria, and Phaenicia:

[1] 2. Inveterate malice seeking revenge against just Superiors.

6 and told him, that the treasury at Jerusalem was full of innumerable deal of money, and the common store to be infinite, which pertain not to the account of the sacrifices: and that it is possible, all might fall into the king's power. 7 And [1] when Apollonius had made relation to the king, concerning the money that he was told of, he calling for Heliodorus, who was over his affairs, sent him with commission to transport the foresaid money.

[1] 3. and avarice of princes, to rob the holy or common treasure.

8 And forthwith Heliodorus began to take his journey, in shew indeed as if he would go visit the cities throughout Caelesyria and Phaenicia, but in very deed to accomplish the king's purpose. 9 But when he was come to Jerusalem, and was courteously received in the city by the high Priest, he told of the advertisement given of the money: and opened for what cause he was come: and asked if these things were so in very deed. 10 Then the high-Priest shewed that these were deposita, and the livelihoods of widows & pupils: 11 but certain of them to belong unto Hircanus of Tobie a very noble man, among these things, which impious Simon had promoted, and the whole to be of silver four hundred talents, and of gold two hundred. 12 And that they should be deceived which had committed it to the place, and the temple, that is honoured throughout the whole world, to be a thing, for the reverence and holiness thereof altogether unpossible. 13 But he by reason of those things, which he had in commission of the king, said in any wise that they must be carried to the king.

14 And on a day appointed, Heliodorus entered in to take order concerning these things. But there was no small trembling throughout the whole city. 15 And the Priests cast themselves before the altar with their Priests' stoles, and invocated him from heaven, which made the law of deposita, that he would keep the things safe, from them that had deposed them. 16 But now he that saw the countenance of the high-Priest, was wounded in mind: for his face and colour being changed declared the inner sorrow of the mind. 17 For there was a certain pensiveness poured about the man, and horror of the body, whereby the sorrow of his heart was made manifest to them that beheld him.

18 Others also came flocking together out of their houses: praying with public supplication, for that the place was to come into contempt. 19 And the women having their breast girded with hair-cloths came together through the streets. Yea and the virgins (c) that were shut up, came forth to Onias, and some to the walls, but some looked through the windows:

(c) These virgins remained in places near to the temple, brought up in exercises of piety, fasting and praying, till they were despoused. 1. Reg. 2. v. 22. 8. Amb. li. 1. de virgini. S. Greg. Nissen: Orat. de Christi. Nativit. S. Damas. li. 4. c. 13.

20 and all stretching forth their hands unto heaven, prayed. 21 For the expectation of the confuse multitude, and of the grand Priest being in an agony, was miserable. 22 And these certes invocated almighty God, that the things committed to them, might be performed with all integrity for them that had committed the same of trust. 23 But Heliodorus exercised that which he had decreed in the same place himself present with his guard about the treasury.

24 But the spirit of almighty God made great evidence of his appearing, so that all which had presumed to obey him, falling by the virtue of God, were turned into dissolution and fear. 25 For (d) there appeared to them a certain horse having a terrible rider, adorned with very rich harness: and he with fierceness struck Heliodorus with his forefoot, and he that sat upon him, seemed to have armour of gold.

(d) 4. Reg. 2. v. 11. A fiery chariot and fiery horses carried Elias from Elizeus 4. Reg. 6. v. 17. And the mountain appeared full of horses, and of fiery chariots round about Elizeus, no less strange than this vision. See S. Ambrose. li. 2. c. 29. Offic. discoursing upon this history.

26 There appeared also two other young men comely for strength, excellent of glory, and beautiful in attire: which stood about him, and on both sides whipped him, beating him with many stripes without intermission. 27 And Heliodorus suddenly fell on the ground, and they took him being covered round about with much darkness, and being set in a seat portative, they thrust him forth. 28 And he that with many couriers, and men of his guard entered into the foresaid treasury, was carried no man giving him succourse, the manifest power of God being known. 29 And he indeed by the power of God lay dumb, and deprived of all hope, and health. 30 But they blessed our Lord, because he magnified his place: and the temple, that a little before was full of fear and tumult, almighty God appearing, was filled with joy and gladness. 31 And then certain of the friends of Heliodorus forthwith desired Onias, that he would invocate the highest to give him life, who was at the very last gasp. 32 And the high-Priest considering lest perhaps the king might suspect some malice on the Jews' part done about Heliodorus, offered for the health of the man an healthful host. 33 And when the high-Priest by prayer obtained, the self same young men, clothed with the same garments, standing by Heliodorus, said: Give thanks to Onias the Priest: for him hath our Lord given thee life. 34 But thou being scourged of God, declare unto all men the great works and the power of God. And these things being said, they appeared no more. 35 And Heliodorus having offered an host to God, and having promised great vows to him, that granted him to live, and giving thanks to Onias, taking his army again returned to the king. 36 And he testified to all men those works of the great God, which he had seen before his own eyes. 37 And when the king had asked Heliodorus; who was meet to be sent yet once more to Jerusalem, he said: 38 If thou have any enemy, or traitor to thy kingdom, send him thither, and thou shalt receive him again scourged, if yet he escape: because there is undoubtedly in the place a certain power of God. 39 For he that hath his dwelling in the heavens, is the visiter, and helper of that place, and them that come to do evil, he striketh, and destroyeth. 40 Therefore concerning Heliodorus, and the keeping of the treasury so the matter standeth.

CHAPTER IV.

Onias defamed and molested by Simon, repaireth to the King to procure peace. 7. Seleucus dying, and Antiochus reigning, Jason by promising money to the King, getteth the office of high-Priest from his brother Onias: 10. and perverteth religion: 12. setteth up a wicked school, whereby many are corrupted: 8. sendeth money for sacrifice to be offered to Hercules, which is employed in making gallies. 21. Antiochus is received with great pomp into Jerusalem. 23. Menelaus by promise of more money getteth the high priesthood from Jason. 29. He also is deposed, and his brother Lysimachus put in the place. 32. Andronicus treacherously murdereth Onias, 36. and for the same is slain by the King's commandment: 39. and Lysimachus by the people. 43. Menelaus justly accused escapeth by bribing, and the innocent are slain.

But Simon the foresaid betrayer of the money, and of his country, (a) spake ill of Onias, as though he had stirred up Heliodorus to these things, and had been the mover of the evils:

(a) It is the common practice of all traitors to calumniate and defame good governers.

2 and the provider for the city, and defender of his nation, and the emulator of the law of God, he presumed to call a secret betrayer of the kingdom: 3 But when the enmities proceeded so far, that murders also were committed by certain of Simon's familiars: 4 Onias considering the peril of the contention, and that Apollonius being governor of Caelesyria, & Phaenicia, was outrageous, which increased the malice of Simon, (b) went to the king.

(b) And the best remedy against such seducers is by authority of Superior power, not by the people, who are commonly more prone to favour faction than justice.

5 not as an accuser of the citizens, but considering with himself the common profit of the whole multitude. 6 For he saw that without the king's providence it was unpossible that peace should be made in those matters, and that Simon would not cease from his folly. [1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 1. v. 11.

7 [1] But after Seleucus' departure out of life, when Antiochus that was called the Noble, had taken the kingdom upon him, Jason the brother of Onias ambitiously sought the high-priesthood:

[1] E

8 going to the king, promising him three hundred three score talents of silver, & of other revenues four score talents, 9 above this he promised also an hundred fifty more, if leave might be granted him to make a school, and a place for youth, and to entitle them, that were at Jerusalem, Antiochians. 10 Which when the king had granted, and he had obtained the princedom, forthwith he began to transport his country men to the heathen rite. 11 And these things being taken away, which of favour had been decreed by kings unto the Jews, and through John the father of the Eupolemus, who was ambassador with the Romans concerning amity and society, he disannulling the lawful rites of the citizens, made wicked ordinances. 12 For he presumed under the very castle to set up a school, and to put all the goodliest youths in brothel houses. 13 And this was not the beginning, but a certain increase, and going forward of the heathen and strange conversation, through the abominable never heard before, of Jason the impious and not a priest. 14 So that the Priests were not now occupied about the offices of the altar, but (c) the temple being contemned, & the sacrifices neglected, they hastened to be partakers of the game of wrestling, & of the unjust maintenance thereof, & in the exercise of the coyte.

(c) Where true Religion is abolished, most men neglect all shew of religion, and rather apply themselves to vanities, or worse sins.

15 And setting nought by the honours of their fathers, they esteemed the Greek glories for the best: 16 by reason whereof they had dangerous contention, & they had emulation toward their ordinances, and in all things they coveted to be like to them, whom they had enemies & murderers. 17 For to do impiously against the laws of God escapeth not unpunished, but this the time following will declare. 18 And when the game used every fifth year was kept at Tyre, & the king was present, 19 the wicked Jason sent from Jerusalem sinful men, carrying three hundred didrachmaes of silver for the sacrifice of Hercules, which they that carried it, requested that it might not be bestowed on the sacrifices, because it ought not, but that it might be deputed for other charges. 20 And these were offered indeed by him that sent them, unto the sacrifice of Hercules: but because of them that were present they were given to the making of gallies. [1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 1. v. 17.

21 [1] And Apollonius the son of Mnestheus being sent into Aegypt because of the nobles of Ptolomee Philometor the king, (d) when Antiochus understood that himself was made an alien from the affairs of the kingdom, providing for his own commodities, departing thence he came to Joppe, and from thence to Jerusalem.

[1] G (d) This king falsely pretended to restore his kinsman (his sister's son) to the kingdom being deprived by his younger brother (Livius li. 44.) but the true cause of his sending Apollonius into Aegypt, was to subdue that Kingdom to himself. 1. Mach. 1. v. 17.

22 And being magnifically received of Jason, and the city, entered in with torch lights, and with praises: and from thence he turned his army into Phaenicia. 23 And after the time of three years^ Jason sent Menelaus brother of the foresaid Simon, carrying money to the king, and to bring answers of necessary affairs. 24 But he being commended to the king, when he had magnified the presence of his power, wrested the high-Priesthood upon himself, over bidding Jason three hundred talents of silver. 25 And having received commission from the king, he came, having indeed nothing worthy of the priesthood: but bearing the mind of a cruel tyrant, and the wrath of a wild beast. 26 And Jason indeed, who had circumvented his own brother, being himself deceived was driven out a fugitive into the country of the Ammanites. 27 And (e) Menelaus obtained the princedom: but concerning the money promised to the king he did nothing, whereas Sostratus that was governor of the castle exacted it.

(e) Menelaus brother of Simon (v. 23.) of the tribe of Benjamin (ch. 3. v. 4.) was not by the law capable of the priesthood, which only pertained to the progeny of Aaron of the tribe of Levi. So in this troublesome time the right succession of high-priests was intermitted, and restored in Mathathias. li. 1. c. 2.

28 For to him pertained the exacting of the tributes: for which cause they were both called out to the king. 29 And Menelaus was removed from the Priest-hood, Lysimachus his brother succeeding: and Sostratus was made governor of the Cyprians. 30 And when these things were a doing, it chanced the Tharsians, and the Mallotians to move sedition, because they were given for a gift to king Antiochus' concubine. 31 The king therefore came in haste to pacify them, one of his companions Andronicus being left substitute. 32 But Menelaus supposing that he had taken a convenient time, stealing certain vessels of gold out of the temple, gave them to Andronicus, and others he had sold at Tyre, and in their near cities: 33 Which thing when Onias understood most certainly, he rebuked him, keeping himself in a safe place at Antioch beside Daphne. 34 Whereupon Menelaus coming to Andronicus, desired him to kill Onias. Who when he was come to Onias, and right hands being given with an oath (although he was suspected of him) had persuaded him to come out of the sanctuary, immediately he slew him, not reverencing justice. 35 For which cause not only the Jews, but also other nations likewise were offended, & took it grievously for the unjust murder of so great a man. 36 But when the king was returned out of the places of Cilicia, the Jews went unto him at Antioch, and also (f) the Greeks: complaining of the unjust murder of Onias.

(f) True and solid virtue moved the common people to compassion, the King himself to tears, the Tyrians to honour the bodies of the innocent with costly burial. v. 49.

37 Antiochus therefore was sorry in his mind for Onias, & being inclined to pity, he shed tears, remembering the sobriety and modesty of the deceased. 38 And his heart being incensed, he commanded Andronicus being spoiled of the purple, to be led about all the city: and that in the same place, wherein he had committed the impiety upon Onias, the sacrilegious person should be deprived of his life, our Lord repaying him worthy punishment. 39 And many sacrileges being committed of Lysimachus in the temple by the counsel of Menelaus, and the rumour being bruited abroad, the multitude gathered together against Lysimachus, much gold being now carried out. 40 But the multitudes making insurrection, & their minds replenished with anger, Lysimachus arming almost three thousand began to use unjust hands, a certain tyrant being captain far grown in age, and also in madness. 41 But as they understood the endeavour of Lysimachus, some took stones, some strong clubs, & certain threw ashes. 42 And many indeed were wounded, and certain also thrown to the ground, but all were put to flight: the sacrilegious person also himself they slew beside the treasury. 43 Concerning these things therefore judgement began to be commenced against Menelaus. 44 And when the king was come to Tyre, three men sent from the ancients, put up the matter unto him. 45 And when Menelaus was overcome, he promised Ptolomee to give much money to persuade the king. 46 Ptolomee therefore went to the king being in a certain court, as it were to cool himself, and brought him from his purpose: 47 and Menelaus certes being guilty of all the evil was quitted of the crimes: and the poor wretches, who if they had pleaded the cause even before Scythians should be judged innocent, them he commanded to death. 48 Quickly then did they unjustly suffer, which prosecuted the cause for the city, and the people, and the sacred vessels. 49 For the which thing the Tyrians also being offended, were very liberal towards the burial of them. 50 But Menelaus because of their avarice that were in power, continued in authority, increasing in malice to the betraying of the citizens.

CHAPTER V.

Visions of armies fighting in the air appear in Jerusalem forty days. 5. Jason with a thousand men surpriseth the city, killeth many citizens, but is expulsed and dieth miserably. 11. Antiochus persecuteth the Jews, 15. spoileth the temple, and profaneth holy things. 27. Judas with others fly into the desert.

t the same time Antiochus prepared a second journey into Aegypt. 2 And it came to pass: that throughout the whole city of Jerusalem were (a) seen for forty days in the air horsemen running hither and thither, having golden stoles, and spears, as it were companies armed,

(a) Strange things above the ordinary course of nature do ever signify God's wrath, for men's transgression, and are admonitions to turn from sin, with speed that we may escape the heavy hand of God's justice. So the Emperor Charles the Great interpreted the apparition of a great Comet as witnesseth Fasciculus temporum.

3 and coursing of horses set in orders by ranks, & that there were encounterings together near hand, and shakings of shields, and a multitude of men in helmets with swords drawn, & throwing of darts, & the glittering of golden armour, and of all kind of harness. 4 Wherefore all prayed that the wonders might be turned to good. 5 But when there was a false rumour gone forth, as though Antiochus had been parted this life, Jason taking unto him no less than a thousand men, suddenly set upon the city: and the citizens flying together to the wall, at the last the city being taken, Menelaus fled into the castle. 6 But Jason spared not his citizens in murder, nor considered, that prosperity against kinsmen is a very great evil, supposing that he should take the victorious spoils of the enemies, and not of his citizens. 7 And the princedom verily he obtained not, but received confusion, the end of his treachery, and went again a fugitive into the country of the Ammanites. 8 At last to his own destruction being inclosed of Aretas the tyrant of the Arabians, flying from city to city, odious to all men, as an apostata from the laws, and execrable, as an enemy of his country and citizens, he was thrust out into Aegypt: 9 and he that had expelled many out of their country, perished in a strange place, going to the Lacedemonians, as being like (b) for kindred sake to have refuge there:

(b) Lacedemonians otherwise called Spartians, descended from the stock of Abraham. li. 1. c. 12. v. 2.

10 but he that cast away many unburied, himself both unlamented, and unburied is cast forth, neither enjoying foreign burial, nor partaker of the sepulchre of his father's.[1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 1. v. 21.

11 [1]These things therefore being done, the king suspected that the Jews would forsake the society: & for this departing out of Aegypt with a furious mind, he took the city by arms.

[1]I

12 And he bade the soldiers kill, and not spare them that came in their way, to murder them that went up into the houses. 13 Slaughters therefore were made of young men & old, and destructions of women and children, & murders of virgins and little ones. 14 And there were in the whole three days four score thousand slain, forty thousand prisoners, and no less sold. 15 But neither do these things suffice, he presumed also to enter into the temple, in all the earth the most holy, Menelaus being his leader, who was betrayer of the laws, and his country. 16 And with wicked hands taking the holy vessels, which by other kings & cities were set for the ornament and the glory of the place, he unworthily handled and contaminated them. 17 So Antiochus being alienated in mind, considered not, that for the sins of them that inhabit the city, God had been angry a little: for the which also happened the contempt about the place:

18 [1]otherwise unless it had chanced them to have been wrapped in many sins, as Heliodorus, who was sent of Seleucus the king to spoil the treasury, this man also immediately as he came had been scourged, and repelled verily from his boldness.

[1] ch. 3. v. 23. 27.

19 But (c) not the nation for the place, but the place for the nation hath God chosen.

(c) All rites of religion with temples and other holy things are ordained to the Service of God: and for men's spiritual good and therefore when men cease to serve God, as holy things are destroyed, or taken away.

20 And therefore the place also itself is made partaker of the people's evils: but afterward it shall be partaker of the good things, and it that was forsaken in the wrath of almighty God, shall be exalted again with great glory in the reconciliation of the great Lord. 21 Therefore Antiochus having taken away out of the temple a thousand & eight hundred talents, speedily went back to Antioch, thinking through pride, that he might bring the land to sail upon, & the sea to go upon, through haughtiness of mind. 22 And he left also rulers to afflict the nation: at Jerusalem, Philip a Phrygian born, more cruel of manners than he himself by whom he was appointed: 23 and in Garizim Andronicus & Menelaus, who lay more grievously upon the citizens than the rest. 24 And whereas he was set against the Jews, he sent the odious prince Apollonius with an army of two and twenty thousand, commanding him to kill all of perfect age, to sell the women and the young ones. 25 Who when he was come to Jerusalem, feigning peace, rested until the holy day of the Sabbath: and then the Jews keeping holy day, he commanded his men to take weapons. 26 And he murdered all that were gone forth to behold the games: and running through the city with armed men, he slew a very great multitude. 27 But Judas Machabeus, who was (d) the tenth, was retired into a desert place, and there amongst wild beasts he led his life in the mountains with his company: and they abode eating meat of grass, that they might not be partakers of the contamination.

(d) Judas was the tenth lawful highpriest from the Monarchy of the Grecians.

CHAPTER VI.

The law of God is abolished, the temple profaned, and named of Jupiter Olympius. 7. The feast of Bacchus is kept, 10. women with their circumcised children are slain, 11. others for celebrating the sabbath. (12. an admonition to the reader) 18. old Eleazarus constantly observing the law suffereth glorious death.

But not long after the king sent a certain ancient man of Antioch, that should compel the Jews to remove themselves from the laws of their fathers and of God: 2 to contaminate also the temple that was in Jerusalem, & to call it by the name of Jupiter Olympius: and in (a) Garizim, according as they were that inhabited the place, of Jupiter Hospitalis.

(a) Sanaballat in the time of Alexander the great procured a temple to be built in Garizim like to that in Jerusalem. Another was built in Aegypt by Ananias in the time of Ptolomee Philometor both schismatical. Iosephus. l. 11. c. 8. & li. 13. c. 6.

3 And the invasion of the evils was sore & grievous to all: 4 for the temple was full of the lechery & gluttony of the Gentiles: & of them that played the harlots with whores. And women thrusting themselves of their own accord into the sacred houses, bringing in those things which were not lawful. 5 The altar also was full of unlawful things which were forbidden by the laws. 6 And neither were the Sabbaths kept, nor the solemn days of the fathers observed, neither plainly did any man confess himself to be a Jew. 7 But they were led with bitter necessity in the king's birth day to sacrifices: & when the feast of Bacchus was kept, they were compelled to go about crowned with Ivy unto Bacchus. 8 And there went forth a decree into the next cities of the Gentiles, the Ptolomeans giving the advise, that they also in like manner should do against the Jews, that they might sacrifice: 9 and them that would not pass to the ordinances of the heathen, (b) they should kill. A man then might see the misery.

(b) Besides former great massacre. c. 5. four most notorious martyrdoms are here related.

10 For [1] two women were accused to have circumcided their children: whom, the infants hanging at their breasts, when they had openly led them about through the city, they threw down headlong by the walls.

[1]1.
Women with their circumcised children.

11 And others coming together to the next caves, and secretly [1]keeping the day of the Sabbath, when they were discovered to Philip, were burnt with fire, because they feared for religion and observance, to help themselves with their hand.

[1]2.
Other people for keeping the sabbath.

12 [1]But I beseech them that shall read this book, that they abhor not for the adversities, but that they account those things, which have happened, not to be for the destruction, but for the chastening of our stock.

[1]A necessary admonition to the weak in time of persecution.

13 For not to suffer sinners a long time to do as they will, but forthwith to punish, is a token of a great benefit. 14 For, not as in other nations our Lord patiently expecteth, that when the day of judgement shall come, he may punish them in the fullness of sins: 15 so also doth he determine in us, that our sins being come to the end, so at length he may punish us. 16 For which cause he never certes removeth away his mercy from us: but chastening his people by adversity, he forsaketh them not. 17 But let these things be said of us in few words for an admonition of the readers. And now we must come to the story. 18 Therefore, [1] Eleazarus one (c)of the chief of the Scribes, a man striken in age, and comely of countenance, with open mouth gaping was compelled to eat swine's flesh.

Eleazarus ninety years old cruelly slain. (c) He was excellently learned in holy Scriptures and in all divine and human knowledge.

19 But he embracing rather a most glorious death than an hateful life, went before voluntarily to the punishment. 20 And considering how he ought to come patiently sustaining, he determined not to commit unlawful things for love of life. 21 But they that stood by, moved with unlawful pity, for the old friendship of the man, taking him in secret, desired that flesh might be brought, which it was lawful for him to eat, that he (d)might feign to have eaten, as the king had commanded, of the flesh of the sacrifice:

(d) To feign or make outward shew of consent to false religion, is never lawful.

22 that by this fact he might be delivered from death: and for the old friendship of the man, they did him this courtesy. 23 But he began to think upon the worthy preeminence of his age and ancientness, and the hoar hairs of natural nobility, and his doings from a child of very good conversation, and according to the ordinances, and the holy law made of God, he answered quickly, saying: that he would rather (e)be sent unto hell.

(e) In the old testament none could enter into heaven but the most just went to Limbus when they died.

24 For it is not meet, quoth he, for our (f)age to feign: that many young men thinking, that Eleazarus of four score year and ten is passed to the life of Aliens:

(f) Old age (saith S. Ambrose. li. 2. c. 10. de Iacob patri,) ought to be the haven, not the shipwreck of thy former life.

25 they also through my dissimulation, and for a little time of corruptible life, may be deceived, and hereby I may purchase a stain, and a curse to mine old age. 26 For although at this present time I be delivered from the punishments of men, yet neither alive nor dead shall I escape the hand of the Almighty. 27 Wherefore in departing manfully out of this life, I shall appear worthy of mine old age: 28 & to young men I shall leave a constant example, if with ready mind and stoutly I suffer an honest death, for the most grave and most holy laws. These things being spoken, forthwith he was drawn to execution. 29 And they that led him, and had been a little before more mild, were turned into wrath for the words spoken of him, which they thought were uttered through arrogancy. 30 But when he was now in killing with the strokes, he groaned, and said: O Lord, which hast the holy knowledge, thou knowest manifestly that whereas I might be delivered from death, I do sustain sore pains of the body: but according to the soul, for thy fear I do willingly suffer these things. 31 And this man certes in this manner departed this life, leaving not only to young men, but also to the whole nation the memory of his death for an example of virtue and fortitude.

CHAPTER VII.

The noble Martyrdom of seven brethren, refusing to eat swine's flesh: and boldly admonishing King Antiochus of his damnable state. 41. Lastly the mother (having encouraged her sons) likewise dieth gloriously.

And [1] it came to pass, [2] that seven brethren together with their mother being apprehended, to be compelled by the king to eat against the law^ swine's flesh, were tormented with whips and scourges.

[1] Whosoever please to read more of these glorious Martyrs, may see the large discourses of Flavius Iosephus in his book de Machabaeis. And of sundry ancient Fathers: S. Cyprian. li. 4. Epist. ep. 6. S. Chrysostom, homilia de nativitate septem Machabaeorum. S. Ambrose. li. 1. Offic. c. 40. &c. li. 11. de Iacob. c. 9. S. Augustin, de origine animae. Tract. 8. in Epist. 1. Ioan. & Ser. 110. de diversis. S. Prosper: li. de praedict. par. 2. c. 40. S. Prudentius. hymno de Romano Martyre. S. Leo. Ser. de Nat. septem fratrum. Machab. S. Gaudentius Brixanus Tractatu de Machabaeis. S. Ephrem. Ser. de morte. S. Victorinus Afer. Carmine de septem Machabaeis. [2] 4.
The fourth Martyrdom was of seven brethren and their mother.

2 But one of them which was the first, said thus: What seekest thou, and what wilt thou learn of us? We are ready to die rather than to transgress the laws of God, coming from our fathers. 3 The king therefore being wrath commanded frying pans, and brazen pots to be heated: 4 the which forthwith being heated, he commanded his tongue, that had spoken first, to be cut out: and the skin of his head being drawn off, the ends also of his hands and feet to be chopped off, the rest of his brethren, and his mother looking on. 5 And when he was now made in all parts unprofitable, he commanded fire to be put unto him, and that breathing as yet he should be fried in the frying pan: wherein when he was long tormented, the rest together with the mother exhorted one another to die manfully, 6 saying: Our Lord God will behold the truth, and will take pleasure in us, as Moyses declared in the profession of the Canticle: [1] And in his servants he will take pleasure.

[1] Deut. 32. v. 43.

7 The first therefore being dead in this manner, they brought the next to make him a mocking stock: & the skin of his head with the hairs being drawn off, they asked if he would eat, before that he were punished throughout the whole body in every member. 8 But he answering in his country speech, said: I will not do it. Wherefore this also in the next place, received the torments of the first: 9 and being at the very last gasp, thus he said: Thou indeed, o most wicked man, in this present life destroyest us: but the King of the world will raise us up which die for his laws, in the resurrection of eternal life. 10 After him the third is had in derision, and being demanded his tongue, he quickly put it forth, and constantly stretched out his hands: 11 & with confidence he said: From heaven do I possess these, but for the laws of God now do I contemn these self same, because I hope that I shall receive them again of him. 12 So that the king, and they that were with him marveled at the young man's courage, because he esteemed the torments as nothing. 13 And this being thus dead, the fourth they vexed in like manner tormenting him. 14 And when he was now even to die, thus he said: It is better for them that are put to death by men to expect hope of God, that they shall be raised up again by him. For to thee there shall not be resurrection unto life. 15 And when they had brought the fifth, they tormented him. But he looking upon him, 16 said: Thou having power among men, whereas thou art corruptible doest what thou wilt: but think not that our stock is forsaken of God. 17 And do thou patiently abide, and thou shalt see his great power, in what sort he will torment thee, and thy seed. 18 After him they brought the sixth, and he beginning to die, said thus: Be not deceived vainly: for we suffer this for our own sakes, sinning against our God, and things worthy of admiration are done in us: 19 but do not think that thou shalt escape unpunished, for that thou hast attempted to fight against God. 20 But the mother above measure marvelous, & worthy of good men's memory, which beholding her seven sons perishing in one day's space, bare it with a good heart, for the hope that she had in God: 21 exhorted every one of them in their country language manfully, being replenished with wisdom: and joining a man's heart to a woman's cogitation, 22 she said to them: I know not how you appeared in my womb: for neither did I give you spirit and soul and life, and the members of every one I myself framed not. 23 But indeed the Creator of the world, that hath formed the nativity of man, and that invented the origin of all, and he will restore again with mercy unto you spirit and life, as now you despise yourselves for his laws. 24 But Antiochus thinking himself contemned, and withal despising the voice of the upbraider, when the younger was yet alive, he did not only exhort with words, but also with oath he affirmed that he would make him rich and happy, & being turned from the laws of his fathers, he would account him a friend, & give him things necessary. 25 But when the young man was not inclined to these things, the king called the mother, and counselled her to deal with the young man to save his life. 26 And when he had exhorted her in many words, (a) she promised that she would counsel her son.

(a) A promise is properly of a good thing, & bindeth the promiser to do that which is indeed good. In so much that whosoever promiseth, sweareth, or voweth to do evil, is bond not to do it. And to do it, is a distinct sin besides the former.

27 Therefore bending towards him, (b) mocking the cruel tyrant, she said in her country language: My son have pity on me which have borne thee in my womb nine months, and gave thee milk for three years, and nourished thee, and brought thee unto this age.

(b) In that this godly woman deceived the tyrant, she did well, lawfully using equivocation.

28 I beseech thee my son, that thou look to heaven and earth, and to all things that are in them: and understand that God of nothing made them & mankind: 29 so shall it come to pass, that thou wilt not fear this tormenter, but being made a worthy partaker with thy brethren, take thou death, that in that mercy I may receive thee again with thy brethren. 30 When she as yet was saying these things the young man said: For whom stay you? I obey not the commandment of the king, but the commandment of the law, which was given us by Moyses. 31 But thou that art become the inventer of all malice against the Hebrews, shall not escape the hand of God. 32 For we for our sins do suffer these things. 33 And if the Lord our God hath been angry with us a little for rebuke & correction: yet he will be reconciled again to his servants. 34 But thou o wicked, and of all men most flagitious, be not in vain extolled with vain hopes, inflamed against his servants. 35 For thou hast not yet escaped the judgement of the almighty God, and him that beholdeth all things. 36 For my brethren having now sustained short pain, are become under the testament of eternal life: but thou by the judgement of God shalt receive just punishment for thy pride. 37 And I as also my brethren do yield my life and my body for the laws of our fathers: invocating God to be propitious to our nation quickly, and that thou with torments and stripes mayst confess that he only is God. 38 But in me and in my brethren shall the wrath of the Almighty cease, which hath justly been brought upon all our stock. 39 Then the king incensed with anger, raged against him more cruelly above all the rest, taking it grievously that he was mocked. 40 And this same therefore died unspotted, wholly trusting in our Lord. 41 And last of all after the sons the mother also was consumed. 42 Therefore of the sacrifices, and of the exceeding cruelties there is enough said. CHAPTER VIII.

Judas Machabeus with six thousand men, commending their cause to God, 6. prospereth in battle. 8. Philippe soliciting for more help, Nicanor and Gorgias are sent with twenty thousand men against Judas. 12. Whose men beginning to fear, and some flying, he encourageth the rest, 19. reciting many examples of God's assistance: 22. disposeth his army, and prevaileth, 30. killing many of Timothee's and Bacchides' men. 34. The principal hardly escaping by flight, acknowledge that God protecteth the Jews.[1]

[1] The second part of the history. The wars of the Machabees begun by Mathathias. li. 1. c. 2. and prosecuted by Judas.

But[1] Judas Machabeus and they that were with him, went in secretly into the towns: and calling together their kinsmen and taking unto them those that continued in Judaism, they brought out to them six thousand men.

[1] L

2 And (a) they invocated our Lord, that he would have respect unto his people that was trodden of all, and would have mercy on the temple, that was contaminated of the impious:

(a) In all good attempts devout prayer is the first preparation. And no where more necessary than in battle. As well for good success (supposing always a good cause) as also that every one pray for his own soul, that it be in state of grace.

[1] * li. 1. c. 3. v. 10.

8 [1] But (b) Philip seeing the man to come forward by little & little, & that things for the more part succeeded with him prosperously, wrote to Ptolomee the governor of Coelesyria & Phoenicia, to give aid to the king's affairs.

[1] N (b) This Philip a Phrygian was left in Jerusalem by Antiochus to afflict the Jews. ch. 5. v. 22.

9 And he with speed sent Nicanor the son of Patroclus, of the principals of his friends, giving him of the nations mingled together, no less than twenty thousand armed men, to destroy utterly all the stock of the Jews, adjoining also unto him Gorgias a man of war, and in martial affairs of very great experience. 10 And Nicanor appointed, that he would supply unto the king the tribute that was to be given to the Romans, two thousand talents out of the captivity of the Jews: 11 and forthwith he sent to the cities by the sea side, calling men together to the buying of the Jewish slaves, promising that he would sell ninety slaves for a talent, not looking to the vengeance, which was to follow him from the Almighty. 12 But Judas when he understood it, shewed to those Jews that were with him, the coming of Nicanor. 13 Of whom certain fearing, and not crediting the justice of God, fled away: 14 and others if they had any thing left sold it, & withal besought our Lord, that he would deliver them from the impious Nicanor who had sold them before he came near them: 15 and if not for them, yet (c) for the testament that was with their fathers, & for the invocation of his holy & magnifical name upon them.

(c) A just and religious cause is the very best help, that can be in wars.

16 But Machabeus calling together seven thousand, that were with him, desired that they would not be reconciled to the enemies, nor fear the multitude of the enemies coming against them unjustly, but would fight manfully: 17 having before their eyes the contumely, that was unjustly done by them to the holy place, & moreover the injury also of the city being made a laughing stock, besides also the ordinances of the ancesters broken. 18 For they indeed trust to their weapons, said he, and to their boldness also: but we trust in the Almighty Lord, who can utterly destroy both them coming against us, and the whole world with one beck. 19 And he admonished them also of the aids of God, that were given to their fathers: & that under Sennacherib an hundred four score five thousand perished. [1]

[1] 4. Reg. 19.

20 And of the battle, that they had against the Galatians in Babylonia, how all they, when it came to the point, the Macedonians their fellows staggering, being only six thousand slew an hundred twenty thousand, by reason of the aid given them from heaven, and for these things obtained very many benefits. [1]

[1] Of this battle with the Galatians there is no other mention in holy scripture but is seemeth to be that, wherein they assisted Antiochus the first called Soter, when he repelled the Galatians invading Asia: whereof Appianus writeth in bellis Syriacis. And Iosephus testifieth, li. 12. c. 3. that Antiochus Magnus (son of Soter) much favoured the Jews for their exploits done in his father's days.

21 With these words they were made constant, & ready to die for the laws, and their country. 22 He appointed therefore his brethren captains over both orders, Simon, and Joseph, and Jonathas, under every one putting a thousand and five hundreth. 23 Beside this also the holy Book being read unto them by Esdras, 24 and a sign of God's help being given, in the forward the duke himself joined battle with Nicanor. And the Almighty being made their helper, they slew above nine thousand men: and the greater part of Nicanor's army being made weak with wounds, they forced to fly. 25 And taking away their money that came to buy them, they pursued them on every hand, 26 but they returned being taken short with the time: for it was the day before the Sabbath: for the which cause they continued not pursuing them. 27 But gathering together the armour and spoils of them, they kept the Sabbath: blessing our Lord that delivered them this day, distilling the beginning of mercy upon them. 28 But after the Sabbath they divided the spoils to the feeble and to orphans, & to widows: and the rest^ themselves had with their fellows. 29 These things therefore being done, and obsecration being made in common of all, they desired our merciful Lord, that he would be reconciled to his servants unto the end. 30 And of them that were with Timothee and Bacchides fighting against them, they slew above twenty thousand, and won the high holds: and they divided many preys, making equal portion to the feeble, pupils, and widows, yea and to the elder men. 31 And when they had diligently gathered together their armour, they laid all together in convenient places, and the residue of the spoils they carried to Jerusalem: 32 and Philarches that was with Timothee, they slew, a wicked man, which in many things had afflicted the Jews. 33 And when they kept the feast of victory in Jerusalem, him that had burnt the holy gates, that is, Callisthenes, when he was fled into a certain house, they burnt, a worthy reward being repayed him for his impieties: 34 But the most impious Nicanor, who had brought a thousand merchants to the sale of the Jews, 35 being humbled through the help of our Lord by them, whom he esteemed nobody, laying aside his garment of glory, flying by the midland, came alone to Antioch, having gotten great infelicity by the destruction of his army. 36 And he that had promised that he would render tribute to the Romans of the captivity of Jerusalem, now professed that the Jews had God their protector, and that for him they could not be wounded, because they followed the laws appointed by him. [1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 4. v. 28.

CHAPTER IX.

Antiochus repulsed from Persepolis, 3. and hearing that his army is overthrown in Jury: 9. worms issuing from his body intolerably stinking: 11. acknowledgeth his wicked deserts: 14. promiseth amendment, 18. writeth to the Jews, praying them to obey him, and his son, 28. and dieth miserably.

At[1] that time Antiochus returned out of Persis dishonourably.

[1]R

2 For he had entered into the city which is called (a) Persepolis, and he attempted to spoil the temple, and to oppress the city: but the multitude running together to arms, they were put to flight: and so it chanced that Antiochus after his flight returned with dishonour.

(a) A chief city of Persis, called Elymais, li. 1. c. 6. v. 1.

3 And when he was come about Ecbatana, he understood the things that were done to Nicanor and Timothee. 4 And swelling in anger, he thought that he might wreak the injury of them, that had put him to flight, upon the Jews. And therefore he commanded his chariot to be driven, journeying without intermission, the heavenly judgement urging him forward, because he spoke so proudly, that he would come to Jerusalem, & make it an heap of the sepulchre of the Jews. 5 But he that seeth all things our Lord the God of Israel, struck him with an uncurable and invisible plague. For as he ended this very speech, a cruel plague of the bowels took him, and bitter torments of the inner parts: 6 and indeed very justly, as who had tormented the bowels of others with many & new torments, albeit he by no means ceased from his malice. 7 And beside this replenished with pride, breathing fire in his mind against the Jews, & commanding the matter to be hastened, it chanced him going with violence to fall from the chariot, & his limbs to be vexed with a grievous bruising of the body. 8 And he that seemed to himself to rule even over the waves of the sea, replenished with pride above the measure of man, & to weigh the heights of mountains in a balance, now being humbled to the ground was carried in a portative seat, testifying the manifest power of God in himself: 9 so that out of the body of the impious man, worms crawled abundantly, and his live flesh fell off for pains, with his smell also & stink the army was annoyed. 10 And he that a little before thought to touch the stars of heaven, him no man could carry for the intolerable stink. 11 Hereby therefore he began, being brought from his great pride, to come to the knowledge of himself, admonished by the plague of God, his pains increasing every moment. 12 And when neither himself now could abide his own stink, thus he said: It is reason to be subject to God, and a mortal man not to think of himself equally with God. 13 And this wicked man prayed to our Lord, (b) of whom he was not to obtain mercy.

(b) Antiochus was indeed really and seriously grieved, and truly acknowledged that his affliction was for his sins, li. 1. c. 6. v. 11. but he was not truly penitent for the offence committed against God & his neighbour, but only for his own calamity & misery: & therefore could not obtain mercy to remission of his sins, nor release of the punishment. So also the damned in hell, know & confess that they are punished for their sins, but have not true repentance for their offence against God.

14 And the city to the which he came in haste to have brought it to the ground, and to have made it a sepulchre of bodies heaped together, now wisheth to make it free: 15 And the Jews whom he said he would not vouchsafe worthy, no not of burial, but would give them to birds and wild beasts to be spoiled, and destroy them with the little ones, now he promiseth to make them equal with the Athenians. 16 The holy temple also, which before he had spoiled, he would adorn with goodly donaries, & would multiply the holy vessels, and of his revenues would allow the charges pertaining to the sacrifices. 17 Besides these things, that he would be a Jew also, and would walk through every place of the earth, & would declare the power of God. 18 But the pains ceasing not (for the just judgement of God was come upon him) despairing he wrote to the Jews by the manner of a supplication an epistle containing these words: 19 TO HIS VERY GOOD SUBJECTS the Jews the king and prince Antiochus, much health, and welfare, and to be happy.

20 If you and your children farewell, and if things be with you to your mind, we give very great thanks.
21 And I being in infirmity, & mindful of you benignly, being returned out of the places of Persis, & taken with a grievous infirmity, have thought it necessary to have a care for the common profit: 22 not despairing of myself, but having great hope to escape the sickness. 23 But considering that my father also, at what times he led his army in the higher places, he shewed who should take the princedom after him:
24 that if any mishap should chance, or hard tidings be told, they that were in the countries, knowing to whom the whole government was committed, might not be troubled. 25 Besides this, considering that all the potestates, and bordering neighbours wait for times, and expect the event, I have appointed my son Antiochus king, whom, I having recourse oftentimes to the higher kingdoms did commend to many of you: and I have written to him that which is set down here beneath. 26 I pray you therefore, and desire you mindful of the benefits both public and private, that every one keep his fidelity to me, and to my son.
27 For I trust that he will deal modestly and gently, and following my purpose, and that he will be common unto you. 28 Therefore (c) the murderer and blasphemer being very sore strucken, & as himself had handled others, in a strange country among the mountains, with a miserable death departed this life.

(c) Of this tyrant S. Cyprian giveth this censure: li. de exhort. Martyrij: King Antiochus an inveterate enemy to all the good, Nay, in Antiochus Antichrist is expressed.

29 But Philip his foster brother removed his body: who fearing the son of Antiochus, went to Ptolomee Philometor into Aegypt. [1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 6. v. 17.

CHAPTER X.

Judas Machabeus cleanseth the temple, and instituteth the feast of dedication. 10. Young Antiochus Eupator reigning, Ptolemeus of disgust killeth himself with poison. 14. Judas resisteth great forces of Gorgias, taketh certain holds from the Idumeans, punisheth traitors, and killeth many enemies. 24. In his battle against Timothee is miraculously assisted from heaven: 37. and finally killeth him.

But [1] Machabeus, & they that were with him, our Lord protecting them, (a) recovered the temple and the city again:

[1] P (a) This recovering and cleansing of the temple was after the fourth battle of Judas, which was against Lysias one of Antiochus' chief captains, as appeareth. li. 1. c. 4. and so was before the death of Antiochus, written here. ch. 9.

2 but the altars, which the aliens had set up through the streets, and also the temples he threw down.
3 And having purged the temple, they made another altar: and out of fired stones taking fire they offered sacrifices after two years, and set incense, and lamps, & the breads of proposition. 4 Which things being done, they besought our Lord prostrate on the ground, that they might no more fall into such evils: but and if they had sometime sinned, that they might be chastened of him more mildly, & not be delivered to barbarous, & blasphemous men. 5 [1] And what day the temple had been polluted of the aliens, it happened that on the same day was made the purification, the five & twentieth of the month, which was Casleu.

[1] li. 1. c. 4. v. 54.

6 And with joy eight days they kept in manner of tabernacles, remembering that a little before they had kept the solemn day of Tabernacles in the mountains, & in dens after the manner of beasts. 7 For the which cause they bare before them stalks of herbs, & green boughs, and palms to him, that gave success to clean his place. 8 And they decreed by common precept & decree to all the nation of the Jews every year to keep these days. 9 And Antiochus that was called the Noble, his departure out of life was after this sort. [1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 5. v. 1.

10 [1] But now of Eupator the son of Antiochus the impious, we will tell the things that have been done, abridging the evils that were done in the wars.

[1]T

11 For he having taken upon him the kingdom, appointed over the affairs of the king one Lysias general of the host of Phaenicia and Syria. 12 For Ptolomee who was called Macer, determined to be a keeper of justice towards the Jews, & especially for the iniquity, that was done against them, and to deal peaceably with them. 13 But being accused for this of his friends to Eupator, when he was called oftentimes traitor, because he had left Cypres committed unto him by Philometor, and removing to Antiochus the Noble, had revolted also from him, he (b) made an end of his life with poison.

(b) It is never an act of fortitude but of extreme pusillanimity when one in temporal misery killeth himself to be rid thereof. But is a most heroical act to die willingly for God's glory.

14 But (c) Gorgias being captain of the places, taking unto him strangers often warred against the Jews.

(c) Against this Gorgias Judas had a victory before in the time of Antiochus Epiphanes. li. 1. c. 4.

15 And the Idumeans that kept the commodious holds, received them that were chased from Jerusalem, and attempted to make battle. 16 And they that were with Machabeus, beseeching our Lord by prayers that he would be their helper, made an assault upon the holds of the Idumeans: 17 and sticking to it with great force, they won the places, killed them that came in the way, & slew together no less than twenty thousand. 18 And whereas certain were fled into two towers very strong, having all provision to make resistance, 19 Machabeus for the expugning of them, leaving Simon and Joseph, & also Zachaeus, and such as were with them very many, himself turned to those battles which forced more. 20 But they that were with Simon, being led with covetousness, were persuaded with money by certain that were in the towers: and taking seventy thousand didrachmaes, they let certain escape. 21 But when it was told Machabeus what was done, assembling the princes of the people he accused them, that they had sold their brethren for money, their adversaries being let go. 22 These therefore being become traitors he slew, and forthwith he took the two towers. 23 And with weapons and hands doing all things prosperously, in the two holds he slew more than twenty thousand. 24 And (d) Timothee, who before had been overcome of the Jews, having called together an army of foreign multitude, and gathering horsemen of Asia, came as to take Jury by arms.

(d) Timothee the second captain general of Antiochus with Bacchides was once before overthrown. li. 1. c. 8. v. 30.

25 But Machabeus and they that were with him, when he approached, besought our Lord, sprinkling their head with earth, and being girded about the loins with haircloths, 26 lying flat at the brim of the altar, that he would be propitious to them, and an enemy to their enemies, and an adversary to their adversaries, as the law saith. 27 And so after prayer taking weapons, going forth somewhat far out of the city, & being come very near the enemies they pitched. 28 And at the very first rising of the sun both joined battle: these indeed having our Lord the surety of victory, & prosperity with virtue: but they had courage for the captain of the battle. 29 But when there was a sore fight, there appeared to the adversaries from heaven five men upon horses, comely with golden bridles, conducting the Jews: 30 of whom two having Machabeus between them, compassing him round about with their armour, kept him safe: and against the adversaries they threw darts, and fire balls, whereby both confounded with blindness, and filled with perturbation they fell. 31 And there were slain twenty thousand five hundred, and horsemen six hundred. 32 But Timothee fled into Gazara a strong hold, whereof Chaereas was the captain. 33 And Machabeus, and they that were with him joyfully besieged the hold four days. 34 But they that were within, trusting to the place, blasphemed above measure, & cast forth abominable words. 35 But when the fifth day appeared, (e) twenty young men of them that were with Machabeus, incensed in their minds because of the blasphemy, went manfully to the wall, and with fierce courage going on, they scaled to the top:

(e) Iosephus Gorion. li. 3. c. 13. saith these twenty zealous young men were of the Assidians, who professed a certain religious form of life: of whom mention is made before li. 1. ch. 2. v. 42. & c. 7. v. 13.

36 Yea and the others also mounting up, attempted to set the towers and the gates on fire, and to burn the blasphemers themselves alive. 37 And the hold being sacked for two days together, they slew Timothee that was found hiding himself in a certain place: and his brother Chaereas, and Apollophanes they killed. 38 Which things being done, they blessed our Lord in hymns and confessions, who did great things in Israel, and gave them the victory.

ANNOTATIONS. CHAP. X.

[1] Protestants confess that Judas instituted this feast.

[2] It is distinct from other feasts.

[3] v. 5.

8. They decreed.] [1] Beza in his Annotations (in Ioan. 10. v. 22.) set forth in English in the year 1603. confesseth that the feast which our Saviour observed, was instituted by Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, after the restoring of God's true religion by casting out Antiochus his garrison. [2] It is also clear that this feast was in winter, ibidem, agreeable to the text, [3] in the month of Casleu, which is November, whereas the feast of tabernacles was in September, before winter; and the feast of restoration of the temple after the captivity of Babylon, was in Adar (1. Esd. 6.) which is February, between which time and midst of March, was not competent space for those things which Christ did after this feast, before his Passion. And therefore it is very strange that Beza, or other Protestants will deny these Books to be Canonical: which have so excellent a testimony by the Evangelist of our Saviour's own fact.

CHAPTER XI.

Lysias supposing with his army of fourscore thousand footmen, and a great band of horsemen to subdue Jerusalem: 6. Judas with his few praying God, and going to fight, an Angel, in form of an horsemen, goeth before them: 10. so they setting upon the enemies kill many, & the rest fly. 13. Lysias perceiving God's power, offereth to procure peace. 22. Whereto the King agreeth, writing to him, 27. and to the Jews. 34. The Romans also write to the Jews.

But a little after^ (a) Lysias the king's procurator, and cousin, and chief over the affairs, being greatly offended with these things, that had happened,

(a) This Lysias also had been vanquished before li. 1. c. 4. v. 28.

2 having gathered four score thousand, & all the horsemen, came against the Jews, thinking that taking the city, he should make it an habitation for the Gentiles: 3 and he should have the temple to make gain of money, as the rest of the temples of the Gentiles, & every year the priesthood to be sold: 4 never recounting the power of God, but furious in mind, he trusted in the multitude of foot men, and thousands of horsemen, & in four score elephants. 5 And he entered into Jury, and approaching to Bethsura, which was in a narrow place from Jerusalem the space of five furlongs, he expugned that hold. 6 But as Machabeus, and they that were with him, understood that the holds were expugned, they besought our Lord with weeping and tears, and all the multitude together, (b) that he would send a good Angel to the saving of Israel.

(b) Knowing that the Patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, likewise Moyses, Josue and many others were singularly assisted by Angels, these Machabees in their good cause prayed for Angelical help, and had it: but jointly with their own endeavour, although sometimes God giveth such victories without cooperation of men. Exo. 14. 4. Reg. 19.

7 And Machabeus himself first taking weapons, exhorted the rest together with him, to adventure, and to give aid to their brethren. 8 And when they went forth together with prompt courage, at Jerusalem there appeared going before them an horseman in white clothing, with armour of gold, shaking a spear. 9 Then all they together blessed our merciful Lord, and took great courage: being ready to penetrate not only men, but also most fierce beasts, and walls of iron. 10 They went therefore promptly having an helper from heaven, and our Lord having pity upon them. 11 And like lions running violently upon the enemies, they overthrew of them eleven thousand footmen, and of horsemen a thousand six hundred: 12 and they put to flight all, & very many of them being wounded scaped away naked. Yea and Lysias himself shamefully flying escaped. 13 And because he was not senseless recounting with himself, the diminution made on his side, & understanding the Hebrews to be invincible, because they rested upon the help of the almighty God, he sent unto them: 14 & promised that he would consent to all things, that are just, and that he would force the king to be their friend. 15 And Machabeus granted to Lysias' requests, in all things having respect to the commonwealth and whatsoever Machabeus wrote to Lysias, concerning the Jews, the king granted it. 16 For there were epistles written to the Jews from Lysias, containing this tenure: LYSIAS to the people of the Jews^ health. 17 John and Absalom that were sent from you, delivering the writings, requested that I would accomplish those things which by them were signified. 18 Therefore whatsoever might be brought to the king I declared unto him: & that which the matters permitted I granted. 19 If therefore you keep fidelity in the affairs & henceforward, also will endeavour to be a cause of doing you good. 20 And concerning the rest, word for word I have given commandment both to these, and to them that are sent of me, to commune with you. 21 Fare ye well. In the year an hundred forty eight, of the month Dioscorus the four and twentieth day. 22 But the king's epistle contained these things: King Antiochus to Lysias (c) his brother, health.

(c) Lysias was indeed the King's cousin. v. 35. but he calleth him brother for honour sake.

23 Our father being translated amongst the gods, we being willing that they that are in our kingdom should live without trouble, and employ diligence to their own matters, 24 we have heard that the Jews consented not to my father to turn to the rite of the Greeks, but that they would keep their own institution, and therefore that they request us their rites to be granted them. 25 Being therefore desirous that this nation also be quiet, ordaining we have decreed, that the temple be restored unto them, that they might do according to the custom of their ancestors. 26 Thou shalt do well therefore if thou send to them, & give the right hand, that our pleasure being known they may be of good cheer, & look to their own commodities. 27 But to the Jews the king's epistle was in this manner: KING Antiochus to the senate of the Jews, and to the rest of the Jews^ health. 28 If you fare well, you are so as we would: yea ourselves also fare well. 29 Menelaus came to us, saying that you would come down to your country men, that are with us. 30 To them therefore that come & go, until the thirtieth day of the month Xanthicus, we give the right hands of security, 31 that the Jews may use their own meats, & their own laws, as also before: & that none of them by any means suffer molestation for these things, which have been done by ignorance. 32 And we have sent also Menelaus to speak to you. 33 Fare ye well. In the year an hundred forty eight, of the month Xanthicus the fifteenth day. 34 And the Romans also sent an epistle, which is thus: Quintus Memmius, and Titus Manilius legates of the Romans, to the people of the Jews^ health. 35 Concerning these things which Lysias the king's cousin hath granted you, we also have granted. 36 But touching the things which he thought good to be referred to the king, send ye forthwith somebody, conferring diligently among yourselves, that we may decree as is convenient for you: for we go to Antioch. 37 And therefore make haste to write again, that we also may know of what mind you are. 38 Fare ye well. In the year an hundred forty eight the fifteenth day of the month Xanthicus.

CHAPTER XII.

Whilst the Jews have peace with the King, others still persecute them: 5. which Judas revengeth: 13. and in Caspin maketh great slaughter, and reposeth in Characa. Ten thousand of Timothee's men are slain. 20. whom Judas pursuing killeth many in Carnion: 34. taketh him, but releaseth him again: 27. the like in Ephron. 32. Some Jews are slain in battle against Gorgias. 38. Judas and his men are purified, and gathering the dead bodies, find that some had taken unlawful spoils. 42. For whose souls he prayeth, and causeth sacrifice to be offered.

These covenants being made, Lysias went forward to the king, and the Jews gave themselves to husbandry. 2 But they that stayed there, (a) Timothie and (b) Apollonius the son of Gennaius, & also Jerom, & Demophon, besides these also Nicanor the governor of Cyprus, did not suffer them to live in rest and quietness.

(a) Another Timothee was slain. ch. 10. v. 37. (b) Also another Apollonius was slain before, li. 1. c. 3. v. 11.

3 And the Joppites committed a certain flagitious fact, which was this: They desired the Jews with whom they dwelt, to go into the boats, which they had prepared, with their wives & children, as though no secret enmities were between them. 4 Therefore according to the common decree of the city, & they agreeing thereto, & because of the peace suspecting nothing: when they were gone forward into the depth, they drowned no less than two hundred. 5 Which cruelty Judas as he understood to be done upon the men of his nation, commanded the men that were with him: and invocating God the just judge, 6 he came against the murderers of his brethren, & the haven he set on fire in the night, the boats he burnt, & them that were fled from the fire he slew with the sword. 7 And when he had thus done these things, he departed as to return again, & to root out all the Joppites. 8 But when he understood that they also, which were at Jamnia, would do in like manner to the Jews dwelling with them, 9 he came upon the Jamnites also by night, & set the haven on fire with the ships, so that the light of the fire appeared at Jerusalem (c) two hundred forty furlongs off.

(c) A furlong is about the eighth part of a mile: so this fire was seen thirty miles off. Others count a furlong to contain a thousand foot, the fifth part of a mile: so it was seen 48. miles distant.

10 When they were now departed thence nine furlongs, and made their journey towards Timothee, the Arabians five thousand men, & five hundred horsemen joined battle with them. 11 And when there was a mighty battle, and by the help of God it had succeeded prosperously, the rest of the Arabians that were overcome, besought Judas that the right hand might be given them, promising that they would give pastures, and profit them in other things. 12 And Judas thinking in very deed that they might be profitable in many things, promised peace: and right hands being taken, they departed to their tabernacles. 13 And he set also upon a certain city strong with bridges, & environed with walls, which was inhabited with multitudes of heathen of all sorts, the name whereof is Caspin. 14 But they that were within, trusting in the firmness of the walls, and the provision of victuals, dealt the more slackly, with reviling words provoking Judas, & blaspheming, & speaking such things as is not lawful to speak. 15 But Machabeus invocating the great Prince of the world, who without rams & engines in Jesus' time threw down Jericho, fiercely assaulted the walls.[1]

[1] Iosue. 6.

16 And the city being taken by the will of our Lord he made innumerable slaughters, so that the pool adjoining of two furlongs in breadth, seemed to run died with blood. 17 From thence they departed seven hundred fifty furlongs, & they came to Characa to those Jews, that are called (d) Tubianeians:

(d) Tubianei, or Tubieni, signify religiously good, it is probable that these were the Assideans. li. 1. c. 2. v. 42. c. 7. v. 13.

18 and in those places they took not Timothee, & nothing being done he went back, having left in a certain place a very strong garrison. 19 But Dositheus and Sosipater, who were captains with Machabeus, slew them that were left of Timothee in the hold, ten thousand men. 20 And Machabeus ordaining about him six thousand, & placing them by bands, went forth against Timothee, who had with him an hundred twenty thousand footmen, and of horsemen two thousand five hundred. 21 And the coming of Judas being known, Timothee sent the women and children, and the other baggage before into the fortress, that is called Carnion: for it was invincible, and hard to come by, by reason of the straits of the places. 22 And when the first band of Judas had appeared, fear was strucken into the enemies, by the presence of God, who seeth all things, and they were put to flight one of another, so that they were rather overthrown of their own company, and were weakened with the strokes of their own swords. 23 But Judas was exceeding earnest punishing the profane men, and he overthrew of them thirty thousand men. 24 And Timothee himself fell into the hands of Dositheus' & Sosipater's parts, & with many prayers he besought that he might be let go alive, because he had parents & brethren of many of the Jews, whom it might happen by his death to be deceived. 25 And when he had given his faith that he would restore them according to the appointment^ they let him go without harm, for the safety of their brethren. 26 And Judas came back from Carnion, having slain twenty five thousand. 27 After the flight & slaughter of these, he moved his army to Ephron a strong city, wherein a multitude dwelt of diverse nations: and strong young men standing before the walls resisted manfully, & in this were many engines, and provision of darts. 28 But when they had invocated the Almighty, who with his power breaketh the forces of the enemies, they took the city: and of them that were within they overthrew twenty five thousand. 29 From thence they departed to a city of the Scythians, which was distant from Jerusalem six hundred furlongs. 30 But those Jews that were with the Scythopolitans testifying that they were used courteously of them, even in the times of misery that they dealt modestly with them: 31 giving them thanks, and exhorting them also thence forward to be favourable toward their stock, they came to Jerusalem the solemn day of the weeks approaching. 32 And after Pentecost they went against (e) Gorgias the governor of Idumea.

(e) Judas had the victory twice before against this Gorgias. li. 1. c. 4. v. 1. li. 2. c. 10. v. 14.

33 And he went forth with footmen three thousand, and horsemen four hundred. 34 Who buckling together, it chanced few of the Jews to be slain. 35 But Dositheus one of the Bacenors an horseman, a valiant man, held Gorgias: and whereas he would have taken him alive, a certain horseman of the Thracians came upon him, and cut off his shoulder: and so Gorgias escaped into Maresa. 36 But they that were with Esdrin, fighting long, and being wearied, Judas invocated our Lord to be their helper and captain of the battle: 37 beginning in his country language, and with hymns raising a cry, drave Gorgias' soldiers into flight. 38 And Judas having gathered an army came into the city Odollam: and when the seventh day came on, being purified according to the custom, they kept the Sabbath in the same place. 39 And the day following Judas came with his company, to take away the bodies of them that were overthrown, and with their kinsmen to lay them in the sepulchres of their fathers. 40 And they found under the coats of the slain some (f) of the donaries of the idols, that were in Jamnia, from which the law forbiddeth the Jews: therefore it was made plain to all, that for that cause they were slain.

(f) It was commanded Deut. 7. v. 25. not to covet nor take any thing pertaining to idols, but to destroy all. See this sin punished. Iosue. 7. 1. Reg. 15. &c.

41 All therefore blessed the just judgement of our Lord, who had made manifest the hidden things. 42 And so turning to prayers, they besought him, that the same offence, which was committed, might be forgotten. But the most valiant Judas exhorted the people to keep themselves without sin, seeing before their eyes what was done, because of the sins of them that were overthrown. 43 And making a gathering, he sent twelve thousand drachmes of silver to Jerusalem for sacrifice to be offered for sin, well and religiously thinking of the resurrection. 44 (For unless he hoped that they that were slain should rise again, it should seem superfluous and vain to pray for the dead.)

45 And because he considered that they, which had taken their sleep (g) with godliness, had very good grace laid up for them.

(g) Unless it had been the doctrine & practice of the Church to pray for the dead, Judas could never have thought of any such matter.

46 It is therefore (h) a holy, and healthful cogitation to pray for the dead, that they may be loosed from sins. [1]

(h) It is only profitable for those that die penitent. [1] * li. 1. c. 6. v. 18.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XII.

[1] This text is clear for praying for the dead.
[2] in the argument. pa. 890.
[3] Likewise the Greek.

46. It is a holy and healthful cogitation to pray for the dead.] The Catholic belief, doctrine, and practice of praying for the dead, [1] is so evidently confirmed by this place, that our adversaries have no better shift to avoid the same, than by denying these Books to be Canonical Scripture. Which being authentically proved, [2] it may here suffice to add, that albeit the Greek text (as in other innumerable places) differeth from the Latin, yet it is no less clear for this doctrine. [3] Which in English is thus v. 45. Regarding (or considering) that grace is laid up for them that sleep (or die) in piety: to wit in true faith and repentance; in the next verse (46.) inferreth thus: Whereupon he (Judas Machabeus) made reconciliation (or expiation) for the dead, that they might be delivered (or loosed) from their sin, that is, from punishment for sin.

[1] Denial of this doctrine is heresy.
[2] S. Augustin. ep. 61. ad Dulcit. l. 1. c. 23. de morib. li. de cura pro mort. c. 1. & Enchir. c. 110.
[3] Mat. 12.

Omitting therefore multitude of other proofs, we will here only cite two great Doctors, [1] who with others teach that the denial of this particular point of religion is a condemned heresy. [2] S. Augustine li. de Haeresib. haer. 53. noteth this for a special heresy, saying: Aerians are named of one Aerius, who being a Priest, and taking it grievously that he could not be ordained a Bishop, falling into the heresy of the Arrians, added some proper doctrines of his own, saying: that we ought not to pray, nor offer sacrifice for the dead. Likewise S. Bernard, Ser. 66. in Cantica: in plain terms saith they are heretics, which believe not that there is purgatory fire after death, but that the soul departing from the body, goeth forthwith either to rest or to damnation. Let them then (saith he) ask of him who said: There is some sin that shall not be forgiven, neither in this world, nor in the future [3]: Why he said this, if there remain no remission, and purgation of sin in the future world? He therefore adviseth all to beware of such seducers, saying: See the detracters, see the dogs. They deride us, because we baptize infants: for that we pray for the dead.

[1] Judas was high priest when he caused prayers and sacrifice to be offered for the dead.
[2] It was the general practice of the Church.
[3] And is yet observed by the Jews.

[1] It is also most worthy of consideration, that Judas Machabeus, (who did this charitable act for his soldiers slain in the holy wars) was the High priest or chief Bishop of the Church at that time, and defender of true faith and Religion. Finally we may also observe that he did not any new thing, but practised the usual custom of the whole Church. [2] For so it appeareth by their set form of Office for the dead, called HASCHABAH, that is, Rest, or prayer for rest, in their book MAHZOR, translated and set forth by Bishop Genebrard, in the year of our Lord. 1569. Where are these express supplications. Requiescat anima ipsius in cubili suo: iaceat in pace: dormiat in pace. His (or her) soul rest in his bed: lie, and sleep in peace. Again Ye Angels of peace come forth to meet him. &c. [3] And that the Jews this day use to pray for the dead, is a clear thing, and confessed by Protestants, namely Munsterus, and Fagius in their Annotations upon the 14. of Deut. and M. Whitaker, in his first book against F. Dureus. fol. 81.

CHAPTER XIII.

Menelaus a fugitive Jew is put to death. 9. Antiochus with his great army is defeated twice, with loss of many men. 23. Philippe rebelling, peace is renewed. 24. And Judas is made Lord of Ptolemais.

In the year an hundred forty nine Judas understood, that Antiochus Eupator came with a multitude against Jurie. 2 and with him Lysias the procurator, and chief over the affairs having with him of footmen (a) an hundred ten thousand, and of horsemen five thousand, and elephants twenty two, chariots with hooks three hundred.

(a) In the first book, ch. 6. v. 30. the number of this army differeth from the number here recorded, the cause is for that sometimes those only are counted which were permanent, sometimes others are also counted which came uncertainly.
The like difficulties of differences occur often in the books of Kings and Paralipomenon.

3 And Menelaus also joined himself with them: & with much deceit besought Antiochus, not for the weal of his country, but hoping that he should be appointed to the principality. 4 But the King of kings stirred up Antiochus' mind against the sinner, and Lysias suggesting that he was the cause of all the evils, he commanded (as the custom is with them) that being apprehended he should be killed in the same place. 5 And there was in the same place a tower of fifty cubits, having an heap of ashes on every side: this had a prospect steep down. 6 From thence he commanded the sacrilegious person to be thrown down into the ashes, all thrusting him forward to death. 7 And by such law it chanced the transgressor of the law to die: and Menelaus not to be put into the earth. 8 And indeed very justly, because he committed many offences toward the altar of God, the fire and ashes whereof was holy: himself was condemned into the death of ashes. 9 But the king furious in mind, came to shew himself worse to the Jews than his father. 10 Which things when Judas understood, he commanded the people that day and night they should invocate our Lord, that as always now also he would help them: 11 as who were afraid to be deprived of the law, and their country, and the holy temple: and that he would not suffer the people that had of late taken breath a little while, to be again subdued to the blasphemous nations. 12 All therefore doing it together, and craving mercy of our Lord with weeping and fastings, being prostrate for three days continually, Judas exhorted them to prepare themselves. 13 But he with the ancients consulted, before the king should bring his army to Jury, and win the city, to go out, and to commit the event of the thing to the judgement of our Lord. 14 Committing therefore the power and charge of all to God, the creator of the world, and having exhorted his company to fight manfully, and to stand even to death for the laws, the temple, the city, their country, and citizens: he placed his army about Modin. 15 And having given a sign to his company of (b) the victory of God, with most valiant young men picked out, by night setting upon the king's court, in the camp he slew four thousand men, and the greatest of the elephants, with them that had been placed thereupon,

(b) The watch word this night was: The victory of God.

16 & he filled the camp of the enemies with exceeding fear & perturbation, & the things being prosperously achieved, they departed. 17 And this was done when the day appeared, the protection of our Lord helping him. 18 But the king having taken a taste of the hardiness of the Jews, attempted the difficulty of the places by policy: 19 & he moved his camp to Bethsura, which was a strong hold of the Jews: but he was put to flight, he fell, he was diminished. 20 And to them that were within Judas sent necessaries. 21 But one Rhodocus of the Jews' army uttered the secrets to the enemies, who being sought for was apprehended, and shut up. 22 Again the king had talk with them that were in Bethsura: he gave the right hand: he took it: he went away. 23 He joined battle with Judas, he was overcome. And as he understood that Philippe rebelled at Antioch, who was left over the affairs, dismayed in mind entreating the Jews, and yielding unto them, he sweareth concerning all things that seemed reason, and being reconciled he offered sacrifice, honoured the temple, and gave hosts. 24 He embraced Machabeus, and made him governor and prince from Ptolemais even to the Gerrenians. 25 But after, as he came to Ptolemais the Ptolemaians took grievously the covenant of amity, being offended lest perhaps they would break their league. 26 Then Lysias went up to the judgement seat, and declared the reason, and appeased the people, and returned to Antioch: and in this manner the king's journey and return proceeded. [1]

CHAPTER XIV.

Demetrius having taken certain holds from Antiochus, 3. Alcimus lately deposed from the office of high Priest, 6. accuseth good men of disloyalty, 11. others also incense Demetrius. 12. Whereupon Nicanor being sent into Jury, maketh Alcimus again high-priest: 18. hath peace with Judas, conversing with him most familiarly. 26. But by Alcimus' suggestion, seeketh to deliver him into the king's hands: 30. otherwise threateneth to profane the temple, 34. The Priests pray God to protect them. 37. Razias being accused, and pursued, 41. in extreme distress killeth himself with marvelous courage of spirit.

But [1] after the space of three years Judas understood, and they that were with him, that Demetrius the son of Seleucus with a strong multitude, & with ships was come up by the port of Tripolis to commodious places,

[1] Y

2 and held the countries against Antiochus, and his governor Lysias. 3 And one (a) Alcimus that had been highpriest, but voluntarily was contaminated in the time of the confusion, considering that there was safety for him by no means, nor access to the altar,

(a) Alcimus was of Aaron's stock li. 1. c. 7. v. 14. but for this apostasy here mentioned was uncapable of high priesthood, & so Mathathias was ordained, being of the same progeny and most sincere in religion.

4 came to king Demetrius in the year an hundred fifty, offering him a crown of gold, & a palm, & besides these, [1] Talloes, which seemed to be of the temple. And that same day indeed he held his peace.

[1] * a golden bough.

5 But having gotten a commodious time for his madness, being called of Demetrius to counsel, and asked on what thing and counsels the Jews rested, he answered: 6 They of the Jews that are called (b) Assidians, of whom Judas Machabeus is captain, nourish battles, and move seditions, neither do they suffer the realm to be quiet.

(b) This description of the Assideans made by their malicious enemy in calumnious and odious terms, sheweth well their singular zeal, & sincerity in promoting God's service. And so their adversary's malignant accusations more against them than all others, is a plain testimony of their more rare and more singular virtues.

7 For I also being defrauded of my ancestors' glory (I mean of the high priesthood) am come hither: 8 principally indeed keeping fidelity to the king's commodities, but secondly also providing for my citizens, for by their naughtiness all our stock is not a little vexed. 9 But all these things being known, o king, provide I pray thee, both for the country, and for our stock according to thy humanity published to all men. 10 For as long as Judas is alive, it is unpossible that there be peace to the affairs. 11 And such things being said of him, the other friends also behaving themselves as enemies against Judas, incensed Demetrius. [1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 7. v. 26.

12 [1] Who forthwith sent Nicanor, chief over the elephants captain into Jurie:

[1] A

13 giving him commission, that he should take Judas himself: but them that were with him, he should disperse, & make Alcimus the high priest of the greatest temple. 14 Then the nations, which had fled from Judas out of Jurie, joined themselves by troops with Nicanor, (c) esteeming the miseries and calamities of the Jews the prosperities of their own affairs.

(c) Apostates and politics make their gain by spoiling the faithful.

15 The Jews therefore having heard of Nicanor's coming, and the assembly of the nations, being sprinkled with earth besought him, that ordained his people to keep them for ever, & that protecteth his portion by evident signs. 16 And the captain commanding forthwith they removed from thence, and they came together to the castle of Dessau. 17 And Simon the brother of Judas had joined battle with Nicanor: but he was made afraid with the sudden coming of the adversaries. 18 Nevertheless Nicanor hearing the manliness of Judas' companions, & greatness of courage, that they had for the conflicts of their country, was afraid to make trial by blood.
19 Wherefore he sent Posidonius, and Theodotius, and Matthias before to give and take the right hands.
20 And when there was long consultation of these things, and the captain himself had moved it to the multitude, there was one sentence of them all to accord unto amity. 21 Therefore they appointed a day, wherein they might secretly deal among themselves, and seats were brought forth & set for every one.
22 But Judas commanded armed men to be in places convenient, lest perhaps some mischief might suddenly arise from the enemies: and they made agreeable communication. 23 Nicanor abode at Jerusalem, and did nothing unjustly, and the flocks of the multitudes, that had been gathered together he diminished. 24 And he esteemed Judas always dear from the heart, and he was inclined to the man.
25 And he desired him to marry a wife, and to beget children. He made a marriage, he lived quietly, and they lived in common. 26 But Alcimus seeing their charity one towards another, and the covenants, came to Demetrius, and said that Nicanor assented to foreign matters, and that he meant to make Judas being a traitor to the kingdom, his successor.
27 Therefore the king being exasperated with this man's most wicked criminations, wrote to Nicanor, saying, that he indeed was greatly displeased for the covenant of their amity: nevertheless that he commanded him to send Machabeus quickly prisoner to Antioch. 28 Which things being known Nicanor was amazed, and took it grievously, if he should undo those things which they had covenanted, being nothing hurt of the man. 29 But (d) because he could not resist the king, he observed opportunity whereby to accomplish the commandment.

(d) Nicanor a right worldly politic, a figure of Pilate and of such temporizing Judges, counsellers, and courtiers, as lack zeal in religion.

30 But Machabeus seeing that Nicanor dealt with him more austerely, and that he exhibited his accustomed meeting more sternly, understanding this austerity not to be of good, a few of his company gathered together, he hid himself from Nicanor. 31 Which when he understood that he was stoutly prevented of the man, he came to the most great and most holy temple: and the Priests offering the accustomed hosts, he commanded the man to be delivered unto him.
32 Who (e) saying with an oath, that they knew not where he was, that was demanded, stretching out his hand to the temple,

(e) They knew not precisely where Judas was, neither would they search for him to deliver him to the persecutor.

33 he sware, saying: Unless you will deliver Judas prisoner unto me, I will beat down this temple of God to the flat ground, and will dig down the altar, and this temple I will consecrate to (f) Liber pater.

(f) Bacchus called also Liber, and by many other names, feigned by infidels to be author and god of wine. And therefore drunkards dedicate feasts & temples to him.

34 And when he had said these things, he departed. But the Priests stretching forth their hands unto heaven, invocated him that was always the defender of their nation, saying thus: 35 Thou o Lord of all, which lackest nothing, wouldest a temple of thy habitation to be made among us. 36 And now o Lord holy of all holies, preserve for ever this house impolluted, which of late hath been cleansed. 37 And Razias one of the ancients of Jerusalem, was accused to Nicanor, a man that was a lover of the city, and well reported of, who for his affection was called father of the Jews. 38 This man long time kept the purpose of continency in Judaism, and content to give his body and life for perseverance. 39 But Nicanor willing to manifest the hatred that he had against the Jews, sent five hundred soldiers to take him. 40 For he thought if he had entrapped him, that he should do the Jews very great hurt. 41 But the multitudes coveting to rush into his house, and to break open the gate, and to set fire thereto, when he was in taking, (g) he struck himself with a sword:

(g) S. Augustin epist. 61. ad Dulcitium & l. 2. c. 23. ad epist. 2. Gaud. discussing this fact; saith the holy scripture doth tell it, not praise it. As to be admired not to be imitated, & that either it was not well done by him, or at least is not convenient in this time of grace.

42 choosing to die nobly rather than to be made subject to sinners, and against his noble birth to suffer unworthy injuries. 43 But whereas for haste he had not made the wound with a sure struck, and the multitudes brake in within the doors, running back boldly to the wall, he threw down himself manfully headlong unto the multitudes: 44 who quickly giving place to his fall he fell upon his neck. 45 And when he had breathed, incensed in mind he arose: and when his blood ran with a great stream, and he was wounded with most grievous wounds, running he passed through the multitude: 46 and standing upon a certain steep rock, and now being become without blood, griping his bowels, with both hands he cast them upon multitudes, invocating the dominatour of life and spirit, that he would restore these to him again: and so he departed this life. [1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 7. v. 39.

CHAPTER XV.

Nicanor intending to assault Judas on the sabbath day, 5. blasphemeth most proudly. 7. Judas with all confidence in God encourageth his men, 11. confirming them with the relation of a vision in sleep. 21. So he with fervent prayer, the enemy trusting his own strength, joineth battle, 27. and killeth thirty five thousand, and Nicanor amongst the rest. Whose head, and hand cut off with the shoulder are hanged up in Jerusalem: 33. his tongue given to the birds, and a festival day observed. 38. And herewith the Author (of this second Book) concludeth the whole history.

But Nicanor as he understood that Judas was in the places of Samaria, he purposed with all violence to join battle (a) the day of the Sabbath.

(a) Profane men make their advantage of religious men's good conscience, but Judas rightly instructed in this case defended his just cause also in the sabbath. li. 1. c. 3. v. 40.

2 But the Jews that of necessity followed him, saying do not so fiercely and barbarously, but give honour to the day of the sanctification, and honour him that beholdeth all things: 3 that unhappy man asked, if there were a power in heaven, that commanded the Sabbath day to be kept. 4 And they answering: There is the living Lord himself in heaven, the potent, that commanded the seventh day to be kept. 5 But he said. And (b) I am potent upon the earth, that commanded arms to be taken, and the king's affairs to be accomplished. Nevertheless he obtained not to accomplish his counsel.

(b) O Luciferian blasphemy!

6 And Nicanor indeed puffed up with exceeding pride, had thought to have set up a common victorious memory of Judas. 7 But Machabeus always trusted with all hope that there would come aid from God to them. 8 And exhorted his company, that they should not fear at the coming of the nations, but should have in mind the aids given unto them from heaven, and now should hope that they should have the victory from the Almighty. 9 And speaking unto them out of the law, and the Prophets, admonishing them also of the conflicts, that they had made before, he made them the more prompt: 10 and so their hearts being encouraged, withal he shewed the fraud of the Gentiles, and their breaking of oaths. 11 And he armed every one of them not with fence of buckler and spear, but with very good words, and exhortations, (c) declaring a dream worthy to be credited, whereby he rejoiced them all.

(c) This dream was from God as the effect shewed. And Judas knew also that it so was by internal inspiration, as Joseph Mat. 1. v. 20. was assured of his dreams.

12 And the vision was in this manner: Onias who had been the high-Priest, a good and benign man, reverent to behold, modest of manners, and comely of speech, and who from a child was exercised in virtues, that he stretching forth the hands prayed for all the people of the Jews. 13 After this that there appeared also another man marvelous for age, and glory, and for the port of great dignity about him. 14 And that Onias answering said: This is a lover of his brethren, and of the people of Israel: this is he that prayeth much for the people, and for the whole city, Jeremy the Prophet of God. 15 And that Jeremy put forth his right hand, and (d) gave unto Judas a sword of gold, saying:

(d) Jeremie (ch. 38. v. 17.) persuaded the King of Juda to yield himself with the city and people to the Chaldees, and not to resist. But now he delivereth a sword to Judas, exhorting him to fight: according to God's will in diverse cases, and times, for there is a time of war, and a time of peace. Eccle. 3. v. 8.

16 Take the holy sword a gift from God, wherewith thou shalt overthrow the adversaries of my people Israel. 17 Being exhorted therefore with the words of Judas exceeding good, by which the courages might be stirred up, & the hearts of the young men strengthened, they resolved to fight, and to encounter manfully: that manhood might decide the matter, because the holy city, and the temple were in danger. 18 (e) For there was less care for their wives, and children, and also for their brethren, and kinsmen: but the greatest and principal fear was for the holiness of the temple.

(e) God's honour, & holy things are first and principally to be respected, before worldly friends, though they also must be regarded in due order and place.

19 And they also that were in the city, took no little care for them that were to join battle. 20 And when they did all hope that judgement would be given, and the enemies were present, and the army was set in array, the beasts & horsemen disposed in convenient place, 21 Machabeus considering the coming of the multitude, and the variety of the provision of armour, and the fierceness of the beasts, stretching forth his hands unto heaven, he invocated our Lord, that worketh wonders, who not according to the might of arms, but according as it pleaseth him, giveth victory to the worthy. 22 And he said invocating in this manner: [1] Thou Lord which didst send thy Angel in the time of Ezechias king of Juda, and didst kill an hundred eighty five thousand of the camp of Sennacherib:

[1] 4. Reg. 19.

23 and now o Dominatour of the heavens send thy good Angel before us, in fear and trembling of the greatness of thine arm, 24 that they may be afraid, which with blasphemy come against thine holy people. And he indeed ended his prayer thus. 25 But Nicanor, and they that were with him, with trumpets & songs came near. 26 But Judas, & they that were with him, invocating God by prayers joined battle: 27 with the hand indeed fighting, but in their hearts praying to our Lord, they overthrew no less than five and thirty thousand, being greatly delighted with the presence of God. 28 And when they had ceased, and returned with joy, they understood that Nicanor was slain, for all his armour. 29 A shout therefore being made, and a great cry, they blessed the Almighty Lord in their country language. 30 And Judas, who by all means was in body and mind ready to die for his citizens, commanded that Nicanor's head, & hand with the shoulder being cut off, should be carried to Jerusalem. 31 Whither when he was come, having called his countrymen, and the Priests to the altar, he sent also for them that were in the castle. 32 And shewing them the head of Nicanor, and the wicked hand, which he stretching forth against the holy house of Almighty God, had mightily bragged. 33 The tongue also of impious Nicanor being cut out, he commanded to be given piecemeal to the birds: and the hand of the furious man to be hanged up against the temple. 34 All therefore blessed the Lord of heaven, saying: Blessed be he, that hath kept his place undefiled. 35 And he hung up Nicanor's head in the top of the castle, that it might be an evident, and manifest sign of the help of God. 36 Therefore all by common counsel decreed, by no means to let pass this day without solemnity: 37 but to keep the solemnity the thirteenth day of the month Adar, which is called in the Syrian language, the day before Mardocheus' day.[1]

[1] * li. 1. c. 8. v. 1. &c.

38 These things therefore being done concerning Nicanor, and (f) from that time the city being possessed of the Hebrews, I also in these will make an end of speaking.

(f) More being written in the first book, this author maketh one conclusion of all, because other persecuters being also overcome the land was again calm after storms.

39 And if well, and as is competent for a story, that^ myself also would: but if not so worthily^ it resteth to be pardoned me. 40 For as to drink always wine, or always water is hurtful, but to use now one now another is delectable: so to the readers, if the speech be always exact, it will not be grateful. Here therefore it shall be ended.

ANNOTATIONS.
CHAP. XV.

[1] Prayer of Saints is evidently proved by this place.

[2] it is also proved by many other holy Scriptures.

[3] Neither is this place to be omitted.

12. Onias prayed for all the people.` And v. 14. `Jeremy prayeth for the people.] As against prayer of the faithful for the dead: ch. 12. [1] so against prayer of Saints for the militant Church, Protestants have no better evasion, when they are pressed with these examples, than by denying the authority of the Books. For seeing the Prophet Jeremy, and the High-Priest Onias, being in Limbo patrum (no holy soul ascending into heaven before Christ) did pray for the whole people of the Jews, it is also certain that they, and other Saints in glory, do of their excellent charity pray for those that are in this mortal life. Yet neither do we Catholics urge this place, as though we had no other to allege, for we shew the same doctrine by other holy Scriptures,[2] Gen. 48. Exo 32. Jere. 15. Luc. 16. 2. Petri. 1. Apoc. 5. 6. 8. and others: neither must we omit these books, because our adversaries deny them, seeing the learned Doctors, and holy Fathers confirm the same doctrine by those Scriptures. Among others ancient Origen, tomo 18. in Ioan, saith, it appeareth that Saints departed from this life have care of the people, as it is written (saith he) in the Acts of the Machabees, many years after the death of Jeremy: [3] this is Jeremy the prophet of God, who prayeth much for the people. Likewise S. Bernard Ser. 3. vigil Nativit. Domini. & Ser. 11. again Ser. 76. in Cantica, admonisheth that a good religious man is like to this Onias: who prayeth to God for all the people.

◦The author of this book asketh pardon for his style, not for the doctrine nor history. But the authors of these Annotations crave pardon for all defects.

39. If not so worthily.] ◦He demandeth not pardon, as though he suspected any error in his doctrine or in the history, but of his unpolished style in writing. As S. Paul saith that himself was rude in speech, yet not in knowledge, 2 Cor. 11. v. 6.

But we, who by God's great goodness have passed not to the end of this English old Testament, justly fearing that we have not worthily discharged so great a work: & in nowise presuming that we have avoided all errors, as well of doctrine as history: much more we acknowledge that our style is rude & unpolished. And therefore we necessarily, and with all humility crave pardon of God & all his glorious Saints, Likewise of the Church militant, & particularly of you, right well beloved English readers, to whom as at the beginning we directed & dedicated these our endeavours: so to you we offer the rest of our labours, even to the end of our lives: in our B. Saviour JESUS Christ, to whom be all praise and glory. Amen.

THE CONTINUANCE OF THE CHURCH AND RELIGION IN THE SIXTH AGE: FROM THE CAPTIVITY in Babylon to the coming of our Saviour, near the space of 640. years.

SUCH is the providence of Almighty God, that not obscurely, or at some times only, but manifestly, and without intermission his Divine Majesty is acknowledged,◦ his name glorified; his Religion professed, and his precepts observed by a visible known Church, from the beginning of the world to the end thereof, as we have already shewed in the other five ages; and shall no less clearly declare the same in this sixth. For albeit the peculiar people of God were for their sins carried forth of their country, and held captives in Babylon seventy years, and after their reduction were subject to strangers ruling over them, and sometimes extremely afflicted with persecution, yet they still persevered in the same faith and religion, had succession of Priests, and of one High priest, with conservation also of the royal line of David, even to Christ our eternal King and Priest.

◦God's true Service hath always continued in the visible Church.

◦First therefore concerning Articles of faith and religion, the belief in one God was so generally confessed by the whole Jewish nation, that their Priests and Prophets did use it for a principle, in confirmation of other points, as well doctrinal as moral. So Malachie teaching that our neighbour is to be beloved, God to be served, and his laws to be kept: Is there not one Father of us all (saith he. ch. 2. v. 10.) Hath not one God created us? Why then doth every one of us despise his brother, violating the covenant of our fathers? More expressly Jeremy in his Epistle (Barac. 6.) sheweth the vanity and absurdity of many gods, exhorting the people to serve the one omnipotent God, saying to him sincerely in their hearts (v. 5.) Thou oughtest to be adored, o Lord. Likewise, when the Magicians of Chaldea ascribed the knowledge of dreams to false gods, Daniel with the other three children (ch. 2. v. 18.) prayed the God of heaven: and the mystery was revealed to Daniel. And he declared and expounded the King's dream. Who thereupon confessed to Daniel (v. 47.) In very deed your God is the God of gods, and Lord of kings. The same three children (Daniel 3.) were cast into the burning furnace, and Daniel into the lions' den (ch. 6. & 14.) ready to die for their faith in one God. For this faith also Mardocheus, as is written in the book of Esther, was persecuted, and he with all the people were in extreme danger. And the author of the book of wisdom teacheth that one God is known by consideration of his creatures: All men are vain (saith he. ch. 13. v. 1) that by things seen, understand not him that is: neither attending to the works agnise who was the workman. So the author of Ecclesiasticus ch. 1. v. 8. professeth: There is one most high Creator omnipotent, and mighty King, and to be feared exceedingly, sitting upon the throne, the God of Dominion.

◦Faith in one God is the ground of all Religion.

[1] As for the high Mystery of three Divine Persons in one God not so commonly revealed in the old testament, yet was it known and in some sort uttered: As Aggeus 2. v. 5. & 6. I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts, the word that I did covenant with you when you came out of the land of Aegypt: and my Spirit shall be in the midst of you. Where, by the Lord of hosts, is commonly understood God the Father; by his spirit, God the Holy Ghost, and the word may signify God the Son: of whose Incarnation the Prophet plainly speaketh in the next verses. For in this consisteth the covenant between God and his people, that they should keep his word of precepts and commandments expressed in the law: and he would send them the word, his only Son the Second Divine Person to redeem mankind. Again the same three Persons seem to be distinguished in

[1] The B. Trinity revealed to some and uttered obscurely in the old testament.

[2] Distinction of Persons in one God.

[3] The Father.

[4] The Son.

[5] The Holy Ghost.

[6] Other places prove plurality of Persons in God.

diverse places. [2] [3] God the Father is described according to man's small capacity, Daniel 7. v. 8. thus: Thrones were set, and THE ANCIENT OF DAYS sat: his vesture white as snow, and the hairs of his head as clean wool, his throne flames of fire, his wheels fire kindled. He is called Ancient of days, not only because he is eternal, for so are the other two Divine Persons, but this term is attributed to the Father, because in order he is the beginning, from whom the other two Persons proceed (The Son by generation, the Holy Ghost from the Father and the Son by procession.) [4] To God the son the same Prophet Daniel prayeth: ch. 9. v. 17. saying: Now therefore hear o our God, the petition of thy servant, and his prayers: and shew thy face upon thy Sanctuary which is desert, for thine own sake : that is, for thine own merits: which can only be understood of that Divine Person, which is incarnate. Zachary 12. v. 10. God speaking by the Prophet saith: I will pour out upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of prayers, which may easily be understood to be the promise of the B. Trinity: but that which immediately followeth: & they shall look towards me, whom they pierced, can only be spoken by the Second Divine Person, who only is incarnate, and was pierced in his Passion. In the book of wisdom is much written of wisdom increated, a term appropriated to God the Son. especially ch. 2. 7. 8. 9. and 10. The like in Ecclesiasticus, ch. 1. 4. 24. And ch. 51. v. 14. is distinct mention of the Father & the son: I have invocated (saith the author, or any faithful soul) our Lord, the Father of my Lord. [5] There is likewise particular mention of the Holy Ghost in some places. As 2. Esd. 9. v. 20. Thou gavest them the good Spirit, which should teach them. for the office of internal teaching is appropriated to the Holy Ghost. Joan 14. v. 17. and 16. v. 13. The spirit of truth, & he shall teach you all truth. Ezec. 36. v. 27. I will put my Spirit in the midst of you, and will make that you walk in my precepts. Zach. 7. v. 12. The words which the Lord sent in HIS SPIRIT, by the hand of the former Prophets. Sap. 1. v. 5. The Holy Ghost of discipline will fly from him that feigneth. Ecclesiasticus 1. v. 9. He created her in the Holy Ghost. 24. v. 29. They that eat ME, shall yet hunger, and they that drink ME, shall yet thirst. Where God calleth the Holy Ghost (which is received by grace) himself. Because all three Divine Persons are one God. [6] And that there be many Divine Persons in God who is one in substance, is sufficiently signified by all those holy Scriptures, where God is called by the name Elohim, in the plural number; especially seeing this name hath also the singular number, Eloha. As Job. 12. v. 4. & 36. v. 2. Daniel 2. v. 28. Habacuc. 1. v. 11. & 3. v. 3. Which last place seemeth most plainly to speak of the Son of God, ELOHA MITHEMAN IAVO. God will come from Theman, or from the South. And therefore where this word Elohim is used in the plural number (as in most places it is) it signifieth plurality of Persons in God.

[1] The mystery of Christ's Incarnation is more frequent & more plain in the holy Scriptures especially in the Prophets.

[2] Jeremy.

[3] Baruch.

[4] Ezech.

[5] Dan.

[6] Aggeus.

[7] Zacharias.

[8] Malachias.

[9] Also the books of wisdom.

[1] Christ's Incarnation is more clearly foreshewed by the Prophets, who above other consolations, most especially comforted the people by their prophecies of Christ our Saviour. Jeremie 23. v. 5. I will raise up to David a just branch, and he shall reign a King, and shall be wise, and he shall do judgement and justice in the earth. Ch. 31. v. 23. A woman shall compass a man. Christ though in body a little infant, yet in power and wisdom was most perfect of all men, even when he was in his mother's womb. Ch. 33. v. 14. Behold the days will come, saith our Lord, and I will raise up the good word. v. 15. I will make the spring of justice to bud forth unto David, & he shall do judgement and justice in the earth. [2] Jeremy's Lamentations are in greatest part of Christ and his Church. And some part can hardly be applied to any other. ch. 3. v. 30. He shall give the cheek to him that striketh him, he shall be filled with reproaches. c. 4. v. 20. Christ our Lord is taken in our sins . [3] Baruc. 2. v. 35. God promising to reduce the people from Babylon, addeth: And I will establish unto them another testament everlasting (by Christ, whose Kingdom is for ever) that I be their God, and they shall be my people. Ch. 3. v. 36. This is our God, and there shall none other be esteemed against him. v. 38. After these things he was seen upon the earth, and was conversant with men. [4] Ezechiel peculiarly called by an Angel the son of man, was therein a special figure of our Saviour, who so calleth himself. And the same Prophet hath in plain terms foreshewed the office of Christ the true Pastor of all pastors. ch. 24. v. 25. I will (saith God by his Prophet raise) up over them one Pastor, who shall feed them, my servant David; that is, Christ prefigured by David. His admirable visions in the three first chapters, and nine last pertain properly and principally to the new Testament of Christ, and his Church, shewing the aboundance of grace and glory given by him to the elect. [5] Daniel 7. v. 13. With the clouds of heaven there came in as it were the Son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and in his sight they offered him. He came even to the ancient of days, because in his Divinity he is equal to the Father: and in his humanity he is offered to God in Sacrifice. v. 14. His power is eternal: and his Kingdom shall not be corrupted. ch. 9. v. 24. Seventy weeks (of years) are abridged, that sins may be forgiven, grace be infused, prophecies be fulfilled, and the Holy one of holies be anointed. All which belong only to Christ. v. 26. After sixty two weeks Christ shall be slain. [6] Aggeus 2. v. 8. The desired of all nations shall come. [7] Zach. 3. v. 8. I will bring my servant the Orient. ch. 13. v. 7. Strike the Pastor, and the sheep shall be dispersed, fulfilled in Christ's Passion Mat. 26. v. 21. [8] Malach. 3. v. 2. Forthwith shall come to his temple the Dominator, whom you seek, & the Angel of the testament, whom ye desire. [9] The book of wisdom. ch. 2. v. 12. describeth the malice of the wicked against Christ: Let us (say they) circumvent the just, because he is unprofitable to us: and he is contrary to our works, and reproachfully objecteth to us the sins of the law. v. 13. He boasteth that he hath the knowledge of God, and nameth himself the Son of God. [10] Ecclesiasticus 24. v. 34. God appointed to David his servant, to raise up a King of him, most strong and sitting in the throne of honour for ever. Which eternal King proceeding from David can be none but Christ our Saviour. And all the praises of Patriarchs, & Prophets (in the last eight chapters) consist in their faith, and expectation of Christ. Likewise the Priests and people [11] 1. Mach. 14. v. 28. 35. and 49. shewed their faith of Christ to come, when they established Simon and his progeny in the government and high priesthood, for ever, till there rise the faithful Prophet, to wit the Prophet of whom all the Prophets did speak (Luc. 24. v. 27.)

[10] Ecclesiasticus.
[11] & Machabees.

Amongst the rest Jeremy, ch. 31. v. 23. and Ezechiel ch. 44. v. 2. ◦make also especial mention of some singular privileges of the most excellent Virgin Mother of God. Of whom also Judith and Esther were apparent figures, who received special graces for the benefit of their nation, and so did this singular Virgin receive of God most eminent gifts, above all other mere creatures, for the benefit of the whole Church.

◦Prophecies, & figures of the B. Virgin Mother of God.

[1] Of Angels the celestial spirits, is frequent mention in the holy Scriptures of this age. Their multitude is innumerable, and therefore are insinuated to men by general terms. Daniel. 7. v. 10. Thousands of thousands ministered to him, and ten thousand hundred thousands assisted him. [2] And their power is most great, and to men most profitable. An Angel defended the three children in the furnace, walking with them in the fire. Daniel 3. v. 49. 95. [3] Another defended Daniel from the lions. ch. 6. v. 22. The same or another carried Habacuc from Jury into Babylon. Dan. 14. v. 35. And restored him in his place again. v. 38. The Archangel Gabriel instructed Daniel, ch. 8. v. 16. 17. ch. 9. v. 21. And ch. 10. v. 13. & 20. Other Angels the Patrons or Guardians of the Persians and Grecians, prayed for those countries; and S. Michael v. 21. for the Jews. An Angel spake in Zachary. ch. 1. v. 9. Another Angel went to meet him. ch. 2. v. 3. And in respect of Angelical offices, both S. John Baptist, and our Saviour himself are figuratively called Angels. Malach. 3. v. 1. No marvel therefore that Judas Machabeus and his army, 2. Machab. 11. v. 6. prayed for the assistance of a good Angel, which was granted them. v. 8. And so they went promptly, having an helper from heaven. v. 10. Their like prayer had the same effect in another battle. 2. Machab. 15. v. 27.

[1] Angels excel corporal creatures in multitude.
[2] And in power.
[3] They help men and are lawfully invocated by men.

[1] Devils hating God, and all mankind never cease to tempt men to sin.

[2] They seek to be honoured with sacrifice.

[1] Contrary to these glorious Angels are other spirits, at first created in grace, which falling into pride and most obstinate malice, are perpetual enemies to God their Creator, and to all mankind, continually calumniating the works of God, and of all his servants, whereof they are called Devils, or calumniators. They never cease tempting all they can to evil, so to bring men to eternal death: For by the envy of the devil (Sap. 2. v. 7.) death (both of soul & body) came into this world. The just stipend of sin. All sins offend God and please the devils. [2] But more particularly they desire to be honoured as God with Sacrifice. Which therefore they require to themselves and their idols. And for this sin of Idolatry, above all others, God is most provoked to wrath: & for the same most especially punished his people: as the Prophet Baruch (ch. 4. v. 6.) signifieth to the people, saying: You are sold to the Gentiles, &c. You are delivered to their adversaries: and giving the reason why, he addeth v. 7. For you have exasperated him that made you, the eternal God, immolating to devils and not to God.

[1] Sacrifice is the proper service of God.

[2] Sacrifice of the new testament, in all places.

[3] More pure and excellent than the old.

[4] The old ceased and the new succeeded.

[5] Which shall also be abandoned by Antichrist.

[6] Transubstantiation confessed by Rabbins.

[1] The same all the Prophets teach, and withal that Sacrifice is the sovereign service due to God only, and not to any creature, how excellent soever. But of Sacrifice there is so much written, that it were over long and needless to recite the places. It importeth more to observe the predictions of the most excellent, and perfect Sacrifice of the new Testament. Malachie 1. v. 11. [2] From the rising of the sun (saith God by this Prophet) even to the going down, there is sacrificing, and there is offered in my name a clean oblation. In the old testament they offered cattle, & birds, by pouring out their blood about the altar, and drawing forth their bowels. For purging and cleansing whereof there was much washing and labour: [3] but now in the Church of Christ, is the clean Sacrifice of our Lord's body and blood, in forms of bread and wine. It is also in it-self so pure, that it cannot be polluted (as the old sacrifices were, v. 12.) by unworthy Priests, but is always available to some or other, ex opere operato. According to that the same Prophet testifieth, ch. 3. v. 4. The Sacrifice of Juda and Jerusalem shall please our Lord. Which is necessarily understood of the Christians' sacrifice: for else this place were contrary to that which God said to the Jewish Priests. ch. 1. v. 10. I have no will in you, and I will not receive gift at your hand. Daniel also prophesieth, ch. 9. v. 27. [4] that in the half of the week the host and the sacrifice shall fail. Ch. 12. v. 11. The continual sacrifice shall be taken away, thereby signifying that not only after the figure, the Sacrifice prefigured should succeed (for else there should be no daily Sacrifice at all in the new Testament, which Malachie saith plainly there shall be, not in one, or in few places, but from the rising of the sun, even to the going down, &c.) but also that both the old and new sacrifices should be taken away in their several times. [5] For so our Saviour (Mat. 24. v. 15.) applieth the next words of this prophecy, and abomination of desolation shall be set up, not only as a sign before the destruction of Jerusalem, but also of the end of the world. Verified in part as in the figure, when the temple was destroyed, & diverse profanations made in the same place: but more especially shall be fulfilled by Antichrist, abolishing the holy Sacrifice of Christ's body and blood, so much as he shall be suffered: as S. Hyppolitus writeth, lib. de Antichristo, & in oratione de consummatione mundi. Agreeable to S. Ireneus. lib. 4. c. 32. & li. 5. in fine S. Jerom. in Dan. 12. Theodoretus in eundem locum, and S. Chrysostom in opere imperfecto. [6] Yea some Hebrew Rabbins acknowledge Transubstantiation, in the Eucharist, as R. David Kimbi witnesseth upon these words of Osee. 14. v. 8. They shall live with wheat, & shall spring as a vine: Many of our Doctors (saith he) expound this, that there shall be mutation of nature in wheat, in the times of our Redeemer Christ.

◦Baptism.

This Rabbi David also, and the Chaldee Paraphrasis expound Ezechiel's Prophecy, ch. 36. v. 25. I will pour out upon you clean water, of the remission of sin, though they signify not by what particular means. Which Christian Doctors undoubtedly explicate of the Sacrament of Baptism.◦ And likewise his other prophecy, ch. 47. v. 1. waters issued forth under the threshold of the house towards the East, cannot be understood of any other waters than of Baptism.

The purifications, oblations, and other works of penance practised by the people, after their return from captivity, written. 2. Esd. 9. 10. 13. testify their observation of the law in this point, by which ◦the Sacrament of penance in the new testament was prefigured.

◦Penance.

In like sort the ◦continuance of Priesthood, and Priestly functions is manifest in the books of Esdras, and of other Prophets, which prefigured the Sacrament of holy Orders, in the Church of Christ.

◦Holy Orders.

In these times also the ◦feasts instituted by the law, were observed with more or less solemnity, as time, place, and other opportunities served. As Esdras testifieth. li. 1. c. 3. v. 2. Iosue (the high-Priest) & Zorobabel (the duke) after their return from captivity, built an altar (notwithstanding the threats of infidels) & offered upon it holocaust to our Lord morning & evening. And they made the solemnity of tabernacles, and other feasts, as well in the Calends, as in all the solemnities of our Lord, though the temple was not yet built again (v. 6.) And afterwards upon new occasion, Judas Machabeus, 1. Mach. 4. & 2. Mach. 10. instituted a new feast, which our Saviour observed. Ioan. 10. v. 12.

◦Feasts.

The like observation was kept of fasts. For amongst the feasts which were all duly performed (1. Esd. 3. v. 5.) one was of Expiation, which consisted in fasting from even to even. Levit. 23. Num. 29. [1] And besides the ordinary, [2] Esdras appointed a peculiar fast for special purposes, 1. Esd. 8. v. 21. And I proclaimed (saith he) a fast, beside the river Ahava, that we might be afflicted before the Lord our God: and might desire of him a right way for us and our children. And (v. 23.) we fasted and besought our God hereby: and it fell out prosperously unto us. Again, 2. Esd. 9. v. 1. The children of Israel came together in fasting, and sackcloths, and earth upon them. See more of fasting Judith. 4. & 9. Esther. 5. & 14. Zachar. 8. [3] And of Abstinence from certain meats according to the law, Daniel 1. & 9. Judith. 10. & 12. 2. Mach. 9. & 7.

[1] Feasts ordinary.
[2] And extraordinary.
[3] Abstinence.

[1] More generally the whole form of good life is excellently prescribed in the books of wisdom and Ecclesiasticus. Where under the general virtues of Wisdom and Justice, all are admonished to seek diligently to know God, and to serve him. As much as to say, to have faith and good works: the two feet, and legs, on which the godly walk unto life everlasting. Let one short sentence here serve for example (wishing all men to read more in the books themselves) Sap. 6. v. 18. 19. & 20. is this gradation. The beginning of wisdom is the true desire of discipline; the care of discipline is love; & love is the keeping of her laws: & the keeping of the laws is the consummation of incorruption: & incorruption maketh to be next to God. [2] These are the steps from earth to heaven, from this vale of miseries to eternal happiness. First, a true and sincere desire of discipline, or of God's true service: 2. This desire or care of discipline breedeth love of God: 3. love is the keeping of laws, the commandments of God: [3] for he that saith he loveth God, and keepeth not his commandments is a liar: 4. Keeping the laws is the consummation of incorruption: making the soul perfect in virtues, & free from corruption of sins: 5. and this incorruption maketh to be next to God, joining man with God, which is the perfect beatitude of eternal life. And so he concludeth. v. 22. Therefore (from first to last by degrees) desire of wisdom leadeth to the everlasting kingdom. [4] Yet must we understand that neither the first step of good desire, nor any of the rest is in a man's own power as of himself, [5] so much as to think a good thought, but God's grace preventeth, stirreth men up, & continually assisteth, in all good beginnings, progress, & perseverance, as the same divine author teacheth a little before, v. 14. wisdom preventeth them that covet her, that she first may shew herself unto them. Then to admit or refuse is in their power, that have good motions. And therefore sin is rightly imputed, and damnation justly inflicted upon the wicked: because as Nehemias (2. Es. 9. v.

[1] Form of good life prescribed in the sapiential books.

[5] 2. Cor. 3.
[6] Confidence of good works done in grace.

17.) testifieth of the ungrateful people, they would not hear. And they hardened their necks, and gave the head to return to their servitude as it were by contention, or striving against God, through their own free will; which appeareth here to remain in sinners. [6] On the other side the same Nehemias in confidence of reward for good works, and of his voluntary cooperating with God's grace, feared not to pray (2. Esd. 5. v. 19.) in these words: Remember me my God to good, according to all things which I have done to this people.

[1] Voluntary vows like to Evangelical counsels.

[2] Perpetual virginity.

Some men moreover besides the commandments of the law, [1] voluntarily professed a peculiar state of holy life, a plain figure, or rather an example of Evangelical counsels. As in the former ages the Nazarites, whose rule is prescribed Numeri 6. practised by Sampson (Iudic. 13.) & Samuel (1. Reg. 1.) & the Rechabites (Jer. 35.) so in this last age next before Christ the Assideans, or Esseni. 1. Mach. 2. v. 42. of whom Judas Machabeus in his time was head or captain. 2. Mach. 14. v. 6. [2] Jeremie the prophet (ch. 16. v. 2.) by God's ordinance lived single unmarried all the time of the captivity. Thou shalt not take a wife, and thou shalt not have sons and daughters in this place, to wit in Jerusalem. Neither did he marry when he was afterward in Aegypt. But of his own accord remained a virgin all his life, as S. Jerom writeth, li. 1. advers. Iovinianum.

[1] Prayers of Saints.

[2] Relics.

[3] Holy vessels.

[4] Sign of the Cross.

[1] Prayer of Saints after they are departed from this world is manifestly deduced of the sacred text, Jere. 15. v. 1. of Moyses and Samuel, not to be heard if they should pray for the people, whom God had decreed to punish, were consequently to be heard in some other case. And more expressly. 2. Mach. 15. v. 12. & 14. is recorded that Onias and Jeremy did pray for all the people, & for all the holy city. [2] Reverent estimation of Relics and other holy things is manifest by the fact of the same Prophet Jeremie, who by God's ordinance (2. Mach. 2. v. 1. & 5.) hid the holy fire, and the Tabernacle, and the Ark, & the altar of incense in a cave, that they should not be profaned by infidels ransacking Jerusalem, and the temple: [3] Other holy ornaments also, and vessels were restored by the favourable King Cyrus, 1. Esd. 1. v. 7. & ch. 8. v. 30. [4] In figure also of the holy Cross on which Christ was to redeem mankind, those that mourned for the abominations in Jerusalem (Ezec. 9.) were signed in their foreheads with the letter Thau, or T. and so were saved from the common slaughter of the unsigned.

◦Prayer for the dead.

◦Prayer and Sacrifice for the dead is likewise clear 2. Mach. 12. v. 43. &c. if either the text may be admitted for Canonical, saying (v. 46.) It is a holy & healthful cogitation to pray for the dead; or for good testimony of Judas' fact, being High-priest, and doing that which the whole Church practised, and which the Jews yet observe to this day.

◦Resurrection.

◦Of the General Resurrection, is good testimony in the same place v. 43. and 44. as the ground of Judas his piety towards the dead, Well and religiously thinking of the Resurrection. For unless he hoped that they which were slain should rise again, it should seem superfluous and vain to pray for the dead. But seeing he did believe the Resurrection, he did right well and piously. And seeing the belief of resurrection is true, it followeth, as this author inferreth, that it is a holy thing to pray for the dead.

[1] Judgement.

[2] Everlasting punishment, and eternal reward.

[3] The coming of Elias, & conversion of the Jews.

Malachie the last of the Prophets, in the last chapter foresheweth, and describeth the [1] General judgement, in the end of this world: wherein the wicked shall be condemned, and the just eternally rewarded. [2] Which day shall come (saith he) kindled as a furnace. All that do impiety (dying in that state) shall be stubble, and that day shall inflame them. And there shall rise to you that fear my name, the Sun of justice, and health in his wings, or glorious beams, healing and curing all bodily infirmities & defects. Before which day he foretelleth of two signs, v. 5. [3] The coming of Elias the Prophet, and v. 6 & the conversion of the Jews to Christ. And thus much may here suffice, for particular points of religion in this age.

◦It resteth to view the state and government of the Church in this time which may be considered according to the four Monarchies of heathen nations, the Chaldees, the Medes & Persians, the Grecians, and the Romans. Under the Chaldees, whose Emperial city was Babylon, they were in captivity seventy years. By the Medes and Persians (for that Monarchy consisted of those two nations) they were released from captivity with many favours, yet sometimes afflicted. Under the Monarchy of the Grecians, they were partly in extreme persecution of Antiochus Epiphanes, & of other Grecian Kings & Princes, partly in wars for defence of God's laws. Before and after which persecution and wars, as well under the Grecians as the Romans till Christ's Passion, the Church was for most part in peace, yet sometimes afflicted. But omitting many intricate difficulties about the times and reigns of sundry heathen Kings, it will suffice our purpose, to shew the general state of the Jewish nation, with their own particular governers spiritual and temporal, with more or less favour of foreign Princes.

◦The state of the Church in the times of heathen Monarchies in general.

[1] First therefore concerning their estate in their captivity in Babylon, we may here observe God's providence, in that before the city and temple of Jerusalem were destroyed, and the whole nation made captive, Ioachin (otherwise called Jechonias) the son of Joachaz (who was also called Jechonias) King of Juda was transported into Babylon, and his mother, and many other principal persons. (4. Reg. 24. 15.) Likewise Josedech son of Saraias high Priest (1. Paral. 6. v. 15.) was carried into Babylon. And in the mean time Sedecias (uncle to Ioachin) reigned in Juda, who in the eleventh year was taken and carried captive into Babylon, and there died, Ioachin yet living in prison. And Saraias the High-priest with others was slain in Rebla, when Jerusalem was destroyed. 4. Reg. 25. v. 18. & 21. To whom Josedech succeeded in the high-Priesthood. So that both the issue of David, in the right line of our Saviour's genealogy, and the High-Priest of Aaron's stock, [2] were in Babylon before the whole body of the nation was brought thither. This Jechonias (or Ioachin) remained in prison, till the death of Nabuchodonosor, the space of thirty seven years, and was then delivered by Evilmerodach, [3] and by him entertained courteously as a Prince, 4. Reg. 25. v. 27. He married there and had issue Salathiel; and Salathiel had Zorobabel. Who together with Josue son of Josedech high-Priest, & Esdras, Nehemias, & others recited 1. Esd. 2. conducted the children of Israel from Babylon into their country. There were also in a former transmigration [4] Daniel and the other three children, Ananias, Misael, & Azarias, (of the royal or principal blood) in the third year of Ioakim (otherwise called Eliacim son of Iosias. 4. Reg. 23. v. 34.) King of Juda. Dan. 1. v. 1. 6. These with others were carried as hostages into Babylon, and brought up more liberally. Where serving God sincerely, & abstaining from unlawful meats, they were protected by God, much also esteemed & promoted in that place. For Daniel about the age of twelve years, convinced the two wicked Judges, and delivered Susanna from their cruel hands. Dan. 13. And afterwards for declaring and interpreting the King's dream (Dan. 2.) and excellent wisdom, and gift of prophecy, [5] was admired by all, advanced by the King: but maligned by certain envious sorcerers and great men. [6] Whereby he was sometimes in great danger, but still delivered by God's power protecting him. [7] Dan. 6. & 14. The other three children were likewise advanced Dan. 2. v. 49. and therefore by diverse envied, & for refusing to adore an idol set up by Nabuchodonosor were cast into a hot burning furnace, and there preserved. Dan. 3.

[1] Their state in the captivity.

[2] King Jechonias, and Josedech High-Priest were in Babylon before the whole nation was captive.

[3] Jechonias entertained in captivity as a Prince.

[4] Daniel with other three children were carried before any of the Kings into Babylon.

[5] They were singularly esteemed.

[6] Sometimes in danger.

[7] But preserved by God.

◦Jeremie, who before this time began to prophesy whiles he was a child, (Jere. 1.) continued in the time of captivity, in Jerusalem and Jury, with much affliction, and still prophesying finally died in Aegypt. Baruch his scribe, and also a Prophet, went sometimes into Babylon, and returned into Jury (Baruch. 1.) instructing and exhorting the people.

◦Jeremy prophesied in Jerusalem and in Aegypt.

◦Ezechiel and Daniel in Babylon.

◦Ezechiel was carried with King Jechonias and Josedech into Babylon, and there prophesied (ch. 1. v. 2.) part of the same time with Daniel, in great part the same things with Jeremie. And during the captivity, King Jechonias, Josedech the high-Priest, Jeremie, Baruch, Ezechiel Prophets, & innumerable others (some Martyrs, and many Confessors) parted from this world. But Daniel yet lived. And in place of Josedech Highpriest Josue succeeded, and the progeny of King Jechonias continuing in Salathiel and Zorobabel, the nation had them and other eminent men, with temporal dependence upon foreign Princes in the next Monarchy of the Medes and Persians.

[1] The Monarchy of Medes and Persians.

[2] Cyrus licensed the Jews to return and build up their temple.

[3] Prophecy of Christ, after seventy weeks.

[1] For when Darius King of Medes had slain Baltazar King of the Chaldees, and so possessed Babylon, with the whole country, he brought the Monarchy to the Medes and Persians. Dan. 5. v. 31. and within the space of one year he died; [2] and Cyrus succeeding granted leave to all the Jews to return into Jury; and there to build up their temple, and city of Jerusalem, which Nabuchodonosor had destroyed. At which time Daniel had his vision, that Christ our Saviour should come into the world, within seventy weeks (of seven years to the week, that is, in four hundred ninety years) after the perfect finishing of the temple and city. Dan. 9. v. 24. & 25. [3] But when they were so built again, that the weeks began to be counted, is very obscure: as it was the will of God, that the prophecy, being certain in it-self, should not be over clear to every man's understanding, but as likewise many other prophecies, shut and sealed. Dan. 12. v. 6. 9. 13.

[1] Mardocheus.

[2] Esther.

[3] Aman.

In this time of the Medes and Persians' Monarchy, [1] Mardocheus remaining in Chaldea, after the relaxation had that vision in a dream, Esther. 11. after which followed the history of him, & [2] Queen Esther, and wicked [3] Aman; with the danger and delivery of all the Jews in those parts.

◦Judith.

Some think it likewise probable that the history of ◦Judith happened after the captivity; though others suppose that it was in the time of Manasses King of Juda: which not being our purpose to discuss and decide, we will pass to things more certain.

[1] Aggeus and Zacharias.

[2] The Church more glorious in the new testament.

[1] The Prophets Aggeus & Zacharias near twenty years after the relaxation, earnestly exhorted the Princes & people to build up the temple, which had been begun, and now was neglected upon vain fear, thinking the time was not yet come of building the house of our Lord. Aggeus 1. v. 2. whereupon the Prophet reproveth them, expostulating thus: Why, is time for you to dwell in embowed houses, and this house (of our Lord) desert? And assureth them v. 10. that their ground should remain barren, & ch. 2. v. 15. their sacrifice ungrateful, till they should build the temple: promising moreover that this new temple should be more glorious by Christ's personal presence therein, [2] than the former temple, built by Salomon. But specially the Church of Christ prefigured of by the temple, should far excel the Synagogue of the old testament. ch. 2. v. 10. Great shall be the glory of this last house more than of the first. Which Zacharie confirmeth inviting the Gentiles to come and the Jews to return into Christ's Church: ch. 2. v. 6. O fly out of the land of the North, saith our Lord, because into the four winds of heaven have I dispersed you. v. 7. O Sion fly thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon. And by diverse other visions & prophecies they foreshew the conversion of the Gentiles, & rejection of the Jews for their obduration but in the end they also shall be converted.

◦Malachie.

◦Malachie prophesied after the finishing of the temple, exhorting all to offer their sacrifices with purity of heart, reprehending both priests and people for not so doing. ch. 1. He also foresheweth the rejection of the Jews, & calling of the Gentiles, with the change of the old sacrifices, and institution of a new far more excellent, and more effectual, to be offered every-where (v. 10. & 11.) He concludeth his prophecy ch. 4. foretelling the terrible day of Judgement, and life or death everlasting.

These later prophets yet living, as Josephus, Eusebius, Theodoretus and others testify in their histories, [1] the Grecians obtained so great a Monarchy by king Alexander the Great of Macedo, that being parted after his death amongst many, yet all were great kingdoms, some longer some shorter time. [2] In the beginning whereof when king Alexander came to Jerusalem, as Josephus writeth li. 11. c. 8. Antiquit. Iaddus the High Priest going forth in his pontifical attire to meet him, the same King straightways fell down at his feet with all reverence. And being demanded by his friends, the Princes of his army, why he so much honoured the High-Priest, he answered, that he honoured not the man for himself, but for his office, and God in him, who had appeared to him in sleep in that very habit, and ornaments, when he in Macedonia discoursed in his mind of making battle against the Persians, promising him assured victory. Shortly after this it happened, that Manasses an Apostata High Priest, by intercession of Sanaballat, whose daughter he had unlawfully married, obtained licence to build a temple in Garizim, [3] which the Samaritanes afterwards pretended to be more ancient than the temple of Jerusalem, against which our Saviour gave sentence. Ioan 4. v. 22. It was also decided by King Ptolomeus in Alexandria (as Iosephus witnesseth li. 13. c. 6.) by way of arbitrement, finding that the temple of Jerusalem, and the High-Priests thereof had a perpetual succession from Salomon's time, and that their pretence of Jacob's adoring in Garizim was not to the purpose, seeing there was no succession, that temple being lately built. Nevertheless the same Ptolomeus to gratify Onias and other Apostata, son of good Onias High-Priest and Martyr (2. Macab. 4. v. 34.) gave leave to build another temple in Aegypt, [4] which stood likewise in schism against the true temple of Jerusalem, wresting to their purpose the Prophecy of Isaie. ch. 19. v. 19. In that day there shall be an altar of our Lord in the midst of Aegypt. Which S. Jerom sheweth to be understood of the Church of Christ. Before this last schismatical temple, [5] and after the former were the Seventy two Interpreters, or Translators of the Hebrew Bible into Greek. Of whom S. Jerom and all ancient Fathers speak much, and esteem of very great and Canonical authority.

In the time of the Grecians' Monarchy, [1] profane learning flourished more than before, and Philosophers abounded, but differed exceedingly amongst themselves, & all erred in the principles both of Natural & Moral knowledge. For whereas indeed God omnipotent was the only maker of the whole world, and all things therein, all these Philosophers supposed & taught, that some material thing was coeternal with God: and so they put the same thing to have been the beginning of all other things. [2] Which some say was the water, some the Air, some the Earth, some the fire, some all these four Elements, some the Atoms, or indivisible small bodies, some one thing some another. Whereof S. Epiphanius writeth in compendio contra haereses. And the like absurd conceits they had of the chief Good, or [3] Summum bonum. Which the [4] Pythagorians thought to be nothing else but a certain immortality of the soul, and so, as it may still be in a body. And therefore seeing both men and beasts do die, they held opinion, that when a soul parteth out of one body, it goeth into another. Yea and maketh transmigration from one species or kind to another. As from a man's body into the body of a horse, or an oxe; and contrarywise from a brute beast into a man again, and from one beast into another. [5] The Stoics put the chief good in virtues, but could reach no further than to a certain contentment of joy in their mind, not knowing the reward of virtues to consist in seeing God. Platonics or Academics [6] conceived more of God, and pure spirits, but thought both corporal and spiritual creatures were coeternal with God. The [7] Peripatetics placed the chief good or felicity in the aggregation of best spiritual, corporal, and worldly things together. [8] The Epicures esteemed carnal and bodily pleasures above all. And all these and their followers judged so diversely of the right true felicity, contradicting and condemning each other's opinions, that they were multiplied into innumerable Sects. As S. Augustin declareth out of Marcus Varro: and opposeth against them all, [9] the one assured faith and judgement of God's Church, in his 19. book de civit. Dei. c. 4. And concludeth with the Royal Prophet, and S. Paul, that their cogitations are vain, which will have happiness to be in any other thing but in seeing God; or to be obtained by any other means without God's grace. And not only before & since, but also in the same times the authors of The Books of wisdom & Ecclesiasticus taught right doctrine against those erroneous Philosophers.

[4] For circumcision.
[5] For keeping the Sabbath.
[6] For abstaining from swine's flesh.

[1] For profession also of true faith and religion the Machabees both suffered and laboured most notably, [2] when King Antiochus Epiphanes (1. Mach. 1. v. 43.) wrote to all his kingdom, that all the people should be one, and every one should leave his own law. And whosoever should not do according to the word of Antiochus they should die. Against which most wicked decree, and cruel execution thereof, God's grace so abounded that (v. 56.) many of the people of Israel, determined with themselves, that they would not eat the unclean things: and they chose rather to die, than to be defiled with unclean meats: and that they would not break the holy law of God, & so were murdered: [3] As is more particularly recorded, 2. Mach. 5. v. 14. how there were in the space of three days fourscore thousand slain, forty thousand imprisoned, & no less sold. After this with more pretence of justice, but with more malice, endeavouring to terrify others, & to draw them to yield, or make shew of conformity to wicked laws, ch. 6. v. 10. [4] two women were accused to have circumcised their sons whom when they had led about through the city, with the infants hanging at their breasts, they threw down headlong by the walls. And v. 11. [5] Other people were burnt with fire, for secretly keeping the day of the Sabbath. Thirdly v. 18. Eleazarus being urged to eat swine's flesh, and entreated by his familiar friends to make shew of conformity, would neither eat, nor feign to eat it, but died most constantly, leaving an example of virtue & fortitude. [6] Fourthly seven brethren and their mother (2. Mach. 7.) yielded also their lives in most glorious Martyrdom, because they would not yield conformity to wicked laws.

[1] Holy wars for the Church and religion.
[2] Matthathias.

[1] After which heroical constancy in suffering, it was also God's providence, that others should shew their fortitude, in delivering his Church from these calamities and dangers. [2] For Matthathias of the tribe of Levi, and stock of Aaron Priest, and (after the apostasy of Jason li. 2. c. 4. v. 10.) Highpriest, lamenting the pitiful state of God's people, with resolute mind, and invincible courage resisting wicked Antiochus (1. Mach. 2.) of just zeal with his own hands slew one, who for fear of death was ready to offer sacrifice to idols, & withal killed the King's commissioner, who came to compel men to commit idolatry: and then gathered troops to defend so holy a cause. Against whom the enemies fighting on the sabbath days killed many, which of scruple would not resist. But upon further consideration, the rest resolved to defend themselves also on the sabbath day, if they were assaulted.

[1] Judas Machabeus.
[2] A religious prayer.
[3] The temple cleansed.

[1] Next to him succeeded his son Judas Machabeus in both the offices of High Priest & General captain: who (as good order required) first pursued the wicked (to wit amongst his own subjects) inquiring them out, and such as troubled his people, them he burned with fire. 1. Mach. 3. v. 5. and his enemies were repelled for fear of him: all the workers of iniquity were troubled: and salvation was directed in his hand. For he & his followers. 2. Mac. 8. v. 2. [2] invocated our Lord, that he would have respect to his own people; the temple; the city; hear the voice of blood crying unto him, remember the most unjust deaths of innocents, and the blasphemies done to his name. So he with a few (having made this preparation by prayer) overthrew the army of Antiochus, with their four principal captains Apollonius (1. Mach. 3. v. 11.) and (v. 23.) Seron, (ch. 4.) Gorgias and Lysias. [3] Then cleansing the temple (v. 36. & l. 2. ch. 10.) renewed the holy vessels, which were destroyed by Antiochus, and dedicated a new altar. v. 47. & 56.

And whiles Judas with his brethren delivered the people from all bordering enemies. 1. Mach. 5. & li. 2. ch. 10. & 11. Antiochus Epiphanes li. 1. c. 6. & li. 2. ch. 9. died most miserably[1]. And his young son Antiochus Eupator reigned. Against whose captains Judas had still more victories. li. 2. ch. 12. & 13. Then followed the last battle of [2]Nicanor sent by King Demetrius, where he was slain by Judas' forces, in the midst of his army. li. 1. ch. 7. & li. 2. ch. 15. whereof Demetrius hearing sent new forces with Bacchides and Alcimus, and more than two parts of Judas small camp flying away, he with only eight hundred. li. 1. ch. 9. setting upon the enemies defeated the strongest part of their army: but another part coming at his back great slaughter was made on both sides, and Judas after many heroical acts was now slain in battle, dying with most renowned glory.[3] v. 8. all good men lamenting his death.

[2] Nicanor slain.
[3] Judas died gloriously.

[1] After him Jonathas his brother succeeded Highpriest & general captain, ch. 9. v. 28. who managing the common affairs with great wisdom, piety, and courage, the wicked usurper Alcimus, who not long before swearing that he would not hurt the Assideans presently killed threescore of them in one day. li. 1. ch. 7. v. 15. and beginning to deface the temple, was suddenly strucken with a palsy, and died miserably[2] li. 1. ch. 9. v. 54. Jonathas prospering against the enemies confirmed league with the Romans and Lacedemonians, ch. 12. At last was deceived, and both he and his sons were treacherously slain by Tryphon, ch. 13. [3]So Simon his brother was made Highpriest and captain general by public consent. ch. 14. who after many noble acts, ch. 15. was also villainously slain with two of his sons, by his son in law Ptolomee. And his other son [4]Joannes Hyrcanus succeeded, ch. 16. In his days the Jews in Jerusalem writ to their brethren in Aegypt, exhorting them not to frequent the schismatical temple in Aegypt, but to keep the feasts which were instituted in Jerusalem. Thus much of the troublesome state of the Church, reduced to peace by the Machabees.

[1]Shortly after which time, the Roman kingdom having been often increased in the space of near seven hundred years from the building of Rome, was by Pompeius, subduing the East countries, extended so far, that as Pliny writeth. li. 7. c. 26. Asia Minor was now as it were the middle part, which before was the uttermost borders of their dominions. And the same Pompeius, amongst the rest, taking Jerusalem, brought the Jews under the Roman Empire, near fourscore years before Christ. Under whom they enjoyed some liberty, till [2]Herod Ascalonita a stranger born (his father an Idumean, his mother an Arabic) was first made governor of Galilee, then Tetrarch of Judea, and afterwards King thereof. Who being advanced by the Romans to royal dignity, endeavouring by sundry benefits to get the people's favour, amongst other things [3]enlarged and adorned their Temple, making it as it were a new edifice, in comparison of that which was built after the captivity: yea more excellent as some think, than that which Salomon built. [4]But this new King made sale of spiritual offices. Namely he sold the office of the Highpriest for money. [5]And that from year to year, or for short and limited time. In him was fulfilled the prophecy of the Patriarch Jacob, Gen. 49. giving it for a sign that Christ our Redeemer should presently come into this world,[6] saying. The sceptre shall not be taken away from Judas, and a duke out of his thigh, till he do come that is to be sent, and the same shall be the expectation of the Gentiles. And therefore Herod hearing by the Sages, that the true King of Jews was born, in extreme fury murdered the innocent Infants. Mat. 2. And so both Jews and Gentiles were admonished that the Messias was born of the seed and right line of King David.

All which time the true High Priests were of the Machabees, Matthathias & his sons Judas, Jonathas, & Simon, his son Ioannes Hyrcanus. Then Aristobolus, Iosue, Simon, Matthias, Iosephus, Iozarus, Eleazarus, Iosue, Anna, Ismael, Eleazarus, Simon, and Caiphas. Who in councel (Ioan. 11. v. 49.) gave sentence (which himself understood not) that it was expedient, that one man die for the people, and the whole nation perish not. Which the holy Evangelist ascribeth to his office, being highpriest of that year, he prophesied that JESUS should die for the nation: and not only for the nation, but to gather into one the children of God, that were dispersed.

JESUS REDEEMER, correct in us our errors, gather the dispersed, conserve them that are and shall be gathered, make all one flock in one fold under one Pastor, thyself JESUS CHRIST. To whom with the Father, and the Holy Ghost be all thanks, praise, honour, and glory, now and for ever and ever. AMEN.

THE PRAYER OF MANASSES

KING OF JUDA, WHEN HE WAS HELD CAPTIVE IN BABYLON.

CHAPTER I.

Lord[1] omnipotent God of our fathers, Abraham, & Isaac, and Jacob, and of their just seed, which didst make heaven and earth: with all the ornaments of them, which hast bound the sea with the word of thy precept, which hast shut up the depth, and sealed it with thy terrible and laudable name: whom all things dread, & tremble at the countenance of thy power, because the magnificence of thy glory is importable, & the wrath of thy threatening upon sinners is intolerable: but the mercy of thy promise is infinite and unsearchable: because thou art our Lord, most high, benign, long suffering, and very merciful, and penitent upon the wickedness of men. Thou Lord according to the multitude of thy goodness hast promised penance and remission to them that have sinned to thee, and by the multitude of thy mercies thou hast decreed penance to sinners, unto salvation. Thou therefore Lord God of the just, hast not appointed penance to the just, Abraham, & Isaac, and Jacob, them that have not sinned to thee, but hast appointed penance for me a sinner: because I have sinned above the number of the sand of the sea. Mine iniquities Lord be multiplied, mine iniquities be multiplied, and I am not worthy to behold & look upon the height of heaven, for the multitude of mine iniquities. I am made crooked with many a band of iron, that I cannot lift up my head, and I have not respiration: because I have stirred up thy wrath, and have done evil before thee: I have not done thy will, & thy commandments I have not kept: I have set up abominations, & multiplied offences. And now I bow the knee of my heart, beseeching goodness of thee. I have sinned Lord, I have sinned, & I acknowledge mine iniquities. Wherefore I beseech desiring thee, forgive me Lord, forgive me: and destroy me not together with mine iniquities, neither reserve thou for ever, being angry, evils for me, neither damn me into the lowest places of the earth: because thou art God, God, I say, of the penitent: in me thou shalt shew all thy goodness, because thou shalt save me unworthy according to thy great mercy, and I will praise thee always all the days of my life: because all the power of the heavens praiseth thee, and to thee is glory for ever and ever. Amen.

THE THIRD BOOK OF ESDRAS.

For help of the readers, especially such as have not leisure to read all, we have gathered the contents of the chapters; but made no Annotations: because the text itself is but as a Commentary to the Canonical books; and therefore we have only added the concordance of other Scriptures in the margin.

CHAPTER I.

Iosias king of Juda maketh a great Pasch, 7. giving many hosts to such as wanted for sacrifice: 14. the Priests and Levites performing their functions therein: 22. in the eighteenth year of his reign. 25. He is slain in battle by the king of Aegypt, 32. and much lamented by the Jews. 34. His son Iechonias succeedeth. 37. After him Ioacim, 40. who is deposed by the king of Babylon. 43. Ioachin reigneth three months, and is carried into Babylon. 46. Sedecias reigneth eleven years wickedly. 52. and he with his people is carried captive into Babylon, the city and temple are destroyed. 57. so remained till the Monarchy of the Persians.

AND Iosias made a Pasch in Jerusalem to our Lord & immolated the Phase the fourteenth moon of the month: 2 [1]appointing the Priests by courses of days clothed with stoles in the temple of our Lord.

[1] 4. Reg. 23. v. 21.
2. Paral. 35. v. 1.

3 And he spake to the Levites the sacred servants of Israel, that they should sanctify themselves to our Lord in the placing of the holy ark of our Lord in the house, which King Salomon son of David built. 4 It shall not be for you to take it upon your shoulders. And now serve your Lord, and take the care of that nation Israel, in part according to your villages & tribes, 5 according to the writing of David king of Israel, and according to the magnificence of Salomon his son, all in the temple, and according to your father's portion of principality, among them that stand in the sight of your brethren the children of Israel. 6 Immolate the Pasch, and prepare the sacrifices for your brethren, and do according to the precept of our Lord which was given to Moyses. 7 [1]And Iosias gave unto the people that was found of sheep, lambs, and kids, & goats thirty thousand, calves three thousand.

[1] Exo. 12.
Levit. 23.
Num. 28.

8 These things were given to the people^ of the kings' goods according to promise: and to the Priests for the Phase, sheep in number two thousand, and calves an hundred. 9 And Jechonias, and Semeias, and Nathanael brethren, and Hasabias, and Oziel, & Coraba, for the Phase sheep five thousand, calves five hundred. 10 And when these things were done in good order, the Priests and the Levites stood having azymes by tribes. 11 And according to the portions of their fathers' principality, in the sight of the people they did offer to our Lord according to those things, which were written in the book of Moyses: 12 and roasted the Phase with fire as it ought: and the hosts they boiled in cauldrons, and in pots with benevolence: 13 and they brought to all that were of the people: and afterward they prepared for themselves and the priests. 14 For the Priests offered the fat, until the hour was ended: & the Levites prepared for themselves, and their brethren, the children of Aaron. 15 And the sacred singing men, the children of Asaph were by order according to the precept of David, & Asaph, & Zacharias, & Ieddimus, which was from the king. 16 And the porters at every gate, so that none transgressed his own: for their brethren prepared for them. 17 And the things were consummate that pertained to the sacrifice of our Lord. 18 In that day they celebrated the Phase, and offered hosts upon the sacrifice of our Lord, according to the precept of king Iosias. 19 And the children of Israel, that were found at that time, celebrated the Phase: and the festival day of Azymes for seven days: 20 and there was not celebrated such a Phase in Israel, from the times of Samuel the Prophet: 21 and all the kings of Israel did not celebrate such a Phase as Iosias did, and the Priests, and the Levites, and the Jews, and all Israel, that were found in their abode at Jerusalem. 22 In the eighteenth year, Iosias reigning, was the Phase celebrated. 23 And the works of Iosias were directed in the sight of his Lord in a heart full of fear: 24 and the things concerning him are written in the ancient times, touching them that sinned, and were irreligious against our Lord above all nations, and that sought not the words of our Lord upon Israel. 25 [1]And after all this fact of Iosias, came up Pharao the king of Aegypt coming in Charcamis from the way upon Euphrates, and Iosias went forth to meet him.

[1] 4. Reg. 23. v. 29.
2. Paral. 35. v. 20.

26 And the king of Aegypt sent to Iosias saying: What is there between me & thee king of Juda? 27 I was not sent of the Lord to fight against thee: for my battle is upon Euphrates, go down in haste. 28 And Iosias did not return upon his chariot: but endeavoured to overthrow him, not attending the word of the Prophet from the mouth of our Lord: 29 but he made battle against him in the field of Mageddo. And Princes went down to king Iosias. 30 And the king said to his servants: Remove me from the battle, for I am weakened exceedingly. And forthwith his servants removed him out of the battle. 31 And he went up into his second chariot: & coming to Jerusalem, died, and was buried in his father's sepulchre. 32 And in all Jury they mourned for Iosias, & the rulers with their wives lamented him until this day. And this was given out to be done always unto all the stock of Israel. 33 But these things were written before in the book of the histories of the kings of Juda: and all the acts of the doing of Iosias, and his glory and his understanding in the law of our Lord: and the things that were done by him, and that are not written in the book of the kings of Israel and Juda. 34 [1]And they that were of the nation, taking Jechonias the son of Iosias, made him king for Iosias his father, when he was three and twenty years old.

[1] 4. Reg. 23. v. 30.
2. Par. 36. v. 1.

35 And he reigned over Israel three months. And the king of Aegypt removed him, that he should not reign in Jerusalem: 36 & he put a tax upon the nation^ of silver an hundred talents, and of gold one talent. 37 And the king of Aegypt made Ioacim his brother king of Juda & Jerusalem: 38 & he bound the magistrates of Ioacim, and Zaracel his brother, and taking them brought them back into Aegypt. 39 Ioacim was five and twenty years old when he began to reign in the land of Juda and Jerusalem: & he did evil in the sight of our Lord. 40 And after this man came up Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, and binding him with a band of brass, brought him into Babylon. 41 And Nabuchodonosor took the sacred vessels of our Lord, and carried away, and consecrated them in his temple in Babylon. 42 For his uncleanness, & lack of religion is written in the book of the times of the kings. 43 And Ioachin his son reigned for him. And when he was made king, he was eighteen years old. 44 And reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem, and did evil in the sight of our Lord: 45 [1]and after a year Nabuchodonosor sending, transported him into Babylon together with the sacred vessels of our Lord.

47 [1]And he did evil in the sight of our Lord, and was not afraid of the words which were spoken by Jeremy the Prophet from the mouth of our Lord:

[1] Iere. 37. v. 2.

48 and being sworn of king Nabuchodonosor, forsworn he did revolt: & his neck being hardened, & his heart, he transgressed the ordinances of our Lord the God of Israel. 49 And the Princes of the people of our Lord did many things wickedly, and they did impiously above all the uncleanness of the nations: & they polluted the temple of our Lord that was holy in Jerusalem. 50 And the God of their fathers sent by his messenger to reclaim them, for that he would spare them, and his tabernacle. 51 But they scorned at his messengers: and in the day that our Lord spake to them they were mocking his Prophets. 52 Who was moved even unto wrath upon his nation for their impiety, and commanded the kings of the Chaldees to come up. 53 These slew their young men with the sword, round about their holy temple, and spared not young man, and old man, and Virgin, and youth: 54 but all were delivered into their hands: & taking all the sacred vessels of our Lord, and the kings' treasures, they carried them into Babylon, 55 and burnt the house of our Lord, and threw down the walls of Jerusalem: and the towers thereof they burnt with fire, 56 and consumed all their honourable things, and brought them to naught, and those that were left of the sword, they led into Babylon. 57 [1]And they were his servants until the Persians reigned in the fulfilling of the word of our Lord by the mouth of Jeremy:

CHAPTER II.

Cyrus king of Persia permitteth the Jews to return into their country: 10. and delivereth to them the holy vessels, which Nabuchodonosor had taken from the temple. 16. Certain adversaries writing to king Artaxerxes, hinder those that would repair the ruins of Jerusalem.

2 our Lord raised up the spirit of Cyrus King of the Persians, and he proclaimed in all his Kingdoms, and that by writing, 3 saying: Thus saith Cyrus king of the Persians: The Lord of Israel, the high Lord, hath made me king over the whole earth, 4 & hath signified to me to build him a house in Jerusalem which is in Jury. 5 If there be any of your kindred, his Lord go up with him into Jerusalem. 6 Whosoever therefore dwell about the places, let them help them that are in the same place, in gold & silver, 7 in gifts, with horses, and beasts, and with other things which by vows are added into the temple of our Lord which is in Jerusalem. 8 And the Princes of the tribes, of the villages, and of Jury, of the tribe of Benjamin, & the Priests, and the Levites standing up, whom our Lord moved to go up, and to build the house of our Lord which is in Jerusalem, and they that were round about them, 9 did help them with all their gold and silver, and beasts, and many whose mind was stirred up, with many vows. 10 And Cyrus the king brought forth the sacred vessels of our Lord, which Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon transported out of Jerusalem, & consecrated them to his Idol. 11 And Cyrus the king of Persians bringing them forth, delivered them to Mithridatus, who was over his treasures. 12 And by him they were delivered to Salmanasar president of Jury. 13 And of these this was the number: Cups for libaments of silver two thousand four hundred: basins of silver thirty: phials of gold thirty, also of silver two thousand four hundred: & other vessels a thousand. 14 & all the vessels of gold & silver, were five thousand eight hundred sixty. 15 [1]And they were numbered to Salmanasar together with them that came out of the captivity of Babylon into Jerusalem.

[1] 1. Esd. 4. v. 7.

16 But in the times of Artaxerxes king of the Persians, there wrote to him of them that dwelt in Jury and Jerusalem, Balsamus, and Mithridatus, and Sabellius, and Rathimus, Balthemus, Sabellius scribe, and the rest dwelling in Samaria, and other places, the epistle following to king Artaxerxes. 17 SIR, thy servants Rathimus over occurrents, and Sabellius the scribe, and the other judges of thy court in Caelesyria, and Phenice. 18 And now be it known to our lord the king, that Jews came up from you to us, coming into Jerusalem a rebellious, & very naughty city, do build the furnaces thereof, and set up the walls, and raise the temple. 19 And if this city, and the walls shall be finished, they will not only not abide to pay tributes, but also will resist the kings. 20 And because that is in doing about the temple, we thought it should do well not to neglect this same thing: 21 but to make it known to our lord the king, that if it shall seem good, o king, it may be sought in the books of thy fathers, 22 & thou shalt find in the records, things written of these, and thou shalt know that this city hath been rebellious, & troubling kings, & cities, 23 and the Jews rebels, & making battles in it from time out of mind, for the which cause this city was made desolate. 24 Now therefore we do thee to understand, lord king, that if this city shall be built, & the walls thereof shall be erected, there will be no coming down for thee into Caelesyria & Phenice. 25 Then wrote the king to Rathimus, the writer of the occurrents, and to Balthemus, and to Sabellius the scribe, and to the rest joined with them, and to the dwellers in Syria and Phenice, as followeth: 26 I have read the epistle that you sent me. I commanded therefore search to be made, & it was found that the same city is from the beginning rebellious to kings, 27 and the men rebels, and making battles in it, & there were most valiant kings ruling in Jerusalem, and exacting tributes in Caelesyria & Phenice. 28 Now therefore I have given commandment to forbid those men to build the city, and to stay them that nothing be done more than is: 29 and that they proceed not farther, whereof are evils, so that there may be trouble brought upon the kings. 30 Then these things being read which were written of king Artaxerxes, Rathimus, and Sabellius the scribe, and they that were appointed with them joining together in haste came to Jerusalem with a troop of horsemen, and multitude, & company: 31 and they began to forbid the builders, and they ceased from building of the temple in Jerusalem, till in the second year of the reign of Darius king of the Persians.

CHAPTER III.

After a solemn supper made to all the court and chief Princes, king Darius sleeping: 4. three esquires of the body keeping watch, proposed the question: 10. whether wine, or a king, or women, or the truth doth excel? 17. The first praiseth wine.

KING Darius made a great supper to all his domestical servants, and to all the magistrates of Media and Persia, 2 and to all that wear purple, and to the Praetors, and Consuls, and Lieutenants under him from India unto Aethiopia, an hundred twenty seven provinces. 3 And when they had eaten and drunken, and returned full, then Darius went up into his chamber, and slept, and awaked. 4 Then those three young men keepers of his body, which guarded the king's body, said one to another: 5 Let every one of us say a word that may excel: & whose word soever shall appear wiser than the others, to him will king Darius give great gifts, 6 to be covered with purple, & to drink in gold, and to sleep upon gold, & a chariot with a bridle of gold, & a bonnet of silk, and a chain about his neck: 7 and he shall sit in the second place next Darius for his wisdom. And he shall be called the cousin of Darius. 8 Then every one writing his word signed it, and they put it under the pillow of Darius the king, 9 and they said: When the king shall rise, we will give him our writings: and which soever of the three the king shall judge, and the magistrates of Persia, that his word is the wiser, to him shall the victory be given as is written. 10 One wrote: Wine is strong. 11 Another wrote, A king is stronger. 12 The third wrote, Women are more strong: but above all things truth overcometh. 13 And when the king was risen, they took their writings, and gave him, and he read. 14 And sending he called all the Magistrates of the Persians, and the Medes, and them that wear purple, and the Praetors, and the Overseers; 15 and they sat in the Councel: and the writings were read before them. 16 And he said: Call the young men, & they shall declare their own words. And they were called, and went in. 17 And he said to them: Declare unto us concerning these things which are written. And the first began, he that had spoken of the strength of wine, 18 and said: O ye men, how doth wine prevail over all men that drink! It seduceth the mind. 19 And also the mind of king and orphan it maketh vain. Also of the bondman and the free, of the rich man and the poor, 20 and every mind it turneth into security and pleasantness, and it remembereth not any sorrow and duty, 21 and all hearts it maketh honest, and it remembereth not king, nor magistrate, and it maketh a man speak all things by talents. 22 And when they have drunk, they remember not friendship, nor brotherhood: yea and not long after they take swords. 23 And when they are recovered and risen from the wine, they remember not what they have done. 24 O ye men, doth not wine excel? Who thinketh to do so? And having said this, he held his peace.

CHAPTER IV.

The second praiseth the excellency of a king: 13. The third (which is Zorobabel) commendeth women: 33. but preferreth truth above all. 41. Which is so approved, and he is rewarded. 42. The king moreover at his request restoreth the holy vessels of the temple, and granteth means to build the city of Jerusalem, and the temple.

AND the next began to speak, he that spake of the strength of a king. 2 O ye men do not the men excel, which obtain land, & sea, and all things that are in them? 3 But a king excelleth above all things, and hath dominion over them: and every thing whatsoever he shall say to them, they do. 4 And if he send them to warriors, they go, and throw down mountains, and the walls, and towers. 5 They kill, and are killed: and the king's word they transgress not. For if they shall overcome, they bring to the king all things whatsoever they have taken for a prey. 6 In like manner also all others, for so many as are not soldiers, nor fight, but till the ground: when they shall reap, again they bring tributes to the king. 7 And he being one only, if he say: Kill ye, they kill; say he: forgive, they forgive; say he: strike, they strike; say he, destroy, they destroy; 8 say he build, they build; 9 say he, cut down, they cut down; say he plant, they plant: 10 and all the people, & potestates hear him, and beside this he sitteth down, and drinketh, and sleepeth. 11 And others guard him round about, and cannot go every one, and do their own works, but at a word are obedient to him. 12 O ye men, how doth not a king excel that is so renowned? And he held his peace. 13 The third that spake of women and truth, this is Zorobabel, began to speak. 14 O ye men, not the great king, & many men, neither is it wine that doth excel. Who is it then that hath the dominion of them? 15 Have not women brought forth the king, & all the people, that ruleth over land & sea: 16 and were they not born of them, and did not they bring up them which planted the vineyards, whereof wine is made? 17 And they make the garments of all men, & they do honour to all men, and men cannot be separated from women. 18 If they have gathered gold and silver, and every beautiful thing, & see a woman comely & fair, 19 leaving all these things they fix their look upon her, & with open mouth behold her, and allure her more than gold & silver, and every precious thing. 20 Man forsaketh his father that brought him up, and his country, and joineth himself to a woman. 21 And with a woman he refresheth his soul: and neither doth he remember father, nor mother, nor country. 22 And hereby you must know that women rule over you. Are you not sorry? 23 And a man taketh his sword, & goeth into the way to commit thefts and murders, & to sail seas & rivers, 24 and seeth a lion; and goeth in darkness: and when he hath committed theft, and fraud, and spoils, he bringeth it to his beloved. 25 And again, man loveth his wife more than father or mother. 26 And many have become mad for their wives: & have been made bondmen for them: 27 and many have perished and been slain, and have sinned for women. 28 And now believe me, that the king is great in his power: because all countries are afraid to touch him. 29 Nevertheless I saw Apemes the daughter of Bezaces the concubine of a marvelous king, sitting by the king at his right hand, 30 and taking off the crown from his head, and putting it upon herself, and with the palm of her left hand she struck the king. 31 And beside these things he with open mouth beheld her: and if she smile he laugheth, and if she be angry with him, he flattereth, till he be reconciled to her favour. 32 O ye men, why are not women stronger? Great is the earth, and high is the heaven: who doeth these things? 33 And then the king and they that wear purple looked one upon another. And he began to speak of truth. 34 O ye men, are not women strong? The earth is great and heaven is high: & the swift course of the sun turneth the heaven round into his place in one day. 35 Is not he magnifical that doth these things, and the truth great, and stronger above all things? 36 All the earth calleth upon the truth, heaven also blesseth it, and all works are moved, and tremble at it, and there is not any thing with it unjust. 37 Wine is unjust, the king is unjust, women are unjust, all the sons of men are unjust, and all their works are unjust, and in them is not truth, and they shall perish in their iniquity, 38 and truth abideth, and groweth strong for ever, and liveth, and prevaileth for ever and ever. 39 Neither is there with it acception of persons, nor differences: but the things that are just it doth to all men, to the unjust and malignant, and all men are well pleased in the works thereof. 40 And there is no unjust thing in the judgement thereof, but strength, and reign, and power, and majesty of worlds. Blessed be the God of truth. 41 And he left speaking. And all the people cried, and said: Great is truth and it prevaileth. 42 Then the king said to him: Ask, if thou wilt any more, than the things that are written, and I will give it thee, according as thou art found wiser than thy neighbours, and thou shalt sit next to me, and shalt be called my cousin. 43 Then said he to the king: Be mindful of thy vow, which thou hast vowed, to build Jerusalem in the day that thou didst receive the kingdom: 44 and to send back all the vessels that were taken out of Jerusalem, which Cyrus separated, when he sacked Babylon, and would have sent them back thither. 45 And thou hast vowed to build the temple, which the Idumeians burnt, when Jury was destroyed of the Chaldees. 46 And now this is that which I ask lord, & which I desire, this is the majesty which I desire of thee, that thou perform the vow which thou hast vowed to the king of heaven by thy mouth. 47 Then Darius the king rising up, kissed him: and wrote letters to all the officers, and overseers, and them that wear purple, that they should conduct him, and them that were with him, all going up to build Jerusalem. 48 And to all the overseers that were in Syria, and Phoenice, and Libanus he wrote letters, that they should draw Cedar trees from Libanus into Jerusalem, to build the city with them. 49 And he wrote to all the Jews which went up from the Kingdom into Jury for liberty, every mighty man, & magistrate, & overseer not to come upon them to their gates, 50 and all the country which they had obtained to be free unto them, & that the Idumeians leave the castles which they possess of the Jews, 51 and to the building of the temple to give every year twenty talents until it were throughly built: 52 & upon the altars to burn holocausts daily, as they have commandment: to offer other ten talents every year, 53 & to all that go forth from Babylon to build the city, that there should be liberty as well to them as to their children, and to all the Priests that go before. 54 And he wrote a quantity also, and commanded the sacred stole to be given, wherein they should serve; 55 and to the Levites he wrote to give precepts, until the day wherein the house shall be finished, and Jerusalem builded. 56 And to all that keep the city, he wrote portions and wages to be given to them. 57 And he sent away all the vessels whatsoever Cyrus had separated from Babylon, and all things whatsoever Cyrus said, he also commanded to be done, & to be sent to Jerusalem.

58 And when that young man was gone forth, lifting up his face toward Jerusalem, he blessed the King of heaven, 59 and said: Of thee is victory, and of thee is wisdom, and glory. And I am thy servant. 60 Blessed art thou which hast given me wisdom, and I will confess to thee Lord God of our fathers. 61 And he took the letters, and went into Babylon. And he came, and told all his brethren that were in Babylon: 62 and they blessed the God of their fathers, because he gave them remission and refreshing, 63 that they should go up and build Jerusalem, and the temple wherein his name was renowned, and they rejoiced with music & joy seven days.

CHAPTER V.

Those that returned from captivity of Babylon into Jerusalem and Jury, are recited. 47. They restore God's service: 66. but are hindered from building.

AFTER [1] these things were chosen to go up the Princes of towns by their houses, and tribes, and their wives, and their sons and daughters, & their men servants and women servants, and their cattle.

[1] 1. Esd. 2. v. 1.

2 And Darius the king sent together with them a thousand horsemen, till they conducted them to Jerusalem with peace, & with music, & with timbrels, and shalms: 3 and all the brethren were playing, and he made them go up together with them. 4 And these are the names of the men that went up by their towns according to tribes, & according to the portion of their principality. 5 Priests: The children of Phinees, the son of Aaron, Iesus the son of Iosedec, Ioacim the son of Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel of the house of David, of the progeny of Phares, of the tribe of Juda. 6 Who spake under Darius king of the Persians the marvelous words in the second year of his reign the first month Nisan. 7 [1] And they are these, that of Jury came up from the captivity of the transmigration, whom Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon transported into Babylon, and returned into Jerusalem.

[1] 1. Esd. 3. v. 1.

48 And Iesus the son of Iosedec, and his brethren the Priests: Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and his brethren standing up, prepared an altar, 49 that they might offer upon it holocausts, according to the things that are written in the book of Moyses the man of God. 50 And there assembled there of other nations of the land, and all the nations of the land erected the altar in his place, and they offered hosts, and morning holocausts to our Lord. 51 And they celebrated the feast of Tabernacles, and the solemn day, as it is commanded in the law: and sacrifices daily, as it behoved: 52 & after these they appointed oblations, and the hosts of the sabbaths, and of the new moons, and of all the solemn sanctified days. 53 And as many as vowed to our Lord from the new moon of the seventh month, began to offer the hosts to God, and the temple of our Lord was not yet built. 54 And they gave money to the masons and workmen, and drink and victuals with joy. 55 And they gave carts to the Sidonians, & Tyrianes, that with them they should carry cedar beams from Libanus, & should make boats in the haven Ioppe, according to the decree that was written for them by Cyrus king of the Persians. 56 And in the second year coming into the temple of God in Jerusalem, in the second month began Zorobabel the son of Salathiel, and Iosue the son of Iosedec, and their brethren, and the Priests and Levites, and all that were come from the captivity into Jerusalem. 57 and they founded the temple of God in the new moon of the second month of the second year, after that they came into Jury & Jerusalem. 58 And they appointed the Levites from twenty years, over the works of our Lord: and Iesus stood and his son, and the brethren, all Levites joining together, & executors of the law, doing the works in the house of our Lord. 59 And all the Priests stood, having stoles with trumpets: 60 and Levites the children of Asaph, having cymbals together praising our Lord, and blessing him according to David king of Israel. 61 And they sung a song to our Lord, because his sweetness and honour is for ever upon Israel. 62 And all the people sounded with trumpet, and cried out with a loud voice, praising our Lord in the raising up of the house of our Lord. 63 And there came of the Priests, & Levites, and presidents by their villages the more ancients, which had seen the old house: 64 and to the building of this with cry and great lamentation, and many with trumpets and great joy: 65 in so much that the people heard not the trumpets for the lamentation of the people. For the multitude was sounding with trumpets magnifically, so that it was heard far off. 66 And the enemies of the tribe of Juda, and Benjamin heard it, & they came to know what the voice of the trumpets was: 67 And they knew that they which were of the captivity do build a temple to our Lord the God of Israel. 68 [1]And coming to Zorobabel & Iesus, the overseers of the villages, they said to them: We will build together with you.

[1] 1. Esd. 4. v. 2.

69 For we have in like manner heard your Lord, & we walk like from the days of Asbazareth king of the Assyrians, who transported us hither. 70 And Zorobabel, & Iesus, & the Princes of the villages of Israel, said to them: 71 It is not for us and you to build the house of our God. For we alone will build to our Lord of Israel according as Cyrus the king of the Persians hath commanded. 72 And the nations of the land lying upon them that are in Jury, and lifting up the work of the building, and bringing ambushments, and peoples, prohibited them to build: 73 & practising assaults hindered them, that the building might not be finished all the time of the life of king Cyrus, and they deferred the building for two years until the reign of Darius.

CHAPTER VI.

The Jews by assistance of king Darius build up the Temple in Jerusalem.

AND [1] in the second year of the reign of Darius prophesied Aggeus, & Zacharias the son of Addo the Prophet to Jury & Jerusalem in the name of God of Israel upon them.

[1] 1. Esd. 5. v. 1.

2 Then Zorobabel the son of Salathiel standing up, and Iesus the son of Iosedec, began to build the house of our Lord, which is in Jerusalem. 3 When the Prophets of our Lord were present with them, and did help them. At the same time came Sisennes to them, the deputy of Syria, and of Phenice, and Satrabuzanes, and his fellows: 4 and they said to them: By whose commandment build ye this house, and this roof, and perfit all other things? And who are the workmen that build these things? 5 And the ancients of the Jews, which were left of the captivity by our Lord, had favour when the visitation was made upon them. 6 And they were not hindered from building, till it was signified to Darius of all these things, and answer was received. 7 A copy of the letter, which they sent to Darius. SISENNES deputy of Syria & Phenice, and Satrabuzanes, and his fellows in Syria and Phenice Presidents, to king Darius greeting. 8 Be all things known to our lord the king, that when we came into the country of Jury, and had entered into Jerusalem, we found them building the great house of God. 9 And the temple of polished stones, and of great & precious matter in the walls. 10 And the works to be a doing earnestly, and to succeed, and prosper in their hands, and in all glory to be perfited most diligently. 11 Then we asked the ancients saying, by whose permission build ye this house, and found these works? 12 And therefore we asked them, that we might do thee to know the men & the overseers, and we required of them a roll of the names of the overseers. 13 But they answered us saying: We are the servants of the Lord, which made heaven and earth. 14 And this house was built these many years past by a king of Israel, that was great and most valiant, & was finished. 15 And because our fathers were provoking to wrath, and sinned against God of Israel, he delivered them into the hands of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon, king of the Chaldees. 16 And throwing down this house they burnt it, and they led the people captive into Babylon. 17 In the first year when Cyrus reigned the king of Babylon, Cyrus the king wrote to build this house. 18 And these sacred vessels of gold and silver which Nabuchodonosor had taken out of the house which is in Jerusalem, and had consecrated them in his own temple, Cyrus brought them forth again out of the temple which was in Babylon, and they were delivered to Zorobabel, & to Salmanasar, the deputy. 19 And it was commanded them that they should offer these vessels, & lay them up in the temple, which was in Jerusalem, & build the temple of God itself in his place. 20 Then did Salmanasar lay the foundations of the house of our Lord, which is in Jerusalem: & from that time until now it is a building, & is not accomplished. 21 Now therefore if thou think it good o king, let it be sought in the kings' libraries of Cyrus the king, which are in Babylon. 22 and if it shall be found, that the building of the house of the Lord, which is in Jerusalem, began by the counsel of Cyrus the king, and it be thought good of our Lord the king, let him write to us of these things. 23 [1] Then Darius the king commanded search to be made in the libraries: and there was found in Ecbatana a town that is in the country of Media, one place wherein were written these words.

[1] 1. Esd. 6. v. 1.

24 IN THE FIRST YEAR of the reign of Cyrus, king Cyrus commanded to build the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem, where they did burn incense with daily fire, 25 the height whereof shall be of ten cubits, & the breadth three score cubits, four square with three stones polished, and with a loft gallery of wood of the same country, & one new gallery, and the expenses to be given out of the house of Cyrus the king. 26 And the sacred vessels of the house of the Lord, as well of gold as of silver, which Nabuchodonosor took from the house of our Lord, which is in Jerusalem where they were laid, that they be put there: 27 And he commanded Sisennes the deputy of Syria & Phoenice, and Satrabuzanes, and his fellows, & them that were ordained presidents in Syria & Phoenice, that they should refrain themselves from that place. 28 And I also have given commandment to build it wholly: & have provided, that they help them, which are of the captivity of the Jews, till the temple of the house of the Lord be accomplished. 29 And from the vexation of the tributes of Coelesyria & Phoenice, a quantity to be given diligently to these men for the sacrifice of the Lord, to Zorobabel the governor, for oxen, and rams, and lambs. 30 And in like manner corn also, and salt, and wine, and oil continually year by year, according as the Priests which are in Jerusalem, have prescribed to be spent daily: 31 that libaments may be offered to the most high God for the king & his children, & that they may pray for their life. 32 And that it be denounced, that whosoever shall transgress any thing of these which are written, or shall despise it, a beam be taken of their own, & they be hanged, & their goods be confiscate to the king. 33 Therefore the Lord also, whose name is invocated there, destroy every king & nation, that shall extend their hand to hinder or to handle ill the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem. 34 I Darius the king have decreed that it be most diligently done according to these things.

CHAPTER VII.

The house of God is finished 7. and dedicated, 10. the feast of Pasch is celebrated seven days with Azymes.

THEN [1] Sisennes the deputy of Coelesyria, and Phenice, and Satrabuzanes, and their fellows, obeying those things which were decreed of Darius the king,

[1] 1. Esd. 6. v. 13.

2 applied the sacred works most diligently, working together with the ancients of the Jews, the Princes of Syria. 3 And the sacred works prospered, Aggeus & Zacharias the Prophets prophesying. 4 And they accomplished all things by the precept of our Lord the God of Israel, and by the counsel of Cyrus, & Darius, and Artaxerxes the king of the Persians. 5 And our house was a finishing until the three and twentieth day of the month of Adar, the sixth year of Darius the king. 6 And the children of Israel, and the Priests and Levites, and the rest that were of the captivity, which were added, did according to those things that are written in the book of Moyses. 7 And they offered for the dedication of the temple of our Lord, oxen an hundred, rams two hundred, lambs four hundred. 8 And kids for the sins of all Israel, twelve, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. 9 And the Priests & Levites stood clothed with stoles by tribes, over all the works of our Lord the God of Israel, according to the book of Moyses, & the porters at every gate. 10 And the children of Israel, with them that were of the captivity, celebrated the phase the fourteenth moon of the first month, when the Priests & Levites were sanctified. 11 All the children of the captivity were not sanctified together, because all the Levites were sanctified together. 12 And all the children of the captivity immolated the phase, both for their brethren the Priests, & for themselves. 13 And the children of Israel did eat, they that were of the captivity, all that remained apart from all the abominations of the nations of the land seeking our Lord. 14 And they celebrated the festival day of Azymes seven days feasting in the sight of our Lord. 15 Because he turned the counsel of the king of the Assirians toward them, to strengthen their hands to the works of our Lord the God of Israel.

CHAPTER VIII.

Esdras going from Babylon to Jerusalem, 9. carrieth king Artaxerxes' favourable letters, 14. with licence to take gold, silver, and all things necessary at their pleasure. 31. The chief men that go with him are recited. 51. He voweth a fast praying for good success in their journey: 56. weigheth the gold and silver which he delivereth to the Priests, and Levites. 69. And severely admonisheth the people to repentance, for their marriages made with infidels.

AND [1] after him when Artaxerxes king of the Persians reigned, came Esdras the son of Azarias, the son of Helcias the son of Salome,

[1] 1. Esd. 7. v. 1.

2 the son of Sadoc, the son of Achitob, the son of Ameri, the son of Azahel, the son of Bocci, the son of Abisue, the son of Phinees the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the first priest. 3 This Esdras came up from Babylon being scribe & wise in the law of Moyses, which was given of our Lord the God of Israel to teach and to do. 4 And the king gave him glory, because he had found grace in all dignity and desire in his sight. 5 And there went up with him of the children of Israel, and the Priests, and the Levites, and the sacred singers of the temple, and the porters, and the servants of the temple into Jerusalem. 6 In the seventh year when Artaxerxes reigned in the fifth month, this is the seventh year of his reign, going forth of Babylon in the new moon of the fifth month, 7 they came to Jerusalem according to his commandment, according to the prosperity of their journey, which their Lord gave them. 8 For in these Esdras had great knowledge, that he would not pretermit any of those things, which were according to the law, and the precepts of our Lord, and in teaching all Israel all justice and judgement. 9 And they that wrote the writings of Artaxerxes the king, coming delivered the writing which was granted of Artaxerxes the king to Esdras the Priest, & the reader of the law of our Lord, the copy whereof here followeth. 10 KING Artaxerxes to Esdras the Priest, and reader of the law of the Lord, greeting. 11 I of courtesy esteeming it among benefits, have commanded them that of their own accord are desirous of the nation of the Jews, and of the Priests & Levites, which are in my kingdom, to go with thee into Jerusalem. 12 If any therefore desire to go with thee, let them come together, and set forward as it hath pleased me, & my seven friends my counsellers: 13 that they may visit those things which are done touching Jury & Jerusalem, observing as thou hast in the law of the Lord. 14 And let them carry the gifts to the Lord the God of Israel, which I have vowed and my friends to Jerusalem, and all the gold and silver, that shall be found in the country of Babylon to the Lord in Jerusalem, with that, 15 which is given for the nation itself unto the temple of their Lord which is in Jerusalem: that this gold and silver be gathered for oxen, and rams, and lambs, & kids, & for the things that are agreeable to these, 16 that they may offer hosts to the Lord upon the altar of their Lord, which is in Jerusalem. 17 And all things whatsoever thou with thy brethren wilt do with gold, & silver, do it at thy pleasure, according to the precept of the Lord thy God. 18 And the sacred vessels, which are given thee to the works of the house of the Lord thy God, which is in Jerusalem. 19 And other things whatsoever shall help thee to the works of the temple of thy God, thou shalt give it out of the king's treasure. 20 When thou with thy brethren wilt do ought with gold and silver, do according to the will of the Lord. 21 And I king Artaxerxes have given commandment to the keepers of the treasure of Syria and Phenice, that what things soever Esdras the Priest and reader of the law of the Lord shall write for, they give him unto an hundred talents of silver, likewise also of gold. 22 And unto an hundred measures of corn, & an hundred vessels of wine, and other things whatsoever abound without taxing. 23 Let all things be done to the most high God according to the law of God, lest perhaps there arise wrath in the reign of the king, & of his son, & his sons. 24 And to you it is said, that upon all the Priests, & Levites, & sacred singers, & servants of the temple, and scribes of this temple 25 no tribute, nor any other tax be set, & that no man have authority to object any thing to them. 26 But thou Esdras according to the wisdom of God appoint judges, and arbiters in all Syria and Phenice: and teach all them that know not the law of thy God: 27 that whosoever shall transgress the law, they be diligently punished either with death, or with torment, or else with a forfeit of money, or with banishment. 28 And Esdras the scribe said: Blessed be the God of our fathers, which hath given this will into the king's heart, to glorify his house, which is in Jerusalem. 29 And hath honoured me in the sight of the king, and of his counsellers, and friends, and them that wear purple. 30 And I was made constant in mind according to the aid of our Lord my God, and gathered together of Israel men, that should go up together with me. 31 And these are the Princes according to their kindreds, and several principalities of them that came up from Babylon the Kingdom of Artaxerxes.

32 [1]Of the children of Phares, Gersomus: and of the children of Siemarith, Amenus: of the children of David, Acchus the son of Scecilia:

[1] 1. Esd. 8. v. 1.

33 Of the children of Phares, Zacharias, and with him returned an hundred fifty men. 34 Of the children of leader Moabilion, Zaraei, and with him two hundred fifty men. 35 Of the children of Zachues, Iechonias of Zechoel, and with him two hundred fifty men: 36 of the children of Sala, Maasias of Gotholia, & with him seventy men: 37 of the children of Saphatia, Zarias of Michel, and with him eighty men: 38 of the children of Iob, Abdias of Iehel, and with him two hundred twelve men: 39 of the children of Bania, Salimoth, the son of Iosaphia, and with him an hundred sixty men: 40 of the children of Beer, Zacharias Bebei, and with him two hundred eight men: 41 of the children of Ezead, Ioannes of Eccetan, and with him an hundred ten men: 42 of the children of Adonicam, which were last, and these are their names, Eliphalam the son of Gebel, and Semeias, and with him seventy men. 43 And I gathered them together to the river that is called Thia, and we camped there three days, and viewed them again. 44 And of the children of the Priests and Levites I found not there. 45 And I sent to Eleazarus, and Eccelon, and Masman, and Maloban, and Enaathan, and Samea, and Ioribum, Nathan, Enuagam, Zacharias, and Mosolam the leaders themselves, and that were skillful. 46 And I said to them that they should come to Loddeus, who was at the place of the treasury. 47 And I commanded them to say to Loddeus, and his brethren, and to them that were in the treasury, that they should send us them that might do the function of priesthood in the house of the Lord our God. 48 And they brought unto us according to the mighty hand of the Lord our God cunning men: of the children of Moholi, the son of Levi, the son of Israel, Sebebia, & his sons and brethren, which were eighteen: 49 Asbia, and Amin of the sons of the children of Chananeus, and their children twenty men. 50 And of them that served the temple, whom David gave, and the princes themselves to the ministry of the Levites of them that served the temple, two hundred twenty. All their names were signified in writings. 51 And I vowed there a fast to the young men in the sight of God, that I might ask of him a good journey for us, and them that were with us, and for the children, and the cattle because of ambushments. 52 For I was ashamed to ask of the king footmen and horsemen in my company, to guard us, against our adversaries. 53 For we said to the king that the power of our Lord will be with them that seek him with all affection. 54 And again we besought the Lord our God according to these things: whom also we had propitious, and we obtained of our God. 55 And I separated of the rulers of the people, and of the Priests of the temple, twelve men, and Sedebia, and Asanna, and with them of their brethren ten men. 56 And I weighed to them the gold and silver, and the vessels of the house of our God pertaining to the Priests, which the king had given, and his counsellers, and the princes, and all Israel. 57 And when I had weighed it, I delivered of silver an hundred fifty talents, and silver vessels of an hundred talents, and of gold an hundred talents. 58 And of vessels of gold seven score and twelve brazen vessels good of shining brass, resembling the form of gold. 59 And I said to them: You are also sanctified to our Lord, and the vessels be holy, and the gold and silver is vowed to our Lord the God of our fathers. 60 Watch and keep, till you deliver them to some of the rulers of the people, and to the Priests, and Levites, and to the princes of the cities of Israel in Jerusalem, in the treasury of the house of our God. 61 And those Priests and Levites that received the gold and silver and vessels, brought it to Jerusalem into the temple of our Lord. 62 And we went forward from the river Thia, the twelfth day of the first month, till we entered into Jerusalem. 63 And when the third day was come, in the fourth day the gold being weighed, and the silver, was delivered in the house of the Lord our God, to Marimoth Priest the son of Iori. 64 And with him was Eleazar the son of Phinees: and with them were Iosadus the son of Iesus, and Medias, and Banni the son of a Levite, by number and weight all things. 65 And the weight of them was written the same hour. 66 And they that came out of the captivity, offered sacrifice to our Lord the God of Israel, oxen twelve, for all Israel, rams eighty six, 67 lambs seventy two, buck goats for sin twelve, and for health twelve kine, all for the sacrifice of our Lord. 68 And they read again the precepts of the king to the kings' officers, and to the deputies of Coelesyria, and Phoenice: and they honored the nation, and the temple of our Lord. 69 [1]And these things being finished, the rulers came to me, saying: The stock of Israel, and the princes, and the Priests, and the Levites,

[1] 1. Esd. 9. v. 1.

70 and the strange people, and nations of the land have not separated their uncleanness from the Chananeites, and Hetheites, and Pherezeites, and Iebuseites, and Moobites, & Aegyptians, and Idumeians. 71 For they are joined to their daughters both themselves, and their sons: and the holy seed is mingled with the strange nations of the earth, and the rulers and magistrates were partakers of that iniquity from the beginning of the reign itself. 72 And forthwith as I heard these things, I rent my garments and the sacred tunic: and tearing the hairs of my head, and my beard, I sat sorrowful and heavy. 73 And there assembled to me mourning upon this iniquity, as many as were then moved by the word of our Lord the God of Israel, and I sat sad until the evening sacrifice. 74 And I rising up from fasting, having my garments rent and the sacred tunic, kneeling, and stretching forth my hands to our Lord, 75 I said: Lord I am confounded, and ashamed before thy face, 76 for our sins are multiplied over our heads, and our iniquities are exalted even to heaven. 77 Because from the times of our fathers we are in great sin unto this day. 78 And for the sins of us, and of our fathers we have been delivered with our brethren, and with our Priests to the kings of the earth, into sword and captivity, and spoil with confusion unto this present day. 79 And now what a great thing is this that mercy hath happened to us from thee, o Lord God, & leave thou unto us a root, and a name in the place of thy sanctification, 80 to discover our light in the house of the Lord our God, to give us meat in all the time of our bondage. 81 And when we served, we were not forsaken of the Lord our God: but he set us in favour, appointing the kings of the Persians to give us meat, 82 and to glorify the temple of the Lord our God, and to build the desolations of Sion, to give us stability in Jury, and Jerusalem. 83 And now what say we Lord, having these things? For we have transgressed thy precepts, which thou gavest into the hands of thy servants the prophets, 84 saying: That the land into which ye entered to possess the inheritance thereof, is a land polluted with the coinquinations of the strangers of the land, and their uncleanness hath filled it wholly with their filthiness. 85 And now your daughters you shall not match with their sons, and their daughters you shall not take for your sons. 86 And you shall not seek to have peace with them for ever, that growing strong you may eat the best things of the land, and may distribute the inheritance to your children for ever. 87 And the things that happen to us, all are done for our naughty works, and our great sins. 88 And thou gavest us such a root, and we are returned again to transgress thy ordinances, that we would be mingled with the uncleanness of the nations of this land. 89 Wilt not thou be wrath with us to destroy us, till there be no root left nor our name? 90 Lord God of Israel thou art true. For there is a root left until this present day. 91 Behold, now we are in thy sight in our iniquities. For it is not to stand any longer before thee in these matters. 92 [1]And when Esdras with adoration confessed weeping, lying flat on the ground before the temple, there were gathered before him out of Jerusalem a very great multitude, men and women, and young men and young women. For there was great weeping in the multitude itself.

[1] 1. Esd. 10. v. 1.

93 And when he had cried, Iechonias of Ieheli of the children of Israel, said to Esdras: We have sinned against our Lord, for that we have taken unto us in marriage strange women of the nations of the land. 94 And now thou art over all Israel, in these therefore let there be an oath from our Lord to expel all our wives that are of strangers with their children. 95 As it was decreed to thee of the ancesters according to the law of our Lord, rising up declare it. 96 For to thee the business pertaineth, and we are with thee: do manfully. 97 And Esdras rising up adjured the princes of the Priests and Levites, and all Israel to do according to these things and they sware.

CHAPTER IX.

Esdras fasting for the sins of the people, commandeth that they separate all strange women from them. 18. The Priests and Levites, which had offended herein, are recited. 38. He readeth the law before the people. 48. certain do expound to the multitudes in several places. 52. And so they are dismissed with joy.

And[1] Esdras rising up from before the court of the temple, went into the chamber of Ionathas the son of Nasabi.

[1] 1. Esd. 10. v. 6.

2 And lodging there he tasted no bread, nor drank water for the iniquity of the multitude. 3 And there was proclamation made in all Jury, & in Jerusalem to all that were of the captivity gathered in Jerusalem, 4 that whosoever shall not appear with in two or three days, according to the judgement of the ancients sitting upon it, their goods should be taken away, and himself should be judged an alien from the multitude of the captivity. 5 And all were gathered that were of the tribe of Juda, and of Benjamin within three days in Jerusalem: this is the ninth month, the twentieth day of the month. 6 And all the multitude sat in the court of the temple trembling, for the present winter. 7 And Esdras rising up said to them: You have done unlawfully taking to you in marriage strange wives, that you might add to the sins of Israel. 8 And now give confession, & magnificence to our Lord the God of our fathers: 9 and accomplish his will, and depart from the nations of the land, and from your wives the strangers. 10 And all the multitude cried, and they said with a loud voice: As thou hast said, we will do. 11 But because the multitude is great, and winter time, and we cannot stand in the air without succour: and this is a work for us not of one day, nor of two, for we have sinned much in these things: 12 Let the rulers of the multitude stand, and that dwell with us, and as many as have with them foreign wives, 13 and at a time appointed let the priests out of every place, and the judges assist, until they appease the wrath of our Lord concerning this business. 14 And Ionathas the son of Ezeli, and Ozias of Thecam took upon them according to these words: and Bosoramus, and Levis, and Sabbathaeus, wrought together with them. 15 And all that were of the captivity stood according to all these things. 16 And Esdras the priest chose unto him men the great princes of their fathers according to their names: & they sat together in the newmoon of the tenth month to examine this business. 17 And they determined of the men that had outlandish wives, until the newmoon of the first month. 18 And there were found of the priests intermingled that had outlandish wives. 19 Of the sons of Iesus the son of Iosedec, and his brethren: Maseas, and Eleazarus, and Ioribus, and Ioadeus, 20 and they put to their hands to expel their wives: and to offer a ram to obtain pardon for their ignorance. 21 And the sons of Semmeri: Maseas and Esses, Ieelech, and Azarias. 22 And of the children of Fosere: Limasias, Hismaenis, and Nathanee, Iussio, Reddus, and Thalsas. 23 And of the Levites: Iorabdus, and Semeis, and Colnis, and Calitas, and Facteas, and Coluas, and Eliomas, 24 and of the sacred singing men, Eliasib, Zaccarus. 25 And of the porters, Salumus, and Tolbanes. 26 And of Israel: of the sons of Foro, Ozi, and Remias, and Geddias, & Melchias, and Michelus, Eleazarus, and Iammebias, and Bannas. 27 And of the sons of Iolaman: Chamas, and Zacharias, and Iezuelus, and Ioddius, and Erimoth, and Helias. 28 And of the sons of Zathoim: Eliadas, and Liasumus, Zochias, and Larimoth, & Zabdis, and Thebedias. 29 And of the sons of Zebes: Ioannes, and Amanias, and Zabdias, and Emeus. 30 And of the sons of Banni: Olamus, & Maluchus, and Ieddeus, and Iasub, and Azabus, & Ierimoth. 31 And of the sons of Addin: Nathus, and Moosias, & Caleus, and Raanas, Maaseas, Mathathias, and Beseel, and Bonnus, and Manasses. 32 And of the sons of Nuae: Noneas, and Aseas, and Melchias, and Sameas, and Simon, Benjamin, and Malchus, and Marras. 33 And of the sons of Asom: Carianeus, Mathathias, & Bannus, & Eliphalach, and Manasses, and Semei. 34 And of the sons of Banni: Ieremias, and Moadias, and Abramus, & Iohel, and Baneas, & Pelias, and Ionas, and Marimoth, & Eliasib, and Matheneus, and Eliasis, and Orizas, and Dielus, and Semedius, & Zambris, and Iosephus. 35 And of the sons of Nobei: Idelus, and Mathathias, and Sabadus, and Zecheda, Zedmi, and Iessei, Baneas. 36 All these married outlandish wives, and did put them away with their children. 37 And the Priests and the Levites, and they that were of Israel, dwelt in Jerusalem, and in the whole country in the newmoon of the seventh month. And the children of Israel were in their habitations. 38 And all the multitude was gathered together into the court, which is on the east of the sacred gate: 39 and they said to Esdras the high priest, and reader, that he should bring the law of Moyses, which was delivered of our Lord the God of Israel. 40 And Esdras the high priest brought the law to all the multitude of them from man unto woman, and to all the priests to hear the law in the newmoon of the seventh month. 41 And he read in the court, which is before the sacred gate of the temple, from break of day until evening before men and women. And they all gave their mind to the law. 42 And Esdras the priest, and reader of the law stood upon a tribunal of wood, which was made. 43 And by him stood Mathathias, and Samus, and Ananias, Azarias, Urias, Ezechias, and Balsamus on the right hand, 44 and on the left Faldeus, Misael, Malachias, Ambusthas, Sabus, Nabadias, and Zacharias. 45 And Esdras took the book before all the multitude: for he was chief in glory in the sight of all. 46 And when he had ended the law, they stood all upright: and Esdras blessed our Lord the most high God, the God of Sabaoth omnipotent. 47 And all the people answered: Amen. And lifting up their hands falling on the ground, they adored our Lord. 48 Iesus and Banaeus, and Sarebias, and Iaddimus, and Accubus, and Sabbathaeus, and Calithes, & Azarias, and Ioradus, and Ananias, and Philias Levites, 49 who taught the law of our Lord, and read the same in the multitude, & every one preferred them that understood the lesson. 50 And Atharathes said to Esdras the high priest and the reader, and to the Levites, that taught the multitude, 51 saying: This day is sanctified to our Lord. And they all wept, when they had heard the law. 52 And Esdras said, departing therefore eat ye all the fattest things, & drink all most sweet things, and send gifts to them that have not. 53 For this is the holy day of our Lord, & be not sad. For our Lord will glorify you. 54 And the Levites denounced openly to all, saying: This day is holy, be not sad. 55 And they went all to eat, and drink, and make merry, and to give gifts to them that had not, that they might make merry, for they were exceedingly exalted with the words that they were taught. 56 And they were all gathered in Jerusalem to celebrate the joy, according to the testament of our Lord the God of Israel.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF ESDRAS.

CHAPTER I.

Esdras is sent to expostulate with the ungrateful Jews for neglecting God's many great benefits.

THE [1] second Book of Esdras the Prophet, the son of Sarei, the son of Azarei, the son of Helcias, the son of Sadanias, the son of Sadoch, the son of Achitob,

[1] 1. Esd. 7. v. 1.

2 the son of Achias, the son of Phinees, the son of Heli, the son of Amerias, the son of Asiel, the son of Marimoth, the son of Arna, the son of Ozias, the son of Borith, the son of Abisei, the son of Phinees, the son of Eleazar, 3 the son of Aaron of the tribe of Levi; who was captive in the country of the Medes, in the reign of Artaxerxes king of the Persians. 4 And the word of our Lord came to me, saying: 5 Go, and tell my people their wicked deeds, and their children the iniquities, that they have done against me, that they tell their children's children: 6 because the sins of their parents are increased in them, for they being forgetful of me have sacrificed to strange gods. 7 Did not I bring them out of the land of Aegypt from the house of bondage? But they have provoked me, and have despised my counsels. 8 But do thou shake off the hair of thy head, & throw all evils upon them: because they have not obeyed my law. And it is a people without discipline. 9 How long shall I bear with them, on whom I have bestowed so great benefits? 10 [1] I have overthrown many kings from them. I have struck Pharao with his servants, and all his host.

[1] Exod. 14.

11 All nations did I destroy before their face, & in the East I dissipated the peoples of two provinces Tyre and Sidon, and I slew all their adversaries. 12 But speak thou to them, saying: Thus saith our Lord: 13 I made you pass through the sea, and gave you fenced streets from the beginning. I gave you Moyses for your governor, and Aaron for the Priest:

14 [1] I gave you light by the pillar of fire, and did many marvelous things among you: but you have forgotten me, saith our Lord.

[1] Exod. 13.

15 [1] Thus saith our Lord omnipotent: The quail was a sign to you, I gave you a camp for defence, & there you murmured:

[1] Exod. 16.

16 And you triumphed not in my name for the destruction of your enemies, but yet until now you have murmured. 17 [1] Where are the benefits that I have given you? Did you not cry out to me when you were hungry in the desert,

[1] Num. 14.

18 saying: Why hast thou brought us into this desert to kill us, it had been better for us to serve the Aegyptians, than to die in this desert.

19 [1] I was sorry for your mournings, & gave you manna to eat. You did eat bread of Angels.

[1] Exod. 16.
Num. 20.
Sap. 16. v. 20.
Isa. 9. v. 4.

20 When you thirsted did not I cleave the rock, & waters flowed in aboundance? For the heats I covered you with the leaves of trees. 21 I delivered unto you fat lands: The Chananeites, and Pherezeites, & Philistheans I threw out from your face: what shall I yet do to you, saith our Lord?

22 [1]Thus saith our Lord omnipotent: In the desert when you were thirsty in the river of the Amorrheites, and blaspheming my name,

[1] Exo. 15. v. 25.

23 [1]I gave you not fire for blasphemies, but casting wood into the water, I made the river sweet.

[1] Exo. 32.

24 What shall I do to thee Jacob? Thou wouldest not obey o Juda. I will transfer myself to other nations, & will give them my name, that they may keep my ordinances. 25 [1]Because you have forsaken me, I also forsake you: when you ask mercy of me, I will not have mercy.

[1] Isa. 1. v. 15.

26 When you shall invocate me, I will not hear you. For you have defiled your hands with blood, & your feet are quick to commit murders. 27 Not as though you have forsaken me, but yourselves, saith our Lord. 28 Thus saith our Lord omnipotent, have not I desired you, as a father his sons, & a mother her daughters, & as a nurse her little ones, 29 that you would be my people, and I your God, and to me for children, and I to you for a father? 30 [1]So have I gathered you, as the hen her chickens under her wings. But now what shall I do to you? I will throw you from my face.

[1] Mat. 23. v. 37.

Isa. 66. v. 5.

31 When you shall bring me oblation, I will turn away my face from you. For I have refused your festival days, & new moons & circumcisions. 32 I sent my servants the Prophets to you, whom being taken you slew, & mangled their bodies, whose blood I will require, saith our Lord. 33 Thus saith our Lord omnipotent, your house is made desolate, I will throw you away, as the wind doth stubble, 34 & your children shall not have issue: because they have neglected my commandment, & have done that which is evil before me. 35 I will deliver your houses to a people coming, who not hearing me do believe: to whom I have not shewed signs, they will do the things that I have commanded. 36 The Prophets they have not seen, & they will be mindful of their iniquities. 37 I call to witness the grace of the people coming, whose little ones rejoice with joy, not seeing me with their carnal eyes, but in spirit believing the things that I have said. 38 And now brother behold what glory: and see people coming from the east, 39 to whom I will give the conduction of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and of Osee, & Amos, and of Joel, & Abdias, & Jonas, & Michaeas, 40 & Naum & Habacuc, of Sophonias, Aggaeus, Zacharias, & Malachias. Who also is called the Angel of our Lord.[1]

CHAPTER II.

The Synagogue expostulateth with her children for their ingratitude; 10. shewing that they shall be forsaken, and the gentiles called.

Thus saith our Lord: I brought this people out of bondage, to whom I gave commandment by my servants the Prophets, whom they would not hear, but made my counsel frustrate.
2 Their mother that bare them, saith to them: Go children, because I am a widow & forsaken. 3 I brought you up with joy, and have lost you with mourning and sorrow, because you have sinned before our Lord your God, & have done that which is evil before him. 4 But now what shall I do to you? I am a widow and desolate, go my children, and ask mercy of our Lord. 5 And I call thee o father a witness upon the mother of the children, that would not keep my testament, 6 that thou give them confusion, and their mother into spoil, that there be no generation of them. 7 Let their names be dispersed into the Gentiles, let them be destroyed out of the land: because they have despised my sacrament. 8 [1]Woe be to thee Assur, which hidest the wicked with thee. Thou naughty nation, remember what I did to Sodom and Gomorrha:

[1] Gen. 19. v. 2.

9 whose land lieth in clods of pitch, and heaps of ashes: so will I make them, that have not heard me, saith our Lord omnipotent. 10 Thus saith our Lord to Esdras: Tell my people, that I will give them the Kingdom of Jerusalem, which I meant to give to Israel. 11 And I will take to me the glory of them, and will give them eternal tabernacles, which I had prepared for them. 12 The wood of life shall be to them for an odour of ointment, & they shall not labour, nor be wearied. 13 Go and you shall receive. Ask for yourselves a few days, that they may abide. Now the Kingdom is prepared for you, watch ye. 14 Call thou heaven and earth to witness: for I have destroyed evil, and have created good, because I live saith our Lord. 15 Mother embrace thy children, bring them up with joy. As a dove confirm their feet: because I have chosen thee, saith our Lord. 16 And I will raise again the dead out of their places, and out of the monuments I will bring them forth, because I have known my name in Israel. 17 Fear not o mother of the children, because I have chosen thee, saith our Lord. 18 I will send thee aid, my servants Isaie, and Jeremie, at whose counsel I have sanctified, and prepared for thee twelve trees loden with diverse fruits. 19 [1]& as many fountains flowing milk and honey: and seven huge mountains, having the rose and the lily, in the which I will fill thy children with joy.

[1] Exod. 15. v. 27.

20 Justify thou the widow, judge for the pupil, give to the needy, defend the orphan, clothe the naked, 21 cure the broken and feeble, mock not the lame, defend the maimed, and admit the blind to the vision of my glory. 22 The old man & the young keep within thy walls: 23 [1]where thou shalt find the dead, commit them to the grave signing it, and I will give thee the first seat in my resurrection.

[1] Tobie 1. v. 12.

24 Pause and rest my people, because thy rest shall come. 25 As a good nurse nourish thy children, confirm their feet. 26 The servants that I have given thee, none of them shall perish. For I will require them of thy number. 27 Be not wearied. For when the day of affliction and distress shall come, others shall weep, & be sad, but thou shalt be merry and plenteous. 28 The gentiles shall envy, & shall be able to do nothing against thee, saith our Lord. 29 My hands shall cover thee, that thy children see not hell. 30 Be pleasant thou mother with thy children, because I will deliver thee saith our Lord. 31 Remember thy children that sleep, for I will bring them out of the sides of the earth, & will do mercy with them: because I am merciful, saith our Lord omnipotent. 32 Embrace thy children till I come, & shew them mercy: because my fountains run over, & my grace shall not fail. 33 I Esdras received commandment of our Lord in mount Oreb, that I should go to Israel: to whom when I came, they refused me, & rejected the commandment of our Lord. 34 And therefore, I say unto you gentiles, which hear, and understand, Look for your pastor, he will give you the rest of eternity: because he is at hand, that shall come in the end of the world. 35 Be ye ready for the rewards of the Kingdom, because perpetual light shall shine to you for time everlasting. 36 Fly from the shadow of this world: receive ye the pleasantness of your glory. I openly call to witness my saviour. 37 Receive the commended gifts and be pleasant, giving thanks to him that called you to the heavenly Kingdoms. 38 Arise, & stand & see the number of them that are signed in the feast of our Lord. 39 They that have transferred themselves from the shadow of the world, have received glorious garments of our Lord. 40 Receive o Sion thy number, and shut up thine made white, which have accomplished the law of our Lord. 41 The number of thy children, which thou didst wish is full. Desire the power of our Lord that thy people may be sanctified, which was called from the beginning. 42 [1]I Esdras saw in mount Sion a great multitude, which I could not number, and they did all praise our Lord with songs.

[1] Apoc. 7. v. 9.

43 And in the midst of them was a young man high of stature, appearing above over them all, and he put crowns upon every one of their heads, and he was more exalted. And I was astonished at the miracle. 44 Then asked I an Angel, and said: Who are these

Lord? 45 Who answering said to me: These are they that have laid off the mortal garment, and taken an immortal, and have confessed the name of God. Now they are crowned, and receive palms. 46 And I said to the Angel: That young man what is he, which putteth the crowns upon them, & giveth palms into their hands? 47 And answering he said to me: The same is the Son of God, whom they did confess in the world: and I began to magnify them, that stood strongly for the name of our Lord. 48 Then said the Angel to me: Go, tell my people, what manner of marvelous things and how great thou hast seen of the Lord God.

CHAPTER III.

The works of God are wonderful from the beginning, 7. and men ungrateful. 13. In Abraham God chose to himself a peculiar people: who nevertheless were froward, and obstinate. 23. He also chose David, but still the people were sinful: 28. the Babylonians also, by whom they are afflicted, are no less, but rather greater sinners.

In the thirtieth year of the ruin of the city I was in Babylon, & was troubled lying in my chamber, & my cogitations came up over my heart: 2 because I saw the desolation of Sion, & the aboundance of them that dwelt in Babylon. 3 And my spirit was tossed exceedingly, & I began to speak to the highest timorous words, 4 [1]and said: O Lord dominator that spakest from the beginning, when thou didst plant the earth, and that alone, & didst rule over the people,

[1] Gen. 1.

[1] Gen. 2. v. 7.

6 and thou brought him into paradise, which thy right hand had planted, before the earth came. 7 And him thou didst command to love thy way, and he transgressed it, and forthwith thou didst institute death in him, and in his posterity, & there were born nations, and tribes, & peoples, and kindreds, whereof there is no number. 8 And every nation walked in their own will, & they did marvelous things before thee, and despised thy precepts. 9 [1]And again in time thou brought in the flood upon inhabitants of the world, and didst destroy them.

[1] Gen. 7.

10 And there was made in every one of them, as unto Adam to die, so to them the flood. 11 But thou didst leave one of them, Noe with his house, and to him were all the just. 12 And it came to pass, when they began to be multiplied, that dwelt upon the earth, and multiplied children and peoples and many nations: and they began again to do impiety more than the former. 13 And it came to pass when they did iniquity before thee, thou didst choose thee a man of them, whose name was Abraham. 14 [1]And thou didst love him and to him only thou didst shew thy will.

[1] Gen. 12.

15 And thou didst dispose unto him an everlasting testament, and toldst him that thou wouldst never forsake his seed. And thou gavest him Isaac, and to Isaac thou gavest Jacob and Esau. 16 And Jacob thou didst sever to thyself, but Esau thou didst separate. And Jacob grew to a great multitude. 17 [1]And it came to pass when thou didst bring forth his seed out of Aegypt, thou brought it upon mount Sinai.

[1] Exo. 19.

18 And thou didst bow the heavens, and fasten the earth, and didst shake the world, and madest the depths to tremble, and troubledst the world, 19 and thy glory passed four gates of fire, and of earthquake, and wind, and frost, that thou mightst give a law to the seed of Jacob, and to the generation of Israel diligence. 20 And thou didst not take away from them a malignant heart, that thy law might bring forth fruit in them. 21 For Adam the first bearing a vicious heart transgressed and was overcome, yea and all that were born of him. 22 And it was made a permanent infirmity, and the law with the heart of the people, with the wickedness of the root, and that which is good departed, and the wicked remained. 23 And the times passed, and the years were ended: and thou didst raise up unto thee a servant named David, 24 and spakest unto him to build a city of thy name, and to offer unto thee in it frankincense, and oblations. 25 And this was done many years, and they that inhabited the city forsook thee, 26 in all things as Adam and all his generations. For they also used a wicked heart. 27 And thou didst deliver thy city into the hands of thine enemies. 28 [1]Why, do they better things, that inhabit Babylon? And for this shall she rule over Sion?

[1] Iere. 12.

29 It came to pass when I was come hither, & had seen the impieties that cannot be numbered: and my soul saw many offending this thirtieth year, and my heart was astonished: 30 because I saw how thou bearest with their sin, and didst spare them that did impiously, and didst destroy thine own people, and preserve thine enemies, and didst not signify it. 31 I nothing remember how this way should be forsaken: doth Babylon better things than Sion? 32 Or hath any nation known thee beside Israel: or what tribes have believed thy testaments as Jacob? 33 Whose reward hath not appeared, nor their labour fructified. For passing through I passed among the nations, & I saw them abound, & not mindful of thy commandments. 34 Now therefore weigh our iniquities in a balance, and theirs that dwell in the world: and thy name shall not be found, but in Israel. 35 Or when have not they sinned in thy sight, that inhabit the earth? Or what nation hath so observed thy commandments? 36 These certes by their names thou shalt find to have kept thy commandments, but the nations thou shalt not find.

CHAPTER IV.

Man's wit and reason is not able to understand the counsel and judgement of God, 22. why his people are afflicted by wicked nations, 33. nor of times, and things to come.

And the Angel answered me, that was sent to me, whose name was Uriel, 2 and said to me: Thy heart exceeding hath exceeded in this world, and thou thinkest to comprehend the way of the Highest. 3 And I said: It is so my Lord. And he answered me, and said: I am sent to shew thee three ways, & to propose to thee three similitudes. 4 Of the which if thou shalt declare to me one of them, I also will shew thee the way which thou desirest to see, & will teach thee whence a wicked heart is. 5 And I said, Speak my Lord. And he said to me: Go, weigh me the weight of the fire, or measure me the blast of the wind, or call me back the day that is past. 6 And I answered, and said: what man born can do it, that thou askest me of these things? 7 And he said to me: If I should ask thee, saying: How great habitations are there in the heart of the sea, or how great veins be there in the beginning of the depth, or how great veins be there above the firmament, and what are the issues of paradise: 8 thou wouldest perhaps say to me: I have not descended into the depth, nor into hell as yet, neither, have I ascended at any time into heaven. 9 But now I have not asked thee, saving of the fire, & the wind, and the day by the which thou hast passed, and from the which thou canst not be separated: and thou hast not answered me of them. 10 And he said to me: Thou canst not know the things that are thine which grow together with thee: 11 and how can thy vessel comprehend the way of the Highest, and now the world being outwardly corrupted, understand the corruption evident in my sight: 12 I said to him: Better were it for us not to be, than yet living to live in impieties, and to suffer, and not to understand for what thing. 13 [1]And he answered me, and said: Going forth I went forward to a wood of trees in the field, and they devised a device,

[1] Iud. 9.
2. Par. 25.

14 and said: Come and let us go, and make war against the sea, that it may retire back before us, and we may make us other woods. 15 And in like manner the waves of the sea they also devised a device, and said: Come let us go up, let us overthrow the woods of the field, that there also we may consummate another country for ourselves. 16 And the wood's device was made vain, for fire came, and consumed it. 17 Likewise also the device of the waves of the sea. For the sand stood, & stayed them. 18 For if thou wert judge of these, whom wouldest thou begin to justify, or whom to condemn? 19 And I answered, and said: Verily, they devised a vain device. For the earth is given to the wood, and a place to the sea to carry her waves.
20 And he answered me, and said: Thou hast judged well, and why hast thou not judged for thyself? 21 For as the earth is given to the wood, and the sea for the waves thereof: so they that inhabit upon the earth, can understand only the things that are upon the earth: and they upon the heavens, the things that are above the height of the heavens. 22 And I answered, and said: I beseech thee Lord, that sense may be given me to understand. 23 For I meant not to ask of thy superior things, but of those that pass by us daily. For what cause Israel is given into reproach to the gentiles, the people whom thou hast loved, is given to impious tribes, and the law of our fathers is brought to destruction, and the written ordinances are no where:
24 And we have passed out of the world, as locusts, and our life is astonishment and dread, and we are not worthy to obtain mercy. 25 But what will he do to his name that is invocated upon us? And of these things I did ask. 26 And he answered me, and said: If thou search very much, thou shalt often marvel: because the world hastening hasteneth to pass, 27 and cannot comprehend the things which in times to come are promised to the just: because this world is full of injustice and infirmities. 28 But concerning the things that thou demandest I will tell thee: for the evil is sowed, and the destruction thereof is not yet come.
29 If then that which is sown be not turned up, and the place depart where the evil is sown, that shall not come where the good is sown. 30 Because the grain of ill seed hath been sown in the heart of Adam from the beginning: and how much impiety hath it engendered until now, and doth engender until the floor come?
31 And esteem with thyself the grain of the ill seed, how much fruit of impiety it hath engendered:
32 When the ears shall be cut, which are innumerable, what a great floor will they begin to make? 33 And I answered, and said: How, and when shall these things be? Why are our years few and evil?
34 And he answered me, and said to me, Hasten not above the Highest. For thou doest hasten in vain to be above him, for thy excess is much. 35 Did not the souls of the just in their cellars, ask of these things, saying: How hope I so, and when shall the fruit come of the floor of our reward? 36 And Jeremiel the Archangel answered to those things, and said: When the number of the seeds in you shall be filled, because he hath weighed the world in a balance, 37 and with a measure hath he measured the times, and in number he hath numbered the times, & hath not moved, nor stirred them, until the foresaid measure be filled.
38 And I answered, & said. O Lord Dominator, we also are all full of impiety. 39 And lest perhaps for us the floors of the just be not filled, for the sins of the inhabitants upon the earth. 40 And he answered me, and said: Go, and ask a woman with child, if when she hath accomplished her nine months, her womb can yet hold the infant within it? 41 And I said it cannot Lord. And he said to me: In hell the cellars of the souls are like to the matrice. 42 For as she that is in travail maketh haste, to escape the necessity of travailing: so this also hasteneth to render those things which are commended to it. 43 From the beginning it shall be shewed thee touching those things, which thou doest covet to see. 44 And I answered and said: If I have found grace before thine eyes, and if it be possible, and if I be fit, 45 shew me if there be more to come than is passed, or more things have passed, than are to come.
46 What passed, I know: but what is to come, I know not. 47 And he said to me: Stand upon the right side, and I will shew thee the interpretation of the similitude. 48 And I stood, and saw: and behold a burning furnace passed before me, and it came to pass when the flame passed, I saw: and behold the smoke overcame. 49 After these things there passed before me a cloud full of water, and with violence casting in much rain: and when the violence of rain wast cast, the drops therein overcame. 50 And he said to me: Think with thyself, as the rain increaseth more than the drops, and the fire than the smoke: so did the measure that passed, more abound. But the drops, and the smoke overcame: 51 and I prayed, and said, shall I live thinkest thou until these days? Or what shall be in those days? 52 He answered me, and said: Of the signs whereof thou askest me, in part I can tell thee, howbeit of thy life I was not sent to tell thee, neither do I know.

CHAPTER V.

Diverse signs of things to come are shewed to Esdras by an Angel: 16. for the comfort of the people in captivity.

But concerning signs: behold the days shall come, wherein they that inhabit the earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hid: and the country shall be barren from faith. 2 [1] And injustice shall be multiplied above that which thyself seest, and above that which thou hast heard in time past.

[1] Math. 24.

3 And they shall put their foot into the country which now thou seest to reign, and they shall see it desolate. 4 And if the Highest give thee life, thou shalt see after the third trumpet, and the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in a day, 5 and out of wood blood shall distill, and the stone shall give his voice, and the peoples shall be moved: 6 and he reign, whom they hope not that inhabit upon the earth, and fowls shall make their flight away. 7 and the sea of Sodom shall cast the fishes, and shall make a noise in the night, which many knew not, and all shall hear the voice thereof, 8 and there shall be made a confusion in many places, and the fire shall often be sent back, and the savage beasts shall go to other places, and women in their monthly flowers shall bring forth monsters, 9 and in sweet waters shall salt waters be found, and all friends shall overthrow one another: and then shall wit be hid, and understanding shall be separated into his cellar: 10 and it shall be sought of many, & shall not be found: and injustice shall be multiplied, and incontinency upon the earth. 11 And one country shall ask her neighbour, and shall say: Hath justice doing just passed through thee? And she shall deny it. 12 And it shall be in that time, men shall hope, & shall not obtain: they shall labour, & their ways shall not have success. 13 These signs I am permitted to tell thee: and if thou pray again and weep, as also now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear again greater things than these. 14 And I awaked, and my body did shiver exceedingly: and my soul laboured, that it fainted: 15 and the Angel that came, that spake in me, held me, and strengthened me, and set me upon my feet. 16 And it came to pass in the second night, and Salathiel the Prince of the people came to me, and said to me: Where wast thou? And why is thy countenance heavy? 17 Knowest thou not that Israel is committed to the in the country of their transmigration? 18 Rise up therefore, and taste bread, and forsake us not, as the Pastor his flock in the hand of wicked wolves. 19 And I said to him: Go from me, and approach not unto me. And he heard, as I said: & he departed from me. 20 And I fasted seven days howling and weeping, as Uriel the Angel commanded me. 21 And it came to pass after seven days, and again cogitations of my heart molested me very much, 22 and my soul resumed the spirit of understanding: and again I began to speak words before the Highest: 23 and I said: Lord Dominator of every wood of the earth, and all the trees thereof, thou hast chosen one vineyard: 24 and of every land of the world thou hast chosen thee one ditch: and of all the flowers of the world thou hast chosen thee one lily: 25 and of all depths of the sea, thou has filled thee one river: & of all the builded cities, thou hast sanctified unto thyself Sion: 26 and of all created souls, thou hast named thee one dove: and of all beasts that were made, thou hast provided thee one sheep: 27 and of all multiplied peoples, thou hast purchased thee one people: and a law approved of all thou hast given to this people, whom thou didst desire. 28 And now Lord, why hast thou delivered one unto many? And thou had prepared upon one root others, and hast dispersed thy only one in many: 29 and they have trodden upon it, which gainsaid thy covenants, and which believed not thy testaments. 30 And if hating thou hatest thy people, it ought to be chastised with thy hands 31 And it came to pass, when I had spoken the words, and the Angel was sent to me, that came to me before the night past, 32 & he said to me: Hear me, & I will instruct thee: and harken to me, and I will add before thee. 33 And I said: Speak my Lord. And he said to me: Thou art become exceedingly in excess of mind for Israel: hast thou loved it more than him that made it? 34 And I said to him: No Lord, but for sorrow I have spoken, for my veins torment me every hour, to apprehend the path of the Highest, and to search part of his judgement. 35 And he said to me: Thou canst not. And I said: Why Lord? To what was I born, or why was not my mother's womb my grave, that I might not see the labour of Jacob, and the weariness of the stock of Israel? 36 And he said to me: Number me the things that are not yet come, and gather me the dispersed drops, and make me the withered flowers green again, 37 & open me the shut cellars, & bring me forth the blasts inclosed in them, shew me the image of a voice: & then will I shew thee the labour that thou desirest to see. 38 And I said: Lord Dominator, for who is there that can know these things, but he that hath not his habitation with men? 39 And I am unwise, and how can I speak of these things, which thou hast asked me? 40 And he said to me: As thou canst not do one of these things, which have been said: so canst thou not find my judgement, or in the end the charity, which I have promised to the people. 41 And I said: But behold Lord thou art nigh to them that are near the end: and what shall they do that have been before me, or we, or they after us? 42 And he said to me: I will resemble my judgement to a crown. As there shall not be slackness of the last, so neither swiftness of the former. 43 And I answered, and said: Couldst thou not make them that have been, & that are, and that shall be, at once, that thou mayst shew thy judgement the quicker? 44 And he answered me, and said: The creature cannot hasten above the Creator, nor the world sustain them that are to be created in it, at once. 45 And I said: As thou didst say to thy servant, that quickening thou didst quicken the creature created by thee at once, and the creature sustained it: it may now also bear them present at once. 46 And he said to me: Ask the matrice of a woman, and thou shalt say to it: And if thou bring forth children, why by times? Ask it therefore, that it give ten at once. 47 And I said, it cannot verily: but according to time. 48 And he said to me: And I have given a matrice to the earth for them, that are sown upon it by time. 49 For as the infant bringeth not forth the things that pertain to the aged, so have I disposed the world created of me. 50 And I asked, and said: Whereas thou hast now given me a way, I will speak before thee: for our mother, of whom thou toldest me, yet she is young: now draweth nigh to old age. 51 And he answered me, and said: Ask her that beareth children, and she will tell thee. 52 For thou shalt say to her: Why are not they whom thou hast brought forth now like to them that were before thee, but less of stature? 53 And she also will say unto thee: They that are born in the youth of strength are of one sort, and they of another, that are born about the time of old age, when the matrice faileth. 54 Consider therefore thou also, that you are of less stature, than they that were before you: 55 and they that are after you, of lesser than you, as it were creatures now waxing old, and past the strength of youth. 56 And I said: I beseech thee Lord, if I have found grace before thine eyes, shew unto thy servant, by whom thou doest visit thy creature.

CHAPTER VI.

God knowing all things before they were made, created them 54. for man: & considereth the ends of all.

And [1] he said to me: In the beginning of the earthly world, and before the ends of the world stood, and before the congregation of the winds did blow,

[1] Prover. 8.

2 and before the voices of thunders sounded, and before the flashings of lightnings shined, and before the foundations of paradise were confirmed, 3 and before beautiful flowers were seen, and before the moved powers were established, and before the innumerable hosts of Angels were gathered, 4 and before the heights of the air were advanced, and before the firmaments were named, & before the chimneys were hot in Sion, 5 & before the present years were searched out, and before their inventions that now sin, were put away, and they signed that made faith their treasure: 6 then I thought, and they were made by me only, and not by any other: and the end by me, and not by any other. 7 And I answered, and said: What separation of times shall there be? And when shall the end of the former be, and the beginning of that which followeth? 8 And he said to me, from Abraham unto Isaac, when Jacob and Esau were born of him, the hand of Jacob held from the beginning the heel of Esau, 9 for the end of this world is Esau, and the beginning of the next Jacob. 10 The hand of a man between the heel and the hand. Ask no other thing Esdras. 11 And I answered, and said: O Lord Dominator, if I have found grace before thine eyes, 12 I pray thee shew thy servant the end of thy signs, whereof thou didst shew me part the night before. 13 And he answered, and said to me: Arise upon thy feet, and hear a voice most full of sound. 14 And it shall be as it were a commotion, neither shall the place be moved wherein thou standest. 15 Therefore when it speaketh be not thou afraid, because of the end is the word, and the foundation of the earth understood, 16 for concerning them the word trembleth and is moved, for it knoweth that their end must be changed. 17 And it came to pass, when I had heard, I rose upon my feet, and I heard: and behold a voice speaking, and the sound thereof as the sound of many waters: 18 and it said: Behold the days come, and the time shall be when I will begin to approach, that I may visit the inhabitants upon the earth. 19 And when I will begin to inquire of them that unjustly have hurt with their injustice, and when the humility of Sion shall be accomplished. 20 And when the world shall be oversigned that shall begin to pass, I will do these signs: Books shall be opened before the face of the firmament, and all shall see together, 21 & infants of one year shall speak with their voices, and women with child shall bring forth untimely infants, not ripe, of three or four months, and shall live, and shall be raised up. 22 And suddenly shall appear sown places not sown, and full cellars shall suddenly be found empty: 23 and a trumpet shall sound; which when all shall hear, they will suddenly be afraid. 24 And it shall be in that time, friends as enemies shall overthrow friends, and the earth shall be afraid with them: and the veins of fountains shall stand, and shall not run in three hours: 25 and it shall be, every one that shall be left of all these, of whom I have foretold thee, he shall be saved, and shall see my salvation, and the end of your world. 26 And the men that are received, shall see, they that tasted not death from their nativity, and the heart of the inhabitants shall be turned into another sense. 27 For evil shall be put out, and deceit shall be extinguished, 28 but faith shall flourish, and corruption shall be overcome, and truth shall be shewed, which was without fruit so many days. 29 And it came to pass, when he spake to me, and I lo by little and little looked on him before whom I stood, 30 and he said to me these words: I am come to shew thee the time of the night to come. 31 If therefore thou pray again, and fast again seven days, again I will tell thee greater things by the day which I have heard. 32 For thy voice is heard before the Highest. For the strong hath seen thy direction, and hath foreseen the chastity which thou hast had from thy youth: 33 and for this cause he hath sent me to shew thee all these things, and to say to thee, have confidence, and fear not, 34 and hasten not with the former times to think vain things, that thou hasten not from the last times. 35 And it came to pass after these things, and I wept again, and in like manner I fasted seven days, to accomplish the three weeks, that were told me. 36 And it came to pass in the eighth night, and my heart was troubled again in me, and I began to speak before the Highest. 37 For my spirit was inflamed exceedingly, and my soul was distressed. 38 And I said: O Lord, speaking thou didst speak from the beginning of creature from the first day, saying: Let heaven be made and earth: and thy word was a perfect work. 39 And then there was spirit, and darkness was carried about, and silence, the sound of the voice of man was not yet from thee. 40 Then thou didst command the lightsome light to be brought forth of thy treasures, whereby thy work might appear. 41 And in the second day thou didst create the spirit of the firmament, and commandest it to divide, and to make a division between the waters, that a certain part should depart upward, & part should remain beneath. 42 And in the third day thou didst command the waters to be gathered together in the seventh part of the earth: but six parts thou didst dry and preserve, that of them might be serving before thee things sown of God, and tilled. 43 For thy word proceeded, and the work forthwith was made. 44 For suddenly came forth fruit of multitude infinite, and diverse tastes of concupiscence, and flowers of unchangeable colour, and odours of unsearchable smell, & in the third day these things were made. 45 And in the fourth day thou didst command to be made the brightness of the sun, the light of the moon, the disposition of the stars: 46 and didst command them that they should serve man, that should be made. 47 And in the fifth day thou saidst to the seventh part, where the water was gathered together, that it should bring forth beasts, & fowls & fishes: & so was it done, 48 the dumb water and without life, the things that by God's appointment were commanded, made beasts, that thereby the nations may declare thy marvelous works. 49 And then thou didst preserve two souls: the name of one thou didst call Henoch, and the name of the second thou didst call Leviathan, 50 and thou didst separate them from each other. For the seventh part, where the water was gathered together, could not hold them. 51 And thou gavest to Henoch one part, which was dried the third day, to dwell therein, where are a thousand mountains. 52 But to Leviathan thou gavest the seventh part being moist, and kept it, that it might be to devour whom thou wilt, and when thou wilt. 53 And in the sixth day thou didst command the earth to create before thee cattle, and beasts, and creeping creatures: 54 and over these Adam, whom thou madest ruler over all the works, which thou didst make, and out of him are all we brought forth, and the people whom thou hast chosen. 55 And all these things I have said before thee o Lord, because thou didst create the world for us. 56 But the residue of the nations born of Adam thou saidst that they were nothing, and that they were like to spittle, and as it were the dropping out of a vessel thou didst liken the aboundance of them. 57 And now Lord, behold these nations which are reputed for nothing, have begun to rule over us, and to devour us: 58 but we thy people whom thou didst call thy first only begotten emulator, are delivered into their hands: 59 and if the world was created for us, why do not we possess inheritance with the world? How long these things?

CHAPTER VII.

Without tribulations no man can attain immortal life: 17. which the just shall inherit: and the wicked shall perish. 28. Christ will come, and die for mankind. 36. Prayers of the just shall profit till the end of this world, but not after the general judgement. 48. All sinned in Adam 52. and have added more sins, 57. but it is in man's power 62. by God's grace to live eternally.

And it came to pass when I had ended to speak these words, the Angel was sent to me, which had been sent to me the first nights, 2 and he said to me: Arise Esdras, and hear the words which I am come to speak to thee. 3 And I said: Speak my God. And he said to me: The sea is set in a large place, that it might be deep and wide: 4 but the entrance to it shall be set in a strait place, that it might be like to rivers. 5 For who witting will enter into the sea, and see it, or rule over it: if he pass not the strait, how shall he come into the breadth? 6 Also another thing: A city is built, and set in a plain place, and it is full of all goods. 7 The entrance thereof narrow, and set in a steep place, so that on the right hand there was fire, and on the left deep water: 8 and there is one only path set between them, that is, between the fire and the water, so that the path cannot contain, but only a man's step. 9 And if the city shall be given a man for inheritance, if he never pass through the peril set before it, how shall he receive his inheritance? 10 And I said: So Lord. And he said to me, So it is: Israel also a part. 11 For I made the world for them: and when Adam transgressed my constitution, that was judged which was done. 12 And the entrances of this world were made strait, and sorrowful, & painful, and few and evil, and full of dangers, and stuffed very much with labour. 13 For the entrances of the greater world are large and secure, and making fruit of immortality. 14 If then they that live entering in enter into these strait and vain things: they cannot receive the things that are laid up. 15 Now therefore why art thou troubled, whereas thou art corruptible? And why art thou moved, whereas thou art mortal? 16 And why hast thou not taken in thy heart that which is to come, but that which is present? 17 [1]I answered, and said: Lord Dominator: behold thou hast disposed by thy law that the just shall inherit these things, and the impious shall perish.

18 But the just shall suffer the straits, hoping for the wide places: for they that have done impiously, have both suffered the straits, and shall not see the wide places. 19 And he said to me: There is no judge above God, nor that understandeth above the Highest. 20 For many present do perish because the law of God which was set before, is neglected. 21 For God commanding commanded them that came, when they came, what doing they should live, and what observing they should not be punished. 22 But they were not persuaded, & gainsaid him, and made to themselves a cogitation of vanity, 23 and proposed to themselves deceits of sins, and they said to the Highest that he was not, and they knew not his ways, 24 and despised his law, and denied his covenances, and had not fidelity in his ordinances, & did not accomplish his works. 25 For this cause Esdras, the empty to the empty, & the full to the full. 26 Behold the time shall come, & it shall be when the signs shall come which I have foretold thee, and the bride shall appear, and appearing she shall be shewed that now is hid with the earth: 27 and every one that is delivered from the foresaid evils, he shall see my marvelous things.
28 For my son JESUS shall be revealed with them that are with him, & they shall be merry that are left in the four hundred years. 29 And it shall be after these years, and my son CHRIST shall die: and all men that have breadth, 30 and the world shall be turned into the old silence seven days, as in the former judgements, so that none shall be left. 31 And it shall be after seven days and the world shall be raised up that yet waketh not, and shall die corrupted: 32 and the earth shall render the things that sleep in it, and the dust them that dwell in it with silence, and the cellars shall render the souls that are commended to them. 33 And the Highest shall be revealed upon the seat of judgement, and miseries shall pass, and long sufferance shall be gathered together. 34 And judgement only shall remain, truth shall stand, and faith shall wax strong, 35 and the work shall follow, and the reward shall be shewed, and justice shall awake, and injustice shall not have dominion.
36 [1]And I said: First Abraham prayed for the Sodomites, and Moyses for the fathers that sinned in the desert.

[1] Gen. 18. Exod. 32.

37 [1]And they that were after him for Israel in the days of Achaz, and of Samuel.

38 [1]And David for the destruction, and of Salomon for them that came unto the sanctification.

39 [1]And Elias for them that received rain, and for the dead that he might live, 40 [1]and Ezechias for the people in the days of Sennacherib, and many for many.

[1] 4. Reg. 19. v. 15.

41 If therefore now when corruptible did increase, and injustice was multiplied, and the just prayed for the impious: why now also shall it not be so? 42 And he answered me and said: This present world is not the end, much glory remaineth in it: for this cause they prayed for the impotent. 43 For the day of judgement shall be the end of this time, and the beginning of the immortality to come, wherein corruption is past: 44 intemperance is dissolved, incredulity is cut off: and justice hath increased, truth is sprung. 45 For then no man can save him that hath perished, nor drown him that hath overcome. And I answered, 46 and said: This is my word the first and the last, that it had been better not to give the earth to Adam, or when he had now given it, to restrain him that he should not sin. 47 For what doth it profit men presently to live in sorrow, and being dead to hope for punishment? 48 [1]O what hast thou done Adam? For if thou didst sin, it was not made thy fall only, but ours also which came of thee.

[1] Rom. 5. v. 2.

49 For what doth it profit us if immortal time be promised to us: but we have done mortal works? 50 And that everlasting hope is foretold us: but we most wicked are become vain? 51 And that habitations of health and security are reserved for us, but we have converst naughtily? 52 And that the glory of the Highest is reserved to protect them that have slowly converst: but we have walked in most wicked ways? 53 And that paradise shall be shewed, whose fruit continueth incorrupted, wherein is security and remedy: 54 but we shall not enter in: for we have converst in unlawful places? 55 And their faces which have had abstinence, shall shine above the stars: but our faces black above darkness. 56 For we did not think living when we did iniquity, that we shall begin after death to suffer. 57 And he answered, & said: This is the cogitation of the battle which man shall fight, who is born upon the earth, 58 that if he shall be overcome, he suffer that which thou hast said: but if he overcome he shall receive that which I say: 59 [1]for this is the life which Moyses spake of when he lived, to the people, saying: Choose unto thee life, that thou mayst live.

[1] Deut. 30. v. 19.

60 But they believed him not, no nor the Prophets after him, no nor me which have spoken to them. 61 Because there should not be sorrow unto their perdition, as there shall be joy upon them, to whom salvation is persuaded. 62 And I answered, and said: I know Lord, that the Highest is called merciful in that, he hath mercy on them which are not yet come into the world, 63 and that he hath mercy on them which converse in his law: 64 & he is long suffering, because he sheweth long sufferance to them that have sinned, as it were with their own works: 65 and he is bountiful, because he will give according to exigents: 66 and of great mercy, because he multiplieth more mercies to them that are present, and that are past, and that are to come. 67 For if he shall not multiply his mercies, the world shall not be made alive with them that did inherit it. 68 And he giveth: for if he shall not give of his bounty, that they may be relieved which have done iniquity, the tenth thousand part of men cannot be quickened from their iniquities. 69 And the judge if he shall not forgive them that are cured with his word, and wipe away a multitude of contentions: there should not perhaps be left in an innumerable multitude, but very few.

CHAPTER VIII.

God is merciful in this world, yet few are saved. 6. God's works and disposition of his creatures are marvelous. 15. Esdras prayeth for the people of Israel: 37. and salvation is promised to the just, and punishment threatened to the wicked.

And he answered me, and said: This world the Highest made for many, but that to come for few. 2 And I will speak a similitude Esdras before thee. For as thou shalt ask the earth, and it will tell thee, that it will give much more earth whereof earthen work may be made, but a little dust whereof gold is made: so also is the act of this present world. 3 [1]Many indeed are created, but few shall be saved.

[1] Mat. 20. v. 16.

4 And I answered, and said: Then o soul swallow up the sense, and devour that which is wise. 5 For thou art agreed to obey, and willing to prophesy. For there is no space given thee but only to live. 6 O Lord if thou wilt not permit thy servant, that we pray before thee, and thou give us seed to the heart, and tillage to the understanding, whereof may the fruit be made, whereby every corrupt person may live, that shall bear the place of a man? 7 For thou art alone, and we are one workmanship of thy hands, as thou hast spoken: 8 and as now the body made in the matrice, and thou doest give the members, thy creature is preserved in fire and water: and nine months thy workmanship doth suffer thy creature that is created in it: 9 and itself that keepeth, and that which is kept, both shall be preserved: & the matrice being preserved rendereth again at some time the things that are grown in it. 10 For thou hast commanded of the members, that is the breasts to give milk unto the fruit of the breasts, 11 that the thing which is made, may be nourished till a certain time, and afterward thou mayest dispose him to thy mercy. 12 For thou hast, brought him up in thy justice, and hast instructed him in thy law, and hast corrected him in thy understanding: 13 and thou shalt mortify him, as thy creature: and shalt give him life, as thy work. 14 If then thou wilt destroy him that is made with so great labours: it is easy by the commandment to be ordained, that also which was made, might be reserved. 15 And now Lord I will speak, of every man thou rather knowest: but concerning thy people, for which I am sorrowful: 16 and concerning thine inheritance, for which I mourn, and for Israel for whom I am pensive, and concerning Jacob, for whom I am sorrowful. 17 Therefore will I begin to pray before thee for me, and for them: because I see our defaults that inhabit the earth. 18 But I have heard of the celerity of the judge that shall be. 19 Therefore hear my voice, and understand my word, and I will speak before thee. 20 The beginning of the words of Esdras before he was assumpted: and I said: Lord which inhabitest the world, whose eyes are elevated unto things on high and in the air: 21 and whose throne is inestimable, and glory incomprehensible: by whom standeth an host of Angels with trembling, 22 whose keeping is turned in wind and fire, thou whose word is true, and sayings permanent: 23 whose commandment is strong, and disposition terrible: whose look dryeth up the depths, and indignation maketh the mountains to melt, and truth doth testify. 24 Hear the prayer of thy servant, and with thine ears receive the petition of thy creature. 25 For whilst I live, I will speak: & whilst I understand, I will answer: 26 Neither do thou respect the sins of thy people, but them that serve thee in truth. 27 Neither do thou attend the impious endeavours of the nations, but them that with sorrows have kept thy testimonies. 28 Neither think thou of them that in thy sight have converst falsely, but remember them that according to thy will have known thy fear. 29 Neither be thou willing to destroy them that have had the manners of beasts: but respect them that have taught thy law gloriously. 30 Neither have indignation towards them, which are judged worse than beasts: but love them that always have confidence in thy justice and glory. 31 Because we and our fathers languish with such diseases: but thou for sinners shalt be called merciful. 32 For if thou shalt be desirous to have mercy on us, then thou shalt be called merciful, to us having no works of justice. 33 For the just which have many works laid up, of their own works shall receive reward. 34 For what is man, that thou art angry with him: or the corruptible kind, that thou art so bitter touching it? 35 [1]For in truth there is no man of them that be born, which hath not done impiously, and of them that confess, which have not sinned.

[1] 2. Reg. 8. v. 46.
2. Paral. 6. v. 36.

36 For in this shall thy justice be declared, and thy goodness, o Lord, when thou shalt have mercy on them, that have no substance of good works. 37 And he answered me, and said: Thou hast spoken some things rightly: and according to thy words, so also shall it be done, 38 because I will not indeed think upon the work of them that have sinned before death, before the judgement, before perdition: 39 but I will rejoice upon the creature of the just, and I will remember their pilgrimage also, and salvation, and receiving of reward. 40 Therefore as I have spoken, so also it is. 41 [1]For as the husbandman soweth upon the ground many seeds, and planteth many plants, but not all which were sown in time are preserved, nor yet all that were planted shall take root: so they also that are sown in the world, shall not all be saved.

[1] Mat. 13. & 20.

42 And I answered, and said: If I have found grace, let me speak. 43 As the seed of the husbandman, if it come not up, or receive not the rain in time, if it be corrupted with much rain, perisheth: 44 so likewise also man who made with thy hands, and thou named his image: because thou art likened to him, for whom thou hast made all things, and hast likened him to the seed of the husbandman. 45 Be not angry upon us, but spare thy people, and have mercy on thy inheritance. And thou hast mercy on thy creature. 46 And he answered me, and said: The things that are present to them that are present, and that shall be, to them that shall be. 47 For thou lackest much to be able to love my creature above me: and to thee often times, even to thyself I have approached, but to the unjust never. 48 But in this also thou art marvelous before the Highest, 49 because thou hast humbled thyself as becometh thee: and hast not judged thyself, that among the just thou mayst be very much glorified. 50 For which cause many miseries, and miserable things shall be done to them that inhabit the world in the later days: because they have walked in much pride. 51 But thou for thyself understand, and for them that are like unto thee seek glory. 52 For to you paradise is open, the tree of life is planted, time to come is prepared, aboundance is prepared, a city is builded, rest is approved, goodness is perfited, & perfit wisdom. 53 The root of evil is signed from you: infirmity, & moth is hid from you: and corruption is fled into hell in oblivion. 54 Sorrows are past, & the treasure of immortality is shewed in the end. 55 Add not therefore inquiring of the multitude of them that perish. 56 For they also receiving liberty have despised the Highest, and contemned his law, and forsaken his ways. 57 Yea and moreover they have trodden down his just ones. 58 [1]and have said in their heart, that there is no God: and that, knowing that they die.

[1] Psal. 13. & 52.

59 For as the things aforesaid shall receive you: so thirst and torment, which are prepared shall take them: for he would not man to be destroyed. 60 But they themselves also which are created, have defiled his name which made them: and have been unkind to him that prepared life. 61 Wherefore my judgement now approacheth. 62 Which things I have not shewed to all, but to thee, and to few like unto thee. And I answered, and said: 63 Behold now Lord thou hast shewed me a multitude of signs, which thou wilt begin to do in the latter times, but thou hast not shewed me at what time.

CHAPTER IX.

Certain signs shall go before the day of judgement. 14. More shall perish than be saved. 25. Prayer with other good works are means to salvation.

And he answered me, and said: Measuring measure thou the time in it-self: and it shall be when thou seest, after a certain part of the signs which are spoken of before shall pass, 2 then shalt thou understand, that the same is the time wherein the Highest will begin to visit the world that was made by him. 3 And when there shall be seen in the world moving of places, and trouble of peoples, 4 then shalt thou understand, that of these spake the Highest from the days that were before thee, from the beginning. 5 For as all that is made in the world hath a beginning, and also a consummation, and the consummation is manifest: 6 so also the times of the Highest have the beginning manifest in wonders and powers, and the consummations in work and in signs. 7 And it shall be, every one that shall be saved, and that can escape by his works, and by faith, in which you have believed, 8 shall be left out of the foresaid dangers, and shall see my salvation in my land, and in my coasts, because I have sanctified myself from the world. 9 And then shall they be in misery, that now have abused my ways: and they that have rejected them in contempt, shall abide in torments: 10 For they that knew not me, having obtained benefits when they lived: 11 and they that loathed my law, when they yet had liberty, 12 and when as yet place of penance was open to them understood not, but despised: they must after death in torment know it. 13 Thou therefore be not yet curious, how the impious shall be tormented: but inquire how the just shall be saved, and whose the world is, and for whom the world is, & when. 14 And I answered, and said: 15 [1]I have spoken heretofore, and now I say, and hereafter will say: that they are more which perish than that shall be saved:

[1] Mat. 10.

16 as a flood is multiplied above, more than a drop. 17 And he answered me, and said: Like as the field so also the seeds: and as the flowers, such also the colours: and as the workman, such also the work, and such as the husbandman, such is the husbandry: because it was the time of the world. 18 And now when I was preparing for them, for these that now are before the world was made, wherein they should dwell: and no man gainsaid me. 19 For then every man, and now the creator in this world prepared, and harvest not failing, and law unsearchable their manners are corrupted. 20 And I considered the world, and behold there was danger because of the cogitations that came in it. 21 And I saw, and spared it very much: and I kept unto myself a grape kernel of a cluster, and a plant of a great tribe. 22 Let the multitude therefore perish, which was born without cause, and let my kernel be kept, and my plant: because I finished it with much labour. 23 And thou if thou add yet seven other days, but thou shalt not fast in them, 24 thou shalt go into a field of flowers, where no house is built: and thou shalt eat only of the flowers of the field, and flesh thou shalt not taste, and wine thou shalt not drink, but only flowers. 25 Pray to the Highest without intermission, and I will come, and will speak with thee. 26 And I went forth, as he said to me, into a field which is called Ardath, and I sat there among the flowers. And I did eat of the herbs of the field, and the meat of them made me full. 27 And it came to pass after seven days, and I sat down upon the grass, and my heart was troubled again as before. 28 And my mouth was opened, and I began to speak before the Highest, and said: 29 [1]O Lord thou shewing thyself to us, wast shewed to our fathers in the desert, which is not trodden, and unfruitful, when they came out of Aegypt: and saying thou saidst:

[1] Exod. 19. & 24. Deut. 4.

30 Thou Israel hear me, and seed of Jacob attend to my words. 31 For behold, I sow my law in you, and it shall bring forth fruit in you, and you shall be glorified in it for ever. 32 For our fathers receiving the law observed it not, and kept not my ordinances, and the fruit of the law did not appear: for it could not, because it was thine. 33 For they that received it, perished, not keeping that which had been sown in them. 34 [1]And behold it is the custom, that when the earth hath received seed, or the sea a ship, or some vessel meat or drink: when that shall be destroyed wherein it was sown, or into the which it was cast:

[1] Exod. 32.

35 that which was sown, or cast in, or the things that were received, are destroyed withal, and the things received now tarry not with us: but it is not so done to us. 36 We indeed that received the law, sinning have perished, and our heart that received it: 37 [1]For the law hath not perished, but hath remained in his labour.

[1] Esai. 48.

38 And when I spake these things in my heart, I looked back with mine eyes, and saw a woman on the right side, and behold she mourned, and wept with a loud voice, and was sorrowful in mind exceedingly, and her garments rent, and ashes upon her head. 39 And I left the cogitations, wherein I was thinking, and I turned to her and said to her: 40 Why weepest thou? and why art thou sorry in mind. And she said to me: 41 Suffer me my Lord, that I may lament myself, and add sorrow: because I am of a very pensive mind, and am humbled exceedingly. 42 And I said to her: What aileth thee: tell me. And she said to me: 43 I thy servant have been barren, and have not born child, having a husband thirty years. 44 For I every hour, and every day, and these thirty years do beseech the Highest night and day. 45 And it came to pass, after thirty years God heard me thy handmaid, and saw my humility, and attended to my tribulation, and gave me a son: and I was very joyful upon him, and my husband, and all my citizens, and we did glorify the Strong exceedingly. 46 And I nourished him with much labour. 47 And it came to pass when he was grown, and came to take a wife, I made a feast day.

CHAPTER X.

The state of Jerusalem is prefigured by a woman mourning, 25. and afterwards rejoicing.

And it came to pass, when my son was entered into his inner chamber, he fell down, and died: 2 and we all overthrew the lights, and all my citizens rose up to comfort me, and I was quiet until the other day at night. 3 And it came to pass, when all were quiet to comfort me, that I might be quiet: and I arose in the night, and fled: and came as thou seest into this field. 4 And I mean now not to return into the city, but to stay here: and neither to eat, nor drink, but without intermission to mourn, and to fast until I die. 5 And I left the talk wherein I was, and with anger answered her, and said: 6 Thou fool above all woman, seest thou not our mourning, & what things chance to us? 7 Because Sion our mother is sorrowful with all sorrow, and humbled, and mourneth most bitterly. 8 And now whereas we all mourn, and are sad: whereas we are sorrowful, & art thou sorrowful for one son? 9 For ask the earth, and it will tell thee: that it is she, that ought to lament the fall of so many things that spring upon it. 10 And of her were all born from the beginning, and others shall come: and behold, almost all walk into perdition, and the multitude of them cometh to destruction. 11 And who then ought to mourn more, but she that hath lost so great a multitude, rather than thou which art sorry for one? 12 And if thou say unto me, that my mourning is not like the earth's: because I have lost the fruit of my womb, which I bare with sorrows, and brought forth with pains: 13 but the earth according to the manner of the earth, and the present multitude in it hath departed as it came: and I say to thee, 14 as thou hast brought forth with pain, so the earth also giveth her fruit for man from the beginning to him that made her. 15 Now therefore keep in with thy sorrow, and bear stoutly the chances that have befallen thee. 16 For if thou justify the end of God, thou shalt in time both receive his counsel, and also in such things thou shalt be praised. 17 Go in therefore into the city to thy husband. And she said to me: 18 I will not do it, neither will I enter into the city, but here will I die. 19 And I added yet to speak to her, and said: 20 Do not this word, but consent to him that counseleth thee. For how many are the chances of Sion? Take comfort for the sorrow of Jerusalem. 21 For thou seest that our sanctification is made desert, and our altar is thrown down, and our temple is destroyed, 22 and our psalter is humbled, and hymn is silent, and our exultation is dissolved, and the light of our candlestick is extinguished, and the ark of our testament is taken for spoil, and our holy things are contaminated, and the name that is invocated upon us is almost profaned: and our children have suffered contumely, and our Priests are burnt, and our Levites are gone into captivity, and our virgins are deflowered, and our wives have suffered rape, and our just men are violently taken, and our little ones are lost, and our young men are in bondage, and our valiants are made impotent: 23 and that which is greatest of all, the seal of Sion, because she is unsealed of her glory: For she is also delivered into the hands of them that hate us.

24 Thou therefore shake off thy great heaviness, and lay away from thee the multitude of sorrows, that the Strong may be propitious to thee again, and the Highest will give thee rest, rest from thy labours.
25 And it came to pass, when I spake to her, her face did shine suddenly, and her shape, and her visage was made glistering, so that I was afraid exceedingly at her, and thought what this thing should be. 26 And behold, suddenly she put forth a great sound of a voice full of fear, that the earth was moved at the woman's sound. And I saw: 27 and behold, the woman did no more appear unto me, but a city was built, & a place was shewed of great foundations: and I was afraid, and crying with a loud voice I said: 28 Where is Uriel the Angel that from the beginning came to me? For he made me come in multitude in excess of this mind, & my end is made into corruption, & my prayer into reproach. 29 And when I was speaking these things, behold he came to me, and saw me. 30 And behold I was laid as dead, and my understanding was alienated, and he held my right hand, and strengthened me and set me upon my feet, and said to me: 31 What aileth thee? And why is thy understanding, and the sense of thy heart troubled, and why art thou troubled? And I said?: 32 Because thou hast forsaken me, and I indeed have done according to thy words, and went out into the field: and behold, I have seen, and do see that which I cannot utter. And he said to me: 33 Stand like a man, and I will move thee. And I said: 34 Speak thou my Lord in me, forsake me not, that I die not in vain:
35 because I have seen things that I knew not, and I do hear things that I know not. 36 Or is my sense deceived, and doth my soul dream? 37 Now therefore I beseech thee, that thou shew unto thy servant concerning this trance. And he answered me, and said:
38 Hear me, and I will teach thee, and will tell thee of what things thou art afraid: because the Highest hath revealed unto thee many mysteries. 39 He hath seen thy right way, that without intermission thou was sorrowful for thy people, and didst mourn exceedingly for Sion. 40 This therefore is the understanding of the vision which appeared to thee a little before. 41 The woman whom thou sawest mourning, thou beganst to comfort her. 42 And now thou seest not the form of the woman, but there appeared to thee a city to be built. 43 And because she told thee of the fall of her son, this is the interpretation. 44 This woman which thou sawest, she is Sion, and whereas she told thee of her, whom now also thou shalt see, as a city builded.
45 And whereas she told thee, that she was barren thirty years: for the which there were thirty years, when there was not yet oblation offered in it. 46 And it came to pass after thirty years, Salomon built the city, and offered oblations: then it was, when the barren bare a child. 47 And that which she said unto thee, that she nourished him with labour, this was the habitation in Jerusalem. 48 And whereas she said to thee, that my son coming into the bride chamber died, and that a fall chanced unto him, this was the ruin of Jerusalem that is made. 49 And behold, thou hast seen the similitude of her: and because she lamented her son, thou beganst to comfort her: and of these things that have chanced, these were to be opened to thee.
50 And now the Highest seeth that thou wast sorry from the heart: and because with thy whole heart thou sufferest for her, he hath shewed thee the clearness of her glory, and the fairness of her beauty. 51 For therefore did he say to thee, that thou shouldest tarry in a field where house is not built. 52 For I knew that the Highest began to shew thee these things:
53 therefore I said unto thee, that thou shouldest go into a field, where is no foundation of building. 54 For the work of man's building could not be born in the place, where the city of the Highest began to be shewed. 55 Thou therefore fear not, neither let thy heart dread: but go in, and see the beauty, and greatness of the building, as much as the sight of thine eyes is capable to see: 56 and afterward thou shalt hear as much, as the hearing of thine ears is capable to hear. 57 For thou art blessed above many, and art called with the Highest as few. 58 And tomorrow night thou shalt tarry here. 59 and the Highest will shew thee those visions of the things on high, which the Highest will do to them that inhabit upon the earth in the later days. 60 And I slept that night, and the other next, as he had said to me.

CHAPTER XI.

An eagle appeareth to Esdras coming forth of the sea, with three heads, and twelve wings: sometimes one reigning in the world, sometimes another, but every one vanisheth away. 36. A lion also appeareth coming forth of the wood, to suppress the eagle.

And I saw a dream, and behold an eagle came up out of the sea: which had twelve wings of feathers, and three heads. 2 And I saw, & behold she spread her wings into all the earth, and all the winds of heaven blew upon her, and were gathered together. 3 And I saw, and of her feathers sprang contrary feathers, and they became little wings, and small. 4 For her heads were at rest, and the middle head was greater than the other heads, but she rested with them. 5 And I saw and behold the eagle flew with her wings, and reigned over the earth, and over them that dwell in it. 6 And I saw that all things under heaven were subject to her, and no man gainsaid her, no not one of the creature that is upon the earth.
7 And I saw, and behold the eagle rose up upon her talons, and made a voice with her wings, saying:
8 Watch not all together, sleep every one in his place, & watch according to time. 9 But let the heads be preserved to the last. 10 And I saw, and behold the voice came not out of her heads, but from the midst of her body. 11 And I numbered her contrary wings, and behold they were eight. 12 And I saw, and behold on the right side rose one wing, and reigned over all the earth. 13 And it came to pass, when it reigned, an end came to it, and the place thereof appeared not: and the next rose up, and reigned, that held much time.
14 And it came to pass, when it reigned, and the end of it also came, that it appeared not as the former.
15 And behold, a voice was sent forth to it, saying:
16 Hear thou that hast held the earth of long time. Thus I tell thee before thou begin not to appear.
17 None after thee shall hold thy time, no nor the half thereof. 18 And the third lifted up itself, and held the principality as also the former: and that also appeared not. 19 And so it chanced to all the other by one and by one to have the principality, and again to appear no-where. 20 And I saw, and behold in time the rest of the wings were sent up on the right side, that they also might hold the principality: and of them there were that held it, but yet forthwith they appeared not.
21 For some also of them stood up, but they held not the principality. 22 And I saw after these things, and behold the twelve wings, and two little wings appeared not: 23 and nothing remained in the body of the eagle but two heads resting, & six little wings.
24 And I saw, and behold from the six little wings two were divided, and they remained under the head, that is on the right side. For four tarried in their place.
25 And I saw, and behold the underwings thought to set up themselves, and to hold the principalities.
26 And I saw, and behold one was set up, but forthwith it appeared not. 27 And they that were second did sooner vanish away than the former.
28 And I saw, and behold the two that remained, thought with themselves that they also would reign:
29 and when they were thinking thereon, behold one of the resting heads, which was the middle one awaked, for this was greater than the other two heads.

30 And I saw that the two heads were complete with themselves. 31 And behold the head with them that were with him turned, and did eat the two underwings that thought to reign. 32 And this head terrified all the earth, & ruled in it over them that inhabit the earth with much labour, and he that held the dominion of the whole world above all the wings that were. 33 And I saw after these things, and behold the middle head suddenly appeared not, as did the wings. 34 And there remained two heads, which reigned also themselves over the earth, and over them that dwelt therein.
35 And I saw, and behold the head on the right side devoured that which was on the left. 36 And I heard a voice saying to me, Look against thee, and consider what thou seest. 37 And I saw, and behold as a lion raised out of the wood roaring: and I saw that he sent out a man's voice to the eagle. And he spake saying.
38 Hear thou, and I will speak to thee, and the Highest will say to thee: 39 Is it not thou that hast overcome of the four beasts, which I made to reign in my world, and that by them the end of their times might come? 40 And the fourth coming overcame all the beasts that were past, and by might held the world with much fear, and all the world with most wicked labour, and he inhabited the whole earth so long time with deceit. 41 And thou hast judged the earth not with truth. 42 For thou hast afflicted the meek, and hast troubled them that were quiet, and hast loved liars, and hast destroyed their habitations that did fructify, & hast overthrown their walls that did not hurt thee. 43 And thy contumely is ascended even to the Highest, and thy pride to the Strong. 44 And the Highest hath looked upon the proud times: and behold they are ended, and the abominations thereof are accomplished. 45 Therefore thou eagle appear no more, and thy horrible wings and thy little wings most wicked, and thy heads malignant, and thy talons most wicked, and all thy body vain, 46 that all the earth may be refreshed, and may return delivered from thy violence, and may hope for his judgement and mercy that made it.

CHAPTER XII.

The eagle vanisheth away, 5. Esdras prayeth, 10. and the former visions are declared to him.

And it came to pass, whilst the lion spake these words to the eagle: I saw, 2 and behold the head that had overcome, and those four wings appeared not which passed to him, and were set up to reign: and their reign was small, and full of tumult. 3 And I saw, and behold they appeared not, & all the body of the eagle was burnt, and the earth was afraid exceedingly, & I by the tumult & trance of mind, and for great fear awaked, and said to my spirit:
4 Behold thou hast given me this, in that, that thou searchest the ways of the Highest. 5 Behold yet I am weary in mind, and in my spirit I am very feeble, and there is not so much as a little strength in me for the great fear, that I was afraid of this night. 6 Now therefore I will pray the Highest, that he strengthen me even to the end. 7 And I said: Lord Dominatour, if I have found grace before thine eyes, and if I am justified before thee above many, and if indeed my prayer be ascended before thy face, 8 Strengthen me, and shew unto me thy servant the interpretation, and distinction of this horrible vision, that thou mayst comfort my soul most fully. 9 For thou hast counted me worthy to shew unto me the later times. And he said to me: 10 This is the interpretation of this vision.
11 The eagle which thou sawest coming up from the sea, this is the Kingdom which was seen in a vision to Daniel thy brother. 12 [1]But it was not interpreted to him, therefore I do now interpret it to thee.

[1] Dan. 7. v. 7.

13 Behold the days come, and there shall rise a Kingdom upon the earth, and the fear shall be more terrible than of all the Kingdoms that were before it.
14 And there shall twelve kings reign in it, one after another. 15 For the second shall begin to reign, and he shall continue more time than the rest of the twelve.

16 This is the interpretation of the twelve wings which thou sawest. 17 And the voice that spake which thou heardest, not coming forth of her heads, but from the midst of her body, 18 this is the interpretation, that after the time of that Kingdom shall rise no small contentions, and it shall be in danger to fall: and it shall not fall then, but shall be constituted again according to the beginning thereof. 19 And whereas thou sawest eight underwings cleaving to the wings thereof, 20 this is the interpretation: eight kings shall arise in it, whose times shall be light, and years swift, and two of them shall perish. 21 But when the middest time approacheth, four shall be kept till a time, when the time thereof shall begin to approach to be ended, yet two shall be kept to the end. 22 And whereas thou sawest three heads resting, 23 this is the interpretation: in her last days the Highest will raise up three Kingdoms, and will call back many things into them, and they shall rule over the earth, 24 and them that dwell in it, with much labour above all them that were before them. For this cause they are called the heads of the eagle. 25 For these shall be they that shall recapitulate her impieties, and that shall accomplish her last things. 26 And whereas thou sawest a greater head not appearing, this is the interpretation thereof: that one of them shall die upon his bed, and yet with torments. 27 For the two that shall remain, the sword shall eat them. 28 For the sword of one shall devour him that is with him: but yet this also at the last shall fall by the sword. 29 And whereas thou sawest two underwings passing over the head that is on the right side, 30 this is the interpretation: these are they whom the Highest hath kept to their end, this is a small Kingdom, and full of trouble. 31 As thou sawest the lion also, whom thou sawest awaking out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her, and her injustices by all his words as thou hast heard: 32 this is the wind which the Highest hath kept unto the end for them, and their impieties: and he shall rebuke them, and shall cast in their spoils before them. 33 For he shall set them in judgement alive: and it shall be, when he hath reproved them, then shall he chastise them. 34 For the rest of my people he shall deliver with misery, them that are saved upon my borders, and he shall make them joyful till the end shall come, the day of judgement, whereof I have spoken to thee from the beginning. 35 This is the dream which thou sawest, and these be the interpretations. 36 Thou therefore only hast been worthy to know this secret of the Highest. 37 Write therefore in a Book all these things which thou hast seen, and put them in a hidden place: 38 and thou shalt teach them the wise men of thy people, whose hearts thou knowest able to take, & to keep these secrets. 39 But do thou stay here yet other seven days, that there may be shewed thee whatsoever shall seem good to the Highest to shew thee. 40 And he departed from me, And it came to pass, when all the people had heard that the seven days were past, and I had not returned into the city, and all gathered themselves together from the least unto the greatest: and came to me, and spake to me saying: 41 What have we sinned to thee, or what have we done unjustly against thee, that leaving us thou hast sitten in this place? 42 For thou alone art remaining to us of all peoples, as a cluster of grapes of the vineyard, and as a candle in a dark place, and as an haven and ship saved from the tempest. 43 Or are not the evils that chance, sufficient for us? 44 If then thou shalt forsake us, how much better had it been to us, if we also had been burnt with the burning of Sion? 45 For we are not better than they that died there. And they wept with a loud voice. And I answered them, & said: 46 Be of good cheer Israel, & be not sorrowful thou house of Jacob. 47 For there is remembrance of you before the Highest, and the Strong hath not forgotten you in tentation. 48 For I have not forsaken you, neither did I depart from you: but I came into this place, to pray for the desolation of Sion, and to seek mercy for the low estate of your sanctification. 49 And now go every one of you into his house, and I will come to you after these days. 50 And the people departed, as I said to them, into the city: 51 but I sat in the field seven days, as he commanded me: and I did eat of the flowers of the field only, of the herbs was my meat made in those days.

CHAPTER XIII.

A vision of a wind (as it first seemed, but) indeed, v. 3. of a man: 5. strong against the enemies: 21. with the interpretation.

And it came to pass after seven days, and I dreamed a dream in the night. 2 And behold there rose a wind from the sea, that troubled all the waves thereof. 3 And I saw, and behold that man grew strong with thousands of heaven: and when he turned his countenance to consider, all things trembled that were seen under him: 4 & wheresoever voice proceeded out of his mouth, all that heard his voices began to burn, as the earth is quiet when it feeleth the fire. 5 And I saw after these, and behold a multitude of men was gathered together, of whom there was no number, from the four winds of heaven, to fight against the man that was come up out of the sea. 6 And I saw, and behold he had graven to himself a great mountain, and he flew upon it. 7 And I sought to see the country, or the place whence the mountain was graven, and I could not. 8 And after these things I saw, and behold all that were gathered to him, to overthrow him, feared exceedingly, yet they were bold to fight. 9 And behold as he saw the violence of the multitude that came, he lifted not up his hand, nor held sword, nor any warlike instrument, but only as I saw, 10 that he sent forth out of his mouth as it were a blast of fire, and from his lips a spirit of flame, & from his tongue he sent forth sparkles and tempests, & all things were mingled together with this blast of fire, and spirit of flame, and multitude of tempests. 11 And it fell with violence upon the multitude, that was prepared to fight, and burned them all, that suddenly there was nothing seen of an innumerable multitude, but only dust, and the savour of smoke: and I saw, and was afraid. 12 And after these things I saw the man himself descending from the mountain, and calling to him another peaceable multitude, 13 and there came to him the countenance of many men, some rejoicing, and some sorrowing: and some bond, some bringing of them that were offered. And I was sick for much fear, & awaked, and said. 14 Thou from the beginning hast shewed thy servant these marvelous things, and hast counted me worthy that thou wouldest receive my petition. 15 And now shew me yet the interpretation of this dream. 16 For as I think in my judgement, woe to them that were left in those days: and much more woe to them that were not left. 17 For they that were not left, were sorrowful. 18 I understand now what things are laid up in the later days, and they shall happen to them, yea and to them that are left. 19 For therefore they came into great dangers, and many necessities, as these dreams do shew. 20 But yet it is easier, adventuring to come into it, than to pass, as a cloud from the world, and not to see the things that happen in the later time. And he answered me, and said: 21 Both the interpretation of the vision I will tell thee: and also concerning the things that thou hast spoken I will open to thee. 22 Whereas thou speakest of them that were left, this is the interpretation. 23 He that taketh away danger at that time, he hath guarded himself. They that have fallen into danger, these are they that have works, and faith in the Strongest. 24 Know therefore that they are more blessed which are left, than they that are dead. 25 These are the interpretations of the vision, whereas thou sawest a man coming from the heart of the sea, 26 the same is he whom the Highest preserveth much time, which by himself shall deliver his creature: and he shall dispose them that are left. 27 And whereas thou sawest proceed out of his mouth, as it were wind, and fire, and tempest: 28 and whereas he held no sword, nor warlike instrument: for his violence destroyed the multitude that came to overthrow him: this is the interpretation. 29 Behold the days come, when the Highest shall begin to deliver them, that are upon the earth: 30 and he shall come in excess of mind upon them that inhabit the earth. 31 [1]And one shall think to overthrow another: one city another city, one place another place, and nation against nation, and Kingdom against Kingdom.

[1] Mat. 24. Luc. 21.

32 And it shall be, when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen, which I shewed thee before: and then shall my son be revealed, whom thou sawest, as a man coming up. 33 And it shall be when all nations shall hear his voice: and every one in his country shall leave their war, that they have toward each other: 34 and an innumerable multitude shall be gathered in one, as willing to come to overthrow him. 35 But he shall stand upon the top of mount Sion. 36 And Sion shall come, and it shall be shewed to all prepared and builded, as thou sawest the mountain to be graven without hands. 37 And the same my son shall reprove the things that the Gentiles have invented, these their impieties which came near to the tempest, because of their evil cogitations, and torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented. 38 Which were likened to the flame, and he shall destroy them without labour by the law that was likened to the fire. 39 And whereas thou sawest him gathering unto him another peaceable multitude. 40 [1]These are the ten tribes, which were made captive out of their land in the days of Osee the king, whom Salmanasar the king of the Assyrians led captive: and he transported them beyond the river, and they were transported into another land.

[1] 4. Reg. 17.

41 But they gave themselves this counsel, to forsake the multitude of nations, and to go forth into a farther country, where mankind never inhabited. 42 Or there to observe their ordinances, which they had not kept in their country. 43 And they entered in by the narrow entrances of the river Euphrates. 44 [1]For the Highest then wrought them signs, and stayed the veins of the river till they passed.
